Fr. McQuade has been informed of the procedure whereby worthy students of these schools may be returned to college to complete the semester if inducted into the armed forces prior to May 23, 1943. Only those students whose past records would justify a postponement of active service will be allowed to continue their studies.

E. R. C. Students Urged To Stay Until Called

As an answer to the question of the status of the Reserve programs, the American Council on Education issues the following statement:

"Administrative details of the Army and Navy Training programs and of Selective Service are still so much in the formative stage and the unavoidable delays in putting them in operation are so probable that all students whether in the Enlisted Reserve Corps or subject to Selective Service are urged by the Army, Navy and the Marine Corps to continue in college until called.

"From the viewpoint of the armed forces and of industry, every day a man remains in college he is receiving the training necessary for effective war service. To drop out to await call is to lose invaluable time in total training. The same applies also to new students who planned to enter the institutions."

Statement On E. R. C.

In reference to the pertinent question concerning the status of the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps at Villanova, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, stated:

"Information from reliable sources, unofficial in character, would seem to indicate that the Army may not call students in the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps until much later in the year than previously scheduled.

"Under the circumstances, the following special arrangements will apply. Students in the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps who enroll for the semester beginning Feb. 1 and who are called by the Army before completing substantially one-half of the term so that they are unable to obtain partial credit for the same, will be refunded tuition payments in full for the term.

"If they are called during the second half of the term before it has been substantially completed and so that they are unable to obtain credit for the same, they will be refunded one-half the tuition fees. Other incidental fees as well as for room and board will be refunded on a pro rata basis."

D.P.E. to Award Keys To Senior Members; E.P.T Meeting Today

Delpha Phi Epsilon, the Commerce and Finance School fraternity, will award twenty-two keys to those seniors who have been members of the fraternity during the past three years. This announcement was made this week by William Craven who is chairman of the key committee.

The next meeting of the fraternity will be held after the semester examinations have been completed. At this meeting, nominations for all officers of the fraternity for the coming year will be accepted.

Thomas F. Devine, president of Epsilon Phi Theta, Arts and Education fraternity, announced on Friday that nominations for officers of the fraternity will be accepted at a meeting to be held tomorrow in room 110, Mendel Hall, at 1 P. M. Four of the five present officeholders will relinquish their positions, since they have all served for a scholastic year. They are: Thomas Devine; Joseph Carbine, vice-president; Joseph Haggerty, secretary; and Jack Deery, treasurer.

Lambda Kappa Delta, the science fraternity, will hold an election of officers for the new term at 1:00 P. M. today in room 210 Mendel Hall. Robert Lind, photography editor of the Belle Air, will also announce at the meeting the time and place for the taking of the picture of the fraternity for the year book.

At the meeting last Tuesday, the retiring president, Angelo Macchia, assisted by the secretary, Jose Silva, took nominations for the open positions.

Centennial Ball Hailed As Success Amid Clatter Of Yesteryear Buggies

The mode of transportation was the most startling feature of the Centennial ball, held on Friday evening, for many of those attending arrived in horse-drawn conveyances which were at least as old, and probably older, than the hundred-year-old college. Some of the students even rented horses and buggies to be hired out to those who did not wish to travel by common carrier. OPA agents were present to check up on any stray automobiles in the parking lot, but were helpless, since no ration books have as yet been issued to the lowly hay-burners.

Century of Progress

Many carriages, wagons and even a stage coach, were reminiscent of the days of the parents and grandparents of the students, and to any of the older generation who may have passed by, it must have seemed as though the days of the "gay 90's" had returned. The drivers, cracking their whips and shouting at their teams lent an air of festivity which has been lacking since the advent of the automobile.

The dance itself was a huge success, for the combination of a large crowd and the lilting music of Gray Gordon and his orchestra gave the affair an air of sociability seldom found in college dances. Gray Gordon's orchestra provided a smooth mixture of "sweet" and "jive" which satisfied and pleased both the calmer couples and the jitterbugs in the crowd.

The Field House was decorated with the Centennial theme as the motif, and as lavishly as possible, considering priorities on materials and the short time left after studies for those on the decorations committee. The gym was draped with hangings which hid the permanent seats and the roof. On both sides of the gym were six white pillars which seemed to support the camouflaged seating section.

Against the west wall was a picture of the college as it was in 1843 when the Augustinian founders bought it. On the blue background behind the picture were the words: "Campus—1843." This picture was flanked by patriotic shields on a blue and white background.

Badge of Honor

Above the shields appeared the words: "Centennial Class." On either side of the shields, and on the blue background, were white V's. The east wall was similarly decorated, with the exception that the center panel had a photograph of the college as it is today, and the words: "Campus—1843."

On the inside of the entrance hung an enormous American flag, while at the other end of the floor, behind the bandstand, was hung a large college banner. Above the center of the dance floor, a chandelier hung, on which moving spotlights continually played.

For the convenience of the dancers, seats were placed around the sides of the dance floor and in the Blue Room, where refreshments were served.

Mystery Of Cafeteria Blackout Proves To Be No Military Secret

No! The black paint on the cafeteria windows is not the malicious plot of some foreign agent to sabotage college students of their accustomed sun-fed ultra-violet rays. Nor is its purpose to hurl a pall of gloom over the gay spirits of potential officer material. Neither did a whimsy of Paul, the painter, inspire him with a crazed desire to smear black on all windows that his dripping brush could reach.

No, the explanation of this intriguing campus mystery is really quite simple; much to our chagrin, for we should like to have drawn for you a thrill-packed picture of sneaking Axis spies (with cueball haircuts and a monacle in one eye, of course) striving to discover for their fatherland that all-important secret of how many calories per meal does the average college student get?

Academic Atmosphere in Cafeteria

But fate has singled us out as a drab relater of facts, the man who dreams of intrigue while shackled to his typewriter under the cruel surveillance of a heartless editor-in-chief. So we lock up our spies, heroines, and super-detective reporters to save for "that novel we shall write some day" and become once again the tired- overworked college newspaperman that we are supposed to be.

The windows of the cafeteria have been blackened for a two-fold purpose. During the proposed dusk to dawn blackouts, it will enable the cafeteria employes to prepare breakfast at the usual time instead of waiting for our short winter days to furnish the necessary light. The cafeteria will also serve as a study room during the blackouts in order to supplement the limited capacity of the Mendel Hall amphitheater.

Lights On

The three-day mock invasion which the papers have announced that the state of Pennsylvania is planning to stage sometime within the month of January was the immediate cause for this action on the part of the school authorities.

Thus, all hopes that the three day invasion would mean three nights of long sleeping and healthy bull sessions devoid of a study-nagging conscience were dashed to bits. We are reasonably certain, however, that the student body did not engage in any tearing of hair and gnashing of teeth when they realized that they would not be starved by too early breakfasts and stuffed by too early dinners over the three day period.

Thus, for the duration necessity demands that Villanova men give up along with coffee, sugar, and nifty little roadsters, window panes that could almost be seen through.

STAFF MEETING

A meeting of the entire VILLANOVAN staff will take place today at 1:00 P. M. in the VILLANOVAN office, Mendel Hall.

Army Institute Plan Formulated For Service Men

Corresondence Courses Offer Choice Of 700 Subjects For Continuation Of Service Men's Education

In an unprecedented move the United States Army has now set in motion a plan whereby instruction in regular college courses is offered by correspondence to all qualified personnel. This measure, known as the Army Institute with headquarters in Madison, Wisconsin, has been designed by the War Department to enable all men to better qualify themselves in two ways; namely, to help improve their military efficiency and chances for promotion in military life, and to increase their knowledge and practical education for use when returning to civilian life.

The general public is well-informed as to the intensive training programs that are in operation in all branches of the service to increase military efficiency of their men but few are aware that over and above these programs there are additional opportunities for education offered to serve men that will aid them to increased efficiency when they return to civilian life. It is mainly for this latter purpose that the Army Institute has been formulated.

Open to All Services

Although it is under the direct supervision of the Army its facilities are available to all service men whether they be in the Army, Navy, Marines or Coast Guard. The Army Institute operates in effect as a clearing house for education guidance to all men in the service and is a channel through which over 700 educational courses are available to them through the correspondence system.

A choice of two plans has been arranged for the service man, one of which provides that he may take one of sixty-four courses given directly by the Army Institute itself, or he can choose a course from one of seventy-six colleges and universities scattered throughout the country that have well-developed organizations for handling education through the correspondence technique.

Awarded Certificate

All courses given through the Army Institute have been selected and approved by the Army officials as studies which will add to the individuals' military efficiency and education for civilian life after service. After his application has been approved the student may obtan instruction in business, scientific, liberal arts, and engineering fields. No matter where the service man is stationed these educational courses will be made available.

Upon satisfactory completion of a subject offered by the Army Institute, an official Certificate of Proficiency is awarded. If so desired after the war by the service man, the Institute will furnish to his college or prospective employer, a record of all courses completed. It will be left to the discretion of the respective colleges as to the amount of credit that can be applied to a degree by taking these courses.

Further information concerning cost, method of enrolling, eligibility, etc. has been outlined in the Army Institute Catalogue which may be obtained by writing to its headquarters.

Dr. Haenisch To Speak At German Club Friday

Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, assistant professor of chemistry, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the German Club to be held Friday evening at 8:00 P. M. in Simpson Hall. The topic of his lecture will be the last two operas in Wagner's "Niebelungen."

Last year he entertained the club with a lecture on two components of Wagners' famous "Ring," "Rheingold" and "The Valkyries." On Friday night Dr. Haenisch will discuss "Siegfried" and "Twilights of the Gods" and completes the "Ring." Dr. Haenisch is moderator of the music seminar.

ting the dancers from the Pennsylvania Railroad station to the Field House.

Eugene Barry and the men working under him on the decorations committee have been working for the past week to transform the Field House into a setting appropriate for the ball.

While all the details of the motif have not yet been revealed, it is known that the traditional blue and white color scheme will be employed. All the decorations will tend to remind the guests that Villanova is celebrating its 100th anniversary.

In particular, the centennial idea will be conveyed by two scenes of the college campus: one representing it as it was at its inception, and the other depicting it as it appears today.

Dudley Wins Post In Business Fraternity

John F. Dudley was elected vice president of Delta Pi Epsilon, Friday at a run-off of the Commerce school fraternity election. Dudley, a senior accounting major, won out over Robert Gretz who tied him in the first balloting. He succeeds William Hayes as vice president of the fraternity.

Those seniors desiring keys must hand in their names by January 15, James Meehan announced Friday. He also stated that William Craven, John McCarthy, William Dywer and Robert Power were appointed to a committee which will consider the excuses of frequent absentee seniors who submit their names for keys.

Orders for fraternity pins will be taken by Joseph Coll, club secretary, beginning this week. All members who do not have pins are urged to purchase them.

Beta Gamma Plans 3 Debates This Week

The Beta Gamma Debating Society continues its present season, with three more debates planned for this week. Thursday, January 14, Wilfred Gagen and Carl Yager, president and secretary respectively of the Beta Gamma, will debate against a team from the University of Pennsylvania. This debate will take place at the weekly luncheon of the Philadelphia Rotary Club. "Resolved: That a World Federal Union Should be Established" is to be the topic, with the Villanova team upholding the affirmative.

On the same day two teams, as yet unnamed will debate each other before the Norristown Business Men's Exchange. The World Union topic will be debated here too.

Fordham Debate

Next Saturday, January 16, Larry Sullivan, and Thomas Sullivan will debate against a team from Fordham University. This time Villanova will take the negative of the World Union question. This debate will take place in Simpson Hall at 3:00 P. M. This debate will be the first decision debate of the season.

back to their respective campuses the topics discussed at the Congress with particular emphasis on the following points:

1. Study without action is futile, but action without previous study is foolhardy.
2. The proper milieu of student activity is the campus. Accordingly, the concrete activities prompted by our studies should be concentrated on our campuses.
3. The essential postulate of all effective student action is the unqualified application of Catholic principles to our personalities.

With these premises in mind seven other resolutions pertaining to definite action were adopted.

Also at the last session the delegates pledged themselves to recite each day for thirty days the Act of Consecration to the Immaculate Heart of Mary, a prayer Pope Pius XII read over the radio when he dedicated the world to the Immaculate Heart of Mary.

Winter

(A Parody)

By THOMAS McFARLAND

When roof-tops are mantled with snow
And Jack Frost his realm doth hold
And winds in all directions blow
And trees are rattling 'gainst the cold,
When birds are gone and Winter reigns,
Then nightly do we hear the strains
Of teedle-de-dum
The fiddler's note,
While warm ale simmers in the bowl.

When drowsy James lies fast in sleep
And clanging pots the cook doth scour
And the cuckoo doth his vigil keep
And quarterly proclaim the hour,
When all inside is snug and warm,
Then music sounds above the storm;
Teedle-de-dum,
The fiddler's note,
While warm ale simmers in the bowl.

Centennial Issue To Be Largest Ever Published; Will Feature 2000 Pictures

Alumni of Villanova have been contacted by the business staff of the Belle Air notifying them of the forthcoming publication of the Centennial issue. This issue should be of special interest to all the alumni for the story of Villanova's first century is skillfully and vividly related in the 1943 edition.

Its pages will show the authentic history of Villanova from its earliest days to the present time. It will bring out the difficulties the college faced because of the anti-Catholic Hogan Schism in 1844; the influence of the Civil War; the rapid strides made before the end of the last century; the developement of various courses of study; a record of the first athletic programs of Villanova which included contests with the famous Carlisle Indians and the Ivy League; the era of disastrous fires that razed college buildings on three occasions; and the remarkable expansion of the college during the past twenty-five years.

Model of Excellence

The Belle Air has been recognized by the National Scholastic Press Association as one of the ten best college books in the country, the 1942 edition being acclaimed a "model of excellence." The next will contain more than 2000 pictures, including a beautiful view section of the campus, and eight large illustrations in color. Its binding is deluxe, and it is embossed in three colors.

All seniors who wish to purchase a copy of the Belle Air are reminded that this year it will be necessary to contribute an extra $5.00, besides the usual activities fee. All those who wish to buy a copy are requested to have their orders in before Feb. 28, because of the priorities on the fabricoid material of which the cover is composed.

Spanish Club Plans Cervantes Banquet

Plans for the annual Cervantes Day dinner were presented to members of the Spanish club by its president, William Swan, last Thursday at a meeting held in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium. The most important cultural event of the year will be held on April 23, if war conditions permit.

As in the past, the Columbia University medal and diploma will be awarded to the writer of the best essay on the life of Cervantes, the "Spanish Shakespeare." Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A., moderator of the organization, will present a book as prize for the best poem about Cervantes. Both the essay and poem will be read at the dinner and afterwards the prizes will be given to the winners.

Fr. Lozano read a statement of the financial condition of the club to the assembled members. He pointed out that the last event of the club was a success socially and culturally, but it depleted the treasury considerably. He stressed the fact that members must pay their dues in order to finance the Cervantes Day celebration.

Engineering, Science Men Receiving Draft Notices Should See Fr. McQuade

Students in the science school and junior and senior engineers who are not members of the Enlisted Reserve Corps are requested to see Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., immediately upon receipt of their notices to report for induction from their local draft boards.

Fr. McQuade has been informed of the procedure whereby worthy students of these schools may be returned to college to complete the semester if inducted into the armed forces prior to May 23, 1943. Only those students whose past records would justify a postponement of active service will be allowed to continue their studies.

E. R. C. Students Urged To Stay Until Called

As an answer to the question of the status of the Reserve programs, the American Council on Education issues the following statement:

"Administrative details of the Army and Navy Training programs and of Selective Service are still so much in the formative stage and the unavoidable delays in putting them in operation are so probable that all students whether in the Enlisted Reserve Corps or subject to Selective Service are urged by the Army, Navy and the Marine Corps to continue in college until called.

"From the viewpoint of the armed forces and of industry, every day a man remains in college he is receiving the training necessary for effective war service. To drop out to await call is to lose invaluable time in total training. The same applies also to new students who planned to enter the institutions."

Statement On E. R. C.

In reference to the pertinent question concerning the status of the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps at Villanova, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, stated:

'Information from reliable sources, unofficial in character, would seem to indicate that the Army may not call students in the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps until much later in the year than previously scheduled.

"Under the circumstances, the following special arrangements will apply. Students in the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps who enroll for the semester beginning Feb. 1 and who are called by the Army before completing substantially one-half of the term so that they are unable to obtain partial credit for the same, will be refunded tuition payments in full for the term.

"If they are called during the second half of the term before it has been substantially completed and so that they are unable to obtain credit for the same, they will be refunded one-half the tuition fees. Other incidental fees as well as for room and board will be refunded on a pro rata basis."

Best Wishes, Father

DURING the Christmas holidays, Rev. John F. Burns, O. S. A., Ph.D., for seven years Dean of the Arts students, departed quietly for a new assignment as Pastor and Prior of St. Patrick's Church, San Diego, California.

His transfer to new duties was without fanfare or publicity in the way that we have come to consider so typical of our Augustinian teachers. Of them it can be truly said that they quietly come, quietly go, wherever duty assigns them.

To Father Burns we express our best wishes in his new assignment with fervent hope that his health will improve under the favorable California sun.

China—A Forgotten Ally

IN a mighty international alignment, just as in an intimate social cliche, each member, to insure the friendship of the other members and to prevent disrupting jealousies, must exercise constant vigilance against slighting one or displaying undue favoritism towards another. This is especially true in time of crisis, when the existence of all depends upon the full cooperation of each and every party.

The United States is now a vitally important member of a strong but heterogeneous alignment of powers—the United Nations facing the supreme crisis—the crisis of war. Yet, the disheartening news that the Chinese military mission has been recalled from this country reveals that our military and political authorities have practically ignored the friendly advances of China while exhibiting an almost frenzied desire to bring the United States and Great Britain into closer collaboration. Undoubtedly we should stand in intimate union with England, an active ally advanced in industry and possessor of a formidable up-to-date army and navy, but China, backward though she may be, is not to be overlooked.

The attitude of the war-scarred Chinese has always been that of friendship toward the United States, even at the time when our western ports were bustling with freighters transporting tons of scrap metal to her arch enemy, Japan. But China's value does not lie merely in her friendship. It lies in the many concrete, definite ways in which she can help us strike at the very core of the "Rising Sun."

Prominent military authorities predict that Japan will fall only when that very island is battered to a state of helplessness. In China there are many possible "Shangri La's" from which Japan could be bombed. In China, war-wise generals who have been combating the Japanese for ten years await anxiously to assist with their vast wealth of experience. But we have refused to accept the opportunity for bringing this war to a quick and successful finish. We have not only caused the military leaders of China to look warily at the United States, but we have also caused the valiant Chinese people to become slightly disheartened.

In China a poorly equipped, but sturdy and courageous veteran army is begging to participate in united global strategy with the United Nations. The very proximity of China to our foe indicates that in her we have a possible stronghold from which to hurl a second front aimed at Tokio itself.

Our government, by permitting its foreign policy to be distorted by smug sense of racial superiority, though not paving the way for defeat, is certainly prolonging the time until victory.

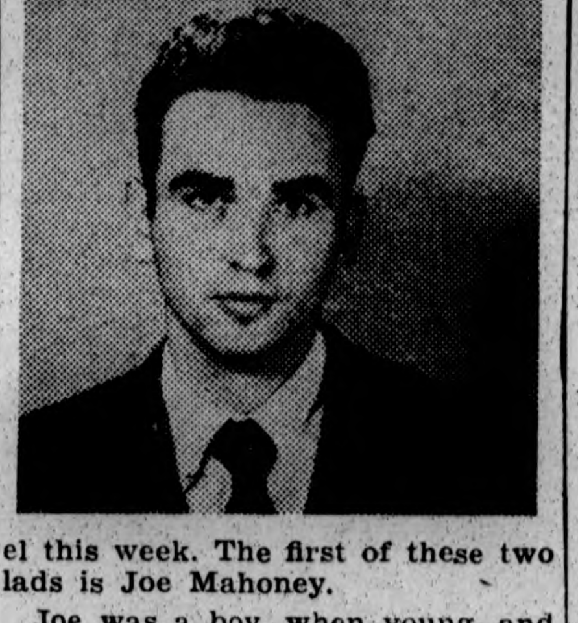
Meet The Boys:

Joe's An Artist, Bill's A Rancher-To-Be; One Heads For Land, The Other For Sea

By TOM McFARLAND

THE myth that college boys are pleasure-seeking joux d'esprit belongs to another era. The modern college boy is a man with a purpose, a serious, industrious scholar. The finest illustration of this type of fellow that we know of is composed of two Villanovans who fall under the reportorial scalpel this week. The first of these two lads is Joe Mahoney.



Joe was a boy, when young, and grew up to be a man. So much for his earlier life. Joe is a graduate of St. Thomas More High School in this fair metropolis, and, when faced with the problem of choosing a college, was frustrated until offered a scholarship by Villanova. This action, according to Joe, "swung the deal."

Excels as an Artist

In the first place, Joe is an artist. His pen has turned out some of the finest cartoons and sketches we of the VILLANOVAN have seen since the days of Joe Bee. His ambition is to write an editorial and draw the accompanying cartoon all by his lonesome. He would like to get into the post-war advertising game, and it is needless to remark that he should be successful.

Whereas Joe is the epitome of conservatism, both in dress and manner, it has never been known that he dodge a chance to laugh or to slip a dig at a classmate. Socially he is welcome anywhere, but on the subject of the heart he is suspiciously silent. "No use," he says, "cluttering up the column with talk of women; you will have plenty of that when writing up Bill Carey."

Plays No Favorite

His favorite Catholic Girls' Colleges in the vicinity are Immaculata, Rosemont, and Mount St. Joseph's, "in any order."

His favorite activities are dramatics, intramurals of all types, and ribbing the good Dr. Haggerty. In high school Joe played the lead in "Death Takes a Holiday," but he has gained nine pounds since that time, he is in haste to explain

Joe is certainly not the Harold Teen type of student; rather he is the model, according to professors, and an ace, according to us.

AND there is Bill Carey, another contradiction to the popular conception of scholarship. Bill is an athlete, a good one. When in his senior year at West Catholic High, he won the national Catholic Championship for both the low and high hurdles. Running for the successful Villanova team, he takes part in the two hurdle events and middle distances.

Bill reads a lot, and this certainly shows itself in his conversation, his writing, as a member of the VILLANOVAN staff, and his attitude toward his fellow students. His favorite author, if the name is not an irreverence, is St. Thomas Aquinas. His favorite pastime is planning, and at this he is an expert.

A Rancher In the Making

At the moment Bill expects word from the maritime commission that will decide the course of his life. A lover of the sea, he intends to do his fighting in that element. After the war, if shipping is low, he intends to take up a rancher's position in Argentina. This is certainly farsightedness for a young fellow.

A C. & F. student of no small renown, Bill is booked as a social lion. His word in the matter is, "If I could accomplish all they claim, I would be the biggest wolf at the college," which is a fairly large order. "Women are wonderful, God bless 'em, but they do not make work that a fellow has to do any easier."

Heads for Active Duty

Of course, this taciturnity is to be taken with a grain of salt or ten, because a good-looking boy with a shock of red hair that laughs Mr. Fitch to scorn does not spend all his time reading the doctors of the Church. Having no Pinkerton detectives at our command, however, we have to take these fellows' word that women are poison as far as they are concerned.

And there they are, Joe Mahoney and Bill Carey, Joe headed for a trick in the army, and Bill leaving for the sea in a few weeks; an arts student with a very real talent, and a commerce student with a level business head; both nice fellows, both real men.

WITH pleasant memories of the dance fading into the background, we Villanovans are turning our thoughts to final exams which are staring us in the face. But before we settle down to our much needed seriousness (that's French for cramming) I think it's altogether fitting and proper that we should recall some of the more outstanding features of last Friday evening:

Number one spot goes to Gray Gordon and Orchestra for his smooth rhythm.

Tom MacFarland follows closely behind with his unique answer to the transportation problem between here and Bryn Mawr during the dance.

Prof. Dougherty, head of the Statistical Department in the C. & F. School, takes concluding honors. Mr. Dougherty reports that "Miss Average Centennial Ball" is 5'6", 20 years old, weighs 120 pounds, is of fair complexion, and wears a size 6 shoe and a size 14 dress. Obviously, this body is not by Fisher.

After The Ball:

Murray: "A man picked my pocet."
Froemke: "What did he get?"
Murray: "Practice."

—The Dakota Scientist.

There's the one about the inveterate inebriate who put a penny in the mail box, gazed up at the town clock and gasped, "Heavens, I've lost fourteen pounds."

—The Loyolan.

They May Have Been Betters Days:

For the fifth time the two rather careful boxers had fallen into a clinch.

"Turn out the lights!" shouted a voice from the gallery. "Them two lovin, 'earts want to be alone."

"Leave the lights alone," shouted another voice. "I want to read."

Did you hear about the moron who bought the tall ladder and then cut all the rungs so he could wash windows on the ground floor.

—The Albrightian.

She said that girls certainly do regreat losing their youth—unless they can pick up another immediately.

Corn From A Way Back:

A lady who had about a three point higher I. Q. rating than a moron was being shown through the railroad shops of her city.

"And here," said her guide, "we have the locomotive boiler."

"But why do they boil locomotives?" she asked.

The guide looked at her in a puzzled sort of a way and then replied: "To keep the engine tender, ma'am."

The current topic of conversation this week is the recollections and impressions gathered at the Centennial Ball. It was the last social function, together with the senior dinner-dance, for the seniors who will graduate this month. It may also be the last for many of the other students. For a very successful affair, congratulations to "Jake" Mauch, Gene Barry, Jack Quinn and all of the committee.

OVERATURE:

Jim "Rabbit" Sullivan received four letters and a picture all in one day from Margarite from C. H. C. This is really concentrated something or other. . . . Johnny DiCarlo is experiencing his first affair with Corrine from the College of St. Rose in Albany. After receiving five letters in one week, strained relations ensued. However Corrine came down for the dance. . . . Greg "G" D'Angelo and Ruth were the victims of an unwanted third party in the person of Vinny Carleisimo in Bryn Mawr the other night. It seems he was harder to get rid of than the seven years itch. . . . Bill Friel, College Placement Director, is engaged to Marie Selfridge. Bill placed the sparkler on the third diget, left, last Sunday. . . . Earl Brusso got three calls last week from Dodie in Boston. After refusing the first call, he finally broke down and received the second the following evening. What happened Earl, did she reverse the charges?

Omar's Omission:

He sings of "cypress-slender" maids,
  With tresses soft and fine;
Of love and song beneath the bough,
  And ruby-colored wine.

He paints a rosy picture
  Of women, wine and laughter,
But not a word does Omar say
  About the morning after!

INTERMISSION:

Bob Bolger courted Nancy Morris to the Ball. Transportation was no obstacle for them, since she lives very adjacent to the campus. . . . Jim Bigley, known as "Mr. Anthony," and Bill Barthmaier both had dates for the dance with a couple of nurses from St. Mary's Hospital. At the last minute they backed out. We wish to express our deepest condolences, boys. . . . Embarrassing moments—Jerry McDermott and Jane went to a show one night last week. Before entering her seat she genuflected. . . . Austin Gavin seems to be wasting little time in his pursuit of Nancy "Hedy" Morrison at Chestnut Hill. They were doing a mean conga at the dance and were also observed at the Ice Follies the following nite. . . . John "Ace" Murry, the mayor of the Sixty-ninth Street Terminal, was seen the other afternoon chatting with Betty at the above mentioned stamping grounds.

She was peeved and called him "Mr."
Not because he went and kr.,
But because just before,
As she opened the door,
This same Mr. kr. sr.

FINALE:

Gene Konopka and Bernadette had a quarrel over—quote "Some intellectual jerk". . . . Dave Blake found his mattress rather hard the other nite. Someone put a wooden door on top of his mattress and beneath the sheet. Dave bounced in bed and nearly broke every bone in his body. . . . Tom McFarland's buggy-business at the dance didn't prove very profitable. As a matter-of-fact, it's rumored he lost seventeen "clams". . . . The senior dinner-dance last Saturday evening at the Ritz proved likewise to be a success. Vince Quinn and John "Reds" McFadden headed the committee which was responsible. . . . Jack Enright, Andy Dideo, Bill Carey and Ed Bennis, ex '43, all drove to the affair in a stage-coach of 1890 vintage. The "Wells-Fargo" crew did not arrive until ten P. M. although the dinner was scheduled for 8. No doubt they had a "flat shoe". . . . Ray Hill and Jayne Sanders, Immaculata, announced their engagement during the course of the evening.

VILLANOVAN SPORTS

By BILL WALSH
Sports Editor

After working as a reporter successively under Bob Funabashi and "Jake" Mauch, and filling in for the same Mr. Mauch last summer, we'll be in the driver's seat again for the next few months, and sincerely hope that we can keep pace with the high-standards set by our predecessors.

We have a decided advantage at present, in one respect, anyway, that of having a winning basketball team. As most of you know, a Sports Editor's and his writers' tasks are a great deal easier when they are following a victorious quintet. Although Villanova basketball teams during the past two years have been quite good, they were not of the outstanding calibre of the Blue and White aggregation of the current season.

Coach Al Severance's minions have ridden roughshot over eight opponents to date, and should have little trouble with Rider tomorrow night. Along with New York University, Villanova is one of the two major unbeaten college fives in the eastern part of the country. Yes, they are really a great team this season, and Coach Severance and the squad deserve the publicity which they have been getting from vital press sources.

Looking into the future, however, we cannot help feeling that Uncle Sam may be the cause of the downfall of this all-winning quintet before the season is officially closed on March 11th in a game with Muhlenburg in the Villanova gym. Jim Kelley, the freshman who appeared in the starting lineup quite a few times, and saw a great deal of action in the eight contests to date, is the first casualty of the star-studded aggregation. Kelley left school last week, after being ordered by his draft board to report for induction.

The three other yearling sensations, Ray Kodish, Don Ostermann, and Frank Frascella, are still around, but Kodish is expected to be drafted within a few weeks. Frascella and Ostermann, luckily, are in the Navy's V-1 program, and hence will be certain of finishing out the season. Kodish, like Kelley, will be sorely missed, as he was developing into an adept floor man, and in games to date has been successful on half his shots from the hardwood, to lead all the other members of the squad in accuracy.

Greatest among the fears of all Villanova basketball followers is the fact that the Army Reserves are due to be called up as soon as the current semester terminates. This would mean that Bill Wood, Joe Lord, and "Major" McDonnell, would leave the squad. No greater casualty could befall a coach in a winning year than to lose three first stringers, but if the Army decides to call up its student personnel, that is exactly what will happen to Villanova's cage mentor.

To part with even one of the trio would be disastrous in mid-season, but to lose all three would be too great a blow for even the most loyal Wildcat rooters to expect the Main Line team to keep up the pace which it has been setting of late. No mention need be made of Wood's prowess, as this Wildcat veteran and co-captain of the Victorious Blue and White quintet placed second in district scoring honors last season with a total of 232 points and leads the Severance-men on the offense this year. He also gained a first string berth on the 1942 All State cage team, chosen by the Associated Press. Always managing to tally in the double figures, whether having an on or off night, Bill would probably be the most sorely missed of the entire squad.

Joe Lord, although only a junior, has gained the distinction of being the outstanding floor man on the team this winter, and came through with fourteen points against Villanova's most important foe of the season, —Princeton to be high man of the evening, and to prove that he is just as capable on the offense as he is in breaking up enemy scoring plays. Along with Bill Wood and Bob Kelty, Joe has played almost the full forty minutes in the close contests to date, and to find a replacement for the Norristown youth would certainly not be an easy task.

All Stars Subdue Malvern In Return Contest 46 - 30

In the third game of the season last Thursday afternoon, Villanova's improved All-Stars avenged a previous 19-17 setback, when they trounced the Malvern Prep cagers by the lopsided score of 46-30. Using a zone defense which had the visitors completely baffled throughout the entire contest, the Blue and White team constantly dogged their opponents, with the result that the Prepsters vaunted offensive power was greatly hindered.

Starting with a bang at the opening whistle, the All-Stars garnered three field goals in the first three minutes of the contest and led 6-0 before Dougherty of the eventual losers was able to make his teams' first points with a lay-up shot a moment later. Fighting on practically even terms from that point until intermission, the score at half read: Villanova 25, Malvern 18.

Lose Star

After a rest period Malvern suffered a decided tough break when their star floor man, and high scorer in the previous tussle between the two teams, was put out of the game on personal fouls. His absence left a decided gap in the Prep school quintet which could not be filled, thereby greatly weakening the chances of the secondary aggregation.

The All-Stars were quick to take advantage of the situation with the result that they jumped into a fourteen point lead shortly thereafter, on successive field goals by John McFadden, Mike Cheppa, and Ray Amicone. This advantage was held by the Intramural League's best right up until the final whistle, at which time Cheppa dropped in another pivot shot, thus giving the All-Stars a sixteen point margin as the game ended.

Cheppa High

Cheppa was the outstanding offensive star of the evening, dropping seven field goals for a total of fourteen points. A fellow Austinite, McFadden, garnered three field

Initial Game Of Playoff Series Goes To Alumni

Alumni Hall, recently crowned second half Champions of the Intramural Basketball League, drew first blood in the playoff with the Firemen of Austin Hall, first half winners, last Tuesday night when they easily defeated their upper-class rivals by the lopsided score of 37-14. Fr. Dunne's Green Wave outfit, which had a clean slate in the second half competition, when they won ten while losing none, stretched its current victory string to thirteen games with the winning of the initial playoff tilt.

Lead at Half

Leading at halftime 16-4, the freshman easily outclassed their rivals, and the game had little of the class which usually is present in the league playoffs every year. Although the Firemen did manage to tally ten more points after the intermission, they could not stop the incessant splitting of cords by the Frosh quintet and found themselves trailing by twenty-three points when the final whistle blew.

All-Star choice John McFadden was the sole member of the Austin quintet who played his usual good game, as he tallied six of the fourteen points garnered by his team, and played an excellent floor game for the losers.

Lowney High

Lowney was high for the winners with five field goals for a total of ten, while All-Star Dan Dorras was right behind him with eight. Dorras, incidentally, was the outstanding defensive star of the evening, continually being the direct cause of Austin's plays being stopped at the foul line.

Tuesday's contest seems to indicate that Alumni will go on to win the Championship in easy fashion, but the Firemen must never be counted out. The second game will take place tonight, and if Alumni wins, the series will be over, but if Austin manages to upset the current odds-on-favorites, the third and final encounter will probably take place on Thursday.

Staff Meeting

There will be a meeting of the entire Sports Staff in the VILLANOVAN office at 1:00 P. M. today. All are urgently requested to attend.

All those students who are not members of VILLANOVAN staff, but who would like to try their hand at sportswriting are also asked to attend this meeting. With the departure of three seniors from the staff last week, there are numerous positions open to those interested.

Wildcats Invade Trenton To Engage Rider Quintet

Severancemen Seek Ninth Consecutive Win At Hand of Jersey Five Tomorrow Night; "Roughriders" Record None Too Impressive This Season

By JOE CARBINE

When Villanova's rampaging Wildcats travel to Trenton, N. J. tomorrow night to take on the Bronchos of Rider College, they will, at the same time, be forced to engage that perennial jinx, the "law of averages."

When a team that has played eight games without defeat meets a team that has yet to beat them, then Ole Mr. Average really has a chance to do business. On the basis of comparative records, however, it does not seem that the Roughriders will be able to "ride herd" on the Wildcats' stampede to an all-victorious season. The threat of a Rider victory will remain if only because of the close battle that they waged against practically the same team last year. The Blue and White just managed to win out in '42 by a 44-41 score.

Have Long Schedule

Getting off to a slow start at the beginning of the season, Rider dropped three of its first six games, losing to two very good New York teams; L. I. U., 67-31; and Brooklyn College, 57-49. Since that time they have played ten other games, easily winning the majority of them, and defeated Haverford, of the Main Line, last week. Rider plays one of the longest schedules in collegiate basketball, by engaging 32 teams in its present campaign. The Trenton team opened the season on Dec 1 and will not finish until March 6. It will have two chances to defeat Villanova this year ,because another contest is scheduled for Feb. 13.

Owens Leads Offensive

Under the tutelage of Coach Tom Leyden, a former Mississippi U. star, Rider features an attack that combines accurate and timely passing with good floorwork. The Purple and Gold's leading star is freshman Paul Owens, who currently tops all scoring in New Jersey. He scored 116 points in the first 12 games. Owens, a forward, will be joined in the starting line-up by his scoring mate, John Finn, guards Captain Tom Owen and Don Pugliese, and center Vaugh Ackman. Rider will be earnestly trying for a victory in this game because it has never defeated Villanova in the series of four games between the two schools. The Bronchos would like nothing better than to put an end to the 'Cats' streak.

Victory Streak

Villanova will start the same combination that has been so successful from the first game. The victorious march of the Wildcats has begun to catch the fancy of all Eastern basketball fans. They are presently the leading team of metropolitan Philadelphia, and, in addition, one of the few undefeated clubs in the country. The defense used against Princeton gained the admiration of the 2500 fans who were present, for in the second half the high-powered Tiger attack couldn't begin to solve the switch, taught "a la Severance." The peak performance, however, has not yet been reached, and as long as new improvement continues to be shown, the "Victory Streak" should continue.

Swimming League To Begin Shortly

Regularly Scheduled Meets To Start Immediately After Termination Of Present Semester

With the close of the present semester only two weeks away, extensive plans are now underway for the annual Intramural Swimming meet. Previous to this winter, the competition had been limited to one evening, and the champion was determined from a point total which was tabulated at the end of the three hour aquatic show. This year, however, the program is being elaborated upon by the college authorities, in view of the great importance which has been placed on swmiming of late by the various Reserve programs, particularly the Navy.

Six Teams Compete

Being forced to drop varsity swimming from the Intercollegiate Sports curriculum this season because of transportation difficulties, this new program should appeal to all student aquatic aspirants, whether they were varsity competitors last winter or are strictly "Intramuralists." The competition will begin immediately after the current semester has been completed, and will continue thereafter until sometime in March. A league will be formed in which the six current competitive groups on the campus, the Commerce and Finance Day Hops, the Mendel Day Hops, and Mendel, Fedigan, Austin and Alumni Halls will take part. This circuit will follow the same pattern as set by the highly successful Intramural Basketball League, although there will not be quite as many meetings between each squad.

Events Numerous

In court competition each team plays the other twice in each half of the league, so that the total meetings of each team with another for the year is four, and its total number of games is twenty. Although the exact number of contests has not been definitely decided upon as yet, it is probable that each hall will meet the other once, and the combined total of the five dual engagements will determine the palce of each participating group in the final standing.

The competition will consist of the 200 yard and 400 yard relay races, the 100, 200 and 440 yard freestyels, and numerous other contests at varying distances in the breaststroke and backstroke events. A special feature of each meet will be an underwater race of one length of the pool.

Austin Defends Title

First on the program immediately after the termination of the current semester is the meeting of Fedigan and Austin halls. The Firemen from Austin have been the aquatic titleholders for the past two years and once again are knee deep in promising tank material.

New Columnist

Joseph J. Carbine, former member of the College Staff, and more recently a sportswriter for the VILLANOVAN, has been selected to replace Jack Dudley, retired "Here and There" columnist. Inasmuch as the majority of issues have been reduced in size, however, the column "Here and There" will appear only when there are eight pages. Carbine is Vice-President of the Epsilon Phi Theta fraternity and holds down the position of College Editor on the "Belle Air".

Other new members of the Sports Staff, who were officially accepted last week are: Dave Ward, Lem Wentling, and Jim Carbine. Carbine and Wentling will become sophomores at the end of the present semester, both having entered Villanova last June, while Ward matriculated in September.

Retired Columnist

JACK DUDLEY
who last week surrendered his post as "Here and There" columnist. A senior in the Commerce and Finance school, Dudley served on the staff for two years before being awarded a column last February.

Cheppa Sets All Star Scoring Pace

Mike Cheppa of Austin Hall is the leading scorer in the three games played by Villanova's recently organized All Star team. Not seeing much action in the first contest with Malvern Prep, Cheppa was held scoreless, but in Penn R.O.T.C. tussle, and in the return encounter with Malvern last Thursday afternoon in Alumni Hall, he scored nine and fourtenn points respectively, for a total of twenty-three markers. Close on his heels is a fellow Austinite, "Red" McFadden, who scored six, six, and eight points respectively, in the three engagements to date, giving him a total of twenty.

The other members of the All Star aggregation do not even figure into the scoring race thus far, as the nearest rival is Art Martin, with nine.

Cheppa is a newcomer to the Intramural ranks this winter, having transferred from Penn State, McFadden is a former member of the varsity as well as being a 'Mural luminary in his freshman year, while playing under the colors of Alumni.

goals and was successful in dropping two from the free throw line, to be next in line with a total of 8. Amicone, a member of the Mendel Day Hop quintet in the regular league competition, was close on McFadden's heels with seven markers, the result of two floor shots and three fouls.

All-Stars Improved

For the losers Captain Jack O'Neill and forward Bob Coletta were tied for honors, both having contributed six points to their team's cause.

Showing a vast improvement over their first showing, the All-Stars are developing into a smooth working unit, and should improve with every contest. Fathers McKee and Dunne, Moderators and coaches of the recently organized All-Star group, have scheduled various other contests to take place on the nights of varsity home games, as well as a few other engagements which will be played on intervening dates.

Latest Chesterfield Ad Suggests Letters, Smokes For Men In Service

"Back up the man in uniform" says Chesterfield's newspaper ad for January. "Buy U. S. war bonds and stamps, write letters, and send smokes to the men in the service."

"Start the New Year Right" says the headline "With the Right Combination for More Smoking Pleasure." The current Chesterfield theme is continued in the copy which points out the importance of proper blending in giving smokers a milder, cooler and better-tasting cigarette.

The advertisement is illustrated with the picture of an attractive young women dressed in the uniform of the American Women's Voluntary Services. In one hand she holds a sheaf of war bonds and stamps and in the other a letter and a carton of Chesterfields.

Reports from men in the Service indicate that no gift is more welcome than cigarettes. On distant fronts, like Africa and the South Pacific, next to a letter from home there is nothing the men would rather receive than cigarettes made in the U. S. A. Chesterfield points this out in its newspaper and radio advertising and urges its readers and listeners to send cigarettes regularly to men in uniform.

lanova basketball team, who rose to such great heights against the vaunted Princeton Tigers a week ago Saturday night, is the third of three first string Villanova Cagers who is in the Army Reserve. Not too much can be said of the spirit and general uplifting of the entire team's mental attitude in tight spots by the incessant chatter of the 'Major,' 'and the Severancemen, without him, would be an entirely different crew.

In fact, the only happy note of the whole affair is the fact that Co-Captain Bob Kelty, and "Chuck" Drizen are both in the Marines, and they, like Frascella and Ostermann, are certain of finishing out the season.

Villanova's basketball future, then, for the most part, anyway, lies with the Army Reserve officials of our country. With the team as it now stands, there is an even chance that the Wildcats will have an undefeated season, but if the above mentioned first stringers are called up, such a thought would be fantastic. Let's hope, then, that there is no place for the Reserves as yet.

Wildcats Lose Kelley

Jim Kelley, star freshman on the Wildcat court team, was lost to the team last week when he received word from his draft board to report for induction.

Intramural Swim

Following this engagement will be that pitting the two Day Hops aggregations against one another. Neither of these teams has ever had the opportunity to participate in swimming competition in other years ,and hence will be out to show up the Residents as soon as the league gets underway. As these two groups are newcomers to the competition there is little known about the respective prowess of each club, but there is little doubt in the minds of the Moderators of the program, Fathers McKee and Dunne, that the Commuters will not give the Boarders plenty of trouble.

Third in line in the current program setup is the encounter which will witness the two freshman halls battling it out together in the water. They, too, are unknown quantities in the way of swimming ability, and time alone will reveal their respective abilities as threats to the two year supremacy of the Austin Firemen.

One Day Retreat To Be Held Feb. 1

Fr. Regan, Fr. Carney To Conduct Services; Begins Sunday Night For Residents

Rev. Robert E. Regan, S.T.D., O.S.A., and Rev. William J. Carney, O.S.A., will conduct the one-day retreat to be held in the chapel beginning this Sunday evening, Jan. 31, and continuing until Tuesday morning, Feb. 2. Classes will be suspended all day Monday.

Fr. Reagan is professor of homeletics at the Catholic University of America. Fr. Carney is professor of social studies at Malvern Preparatory School in Malvern, Pa. At 8:30 P. M. on Sunday, which is also graduation day, the retreat services for residents will begin with a conference and benediction. The retreat for the day-students begins on the following morning.

Retreat Schedule

	Residents	Non-Residents
Sunday	8:30 P.M.—Conference and Benediction
Monday	7:15 A.M.—Mass	8:15 A.M
	9:30 A.M.—Conference	10:30 A.M.
	11:30 A.M.—Conference	12:30 P.M.
	4:30 P.M.—Stations of the Cross	1:30 P.M.
	7:00 P.M.—Conference	2.00 P.M.
Tuesday	7:15 A.M.—Mass and Papal Blessing	8:15 A.M.

Urges Attendance

In a statement for the benefit of the college students, Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., college chaplain, said: "You are urgently requested to make use of the Providential graces of this retreat. From every corner of the world in this global conflict the chaplains' reports on religious activities tell of increased religious fervor among our service men. If any Villanova student now on the campus has to admit to himself that he has not been taking advantage of the religious opportunities afforded him to come closer to God, let him now, during this time of retreat, manfully repair his shortsighted neglect."

On Monday, Feb. 1, Mass will be celebrated for all the Villanovans who have died within the past year; and, on Tuesday Mass will be celebrated for the parents of the students. Following the Mass on Tuesday there will be Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament and the Papal Blessing will be bestowed on the student body.

Confessions will be heard on Monday at 7:15 and 8:30 A. M. and at 2:30 and 7:30 P. M.

Gallagher Chosen To Head A. S. C. E.

On Thursday, January 21, the Villanova chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers held its election of new officers. The retiring president, Carlos Martinez, announced that he will be replaced by Paul Gallagher, senior civil engineer, at the beginning of the next term. Robert Hannon will take the vice-presidency formerly held by Paul Hinski, while John McManus will retain his position as secretary-treasurer. Both Martinez and Hinski are graduating at the end of the term.

Gallagher is a member of the engineering fraternity, Phi Kappa Pi, which he joined in his freshman year as is Hannon who is a junior engineer. Vice-president of the engineering frat, McManus is also a member of the 150-lb. football team.

Plans for the future were announced by the new officers. Field trips are to be made to various plants and construction projects. Meetings are to be held every two weeks, at which different members will talk on subjects pertinent to civil engineering.

Army Institute

Plan Recommended By Fr. Stanford; Students Urged To Seek Advice On Points of Program

In reference to the Army Institute plan which has been formulated to provide correspondence courses for service men, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, urges Villanova students to familiarize themselves with its opportunities.

"Although the Army Institute courses will not be available to men until four months after their entrance into active service," Fr. Stanford said, "students in anticipation of entering the armed forces in the near future should study the plan now and seek advice upon it while they are still in college."

The Army Institute catalog containing an outline of the entire plan which was described in part in the VILLANOVAN last week is on file at the college library.

ESMDT Extends Graduate Courses

Courses in steam power plant engineering will soon be started for men in both Philadelphia and Chester, it was announced recently by J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of Engineering. This is the first time that this course has been offered under the college's Engineering, Science and Management Defense Training program.

The ninety men enrolled in the course are those who have completed the study of mathematics and chemistry of power plants. This highly specialized course will be held at the Edison Building in Philadelphia and the Philadelphia Electric Power Plants in Chester. Classes will begin early in February.

Meanwhile the regular ESMDT courses are continuing to progress satisfactorily, according to Dean Morehouse. Two sections which had completed courses in the Elements of Engineering, which includes mathematics, physics, and elementary drawing, began a course in Junior Engineering on January 11. These students will receive instruction in strength of materials, applied mechanics, strength laboratory, and advanced drawing.

Next Monday one or two more sections will begin the course in Elements of Engineering to be given at West Catholic High School, Philadelphia. Both of these classes are mixed, with enrollment divided evenly between men and women.

Briefs Of CAMPUS NEWS

Phi Kappa Pi, engineering fraternity, recently announced that the Carl T. Humphrey award will be made at every second graduation only. This award is given to the outstanding freshman member of this organization.

It was also announced by Malachy Boyle, president of the group, that the fraternity pins and keys will be distributed before Jan. 31. No meetings will be held until the next semester.

Anthony Mannino was elected to the position of secretary of the Villanova branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers at a meeting of the group on January 21, president George Baird announced. The retiring secretary, John Chamberlain, who is to graduate at the end of this term, gave a talk on "Carrier Current Relaying" after which there was a general discussion on relays.

Dr. Harold F. Hartman, associate professor of Social Sciences, has been selected to serve as a member of the executive council of the American Catholic Historial Association. The announcement was made by the Rev. J. T. Ellis, secretary of the association, from their headquarters at Catholic University, Washington, D. C.

Delahanty Elected President of LKD

Zeeman, Daly, Scola, Gavin, Corcillo Named To Other Positions In Science Frat

At this year's annual election of the Lamba Kappa Delta, science school fraternity, held last Thursday Thomas A. Delahanty, a junior, was named president of the society to succeed Angelo Macchia, senior pre-medical student.

Also elected to new positions were Stanley E. Zeeman, sophomore pre-medical student, vice-president; James W. Daly, freshman, as secretary; John B. Scola, sophomore, treasurer; Austin A. Gavin Student Council representative, and Alphonse C. Corcillo as sergeant-at-arms. The last two officers are junior pre-medical students.

THOMAS A. DELAHANTY

Retiring officers in addition to Macchia are Thomas Nela, vice-president; J. Albert Debiois, treasurer; William Hughes, secretary; Joseph Pueo, sergeant-at-arms; and Nicholas Eni, as student council representative.

Delahanty, going into the presidency for the next scholastic year, is a member of the Sanctuary Society, vice president of the junior class, and a past member of the decoration committee of the Centennial Ball. He began his new term by announcing that the fraternity keys will be available for the junior members as well as the seniors this year. This new procedure has been inaugurated because of the accelerated program.

German Club Host At Joint Meeting

The German Club of Chestnut Hill College was the guest of Villanova's language group at a joint meeting held last Friday evening in Simpson Hall.

About twenty girls from the school made the trip to hear Dr. Edward L. Haenisch eliver the second and last lecture on Wagner's Ring Operas which he initiated at a similar meeting during the Christmas season last year. Dr. Haenisch reviewed the prelude and the first two operas, which he has discussed in the first lecture, and completed the series by explaining the story behind "Siegfried" and "Gotterdammerung."

Throughout his talk, the professor made use of phonograph records to illustrate Wagner's use of motifs representing every character and emotion. Dr. Haenisch constantly stressed the dramatic power of the "Ring," and in this respect, he said, Wagner is unsurpassed.

In the absence of president George Temple, Rev. William J. Lunny, O. S. A., moderator, introduced the speaker. Fr. Lunney also introduced to the guests Cadet Frank Reese, a former German club member and previous to his call to active service in the Naval Air Corps, a science student in the class of '44. Cadet Reese attended the meeting during the furlough granted to him before his transfer to Memphis, Tenn. from Chapel Hill where he received his pre-flight training.

Honor Fraternity Admits Eight At Initiation Dinner

Chi Epsilon Mu, Engineering Honor Fraternity, accepted eight new members at a formal initiation held last Wednesday evening at the Whitehall Hotel in Haverford, Pa.

Joseph Conway, Senior Chemical Engineer, president of the fraternity, announced the names of the new men as follows: juniors—Victor Borejko, Lawrence Belz, William Theodosia, Anthony Mastrogiovanni, and George Giacchino; seniors—Joseph Wickland, Carlos Martinez and Norbert Knapp.

Speakers at the affair, which consisted primarily in a fraternity banquet, were: J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of Engineering; John A. Oakey, moderator of the society; Rev. John A. Kletkotka, O.S.A., Rev. Thomas A. Burke, O.S.A., and Professor James Quagliano, all of the engineering faculty.

Semi-Annual Initiation

Membership in the fraternity is based on rigid standards of excellence in scholarship. The cumulative grades of engineering students during their first years in college determine whether they will be honored by acceptance into the society.

This year, because of the accelerated program, initiation must be held twice instead of once, as was formerly customary. This, according to Conway, is the reason for the early initiation, which will be supplemented by another later on in the year to accept those who will have completed the number of terms required for membership by that time.

Quigley Named As Debate Secretary

Rev. John E. Coffey, O.S.A., moderator of Beta Gamma debating society, has announced the appointment of Thomas Quigley as secretary, replacing Carl Yeager. Yeager, who has been secretary of the society for the past semester, is awaiting call for active service in the Army.

Quigley, a sophomore artsman, has been a member of the debating society for the past two years. He is also sacristant of the Sanctuary Society.

On Jan. 16, the first decision debate of the semester was argued against Fordham University with the decision going to Fordham. Lafayette College was host to Frank Cahill and Thomas Sullivan of the debating society on Jan. 18 when a non-decision debate was held there. A debate against Temple University, originally scheduled for Jan. 21, was postponed and as yet no future date has been set.

As throughout the whole semester, the Federal World Union question was the topic at these debates. Both the affrmative and the negative side of this issue has been argued an equal number of times so that the society is thoroughly skilled with both sides. Wilfrid Gagen, president of Beta Gamma, said that neither side of the question is favored over the other.

Fr. Stanford Attends Meeting In Washington

Last Sunday, the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of Villanova, left for Washington to attend a meeting of the Advisory Committee On Utilization Of Colleges and Universities of the War Manpower Committee. The conference is scheduled to continue for a period of three days.

On Thursday Fr. Stanford will participate in a meeting of the National Committee of Church Related Colleges at Cincinnatti and on Friday he will address a meeting of the Association of College Presidents of Pennsylvania at Harrisburg.

Fr. Falvey Appointed

Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., College librarian, has been made chairman of the "Committee D" for "The Storage of Little Used Materials" which is under the auspices of the Philadelphia Metropolitan Library Council. The committee met at Drexel Institute on Wednesday, Jan. 10.

Degrees To Be Conferred Jan. 31 In College Chapel

Seventy-Three Seniors Will Graduate in First Winter Commencement

In the first winter graduation of its hundred-year history, Villanova College will confer Baccalaureate degrees to seventy-three students at 11:30 A. M. on Sunday, January 31. The commencement exercises will be held in the college Chapel.

First to graduate under the accelerated program, the seventy-three candidates for degrees are those seniors who attended the initial full-time summer semester, thereby fitting themselves to enter the war effort four months earlier than would have been possible under a peace-time course of studies.

Admission by Ticket

Graduates attired in academic cap and gown, will assemble in the main corridor of Mendel Hall at 11:00 A. M., and will proceed to the chapel in formal procession. They will enter the chapel at the rear, and move through the sacristy to their places in the church.

Since accommodations in the chapel are much more limited than in the Field House—traditional site of Villanova graduations—admissions will be granted only to those who have been given tickets by the graduating students.

Msgr. Barry To Speak

Solemn High Mass will be celebrated by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of the college, assisted by Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., as Deacon, and Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., as Sub-Deacon.

John Bambrick will serve as First Acolyte and Richard .Ryan will be Second Acolyte. Both are juniors in the C&F School. The Thurifer will be Joseph Carbine, junior artsman.

Rev. John E .Bresnahan, O.S.A., will be master of ceremonies, and the Mass will be sung by the Augustinian Scholastic Choir under the direction of Rev. Ralph J. Handran, O.S.A.

After the Mass, it is expected that the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John J. Barry (Rear Admiral Ret., U. S. N. Ch. C.) will address the graduates. Msgr. Barry was active in the last war as a chaplain in the Navy and at the present time he is an assistant to Bishop John E. O'Hara who is the military delegate to the Chaplain's Corps of the armed forces.

Valedictory Omitted

Following the speaker, the pledge of loyalty taken at all Villanova commencements, will be recited by the graduates. Degrees will then be awarded with the above members of the faculty functioning. After completion of the exercises luncheon will be served to the graduates and their parents.

Notable among the deletions in ceremony found in this first wartime graduation is the omission of the valedictory address, an integral part of all peace-time graduations. The smaller setting and shortened ceremony at the commencement activities set the keynote for accelerated education during the war.

Aptitude Test Given To Science Students

Nearly seventy pre-medical students took a medical aptitude test given last Friday in the Mendel Hall amphitheatre. This test, sponsored by the Association of American Medical Colleges, must be taken by all students intending to apply for admission to an accredited medical school.

The examination is normally given once a year, usually in November, but because of accelerated courses which will permit graduation this month it was given at this time. The test is general in scope.

No February 2 Issue

Because of final examinations which will be held this week there will be no issue of the VILLANOVAN next Tuesday. The next edition will appear on Feb. 9.

Spare The Eternal City

THERE is talk, if we are to believe the reports of foreign correspondents to local newspapers, of subjecting the city of Rome to a hail of bombs from the Allied forces. There is every reason to do so if we are to consider the "Eternal City" a mere objective of assault, simply a part of the enemies' territory to be handled and treated as such. After all, the cities of London, Paris, and countless others were not spared for artistic or historical or, if we dare mention it, humane reasons. This, to the ordinary individual of the United Nations is reason and good cause to pursue a course like that of the axis and destroy all that thousands of years have built up, raze structures that have withstood the elements and harrowings of man for centuries.

But Rome is more than the capital of a portion of the enemy; it is the centre of Christianity for the reason that it houses the Pope, his Vatican, and the small state surrounding it.. It would be difficult, if not impossible, to bomb Rome and spare Vatican City. To subject an "international" nation such as this to the barbs intended for the guilty would place us on the level of Hitler and his gang of you-know-what .. We would not think of harming in any way the small nations of Switzerland and Portugal, because we sympathize with their firm intentions of neutrality. Can we even consider action against a state who adds to the weak argument of neutrality a word that has been revered in the most barbarious of ages and circles—the name of "father"?

It has been suggested that the lights of St. Peter's and the Vatican be left burning during the intended raid. Those in favor forget that the pompous Mussolini would object to this and would level these structures if necessary, so that they would not direct our bombers to the city of his hiding. Another solution offered by those who consider the bombing a fair plan is the evacuation of the Pope to a spot outside his city. This is answered in the fact that the Pope is a temporal, as well as a spiritual leader. His city is a nation and is esteemed as such internationally. He has the ordinary right of innocent rulers to be safe in his domain from attack and disputes from the outside. His city as a neutral nation should have its rights of neutrality respected by the warring nations as they do the other small countries.

The world would lose a father, and a father's help we do need now and at the termination of hostilities. Let no one imagine, however, that the ruination of Rome, of the Vatican, or even the murder of the Holy Father himself would mark the end of the Church of God. All these things have happened before: Rome has been sacked; Popes have been killed; the records so valuable to the entire world have been destroyed; but the Church of God has ever retained the vitality of her youth ,though the entire globe was wrapped in flames of hell.

Let those who would attack the Father, look to their faltering standards of right. If we overcome the Italians on the battlefronts of the world, there will be no need to bomb Rome to hit Mussolini and his princes. There are still a few olive trees on the borders of the Forum that can serve as gibbets. These dictators and oppressors have rather a general habit of evading death at the hands of righteously angry patriots; they prefer to complete the list of their crimes with suicide.

Meet The Boys:

The Spotlight Shines On Tom Devine; One Of The Finest Men You'll Ever Find

By JIM McWILLIAMS

Open letter to the Secretary of Navy:

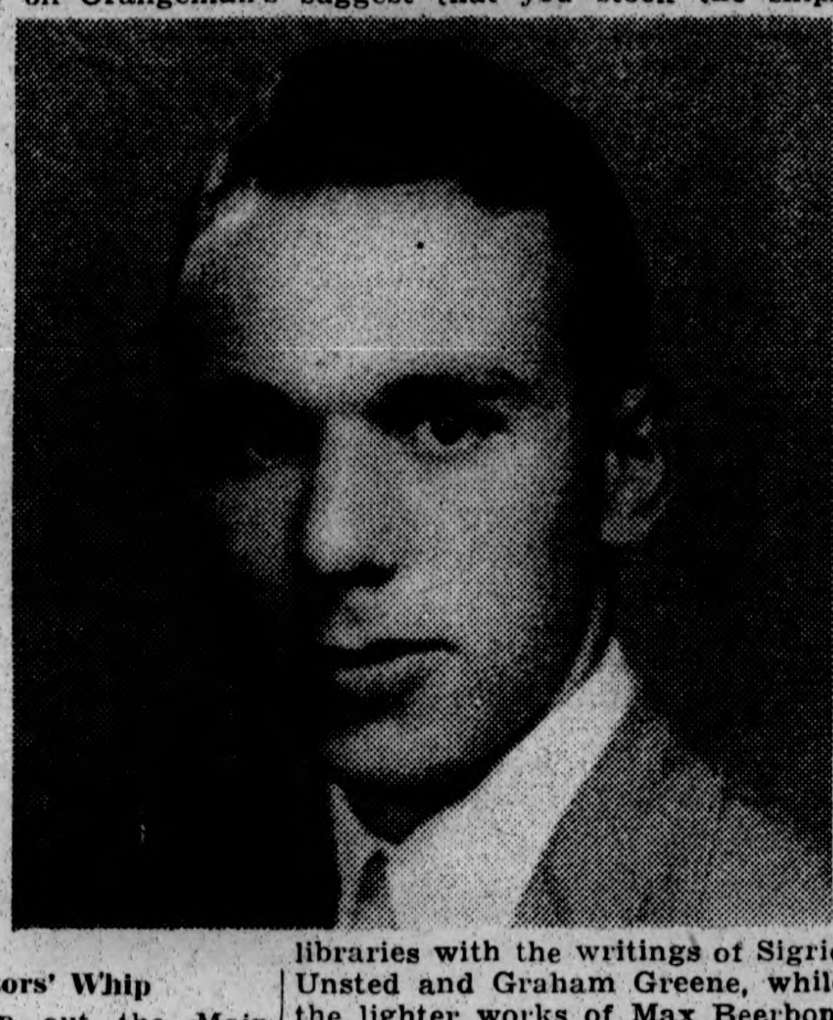
Dear Mr. Knox:

In a speech recently, you stated, "the record of our Navy proves conclusively the calibre of our men." If we can accept that as being absolute, then the Navy has quite a brilliant future ahead, for its caliber is scheduled to take a mighty leap forward. All this will come about when you decide to call up for active service Thomas F. Devine, a member of your V-7 program.

Villanova is rather proud of Tom, and because we know that your boys will accept him readily, we're going to breeze through the highlights of an already flowering career.

Born on Wrong Day

Among the intimate circles of his family, Tom is looked upon as being somewhat af a black sheep. Any baby, tagged with the name Devine that would break into a good Irish family on Orangeman's day deserves special recognition. But over the period of twenty years Tom has done his best to live this blunder down.



He surged through the wild waves of childhood much like any other sailor-to-be, and we next pick him up when he dropped anchor at Philadelphia's West Catholic High School. Here, we may assume, he laid the foundations for his future success as 'etoile-eleve' in Doctor McGrath's French sessions.

Snaps Editors' Whip

Tom's first trip out the Main Line to Villanova was in the spring of '38 when he came to vie with a few hundred other lads for a competitive scholarship. His next appearance came when he enrolled in September with his newly won scholarship tucked neatly underarm.

For four years he labored on the staff of the VILLANOVAN. Serving as ace reporter in his first two years; moving up to college editor in his junior year, and crowning his journalistic activities by bearing the title of editor-in-chief in his senior year. Only now, after being retired since September, is Tom getting around to separating the fond from the bitter recollections.

Demon Committee Member

Now Frank, pardon the informality, we don't want to give you the impression that Tom has been active only as a fourth-estater. Throughout his career in the Arts school, he has led his class every semester, pulling down a perfect "4.00" on numerous occasions. For a while in his freshman year he felt the urge to speak, both formally and on the stage. After a short stay in Beta Gamma and Belle Masque he mysteriously changed this urge to being on committees, and here, Frankie, he really sparkled.

Starting with the Orientation Committee in his sophomore year, he moved on to the junior prom the next year; had the distinction of being publicity chairman for the first summer dance at Villanova; and closed the year by being named to the Centennial Ball committee.

Presides Over Ell T

Like all true and faithful artsmen, Tom is a member of Epsilon Phi Theta, and is currently holding down the seat as president. The student council has also had the pleasure of hearing the rantings of Devine.

Mr. Knox, if you find that the Navy is lagging in publicity, you'll have an excellent opportunity to improve matters in that department when you beckon Tom into your flock. For Tom, together with Ward Guncheon has promoted Villanova's publicity since last fall. And if you'll glance at any of the Philadelphia papers beginning with last football season, you'll realize that Tom has done an excellent job in keeping the Wildcats of all sports before the public eye.

Breaks Tradition

To keep Tom content we would suggest that you stock the ships' libraries with the writings of Sigrid Unsted and Graham Greene, while the lighter works of Max Beerbom will ease the tension as Ensign Devine prepares to battle the enemy. At the present time, however, all the above mentioned literature has been replaced by the "Blue Jacket's Manual," and "Five Aids During Seasickness," both of which he studies religiously.

Now, Mr. Secretary, we come to a point where we're afraid Tom differs radically from your average boy. In his case the famed "sweetheart in every port" will have to be dropped. Tom is definitely interested in only one port—Philadelphia—the home of his four year flame, Betty. His first date with her was for the Sophomore Cotillion during his freshmen year, which probably explains that dreamy stare that the mention of informal dances brings to his eye.

Intended Lawyer

Before the diabolical maneuvers of certain foreign characters, Tom has intended a law career, but for the present he has shelved those plans in favor of your organization. Thus, we have brought you up to date on likes, dislikes and other incidentals that go to make up one of our suave seniors who will graduate this month.

He'll be with you shortly, and we can guarantee that you will take to him as readily as we did, and if he is only half the success in the U. S. N. as he was here at Villanova, you had better clear the decks and make way for Admiral Thomas F. Devine.

Barter By Binder

HATS OFF" this week to those seniors who are graduating this Sunday. Good luck fellows, glad you made it. Wish I could say the same about myself (it's getting rather drafty in this corner of the VILLANOVAN.) Most of the graduates will be entering the armed services at the close of this semester's festivities, to mention nothing of quite a few of the undergrads.

All this year I haven't made a crack at Rosemont. But this is too good to pass up. Any resemblances to persons living or dead is purely incidental:

Joan: "Say, Betty, help me find my hat."

"Betty: "It's on your head."

Joan:: "Don't bother then. I'll get it myself."

Virginia Tech recently printed a verse that would appeal to those who are engaged in the profession of publishing a school newspaper:

"May I print a kiss on your lips?" I asked,
She nodded her sweet permission;
So we went to press and I
rather guess
We printed a large edition.

'Cat Nip

By Ed Reardon

THE big doings of the socialites have ebbed to a mere trickle this past week. This is probably due to the fact that exams begin tomorrow. These will be the last exams for the seniors and, no doubt for a few of the under-grads who have received their "greeting" from the President and "have been selected to serve in the armed forces."

PRE-FLIGHT:

Bob "America's Number One Heel" O'Sullivan (nothing personal) is engaged to Ruth Wilson of Overbrook. Lots of luck, Bob. . . Marie tried on Bob Casey's ring 'just for size" and still has it. He's going to have a lot of explaining to do to Betty from New Brunswick . . .Another "ring-deal" has been completed, a little more equitably, between Joe Pezelski and Jerry. However Joe is sporting an I. C. '43 ring even though he was short-changed. . .Tom McKee received the proverbial run-around from Midge from Rosemont. Reason: a New York gigilo and a $65 watch . . .Charley Baird, senior engineer from Trenton will be married on Feb. 2 War bonds?. . .he'll soon be in them.

Bachelor's Prayers: (Bill Walsh)

Dear Lord, take care of the pictures on my desk—and may they never meet.

SO-LOW:

Bill "Woo" Wood attended a party with "Dodo" given by Ann in Ardmore who just joined the WAACS. Mike Rockett and Jim Finnegan etc. were there also. . . Pete Desmond is elated to leave for camp on Feb. 8th. This is the reason for his many recent visits to Harkum to bid good-bye to Mary Frances from Boston. . .Tom Quigley got into a bit of tepid H2O with the girl back home in Mt. Carmel, Pa., because his picture got into the Philadelphia papers depicting his arrival at the dance last week in a horse and buggy. . .Last week the basketball team journeyed to Trenton to play Rider. Because of several distractions (or attractions) they rode past their stop and consequently had to ride back from Princeton. They arrived just before game time. Joe "Doc" Coll made the trip since he is taking Jim Tadiey's place as trainer.

CRACK UP:

Frank Flood is experiencing stiff competition in his current pursuit of Pat from Chestnut Hill. . Ned Milde, Whitey "Lennie" Kempf and Tony DiBenedetto lead Fedigan's "holy rollers" in a weekly pep rally on Wednesday nite to get the boys out for Mass on Thursday morning. The purpose is to beat Austin Hall and win the mythical attendance award. . .John Surmont had the skids put under him by Marie. From the latest reports, his next field of conquest appears to be Chestnut Hill . . Pete Hin receives several letters a week from Pat which are very strongly perfumed. This explains that aromatic air which floats through the third floor of Fedigan. . .Al Corcillo can't quite make up his mind whether to take out Connie or Flora when he gets home to New York next week-end. Why not be impartial, Al, and take them both out?. . .Bill Brinkman is really in there with Gloria. He has been wandering around with that far away look in his eye which will become a reality very shortly when the Air Corps beckons. . . Lou "Cookie" Cali has serious intentions with "Gemma," 'tis rumored. Fr. Kemme has volunteered his services to perform the ceremony . . .Harry Fontonova was hoarding a chicken and a solami sausage in his room. Evidently someone liked it better than he and absconded with the loot. Anyone knowing the whereabouts of the culprit, kindly inform Harry. . .At this time we would like to extend our congratulations to all the seniors who will graduate next week and wish them the best of luck in the armed services. . .In addition we are losing a man whom you all know, a fellow columnist, your good friend and mine, "Cuffless" Harry Binder. He will be the only man in the history of the college to receive $1.66 2/3 per hour for taking his exams since he will be on furlough at the time. Good luck, Harry

Wildcat Mile Relay Team To Make First 1943 Appearance In Madison Square Garden On February 6th

By JIM BONNER

Friday afternoon saw the Villanova Indoor Track team working out on the boards at the University of Pennsylvania. They ran time trials over a 660 yard distance to give Coach DiCarlo a line on their development. With the opening of the indoor season a bare two weeks away, DiCarlo is grooming his mile relay team for the opening meet—the Millrose Games in New York's Madison Square Garden. Last year the team composed of George Guida, Dixie Dunbar, Bob O'Sulilvan, and John DiCarlo, had a very successful season touring the indoor circuit. Every one of the men on this team has broken 0:50 for the quarter. Dixie Dunbar, who ran in the number two spot last year has left school and is now serving in the Merchant Marine. In the Millrose Games last year the mile relay quartet raced home 80 yards ahead of Boston College, Holy Cross and Manhattan. Unpressed as they were, they posted a time of 3:22, only one second slower than the time made by Fordham who was pressed for the whole distance in one of the five other mile relay events.

Guida Leads Off

This year Guida has shown remarkable improvement. When George matriculated he was one of the most promising runners on the squad. As lead off man on the mile relay team he should be able to give the rest of the squad an advantage. An exceedingly fast starter, Guida should be breaking 0:50 quite consistently.

Bob O'Sullivan, a junior in the Commerce and Finance school, and the best indoor man in the school, is looking even better than last year. Bob came to Villanova from North Texas State Teachers, home of the famed Blaine and Wayne Rideout. He is very consistent, never varying his time more than a fraction under any conditions. He always runs a fine race and great things are to be expected from him this year.

Fourth Spot Open

DiCarlo, the first student coach in the history of Villanova, anchored the mile relay last winter and can be looked for in the same spot this season. In the trial Friday John, O'Sullivan, and Guida all showed up sufficiently well to predict they will be in there in their old slots again for the Millrose Games.

The fourth spot will be difficult to fill. There is a wealth of material this season. Fighting for the spot will be Harry Keefrider, who ran on the West Philadelphia Catholic High team that missed cracking the world's record by .5 of a second. Dutch McCarthy, a junior who captained the St. Thomas More squad during his senior year in high school, Frank Henningkampf, Chuck Harrington, and Ed Fitzgerald. The last three mentioned are freshmen.

Service Offers Worries

Coach DiCarlo, like so many other coaches, is reluctant to commit himself as to the team's chances.

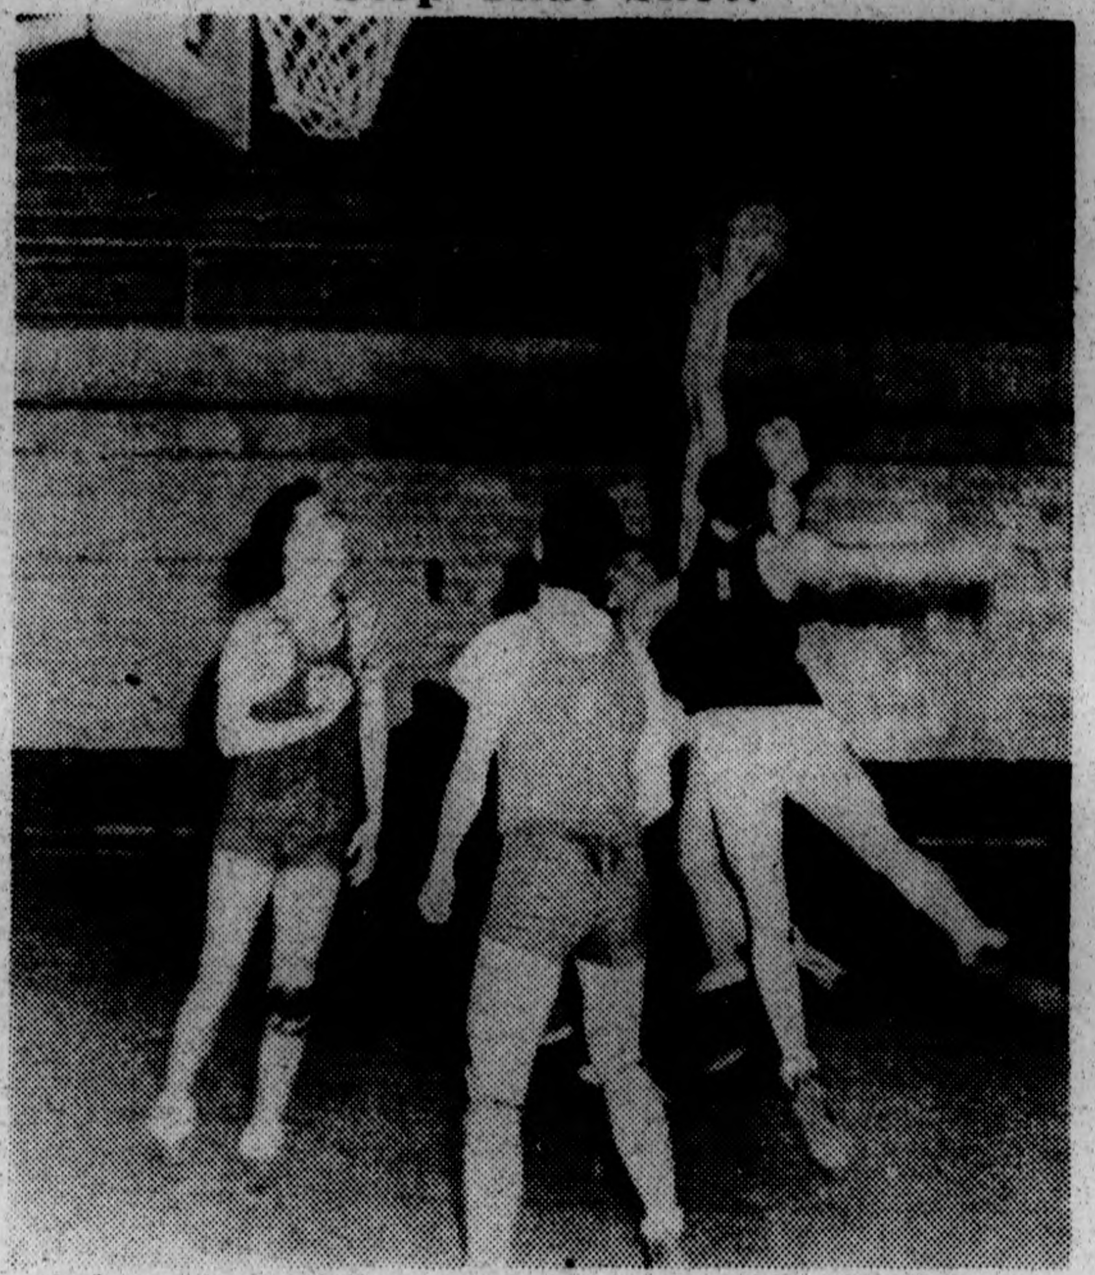
Runs First Leg

GEORGE GUIDA

Stop That Shot!



A desperate Austinite succeeds in stopping this attempted one-handed shot by Joe McGinness in last Tuesday's playoff contest. Although behind throughout the entire first half of the game, Alumni managed to win out in the closing minutes 43-40, to become the Champions of the 1942-1943 Intramural basketball loop.

Alumni Wins Intramural Basketball Championship

By LEM WENTLING

Winning two consecutive playoff games, Alumni Hall captured the Intramural Court Crown last week and set a record in the bargain. True to contemporary columnist Jack Dudley's prediction, Father Dunne has produced the intramural champion for the 1942-43 edition of the league. After gaining an easy victory two weeks ago by humbling the none-too-impressive runners-up—Austin Hall 47-14, the Freshmen added another last Tuesday night by eking out a 43-40 win over the Fireman in a thrilling game that provided a deserving finish to the all popular league.

Austin Leads at Half

Dan Dorras, Alumni pointmaker, opened with a neat set shot to give the Greenies the initial lead, but which they soon relinquished to the up and coming Austinites, who gave more indication of being the First-Half Champions than they did in the previous playoff game.

Largely due to the efforts of blue-shirted Chick Hefele and Mike Cheppa, Father Kemme's quintet maintained its lead throughout the first half. Art Martin put a stop to repeated Alumni rallies and it looked like Austin's ball game as they led 26-20 after twenty minutes of play.

Lowney Sparks Comeback

After intermission, both teams lined up after having a much needed rest and a good talk by their respective coaches. Austin loomed as the victor as it held the lead for the next ten minutes as a result of successive field goals by Jack Koval and Mike Cheppa. Alumni rebounded, however, in an offensive drive sparked by Bil Lowney and the score read 36 all at the mid point in the second period. Austin led and Alumni tied them again thrice as each team had 40 points with but three minutes to go.

This proved the breaking point and the break was in Alumni's favor on McGinness' double decker and Dorras' free throw to make the scoreboard read 43-40 in favor of the Green, a lead which they held when the whistle blew a few minutes later.

Not only did it give Alumni the crown but also a record for the most consecutive games won. After getting off to a fair start they won two in a row at the tail end of the initial competition. Coming back in the second half they registered ten straight. Victories in the two playoffs, then gave them a fourteen game winning streak, the longest ever recorded since the start of the league. Last season Father Sullivan's Mendel Day Hop team won a total of twelve games. This record was shattered, however, in the first playoff tilt.

Senior Chemicals Take Lead In PKP Bowling League

Saturday last saw the Phi Kappa Pi Bowling League swing into action at the Ardmore Bowling Center. With still nine weeks to go, the Senior Chemical engineers are in the van by virtue of taking four points from a weak Junior Chem team. Tied up in second place are the Junior Civils, Senior M. E. Residents, Junior M. E. "A", and the Sophomore Day Hops. Tied for sixth spot are the Faculty, the Soph Residents, Junior M. E. "B," and the Senior M. E. Day Hops. In last place are the Junior Chemicals.

Correale Has 229

Highlight of the day was the 229 game rolled by Jim Correale of Junior M. E. "B" team. Jim Cahill rolled a 207 for the Senior M. E. Residents. Others in the first five are Tom Dolan with 191, Bill Rodgers with 189, and Fred Davi with 185.

All tied up for the high series are Correale and Cahill with 528 each. They are closely followed by Tom Dolan with 507, Joe Barnes with 489, and Joe Conway who sported a 483 total for the day.

867 Total

One of the toughest matches of the day was that between the Senior M. E. Day Hops and the Junior Civils. After losing the first game by two pins the Juniors came back strongly to cop the next three and beat last years' Champs, 3-1.

In the senior M. E. Residents' match with the Junior M. E. "B" team it was chiefly a duel between Jim Cahill and Jim Correale who were vieing for top honors. They finished by posting the same totals for the day. With these two nullifying each other's scores, Tom Dolan came through to provide the margin of victory. In the third game of the day the Seniors posted a one game total of 867 pins.

The Senior Chemicals, in annexing first place, defeated the Junior Chemicals by better than two hundred pins over the course of the afternoon.

Severancemen Meet Three Opponents In Four Days

Gettysburg, Brooklyn College And Manhattan Beach Coast Guards To Be Foes Of Unbeaten Wildcat Quintet Next Week

By JOE CARBINE

After a two week lapse that will find the Villanova varsity basketball team attempting to rack up points in a different kind of contest, the mid-year examinations, the Wildcats' victorious campaign will be resumed on Feb. 3 against Gettysburg's Bullets.

The interval will provide a much needed rest for the basketeers, and enable them to meet the challenge of two other teams in the week with renewed vigor and vitality. After traveling to Gettysburg, the Blue and White will return to the home court to meet Brooklyn College on the following night, and then take a day off before attempting to gain revenge against the Manhattan Beach Coast Guards on Saturday night, Feb. 6. This team from New York will feature many of the players who were instrumental in handing the Wildcat football team a 20-13 setback in the opening game of the season.

Welliver Leads Offense

Gettysburg's light, fast team this year is on a par with former Orange and Blue winners, which have generally finished in either first or second place of the Eastern Pennsylvania Basketball League since its beginning. Coach Henry T. Bream has established a high basketball standard at Gettysburg during his 15 years of service, and it is certain that his club will provide a real threat to the Cats' hopes for another win. The Battlefielders are at present fighting it out with Albright and Muhlenberg for the championship of their league. Their squad is somewhat inexperienced, for besides retaining six members from last year's freshman team which won 9 games and lost 2, it has also gained five freshmen by a change of varsity eligibility rules. Star of the Gettysburg outfit is Cal Welliver, 6'3" junior forward, who scored 189 points in 19 games last season. Other veterans are: forward Vince Parnell, and guards George Dracha and Gene Haas.

Brooklyn Dangerous

Brooklyn College will bring to Villanova one of the strongest teams of the New York district. From year to year it has been building a team that will be able to gain the distinction of being New York City champion. It is only recently that Brooklyn has gained national recognition, and it now engages many of the major traveling teams. If there is any aggregation on the remainder of the schedule that is capable of defeating the Blue and White, it is this team from the well known wilds of Flatbush.

As far as comparative scores go, Brooklyn College defeated Rider, 57-49, in the beginning of the season, while the Cats took them over, 48-32, last Wednesday night. Brooklyn possesses a very fast-breaking attack that continually drives for those closeups at the backboard. At the same time, however, the players are equally adept at dropping the long, high ones.

Gridders Play Dual Role

The team that will be of greatest interest to Wildcat fans is the quintet from Manhattan Beach.

NEXT WEEK'S 3 GAMES

Rider Beaten By Villanova 48 - 32

Ninth Consecutive Triumph Registered By Main Liners In Contest With Trentonians

Rider College tried in vain to halt the unbeaten Villanova basketball quintet last Wednesday night. The Wildcats, sparked by Co-captain Bob Kelty, chalked up their ninth consecutive triumph when they downed the Roughriders 48 to 32. The game was played in the Trenton Central High School gymnasium.

Rider paced Villanova point for point during the entire first quarter, but immediately thereafter the Wildcats found the range and led at the intermission 24 to 16. Frank Frascella, who was playing before a home town audience, hit the net for two valuable field goals in the second period to aid the Wildcat cause. Bob Kelty, another Trentonian, stole the show, however, when he registered 14 points and continually broke up Rider's scoring threats with his defensive play.

Rally Halted

At the three quarter mark Villanova led 37 to 28. The Roughriders started a rally but the Wildcats finished it when Chuck Drizen, Joe Lord and Frank Frascella scored successive double-deckers.

This gave Lord, who was second high for the night, a total of 10 points and Frasceila 6.

Bill Wood, who was watched like a hawk during the entire contest, was credited with two field goals. Major McDonnell made all his points in the first period, scoring three field goals and one foul for 7 points. Paul Owens, with 11 points, was the high scorer for Rider in defeat.

All Stars Schedule 3 More Games

Within the space of a few weeks, the All-Stars will put their winning streak, which is at present three games, on the line three times. Two of these are with Catholic League teams, namely St. Anne's and Nativity, while the other will pit the All Stars against the Navy Yard Marines.

The encounter with St. Anne's, which will be played as the preliminary to the next home game, will be a severe test for the Intramuralists, as this team is the perennial king of the Catholic League as well as last years' intra-city champions. Their squad is composed mainly from the ranks of the Alumni of La Salle's varsity. They use a fast breaking style of play very similar to that employed by the All-Stars.

Marines on Siena Card

The other team which comes from the Catholic League, Nativity, is always near the top battling with St. Anne's for honors. Their record is not quite as impressive as usual this season, but after a slow start in the league, they are now on the heels of the leaders.

The last team to be played of those scheduled at present is the Navy Yard Marines aggregation, which will be played on the night of the Siena game. This team has been playing quite a few games around the city. In fact, they have played St. Joseph's College Freshmen and La Salle College Jay-Vees within the past few weeks. While losing both of the games, they still gave as good and as scrappy account of themselves as one would expect from a team composed of "leathernecks."

These three are at present the only ones scheduled, but arrangements are being made to bring a team from Valley Forge M. A. and also different Catholic high school teams from Philadelphia.

Yesterday afternoon the All-Stars participated in a scrimmage with the Lower Merion High School team.

Tie Vote Places Six Men On Annual Intramural Basketball All Star Team

This year's All Star Intramural basketball squad is dominated, as was the league, by Austin and Alumni Halls, each club placing three men on the first team. The reason for the six man aggregation instead of the customary quintet was due to a tie in the voting.

Selection of the All Stars was based on the Stevens' Point System. Each moderator picked both a first and second team, so that a comprehensive choice might be made. Each man who was picked for the first team received two points while a second team choice was worth one unit.

McFadden, McGinness Forwards

John McFadden, Austin's stellar forward accumulated ten points to win a forward position. John was one of the leading scorers in the intramural circuit this year. At the other forward position is Alumni's high scoring Joe McGinness, who received eight points. Joe is probably the fastest man on the team and well deserves his position. At the center post, towering Bill Savage was given ten checks for his great defensive work throughout the year under Alumni's blackboard. The Firemen's Mike Cheppa also was placed on the All Intramural club because of his pivoting ability which was one of the main factors in Austin's winning the first half title. Mike polled eight points as did his team mate, Art Martin, who was chosen for one of the guard slots.

Choose Second Team

The other guard position went to the Greenies of Alumni, in the person of Jack Doran who was given ten points. Jack is one of the scrappiest as well as one of the best ball handlers on the club. It was his cool judgment that not only helped his team to the second half title but also to go on to the championship.

This team would fulfill any coach's dream, for they have every requisite of a winning ball club. The second team is also of top calibre, however, the distribution of players being much greater than that of the first. At center Ken Breitske, Fedigan's aggressive pivot man, was chosen for his stellar play at that position throughout the campaign. Ken's scoring sixteen points in one half for a league record against Austin, led to the latter's defeat in the second half race. Another Fediganite, Charley Labelle, also made the team. Jim Meehan, of C.&F. and Carmen Grazia. o and Dave Ward of the Mendel Day Hops were chosen for the other three spots on the alternate squad.

Many Villanova football followers maintain that the '42 team might have accomplished greater things if it had not been for the defeat suffered in the opening game. A great help to the Sailors' cause in that game were Liz Astroth, Ed Spotts, Jim Walker, Joe Aleskus, and Art Sandusky, all of whom will be numbered among the Coast Guards' task force on Saturday night. With this crew will travel two other interesting characters, Bob Dorn and Dick Nochimson, former stalwarts of the Temple basketball team. All of this adds up to a very specific incentive for a Villanova victory.

Of the footballers, only Liz Astroth, former U. of Illinois All-American quarterback, will be on the starting five. The other starters will be Dave Howell, Fred Frey, Nochimson, and Dorn. Dorn is the leading scorer of the team, and also among the top point-getters in the New York area.

Track Season Opens

One of the biggest worries is the service. Guida is waiting to be called into the Army, DiCarlo is in the Army Air Corps Reserves, McCarthy and Keefrider are both members of the Navy's V-7, and Bob O'Sullivan is signed up with the Marines. Barring exceedingly bad luck, this year's team should be one of the finest yet to represent the Blue and White on the boards.

Ex-Villanova Student Dies In Service

Another gold star will have to be added to Villanova's service flag. Leon Gaussuin Jr., ex '40, died in Rochester, N. Y., his home town, on Dec. 16 following complications from pneumonia which he contracted at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. After the Army granted him a sick leave following the pneumonia attack, he journeyed to Rochester to recuperate. There he had a sudden relapse which affected his heart strickening him with a fatal malady. He died in the Strong Memorial Hospital.

L. Gaussuin

Intended Law Career

He attended Villanova from Sept. 1936 to June 1938 in the Liberal Arts School in preparation for a law career. His devotion to his ambition, law, prevented him from entering any extra-curricular activities, therefore he concentrated all his efforts upon his studies and succeeded in being a consistent honor student. At the end of his sophomore year he was accepted into the Albany Law School in Albany, N. Y. He was inducted into the army in March, 1942 and sent to Fort Sill where he contracted pneumonia.

The regular Thursday morning student mass this week at 7:15 will be offered up for the happy repose of his soul. Leon Gaussuin will be represented on the service flag as the ninth gold star.

Villanova Chosen

Villanova College was named as one of the 281 institutions selected by the War Manpower Commission to cooperate in the war-training program of the Army and Navy. As the VILLANOVAN goes to press full details of the new program are not available.

Asked as to the possible effect on the present student body of this selection by the W.M.C., Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of the college, said: "The announcement will have no particular effect on the students during the current term. What effect it will have in the future is difficult to predict in the light of present knowledge. However, it is my understanding, that no program of the Army or Navy will prevent the college from carrying on its courses for civilian students."

Class Nominations

Will Be Held This Week To Fill All Positions Now Vacant

Nominations for various positions of class officers will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of this week. This move was made necessary because of the advancement of many officers to the next class through the accelerated program.

In an announcement by Jacques Mauch, president of the Student Council, sophomores may submit nominations on Tuesday at 1:00 P. M. in room 215 Mendel Hall.

On the following day, Wednesday, at the same time, nominations will be accepted for positions in the junior class in room 104 Mendel Hall.

Members of the senior class will be nominated on Thursday at 1 P. M. in room 215, Mendel.

Student Council Stares Sternly At First Frolicing Midyear Freshmen

Deprived of the last semester of carefree high school days, wrenched from the bosoms of fond families to gulp a few hasty draughts from the Elysian spring of knowledge before taking up stern duties in a war-torn world, some fifty new freshmen arrived last week on the campus of sober- war-minded Villanova College.

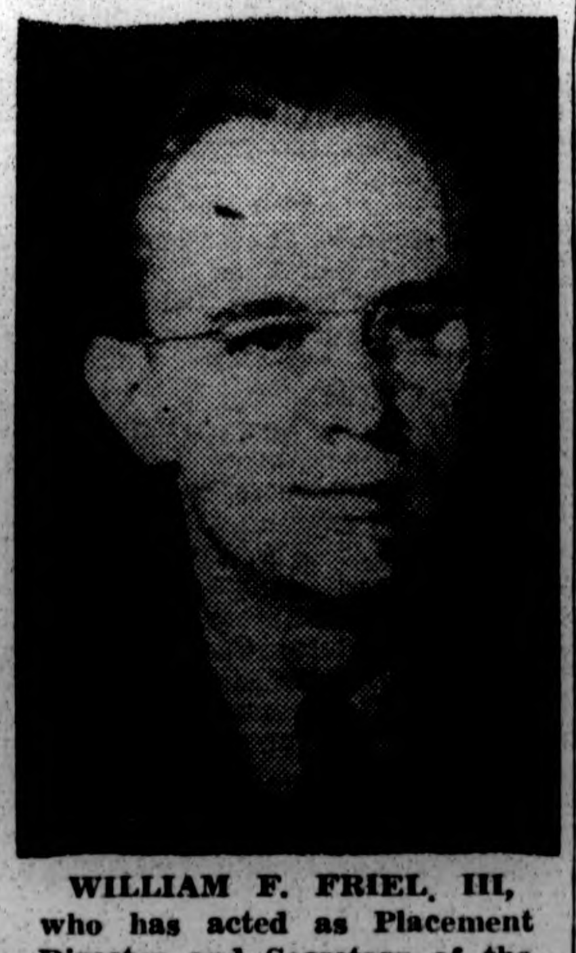
"Uncle" Jake Mauch, student council president, heart bleeding for these youths whom he sees deprived of the traditional college life which it was his privilege to enjoy, has inaugurated as intense an orientation program as the times will permit—a program designed to bring the newcomers to some extent into the fellowship and spirit of the college.

Must Wear Buttons

"Regs," trade mark of all college orientation programs, have been reduced to an irreduceable minimum: only the identification buttons. These, however, must be worn; and, kindly but stern Uncle Jake and his proteges on the Student Council will see to it that they are.

At meetings held last week and this week, talks were given by various faculty members and activity heads. Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., vice-president of the college, made a few suggestions to the boys as to how he thought it would be nice for them to conduct themselves. Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O. S. A., and Bob Young optimistically outlined the advantages of serving on the Belle Air and VILLANOVAN, respectively.

NYA Head Leaves



WILLIAM F. FRIEL, III, who has acted as Placement Director and Secretary of the Alumni Association will relinquish his duties. A student majoring in accounting in the C. & F. school, he graduated on Jan. 31 receiving a Bachelor of Science degree in Economics. Friel was also a member of the Commerce fraternity, Delta Pi Epsilon, and participated in the Villanova Band and the annual spring concert.

Debators Plan Active Schedule

Rev. John J. Coffey, O. S. A. moderator of Betta Gamma, college debating society, has announced the following schedule for the week: Two debates are scheduled with Norristown High School, and one against Rider College.

On Monday an affirmative team consisting of George Baher and Nicholas Hemmer will uphold the affirmative of the "World Federal Union" question, against Norristown, while on Tuesday, John McCabe and Thomas Sullivan will support the negative of this question against the same team.

Next Thursday, Feb. 11, Jack Deery and Louis DeSimone will meet Rider College of New Jersey at Simpson Hall. Once again the Tau Kappa Delta, national debate fraternity, question concerning the world union will be debated. Villanova will defend the affirmative.

Several other contests are planned for the next few weeks, but no definite dates have been set. In the offing are debates with Boston University, Haverford, Ursinus, Fordham, Manhattan and New Rochelle.

Graduates Hear Talk By Admiral

Monsignor Brady Addresses Seventy-Two Seniors On Duties In War-Torn World

Seventy-two seniors were awarded bachelors degrees in the college Chapel on Sunday, January 31, at Villanova's first winter wartime graduation. The usual ceremonies surrounding a college commencement were necessarily curtailed because of wartime conditions.

Following a solemn high mass offered by Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president, the graduation address was delivered by Rear Admiral John J. Brady, (Ret.) U. S. Navy, Vicar Delegate for Military Ordinariate.

Times of Opportunity

Monsignor Brady struck a sombre note in his address by remarking that these newly graduated men will soon be rubbing shoulders with death, and should "prepare themselves correctly for that time." "You are graduating into times of great opportunities for your advancement," he pointed out, "and as many of you will receive commissions in the armed forces as ensigns and lieutenants you will find that you are forced to make your own way.

"Strive always to gain the respect and friendship of men placed under your command, for," he said, "it is much better to be deflated before taking the responsibility than to find out afterwards that you are insignificant."

Received Many Awards

The Naval Chaplain emphasized that the graduates must give their best in the service of God and country, and reminded them that God must be given prominence in the picture in order to serve the country rightly.

Rear Admiral Brady entered the Navy in 1914, and went overseas with the first American Expeditionary Force. He also served with the Fifth Regiment of the Marine Corps, and has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, Navy Cross, Silver Cross, and the Croix de Guerre.

Staff Positions Open

All students, especially of the freshman and sophomore classes, interested in joining the VILLANOVAN staff are invited to do so. Positions as writers on the college or sports staffs as well as assistants on the business, circulation and photography staff are now open with good opportunities for fast advancement to editors' positions.

Those that are interested may apply between the hours of 12:30 and 1:30 P. M. in the VILLANOVN office, room 119 Mendel Hall.

Obtains Office

NICHOLAS C. ENI, has been named business manager of the Belle Air replacing Louis J. Esposito. Both recently graduated; however, Eni has returned to take several courses before his entrance into medical school sometime in April. A three year member of the staff, he obtained the office of Circulation Manager of the VILLANOVAN in 1942 and was a member of the Student Council representing the science fraternity, Lambda Kappa Delta.

ERC Grads Called To Duty; Students' Status Uncertain

Eleven members of the recently graduated senior class have received notice to report for active service on Feb. 12, from the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps Headquarters in Baltimore, Md. They will leave in a group composed of graduated reservists from other colleges in the Philadelphia area for the induction center at New Cumberland, Pa. These students who graduated on Jan. 31, received their orders last Thursday.

Meetings were held last week of all those students now attending Villanova enlisted in the ERC who are subject to "immediate call." Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, conducted conferences for students in arts, business, education and freshman engineering schools concerning their imminent call to active duty, which is expected to come sometime after Feb. 15.

Specialized Training Available

At these conferences, Fr. Stanford presented plans now being formulated by the government for continuing the education of those called. Under the heading of army specialized training, many students are likely to be sent back to selected colleges for specialized courses.

He also pointed out that there are approximately eighteen types of schools for specialized training that are available to qualified students serving in the army. In speaking of these army schools, Fr. Stanford said, "It is up to each individual student to take the initiative in applying for training in these schools."

Fr. Stanford has also urged those leaving to keep their educational objectives in mind when applying for any school or course.

In addition to the above programs, there is the Army Institute which sponsors correspondence courses, provides guidance and will act as a record keeping bureau. The name of this institute is now the "United States Armed Forces Institute," since its services are open to all members of the armed forces. Students are urged to consult the "Army Institute Catalogue" available at the college library.

Institute Will Record Marks

In this, as in other plans, students are urged to take courses relating as far as possible to their civilian objectives, and in keeping with their degree programs at college.

The Army Institute will keep records of the various courses, marks, experience, etc., that the service men have registered with the institute while in the army, so that upon returning they may take them back to college or prospective employers when the war is over.

The students were invited while in service, to correspond with the president, sending him word as to their promotions and experiences.

Federal Agency Offers Positions

Civil Service Seeks Engineering Students And Those Enrolled in ESMWT Courses

College trained persons are sought for on-the-job training in engineering in the Federal service, the U. S. Civil Service Commission announces. Graduates and senior students majoring in any field are urged to make themselves available for engineering activity which may lead to an attractive career.

Positions are open as junior engineers. The entrance salary is $2,000 a year, not including payment for authorized overtime, which under certain conditions may amount to as much as 20% of the yearly salary. For those who have not had previous training in engineering, a war training course has been specially planned, covering the fundamentals of junior engineer work in a federal agency.

Seniors May Apply

Applications may be made to the U. S. Civil Service Commission by graduates or senior students in any field, provided they enroll in the special ESMWT course, "Engineering Fundamentals or Junior Engineer Supplemental." Engineering senior students or graduates may qualify without further training, as may also graduates or senior students in astronomy, chemistry, geology, physics, mathematics, and engineering sciences who can show six semester hours in strictly engineering subjects. In lieu of these six semester hours in engineering subjects, the completion of any ESMWT course in engineering will be accepted.

Good Opportunities for Promotion

Countless new people are urgently needed in the engineering field in the Federal service because of the induction of Federal employes into the armed services and the growth of engineering problems in the conduct of war. Besides offering a certain amount of prestige, the work is performed in Federal agencies throughout the country under conditions that are pleasant and attractive. Opportunity for advancement in engineering in the Federal service is good, depending upon the abilities of the individual

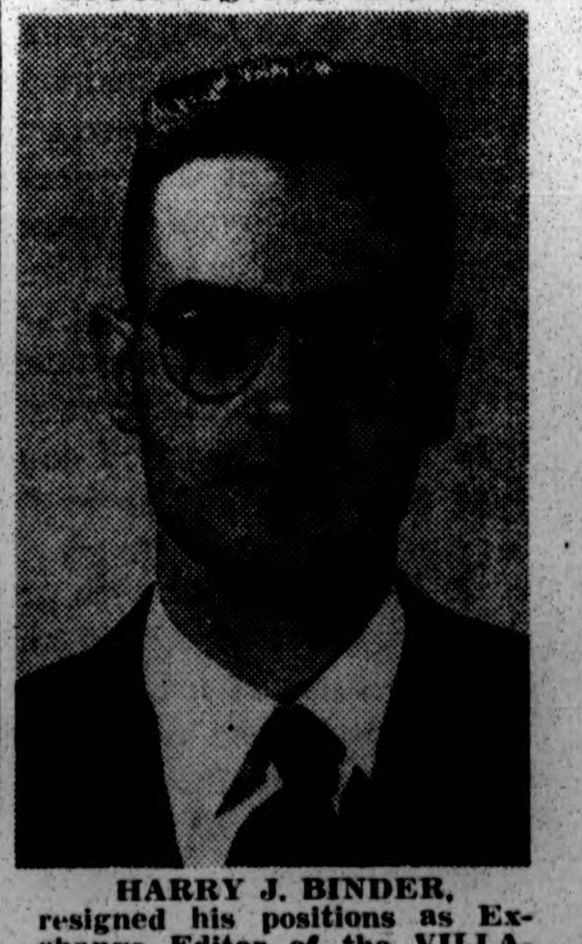
New Bond, Stamp Campaign Opens

Under the sponsorship of the Student Council a new, intensified campaign for selling war bonds and stamps will begin next Monday. Thomas C. Muraski, secretary of council, in announcing the campaign disclosed that since June, 1942, when they began selling bonds and stamp, $1250.00 in bonds and $157.35 in stamps have been sold. "This," said Muraski, "is a very poor showing for a student body as large as ours."

Stamps of the 10c, 25c and $1.00 denomination are sold, while bonds of any amount may be purchased. Bonds are not kept on hand by the student council, but anyone desiring one should fill out a slip, pay the money, and collect the bond on the following day from the booth. They are sold from a desk set up near the information booth in Mendel Hall, Monday through Friday from 1:00 to 1:30 P. M.

The Student Council has expressed its disappointment in the small amount of bonds and stamps sold so far, especially in the ten-cent stamp which they expected to be popular with the students.

Retires As Editor



HARRY J. BINDER, resigned his positions as Exchange Editor of the VILLANOVAN and Copy Editor of the Belle Air last week when he was called into the service. He served for three years on both staffs attaining the Belle Air position during the summer and the Exchange Editorship last fall. In addition to being a consistent member of the honor roll, he participated in the Spanish Club and the debating society.

Tie Vote Places Six Men On Annual Intramural Basketball All Star Team

This year's All Star Intramural basketball squad is dominated, as was the league, by Austin and Alumni Halls, each club placing three men on the first team. The reason for the six man aggregation instead of the customary quintet was due to a tie in the voting.

Selection of the All Stars was based on the Stevens' Point System. Each moderator picked both a first and second team, so that a comprehensive choice might be made. Each man who was picked for the first team received two points while a second team choice was worth one unit.

McFadden, McGinness Forwards

John McFadden, Austin's stellar forward accumulated ten points to win a forward position. John was one of the leading scorers in the intramural circuit this year. At the other forward position is Alumni's high scoring Joe McGinness, who received eight points. Joe is probably the fastest man on the team and well deserves his position. At the center post, towering Bill Savage was given ten checks for his great defensive work throughout the year under Alumni's blackboard. The Firemen's Mike Cheppa also was placed on the All Intramural club because of his pivoting ability which was one of the main factors in Austin's winning the first half titie. Mike polled eight points as did his team mate, Art Martin, who was chosen for one of the guard slots.

Choose Second Team

The other guard position went to the Greenies of Alumni, in the person of Jack Doran who was given ten points. Jack is one of the scrappiest as well as one of the best ball handlers on the club. It was his cool judgment that not only helped his team to the second half titie but also to go on to the championship.

This team would fulfill any coach's dream, for they have every requisite of a winning ball club. The second team is also of top calibre, however, the distribution of players being much greater than that of the first. At center Ken Breitske, Fedigan's aggressive pivot man, was chosen for his stellar play at that position throughout the campaign. Ken's scoring sixteen points in one half for a league record against Austin, led to the latter's defeat in the second half race. Another Fediganite, Charley Labelle, also made the team. Jim Meehan, of C.&F. and Carmen Grazia.o and Dave Ward of the Mendel Day Hops were chosen for the other three spots on the alternate squad.

Many Villanova football followers maintain that the '42 team might have accomplished greater things if it had not been for the defeat suffered in the opening game. A great help to the Sailors' cause in that game were Liz Astroth, Ed Spotts, Jim Walker, Joe Aleskus, and Art Sandusky, all of whom will be numbered among the Coast Guards' task force on Saturday night. With this crew will travel two other interesting characters, Bob Dorn and Dick Nochimson, former stalwarts of the Temple basketball team. All of this adds up to a very specific incentive for a Villanova victory.

Of the footballers, only Liz Astroth, former U. of Illinois All-American quarterback, will be on the starting five. The other starters will be Dave Howell, Fred Frey, Nochimson, and Dorn. Dorn is the leading scorer of the team, and also among the top point-getters in the New York area.

Track Season Opens

One of the biggest worries is the service. Guida is waiting to be called into the Army, DiCarlo is in the Army Air Corps Reserves, McCarthy and Keefrider are both members of the Navy's V-7, and Bob O'Sullivan is signed up with the Marines. Barring exceedingly bad luck, this year's team should be one of the finest yet to represent the Blue and White on the boards.

Ex-Villanova Student Dies In Service

Another gold star will have to be added to Villanova's service flag. Leon Gaussuin Jr., ex 40, died in Rochester, N. Y., his home town, on Dec 16 following complications from pneumonia which he contracted at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

L. Gaussuin

After the Army granted him a sick leave following the pneumonia attack, he journeyed to Rochester to recuperate. There he had a sudden relapse which affected his heart strickening him with a fatal malady. He died in the Strong Memorial Hospital.

Intended Law Career

He attended Villanova from Sept. 1936 to June 1938 in the Liberal Arts School in preparation for a law career. His devotion to his ambition, law, prevented him from entering any extra-curricular activities, therefore he concentrated all his efforts upon his studies and succeeded in being a consistent honor student. At the end of his sophomore year he was accepted into the Albany Law School in Albany, N. Y. He was inducted into the army in March, 1942 and sent to Fort Sill where he contracted pneumonia.

The regular Thursday morning student mass this week at 7:15 will be offered up for the happy repose of his soul. Leon Gaussuin will be represented on the service flag as the ninth gold star.

Villanova Chosen

Villanova College was named as one of the 281 institutions selected by the War Manpower Commission to cooperate in the war-training program of the Army and Navy. As the VILLANOVAN goes to press full details of the new program are not available.

Asked as to the possible effect on the present student body of this selection by the W.M.C., Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of the college, said: "The announcement will have no particular effect on the students during the current term. What effect it will have in the future is difficult to predict in the light of present knowledge. However, it is my understanding, that no program of the Army or Navy will prevent the college from carrying on its courses for civilian students."

Class Nominations

Will Be Held This Week To Fill All Positions Now Vacant

Nominations for various positions of class officers will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of this week. This move was made necessary because of the advancement of many officers to the next class through the accelerated program.

In an announcement by Jacques Mauch, president of the Student Council, sophomores may submit nominations on Tuesday at 1:00 P. M. in room 215 Mendel Hall.

On the following day, Wednesday, at the same time, nominations will be accepted for positions in the junior class in room 104 Mendel Hall.

Members of the senior class will be nominated on Thursday at 1 P. M. in room 215, Mendel.

Graduates Hear Talk By Admiral

Seventy-two seniors were awarded bachelors degrees in the college Chapel on Sunday, January 31, at Villanova's first winter wartime graduation. The usual ceremonies surrounding a college commencement were necessarily curtailed because of wartime conditions.

Following a solemn high mass offered by Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president, the graduation address was delivered by Rear Admiral John J. Brady, (Ret.) U. S. Navy, Vicar Delegate for Military Ordinariate.

Times of Opportunity

Monsignor Brady struck a sombre note in his address by remarking that these newly graduated men will soon be rubbing shoulders with death, and should "prepare themselves correctly for that time." "You are graduating into times of great opportunities for your advancement," he pointed out, "and as many of you will receive commissions in the armed forces as ensigns and lieutenants you will find that you are forced to make your own way.

"Strive always to gain the respect and friendship of men placed under your command, for," he said, "it is much better to be deflated before taking the responsibility than to find out afterwards that you are insignificant."

Received Many Awards

The Naval Chaplain emphasized that the graduates must give their best in the service of God and country, and reminded them that God must be given prominence in the picture in order to serve the country rightly.

Rear Admiral Brady entered the Navy in 1914, and went overseas with the first American Expeditionary Force. He also served with the Fifth Regiment of the Marine Corps, and has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, Navy Cross, Silver Cross, and the Croix de Guerre.

Staff Positions Open

All students, especially of the freshman and sophomore classes, interested in joining the VILLANOVAN staff are invited to do so. Positions as writers on the college or sports staffs as well as assistants on the business, circulation and photography staff are now open with good opportunities for fast advancement to editors' positions.

Those that are interested may apply between the hours of 12:30 and 1:30 P. M. in the VILLANOVAN office, room 119 Mendel Hall.

ERC Grads Called To Duty; Students' Status Uncertain

Eleven members of the recently graduated senior class have received notice to report for active service on Feb. 12, from the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps Headquarters in Baltimore, Md. They will leave in a group composed of graduated reservists from other colleges in the Philadelphia area for the induction center at New Cumberland, Pa. These students who graduated on Jan. 31, received their orders last Thursday.

Meetings were held last week of all those students now attending Villanova enlisted in the ERC who are subject to "immediate call." Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, conducted conferences for students in arts, business, education and freshman engineering schools concerning their imminent call to active duty, which is expected to come sometime after Feb. 15.

Specialized Training Available

At these conferences, Fr. Stanford presented plans now being formulated by the government for continuing the education of those called. Under the heading of army specialized training, many students are likely to be sent back to selected colleges for specialized courses.

He also pointed out that there are approximately eighteen types of schools for specialized training that are available to qualified students serving in the army. In speaking of these army schools, Fr. Stanford said, "It is up to each individual student to take the initiative in applying for training in these schools."

Fr. Stanford has also urged those leaving to keep their educational objectives in mind when applying for any school or course.

In addition to the above programs, there is the Army Institute which sponsors correspondence courses, provides guidance and will act as a record keeping bureau. The name of this institute is now the "United States Armed Forces Institute," since its services are open to all members of the armed forces. Students are urged to consult the "Army Institute Catalogue" available at the college library.

Institute Will Record Marks

In this, as in other plans, students are urged to take courses relating as far as possible to their civilian objectives, and in keeping with their degree programs at college.

The Army Institute will keep records of the various courses, marks, experience, etc., that the service men have registered with the institute while in the army, so that upon returning they may take them back to college or prospective employers when the war is over.

The students were invited while in service, to correspond with the president, sending him word as to their promotions and experiences.

Federal Agency Offers Positions

Civil Service Seeks Engineering Students And Those Enrolled in ESMWT Courses

College trained persons are sought for on-the-job training in engineering in the Federal service, the U. S. Civil Service Commission announces. Graduates and senior students majoring in any field are urged to make themselves available for engineering activity which may lead to an attractive career.

Positions are open as junior engineers. The entrance salary is $2,000 a year, not including payment for authorized overtime, which under certain conditions may amount to as much as 20% of the yearly salary. For those who have not had previous training in engineering, a war training course has been specially planned, covering the fundamentals of junior engineer work in a federal agency.

Seniors May Apply

Applications may be made to the U. S. Civil Service Commission by graduates or senior students in any field, provided they enroll in the special ESMWT course, "Engineering Fundamentals or Junior Engineer Supplemental." Engineering senior students or graduates may qualify without further training, as may also graduates or senior students in astronomy, chemistry, geology, physics, mathematics, and engineering sciences who can show six semester hours in strictly engineering subjects. In lieu of these six semester hours in engineering subjects, the completion of any ESMWT course in engineering will be accepted.

Good Opportunities for Promotion

Countless new people are urgently needed in the engineering field in the Federal service because of the induction of Federal employes into the armed services and the growth of engineering problems in the conduct of war. Besides offering a certain amount of prestige, the work is performed in Federal agencies throughout the country under conditions that are pleasant and attractive. Opportunity for advancement in engineering in the Federal service is good, depending upon the abilities of the individual

Deprived of the last semester of carefree high school days, wrenched from the bosoms of fond families to gulp a few hasty draughts from the Elysian spring of knowledge before taking up stern duties in a war-torn world, some fifty new freshmen arrived last week on the campus of sober- war-minded Villanova College.

"Uncle" Jake Mauch, student council president, heart bleeding for these youths whom he sees deprived of the traditional college life which it was his privilege to enjoy, has inaugurated as intense an orientation program as the times will permit—a program designed to bring the newcomers to some extent into the fellowship and spirit of the college.

Must Wear Buttons

"Regs," trade mark of all college orientation programs, have been reduced to an irreducable minimum: only the identification buttons. These, however, must be worn; and, kindly but stern Uncle Jake and his proteges on the Student Council will see to it that they are.

At meetings held last week and this week, talks were given by various faculty members and activity heads. Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., vice-president of the college, made a few suggestions to the boys as to how he thought it would be nice for them to conduct themselves, Rev. Daniel P. Faivey, O. S. A., and Bob Young optimistically outlined the advantages of serving on the Belle Air and VILLANOVAN, respectively.

NYA Head Leaves

WILLIAM F. FRIEL, III, who has acted as Placement Director and Secretary of the Alumni Association will relinquish his duties. A student majoring in accounting in the C. & F. school, he graduated on Jan. 31 receiving a Bachelor of Science degree in Economics. Friel was also a member of the Commerce fraternity, Delta Pi Epsilon, and participated in the Villanova Band and the annual spring concert.

Debators Plan Active Schedule

Rev. John J. Coffey, O. S. A. moderator of Betta Gamma, college debating society, has announced the following schedule for the week: Two debates are scheduled with Norristown High School, and one against Rider College.

On Monday an affirmative team consisting of George Baher and Nicholas Hemmer will uphold the affirmative of the "World Federal Union" question, against Norristown, while on Tuesday, John McCabe and Thomas Sullivan will support the negative of this question against the same team.

Next Thursday, Feb. 11, Jack Deery and Louis DeSimone will meet Rider College of New Jersey at Simpson Hall. Once again the Tau Kappa Delta, national debate fraternity, question concerning the world union will be debated. Villanova will defend the affirmative.

Several other contests are planned for the next few weeks, but no definite dates have been set. In the offing are debates with Boston University, Haverford, Ursinus, Fordham, Manhattan and New Rochelle.

Obtains Office

NICHOLAS C. ENI, has been named business manager of the Belle Air replacing Louis J. Esposito. Both recently graduated; however, Eni has returned to take several courses before his entrance into medical school sometime in April. A three year member of the staff, he obtained the office of Circulation Manager of the VILLANOVAN in 1942 and was a member of the Student Council representing the science fraternity, Lambda Kappa Delta.

New Bond, Stamp Campaign Opens

Under the sponsorship of the Student Council a new, intensified campaign for selling war bonds and stamps will begin next Monday. Thomas C. Muraski, secretary of council, in announcing the campaign disclosed that since June, 1942, when they began selling bonds and stamp, $1250.00 in bonds and $157.35 in stamps have been sold. "This," said Muraski, "is a very poor showing for a student body as large as ours."

Stamps of the 10c, 25c and $1.00 denomination are sold, while bonds of any amount may be purchased. Bonds are not kept on hand by the student council, but anyone desiring one should fill out a slip, pay the money, and collect the bond on the following day from the booth. They are sold from a desk set up near the information booth in Mendel Hall, Monday through Friday from 1:00 to 1:30 P. M.

The Student Council has expressed its disappointment in the small amount of bonds and stamps sold so far, especially in the ten-cent stamp which they expected to be popular with the students.

Good Luck, Roommate

WELL, roommate, the time has finally come when we must go separate ways. Perhaps our parting was inevitable but now that you have been called into service it seems to have come all too soon after these three years of close companionship—three full years of work and play upon this hundred year old campus that has become an integral part of us.

I know it must seem pretty tough to you to be so close to getting your degree and then have the opportunity literally snatched away but there's a job that must be done. You, our classmates, other Villanova students that are leaving now and in the near future, and millions of other young Americans must temporarily put aside their present duties to assume larger ones for our country's battle against aggression, brutality and hate.

Although none but God knows what lies ahead for you and the others, there is always the knowledge that you have three years that nobody can take away from you. You have memories of our first year at Villanova as very green and unorientated freshmen but with an eagerness to learn and obey all the rules and obligations of a Catholic student, to be a success in our studies, and to make new and lasting acquaintances.

You have memories of our second year as sophomores anxious to lord our questionable superiority over the incoming frosh, to increase our social prestige as we become aware of the neighboring girls' colleges, and to do just a little better in those exams that we messed up the year before. You have the memories of our third year when the effects of the war began to strike a little closer in our college life, and when we began to realize the important things in our college career, the idea of putting first things first, and our duties to God, school and ourselves.

Yes, we were roommates throughout those years. There were plenty of times when our relations were strained over matters that now seem trivial and insignificant. There were times when we found ourselves on none too good terms with our profs and counselors because of our actions that we know only too well were own fault. There were times when we forgot about the worries of studies and took in one of the many enjoyable dances or perhaps just a darn good party with a darn good bunch of fellows. Memories of all of these things will last in my mind forever and I'm sure that they will do the same in yours.

Just last week we saw the first group of students graduate in the accelerated course and we were a little envious that they obtained their degrees. But now they too shall take part in our country's armed forces. Perhaps it is too far to look ahead after this great conflict is over but I'm sure it is not unreasonable to anticipate your return to Villanova and the hope of completing your college career. There will be different faces in the classes and perhaps new fixtures on the campus but inwardly Villanova will not have changed—only improved.

So let's just say that you have taken a leave of absence from college and your return is inevitable. The rest of us will be with you shortly; whether or not we will be able to complete our courses is difficult to say. Nevertheless, we hope that you will hold up our end of the war until Uncle Sam thinks we should join you.

In the meantime take care of yourself, roommate, good luck and God bless you.

—R. F. Y.

Meet The Boys:

For Future Commissions In The Navy, Villanova Offers Dudley and Muraski

By RAY BALDWIN

TOM MURASKI — he is the kind of fellow everyone likes to know. Why not linger a few moments, Villanovans, in order that the newcomers get acquainted, that the old timers pick up some stray scraps of information about Tom which they have not as yet encountered.

His thoughts, at present, stream through his mind in a triangular course. One point of this triangle is Rockford, Ill., his birthplace and his home town for twenty-two years. Memories which bring him back to when he attended St. Thomas High, where he spent his time acquiring some good old Augustinian-taught knowledge or in zig-zagging up and down a football field, or sloping basketballs through a wire hoop with net whiskers. In all, Tom has been eleven years under the watchful eyes of the Augustinians. If you ever have any knots to tie, or untie, look up Muraski. His ranking as an eagle scout qualifies him as the official knot-untier of the campus.

He Studies, Too

The second focal point of his thought triangle is Villanova. Tom looks ahead to graduation and back on a crowded college career. Few, if any, can equal his unusual record. In his freshman year he was chosen president of his Sophomore class and ever since he has been a consistent member of the student council, now serving as its secretary-treasurer.

Two editorships grace the scroll of his achievements. Just three weeks ago Tom relinquished his post as literary editor of the VILLANOVAN. Last year he filled the position of editor for the "Engineer," on which he served for three years. As a rule these activities would be enough to satisfy a normal man. But, no, Tom must be a four year member of the P. K. P., a member of the Sanctuary Society, an ex-secretary of the Math Club, a member of the Chemical Society, president of the Philadelphia Region of the National Federation of Catholic College Students, and first national vice-president of that organization.

Navy Bound

From the preceding list you can gather that he dabbled a bit in the extra-curricular side of college life. To relieve the boredom and monotony of all his free time he assiduously pursued his favorite hobby, reading. During the Easter season of 1941 he attended a Congress of the N.F.C.C.S. which was held in Washington and during the past Christmas vacation he was present at a N.F.C.C.S. Congress which convened in Cincinnati. His big job this year is to publish the purpose and activities of that organization.

In May Tom will be leaving Villanova, leaving to assume the duties which his ensign's commission in the Naval Reserve will demand of him. Villanova might justifiably be called an industrial organization vital to this country's war effort. Look at the type of material it contributes to our Armed Forces. Nothing but the best.

Feminine Interest Settled

On surveying his life at college, Muraski states that, taking his studies for granted, the thing of greatest value which he has derived from Villanova has been meeting th fellows. The activity which at present drains most of his energy, he claims, is struggling to keep up with the unpredictable antics of Peperess, his roommate.

The focal point which completes the thought triangle? Ah! Ah! men, if you do not already know, there is something about the Irish, as Tom found out, for he is engaged to an Irish lass from Rockford.

BORN, of course?" I ventured at the outset of our interview.

"Why yes," he confessed, "I just missed being a Yankee Doodle baby by a scant twenty-three days. I was born in Philadelphia on July 27, 1920."

Having unearthed this, I began in earnest to pry into Jack Dudley's past, present and future. Six Villanova henchmen tied him to the back of a desk while I tortured him into telling intimate facts about his life which were hitherto unknown.

It seemed that Jack went to school, to West Catholic to be exact. After four years of good Sisters and lots of basketball, he departed for Villanova with the great stream of fellows which annually flow in from that high school. However, he was not immersed in the flood—he was not lost in the crowd. His first assignment for the VILLANOVAN was a routine tryout on a sports story. The story was already covered by a regular. When the next issue of the VILLANOVAN appeared whose article was in it? You guessed it—Dudley's. If you do not think that is an achievement, just try doing it sometime.

Has Political Experience

With such a start, Jack walked into a highly respected position on the paper and rubbed shoulders with the veterans as a matter of course. When Fred Clark retired from the staff, Dudley took over his "Here and There" column. He retired from this position just two issues ago. Members of the staff and student alike will remember Jack as a fine newspaperman.

If close elections thrill you, if you writhe in nervous tension the moment before the winner's name is shouted out, you would have been a nervous wreck had you followed Dudley's election escapades. He was defeated in the election for secretary of the D.P.E. by about one-third of a vote. Next election, the count was so close for Dudley's appointment to the presidency of the same frat that the votes were counted ten times. Tough luck again. This time he lost by about a tenth of a vote. This was terrible. Such goings on could not continue, so Jack was chosen vice-president. Besides the VILLANOVAN, the D.P.E. has been his most important extra-curricular interest and has consumed most of his time.

Tabulates Winners and Phils

Behind most fraternity sponsored sports events you will find the business schemind mind of—Jack Dudley. That is his hobby, the business end of sports. Which just goes to show you how completely the atmosphere of the C.&F. school can filtrate into the life of a man.

But Jack's interest in sports is not confined by the narrow limits of business. The C.&F. day hops basketball team presented him the opportunity to play the game itself. However, further evidence to show what a full-fledged C.&Fer and sportsman he is, indicates how he is also all wrapped up in the statistical side of games won and almost won. There is no skimming the surface of things for him. By the way, the local team he talks about is the Phils.

Upon graduation, Jack will seek an ensign's commission through the Navys' V-7 program in which he is now enrolled. In him, we have another example of the high grade of material which the Augustinian skilled workers are able to produce for this nation. He is peacetimes' aspiration point to a future C.P.A. Good luck to you Jack.

THIS past week has cast a shadow of gloom over the campus since many friendships of two- three and four years standing have been temporarily severed. Many of the boys have departed, anticipating a call from the Army Reserve within the next week or two. To all these men we would like to bid farewell and hope it is not long before they return. A few of the departees are: Bob White, Bill McDonald, Ned Milde, Dave Blake, John Murphy, Bill Kelly, Joe Betz, Charley Datz, Charley Gallagher and Gene Rouan. Best of Luck fellows.

REGISTRATION:

Jack Brinjak and Jim Cahill are chasing down to Ardmore quite frequently of late to see Terry. . . Jack McMahon seems to be trying to "beat the rent" over in Fedigan. He has moved four times before finally settling down. . . Dixie Dunbar, ex '44, recently arrived in Australia with the U. S. Merchant Marine. As he walked down the gangplank, the first person he met was a high school class-mate of his. . . Bob "Pep" Pepperess has been devoting most of his time to Jean from Philly. . . Ed R ley has been seeing a good bit of "Redgie" recently, a local lass from Berwyn. As a matter of fact he featured her at the basketball game on Thursday nite. . . Bob O'Conner is looking forward to meeting a blue-eyed brunette from Newark. After seeing her board the train there and getting off at Rosemont, he seems a bit intrigued. Anyone answering to the above description, please contact a "contact man". . . Steve Pritko says he is now settling down to Mildred, a schoolmarm from Newark.

The beauty of a date
With hair that's long or waved,
Deserves but the fate
Of a mate with a pate
Or to live and die an old maid.

Dick Yensel is singing the blues of late because "she done him wrong." After a hundred dollar investment he has decided to join the "Lonely Hearts Club". . . We wouldn't say it was the manpower shortage, but—Ed Narkum appears to be burning the candle at both ends for Penny and Millie. It seems they met and a quarrel ensued. The moral of this story is: "never let your left woman know what your right woman is doing". . . Mary Tully has been chosen as the new editor of the Rosemont Rambler, succeeding Margy Bryan and Helen Anne McClure. . . Now it can be told: Tom "Weasel" Delahanty struck up an acquaintance with Helen the feminine trombonist in Gray Gordon's band the nite of the Centennial Ball. Because she looked so tired, he escorted her into Philly to catch a train to New York. His man "Friday," Hal Cutrone carried the trombone. Last week the "Weasel" received a letter from her and promptly answered.

Oddities in the news: The poster advertising the Valentine dance to be given by Chestnut Hill this Friday, is on display on the Mendel Hall bulletin board under the caption "Discipline". . . Al DuBlois journeyed up to New York last weekend to attend the New Rochelle Senior Prom at the Ambassador Hotel. Bill Schwerman was likewise there. . . Buzz Powers traveled to Harrisburg last Saturday for a date with Mary. It must be love. . . Frank Quinn lost the coat off his back (literally speaking) at the St. Joe's Alumni reunion at the Bellevue a week ago. Sure you weren't playing cards, Frank?

Wildcat Streak Halted By Coast Guard Quint, 71-56

Manhattan Beach Five Stops Severancemen After Victories Over Gettysburg And Brooklyn College Gave Villanova 11 Straight

Villanova's hopes of an undefeated season were crushed last Saturday evening by a powerful Coast Guard quintet from Manhattan Beach, N. Y. Having disposed of Gettysburg and Brooklyn College without too much difficulty earlier in the week, the high-riding Wildcats were tumbled from the ranks of the unbeaten by the score of 71-56.

In the first game played last Wednesday night, the Wildcats journeyed to Gettysburg to invade the home of the Bullets. In this fast and furious contest Villanova drew first blood and held its rather slim lead throughout the first half, which ended at 22-20 in favor of the Blue and White. After the intermission Gettysburg continued to remain close behind until late in the game when Chuck Drizen broke loose with three consecutive field goals. The Bullets, paced by Cal Welliver, came back with a rousing rally that fell but three points short of the visitors' total, and the game ended in Villanova's favor, 47-44, to give the Wildcats their tenth straight victory. Welliver, with twenty tallies, was the only important point-getter for the hosts, while Drizen and Billy Wood shared twelve apiece for the visitors.

Brooklyn Offense Weak

The following night the 'Cats returned home to entertain Brooklyn College. Bob Kelty opened with a foul and Jack Peters of the soon-to-be losers tallied with another free throw to make the score 1-1 after a minute of play. From here on, however, it was Villanova's ball game as it scored ten consecutive points before the opponents managed to sink a goal. The Blue and White tallied eighteen more and left the floor with a 29-10 margin at the half.

Kelty Leads Offense

In the second half the Kingsmen looked more like a basketball team but still couldn't make any headway against the Powerful Severancemen. Consecutive goals by Drizen, Wood and Kelty immediately after the third period opened gave the home team a twenty-five point advantage. From here on Brooklyn matched the 'Cats point for point but couldn't cut the lead down and the game ended 55-28. Bob Kelty was the high scorer for the evening on five field goals and four fouls.

Third Period Close

On Saturday night Villanova participated in its second home game of the week against the Coast Guards of Manhattan Beach. The servicemen swept right through Villanova's defense for seven points

IN keeping with their custom of the past few years, the members of the Phi Kappa Pi fraternity opened the 1943 edition of their Intra-Fraternity Bowling League at the Ardmore Bowling Center two weeks ago last Saturday. With the reopening of this highly successful circuit, it suddenly dawned on us that Phi Kappa Pi was the only frat on the campus engaged in an activity of this sort. There have been various half-hearted attempts on the part of the other student organizations to follow suit, but in each case the desired result was not obtained. The much discussed plans always fell through at the last minute.

In giving credit where credit is due we must, in all fairness, congratulate the present, as well as the recently graduated members of PKP, on their well-organized pin league. Don Cryor and Bob Simpson, present managers of the circuit, have done a grand job in running the league in such an efficient manner, and have struck a keynote which the other

Mile Relay Team Takes Millrose Event In 3:24.8

Guida, McCarthy, DiCarlo And O'Sullivan Combine For Villanova Victory In Madison Square Garden Against East's Best Competition

By JOE CARBINE

Four of Mercury's favorite sons, George Guida, "Dutch" McCarthy, Johnny DiCarlo, and Bob O'Sullivan, laid claim to the title of the swiftest mile relay team in the East at Madison Square Garden last Saturday night.

The occasion was the Millrose Games, and the Villanova quartet distinguished itself by turning in the best time of the night, 3:24.8. In its own heat the Blue and White overcame such outstanding rivals as Holy Cross, Boston College, and Manhattan. The winners of the other heats were St. John's of Brooklyn, M. I. T., Notre Dame and Ohio State. The nearest team to approach the Wildcat time was Ohio State which was clocked at 3:25.9.

The Millrose event was the first meet of the current indoor track season, and although many bright stars of former years were missing, the usual business of breaking or tying records took place. The best pole vaulter of all, Cornelius Warmerdam, was on hand to establish a new Garden record with a leap of 15 feet 1½ inches. Then came Hugh Short of Georgetown, who was a thorn in the Wildcat side last year when he ran on the mile relay team, turning on a terrific last lap drive to equal the world's indoor record for the "600." His time was 1:10.2, which was first established by John Borican, the late Negro champion. Other outstanding tracksters were Earl Mitchell and Greg Rice who won the mile and two-mile events respectively.

Time Trials

The meet marked the climax of three months of training which began last fall when the "sweat-suit boys" started to build up their leg muscles with calisthenics and cross-country running. Then the scene was shifted to the wooden track underneath the stadium, and the stadium track, where workouts have continued to the present time, intermingled with semi - weekly trips to Franklin Field, where Coach Johnny Di Carlo introduced his charges to the quarter-mile wooden oval. It was here that the time trials were held last Thursday afternoon among all of the candidates to determine the Millrose combination. A promising freshman, Ed Fitzgerald, was unable to take his turn because of a pulled muscle.

McCarthy Newcomer

The trials revealed that three members of last year's team, Guida, O'Sullivan and Di Carlo, would retain their berths, while the newcomer would be the tall, long limbed, middle distance man from St. Thomas More, John McCarthy. McCarthy has usually restricted his activities to the two-mile events, but this year he has shown good time for the shorter run, and he will undoubtedly continue to bring the clock's message down to a lower figure.

Every member of the quartet is an experienced runner, and if the initial performance was any criterion, the team should measure up to, if not surpass, last year's outfit.

PKP Keglers Tie For First Place

After a lapse of one week the Phi Kappa Pi Bowling League swung into action again last Saturday. The Senior M. E. Residents, led by Tom Dolan and Jim Cahill, took four points from the last place Junior Chemical team to gain themselves a tie with the Sophomore Day Hops. The Sophs took two out of three games from the Senior Chemicals and garnered a fourth point when they took total pins by 89. Highlight of the match was the 216 count rolled by Joe Conway in the first game.

Dolan Leads

In undisputed possession of third place is the Junior Civil team which continued along its winning way by nabbing three out of four from the Sophomore Residents. The Juniors were paced by Joe Barnes, Frosh Engineer, who had a 501 three game total. He came through with a 203 final to join Joe Conway in the "200" circle.

In the other matches the Junior M. E. "B" split with the Junior M. E. "A" and the Faculty forfeited four points to the Senior M. E. Day Hops.

In the individual averages Tom Dolan moved into first place, improving his average by five points to 174.

Villanova Basketeers Hope To Hit Comeback Trail In Weekend Games

Postponed Tilt With Siena, As Well As Contests With Rider And St. Bonaventure To Take Place In Field House On Friday, Saturday and Sunday

By JIM CARBINE

Hoping to hit the comeback trail after their unexpected defeat by a crack Coast Guard outfit last Saturday evening, Villanova's once beaten Wildcats will resume their cage activities next weekend, when they tackle Siena, Rider and St. Bonaventure on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings respectively. None of the visiting teams next weekend is of the calibre of the Coast Guard quintet which possessed a record of thirteen straight victories when it subdued the Wildcats, but this does not mean that there isn't any possibility of defeat. If the Severancemen suffer no letdown as a result of the loss last week, they should weather the next three contests quite easily, but if a letdown is prevalent, Villanova's chances are not too good.

Scored Upset

Having upset the Wildcats last season, Siena is again dangerous, although its record is not quite on a par with that of last year's team. So far in this campaign the New Yorkers have a record of seven wins and four losses. Their defeats, however, were, for the most part, suffered at the hands of top-notch aggregations. They have lost to Niagara, Ithaca, St. Bonaventure and St. Francis' of Brooklyn, the latter being in overtime.

Mainly composed of sophomores and freshmen this year, the mainstays of the Siena five are Charley Hurley and Vic Mastriani, senior and junior, respectively, and stars of last season's quintet. The other first stringers, who are certain to see much action in Friday's contest, are: Jim Pigott, Bill Ryan, Jim Hennessey and Harold Kemp, all of whom were letter winners last winter.

Owens Scoring Threat

Smarting from a 48 to 32 setback three weeks ago, Rider College will come to Villanova next Saturday to attempt to turn the tables on the Wildcats and turn in its first victory in a series of six games between the two schools.

The star of the Roughriders is Paul Owens, who is, at present, near the top of the scoring column in all New Jersey. Joining Owens at a forward post will be John Finn, another threat in scoring points. At guards will be Captain Tom Owens and Don Pugliese, and at center, Vaugh Ackman.

On the following night the Brown Indians from St. Bonaventure, N. Y. invade the Field House, bringing with them a better than .500 average against some of the toughest competition ever faced by a Brown and White quintet.

All Star Quintet Gains Even Split

Defeats Quigley A.C. 23-17, Is Then Subdued By Kay Club 33-23

An even split was the best the Villanova Intramural All Star outfit could garner in last week's twin contests, as it defeated the Quigley Athletic Club on Thursday night 23-17, and then lost to the Kay Club in the Coast Guard preliminary by a score of 33-23. This brought the Intramuralists' record to three wins and two losses in games played so far this season.

In the intial encounter of the week, the All Stars were pressed by their opponents continually, but after gaining a two point advantage in the opening minutes, the Villanovans never relinquished their margin, as slim as it was at times. At halftime, the visitors trailed 13-11, as the brilliant defensive play on the part of both aggregations nullified the chances of either team's going on a scoring spree.

De Scuion Tops Scorers

Although Jim Lowney dumped in two field goals immediately after the second half opened, and the All Stars led 17-11, their widest margin at any point of the game, the visitors' defense tightened up quickly, with the result that the Blue and White team was held to a mere six points for the remainder of the contest. The Quigley outfit succeeded in dropping an occasional two-pointer in the second half, but its hapless rally fell short by six points.

In Saturday's tussle, a crack Kay Club quintet started dropping points at the opening whistle, led 17-10 at halftime and continued its offensive drive throughout the second half to defeat the hard-fighting Intramural Five to the tune of 33-23. In Jack McCann, Vince De Scuion and Joe Tague, left and right forwards, and left guard respectively, of the Kay Club outfit, the visitors had three of the best offensive stars seen in All Star competition this season. De Scuion was high with eleven points, the result of five field goals and a foul, while McCann and Tague were close on his heels with ten and eight markers, respectively.

Continuing the same style of play which has made him the leading scorer in the last three All Star games, Jim Lowney was high for the home team with four field goals and a foul for nine points.

organization would do well to follow. In a school where fraternity life does not offer too many advantages to the student, something of this sort is a definite necessity. Delta Pi Epsilon, Lamda Kappa and Delta and Epsilon Phi Theta please note!

Inasmuch as the precedent has been established by the highly successful Engineering brotherhood, it would not be at all difficult for the Commerce, Science and Arts' schools to follow its example. There are certainly enough potential keglers in each frat to insure a large turnout in each organization. Bowling has rapidly become one of Americas' most popular sports and is authorized by John B. Kelly, former 'Hale America" director, as an excellent physical exercise. This fact ,together with the natural competitive incentive, which is keen in the minds of almost every college youth, should have incited the other fraternities to some action long before this, but we're hoping that they will devise some plan of bowling competition within the very near future. Each could operate its own league until the end of March, at which time a team of five men could be chosen from each circuit, who would participate in a round-robin tournament which would decide the champion bowling team of the campus.

To D.P.E., E.P.T. and L.K.D. we say, then, the so-called "punchy" Engineers are way ahead of you in this field of endeavor. Let's get going.

players from last year, Mike Reilly began his thirteenth year as head coach of basketball with only one veteran reporting back for practice. Captain "Woody" McCarthy was the nucleus around which Reilly built up a team, the rest of the starting lineup consisting of another senior, two juniors and a freshman.

This year marks one of the most ambitious schedules ever undertaken by the Franciscan Institution. West Virginia, West Kentucky, Georgetown, Kansas, and the traditional Little Three games with Canisius and Niagara top the scheduled attractions.

before the Wildcats managed to fill their side of the books. Trailing 20-9 after the first quarter, the 'Cats gradually closed the gap during the next two periods as the scoreboard read 46-44 still in favor of the Coast Guards late in the third quarter. From here on the visitors scored two points to Villanova's one. After a treacherous fourth period the 'Cats went down in shameless defeat, 71-56. For the winners it meant fourteen straight, for the losers their first loss.

Bongiovanni Chosen Mendel Bulletin Editor

Graduate Succeds Hadfield And Redner As Editor; Seeks New Freshman Writers

In the annual change in editors of the Mendel Bulletin, John Bongiovanni has been named to succeed co-editors William A. Hadfield and W. James Redner. Under their head, the Science School quarterly has been published three times since their appointment at the beginning of the accelerated program last summer.

To Edit Periodical

JOHN J. BONGIOVANNI

Bongiovanni, a member of the staff since his freshman year, has returned to Villanova after his graduation on Jan. 31 to matriculate in several post-graduate courses until his entry into Jefferson Medical School in May. He acquired a B. S. in Biology last month.

Appeals to Freshmen

He was active in extra-curricular activities while an undergraduate here. Besides being a member of the VILLANOVAN and the Belle Air, he participated in the Band, Research seminar, German Club, Junior Prom Dance committee, and the Lambda Kappa Delta, science fraternity. He was also president of the Physics society.

In his first action as editor, he has called upon the members of the freshman science school to prepare papers for the next publication in March. Although there are several upper classmen on the staff, Bongiovanni would like to prepare staff members in alignment with the accelerated program.

The Mendel Bulletin is composed of articles written exclusively by members of the science school. They choose their topics with the idea of interest to science students as well as for their timeliness. Recent publications have explained deadly gases and tropical diseases.

Fitzgibbons Chosen For Yearbook Post

John Fitzgibbons, a freshman in the C. & F. school, has been named circulation manager of the Belle Air, the college yearbook. This office is an innovation to the Belle Air; however, since the next edition will be the Centennial issue, a large circulation of copies will demand a separate concentration of effort. The circulation for the future edition is expected to reach an all-time high of 2000 copies.

Another announcement comes out of the Belle Air office that all students who are intending to leave, are expected to take care of their accounts. Unless the office has a corrected account, the student will not receive a copy when it is published this summer.

All those students who might not be ordinarily entitled to a copy are requested to place their order before Feb. 28, otherwise they will be restricted from purchasing a copy.

Chem. Engineers Name Officers In New Society

Dr. Haenisch To Act As Moderator; Temple, Donnelly, Durante On Executive Board

Following the granting of its charter on Feb. 6, the Student Affiliate of the American Chemical Society met for the first time last Friday evening in conjunction with the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. The process of organizing this new compus organization has been in progress since the beginning of the current school year.

Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, associate professor of chemistry and chemical engineering, was chosen as moderator of the group. Election of officers at the meeting resulted in a deadlock for the position of chairman between Robert Koob and William Theodosia. Another vote will be taken soon. George Temple was selected secretary-treasurer, and James Donnelly, Al Durante, and Edward Murray will comprise the executive board. This board and the officers will determine the policy of the society.

A constitution for the group will be drawn up soon as the election of officers has been completed. Many joint meetings with the A. I. Ch. E. are planned. Only students majoring either in chemistry or in chemical engineering will be accepted into the organization. Each member receives a pin, and will receive a copy of the "Chemical and Engineering News" twice a month.

P. K. P. To Revise Club Constitution

Phi Kappa Pi, engineering school fraternity, has inaugurated a campaign to revise its 25-year-old constitution.

"Certain changes,' says Malachy V Boyle, president of the fraternity, "have been made necessary by the present accelerated course of studies. We strongly urge all members to be present at future meetings so that the interests of all will be well represented in any revisions which may be made."

Individuals Receive Articles

Recently, specific articles were assigned to several members, and it has been their task to study and revise the article designated. At the next meeting, these men will report on their findings, and discussions and voting on their suggestions will follow.

This meeting will be held next Monday, Feb. 22, at 1:00 P. M. in Room 214. Underclassmen in particular are urged to attend, since matters concerning the future of the fraternity are naturally of greatest interest to them.

Another important development of recent meetings is the suggestion that more money be allotted to the bowling league in order that worthwhile prizes can be presented. This, according to Boyle, should prove an incentive to all the teams in the league to appear every week.

In commenting on the poor attendance at these meetings, Boyle said that he realized that the time of the gatherings was necessarily inconvenient. "However," he added, 'the matters discussed at these times are very important, and every effort should be made to attend.'

Seminar To Feature Rimsky-Korsakoff

Rimsky - Korsakoff's "Le Coq D'Or" and "Capriccio Espanole" will be the featured works of the music seminar at noon tomorrow in room 215 Mendel Hall. The popular "Hymn to The Sun" is included in the former while the latter is noted for its vigorous melody and orchestration. Rimsky-Korsakoff's name is to orchestration as Beethoven's is to composition. The formation of the present-day symphonic orchestra is the direct result of Rimsky-Korsakoff's experimentation.

Beethoven's "Pastoral Symphony" was played at the music seminar last Wednesday. This work comprised one of the sections of Walt Disney's "Fantasia."

Heads Arts Frat

JOSEPH J. CARBINE

Carbine Elected E. P. T. President

Connelly, McWilliams Chosen As Vice-President And Secretary; Deery Retains Position

Joseph J. Carbine, senior in the School of Arts, was elected president of Epsilon Phi Theta, arts and education fraternity, at the annual elections held on Feb. 16. He will take over the position vacated by Thomas F. Devine, who graduated at mid-winter commencement.

For the past scholastic year, Carbine has served as vice-president of the E. P. T In addition to his duties in the arts frat, he also is a member of the VILLANOVAN sports staff, and holds the office of College Editor on the Belle Air staff.

Other Officers Chosen

Selected to succeed him as vice-president was James F. Connelly, junior. He is a three-year member of Beta Gamma, varsity society. James P. McWilliams, sophomore, will assume the duties as secretary relinquished by Joseph Haggerty. Jack Deery was again chosen treasurer. Both McWilliams and Deery are members of the VILLANOVAN staff; McWilliams serving as College Editor, and Deery acting as Copy Editor.

All the elected men will serve only one semester, and balloting will again be held in May.

Koob Named As Editor Of Engineer; New Cover Design Likely To Be Used

Former Advisor Resumes Duties

Fr. Sullivan Will Again Act As Moderator Of Debaters Succeeding Fr. Coffey

Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., will again assume the duties of moderator of the Beta Gamma debating society replacing Rev. John J. Coffey, O. S. A., who has to relinquish his position because of his recent appointment as director of the Augustinian Guild. The change is effective immediately. Fr. Sullivan was mentor of both the freshman and varsity debating teams for two years preceding Fr. Coffey's appointment last October. Fr Sullivan is a professor on the English faculty and an advisor to the Belle Air staff.

Fr. Sullivan

Meet Boston College

Under the new moderator, a non-decision debate against Boston University will be conducted on Friday evening, Feb. 19, at 8:00 in Simpson Hall. Once against the national question on the formation of a World Federal Union will be argued. Thomas Quigley, secretary of the society, and William Walsh will represent Villanova and uphold the affirmative side of the question. All students are invited to attend.

The society took part in three debates last week. Norristown High School provided competition to the freshmen members of Beta Gamma on Monday and Tuesday. On Monday they were guests of the High School. On Thursday evening Rider College debated the varsity on the Federal Union question.

Name McEvoy To Council

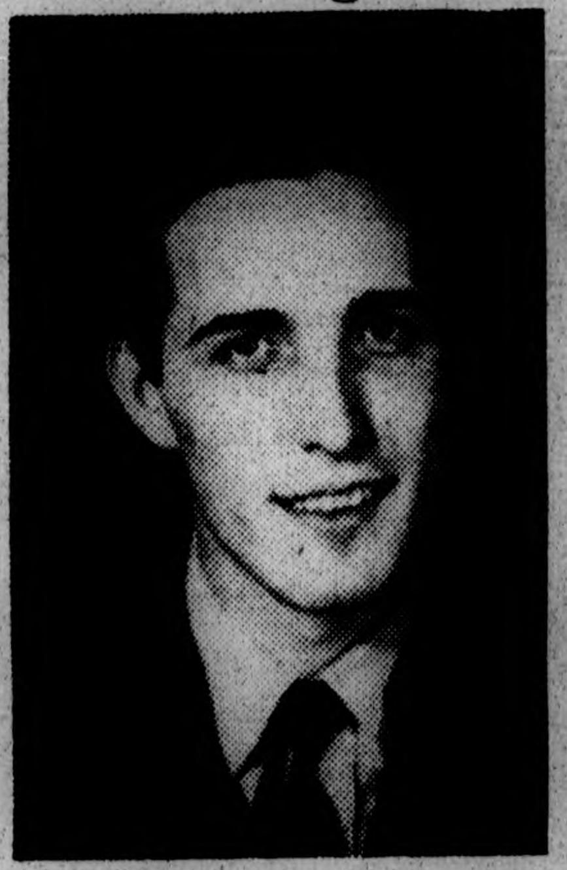
At a meeting last week, Joseph P. McEvoy, a senior, was unanimously elected to represent the Delta Pi Epsilon, C.&F. fraternity, on the Student Council. He succeeds William Menseck who graduated on Jan. 31. A member of the Marine Reserve Corps, McEvoy is majoring in accounting.

Gerngross Chosen As Managing Editor; Temple, Lyness, DeVoldre Retain Former Positions

With the recent graduation of Edward L. Manderfield, former editor-in-chief of the Villanova Engineer, Robert P. Koob, senior Chemistry student, has been appointed to succeed him. Frederick J. Gerngross, Junior Mechanical Engineer, has been named managing editor.

Koob has been associated with the magazine since his freshman year, and most recently served in the capacity of managing editor under Manderfield. In addition, he is a member of Chi Epsilon Mu, Engineering Honor Fraternity, and was chairman of the committee which organized a student affiliate of the American Chemical Society on the campus. A highlight of his four year membership in the college band was the trombone solo which he rendered at the concert last spring.

Directs "Engineer"



ROBERT P. KOOB

February Issue Planned

Assisting new editors will be George Temple, Photography Editor, Art Lyness, Business Manager, and Joseph De Voldre, Circulation Manager. These three men all held the same positions during the past semester.

Already the new staff has plans for the February issue of the Engineer now near completion. The featured article this month will be written by Marie T. Rabbit of Chestnut Hill College. Her topic will be "Doctor Stanley's Molechisms."

New Cover Considered

In another article John Farrow will describe the navy's P. T. Boats, the gallant little ships which played such a large part in the Philippine war. "Metallurgical Inspection" will be the title of an article by Gerngross, the new managing editor.

While a final decision has not yet been reached, Koob announced that "most probably" a new cover, designed by freshman photographer John Millet, will replace the one so long in use on the technical monthly. No details of the new cover have yet been released.

A. I. Ch. E. Holds Initial Meeting

James Donnelly, Senior Chemical Engineer, presided at the first formal meeting of the Villanova chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers held at Simpson Hall on Friday night, Feb. 12. The college charter for this society was granted last summer, but the organization did not become active until now.

Main speaker of the evening was Doctor Molstad, professor of chemistry and chemical engineering at the University of Pennsylvania. His topic was "Engineering Economics." After this talk J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of Engineering presented to Thomas Calpin, a junior, the award which is given to the student in each chapter who has the highest average for his first two years in college.

E. R. C. Students Seek Solitude From Ramblings Of Rumor Mongers

Those many characters seen wandering through the halls suspiciously lately with a very confounded and confused visage are not engineers wondering what happened to that last molecule; they are not sciencemen pondering about new diseases; no, they are an entirely new type of student altogether. Theoretically they may be classed as members of the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps, unassigned; practically they are a group of arts and business students bewildered and befudeled by tons of reports concerning an all-important phase of their life—the future.

"Don't Tell a Soul—But—"

Nearly every college student in the country who is enlisted in the ERC has at least one solid comment to offer on the situation—except Villanovans. Boys from Notre Dame calmly state, "We'll be around until March or July." Lads up Boston way maintain "sometime in May"; Penn students will leave around the twenty-first of this month; Mofstra boys, like those attending Rollins College, have as yet received no notice; but Villanova lads, always in the fore, shout definitely, "Sometime in the near or, as the case may be, distant future."

Quite a few of the "ercs" have already gone home to spend the waiting period bidding friends and relatives farewell, and sit before a large, cheery fireplace with their loved one(s) anticipating the postman's ring. The fellows that remained in school eagerly trying to enhance their chances for promotion in army life, they say, are the ones that walk aimlessly around, book laden on one side, suitcase packed on the other side ready to pull out at the slightest provocation.

Sleep Brings Peace

Each one lives in dire fear of what the morrow may bring. They awaken each morning determined to avoid any and all occasions of rumors regarding their status. At 9:10 A. M., Joe Erc is solemnly told that somebody down in the C. & F. school has already received his notice, and is to report directly to Tunisia. As Joe starts to head home to say bye-bye to momma, he is told by his roommate that according to the most reliable of reliable people "you boys won't go for another few months." This procedure is repeated every two hours throughout the day, until he seriously wonders if there is such an outfit as the Enlisted Reserve Corps.

But Joe holds on to one consoling thought, each night at the end of his prayers, he silently asks that someday, whether he is here or not, the numerous trials and tribulations through which he is going will be neatly thrown into the laps of those so-and-so complacent Navy and Marine reserves.

Students Donate Blood

Twenty members of the Villanova student body contributed a pint of their blood to the Red Cross last Wednesday when the Main Line Mobile Unit was at Rosemont College.

Example From Africa

". . . .tonight I am writing to you from 'somewhere in North Africa.' Wherever I have gone, though, I have always been close enough to a Catholic priest to hear Mass at least on Sundays, although sometimes it has been under strange circumstances. In the past six months I have heard Mass at different times in the open field, in an Army tent, in an airplane hanger, in the hold of a ship during a heavy storm, on the ship's deck and in a French mission chapel. In fact, there have been only a few times in recent months that I have heard Mass in an ordinary church. Sometimes I have heard Mass in the morning, sometimes in the afternoon and sometimes in the evening. Also, I have found that army life, especially on the seas and near the front, tends to make the men a good bit more religious than they were at home."

The above was an excerpt in a letter received from an alumnus of Villanova now in the fighting forces of America. It illustrates an appreciation for the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass by those who are in the very midst of the present bloody struggle — an appreciation that seems lacking among Villanova students on the campus. All the facilities for obtaining spiritual help and guidance, the Chapel, our priests, and religious services, are present for us at all times and yet there has been a noticeable decline in the attendance of the student body at all such functions.

It can't be because no one needs God's help, for every student will himself be facing the field of battle in a short time. Surely with this thought in mind each should not only try to prepare for that inevitable time but also seek aid in adjusting himself to a difficult and accelerated war-time course of studying and living.

Reflect upon the words that one of our own former students has written and make a decided effort to take advantage of our college Chapel and all its services while there is still the opportunity.

We Must Think Of Peace

IT is a good sign to see the discussion of post-war conditions at this time, for history has the habit of repeating that peace is just as certain as war. So why not prepare for peace? Before we entered the war, our production lines were strictly war-like because the war was imminent; let us continue to use this logic.

The wars in which this nation has been involved seem to prove the same moral: that the success or failure of a war depends upon the peace. We were fortunate in our early history in having the wars result in constructive developments; however, we might have reason to doubt the success of the Spanish-American war since we have suffered the great ignominy of unpreparedness by reason of possessions gained by that war. No one doubts the failure of our victory in World War Number One. Whether we are going to have to apply opus numbers to future struggles depends upon our peace tactics after this universal battle.

Let us not have another peace conference like we had in 1919, where the statesmen gather around a table and divide the spoils of war. It is your responsibility just as much as the most prolific diplomat's. If we citizens "talk it up," congress and then the whole world will talk and ultimately think in terms of the future, the peace.

Meet The Boys:

Jack and Don, Both Handsome Guys, Cause Many Hearts To Utter A Sigh

By TOM HITCHELL

WELL finally the feud is over; peace at last! At least it seems that way since we managed to bring a financier and an engineer together for an interview this week. No longer will the famed rivalry between the "snap-course playboys" and the "punchy sliderule wizards" go on, for the peace treaty has been signed, and so history has been made. Yes, and behind every historic event are the men behind it, in this case Jack Newell and Don Cryor.

Representing the "C&F-ers" we have John J. Newell. Philadelphia, a town located on the outskirts of Villanova, may be accredited for the birth of this statesman away back in 1921; September 21 to be exact. Here our future business man lived a peaceful normal life until at the age of six, his family moved to Cheltenham, a suburb not far from his birthplace. It was at Presentative Blessed Virgin Mary in Cheltenham that Jack received his grammar school education.

Life Begins

His next stop was Cheltenham High School, where the Newell lad emerged as an athlete, distinguishing himself in varsity basketball and golf, as well as in all intramurals. When not participating in one sport or another you could find our protege writing up the games for the school paper, or else out in front leading the school cheers as head cheer-leader. As a fitting climax to all this activity, Jack served as chairman of the Publicity committee for all high school events in his senior year.

The following year, 1939, can be recorded as one of the true landmarks of this versatile career, for it was at this time that Newell matriculated as an accounting major in the Commerce and Finance School of Villanova. The Spanish Club drafted Jack into its midst during his very first year here, and the following year the Delta Pi Epsilon did likewise. Throughout his four years on this Main Line campus, intramural basketball and touch-football played an important part in his extra-curricular program. As a Junior the Newell heir gained more prestige when he became chairman of the Victory Corsage committee for the Junior Prom, and also when he served as a member of the Delta Pi Epsilon Dance committee. This past year the Senior Dinner Dance committee classified Jack as "vorker."

Settling Accounts in Philly

During his summer vacations for the past three years Jack rendered his services to the Philco Radio & Television Inc. office in Philly. Because of present conditions, he doubts whether he'll be able to continue with this company after graduation, for as a member of the Marine Reserve, Newell's big ambition right now is "to become a Second Lieutenant in the Marines, and then marry Betty."

Incidentally I almost forgot to tell you that Betty is the lovely Philadelphia Miss, who, captivated by this 6 foot, 3½ inch speciman of handsomeness, charm, and personality, became engaged to Jack this past Christmas—who could ask for anything more?

OUT of the Ozark wilderness we bring you the engineering delegate, Don Cryor. It was back in the hills of St. Louis, Missouri, that the Cryors announced the arrival of Little Donald on May 23, 1920. Fifteen years of "roughing it, Western style" must have been enough for the St. Louisian, for after spending eight blissful years at St. Ann's Parochial School, the Cryor family moved to Lansdowne, a suburban district of Philadelphia, and here in 1935 Donald was enrolled in West Catholic High School.

By the time that graduation day had rolled around, the Cryor lad had definitely made up his mind that Villanova was the place for him to receive an engineering education, and thus he registered in our School of Technology the following semester; September 1939.

Can Forsake Slide-Rule

His activities with Phi Kappa Pi can be traced back to his freshman days when he was initiated into this engineering fraternity, and year by year Don has become one of the outstanding workers of this society. Together with Bob Simpson, and Joe O'Donnell, Don makes the third party of this "triumvirate" which was so successful in organizing the P. K. P. Bowling League last year.

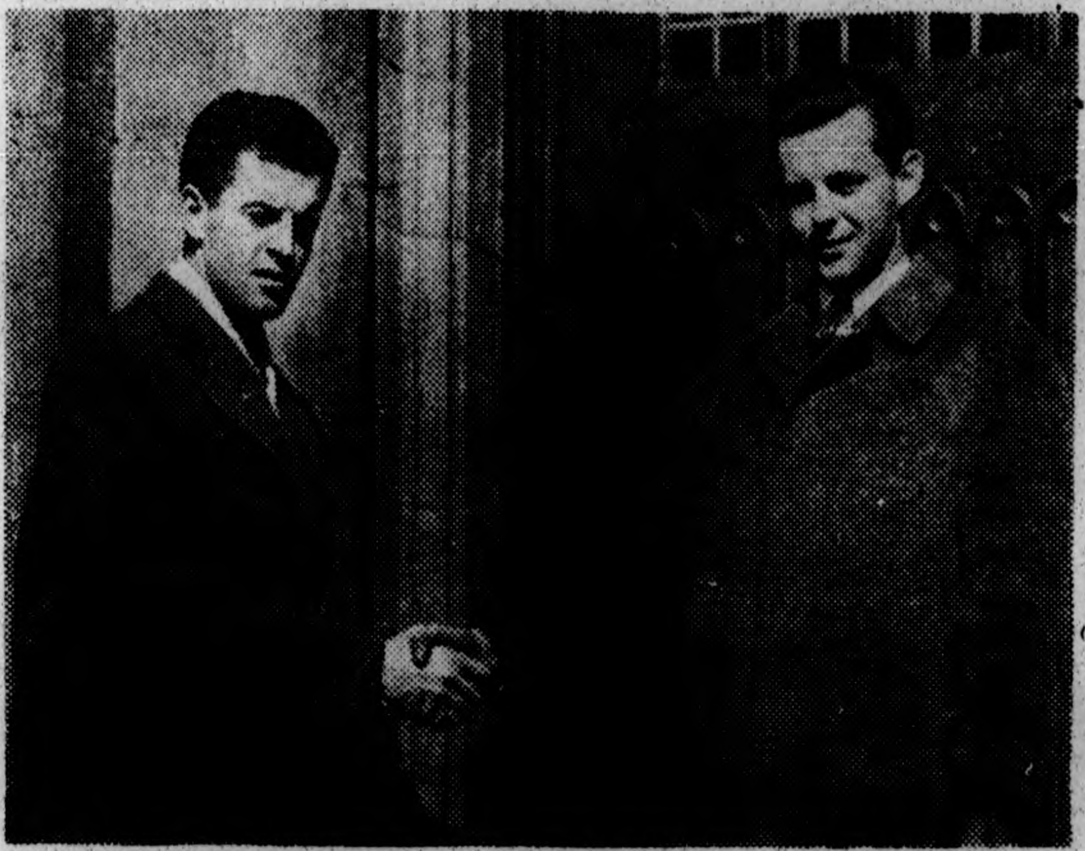
In his sophomore year, Cryor "let no grass grow under his feet" for he distinguished himself in an ample supply of collegiate activities. His appointment to the Sophomore Cotillion committee, his work as a member of the Editorial Staff of the Villanova "Engineer," and last but not least his writing for the VILLANOVAN serve s illustration.

It was at the beginning of that year that Don definitely decided that Mechanical Engineering would be his field, and since that time he has proven himself more than a capable mechanic. That was a big year for Don at Villanova,, but yet in one sense, only the beginning of a memorable college career. Recently he was a member of the Centennial Ball Committee, and earlier in the semester he served on the A. S. M. E. Smoker Committee.

Answers Whose Prayers?

Don, like Jack, is another one of Villanova's threats to the Clarks and Tyrones of Hollywood. In case you don't know him personally, be sure not to take the above picture too seriously, for theres' not a photographer existing who could do Mr. Cryor justice; he has what a theatrical agent might call "sex appeal," but, to you and me it's just darn good looks. He'd be a sure answer to any maiden's prayers, but as far as Don is concerned love seems to have remained in the background; for, as he puts it himself, "there is no 'one-and-only'; still, that doesnt' imply there isn't ONE. Perhaps we should classify him as the happy medium between a hermit and a wolf!

After May, he is going to do his part for the war effort in industry by serving in a position already offered to him by the National Radiator Company. From hen on ? ? ? ? ? . . . well anything can happen!



Belated Birthday Wishes

ON behalf of the entire student body of Villanova, the VILLANOVAN wishes to extend belated birthday congratulations to Fr. Stanford, our president, upon his forty-sixth birthday which he celebrated last Sunday, Feb. 14.

We would also like to add a word of appreciation for his consistent help and guidance in aiding each one of us individually and as a group to solve our problems of wartime studying and preparation for the service.

TO A JERK IN THE ERC

I think my brain is upside down;
At least that's what I fear.
For when I think, I think I think
My thoughts are not so clear.

I'm going back to school—I think
And finish up my course.
Unless, of course, my course is curst
Through force from some curst source.

I'll graduate in March or May,
Or maybe Tokyo.
I'll get my A.B., PhB. . . .
Or G.I.—I don't know.

But wait. Don't call the wagon, bud.
It's not insanity. . . .
Or is it? I don't know.

New York A. C. Games Next Stop For Wildcat Trackmen

Millrose Mile Relay Victors Make Second Appearance Of Season In Madison Square Garden Saturday Against Outstanding Field

Having been victorious over the best competition in the East in its initial test of the current indoor track season, Villanova's mile relay team will attempt to pick up where it left off a week ago last Saturday night, when it participates in the New York Athletic Club games in Madison Square Garden next Saturday evening. This event will provide practically the same competition which the Wildcats defeated in the Millrose games ten days ago, when they toured the distance in the remarkable time of 3:24.8. Holy Cross, Boston College, Manhattan, St. John's of Brooklyn, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Notre Dame and Ohio State will attempt to turn the tables on the presently favored Blue and White quartet, composed of "Dutch" McCarthy, George Guida, Johnny DiCarlo and Bob O'Sullivan, running in that order.

Not letting up in the least after their victory in the recently held Millrose games, the Main Liners have continued their training periods at the quarter-mile wooden oval at Franklin Field, endeavoring to retain the form which they showed in their first meet of the year, with a fervent hope of knocking a few seconds off their previous clocking for the distance. Inasmuch as they were able to get down to 3:24.8 in their initial appearance in competition on the boards, everything points to their reducing this mark in the New York A. C. games this weekend.

Concentrate on Relay

In next Saturday's meet, the Wildcats will engage only in the Mile Relay event just as they did in the Millrose games. Coach DiCarlo indicated, however, that in the competition thereafter, the trackmen would engage in other individual events whenever possible. He added, however, that the Mile Relay would always be the main objective of Villanova, and that in no instance would the Wildcat trackmen forego the relay event in order to participate in individual competition.

A. A. U. Games on 27th

Beginning with this Saturday the Blue and White trackmen will be busy on every weekend thereafter, up to and including March 26th. After participating in the New York A. C. games on Saturday, the Villanova trackmen will again invade New York's Madison Square Garden on February 27th to run in the National A. A. U. games. In this event it is very probable that freshman Bob Regan will be entered in the 1000 yard run. Regan has shown considerabel promise of late and, although only a freshman, is probably the best man on the squad at this distance.

To Try Other Events

On March 6th, Madison Square Garden will be the scene of another outstanding track and field meet. as the very famous I.C.4A games will take place on this date. As usual, Villanova will concentrate on the Mile Relay, but they will not confine their efforts solely to this endeavor on that evening, as Captain DiCarlo will try to bring Villanova some recognition in the sprints, while O'Sullivan will be on the startng line in the 600 yard run.

Boxing Tourney Open To Students

Training For Annual Feature Of Intramural Program Begins This Afternoon

With the announcement last week that training will begin today for all aspiring for ring honors, Villanova once again looks forward to its amateur boxing night. The Intramural Boxing Tournament each year has provided a most enjoyable evening for all those on the campus. This year, however, there is a significant note added, in that boxing is rated number one on the Navy's and Army's physical fitness programs. The military officials realize after many years of experience that there is no better body building device than boxing. According to these officials, it not only brings into play every muscle of the anatomy, but it also teaches one the art of self defense, a good thing to know at any time, but particularly profitable in these war times.

Lopez, Dzitko Direct

Each contestant must engage in a maximum of training hours, otherwise he will be denied the privilege of entering the ring. This year the training camp will be under the direction of two able coaches in the art of pugnastics, Lou Lopez and John Dzitko. Both these men have seen a great deal of experience and know the correct method of conditioning. Lopez is

'Mural Swim Meet To Be Held Soon

After having been delayed two or three weeks because of the smallpox epidemic and a breakdown of the chlorine machinery of the swimming pool, the Intramural Swimming Meet is finally about to get underway next week. Posters have been put up throughout the Resident Halls and in the Pie Shop, so that everyone may know of the coming swimming competition. Because swimming is of so much importance to those students who are in the Navy's V-1 and V-7 programs, it is hoped by the authorities that the students of those two Reserve programs, in particular, will take advantage of the coming meet.

Many Events

Races are scheduled for 50 yards in both the Breast Stroke and Backstroke events while Freestyle races are set at both these distances. Heats, of course, will be staged first, with the first and second finishers in each heat continuing on to the semi-finals and finals, until an eventual winner is determined.

All those interested in diving competition will be required to perform a front, back, and front jackknife dive, while the optional performances will be any other four than those listed above, and must all be different themselves.

Austin Defends Title

Both the Freestyle and Medley relay events will also be held, at 100 and 75 yard distances, respectively. In the 100 yard freestyle, each of four men will be required to swim twenty-five yards. The medley will consist of the backstroke for twenty-five yards, followed by the breaststroke and freestyle over the same distance.

Defending its Intramural swim title is Austin Hall. Its closest competition this winter, according to advance reports, will be from

Wildcat Quintet Beats Siena, Rider In Weekend Tilts

Field House Scene Of 12th And 13th Victories Of Season; Wood Tallies 27 Points In Friday's Encounter

Displaying the same brand of basketball which enabled them to win eleven consecutive games before being halted by a hard-charging Coast Guard quintet ten days ago, Villanova's Wildcats regained their winning ways last weekend when they trounced Siena 62-36, and subdued Rider 58-45. This brought the season's record for the Severancemen to thirteen victories and one defeat.

Starting out quickly in Friday night's encounter against the upstate New York five, the Blue and White cagers had little trouble in subduing the team which upset them last year, 37-34. With a half-time lead of 31-14, in last week's contest, the outcome of the 1943 tussle between these two outfits was never in doubt.

Wood Offensive Star

Bill Wood, Co-Captain of this year's highly successful Wildcat quint dropped fifteen of the thirty'one points garnered by the Severancemen in this opening twenty minutes, and that he would reach a new high for a single game this season in the Field House was almost a certainty. Seven field goals and one foul brought Wood's total in the opening half to almost half the sum compiled by the entire team, and one point more than the combined figure of the visitors' efforts.

Drizen Gets 15

Coming out after the rest period the Wildcat offensive went into high gear, and at the final whistle Wood had made six more field goals to bring his total for the night to twenty-seven markers, a 1942-1943 record for the Field House.

Chuck Drizen, right forward of the Villanova scoring machine, also hit double figures for the evening, as he dumped in six field goals and three free throws for a total of fifteen.

On Saturday, the "Roughrider" five from Trenton, N. J., invaded Villanova territory, only to be repulsed by the Severancemen for the second time this year, the former beating having taken place in the Rider gym earlier in the season by the score of 48-32.

First Half Close

Bill Wood started things rolling immediately after the opening whistle for the home team and Villanova led 8-3, at the three minute mark. After a point famine in the following five minutes, Rider's Vaugh Ackman began to find the range and brought the score to 10-9. Continually dropping long set shots for the remainder of the first half,

'Cats Trounce Scranton; Engage Loyola Thursday

Overcome Upstate Five 50-43; Meet Greyhounds In Return Encounter At Field House On Thursday Evening

Playing their third game in four days, Villanova's once again high riding basketeers defeated the University of Scranton Tomcats last night by a score of 50-43. Originally scheduled to play St. Bonaventure on Sunday night in the gym and to engage the Tomcats away tonight, the Wildcats schedule was changed considerably in the past few days. Because of transportation difficulties, the St. Bonaventure tussle was cancelled, and then the Scranton encounter was moved up a day, so that the Tomcats could play another scheduled game this evening.

Take Early Lead

Pop Jones' minions started things rolling in the opening minute as field goals by Captain Eddie Eiden and Kas Ostroski gave the Tomcats an opening lead of 4-0. Bill Wood, Chuck Drizen, and Joe Lord then found the range, however, and two minutes later the score was 6-4 in favor of Villanova Bob Kelty then came through with two long set shots while Ostrowski was getting another two-pointer and the Severancemen's two point margin remained. At the end of the first quarter Villanova was in the lead, 14-12.

26-20 At Half

After a brief rest period, Ostrowski again began splitting the cords with his one-handed specialties. and Scranton went into 20-18 lead with but three minutes of the first half remaining. They were held scoreless for the next few moments, however, as Wood, Drizen and Bob Kelty combined to give the Main Liners seven points, and Villanova led 25-20 as the whistle for the intermission sounded.

Drizen Stars

Scoring in the second half followed very closely the example set in the first two cantos, although Scranton wasn't able to get the lead again. Brilliant set shots from the corners by Drizen kept the Wildcats a few points ahead of the fighting Tomcats for the remainder of the contest. Bill Wood scored the final basket of the game, a beautiful backhanded lay-up shot, and the victorious Villanovans walked off the floor with their fourteenth victory in fifteen starts.

Ostrowski was the high scorer of the evening with a total of nineteen points, the result of six field goals and seven successful foul shots. For Villanova, Drizen walked off with the honors, getting six double-deckers and three free throws for fifteen markers.

Return Engagement

Thursday's game with the Loyola Greyhounds should be of special interest to 'Cat followers because of the close tussle which took place at Baltimore back in December when Villanova eked out a 29-26 victory. The Wildcats were leading at the end of the first half, 17-11, as a result of Billy Wood's fine shooting, but Loyola started an offensive drive after the intermission that outscored the 'Cats, 15-6, the visitors just being able to hang on for the three-point margin.

This was a stinging setback for Coach "Lefty" Reitz, one time Villanova basketball and baseball star, and he would like nothing better than to add another loss to his Alma Mater's ledger.

Nativity, Kay Club Lose To All Stars

Intramuralists Subdue Catholic League Quintet 31-27, Top Former Conquerors 36-27

In the first of the two games played last week the All Star quintet of the Intramural League subdued a worthy opponent. Defeating the Nativity A. C. of the Church League, they showed new zest in their rebound from last week's defeat at the hands of the Kay Club, of Wayne. The lineup of Jim Meehan, Jim Callahan, Mike Cheppa, Jim Biggins, and Al DeBlois piled up a meager lead in a rather uneventful first half which ended 12-9 in their favor.

In the second half, however, things began to happen. Jim Poker, lanky Nativity center, with the help of his capable teammates, put on an offensive drive that put them very near their rivals. On three successive field goals by Poker the score was deadlocked at 27 all. The All Stars, however, came forth with the last minute rally, typical of Father McKee's aggregation. Scoring two successive two-pointers, and managing to hold off their threatening opponents, the Blue and White managed to register another victory, 31-27. Mike Cheppa, who played most of the game, was high for the winners, contributing eight points toward the victory. Poker, however, had ten markers for the losing side.

Senior M. E. Res. Lead PKP Circuit

The Senior M. E. Residents, again paced by Tom Dolan, pulled another game into the lead last Saturday as they defeated the Senior Chemical quintet 4-0. This gave them eleven wins in twelve games. Dolan, by rolling 199-168-160 kept his average up, and closed the day with 173. Also on the Senior Club, Jim Cahill held on to second place as his average dropped to 167.

There is a four way tie for second place among the Junior Civils, the Senior M. E. Day Hops, Junior M. E. "A" team, and the Sophomore Day Hops. The Junior Civils, after dropping the first game by better than forty pins, came back to take the measure of the Junior M. E. "B" club, 3-1. Paced by Joe Barnes and Bill Powers with 435 and 434 totals, respectively, they took the second and third games as well as total pins.

Cryor Has 497 Total

The Senior M. E. Day Hops once again took four, this week at the expense of the Junior Chems, who, by dropping four more slipped farther into the cellar with no wins and twelve losses. Cryor was high man for the Seniors with a 497 three game total.

Also in the tie is the Junior M. E. "A" outfit, which took four games from the Faculty, and the Soph Day Hops who took three games while dropping one to the Soph Residents. The Junior M. E better than a hundred pins for the "A" team licked the Faculty by better than a hundred pins for the day. Pete Donofrio was top man with a 492 total. Tops for the Faculty was Father Sullivan with 441. The Soph Day Hops led by Joe King broke the scratch and handicap three game total as they posted 2289 to break existing records for the season by better than twenty pins.

Ackman, along with his teammate Don Pugliese, kept the Jerseyites on the heels of the Villanovans, and the half ended 26-23 in the Main Liners' favor.

Win in Final Minutes

Rider came right back after the rest period and tied the score three times before the combined efforts of Drizen, Wood and Joe Lord gave the Wildcats an eleven point lead at 52-43. Pugliese garnered two field goals in the closing minutes while Wood, Drizen and Lord each got another, to bring the final tally to 58-45.

Drizen was the big scoring gun of the evening, getting eight double deckers and three fouls for nineteen points. Wood and Lord were next for the home team, getting fourteen tallies apiece. Pugliese and Ackman were the offensive stars of the visitors, getting sixteen and eleven markers, respectively.

Sunday night's scheduled encounter with St. Bonaventure was cancelled because of transportation difficulties.

in the lightweight class and will work out with all those in that division, so that they may meet the best before facing their opponents on the night of the all-important bouts. Dzitko, on the other hand, is a lightheavy and will spar with the boys who scale in the upper poundage brackets .

Training Stressed

Referring last week to the boxing tournament, Rev. Edward McKee, O. S. A., Intramural head, said: "Training cannot be stressed too much, for it is in those long hours of rope jumping, bag punching and shadow boxing, along with the time spent in the ring, that a potential fighter turns into a boxer. Those exercises are necessary to quicken the eye, speed up footwork and develop a correct punch; all these items together go to make up a successful boxer and to develop an ever ready physique."

The Moderators of this program wish to extend to every student the privilege of training and participating in this program. "Whether you know a one-two punch from a left hook or a right cross you are welcome to try your potential skill under the guidance and instruction of competent men in this field. A strong mind belongs to a strong body, and a strong body is developed from intelligent repetition of good exercise and the participation in athletic programs. In the Army, Navy and Marine, boxing is most important in fulfilling these requirements."

All Stars Win Two

the All Stars sought revenge and obtained the same from the Kay Club, which had humbled them the previous week. Taking the initial lead, they held their former conquerers at bay throughout the first half despite the stellar efforts of Frankie McCann, the visitors' passing wizard. The early gained three point lead was maintained at the intermission whistle as the scoreboard read 19-16.

In the second canto they garnished a greater margin on successive field goals by Jim Lowney and Cheppa. The Kay Clubbers then started a rally paced by Jim Lafferty which the Intramuralists stopped in due time. Leading 30-26 with two minutes left in the game, Mike Cheppa dropped two of his pivot specialty shots, and Jim Burns sank a long set shot.

Track Team

There is also a good possibility that Harry Keefrider and McCarthy will run in the 1000 yard event.

Engage in K. of C. Meet

March 8th, a Monday night, will bring the Wildcat Track team to Washington, D. C., for the annual meet held by Catholic University, where the Villanovans will attempt to gain the team trophy.

The Knights of Columbus competition on March 13th will again see the Blue and White Mile Relay quartet in action, as will a possible meet in Cleveland on the 20th of the month. In both these engagements Villanova will concentrate solely on the relay. The final meet of the current indoor campaign will be held in Camden, N. J. on March 26th, when the annual A. A. U. meet of that city will find the Wildcats appearing in as many events as possible, with the high total points their main objective.

115 Called To Active Duty In E. R. C., Air Corps

Forty Leave Tomorrow, Others Report Monday

Air Corps Reservists Head For Florida Immediately; Army Enlisted Students To Report At New Cumberland, March 1st

One hundred and fifteen Villanova students have received orders to report for active duty and will leave in groups, tomorrow in the case of the Army Air Corps Reserve and next Monday for the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps.

The forty men who were called by the Air Corps received individual notices early last week from the Aviation Cadet Examining Board in Philadelphia to report at the Custom House at nine o'clock Wednesday morning, Feb. 24. The E. R. C. members affected by the order were notified of their call to active duty on Thursday, Feb. 18. A total of sixty-four students in the Army Reserve were instructed to report at the reception center in New Cumberland on March 1.

To Leave from College

Fifteen other students who have left school to await call at their homes are also receiving their notices through the headquarters of the service command in which they reside.

Invitations have been extended to all the Air Corps reservists to sleep at the college tonight. At quarter to seven tomorrow morning they will attend Mass offered up for their benefit, followed by a breakfast in the college cafeteria. The group will then meet at the railroad station where the student body will assemble to bid them farewell. They will be given ample time to arrive at the Custom House on the appointed time.

Head for Florida

From there they will entrain, together with some 600 other prospective fliers from colleges in this area, for the Army Air Force Technical Training Command, Miami Basic Training Center, Miami, Florida, where they will be given pre-aviation training. The men will make the trip in the rank of private, but shortly after reaching the training center they will be made aviation cadets.

Similar plans have been made to invite the E. R. C. members to stay overnight at the college on Sunday, Feb. 28. Following their breakfast they will leave in a body for their destination, New Cumberland. Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., military liaison officer, expressed the hope "that the entire student body will attend these Masses for the boys leaving, and will be on hand to give them a rousing send-off at the station."

To Take Transcripts

According to the order issued by the Third Service Command Headquarters in Baltimore, Md., each student should take with him a transcript of his college academic record which is to be presented to the Classification Officer upon arrival. This information will better enable the army authorities to place the men in the branch of service in which they will be most useful.

The E. R. C. men will be subjected to the regular 13 week army basic training in the rank of private. Upon completion of this period, if selected, they will be sent to Officer Candidate School. Premedical and upperclass engineering students enlisted in the E. R. C. were not affected by the order.

The following members of the Army Air Corps Reserve were called: W. F. Altenpahl, H. Apoian, A. R. Branca, J. E. Brosseau, J. M. Burns, L. S. Cali, J. W. Callahan, J. J. Carbine, R. L. Cummings, J. J. DiCarlo, J. R. Doley, J. F. Donahue, J. B. Doyle, R. M. Flaherty, P. T. Giaguilio, F. J. Harkins, T. J. Horan, R. J. Jordan, A. J. Ketschke, H. S. Kohl, W. C. LaFrance, J. J. Long, J. P. Changes Made On VILLANOVAN

Schubert, Zeeman, Facciolo And Swan Assume Positions On Editorial Board

With eleven members of the VILLANOVAN staff called to duty by the army, the most complete mid-semester changes in history were effected this week. Three new editors were appointed by Robert F. Young, Editor-in-Chief, to replace men soon to leave for active service.

Thomas M. Schubert, freshman engineer, will take over the duties of College Editor which have been filled since October by James P. McWilliams, sophomore arts student. The position of Copy Editor will be assumed by Stanley E. Zeeman, junior science student, who replaces Jack Deery, senior artsman. Frank Facciolo, junior business major, will relieve John Peters, of the C. & F. school, as Circulation Manager.

New Columnist Named

William S. Swan, senior in the C. & F. school, will succeed Edward J. Reardon, junior in the same school as staff columnist. Reardon leaves tomorrow for Miami, Fla., to serve with the Air Corps. Swan has been a member of the staff for over a year. At present, he is also president of the Spanish Club.

McWilliams, a consistent honor student since his matriculation two years ago, is a member of the Enlisted Reserve Corps. In addition to his duties with the VILLANOVAN, he served last year on the Belle Air staff and was freshman manager of the baseball team. Schubert, the new college editor, is beginning the study of engineering after a year in the Arts school. He has thus far maintained an honor rating in both schools. He has served on the VILLANOVAN staff for two years and was associated with the Belle Air for one.

Deery, the retiring Copy Editor, is treasurer of Epsilon Phi Theta, arts fraternity. He is also a member of Beta Gamma, and played last summer with the Muses, winners of the second half championship in the softball league. His successor, Zeeman, is now vice-president of Lambda Kappa Delta, science fraternity. He has also played 150-lb. football, and has appeared regularly on the honor roll. Both men have been with the paper since their freshman year.

Sullivan Named New Secretary For Beta Gamma

In an appointment made last week, Thomas Sullivan, freshman commerce student, became the third man to fill the position of secretary to the Beta Gamma Debate Society in the current scholastic year. Thomas J. Quigley, junior artsmen, vacated the position in answer to a call to active duty from the Army Air Corps.

First to hold the honor this year was Carl Yeager, also of the C. & F. school. He was called to the service one month ago.

In announcing the new secretary, Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A., moderator, also released a tentative schedule of the society's activities for the current semester. Approximately ten more debates are planned for the season, but complete arrangements have not yet been made.

On Feb. 23 at 7:30 P. M. a radio debate with Haverford College will be broadcast over station WHAV. Once more the national question of World Federal Government will be the topic under discussion. Villanova will uphold the affirmative in this first radio debate of the season.

Belle Air Requests Lists

All seniors are requested by the Belle Air Office to return their information blanks listing their extra-curricular activities to room 51 Mendel Hall by tomorrow, Feb. 24. They can also be given to any member of the Belle Air staff.

Columnist Retires

EDWARD J. REARDON, who leaves as writer of the column "Cat Nip" to go on active duty in the Army Air Corps.

Twenty-One Make Perfect Averages

Honor Roll Lists 163 Names; Engineering School Tops List with Seventy

According to the honor rolls announced this week by the registrar, Pactrus F. Banmiller, twenty-one students received a perfect 4.00 average for the first semester, and 163 other men received a 3.00 average or better. Many students who otherwise would have been on the honor roll had to be excluded because of an incomplete grade in physical training.

Thirty-seven freshmen engineers were mentioned on the list; Edward Grostas, Joseph Hoffman, Joseph Miller, and Raymond Wille had a 4.00 rating. Vincent Borejko, Thomas Calpin, and Frederick Gerngross, with perfect ratings, led the nine junior engineers on the list; and, of the fourteen senior engineers on the honor roll, James Donnelly and Robert Koob had 4.00 averages.

Freshmen, Juniors Excel

In the science school, freshmen Edward Bacsik, James Daly, James Dempsey, and Louis Jakovic had perfect averages; and four other freshmen were on the honor roll. Albert Kesnik was the only sophomore to get a 4.00 rating, although eleven others were mentioned on the list. Junior science students receiving perfect averages were: Louis Fares, William Hadfield, and Melvin Samuels. Eleven juniors were on the honor roll besides nine seniors from this school. Francis McLaughlin was the only senior to obtain a 4.00 average.

Seniors Thomas Devine and Joseph Mahoney were the only students in the School of Arts to acquire perfect averages. From this school two freshmen, four sophomores, five juniors, and three seniors received mention on the honor roll.

Mitchell Leads Education

In the education school, sophomore James Mitchell alone received a 4.00 rating. Three sophomores, one junior and three seniors were honored on the list.

In the commerce and finance school, freshman William McDermott and sophomores Edward Fanelli and Louis Masciocchi obtained perfect ratings. On the honor roll were eleven freshmen, sixteen sophomores, and eight juniors and eighteen seniors.

Sanctuary Group

Society Plans To Teach Catechism, Vancant Offices To Be Filled

Plans are being formulated by Thomas Muraski, senior engineer and president of the Sanctuary Society, to enable members of the Sanctuary Society to teach catechism at nearby schools. This idea will be discussed at a meeting in room 215 Mendel Hall on Thursday night immediately following Chapel service for the resident students.

At this meeting names will be submitted to fill the position of sacristan and secretary left vacant by the induction of Thomas Quigley and Edward Gregory into the Army Air Corps and Army, respectively.

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A. chaplain, also announced that there has been a change in the serving assignments. Instead of serving at masses six times a week, as they had done in the past, each member of the Sanctuary Society will now serve only three times a week. This is to give the new members the opportunity of serving more often.

Although a great number of residents have joined the Sanctuary Society, Fr. Grimes would like it made known that the Society is willing and anxious that more students volunteer to serve at the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass. To take care of all students desiring to serve, Fr. Grimes is making plans to teach students how to serve at Mass.

Added To Faculty

REV. ROBT. E. McGRATH, O.S.A., has been added to the faculty and will teach sophomore religion this semester. He will also assume the duties of councilor in O'Dwyer Hall replacing Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, O. S. A., who is moving to Alumni Hall.

After finishing his studies at the Augustinian College in Washington, D. C., Fr. McGrath was ordained on June 6, 1936 at the Immaculate Conception Shrine there. Since 1937, he has been active on the Augustinian mission band.

E.P.T. Loses Heavily To Army Injunction

Ranking first among the organizations which were depleted by the army action last week is the arts and education fraternity, Epsilon Phi Theta. The only officer who remains is vice-president, James F. Connelly. President Joseph J. Carbine has been assigned to active duty by the Air Force, while Secretary James P. McWilliams, and Jack Deery, treasurer, have completed their reserve status in the ERC.

Connelly, a junior artsman in the Naval reserve, doubts whether there will be another general election of officers since the E. P. T. has lost most of its members.

McManus Addresses Meeting Of A.S.C.E.

At a meeting of the Villanova chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers held last Friday afternoon, February 13, John McManus, junior civil engineering student and secretary of the A.S.C.E., spoke on "Foundations and Footings." McManus' speech was based upon personal experiences which he received while employed at the Philadelphia Navy Yard for the past two summers, and it dealt mainly with the construction of bridge piers and quay walls.

Notice

Registration for Ration Book No. 2 will take place for all resident students and faculty during the afternoon of this Friday, Feb. 26, in the Reception Room of Mendel Hall. It is important that all resident students take care of this matter.

Mitchell Leads Education

In the education school, sophomore James Mitchell alone received a 4.00 rating. Three sophomores, one junior and three seniors were honored on the list.

In the commerce and finance school, freshman William McDermott and sophomores Edward Fanelli and Louis Masciocchi obtained perfect ratings. On the honor roll were eleven freshmen, sixteen sophomores, and eight juniors and eighteen seniors.

Society Plans To Teach Catechism, Vancant Offices To Be Filled

Plans are being formulated by Thomas Muraski, senior engineer and president of the Sanctuary Society, to enable members of the Sanctuary Society to teach catechism at nearby schools. This idea will be discussed at a meeting in room 215 Mendel Hall on Thursday night immediately following Chapel service for the resident students.

At this meeting names will be submitted to fill the position of sacristan and secretary left vacant by the induction of Thomas Quigley and Edward Gregory into the Army Air Corps and Army, respectively.

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A. chaplain, also announced that there has been a change in the serving assignments. Instead of serving at masses six times a week, as they had done in the past, each member of the Sanctuary Society will now serve only three times a week. This is to give the new members the opportunity of serving more often.

Although a great number of residents have joined the Sanctuary Society, Fr. Grimes would like it made known that the Society is willing and anxious that more students volunteer to serve at the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass. To take care of all students desiring to serve, Fr. Grimes is making plans to teach students how to serve at Mass.

Forty Leave Tomorrow, Others Report Monday

One hundred and fifteen Villanova students have received orders to report for active duty and will leave in groups, tomorrow in the case of the Army Air Corps Reserve and next Monday for the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps.

The forty men who were called by the Air Corps received individual notices early last week from the Aviation Cadet Examining Board in Philadelphia to report at the Custom House at nine o'clock Wednesday morning, Feb. 24. The E. R. C. members affected by the order were notified of their call to active duty on Thursday, Feb. 18. A total of sixty-four students in the Army Reserve were instructed to report at the reception center in New Cumberland on March 1.

Fifteen other students who have left school to await call at their homes are also receiving their notices through the headquarters of the service command in which they reside.

Invitations have been extended to all the Air Corps reservists to sleep at the college tonight. At quarter to seven tomorrow morning they will attend Mass offered up for their benefit, followed by a breakfast in the college cafeteria. The group will then meet at the railroad station where the student body will assemble to bid them farewell. They will be given ample time to arrive at the Custom House on the appointed time.

Head for Florida

From there they will entrain, together with some 600 other prospective fliers from colleges in this area, for the Army Air Force Technical Training Command, Miami Basic Training Center, Miami, Florida, where they will be given pre-aviation training. The men will make the trip in the rank of private, but shortly after reaching the training center they will be made aviation cadets.

Similar plans have been made to invite the E. R. C. members to stay overnight at the college on Sunday, Feb. 28. Following their breakfast they will leave in a body for their destination, New Cumberland. Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., military liaison officer, expressed the hope "that the entire student body will attend these Masses for the boys leaving, and will be on hand to give them a rousing send-off at the station."

To Take Transcripts

According to the order issued by the Third Service Command Headquarters in Baltimore, Md., each student should take with him a transcript of his college academic record which is to be presented to the Classification Officer upon arrival. This information will better enable the army authorities to place the men in the branch of service in which they will be most useful.

The E. R. C. men will be subjected to the regular 13 week army basic training in the rank of private. Upon completion of this period, if selected, they will be sent to Officer Candidate School. Premedical and upperclass engineering students enlisted in the E. R. C. were not affected by the order.

The following members of the Army Air Corps Reserve were called: W. F. Altenpahl, H. Apoian, A. R. Branca, J. E. Brosseau, J. M. Burns, L. S. Cali, J. W. Caliahan, J. J. Carbine, R. L. Cummings, J. J. DiCarlo, J. R. Doley, J. F. Donahue, J. B. Doyle, R. M. Flaherty, P. T. Giaguilio, F. J. Harkins, T. J. Horan, R. J. Jordan, A. J. Ketschke, H. S. Kohl, W. C. LaFrance, J. J. Long, J. P. Mason Jr., G. L. Mathews, E. L. McCune, G. R. McDermott, J. J. Meehan, R. H. Meriwether, J. J. Murphy, E. V. Murray, W. F. Norton, J. O'Neil, A. D. Paruta, T. J. Quigley, E. J. Reardon, W. J. Added To Faculty

REV. ROBT. E. McGRATH, O.S.A., has been added to the faculty and will teach sophomore religion this semester. He will also assume the duties of councilor in O'Dwyer Hall replacing Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, O. S. A., who is moving to Alumni Hall.

After finishing his studies at the Augustinian College in Washington, D. C., Fr. McGrath was ordained on June 6, 1936 at the Immaculate Conception Shrine there. Since 1937, he has been active on the Augustinian mission band.

E.P.T. Loses Heavily To Army Injunction

Ranking first among the organizations which were depleted by the army action last week is the arts and education fraternity, Epsilon Phi Theta. The only officer who remains is vice-president, James F. Connelly. President Joseph J. Carbine has been assigned to active duty by the Air Force, while Secretary James P. McWilliams, and Jack Deery, treasurer, have completed their reserve status in the ERC.

Connelly, a junior artsman in the Naval reserve, doubts whether there will be another general election of officers since the E. P. T. has lost most of its members.

McManus Addresses Meeting Of A.S.C.E.

At a meeting of the Villanova chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers held last Friday afternoon, February 13, John McManus, junior civil engineering student and secretary of the A.S.C.E., spoke on "Foundations and Footings." McManus' speech was based upon personal experiences which he received while employed at the Philadelphia Navy Yard for the past two summers, and it dealt mainly with the construction of bridge piers and quay walls.

Notice

Registration for Ration Book No. 2 will take place for all resident students and faculty during the afternoon of this Friday, Feb. 26, in the Reception Room of Mendel Hall. It is important that all resident students take care of this matter.

Guard Suffrage Dignity

ON February 11, the Georgia Senate approved a constitutional amendment to reduce the voting age from twenty-one to eighteen. Evidently some statesmen are really serious about this question which is conceded to be excellent material from progressive debating societies and for parlor-room discussions. We believe that it should have been left in those inert areas.

But have these representatives the wisdom to say that this boy and that girl now owns the right, the privilege to vote? Unfortunately an act of legislation does not bestow an immunity from faulty convictions. The problem of ascertaining right from wrong and truth from error still exists.

What criterion are these state senators using in determining that our youth should have suffrage. It certainly is not intelligence. Whatever it might be, these legislators should have considered an essay from America's first printer, Stephen Daye: "I do solemnly bind myself in the sight of God that when I shall be called upon to give my voice touching any such matter of this state in which freeman are to deal, I will give my vote and suffrage as I shall judge in my own conscience what may best conduce and tend to the public weal of the body without respect of persons, or favor of any man."

Can the youth of America qualify by such a definition? Have they the conscience, a critical conscience, necessary for such a task? Too few of the adults appreciate the privilege and responsibility of voting because they lack a devotion for their suffrage; how can we trust an adolescent class which makes no pretense of being able to arrive at intellectual decisions?

Whatever the reasons of the legislators, whether they be political or social, let us not take advantage of abnormal times to sneak through legislation which would delight the communists and other rash-scratchers.

Bond Program Suggested

A VILLANOVA student has few things of which he cannot be proud but at the present time there is one item at whose mention he should hang his head in shame —"How many bonds or stamps have you purchased?"

It's rather difficult to understand the unpatriotic laxity in this matter upon the campus especially when the effects of the war have struck so close by the calling to active duty last week of over 100 members of the reserve corps. Perhaps if some sort of a well-organized program were developed by the student council in promoting further buying of a share in our country's battle against aggression interest would be aroused among the students.

One suggestion for such a plan would be the conducting of a raffle with a twenty-five dollar bond as prize. Chances could be sold, for example, at twenty-five cents each, and in return for which, the student would receive a twenty-five cent stamp. The bond would be donated by the student council from funds already on hand from past social affairs.

In this manner not only would a student have a chance to win a war bond but for each chance he purchased it would mean the sale of a stamp. Cooperation is needed on the part of the student and work on the part of student council members to make this plan a success but the end to be obtained should certanly be worth a little sacrifice.

Those of us who have not yet received the call to active duty can do their share just as well as our classmates who will be shouldering the responsibilities of active duty within the next week.

Meet The Boys:

McEvoy Is Dean Of The Microphone; Photography Is A Hobby Of Amicone

By BILL SWAN

THE first of our personable young men in the spotlight this week is Joe McEvoy, who can be called "the singing Marine." For wherever Joe goes, his Irish tenor voice that has graced so many fraternity events and led the Spanish Club revivals goes with him.

The first song that Joe ever sung was the result of a good healthy slap by his family doctor. All this took place on December 28, 1921 in Upper Darby, Pa. The arrival of a son was a belated Christmas present for the family, and cheer was spread throughout the household. From that moment on it seems that one of the characteristics of this friendly redhead has been to make the right quip at the proper time—to make things a little more cheerful.

Gets Directions to Villanova

Having spent rather uneventful grammer school days at St. Lawrence School in Highland Park, Joe began his high school education at West Catholic. Here, distinction was received for the first time, because of his work in intramural sports, student officer work, and the lead in the Senior play.

Because he thought Villanova was, and I quote, "the leading college of the day" the name McEvoy, J. appeared on the list of freshmen in the School of Commerce and Finance in the fall of 1939.

Having become acclimated to college life and taken part in collegiate activities, namely intramural sports, and Amateur Night in his Freshman year, Joe was all set to make a place for himself in college life when the sophomore year began.

Finds Time to Vocalize

First he became one of those few hardy souls who choose Accounting as their major. Then he was the leader in organizing the first C. & F. softball team. Along about this time, he became a member of the Spanish Club and led the singing (?) group in a loud Phillie accent. The year was finished off by receiving a bid to join Delta Pi Epsilon, the Commerce fraternity.

The junior year was a busy one for Joe. Recognizing talent, the college dance band put the spotlight on him for the vocals on their various jobs. Delta Pi Epsilon elected Joe to the post of sergeant at-arms, and at their annual banquet the job of keeping things rolling (barrels included) fell upon toastmaster Joe. During the football season Joe held down the position of guard on the 150 lb. football team.

Qualifies As A Marine

For once in his life this son of Erin did not wear the Kelly green on St. Paddy's day last. Joe swears that as a result the venerable Patrick had a part in handing out an eighth position out of 7000 in the draft.

When asked about the lighter side of life, Joe came up with the answer that every date demands a different type of girl. That closed discussion on that angle.

Now, on a senior, Joe expects to be graduated in May with a B. S. in Economics. Rounding off this year, he was recently elected to the Student Council as a representative of his fraternity. In the Senior Dinner Dance Joe was an important committeeman.

As a member of the Marine Reserve, it is his ambition to be a real leatherneck. After the war he hopes to attend Harvard Business School and settle down to an enjoyable life. With such a cheerful personality it is not difficult to see that this goal will be attained.

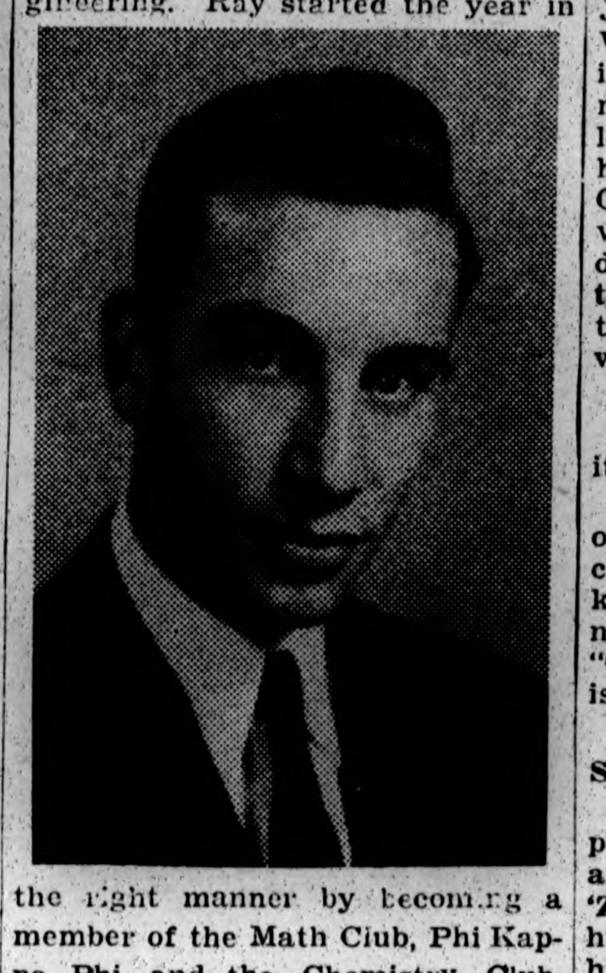
TO the uninitiated a trip into the depths of the Mendel Hall labs is an experience, but the story must be written. So to quiz the other half of "Meet the Boys" it was necessary to explore the unknown. Finally we discovered Ray Amicone, working over a lathe. Untieing himself from the machine, he began to give the facts about another interesting Villanova student.

Ray was born on September 21, 1921, in Philadelphia, Pa. After beginning the process of growing up, he entered the successive grammar schools of Woodrow Wilson, Edgar Allen Poe, and Stephen Girard. With association in schools with names such as these, it seemed as if the young man was destined to be some sort of political, literary, and philanthropic figure. But such was not to be the case. Early interests in model airplanes and dramatics showed the path that was to be followed.

Interest in Mechanics

Upon entering Southern High School, Ray continued to show interest in mechanical work and the art of photography. Being attracted by athletics, he helped to organize inter-class sports. That he was the owner of artistic ability is shown by the fact that some of his work in pastels is hanging in the corridors of the school. After graduating from high school, Ray decided to gain some practical experience in mechanics. Thus he worked a year before entering Villanova.

It was only natural that upon entering Villanova in the fall of 1939 he should enter the School of Engineering. Ray started the year in the right manner by becoming a member of the Math Club, Phi Kappa Phi, and the Chemistry Club. His interest in picture work led him to apply for a position as photographer for the VILLANOVAN. As a member of the intramural basketball team he played outstandingly as a freshman.



Advises on Photography

In his Sophomore year Ray chose Chemistry for his major. Continuing his work on the college paper, he covered all the sports and campus events. His basketball ability gave him a spot on the Intra Mural All Stars. Ever since then he has been a member of the team, although handicapped by injuries.

His junior year at Villanova proved that as Photography Editor of the VILLANOVAN, Ray had reached his own in college newspaper work. He gave a bit of advice to candid camera fiends and to interested parties in general. To his mind, most of the amateurs do not stress chemical reduction of prints. For further advice see Ray at any time.

Considers Naval Career

Digressing for the moment, the question of the feminine side of life was asked. To this our victim gave the evasive reply that things were being taken care of very well. So, what could you do with an answer like that?

Now, as a senior, Ray is looking forward to graduation in May, and after that a period of service in the United States Navy. If the Navy like him and he likes the Navy, he plans to make a career of the service.

SINCERE REGRET

The VILLANOVAN extends condolences to John McFadden, Jr. upon the death of his father last week.

By Ed Reardon

THINGS have been popping right and left on the campus this week. On Tuesday the Army Air Corps Reserve members were greeted at the post-office by long brown envelopes containing their orders to report to Miami on the twenty-fourth of this month. Two days later the Army Enlisted Reservists likewise received their call to active duty on the first of March. Being a member of the Air Corps Reserve, this is the last column by "Yours Truly." So bear with us for two more minutes while we have a quick look-see and find out "what's cookin'" . . .

TOMMY-ROT:

Ray Baldwin had to refuse Shirley's invitation to a dance in Philly this past weekend. The Air Corps seems to think Ray should do all his dancing, among other things, in Miami. . .Another one of those "South Bound Boys," Tom Quigley, had to send Jim Rooney as a stand-in for Margie at the Immaculata Soph Cotillion last Saturday nite . . .Jack Kramer is reconsidering Barbara from Bayonne, N. J., after a brief interlude. . .

What Rosemont "lovely" is still "no-ing" big Joe Kerrigan? Maybe it's the hat, Joe. Nick Albano's curly locks are turning a bit gray these days; not from a lack of Kreml, but no doubt from a lack of Joan. . .Mystery of the week: Who kept Don "Major" White waitinging at the station that bitter cold nite last week? Perhaps he has his love to keep him warm. . .Rumors have it that Bob Schwartz and Gaby from Passaic are on the verge of an urge. . .We are wondering if Frank McGuinn and Marty Roddy convinced "Doc" Drenick to go to that Irish shindig last week-end. 'Twas quite an affair.

The Dakota Scientist carried this item a few weeks ago:

Last Sunday I noticed this sign on a bulletin board outside a church. Sunday's Sermon: "Do you know what hell is like"? Underneath was printed in small letters, "Come in and hear our new organist."

STARS AND TRIPE:

Ed Reilly is starting a new campaign for the affections of "Reggie," an old friend of John Scola and 'Ziggy" Zamlynski . . . have you heard that Jack "Doc" Dougherty has been recently surveying the Bryn Mawr campus "sans transit" . . . Al Corcillo blind-dated it to the Immaculata Soph Cotillion last weekend with Dot from Highland Park. He seems to be making a few local contacts since he expects to attend "Med-School" here in Philly. . . . Jack Bigley was seen there with Kay, who is O Kay. . . .

Bill Barthmaier has received a most serious letter from his one and only, the nurse from St. Mary's who answers to the name of Dottie. This is one letter he won't show to the boys but he keeps it close to his heart—not saying where. . . . The irony of it all: Jim McWilliams, college editor of this publication until his most recent call to the army, was the wildest "rumor-monger" on the campus. Every week he would have the inside dope as to when the E.R.C. was leaving. Last Thursday when the fellows received their notices, he was one of the last to hear about it. . . .

Jack McMahon and Jim Cahill went to a formal dance at Bryn Mawr last Saturday nite with the same dates they had at the basketball game on Thursday nite. . . . The intramural All Stars defeated St. Matthew's of Conshohocken which is coached by Will Gagen. Charley LaBelle seemed more interested in Will's date and her friend than he was in the game. P.S. Gagen couldn't find his date after the game. Need we say more?

ADIOS:

Well lads and lasses this it it. The end of the trail is in sight. It certainly has been fun writing this column and I only hope you enjoyed it half as much as I did writing it. I sincerely hope that no one has been offended, but if so it was not intentional. Bill Swan, a very capable man has been appointed as my successor. Good luck, Bill. Adios.

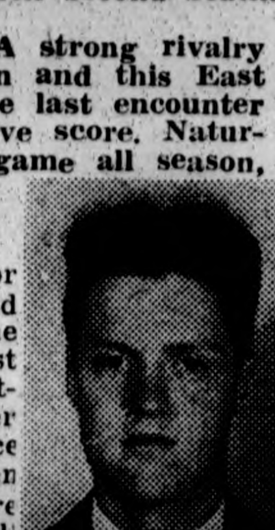
Sportorial

By BILL WALSH, Sports Editor

What we feared most when we took over this department back on January 19th, has finally become an actuality. With the issue of the notices to the Army Air Corps and Enlisted Reserve Corps last week, Villanova's basketball hopes were very much shattered. Bill Wood, Co-Captain of this year's highly successful quintet, "Major" McDonnell and Joe Lord will be playing their last game for the Blue and White on Thursday evening when the University of Scranton Tomcats engage the Main Liners in the Field House.

Luckily, this Reserve call came quite a bit later in the season than most experts had anticipated, and it leaves Villanova with only three games remaining to be played after the Tomcat contest. Two of these opponents should fall before the Main Line passers, but the other foe may very likely give the Severancemen their second beating of the current campaign.

The "cropper" so to speak, is Seton Hall. A strong rivalry has always existed between Villanova's courtmen and this East Orange, N. J. quintet, the Setonians winning the last encounter between the two clubs back in 1941 by a decisive score. Naturally, the Wildcats have been pointing for this game all season, and it is a tough break for the Main Liners that they will be so weakened by the Reserve call, when they meet their ace cage rivals next week.



Our fears of a defeat in this contest may go for naught, however, if the revamped lineup which played the final half of the Loyola game plays the same brand of ball which was exhibited by them last Thursday night in the Field House. Retaining veterans Bob Kelty and "Chuck" Drizen at their center and forward spots, respectively, Coach Severance replaced McDonnell, Wood and Lord with freshmen Frank Frascella and Ray Kodish, and sophomore Lou Reynolds. This is the outfit which will, in all probability, take the floor for the Seton Hall encounter. Having profited greatly from the experience which they have gained in the many times that they have seen action this season, the newcomers should develop into a smooth array very shortly. Whether they will shape up quickly enough, and in time for the Setonian contest, however, is a question which can't be answerd until the evening of March 2nd.

Gettysburg and Muhlenberg are the other two opponents on the Wildcat court card this season, but it is not expected that these two outfits will give the Severancemen too much trouble despite the loss of three first stringers to the Army Reserves. A tough nut for the Wildcats to crack in the initial meeting between the two schools earlier this season, Gettysburg has also suffered considerably as a result of the Reserve calls. Previous to their first meeting with the 'Cats, the Bullets had been beaten only once, that being a one-point decision to the Aberdeen Proving Ground quintet which, incidentally, was the sole conqueror of Penn up until last Saturday night.

Since that time, however, four regulars have been called to the colors, thus weakening Coach Henry T. Bream's quintet considerably. Cal Welliver, the team's main offensive threat and scorer of twenty points against Villanova in the previous meeting on February 3rd, was the first to go, and the other three first stringers followed him within a few days. Thus, what was once a crack cage quintet, has been weakened so much by the Reserve calls that it should he highly impotent when it meets the Wildcats in the gym on March 8th.

Villanova has not engaged Muhlenberg as yet during the present season, and hence, the contest between the two on March 11th will not be a return engagement. Their record so far this season, however, is very unimpressive and the revamped Wildcat outfit should not find too much trouble with them.

Going out on the limb then, so to speak, we might predict that Villanova's record for the current season will have at the most two losses, and if Seton Hall is not as effective as it is cracked up to be the defeats may remain at one.

Improving on the time which was good enough to give them an undisputed first place in the Millrose games two weeks ago, Villanova's crack Mile Relay team made it two victories in as many starts last Saturday evening when they won the same event in the New York Athletic Club games in the remarkable time of 3:23.1. Running their last race together, the quartet of George Guida, "Dutch" McCarthy, Johnny DiCarlo and Bob O'Sullivan set a sizzling pace in Saturday night's race which was too much for their opponents to follow.

The time compiled by the Blue and White outfit was even more remarkable in view of the fact that they received little competition from their opponents in their heat, beating them to the tape by at least sixty yards. Seton Hall just managed to nose out Georgetown for second place in this heat, in what was only a three team race.

Guida, opening for the Main Liners, gave second runner McCarthy a handsome lead and each of the Wildcats, in turn, made the gap a little larger, with the result that anchorman DiCarlo was not pressed at all in the final leg.

Lose DiCarlo

The victorious quartet, which has a perfect record in competition so far this season will be broken up next week as Coach and Captain Johnny DiCarlo must report to the Customs House on Wednesday morning for induction into the Army Air Corps. This will disintegrate what seemed to be an invincible combination this season, and just how effective the Mile Relay team will be in future competition will have to wait until next Saturday night to be determined, when the Blue and White quartet will engage in the Amateur Athletic Union games, which will also be held at Madison Square Garden.

Dunbar's Shoes Filled

Coming as early as it did, the call of Captain DiCarlo to the colors was quite a surprise to his teammates as well as to the many Wildcat track followers. Having started training this season minus the services of last year's star, "Dixie" Dunbar, who entered the Merchant Marine during the summer, the Villanovans had been very successful, largely because of the outstanding efforts of "Dutch" McCarthy, former half miler who has filled Dunbar's shoes very capably.

It is expected that DiCarlo's place will be taken in next week's meet by Harry Keefrider, a senior who usually runs the half mile distance but is also quite proficient in the quarter. In this event, O'Sullivan, who ran in the anchor position in the Millrose games two weeks ago, will run the fourth leg again, with Keefrider filling in either at the second or third position.

Same Competition

Next week's competition, then, will largely determine the power of

'Cats Overwhelm Loyola Passers By Score Of 51-29

Main Liners, Held To Four Point Lead At Half, Run Roughshod Over Greyhounds In Final Canto

After having their twelve game winning streak snapped by the Manhattan Beach Coast Guards two weeks ago, Villanova's Wildcats started another victorious string. The undefeated march was increased to four straight games last week in Thursday night's encounted with Loyola University of

In the beginning, per usual, both teams were out to discover the potential strength of their opponents. After a few minutes of scoreless play, Co-Captain Billy Wood opened on a foul goal which was later followed by Bob Kelty's field goal. The Greyhounds then edged in three goals and took an early 6-5 lead. Major McDonnell then stepped in to tie it up, but the visitors regained their lead more successive double-deckers, before Wood and Kelly scored to wrest the coveted lead from their possession. From here until late in the half it was a nip and tuck ball game and the scoring was kept even until Chuck Drizen and Wood rallied late in the period to give the home team a 21-17 advantage before leaving the floor for intermission.

Forge Ahead

Returning to the floor for the second period the Severencemen showed considerable improvement and forged ahead by an extra six points before the Greyhounds managed to crowd in a goal. Continuing to amass points the Wildcats led 40-26 at the mid way point in the second half.

At this point, Don Osterman entered the game to provide some spice to the lopsided fracas. With Ray Kodish, Frank Frascella and Lou Reynolds continually splitting the cords, point after point entered the Villanova basket and the game drew to an end with the hosts out in front by the lopsided margin of 51-29.

Drizen High

Drizen took high scoring honors in this contest, just nosing out Kelty, who was one marker behind his teammates total. Drizen garnered five field goals and four fouls for a total of fourteen, while Kelty sunk six double deckers and one free throw for his thirteen point total. Wood, high scorer of the Blue and White for the season, was held somewhat in check by the Loyola defense, although he did manage to sink three field goals and three fouls for nine points.

Soph. Day Hops Lead P.K.P. Circuit

The complexion of the race for top honors in the Phi Kappa Pi Bowling League changed considerably last Saturday as the the Sophomore Day Hops came through and took four points from the once-beaten Senior M. E. Residents. The first two games were hotly contested, the Sophs taking the initial encounter by fourteen pins. The second went by over fifty maples, and then the Seniors seemed to fold and the second year men overwhelmed them by 192 pins in the third and final game. They broke their record for high three, set last week, and posted a 2292 three game total for the new mark.

Ring Date Tentative

Although the Intramural Boxing Bouts had originally been scheduled for Monday evening, March 1, Rev. Edward McKee, O. S. A., Moderator of Intramural Athletics, said yesterday that the tourney would be shifted to Sunday night, provided all the contestants were in agreement with this change.

This date was recently decided upon, in view of the fact that the E. R. C. enlistees must report to duty on Monday morning.

Notices will be posted during the week if such a change is made.

Scranton U. Encounters Serverancemen Thursday

Upstate Five, Victim Of 50-43 Setback Last Week, Hopes To Turn Tables On Favored Main Line Quintet

Hoping to enlarge upon their new victory streak, which is at present four games, Villanova's once again high riding Wildcats will meet the Scranton University Tomcats in the Field House on Thursday evening. This will be the second meeting of the two rival clubs within a space of ten days, the previous encounter having taken place in Carbondale, Pa., on February 15th. In this tussle, Villanova emerged victorious in a comparatively close contest, 50-43.

Possessing none too impressive a record this season, Coach Robert "Pop" Jones of the Scranton outfit, would like nothing better than to score an upset over the Villanovans, as a defeat over the Blue and White at this stage of the game, in view of their highly successful court campaign, would make an otherwise poor season for the Tomcats a successful one. Jones is not used to losing basketball teams, as previous to his varsity coaching job he was employed as freshmen court mentor, and while in this position captured the Northeastern Pennsylvania Intercollegiate Freshmen League title, for three consecutive years, finally retiring the trophy.

Ostrowski Leads Offense

Formerly employed only as grid iron coach, Jones' success as the freshmen cage mentor made him the logical choice to take over the varsity court reins last season.

Offensive star of the Tomcat five this season is Kasmer Ostrowski, six foot one inch sophomore who was the high scorer of last season's championship freshmen quintet. In the Villanova game on February 15th, he led both teams in scoring, dropping in six field goals and seven free throws for a total of nineteen points.

Having previously been a center, he was shifted to a forward position this winter due to his sharp eye, and ability to get the ball off the backboard. Although not too tall as basketball players go, being only 6'1", he manages to get the ball off the board most of the time and will give Villanova's retriever, Bob Kelty, much competition in this department.

Set Shot Artist

Captain Eddie Eiden, although held to five points in the previous Scranton-Villanova encounter is the possessor of a fine shooting eye, and should cut loose with quite a few long set shots in the gym on Thursday evening. He is also the backbone of the team, having two years of varsity ball under his belt, and is the key man on the defense, breaking up play after play with comparative ease.

The remainder of the Tomcat lineup will see Pat Walsh, Jack Schartz, and Jerry Gaughan getting stating assignments. Walsh and Swartz, both first year men, were teammates on Carbondale High's championship aggregation last season and have already proved their worth as offensive stars. Walsh got eight markers in the previous 50-43 defeat, while Swartz was success-

All Stars Crush St. Matthew's

Conshohocken Team Falls Before Powerful Offensive Drive 41-20; 23-0 At Half

On Thursday night, before the varsity game, the Intramural All Stars handed St. Matthew's High School of Conshohocken a 41-20 licking in the Field House. From the first goal by Jim Meehan, twenty seconds after the opening tapoff, the outcome of the game was never in doubt, as the All Stars held their opponents scoreless in the first half.

Starting a team composed of Meehan, Jack Callahan, Dave Ward, Dan Dorras and Mike Cheppa, Father McKee alternated his men every few minutes and completely ran the Conshohocken team into the ground. The game was characterized throughout by quick snappy passes on the part of the All Stars, who, despite the loss of Reds McFadden played their best game to date. Dominating the play because of their ability to control the backboards, the Intramuralists rang up score after score to lead at the half 23-0.

2nd Half Close

The second canto, however, was a little different from the first as the St. Matthews boys became accustomed to the big court and began to drop a few of their shots. Seizing an opening wherever they could find one, the visiters constantly caught the Villanovans unprepared as they drove up the floor on fast breaks. But the first half lead of the Blue and White was too much to overcome and though they never gave up, they still had no chance of winning.

This victory brought the All Stars' record for the season to six victories and two defeats. Since being defeated by the Kay Club of Wayne over two weeks ago, the Intramuralists have won three consecutive contests, one of their recent victims being the same Kay Club which had subdued them 33-23.

Ring Matches To Be Held Next Week

Despite the call to the colors of the Army Reserve and the Army Air Corps, Villanova may look forward to a scrapping evening next week. The fireworks will be provided by some of the best pugilists seen on the campus in years. "It is true," said Father McKee, "that some of the skirmishes will have to be cancelled because of the Army's call to a far bigger battle. However, there will be about fifteen boxing bouts combined with three wrestling matches."

Good Turnout

Conditioning turnouts have lived up to the highest expectations and already improvement has been shown by all hopefuls who aspire to ring victories. There will be no announcements of matches until the night of the fights. This has been the custom of the Moderators for a number of years, for as they wisely pointed out, "they do not want the fight fought in the training period but rather on amateur night."

Mason Shines

Because of the great show they put on last year, Bill Lillienthal and Art Ketchke will feature a return bout of mass mayhem. Others who will make second appearances are: big Ben Paradee, "Speedy" Barrett and Scotty Boyle, while a great number of freshmen will

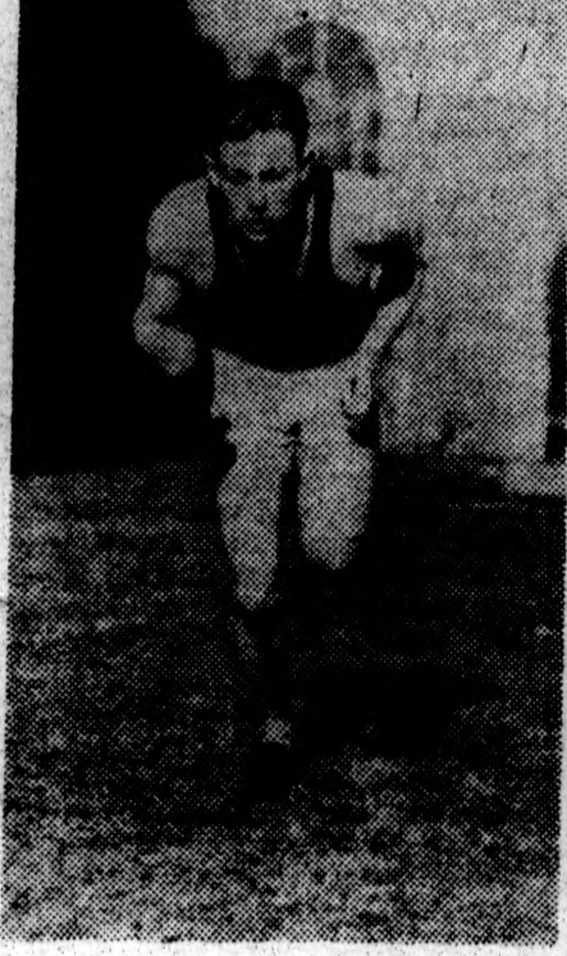
LOU LOPEZ

In The Sportlight

By JIM CARBINE

"Nothing can stop the Army Air Corps" might easily be applied to Johnny DiCarlo, who leaves tomorrow for Miami where he will start his Air Corps training. In the number of years that he has run it is hard not to find him on a winning team. But let's start from the beginning. Johnny was born in Ardmore back in 1920, starting out on his educational career at St. Coleman's grammar school.

From there he entered Lower Merion and started to run in Junior High and so proved himself that he was elected captain in his third year. For his fourth year Johnny went to West Catholic, where, coached under Jack Glascott, he developed into the runner he is today. The Mile Relay team on which Johnny had an important berth missed the world's record by one half a second turning in the remarkable time of 3.21.9.



Ever since this time Johnny has held the Middle Atlantic 220-yard Championship at frequent intervals.

High Point Scorer

During the winter in his first year at Villanova he had a very successful season running on the Penn A. C.'s Mile Relay team. In the Spring when the Villanova track team moved outdoors he had an equally successful season, running in three meets. He won the 100, the 220, the 440, and the broad jump in each meet, averaging better than 20 points each time.

In his second year Johnny became a one man track team. It was during this season that he broke the school's individual high scoring record formerly held by Jim Elliott who was then Johnny's coach. He had tied the record three times before.

Versatile Runner

In the Penn Relays in his second year, Johnny showed his versatility by placing second in the 440 meter low hurdles relay for the National Championship. This was the first time in his life that he had ever ran in that type of race. Later on that year he won the Junior National 400 meter hurdles title, and, in winning, did better time than the winner of the Senior Championship. Johnny by a mistake, was not entered in the Senior class.

In Johnny's junior year he anchored the Mile Relay team which was ranked as one of the best on the Atlantic seaboard. During this season he always had to run against Al Diebolt who was a world's record holder.

The night before he came down with a streptococcus infection he won the Junior National 50 yard hurdles championship, establishing a record of six seconds flat.

During the beginning of that season Johnny was Flight Captain for his group taking C. P. T. training, and this hindered him from cross country running which is a conditioner for indoor running.

He came back in his senior year to find that Villanova had lost Jim Elliott to the armed forces and consequently the school was left without a track coach. Johnny took over the tremendous job of acting as coach and running himself. For months the sweatshirt boys ran cross country and two weeks ago their toils received their reward when the team won the mile relay at the Millrose Games. Captain DiCarlo did his share when he was clocked at 49.4 seconds in his leg of the race.

Johnny, studying Pre-Law in the C & F school, is consistently listed on the honor roll. He hopes after completing his job for the Air Corps, he will be able to come back and go to law school, and maybe do a little running on the side, but he does not intend to make running a career.

into undisputed possession of second place. Led by Joe O'Donnell with a 483 three game total, they took the first game by forty-nine pins and the second by one hundred. They dropped the third, but had piled up enough of a margin to take total pins.

The Faculty came through to take two points from the Junior Civils. They took the first two games by twenty-one and thirty-nine pins, respectively. The Juniors came back to take the third game from them by one hundred and seventeen pins. The Civils were led once again by Joe Barnes.

this new quartet, and will illustrate just what is to be expected of the Mile Relay team for the remainder of the season. It is not anticipated, however, that the new outfit will, at first, be able to turn in another clocking which is good enough to win its own heat as well as beat by two full seconds the times of the other contestants, representing such schools as Rhode Island State, Colgate, Holy Cross, Boston College, Syracuse, Dartmouth, Pennsylvania and Princeton.

Successful Season

This season, although only two meets old at this point, is already the most successful enjoyed by a Wildcat team in many years, and it is hoped that DiCarlo's parting will not lesson, by too great a degree, the effectiveness of the thus far victorious Wildcats. Keefrider ran on the partly successful mile relay outfit which was comprised of Bill Hooper, Bill Carey, DiCarlo and himself during his sophomore year, and hence he is not lacking in this sort of competition. During the last two years, however, he has confined his efforts to the longer distances, concentrating mainly on the half mile. Thus, it should not take him too long to become accustomed to the shorter route, although he may not be able to be in tip-top shape in one week's time. A fighting runner, however, and one who will run his heart out in every race, he should fill Captain DiCarlo's shoes quite capably.

make their debut. Probably the most outstanding man among the frosh is Jim Mason, who is a heavyweight, and has shown a great deal of ability so far.

Coach Al Severance has accepted an invitation to referee the matches. Decisions will be based on the American colege rules. Points will be tabulated on clean punches and aggressiveness, and punching in clinches will be nullified. Mr. Severance has had a great deal of experience in the ring, winning two championships in one night while a member of the Villanova boxing squad, one in the welterweight class and one in the lightweight division.

Gaughan, a member of last year's championship Scranton freshmen quintet, is very valuable as a floor man, but does not score too many points, as the Scranton plays usually give Ostrowski most of the offensive chances. In the pinches, however, he is a good set shot, and like Eiden may sink quite a few of these on the gym hardwood Thursday evening.

In the game against Scranton on Thursday evening, three members of the Villanova five will be playing their last court game under the colors of the Blue and White. Having received their notices from the Army Reserves last week, Bill Wood, "Major" McDonnell and Joe Lord will leave school after Thursday's contest with the Tomcats.

It is very probable that these men won't see too much action in this encounter, particularly if it is a one-sided affair, as the men who have been elected to take their places, Frank Frascella, Ray Kodish and Lou Reynolds will be worked by Coach Severance as much as possible with the hope that they will be able to fill the shoes of the three first stringers. Another able replacement, and one who will undoubtedly see quite a bit of action on Thursday is Dan Osterman, a freshman who is a very capable pointmaker from the pivot position.

With freshmen undoubtedly playing most of the game, Villanova will be after its sixteenth victory in seventeen games, its lone defeat having been suffered at the hands of the Manhattan Beach Coast Guard quintet in the Field House over two weeks ago.

After meeting the Wildcats on Thursday, the Tomcats will then journey to East Orange, N. J. where they will tackle the famed Pirates of Seton Hall. The Setonians are also Villanova's next opponent, the Widlcats engaging the Jerseyites away on next Tuesday evening.

Student Council Starts War Bond Raffle Today

Twenty-Five Dollar Bond To Be Donated By Council; Chances Sold With Purchase Of Twenty-Five Cent Stamps

Today marks the beginning of the student council drive for sale of war bonds and stamps, which will be highlighted by the raffling of a twenty-five dollar war bond donated by the organization. Final plans were made at an informal meeting of the council last Wednesday at which time president Jacques Mauch also appointed various members to promote the sale of war savings stamps.

The raffle will be conducted in the following manner. Whenever a student purchases a twenty-five cent war stamp from one of the council representatives he will also receive a chance on the twenty-five dollar bond. When enough chances are sold a grand drawing will be held. "Regardless of who wins the bond," said Mauch, "everyone who has purchased a chance on it is certain to profit in the end."

Mauch Dissatisfied

In regard to the present drive, Mauch stated, "Villanova's interest in the sale of stamps and bonds has lagged considerably behind that of other colleges. Especially now, when so many of our fellow students are being called into the service, can we feel the effects of the war. I am sure that the Villanova student body will respond and will be glad to do their share."

In direct contrast to the showing that Villanova has made in the bond and stamp drive are the efforts being made by the students of other colleges. Susquehanna University, whose enrollment is relatively small, in a three day campaign sold $1,125 worth of war bonds and stamps; at Vassar College, the sophomore class voted to forego class rings in order to buy war bonds this year; Chestnut Hill College has reported to have sold over $3,000 in bonds and stamps since the beginning of this school year.

Representatives will canvass the halls and dormitories for the sale of stamps, and at a table in the center of the main corridor in Mendel Hall it will be possible to buy stamps any time during the day. Members of the council expressed a hope that the sale of stamps and bonds at Villanova will not stop with the present drive, but rather that this will be the impetus needed to start the ball rolling and that a general increase in such sales will continue.

Bradley Named New Sacristan

Sanctuary Society Discusses Promoting Of Catholic Action On Campus

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., moderator of the Sanctuary Society, at a meeting of the group last Thursday, announced the appointment of James Bradley, a junior in the science school, as Sacristan, replacing Thomas Quigley, junior artsman assigned to active duty by the Air Corps.

It was proposed by President Thomas Muraski, senior engineer, at this meeting that the society join Catholic Action, a movement sponsored by several large colleges for the purpose of furthering Catholic principles on the campus. Such a move, Muraski said, would make the Sanctuary Society a more important group here. Members were asked by Muraski to contribute suggestions which would enable the society to further Catholic Action at Villanova. These ideas will be discussed at the forthcoming meetings, and if acceptable, committees will be appointed to carry them out.

Nominations were also held for a new secretary to succeed Edward Gregory, junior C. & F. man.

Fr. Dunne Leaves To Attend School As Army Chaplain

Former Moderator Of Intramurals Receives Commission As First Lieutenant In Army

On Saturday, March 6 Chaplain (First Lieutenant) John R. Dunne, A. U. S., will leave the Villanova campus and journey to the Army Chaplain's School at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass. After the prescribed one-month course, Fr. Dunne will be assigned to duty with the army in the field.

Fr. Dunne, well-known on the campus through his activities as moderator in Alumni Hall and co-director of the intramural sports program, took the oath of service on Monday, Feb. 13. He had relinquished his position on the college faculty at the end of the recently completed semester, several days prior to his induction.

REV. JOHN R. DUNNE, A. U. S.

Taught in Cuba

Beginning his priestly career with ordination into the Augustinian Order in 1932, Fr. Dunne went on to earn his M. A. degree the following year at Catholic University before taking up his duties as a teacher. In July 1933 he went to the College of Saint Augustine in Havana, Cuba. Besides teaching in school there, he engaged in parochial work in Iglesia Del Santo Cristo.

After four years there, he returned to Villanova for the opening of the fall term in 1937 and has been here since. He also took up his duties as moderator of Alumni Hall that same year. In his years on the faculty he has taught, at various times, modern European history, American history, junior religion, and freshman religion. In the extension school, he has directed graduate studies in American History.

Most outstanding of his accomplishments on the campus has been his active interest in intramural sports. In the year of his return here, he was made assistant director. Later, when Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., director of intramurals, became busy with graduate studies, Fr. Dunne was made co-director with him. In his recent years, he has taken the major portion of the burden of directing the program on his own shoulders.

Underclassmen Offered Membership By A. I. E. E.

Invitation has been extended to all sophomore electrical engineers and freshmen contemplating this field as their major to join the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. This information was disclosed by president, George A. Baird, senior electrical engineer.

It has been decided to hold all meetings of the organization every other Thursday at 1:00 P. M.

At the last meetings talks were delivered by senior Henry Kirchner whose topic was "Electrical Equipment in Airplanes" and by Roger Samartino who discussed "Electronics."

French Sailors Visit Villanova

Four sailors from the French cruiser "Montcalm" shown with Dr. Hartman as they toured the campus last Thursday.

Dr. Hartman Entertains Montcalm Radio Men With Tour of Campus

By JACK DEERY

Last Thursday, four French sailors from the cruiser "Montcalm" provided an excellent opportunity for Villanovans to test their comprehension, and in more presumptious cases, their euphony of the "belle langue." In the latter case, laconic smiles spoke a thousand mots of criticism.

Radio men Remy Joilie, Andre Faure, Paul Boue, and Fernand Barre accepted Dr. Harold F. Hartman's invitation to visit the Villanova campus. Dr. Hartman became acquainted with them while acting as an official with the U.S.O. in one of the Philadelphia centers a few days after the Montcalm's arrival in Philadelphia after a perilous journey of fifteen days across the Atlantic from Dakar.

Tell of Experiences

Following lunch with Dr. Hartman and Rev. Joseph J. Gildea, O.S.A., who acted as interpreter throughout the day, the Frenchmen posed for pictures while attempting to respond to nasal concoctions which, if not mangled, might have been called French.

Dr. Hartman arranged for them to attend one of his afternoon classes so that they might tell of their experiences and answer pertinent questions. Fr. Gildea led the discussion of topics which included: their reception here in Philadelphia, their trans-Atlantic voyage, "jeunes filles," the political situation in France, "femmes" and Paris.

Visit Field House

It was a striking contrast: the sailors fervently discussing the war, each stressing his desire for victory and complementing the American against a background of college students pursuing them with diverting questions concerning the feminine situation here and abroad.

Following the discussion, they were taken to the Field House where they were initiated into the art of basketball. Each of them tried their hand at the game but were far outdone by Dr. Hartman who sank one for one. Several of the students put on a boxing match for them while they were in the gym. A trip to Valley Forge brought the sailors to the end of Villanova's hospitality.

Debators Plan New Activities

Beta Gamma, college debate society, engaged in their first radio debate of the season last Tuesday evening at 7:30, when Wilfrid Gagen, president of the society, and Frank Cahill, senior C. & F., represented Villanova in a debate with Haverford College on the standard Federal Union question, selected for this year by the National Association of Teachers of Speech. Gagen described the debate as successful.

At the same time the formulation of plans to form a sort of Town Hall meeting of the representative major colleges of the Main Line was begun. While details of the proposed organization are not yet available, it is known that the general topic of discussion will be the Negro question.

Meet Ursinus College

Some noted author and lecturer will be selected to preside over the meetings when they begin. Gagen indicated that the members of the Haverford Debate society favored the plan. Other colleges will be invited to join later.

This week a debate will be held with Ursinus College here on the campus. Salvador Carfagno, Junior science student, and James Connelly, Junior artsman, will uphold Villanova's side of the question.

Student Council

An important meeting of the Student Council will take place today at 1:00 P. M. in room 111 Mendel Hall. It is urgent that all members of the organization attend to receive final instructions for the War Bond Raffle.

Villanova Chapter Of A.S.M.E. Attends Joint Discussion

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers conducted its "Students' Night" in Philadelphia last Tuesday, Feb. 23. About 120 undergraduates from neighboring engineering schools participated, of which forty-nine were Villanova students.

The program for the evening consisted of dinner, films, entertainment, lectures and discussions. The "Fifty Year Medal," an award for those members who have participated in the organization for a period of fifty years, was presented to Charles Longneckner by H. V. Coes, national president of the A.S.M.E.

Principal speaker of the evening was Henry C. E. Meyer, whose topic was "Some Lessons Learned from the Liberty Ships." The remainder of the meeting was devoted to a series of discussions by William Jorgenson, A. A. Norton, and A. R. Anderson, all of whom represented prominent shipbuilding concerns.

P. K. P. Constitution Undergoes Revision

Members of Phi Kappa Pi, engineering fraternity, have initiated the task of bringing the organization's twenty-five year old constitution up to date at a meeting held on Monday March 1.

Four articles of the document, which had been assigned to individuals for alteration, were submitted for approval in their revised form. This revision will be continued at subsequent meetings, the next one of which is scheduled for Monday, March 11.

Some Good Advice

"PERSEVERE and preserve yourself for better days," were the words of the Latin scholar, Virgil—words that could well be applied as a slogan on the Villanova campus.

Now as never before it is necessary for us all to keep level heads and face what is to come with a stern realization that we must be prepared in every manner possible. As students this can only be accomplished by striving, not less, but twice as much to succeed in our studies, religion and all our present duties.

The majority of us will soon be facing active duty in the service of our country, but wouldn't it be better for ourselves and our flag to do so in the uniform of a commissioned officer than in that of a private or a gob? To let up on our efforts in studies may mean just such a difference, for all branches of the service have made it evident that special emphasis will be placed upon the scholastic achievements of a prospective officer.

And this great chaotic conflict will not last forever. There will be a long period of reconstruction which will require the skills of educated men to build a lasting form of peace and living. We, as students today, will form the nucleus of these men tomorrow and will successfully carry out those duties only upon successfully completing our present training.

These are serious times, and it is a proof of manhood to be able to realize this and to prepare for the future accordingly. There is no one more weak and cowardly than a man who gives up—a man who sees trouble ahead and decides, "what's the use of fighting or preparing for it?"

Why not be a man about it—a real Villanova man?

—R. F. Y.

Press Favors Optimism

SINCE the first American bullet downed the first enemy soldier in the present war, the people of this nation have periodically been issued warnings by high government officials that they must not become over-optimistic at the reception of good news.

In direct contradiction to these admonitions, it has ever been the policy of the government and of the press to withhold or delay bad news and to overemphasize the importance of good news. A clear example of this is the currently contested battle of North Africa.

When the early phases of this new front met with sweeping successes, huge press releases narrated daily progress. About the time that the drive slowed down and eventually halted, the British Eighth Army started their advance; then the news from Africa spoke only of the "complete rout" of the "remnants of the once-proud German Africa Corps."

These "remnants" arrived in Tunisia two weeks ago, and promptly made inroads on the American positions there. When their headway was halted momentarily two days later, we were told that "the tide of battle had turned."

This is typical of news reports since the beginning of the conflict. Each time the Germans drive forward their gains are minimized; each time they are halted, the tide has turned.

If the government seriously desires the average citizen to realize the gravity and potential longevity of the war, why do they permit him to look at it only through rose-tinted glasses? Accurate, impartial publication of all the facts will do more to stifle unwarranted optimism than any number of [illegible] speeches.

Meet The Boys:

Student Council Head Is Jake; As Sports Ed He Took The Cake

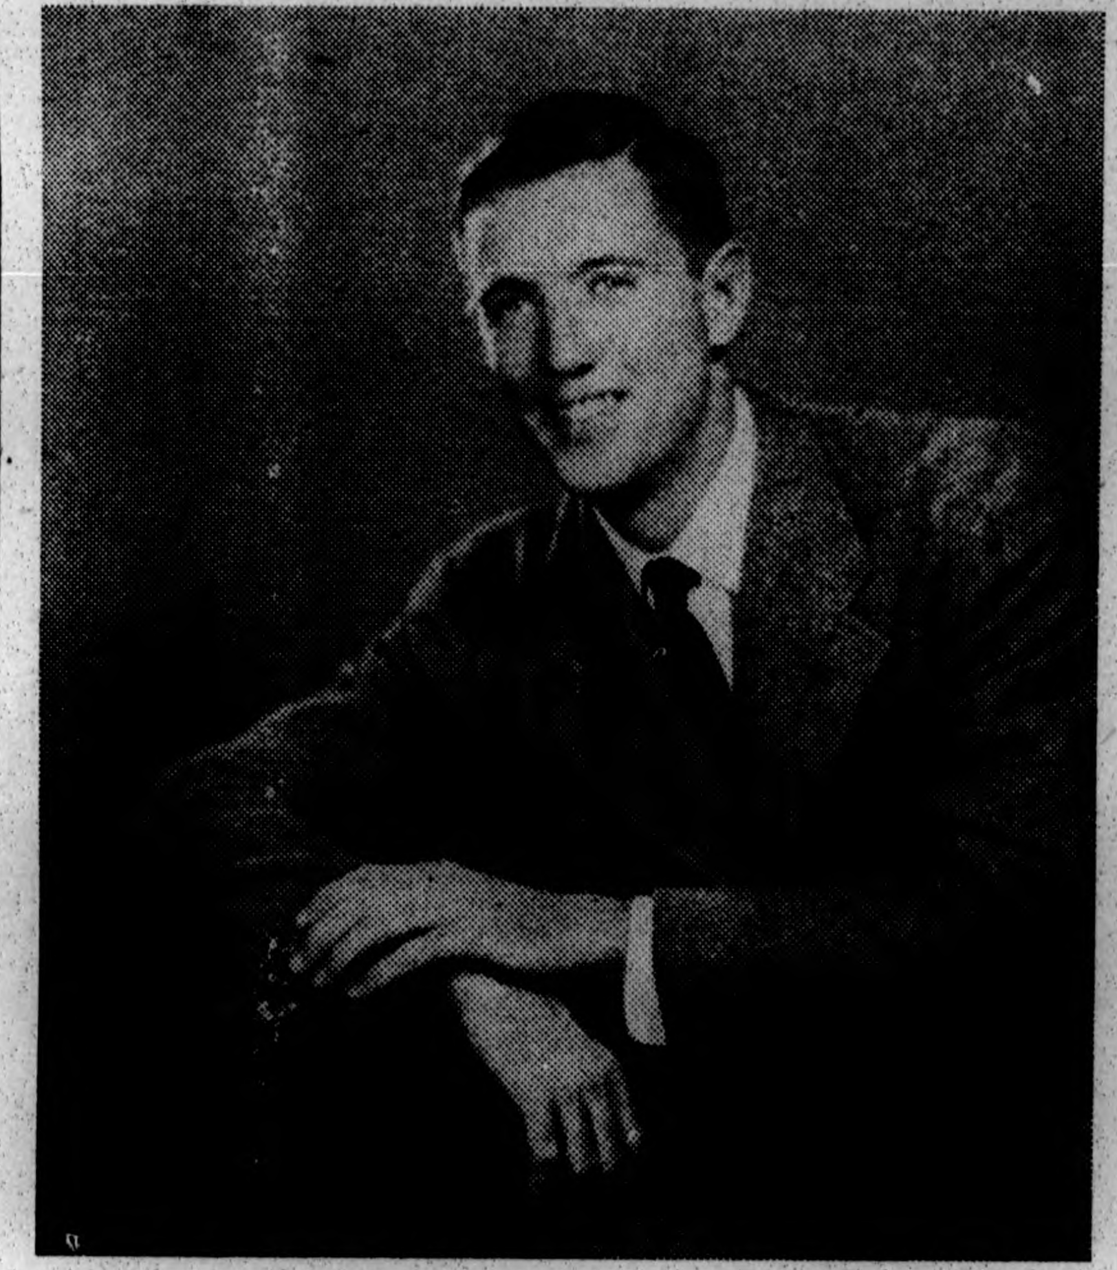
By STAN ZEEMAN

THIS week we find ourselves paying tribute to one of the most loyal and devoted men ever to make this college his Alma Mater—Jacques Mauch, a true Villanovan, honored and respected by all who know him.

And who doesn't know "Jake"? His participation in numerous campus activities has made him familiar to practically the whole student body. Those who have not had the privilege of meeting him face to face can surely remember those fast-moving, easy-flowing sportorials he wrote as Sports Editor of the VILLANOVAN back in 1942.

Finally Heads His Class

Right now Jake is the top senior in the arts school; as a matter of fact he is the only senior remaining in that school which also make him the lowest in his class, but considering that he was never too far behind the leaders as far as studies are concerned, it is more fitting to give him the number one spot. The only satisfactory way to eliminate this technicality, however, would be for the Marine Corps Reserve to call him to active duty except for the fact that besides removing the dilemma, this method would also remove Jake.



Jake was born and raised in West Philadelphia, and lived there till about four years ago when his family moved to Drexel Hill. He attended West Catholic High where he was associated with the school publication and was a member of the swimming team. The significant thing about Jake's early life, though, is the habits he formed.

Develops Villanova Habit

At the age of three months, long before he was able to toddle about or say da-da, he started a precedent that he has kept alive in each of his succeeding twenty-two summers—the annual vacation at Seaside Park. Located on Barnegat Bay in New Jersey, this resort was the scene of most of Jake's happiest hours, from the period in which he built castles in the sand till he was old enough to sail his fifteen foot "sneak-box" in the bay. It doesn't take much encouragement to start Jake talking about Seaside; one recollection always seems to bring on another. Still in all, this is only second in importance of his earlier habits.

The most important and the one which interests us the most is the habit he formed at the age of eight or nine. This might be called the Villanova habit. As soon as he had matured sufficiently to spell the name Stuhldreher, Jake became a Wildcat fan of such ardor that by virtue of his youthful sincerity alone he succeeded in making the great Harry himself pose for ten solid minutes while he took his picture.

You can see by the early development of this habit, therefore, just what effect it would have when Jake finally became a student at Villanova. Needless to say, he took to the college and the college took to him.

Becomes Sports Editor

Majoring in liberal arts, he found plenty of time to take part in extracurriculars. He had become quite skilled in the science of swimming by virtue of his many summers at Seaside Park, so it seems only natural that he should have done well on the swimming team. As free-stylist, he took several trips with the team and ranks them high on the list of good times he has had at school. Besides earning a letter in this sport, he ran the two-mile on the track team in his sophomore year.

He joined the sports staff of the VILLANOVAN as a freshman and rose to the position of editor of that department last year. In this capacity he spotted for radio announcer Byron Saam at football games and became very well acquainted with columnists Perry Lewis and Reds Smith in the press box. He considers the experience he received on the college paper very valuable; so much so, in fact, that at one time he planned to make journalism his life's work. The war has changed all that however, and now he is only anxious to become a good marine, perhaps remaining in the service after the war.

In addition, Jake is now an exceedingly active president of the Student Council, a job made more difficult by the changing times. Besides being a two year member of the council, he has been on the orientation committee for three years and belonged to Epsilon Phi Theta, the arts fraternity, for four, having been made vice-president as a junior.

Jake's biggest undertaking this academic year was the Centennial Ball, of which he was chairman. Staging a formal dance is quite a job under any conditions, but when the date for the affair falls exactly three days after such a drastic measure as gas rationing begins, well, the difficulties are apparent. By resourcefully making arrangements with the local transportation systems, however, Jake saved the day and made the dance the success it was.

Scorns Opposite Sex

As for women, Jake says, "I'm glad I don't go with girls," which only draws a sarcastic snicker from his crony, Bill Walsh. We do know, however, that Jake makes periodic trips to New Jersey, where he renews some of the friendships he has made at Seaside.

Jake's one big disappointment is the fact that he has never been able to live on the campus. This has been his ambition as long as he has been a student here. Aside from that, he looks upon his college days with extreme satisfaction; and, if it weren't for the war, only wishes that he was just starting as a freshman again.

Now, with most of his friends in the armed forces, he is looking forward to the day this spring when he will graduate and go into active service. When this time comes, the Marine Corps will certainly be receiving excellent officer material, but they will never get him at the expense of Villanova. No matter where he is or what he is doing, Jake will always keep a spot in his heart for his Alma Mater. After all, habits are not broken easily.

C'EST LA GUERRE:

When the Air Corps left, many fellows lost roommates of long standing and friends since their freshman year. But by far the biggest effect was felt when the Enlisted Reserve Corps left yesterday morning.

Every hall, classroom, club and team was hurt by the call. For three years Bill Wood, Joe Lord, and "Major" McDonnell had held together the basketball and baseball teams with their spirit and fight. The track team was run to new heights by John DiCarlo. Names could be mentioned indefinitely. To all of you fellows—good luck and good hunting.

With the calls came a good round of parties. On last Sunday evening Joe Carbine entertained many of the local socialites. Bob Bolger, John Bambrick, and Dick Ryan had the time of their lives with some of the nearby belles. Seton Halls Tops Severancemen In Dull Contest 39-29

Pirates Lead Throughout In Low Scoring Game; Wood, Lord, McDonnell Leave For Army; Gettysburg Next Opponent

Villanova's journey to South Or-nge, N. J. last Sunday evening was very unprofitable one as far as he Wildcats were concerned, as hey took it on the chin for their irst defeat in intercollegiate competition this season, the final score eing, Seton Hall 39, Villanova 29. Originally scheduled to be played onight, the game was moved up to Sunday, so that both teams, to be reatly weakened by the Army Reserve call of yesterday, would be at full strength for the all-important encounter. Expected to be one of the outstanding contests of the current campaign for college teams n the East, the game proved to be disappointment to most onlookers as the airtight defense of both ggregations prevented the tussle from becoming the wide-open, free scoring affair which had been anticipated.

Lead 22-14 at Half

Seton Hall, loser to only Princeton and Dartmouth in the early art of the season took the lead at he opening whistle on a lay-up hot by Bob Wanzer, and was never headed thereafter. A closeup hot by Chuck Drizen, after Wanzer had sunk a free throw made the ally read 3-2, but not until eight minutes later, on a set shot by Bob Kelty from the corner, which made he score read 8-7 in the Pirates' favor, did the Severancemen again hreaten the Setonians' lead. From hat point on, "Honey" Russell's minions gradually pulled away from he closely guarded Villanovans, nd the half ended in Seton Hall's favor, 22-14.

Wanzer Stars

Although the Main Liners showd much more spark in the second alf, and drew to within four oints of the Jerseyites on a double-decker by Don Osterman at the welve minute mark, the Blue and White offense got no further, and he Pirates again drew away to a ommanding lead, getting their nal point on a free throw by Wanzer, the high scorer of the evening ith seventeen points, with but ten econds remaining.

Wood Bottled Up

High man of the evening for the Wildcats was Kelty, with a total of six field goals and a foul for hirteen markers. Kelty and Wanzer completely dominated the offensive show, as the next highest man on either team was Bill Mcaughlin of Seton Hall with six oints. Villanova's scoring ace, Bill Wood, was completely bottled p, as he took only five shots from he floor, and was successful only n one of three foul shots for his owest point total in two years of ompetition.

Playing their last game for the Severancemen in this contest were "Major" McDonnell, Joe Lord, and Wood, all of whom reported yesterday at New Cumberland for induction into the Army.

With what will be, for the most art, a new starting lineup, the Main Liners will tackle the Gettysburg Bullets in the Field House

Villanova Trackmen Place Third In National A.A.U. Mile Relay At Garden

Seton Hall Is Victor; I.C. A.A.A.A. Games Saturday; Frosh Impressive In First Meet

Participating in their third Mile Relay championship of the current indoor track season last Saturday night, and seeking their third consecutive first place in this type of competition, Villanova's quartet of George Guida, "Dutch" McCarthy, Harry Keefrider and Bob O'Sullivan did not this time gain its coveted goal, and had to be satisfied with a third place, behind both Seton Hall and Fordham. Going into the anchor leg, Villanova and Seton Hall were running neck and neck but in trying to gain the pole position on one of the final turns, O'Sullivan, the Blue and White anchor man, was knocked off stride, with the result that Fordham also came up to pass the Wildcat runner, before he could regain his form.

The winning time of the final was 3:23.3, which is still two-tenths of a second off the best time of the season thus far, that turned in by the Villanovans a week ago last Saturday in the New York A. C. games.

Next week, the Villanova track men face practically the same field in the I.C. A.A.A.A. games, also to be held at the Garden. In this meet it is also highly probable that O'Sullivan will be on the starting line in the 600 yard event, and that McCarthy and Keefrider will run in the 1000, while Guida will try the sprints.

Gain Third Places

In the Middle Atlantic A.A.U. meet held at the University of Pennsylvanias' Museum Field last Saturday afternoon, several Wildcat freshmen brought honors to Villanova in what was their first collegiate competition this season.

Bob Reagan started things off for the Blue and White when he placed third in the two-mile run.

In the other open event in which a Wildcat frosh participated, Jim Rooney placed third in the 60 yard high hurdles, a race which was won by Bob Vaughan of Penn in 7.8 seconds.

Win Novice Events

The Main Line yearlings had better luck in the novice events, however, as they garnered a first place in each of the four events in which they participated. Bernie Dickhouse won the 60 yard high hurdles contest in 8.5 seconds. Chuck Harrington garnered a first in the 600 yard run, covering the distance in 1:28.4. Don Schmidt led throughout in the two mile run, and crossed the tape a winner against a field of thirteen top-flight contestants in 10 minutes, 50 seconds. Frank Hinnencamp carried off the honors for Villanova in the 1000 yard event, being clocked for the distance in 2 minutes, 24.6 seconds.

Soph. Day Hops Retain P.K.P. Lead

The Sophomore Day Hops continued along their winning way last Saturday as they defeated a game but weaker Junior M.E. "B" team. The Sophs showed their power in the first two games as they won by a safe margin both times. In the third stanza they let up a bit and the Juniors poured it on. At the final count, the Sophs captured their third game of the season by the narrow margin of two pins. The second year men were paced by Joe Belletti, who posted a 489 three game total. The Juniors' best was rolled by Jim Correale with 432 total pins. By taking four the Sophs remained in undisputed possession of first place, with a record of seventeen wins against three losses.

Cahill Has 520 Total

The Senior M.E. Residents came back after the downfall last week to take four from the Junior Civils. Before the match the two teams were in a tie for third place. Paced by Jim Cahill who rolled 165-154—201 for a 520 total, they took the first game by twenty-five maples, the second by forty-seven and the third by twenty-six. Lacking the services of their star and league leader Tom Dolan, they nevertheless made a good showing. The team averages were so close that there was no handicap given in either the first or the third game.

Intramural Boxing Title Retained By Alumni Hall

Green Wave Wins 10th Annual Tourney By Slim Margin; Mendel Day Hops Take Second; Fedigan Third

Continuing its domination of the Intramural Sports program, Alumni Hall retained its Boxing diadem last night by the slim margin of one point. The frosh, victors in three bouts, while losing two, compiled eight points, just nosing out the Mendel Day Hop, Fedigan and Austin leather slingers, who had seven, six and five points in that order.

Something new was introduced to the regular program this year, as music by the Villanovans provided enjoyment for all the spectators between each bout. Another musical feature of the show was an accordian solo by Jackie Byrnes.

Basketball coach Al Severance was the third man in the ring in last evening's battles and was also the judge in each boxing bout. Ben Danik, varsity football player, handled the same job in the two wrestling matches which were also part of the very extensive program.

Paradee, Lattanza Register T.K.O.'s

Opening the evening's festivities was the battle between Herb Lamb and Frank Nardi, two 135 pounders, both representing the Mendel Day Students. In a fast and furious tussle, Lamb was awarded a close decision.

A technical K.O. was registered by Rog Lattanza of Alumni, in the second bout of the evening over Sam Ciriaco of Fedigan. The same kind of a win was registered by Ben Paradee, of Austin, defending 165 champ, over Scotty Boyle, of the Mendel Day Hops, when Boyle injured his shoulder midway through the second round.

Breen, Cahill Win

Fedigan registered four of its six points in the bouts between Dick Breen and Frank Solis of the Mendel Commuters, and Jim Cahill and Wally Breen, Dick's brother, of Alumni. Cahill, trailing on points at the termination of the first round, really opened up in the two subsequent stanzas, and gained an undisputed victory. Breen, probably the best boxer seen on the local card, handed a sound drubbing to Solis, winning each round by a wide margin.

135 Pound Slugfest

A multitude of punches were thrown in the contest between defending 135 pound champ, Bill Barrett, and Jim Lamb, both representing Austin Hall. After about thirty seconds had elapsed in the opening canto, a slugfest ensued, and continued throughout the next two rounds, with Barrett finally being awarded a close decision over his plucky adversary.

Alumni carried off the honors in the two heavyweight battles, when George Vehling gained a close vote over Hank Weldon, a hallmate, and Eddie Mason was pronounced the winner over George Smith, of Fedigan. The bout between Mason and Smith, which was the final tussle of the evening provoked a boisterous clamor amid the five hundred spectators.

In the two wrestling matches which were held after the fourth and the fifth boxing bouts, Jim Hill, of the Mendel Day Hops, was pronounced the winner over Bill Koness of Alumni, and in a comic exhibition, Gene Konopka was awarded a hollow decision over Giant Bill Lilienthal. Both of these showmen came from Austin Hall.

Alumni Tankmen Dethrone Austin For Swim Crown

Alumni Hall's freshmen natators splashed their way to the Intramural Swimming Championships last Thursday night in the college tank to win their second title of the season and gain a substantial lead for the coveted Intramural trophy.

The Greenies, who finished in the cellar in last year's tank championships with one point, showed a complete reversal of form last week as they piled up 49½ markers, winning four of the seven events. Fedigan Hall was second with 41½ points, the defending champs, Austine Hall, finished third with 18, and Mendel Residents, Mendel Day Hops and C. & F. trailed in that order with 13, 4, and 2 points respectively.

Frosh Duo Standout

It was the fine work of two very versatile gentlemen from Alumni, Gene MacFarland and George Vehling, that was the big factor in the Greenies' victory. Between them they totalled two-thirds of the winners' points. MacFarland won the 50 yard backstroke and the diving.

Vehling failed to gain a first place, but the rugged frosh grabbed off seconds in the 50 yard breaststroke and the 50 yard freestyle and took a third in the diving. He and MacFarland topped off their performances by swimming on both the medley and freestyle relays which Alumni won. The Frosh

Upstaters Smothered In Second Half Drive; All Stars Bow In Prelim 36-32

After a week's layoff in their schedule, the Villanova Wildcats resumed relations last Thursday night in a return game with Scranton University. Trouncing the Tomcats 50-43 just ten days before, the Main Liners made it two in a row over their upstate rivals, this time by a more decisive margin, 61-40.

Major McDonnell, Joe Lord and Billy Wood took the floor for their last home game before entering the Army. Along with Bob Kelty and Chuck Drizen, they played the entire first half.

Scranton Has Early Lead

With but ten seconds lapse in time after the opening whistle, Chuck Drizen broke loose for a two-pointer and the first score of the game. Joe Lord added another and the Blue and White team had a total of five points befort its opponents could score. Slowly rebounding from their five point disadvantage the men in Purple came back to take an 8-7 lead. This preceded three successive goals for the Severencemen, two of which were credited to Lord. Cas Ostrowski, Scranton forward, sank another field goal followed by Lord's third double-decker in as many minutes as the score read Villanova 15, Scranton 9 at the end of the first quarter.

32-17 at Half

Billy Wood opened the second period on a free throw and along with Drizen started a rally that lasted for the next thirty minutes. Repeated scoring by Wood and Lord rarely interrupted by a Scranton score gave the 'Cats a bigger margin and they took the halftime lead 32-17.

In the second half the tempo seemed to increase. Leading 38-22 midway in that period, the local lads garnered ten consecutive

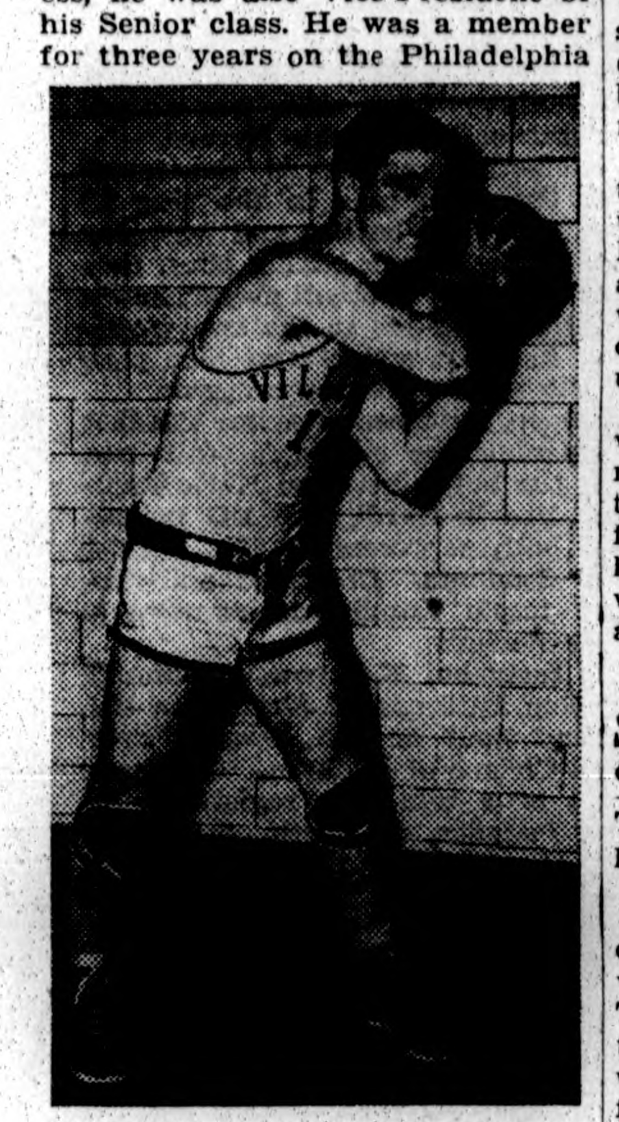
By BOB BOLGER

Villanova lost one of its greatest athletes to the Army yesterday. He was Billy "Woo" Wood. In the four years Bill played basketball and baseball for his Alma Mater, he was always an outstanding performer, and rose to great heights on both the court and the diamond. Billy, however, was also a star in his pre-collegiate days.

He attended Southeast Catholic High School, in Philadelphia, where he played football, basketball, and baseball. Besides his athletic prowess, he was also Vice-President of his Senior class. He was a member for three years on the Philadelphia All-Catholic league team. Besides this achievement, he led the scoring in that league for two years.



Led Freshmen Scorers

After his graduation, he matriculated at Villanova where he devoted his time to basketball and baseball. He became a member of another one of Al Severance's great freshman teams which he led to an undefeated season and was high scorer with over two hundred points.

In his second year, Billy became a member of the varsity, seeing a great deal of action on the gym hardwood that season.

His third year found Billy as one of the most versatile players in this section of the country. He was chosen a member of the All-Philadelphia and All-State fives. His greatest thrill in basketball was in the Villanova-Duquesne game, in which he led the Wildcats to victory in a bitterly waged contest by scoring eighteen points.

During the now almost completed basketball season, he was again the biggest factor in enabling Villanova to compile its enviable record of sixteen wins in seventeen games.

Baseball Favorite Sport

Baseball, however, is the sport he likes best. He was one of "Doc" Jacobs' exceptional moundsmen during the past two baseball seasons. In his second year, he received his greatest thrill in baseball, when he pitched and won the annual game with Penn. He went on to hurl against Duke, Lehigh, Boston College, Temple, Ursinus, Williams, and St. John's. In the last mentioned, he pitched the Wildcats to a 9-1 victory, allowing only one hit.

In his junior year, he pitched the Wildcat nine to a 9-3 victory over Fordham, who, preveious to that time, was riding on the crest of an eleven game winning streak.

Big League Tryout

To top off his achievements, he worked out with the New York Yankees for two weeks in his sophomore year. They were desirous of signing him to a contract but Billy decided against this and returned to Villanova.

Billy was a marketing major in the School of Commerce where he would have graduated from this May. Before leaving he said, "My association with Villanova has always been very pleasant and I will certainly miss the fellows and faculty members here very much."

It is with deep regret, then that we bid farewell to one of Villanova's most famous athletes, with the hope that he will be as successful in his new field of endeavor as he was on the diamond and hardwood under the colors of the Blue and White. Good luck, Bill.

Senior Day Hops Split

One game behind the Senior Residents sit the Senior M.E. Day Hops with a record fourteen and six. They took two and dropped two to the Junior M.E. "A" club. They won the first two games by forty-four and six pins, respectively, and then lost the third by seventy-eight maples to lose total pins. They were paced by Don Cryor with 479 and Bob Simpson with 464. The Juniors were led by Fred Davi with 442.

Splitting, to take eighth and ninth places in the standings, respectively, were the Junior Chems and Soph Residents. The Senior Chemicals took four from the Faculty to stay in sixth place. They were paced by Ray Amicone with 497.

sewed up the meet with their victories in these latter events.

Naylor Retains Crowns

Fedigan's Bill Naylor was the only repeater among the individual champions. Naylor thrashed home first in the 50 and 100 yard freestyles to retain his crowns in these events. In his heat of the 50 he triumphed in the exceptionally fast time of 26.4 seconds and then nosed out Alumi's Vehling in a thrilling finish in the finals.

The Fedigan speedster turned in the best clocking in the hundred when he romped home in 1 minute, 1.1 seconds. Frank Desmond of Austin finished second and a Fediganite, Ed Riley, took third. These three completely outclassed the rest of the field.

Desmond Leads Austin

Desmond also won his specialty, the 50 yard breastroke, in 31.1 seconds, a full seven seconds better than his nearest rival, and finished fifth in the finals of the 50 yard freestyle. Riley grabbed another third in the breaststroke and took second in the 50 yard backstroke to win scoring honors for his team. Both he and Desmond swam on their respective relay teams.

next Saturday night. Having beaten the Breamites once before this season, the revamped Wildcat five should have little trouble with the Bullet quintet, as it has been hit much more heavily by the recent Reserve calls than has the Villanova court team.

For the 'Cats the starting lineup in this encounter will undoubtedly be Drizen and Lou Reynolds at forwards, Kelty at center, and Frank Frascella and Ray Kodish, two freshmen, at guards.

points before the high publicized Ostrowski could find the rims. Two more by Reynolds and a third by George Burns lengthened the lead to 51-24 before the Purple defense wandered in.

Ostrowski Stars for Losers

The Tommies attempted to close the gap and partly succeeded in so doing with a twelve point rally and gave the game a greater degree of interest. Out in front 55-32 the the heretofore blanked, popular, soon-to-leave "Major" McDonnell scored his first basket to the delight of his appreciative fans. Two seconds later he added another, and then Wood's late field goal drew the curtain on the game which ended 61-40.

Cas Ostrowski seemed to have monopolized what little scoring his team accomplished. He held the offensive spotlight with his twenty points.

All Stars Vanquished

In one of the best games to date, the Intramural All Stars had their three game winning streak broken by the Army Air Force team from Wayne by a score of 36-32 last Thursday.

Led by Dick Paffrath, a former Pitt player, and its 6' 6" center, Bill Wright, the Army team piled up a 6-0 lead in the first few minutes. On field goals by Jack Callahan and Jack Koval however, and two fouls by Mike Cheppa, Villanova tied the score. Then Cheppa made a field goal on which he was fouled, and making good on the free throw, he gave the All Stars a 9-6 lead at quarter.

In the second stanza the All Stars increased their lead mostly because they controlled the backboards in this session and a set shot by Callahan, as well as a follow-up by Labelle, offset the brilliance of Paffrath, who scored eight of his team's fourteen points, so that at the whistle, the Blue and White led 18-12.

The third canto saw plenty of action as the Army team, led by Wright's two field goals and Paffrath's two double-deckers and two fouls, went ahead 27-24. After this the All Stars could not break the lead or even tie the score.

Future Engineers To Be Deferred By W. M. C. Order

Students In Good Standing Graduating By July, 1945 Will Complete College Training

Engineering students in good standing who will graduate on or before July 1, 1945, will be granted deferments to allow them to complete their college training according to a recent order issued on March 1 to local draft boards by the National Headquarters of the Selective Service System.

This action was taken by the War Manpower Commission on the basis of their analysis of the country's manpower needs. The commission found that there is a great need for men in scientific and specialized fields "to perform vital services in activities essential to war production, the support of the war effort, and in activities, the maintenance of which is necessary to the health, safety, and welfare of the Nation."

Student Must Be Competent

A student will be considered for occupational deferment by his draft board on certification by his college authorities that he is competent and shows promise that he will complete his course of study. In all cases, a student must be able to show that if he continues his progress he will graduate by July 1, 1945. A period of sixty days after graduation will be allowed him to seek a job.

Graduate students in vital technical courses may also be deferred if they are engaged as part-time assistants, laboratory workers, or teachers.

Villanova students majoring in any one of the following fields are eligible for deferments: chemistry, heating, ventilating, mathematics, physics, and chemical, civil, electrical, or mechanical engineering.

Fr. Coffey Plans Guild Card Party

At a meeting of the Augustinian Fathers of Villanova, held to discuss plans for the annual Card Party and Dance, May 4 was chosen as the date for the event.

The affair, which has always highlighted the social season at Villanova, is under the direction of Rev. John J. Coffey, O. S. A. The goal of Fr. Coffey and his associates is to outdo the occasion's success in former years. Dancing will follow the card playing, featuring music by the "Villanovans."

Committees Named

The card party and dance is sponsored for the benefit of the Augustinian Seminary Guild. The primary purpose of the Guild is to support the Augustinian Seminarians in this country.

The committees in charge consist of: Tickets: Rev. John J. Coffey, O. S. A.; Chance Books: Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., and Rev. Robert E. McGrath, O. S. A.; Patrons: Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A., and Rev. Thomas A. Burke, O. S. A.; Patrons: Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A., and Rev. Thomas A. Burke, O. S. A.; Programs: Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., Rev. Vincent J. Meaney, O. S. A., and Rev. John A. Kiekotka, O. S. A.; Publicity: Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, O. S. A., and Rev. Charles F. Kroop, O. S. A.; Refreshments: Rev. John J. McMenamin, O. S. A., Rev. Robert P. Russell, O. S. A., and Rev. Joseph W. Kemme, O. S. A.; Ushers: Rev. Robert P. Russell, O. S. A.; Music: Rev. John J. McShea, O. S. A.; Prizes: Rev. Joseph J. Gildea, O. S. A., and Rev. Charles J. McFadden, O. S. A.; and Special Features: Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A.

Tickets for the affair will be placed on sale in a short time.

Have You Taken A Chance On Victory?

Pictured above is a group of students and a member of the office force buying savings stamps from members of the Student Council and at the same time receiving chances on the $25 War Bond to be raffled in the near future. Chances on the bond may be obtained with the purchase of a twenty-five cent stamp and the council is donating the war bond from their own treasury funds. Since the inauguration of the drive last Tuesday, sales have been reported to be satisfactory, but it is hoped by the organization that even greater interest will be shown by the students now that they have become familiar with the raffle. Stamps may be purchased from any Student Council member or from the stand set up in the main corridor of Mendel Hall every day from 1:00 to 1:30 P.M.

Debaters Engage New York Teams

Beta Gamma, college debating society, will engage in four major debates next week-end. These debates are all included in a tour of New York State from Thursday to Sunday. The schedule is as follows: Thursday, Princeton University; Friday, Fordham College; Saturday, New Rochelle College of Women; and Sunday, Marymount College of Women.

The national question of world union will be debated throughout. Alternate sides will be taken by the Villanova group at the various schools. Members of Beta Gamma who will make the trip are: Wilfrid Gagen, junior C. & F.; Thomas Sullivan, freshman C. & F.; Frank Cahill, senior C. & F.; and Louis DeSimone, senior arts.

Last Sunday the society engaged Ursinus College in a decision debate in Simpson Hall. Salvador Carfagno, junior science; John McCabe, freshman arts; and Thomas Sullivan, freshman C. & F. represented Beta Gamma. Daniel Dougherty, prominent Philadelphia lawyer and member of the faculty at St. Josephs' College, rendered the decision.

College Groups Hear Lectures By Dr. Haenisch

Last Wednesday, Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, associate professor of chemistry and chemical engineering at Villanova, traveled to Washington, D. C. for the fourth consecutive year to lecture at Trinity College for Women.

At five o'clock that afternoon, Dr. Haenisch lectured to the entire student body on the topic, "Strategic Metals," discussing the metal resources of the United States and the way that they are being used to further the war effort. He also explained the readjustments that will have to be made after the war in order to make our metal supply meet peacetime demands. In the evening he held a closed seminar for the students of the college who are majoring in chemistry. The subject under discussion was the various methods of determining atomic weights.

Dr. Haenisch also recently addressed the science club of Chestnut Hill College on the identification and detection of war gases.

Lost Pilot Returns From France; Letter Hints Underground Travel

In a laconic, cryptic message, Lt. John R. McKee, former Villanova student, informed his parents that he was safe and "in good health" after being forced to parachute from his bomber in enemy-occupied France. He had "bailed out" somewhere near Romilly, France, being officially reported as missing on December 29. McKee had made many flights over enemy territory, discharging his destructive cargo on vital objectives and from one such trip, he failed to return.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McKee of Philadelphia, received word in a cablegram that he was alive, but they did not know where he was or whether he was wounded. A letter, however, dated January 31, said:

Parents Suspect French Aid

"I am back where I started, in England. I am safe and in good health, but I can't tell you where I am located. I still have a pair of shoes that are badly worn out."

The McKees think the last sentence might be read as a clue to some of the experiences he must have had. They suspect that he was not taken prisoner, but rather that he was found by French patriots who hid him from Nazi eyes. Their son's badly worn shoes, they think, were caused by a great deal of walking from village to village by way of the French "underground," until he reached the coast and was smuggled out of the hostile country.

Played Varsity Football

"Singing" Johnny, as McKee was called during his college days, was a center on the varsity football squad at Villanova for two years, and his popularity on the campus was unequalled. His personality did not desert him when he went to England, and it wasn't long before his fellow-pilots had named him "the Singing Irishman."

Before coming to Villanova, McKee had gone to Audubon High, in his native state of New Jersey, where he played football, basketball and baseball. He transferred from Villanova to the University of California, and after graduating, enlisted in the Army Air Corps. Stationed on the West Coast, McKee had no actual combat experience until he was sent to the British Isles last October.

Naval College Training Program, V-12, To Begin In July; Villanova Considered For Possible Contract

Villanova has been selected for "inspection and possible contract" under the new Navy College Training Program, V-12, along with 113 other colleges throughout the nation, it was revealed in Washington last week. This program, designed to produce officers for the Navy and its branches, will be inaugurated about July 1 with the enrollment of students chosen after taking a qualifying test to be given on April 2.

All men accepted under this plan will study at colleges and universities with Navy contracts under military discipline, in uniform and with ratings equivalent to apprentive seamen, U. S. Naval Reserve. The students will be selected from presently enlisted men in the Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard as well as from students and graduates of high schools between the ages of seventeen and twenty, including those now in college. In addition, the program will absorb most of the college students enlisted in the Navy and Marine Corps Reserve and those who hold student probationary commissions in the Naval Reserve.

Civilian candidates for V-12 must be citizens of the United States, must have a minimum eyesight rating of 18/20, be single, agree not to marry till commissioned, and possess officer-like qualifications. Men who meet these requisites must successfully take the qualifying tests on April 2, which will be given on a nation-wide basis, and pass the Navy physical. Applicants will then be ordered to report at their own expense to a so-called selection committee consisting of an educator, a representative civilian, and a Naval officer.

Men selected by these committees will be sworn in, enlisted in V-12, and placed on inactive duty until assigned to a college. They will be allowed to state a preference for a branch of service, course of study, and the college at which they would like their training, providing that institution has a Navy contract.

The courses will range in length from periods of 32 to 192 weeks, varying with the type of subject studied. Students to be trained under V-12 for general duties will receive one and one-third years of study. All students, except premedical and pre-dental, will take prescribed courses in mathematics, English, history, science, engineering drawing, and physical training for the first two sixteen week terms. If a student has any time left, he may take elective subjects and participate in extra-curricular activities.

Men will be assigned to colleges in two groups. The first group will report to colleges and universities now being selected by the Navy on or about July 1, 1943, and the second group on or about November 1. A third group which will be selected late in 1943 will report about March 1, 1944.

The following civilians will be eligible to take the April tests: 1) high school or preparatory school graduates who will have attained their seventeenth and not their twentieth birthday by July 1, 1943, regardless of whether they are presently attending college; or 2) high school or preparatory school seniors who will be graduated by July 1, 1943, provided they will have attained their seventeenth and not their twentieth birthday by that date; or 3) students who do not hold certificates of graduation from a secondary school but who are continuing their education at an accredited college or university provided they will have attained their seventeenth and not their twentieth birthday by July 1, 1943.

"Engineer" To Use New Cover Design

Baird And Ticucchi Discuss Two Phases Of Radio In March Issue

The familiar surveying scene which has appeared on the cover of the Villanova "Engineer" for the past few years has been replaced by a new design, Robert Koob, senior B. S. in Chemistry and editor of the publication disclosed today. The new cover, consisting of a large letter "V" superimposed on a photograph depicting engineers at work on practical problems on the campus, will be printed in the school colors, blue and white.

Millet Succeeds Temple

The March issue of the "Engineer" is now at press and will appear within a week. Featured articles include "Radio Communication," by George Baird, senior electrical engineer, and "The Microphone," by Hitio Ticucchi, a sophomore from the same school. Releases by the U. S. Government describing its need for engineering specialists will appear in the current issue.

Koob also announced the appointment of George Temple, senior B. S. in Chemistry, to the position of business manager. Temple formerly was photography editor, in which post he was succeeded by John M. Millet, freshman engineer, who, said Koob, was selected because of his exceptional work on the cover design.

Celluci Describes New Alcan Highway To Civil Engineers

The Villanova chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers met last Friday afternoon to hear Philip Cellucci, junior engineering student, speak on the "Alcan Highway."

Cellucci stressed the point that this highway construction took place between June and November of 1942, and, although it was completed in only six months, still it is the largest construction program sponsored by the Federal government since the building of the Panama Canal. After a brief discussion of the topic of the day, the group proceeded to make plans for a trip to a paper mill in Lansdowne tomorrow, where they shall make a complete study of the various stages in the process of paper manufacturing.

The next meeting of the society will be held on March 19, when Robert Hannon will be the afternoon speaker. Hannon has chosen as his topic, "The Princess Ann Tugboat," and will furnish the members with information concerning this new streamlined tug which operates between Norfolk, Virginia, and Charles Bay, Maryland.

Gallagher To Speak

A. J. Gallagher, representative of the Philadelphia Electric Company, will be the guest speaker at the meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers to be held on the evening of March 29.

Gallaghers' topic will be "Generation of Steam Power." In conjunction with the lecture, motion pictures dealing with the subject will be shown.

Music Seminar

The meeting of the music seminar scheduled for last week was cancelled as Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, moderator, was unable to attend. A meeting will be held on Wednesday of this week, however, and will feature Tschaikowsky's Sixth Symphony, "The Pathetique." Dr. Haenisch will also attempt to play records requested by the students.

This Is Your War

AT the present time an intense campaign for the sale of war bonds and stamps is taking place on our campus in the form of the raffling of a twenty-five dollar war bond. The raffling of the bond is in itself a profitable move to aid Uncle Sam's paying for the war, but there is an underlying motive in this drive, namely, to give impetus to the general buying of bonds and stamps upon the campus.

Since each chance holder must purchase a twenty-five cent stamp, it should prove an enticement for the student to start filling in a book for stamps of this denomination. To buy a quarter's worth of freedom now and then would not affect the finances of any Villanova man greatly, and it would take but a short time to collect seventy-five stamps, the number required to fill the book to turn it in for a full war bond.

How often is a quarter needlessly spent in the Pie Shop, on a pin-ball machine, or in other unnecessary ways—a quarter that could mean a few more bullets for the guns of our classmates called to active duty—a quarter that added to millions of others give our country the financial aid it needs so badly now. The usual excuses offered by the "arm-chair" generals against the purchasing of these securities are "I've already got a bond," "The country is getting enough out of me in taxes," "Let somebody else worry about it—I've got better places to spend my money."

In reprisal for these unpatriotic and unreasonable complaints, why not remember that this is YOUR country, this is YOUR war, and it will take a lot more of YOUR money to finance YOUR victory. Yes, you may even be in actual combat soon, but that does not mean that Uncle Sam does not still need your help in every way possible.

Accept No Substitute

WITH the people of the nation bowed under the heaviest tax-load in this country's history, a clear-thinking New York business man named Beardsley Ruml has come forward with a plan for facilitating payment.

His plan is disarmingly simple: Turn the tax-clock one year ahead. Collect this year's taxes out of this year's income. The treasury's revenue will not suffer; the people will be up-to-date in their taxes.

Politicians hostile to the plan have twisted the sound logic of pay-as-you-go taxes to make skipping 1942 taxes read like a loss to the national income. Members of the House Ways and Means Committee have introduced plans which range from collecting one and a half to two years' taxes in one year—this, mind you, to ease the tax-load.

In a capital city abounding in complicated laws, bureaus, and administrative forms, Ruml's ideas have found little kindred reception. Legislators long accustomed to obscurity and confusion in law-enforcement have refused to accept his easy and practicable method of transition to pay-as-you-go.

While congressmen debate whether the taxes that flow into the treasury this year should be based on 1942 or 1943 incomes, and while the Treasury suggests that they be based on both——just to make it easier for the people—another clouded issue confuses the minds of the citizens of this war-disrupted nation.

It is high time that congress ceased tinkering with inferior substitutes and enacted the Ruml plan into law.

Meet The Boys:

Tom And Austin Are Both Pre-Med; Busy College Lives They Have Led

By ED. GROSTAS

WANDERING through Fedigan Hall last week, we were subjected to an earful of trombone music, slapping of cards, and jovial laughter. Of course these are no comomn sounds in that sacred hall for upperclassmen; hence, we investigated. Pounding feverishly upon the door of 126 until the din of our hammerings overwhelmed the noise within, we were admitted by a smiling lad holding a trombone and textbook. This we discovered to be Thomas Delahanty, the first of the accelerated seniors we decided to interview.

Tom's first attempt at music was a shrill note issued from his vocal chords more than 20 years ago. On that cold, first day of December there was an addition to the clan of Delahanty in the thriving town of Girardville, Pa. The family moved to Shamokin and there, in the heart of the coal-mining district, Tom whittled away his earliest years.

Joins Accelerated Program

his class, Tom's next decision was to follow the trails laid by his older brothers. These led to Villanova College. Hence, in the fall of 1940 a bright-eyed youth was discovered matriculating as a pre-med student in the School of Science. The "regs" he wore under the paternal orientation of the upperclassmen are memories long to be remembered by him. During the course of his first two years here Tom decided to devote most of his time to his studies rather than participate in extra-curricular activities and as a result succeeded in obtaining consistently high ratings on the honor roll.

As the war clouds began to gather over this great nation, Tom realized his duty to his country and accelerated his course. As a result, he is a member of the first class in the history of the school that will graduate in three years.

Heads Science Frat

In his junior year, T. D., as his friends call him, decided to continue a habit he learned during high school days. He not only obtained the vice-presidency of his class, but also acquired a similar office in the science fraternity, Lambda Kappa Delta. As a senior he was elected president of the same fraternity. He strives to do his share in this organization; as he terms it, "I hope to succeed in placing it on a still higher standing."

Tom aided in promoting the success of the Centennial Ball. Besides serving on the committee, he volunteered his services in the check room, where he labored arduously. (But we hear he was well rewarded.)

He is also co-chairman of the "126 Club," a social organization for lonesome Fediganites. Its members excel in bridge playing. As one member tersely stated, "The best card sharks of all come from Fedigan Hall." Since Tom is an anti-bridge advocate, he attempts to soothe the members with his irritating trombone.

When Tom claimed that his spare time was occupied in reading and music, his hallmates mentioned Eleanor from Penn State, Peggy from Abington, and Marion, the trombonist in Gray Gordon's orchestra. The technique of "wolfing" has gained him the nickname "Casual."

Since he now is a senior pre-med, Tom's ambition is to continue his studies at the Jefferson Medical School in Philadelphia. He is also a member of the Naval Reserve and sees possibilities of a career on the high seas after completing the required courses in medical school.

FROM west of the Rocky Mountains and north of glamorous Hollywood, yes, from the very heart of sunny California we present Austin "Jeep" Gavin. It was not by chance that we met him, for we found him to be the roommate and campus companion of the already introduced Tom Delahanty.

Austin became acquainted with that advertised atmosphere as long ago as September 30, 1923, when his bouncing, baby body caught its first ray of light. Similar to his companion, he did not remain in his birthplace, Cobina, but sniffed his early breezes in the town of Ojai, which is seventy-five miles north of the "celluloid colony." He completed his high school education at Villanova Prep, located on the outskirts of that California town. While attending this school, he was active in all sports, graduated with highest honors, and was valedictorian of his class.

Directs Soph Cotillion

Having a taste of Augustinian teaching, Austin journeyed eastward to Villanova to continue his studies. Hence, in the fall of 1940 he enrolled as a pre-med student, having decided upon his career while convalescing from an automobile accident at the age of twelve.

In his freshman year he participated in the intra-mural sports of bowling and tennis. His sophomore year found him manager of the Varsity tennis team. That same year he was elected chairman of the Sophomore Cotil-lion, and was largely responsible for the success of the affair. Continuing in his many extra-curricular activities during his junior terms, he played softball and was active in the band, Sanctuary Society, and choral group. That same year he made the semi-finals in the intra-mural tennis tournaments. At present he is a member of the Student Council, having also served on the Centennial Ball Committee. Austin has been a member of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity since his freshman year. He further aids his roommate as the other co-chairman of the "126 Club" but he professes an extensive knowledge of the art of bridge playing and practices his skill in that game at every available opportunity. But don't get the wrong idea, dear reader, Austin has still been able to keep a good record in his scholastic achievements for the past three years, and that's no cinch in the science school.

Prefers California Climate

Austin claims his hobby is travelling. In the summer of 1940 he made quite an extensive tour of the entire country. He found New York City and his home town to be the most suitable locales. "California climate is the best, regardless of Bob Hope's jokes regarding it," he smilingly admitted. One can understand Austin's attitude more completely if the crates of oranges sent from home were subject to display.

When a question was asked regarding "femmes," he declined to answer. It sufficed for Tom to explain that the phone booth will have to be moved outside the door because of shoe rationing. Austin claimed to be "wrapped up" in his dancing when a hallmate ironically remarked that it would be best to unwrap before some poor girl suffocates.

Austin, like Tom, is completing an accelerated course and will graduate in September. He will then proceed to an undecided medical school for further education. Since he too is a Naval Reservist, he may be more active in his hobby in the near future than he suspects.

A SURE sign that spring cannot be too far away is the beginning of social doings on the part of the various neighboring colleges and the budding forth of some of our own social flowers.

Down in Washington the gals of Trinity College burst out with a smart Junior Prom. Chuck Fessler and Jim Bonner made the trip to cash in on the good time and uphold Villanova's reputation.

Closer to home Chestnut Hill and Rosemont sponsored tea dances on Sunday afternoon for the boys to keep up morale on the home front.

Over on the Hill many of the local lads with "savior-faire" galore did very well. Joe McCarthy led the way; Je Pezelski was running loose scoring points (or trying to); and Hugh Burns, Bill Devine, and Jim Daly formed the rest of the team. Closer to home the boys found a lot doing at Rosemont. Bill Boyle was present looking over the field; Joe Daly was as usual giving everyone a break.

This seems rather apropos. Now that the semester is finished, a 4-F man could be a physically unfit person or just one who didn't do so well in his examinations.

It happens every time. When spring rolls around, some of the fellows who are confirmed women haters and stoutly defend their position fall by the wayside. Perhaps the most resounding crash was heard when George Giacchino dated the same girl for four times in succession. Bashful Alex Infanzon, another lone wolf, broke down and succumbed to the charms of a co-ed from Chestnut Hill. The results of the date are as yet unknown. Others are not so fortunate. Numbered among this group is Bob "Ogie" Gretz. He is "ogling" everywhere and anywhere for something interesting.

The rest of the campus is seething with big doings. . . Bob O'Connor and Stella have reached the hand holding stage after lo these many years. Frank (Mr. Five by Five) Flaggela is stirring up a lot of mystery and providing talk for bull sessions about a certain girl named Cherry who hails from Brooklyn. . . John Surmont shudders whenever someone sings "Mary." He contends that there is no such a thing as safety in numbers. . .

In a little farewell party for Ed Grote (at which he didn't even arrive), Bill Fallon, John "Moose" Murray and Red Gager took control and handled the affair with ease and skill. The co-eds from Penn were a little bit harder to handle, but success was finally theirs. . . Speaking of parties—did you know that Tom Gildea had to refuse an invitation to a local good time because he wanted to go home for the week-end? Bill Marchese was the king of the boys at another "soiree" with a beautiful girl from Immaculata named Peggy. . .

Severancemen Face Muhlenberg In Court Finale

Curtain To Be Brought Down On Highly Successful Season In Thursday's Encounter With Mules

By JIM CARBINE

Thursday night will mark the close of the one-hundredth anniversary basketball season when the Wildcats meet Muhlenberg College from Allentown, Pa. Muhlenberg brings with it a very impressive record, at present holding down second place in the Eastern Pennsylvania Basketball League. The circuit boasts of some of the East's strongest teams, such as Albright, Gettysburg, Lebanon Valley, Bucknell, and Franklin and Marshall. Last week in a league encounter, the Mules swamped F. and M. 80 to 44, and ten days ago they beat Lafayette 69 to 56 in an outside game.

The team has a number of high scorers and each man plays just as good a game at his defensive post. The first five consists of Joe Bibighaus and Dick Clein at forwards, Jack Crampsey and Bill Meyerdierki at guards, and Jim Stone at center. So far they have not had to worry about the draft or the E.R.C. and have been able to remain together as the starting quintet.

Wildcats Upset in '42

Just about this time last year the Wildcats journeyed to Allentown expecting to come out the victors in an easy contest, but the Mules proved a little too stubborn for the Villanovans and beat them in a nip and tuck battle by three points. This March the Mules, with a better team than that of last season, hope to add one more game to Villanova's loss column, while the Wildcats intend to include Muhlenberg in their long list of hapiess victims.

Coach Severance will more than likely use Frank Frascella, Ray Kodish, and Lou Reynolds in the starting lineup, along with Co-captain Bob Kelty and Chuck Drizen. Other capable replacements who are certain to see much action are Don Osterman and George Burns.

A pleasant surprise to every loyal Villanova court follower was the offensive strength exhibited by the revamped Wildcat five which soundly trounced the Gettysburg Bullets last Saturday evening, 71-51. Although it was generally agreed that the Main Liners, despite the loss of three first stringers last week, would defeat the Breamites, that the team which included three newcomers would rack up seventy-one points was unheard of.

In no other contest this season have the Main Liners made good on so great a percentage of their shots, and it is the first time during the present campaign that five men have tallied in double figures.

Chuck Drizen and Bob Kelty, the two holdovers from the original first five, tallied eighteen and eleven markers, respectively. Drizen had one of his "hottest" nights, scoring five field goals on five tries during the third period. The newcomers, Lou Reynolds, Frank Frascella, and Ray Kodish probably deserve the most credit, as they also split the cords for seventeen, eleven and twelve markers, in that order.

Yes, the offensive strength of this revamped Blue and White quint was indeed a sight to behold. Its defense, however, was quite another story, being very noticeably ragged in the first half. After what must have been an inspiring locker room talk, however, the Wildcat defensemen snapped out of their lethargy and pulled away from the plucky Breamites with comparative ease.

The success of the "made over" quintet has also set us wondering as to the possibility of a bid to either the N. C. A. A. or National Invitation Tournaments. It's true, of course, that Villanova's chances struck a very low ebb after the Seton Hall fiasco last week, but there is still a slight possibility of

N. Y. U. Is Victor In 3:24; Knights Of Columbus Games This Saturday

Favored to win the mile relay event of the I. C.-4A Track and Field Championships last Saturday evening in Madison Square Garden, Villanova, proved somewhat of a disappointment to the experts, as the best it could do was garner a third place.

New York University won the event for the first time this season, as it just nosed out Fordham and the Wildcats in 3.24. The Violets also set a record of forty-eight points in garnering the coveted I.C.-4A team trophy, its nearest competitor being Fordham, which compiled a total of only twenty and one-half markers for the evening. N. Y. U.'s walkaway was the first time in the history of the meet that a team has gone on such a scoring rampage. Tallying in eleven of the thirteen events, the Violets convinced most of the onlookers midway in the evening that they were a sure bet to dethrone Penn State, last year's team champion.

3:23.1 Season's Lowest

Villanova's quartet of George Guida, "Dutch" McCarthy, Harry Keefrider and Bob O'Sullivan finished in third position in its specialty for the second week in succession, the Blue and White foursome also having been nosed out by Seton Hall and Fordham in the National A.A.U. Mile Relay at the Garden just ten days ago.

The brilliant clocking turned in by the Wildcats in winning the New York A.C. games' event, however, still stands as the swiftest mile of the present indoor season. Seton Hall came the closest to shattering this mark in the A.A.U. competition, when it toured the distance 3:23.3.

Try For 3rd Victory

With a record of two wins and two third places in their specialty, the Wildcats will try for another first place in the Knights of Columbus games this coming Saturday. These contests will also be staged in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Practically the same field which has provided the competition in meets to date will run in the K. of C. games. Seton Hall, which beat the Wildcats a week ago last Saturday, but did not appear on the I.C.-4A card, will also be on hand this weekend for another crack at the Main Liners' mark of 3:23.1.

Villanova's quartet, greatly weakened by the loss of Johnny DiCarlo two weeks ago, will be after its first victory since his departure.

Sophomores Retain Lead In P K P Loop

Saturday saw the Phi Kappa Pi bowling race thrown into a mad scramble again as the Senior M. E. Day Hops came through to grab four much-needed points from the Senior M. E. Residents, while the Sophomore Day Hops were splitting with the surprisingly strong Junior M. E. "A" quintet.

The Senior M. E. Day Hops, led by Don Cryor, picked off a total of 2137 pins to top the Senior Residents by 134 maples and sweep the day, 4-0. Tom Dolan, after a layoff of a week, was unable to approach his heretofore top average of 163. This coupled with the absence of Red Cahill, who rolled 205 last week, contributed strongly to their fall.

Breen Faces Juniors

The Sophomore Day Hops took their first two games in stride, but in the third and final canto, the Junior M. E. "A" outfit exploded. At the final count they had licked the Sophs by better than 200 pins, set a new high handicap singles of 923 and a new high handicap three of 2350. The Juniors were paced by Jack Breen with a 489 total. In the final game four of them topped 160, with Breen and Doyle in the 190's.

Senior Chems Split

Deadlocked with the Junior M. E. "A" outfit are the Junior Civils. The Juniors took the first two games from the Senior Chems and then dropped the third by 98 maples to lose total pins. The Juniors were paced by Joe Barnes with a 452 three game total. The Senior Chems' best was posted by Joe Conway with 472.

The heretofore victory-starved Soph Residents came through to wallop the Faculty, 4-0. The Junior Chems took the measure of the Junior M. E. "B" squad, 3-1. The only 200 game rolled this week was by Ray Amicone, who posted a 212.

There will be a meeting of the entire Sports Staff in the VILLANOVAN office tomorrow at 1:00 P. M. All members are urgently requested to attend.

Offensive Onslaught In Second Half Enables Wildcats To Trounce Franklin And Marshall Airmen; All Stars Top Wayne Servicemen 21-11

A belated offensive drive in which Villanova's Wildcats ran roughshod over their opponents gave the Severancemen their eighteenth victory of the season last night over a very unimpressive Franklin and Marshall Naval Cadet aggregation. Leading at halftime by the surprisingly low count of 15-11, the Blue and White offensive guns went into action in the third and fourth cantos, leaving the hapless Cadets in the wake of their aggressive onslaught.

The game started very slowly, the first goal being scored after four and a half minutes of play, on a long set shot by freshman George Burns. Chuck Drizen added another two-pointer a moment later, only to have George Searles score a double-decker and a foul in short order to make the score read 4-3. Another point famine followed, and Bill Shutt, of the visitors managed to drop a field goal and foul just before the intermission, to bring the Cadets' total to 11.

Second Half a Runaway

Drizen was the first to find the range for the Blue and White passers after the intermission, with a tricky one-handed shot from the foul line. With Co-Captain Bob Kelty and Drizen featuring the attack from that point on, the Main Liners quickly pulled away from yellow-clad Cadets, outscoring the future pilots 31-11 in the second half. When Lou Reynolds tallied the final basket of the evening with ten seconds remaining, the scoreboardboard read Villanova 46, Franklin and Marshall 22.

Drizen Gets 19

For the second time in three days, Drizen led the Wildcat scorers, getting nine field goals and one foul for nineteen markers. Reynolds was next with nine tallies, followed by Kelty with eight.

In the preliminary encounter staged between Villanova's Intramural All Stars and the Army Air Corps quintet from Wayne, the Intramuralists were victorious, in a very low scoring game, 21-11.

Tom Burns was the leading scorer in the defensive battle with his total of five markers. Charley Labelle was next with four.

This victory was the All Stars' eighth of the current campaign. They have lost three games.

'Cats Vanquish Gettysburg 71-51

Villanova Passers Register 17th Victory; All Stars Down Nativity A.C. In Prelim 33-23

Villanova's Wildcats snapped back into winning form last Saturday evening, trouncing the Gettysburg Bullets, 71-51. This was the seventeenth victory of the current season for the Severancemen. They had beaten Gettysburg in a close encounter on the losers' court earlier in the campaign, 47-44.

Villanova drew first blood on a field goal by Co-Captain Bob Kelty, but this was quickly followed by a long set-shot from the hands of Dick Haas, towering Bullet pivotman. Lou Reynolds then dropped a one-hander from the corner, only to have Cy Davis sink two free throws to knot the count at 4-4.

The contest proceeded along these lines until just before the intermission, when the Wildcats went into the lead, 32-27.

Pulling away with surprising rapidity at the start of the third period, the Wildcats went on a scoring rampage which all but ran the Breamites into the ground. Practically everything the Main Liners threw up went in, much to the amazement of the Orangemen. At one point in the contest Chuck Drizen made eight consecutive points before a Breamite could break the ice with a goal for his outfit.

Pass "70" Mark

The fourth stanza followed very closely the pattern of the preceding canto, except that Gettysburg did manage to sink a few more points on its own hook, and prevented the game from being a complete runaway. With but a minute's playing time remaining, Bob Kelty broke loose for a beautiful backhanded lapup shot, to pass the big "70" mark for the Wildcats. A few seconds later, Chick Hart sunk o long set-shot for the men in Orange, and at the final whistle the scoreboard read Villanova 71, Gettysburg 51.

Drizen High

Chuck Drizen, although playing only eighteen minutes of the contest, was the high scorer of the evening, with a total of seven field goals, and four fouls for eighteen points. Lou Reynolds, a newcomer to the first five, made one more double-decker than his teammate, but garnered only one free throw, for his sum of seventeen.

For the losers, Cy Davis and Don Freedman were the big offensive guns. Davis, sinking the surprising total of eight foul shots, together with three field goals, was high for the visitors with fourteen. Freedman dropped in four shots from the floor and made good on two attempts from the free throw line to amass a total of ten markers.

All Stars' 7th Win

In the evening's preliminary game, the Intramural All Stars faced the Nativity Catholic Club of the Philadelphia Church League. This was the second meeting between the two clubs, the All Stars having been victorious in the previous encounter, 31-27.

Saturday's tussle was much like the earlier engagement between the rival clubs, being close up until the final minutes, only to have the Intramuralists pull away just before the ultimate whistle. Four field goals by the home team in the last four minutes gave it a ten point victory, 33-23.

This victory was the All Stars' seventh of the campaign. They have been defeated in three contests to date.

Having been very successful in their first campaign in this type of competition, the All Stars will bring their season to a close Thursday evening.

it being chosen for a berth in either of these post-season tourneys.

Had the Seton Hall encounter not been such a dismal failure on the part of the Villanovans, a bid would have been almost a certainty, but now, as we said before, the chances are quite slim. Nor are we alone in stating that Villanova still has a chance for post-season recognition. Various Philadelphia sportswriters still mention the Severancemen as a possible seseltion, the most recent being Herb Good of the Record in his column "Under the Hoop" last Sunday.

Regardless of whether a bid is in the offing, or not, however, Villanova has still gained the Philadelphia district honors in what was a highly successful season.

To Coach Severance, the three Army Reservists, and those still on the squad we give a well-deserved pat-on-the-back, feeling supremely confident that the Wildcats will take Muhlenberg into camp in the season's finale Thursday evening.

Student Status In Naval V-12 Made Clear

In response to the article that appeared in the last issue of the VILLANOVAN concerning the possibility of the college undertaking a contract for the V-12, Naval Training program, many students have asked the editors the possible effects of such a plan upon civilian students.

Making a summary of these questions, the VILLANOVAN has interviewed Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova, and has receiving the following replies as to the possible implication of a military program at the college:

Q. What would happen to civilian students in event of a military program at Villanova?

A. Nothing would happen to them. They would presumably continue with their ordinary courses insofar as Selective Service regulations would permit.

Q. Would military students be quartered with civilian students?

A. No. A division of dormitory facilities would be made similar to those of the summer term, when the sisters attended school at the same time as the regular students. A like arrangement would also be made in regard to the dining hall.

Q. Would civilian students have seperate classes?

A. Not necessarily. They would not, of course, be expected to take purely military courses.

Q. Would military students participate in extra-curricular activities such as the fraternities, Student Council, publications, etc.?

A. As far as the Navy is concerned there should be no reason against it insofar as their time would permit. They would be allowed to join any student activity.

Q. Do you anticipate that resident students would be required to live off the campus?

A. No. Unless the registration of civilian students should increase greatly beyond our expectation.

Q. Will there be any changes in civilian disciplinary regulations?

A. No, excepting insofar as the good example afforded by men under military discipline would inspire a more salutory regard for civilian regulations.

Q. When will Villanova know definitely that it is to have such a military program?

A. I don't know. Manifestly the question should be answered one way or another within the next month.

Q. May a college student join the Army Specialized College Program?

A. Yes, high school and preparatory school graduates who will have attained their 17th but not their 22nd birthday by July 1, regardless of whether they are attending college, are qualified to take the examination to be given on April 2. Students should remember, however, that they must be inducted and receive basic military training before being sent to college.

Q. May a student not already in one of the Naval, Marine, or Coast Guard Reserves be admitted to the V-12 program?

A. Yes, provided he takes the qualifying examinations on April 2, makes a satisfactory grade therein and passes the subsequent physical examination and is approved by the Selection Board.

Q. In the event that Villanova is selcted for contract under the V-12 Naval Program when would the summer term begin for both the naval students and civilian students?

A. The summer term would commence at the same time for both types of students on or about July 1.

AIEE Studies X-Ray

The Villanova chapter of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers conducted a lecture and demonstration on the functions of X-ray equipment yesterday evening, March 15. Professor William G. Driscoll was the principal speaker on the program.

Mass Kit Brings Letter Of Thanks

Villanovans Make Donation to Army Priest Through Chaplain's Aid Association

In a letter of thanks received recently by Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., college chaplain, it was revealed that the recipient of the Mass kit donated by the students of Villanova College was Chaplain (1st Lt.) Philip B. Eleden, A. U. S., a secular priest from Raleigh, N. C. Fr. Eleden is at present attending the Chaplains' School at Harvard University with chaplain (1st Lt.) John R. Dunne, a former member of the faculty who entered the army on March 6.

Funds for the kit were collected at the Students' Sunday Mass in the Chapel and sent by Fr. Grimes to the Chaplains' Aid Association which presented the kit to Fr. Eleden.

Fr. Grimes, in announcing that the kit had been purchased, expressed his pleasure with the students for their good work. "I take this opportunity to thank you for your generosity and to encourage you in the apostolic work of spreading the 'good tydings' of your youth," he said.

Association Provides Supplies

The Chaplains' Aid Association, which is affiliated with the National Council of Catholic Women, is an organization founded immediately after the entrance of the United States into the first World War by Rev. John J. Burke, C. S. P. It has as its purpose the assistance of the Catholic chaplains in the Army, Navy and Marines, and serves as a supply bureau for everything needed in their ministrations to men in the service.

The Association has distributed more than 1,000 Mass outfits, 2,000,000 copies of the Army and Navy prayer books, besides hundreds of thousands of Rosaries, scapulars, medals, catechisms, hymn books, Sacred Heart badges and crucifixes

Rosemont Host To Spanish Club

Members of the Spanish Club of Villanova will be the guests of the language group of Rosemont College today at a joint meeting to begin at 4:15 P. M. The combined organizations will hear a lecture by Romero Navarro, professor of Spanish at the University of Pennsylvania, and which will be followed by a discussion and the serving of refreshments.

At the last meeting of the Villanova club plans were made for the annual Cervantes-Day banquet and celebration to be held on April 14. As yet, because of the lack of available facilities, a definite site for the occasion has not been selected. Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A., moderator of the group, stressed the necessity of prompt payment of all membership dues in order that the affair can be successful. Because of the drop in enrollment due to recent calls to active duty of many of the members he stated that the cooperation of all present is needed.

All members were also urged to submit their entries for the contest of the best original composition in Spanish about Cervantes as well as a poem in English upon the same subject. Prizes for the two winners will be awarded at the banquet.

Cigarettes Donated To Soldiers Abroad

A case containing 3,000 cigarettes has been donated by the students of Villanova College as a gift to American fighting men overseas.

Second Lieutenant Robert L. Nutt from the Headquarters of the New York Port of Embarkation, in a letter addressed to the school, appraised the effort as "one of the best morale lifting factors of the present war." He also expressed, on behalf of his office, gratitude to the student body for their contribution. The name and address of the school will be securely fastened to the container when it is sent to the battlefront.

War Bond Drawing To Be Held Monday

It has been announced by Jacques Mauch, president of the Student Council, that the drawing of the winner of the twenty-five dollar War Bond Raffle will take place next Monday, March 22, in Room 215 Mendel Hall at 1:00 P. M.

Chances for the raffle, which began on March 2, are given with the purchase of every twenty-five cent stamp purchased from a member of the council. The bond itself has been donated by this organization.

Students may obtain chances up until Sunday night, March 21, from any council representative or from the stand set up daily between 1:00 and 1:30 P. M. in front of the information booth in Mendel Hall.

Point Rationing Affects College

At a meeting of the entire resident student body last night at 7:00 P. M. in room 215 Mendel Hall Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova, discussed the effect of the present point rationing of food upon the college cafeteria.

It was explained by Fr. Stanford that up to the present time food restrictions have not affected the college but since the inauguration of point rationing Villanova has been designated as an institution. As such it will be allowed ⅛ of its former supply of rationed foods.

"This does not mean," Fr. Stanford said, "that our food will be cut down to that amount but rather rationed products will definitely be limited. Restrictions in choice of plates will inevitably result in an effort to solve the problem of waste which necessarily must be put at a minimum. Inconvenience and sacrifice will result upon both students and faculty in the next few months," the president stated, "and the college authorities will do their utmost to ease the strain, but student cooperation and patience is exceedingly necessary."

President Receives Council's Donations To Scholarship Fund

Three checks totaling $540 were donated to the school last Friday, March 11, by the student council for the purpose of increasing the scholarship funds of the sophomore, junior, and senior classes.

President of the council, Jacques Mauch, made the formal presentation of the checks to the Very Rev. E. V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college. The money was divided evenly among the three classes, $180 being allotted for each of the three funds. Proceeds from the Summer Hop and the Centennial Ball constituted the principal sources of the sum.

The scholarship fund has been a tradition at Villanova for a large number of years. The custom has been for each class to donate an unestablished sum to be used for the education of worthy youths who would not be able to attend college otherwise.

V-7 Reopens To Engineers

Seniors and juniors who wish to enlist in the Naval Reserve may now do so, according to information released by Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., liaison officer between the armed forces and the Villanova student body. These additional enlistments have been arranged for the Navy through Selective Service, and the physical and educational requirements will be the same as those for class V-7 with a few stipulations.

Vision must be at least 8/20, correctible to 20/20. The student must be a regularly enrolled, full-time junior or senior in good standing in an accredited course such as engineering or (B. S.) in physics, electronics, or naval architecture. Anyone interested should see Fr. McQuade as soon as possible.

New Army College Plan Named A-12 Announced For Specialized Training

Non-Reservists Are Eligible; Tests To Be Given April 2 For Army And Navy

In an announcement paralleling that made by the Navy last week, the Army has announced the formation of a new college training program to be known as A-12, under which students who prefer to serve in the Army rather than the Navy may qualify for the Army specialized Training Program. A joint Army and Navy test will be given on April 2 for the examination of all students desiring to join either of the two service groups.

The test is designed to provide information to the armed forces in selecting students for college training under the A. S. T. P. and in classifying all others in respect to their abilities. The results of the tests are not the only factors which will determine the selection of the future students.

To Get Basic Training

Eligibility of an individual for college training is not fully established until he has completed basic military training. Those who are successful in the test, however, will be provided with a certificate of qualification which will assure their assignment to a Replacement Training Center as a potential trainee for the Army Specialized Training Program.

Under the new program individual choice of curriculum will be given serious consideration although the Army will assign each candidate to the course for which the aptitude tests have indicated him best suited.

Technical Men Needed

The purpose of the program is to train men of a collegiate level in the technical and professional skills required by the army. Engineers, doctors, psychologists, physicists, and mathematicians are needed in large numbers. The courses will be given at those colleges and universities which are equipped to give such training.

Male students falling in the following categories are eligible to make application for A-12:

1) High school and preparatory school graduates who will have attained their seventeenth but not their twenty-second birthday by July 1, 1943, regardless of whether they are now attending college;

2) High school and preparatory school seniors who will be graduated by July 1, 1943, provided they have attained their seventeenth but not their twenty-second birthday by that date; and

3) Students who will have attained their seventeenth but not their twenty-second birthday by July 1, 1943, who do not hold certificates of graduation from secondary schools but who are now continuing their education in an accredited college or university.

Applications for both the V-12 and A-12 programs may be obtained from Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., in the Arts Office, Room 114 Mendel. They are available at the present time.

Both applications and examinations concern only civilian students. Men now enlisted in any of the reserves are not eligible to take this test.

Marine Reserve Offers Student Opportunities

Reservists Likely To Get Further Education After Call To Duty

At a meeting of the Marine Reserves held last week, Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., liaison officer, revealed that the reservists are liable to call to active service around July 1, 1943. Many of these students are expected to continue in college with their present course of study.

Freshman and sophomores enlisted in this reserve will take a screening test soon which will include a general I.Q. and an evaluation of the relative standing of the student. After they are called, the marine reservists will probably attend a college participating in the Navy Reserve Program in the district from which they have been called. The reasons for this, it was explained, were: economy in transportation, continuation in the course of study already being pursued, and the undesirability of shifting students to new colleges.

Those students having one term or less to finish before graduating will be placed in an inactive status until their courses have been completed, unless they are required earlier for military service or unless they actually request active duty. It was also announced that the Marine Corps will follow the previously stated policy of the Navy concerning the continuation of athletics and other campus activities.

Trained Workers Urgently Needed

Men are sought to fill positions as technical and scientific aides in the Federal Government. They are needed to do research and testing in the following fields: chemistry, geology, geophysics, mathematics, metallurgy, meteorology, physics, and radio. The positions pay $1,620 to $2,600, plus overtime.

Applicants may qualify through experience or education. For the assistant grade, applications will be accepted from persons who have completed one year of a war training course approved by the U. S. Office of Education. One year of college study, including one course in the option applied for, is also qualifying. Persons now enrolled in war training or college courses may apply, subject to completion of the course. For the higher grades successively greater amounts of education or experience are required.

Work in Washington

The majority of positions are in Washington, D. C., but some will be filled in other parts of the United States. There are no age limits, and no written test is required. Applications and complete information may be obtained from first and second-class post offices, from civil service regional offices, and from the Commission in Washington, D. C., until the needs of the service have been met.

Trainee Positions Open

Trainee positions in technical and scientific work will be filled in Washington, D. C., and vicinity. The salary is $1,440 a year plus overtime, and the only educational requirement is that the applicant must have completed one high school credit of physics, chemistry, mathematics, biology, or general science. There are no options.

Persons using their highest skills in war work are not encouraged to apply. War Manpower restrictions on Federal appointments are given in Form 3989, posted in first and second-class post offices.

Ramseyer Addresses Engineering Society

Several members of Villanova's student chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers attended a meeting held last night at the Engineer's Club of Philadelphia at 7:45 P. M. The meeting was preceded by a dinner at 6:30.

Principal speaker of the evening was Charles F. Ramseyer, a metallurgist now serving with the A. J. Brassert Co. The topic of his address was: "Sponge Iron; Its Sources, Manufacture, and Uses."

William Doyle, junior Mechanical engineer and secretary of the society, also revealed that elections are currently being held to fill the post of vice-president—left vacant with the recent graduation of James E. Schultes. Nominations were held last week, and final balloting will take place soon.

Merit His Mercy

LAST Wednesday marked the beginning of the holy season of Lent in the Catholic Church—a season marked with fasting, abstinence and the general restraining of one's self from the pleasures in which we normally indulge. Symbolizing Christ's preparation for his sufferings and death on the Cross, Lent is a time for all Catholics to draw closer to Him with prayer and sacrifice.

Particularly in these times when the world is witnessing so much suffering and bloodshed on the battlefields, each one of us should fully take advantage of making reparation for our past lives and beg God's help for the unknown future. On the Villanova campus already many of the students are performing their Lenten duties together with added actions of privation, better attendance at daily Mass and the Sacraments, and a real recognition of the penitential season. But there are still some who have neglected to give serious thought to the purpose of Lent, and without a doubt these are the particular ones who need God's graces to aid them in meeting the problems that lie ahead in this war-torn country.

Why not give a moment of serious contemplation and ask yourself if you are fully in the spirit that Christ and His Church are asking. Forty days out of the three hundred sixty-five in the year is not a great length of time to strive a little harder than usual to show your appreciation of Christ's redeeming mankind. To go to daily Mass or to forego a few pleasure is little to ask during this time. Resident students and day-hops alike should find it of small inconvenience to attend one of the daily Masses at 7:15 or 8:15 A. M. when so many benefits may accrue from it.

It would be well to remember that the time might not be too far in the future when anyone of us will be begging for Christ's help amidst the blood and pain of some distant war front.

Russia Discredits U. S. Aid

THE statement made by our ambassador to Russia, Admiral Standley, to the effect that the Russian government is not making known to its subjects the extent of our lend-lease aid has made quite a commotion in Washington and the country at large.

Standley undoubtedly knew the far-reaching effects that such a potent assertation would have, especially coming from a man in his position. We can assume, therefore, that the statement constitutes a planned rebuttal to Stalin's oft-expressed contempt for the contributions of the Americans to the Allied war effort.

While such a remark does little to cement the already strained relations with our allies, it might bring home to the Russian people the realization that America is actually exerting herself to the limit of her resources toward the winning of the war, and deserves credit for her efforts.

Regardless of whether or not Stalin wishes to make it known, great quantities of equipment have been reaching Russia. This is not the only aid we are giving the Russians, however; our African campaign is diverting many of Hitler's troops; we are preventing the Japs from striking the Russian rear by engaging them in the Pacific; and our air attacks on German industry in conjunction with the British are crippling Nazi efficiency.

If our Russian allies continue to ignore these facts, how can they expect further aid without some suspicion on our part that they are avoiding manifestation of appreciation in order to show a more powerful hand at the peace table.

Meet The Boys:

Chemists Will Be George And Bill When There Are No Japs To Kill

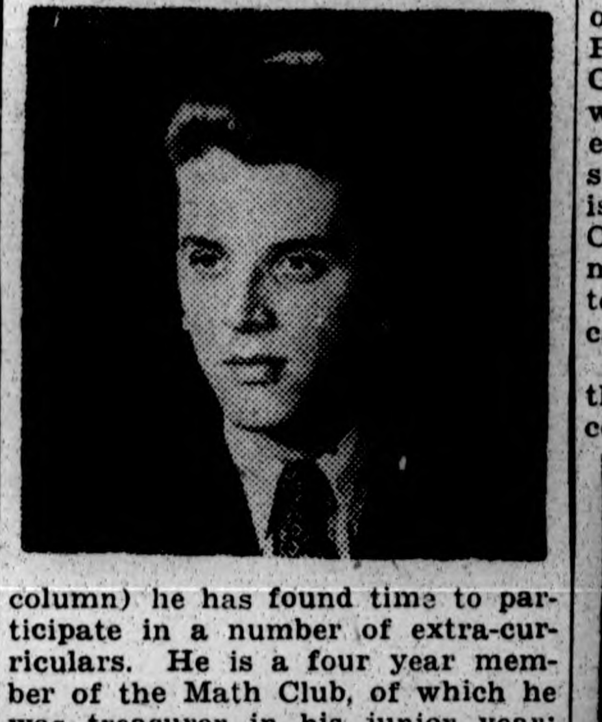
By SAM CIRIACO

THIS week's inspection of the senior class brings to our attention two close friends, both possessing the same fundamental interest in chemistry and both striving for degrees in this field.

First on our list is William Theodosia, first because we must make some condescension to him on his birthday. Bill was born exactly twenty years ago in Philadelphia. He attended Overbrook High School, and in 1940 matriculated in the engineering school as a B. S. in Chemistry here at Villanova.

Chemistry Favorite Pastime

Although Bill would rather putter around in the chem. lab than do such pleasurable things as eating or going out with girls ("In my eye," says Georgie from the next column) he has found time to participate in a number of extra-curriculars. He is a four year member of the Math Club, of which he was treasurer in his junior year; he is active in Phi Kappa Pi, the engineering fraternity; and he is an enthusiastic member of the German Club, especially when that group has joint meetings with the neighboring girl's colleges.



In addition, Bill served on the ring committee of the class of '44, and was honored in his junior year by benig elected to the honorary engineering fraternity, Chi Epsilon Mu. Now that he has become a senior, although only in his first semester under the accelerated plan, Bill though for a while that his club joining days were over; that is, he thought so, till his advisor, Doc Haenisch, found out that he wasn't a member of the American Chemical Society. Now he is seriously considering joining that organization.

Follows Early Likings

At the tender age of seven or eight, when other boys were dreaming of a fireman's uniform, Bill had already decided that he was going to be a mathematician. Since then, he has altered his ambition somewhat(and now he would like to go into physical chemistry research, which after all, he says, is "only glorified math."

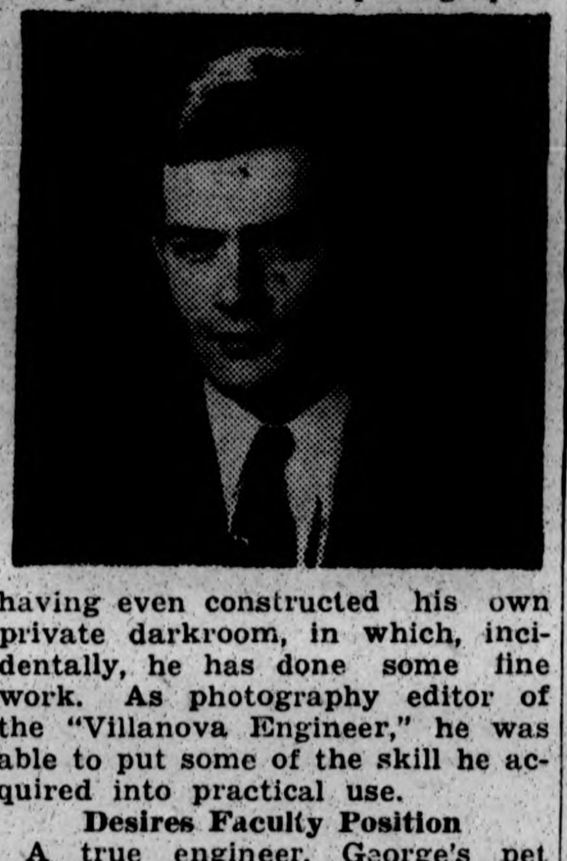
NEXT on our list is Bill's pal, George Temple, who comes from a more or less secluded spot a little west of West Chester, Pa. Like Bill, he is another one of Doc Haenisch's pals—a B. S. in Chemistry.

George attended St. Agnes High School in West Chester, where he played on the basketball team (some of the time). As a matter of fact, though, there were only six boys in the school which lessened the competition somewhat. Entering Villanova with the class of '44, he took advantage of the accelerated program last summer and now expects to graduate in September.

Holds Several Offices

George took part in practically all of the engineering organizations open to him, including Phi Kappa Pi and the American Society of Chemical Engineers of which he was elected secretary and treasurer. He also carried his German studies beyond the classroom and is now president of the German Club. In this capacity he has done much to keep alive an aesthetic interest in German culture on the campus.

In line with his passion for all things chemical, George is an accomplished amateur photographer having even constructed his own private darkroom, in which, incidentally, he has done some fine work. As photography editor of the "Villanova Engineer," he was able to put some of the skill he acquired into practical use.



Desires Faculty Position

A true engineer, George's pet peeve is the courses he must take in the science school. Although he considers them interesting enough, he fails to see just how a knowledge of bacteriology and psychology will make him a better chemist.

Like everyone else these days, George is not certain of what the future holds in store for him. As a member of the Navy's V-7 program, he can only do what his superiors demand. If it weren't for the war, however, he would like nothing better than an assistantship at some college or university.

100 Years At Villanova

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles relating to the hundred-year history of Villanova College as taken from the "Tagastan," a magazine published by the students of the Augustinian College at Washington, D. C. The story covers thoroughly but in condensed form the period from Villanova's founding through its many struggling years to the time when it became the prominent Catholic college that it is today. Rev. Thomas F. Roland, O. S. A., has written of the first half century of this institution, and Rev. Thomas F. Gilligan, O. S. A., has completed the epic from 1893 to 1942.)

Rev. Patrick E. Moriarty, O. S. A., was sent from Rome in 1838 to old St. Augustine's in Philadelphia to be the Commissary General of the Augustinians in the United States. He soon saw the necessity for making an effort to propagate the order, to secure its stability and success. An opportunity to do so appeared to be offered by Providence. Fr. Moriarty wrote to Dr. Stuart, the Irish Provincial who had financed his journey to America. He bought Belle Air, the estate of the late John Rudolph, for $18,000 on October 13, 1841. The estate comprised 200 acres of the best farm land in Pennsylvania, and had stone buildings and barns well adapted to the use of a religious community. The Brothers of the Order of Hermits of St. Augustine took title on January 5, 1842.

Seek Students, Benefactors

There were five priests at that time making up "the Order of Hermits," and they had already in their charge two parishes, one hundred miles distant from each other. But they had decided to add the care of a college to their many duties, and began at once to execute the plan. Lay brothers were sent to farm the new place while one of the Fathers went to Italy to get help to carry out the design. A Prospectus was issued during the year 1842, to publicize the plan, to interest prospective students, and to ask the aid of the charitable.

Rev. John Possidius O'Dwyer, O. S. A., returned from his quest in Italy, partially successful. He brought with him only two young American clerics who had been sent there for their education. One, Rev. Francis Ashe, O. S. A., was a priest; the other, Rev. Mr. William Hartnett, was a subdeacon. They arrived in America in the summer of 1843, and the next day, the feast of St. Augustine, made the parlor of the former mansion into the Chapel and dedicated it in honor of St. Thomas of Villanova.

Seven Students Enroll

The first tuitions for for students were paid Sept. 17, and seven boys are remembered as the "first" students of Villanova College. A secular priest who had labored on the Indian Mission near Detroit, Fr. Bonduel, and two laymen, E. A. Ansley and John Dalton, were engaged as teachers to assist the three Augustinians on the faculty. The subjects taught were Latin, Greek, English, Mathematics, History and Modern Languages. Class rooms and study hall, chapel and refectory, kitchen and pantry were all on the ground floor of the main building. The Fathers and Faculty had their rooms on the floor above, and the garrets made dormitories for the students. The essentials were all gathered: factulty and student-body, building and curriculum. Villanova College was started on its long history.

"Sneeze," replied the Chinese very proudly.

The officer looked hard at him. "Is that your Chinese name?"

"No, American name," said the draftee.

Three Lettermen Form Nucleus Of '43 Baseball Plans

Kopraski, Smith, Chaplar Only Holdovers Of Last Season's Crack Diamond Aggregation; Must Rebuild Entire Infield

By JIM CARBINE

For two weeks Villanova's 1943 mound aspirants have been working out in the Field House, hoping for a change in the weather so that they could go outdoors. If the weather of last week had continued "Doc" Jacobs had hoped to start outside practice yesterday, but now it is indefinite when they will be able to hold their initial fresh air workout.

When the E.R.C. called three boys from the basketball team, it did double harm, for Joe Lord, Bill Wood, and "Major" McDonnell were also mainstays of last year's crack baseball team. Lord played second base, while Wood and McDonnell pitched. The heaviest loss, however, was suffered behind the plate, by virtue of the absence of Ted Bicky, Frank O'Neil and Joe Nunan.

Entire '42 Infield Gone

An entire new infield will be needed to replace the loss of Lord, along with that of Joe Yednock at 3rd, Jim Traitz at 1st, and Joe Coffee at short, who, although only a freshman, played like a veteran. The outfield is only going to miss one man, Jim Lattanza, who covered right field. Bill Smith, who roamed the outer gardens in back of Coffee last year, may be called on to pitch, and if so, that will leave another position for "Doc" to fill.

On the whole ,the team was pretty well broken up, but with the group of boys coming out for the team it should shape up very well. There remain only three varsity men from last year, Bill Smith, Joe Koproski, and Frank Chaplar. Joe was the center fielded last spring and along with Bill Smith was one of the leading hitters. Chaplar is the only senior on the team, and is the sole returning moundsman.

Three Catchers Lost

Another loss to the hurling staff was Frenchy DeBlois, who left last week for Medical School. Three freshmen are anxious to take his

All Stars Subdue Catholic League Champions 29-28

By DAVE WARD

In the last and best game of the season, on Thursday, Villanova's Intramural Stars broke an eleven game winning streak of Roman Catholic High, Catholic League Champ, by coming from behind to win 29-28.

Catholic broke the ice first, on field goals by Bill Rogers and Jim Rafferty. Setting a very fast pace, it held a 12-6 quarter-time lead. But the All Stars, who were psychologically "up" for this game, kept right behind the Philadelphia team, and in the last few minutes of the first half put on spurt which brought the Blue and White within one point of the Cahillites.

Trail Until Final Canto

After the rest period, Catholic came back strongly and held the All Stars to three points, a foul by Dan Doris and a field goal by Tom Burns. In the third quarter, Rogers, Bob Rapone, and Rafferty each garnered a field goal to give the high school courtmen a 21-17 advantage at the end of the third stanza.

The last canto was a thriller. With the ball in play less than a minute, Dave Ward dropped a looping set-shot and Doris a lay-up, to tie the score. Roman came right back and went ahead 25-21 on Joe Chapparone's and Jack Cahill's field goals. At this point the All Stars reeled off four successive field goals, one each by Bob Biggins, Burn, Al DeBlois, and Doris to put the game on ice. The final few minutes saw the All Stars stave off a Catholic High rally and freeze the ball until the gun.

Doris High

This was essentially a team victory, for while Doris led the scoring with nine points, Burns, Mike Cheppa, and Ward had two field

Mound Aspirants Get Early Start

Dorn Unanimous Choice On All-Opponent Squad

Nine teams were able to place men on the fifteen man Villanova All-Opponent squad. They were led by Fort Dix who placed three: one on the first team, one on the second, and one man received honorable mention. Next came Princeton, Manhattan Beach Coast* Guard, and Albright, placing two each. Scranton, Niagara, Seton Hall, Gettysburg took one place apiece, and Rider had two honorable mentions.

This year the only man to gain a place unanimously was Bob Dorn, of the Manhattan Beach Coast Guard quintet. Dorn, who stood 6'4", was the deciding factor in the defeat suffered by the Blue and White at the hands of the sailors from New York. He gained the center spot without one dissenting vote being cast.

The two forward spots were awarded to Kas Ostrowski, of Scranton, and Bob Wanzer, representing Seton Hall. Ostrowski, who scored 39 points in two losing contests against the 'Cats, was definitely the most impressive pointmaker encountered by the Villanova courtmen all season.

Bloom at Guard

At the guard positions, Mike Bloom was an undisputed selection for one, but there was a deadlock for the other between Paul Yesawich, Niagara , and Rud Palmer, from Princeton. Bloom, former Temple University All-American, now representing Fort Di was the standout man on a big, but outclassed soldier five. At the other spot, Palmer and Yesawich both polled 11 points for the first team, each with four first places and three seconds.

The second team finds Albright garnering two places, Princeton, Fort Dix, Gettysburg, and Manhattan Beach Coast Guard one apiece. The only repeater was Dick Shollenberger, of Albright, who dropped from the Wildcat first five to the second this year. The other Albright man to gain a berth was Bob Rhoads, who picked off a forward spot. At the other forward position is Ed Sadowski, playing coach at Fort Dix. At the guard positions there was another deadlock between Ed Spotts, Manhattan Coast Guard, George Munda, Princeton, and Cal Welliver of Gettysburg.

Wood 1st In 'Cat Scoring

Sharpshooting Billy Wood carried off the Wildcat basketball scoring honors for the second consecutive season last week with his total of 221 points. At the final tabulation after last Thursday's encounter with Muhlenburg, Wood was found to lead his nearest rival, Chuck Drizen, by eleven markers.

Although his combined efforts this winter fell eleven points short of his last year's 232 sum, his winning top offensive honors this season was even more remarkable in view of the fact that he was not able to participate in the last three games on the schedule. Having left with the rest of the E. R. C. Reserves on Monday, March 1st, Wood was absent from the contests with Gettysburg, Franklin and Marshall Pre-Flight and Muhlenburg. That he would have been able to surpass his last season's total of 232 in high-scoring games like these final encounters seems almost

Wildcats Defeat Muhlenberg 50-40

Severancemen Close Season With 19th Victory; Kelty Finishes Brilliant Collegiate Court Career

By LEM WENTLING

Villanova's Wildcats drew the curtain on their 1942-43 basketball campaign last Thursday night. They bowed out in style, defeating Muhlenburg College, of Allentown, Pa. 50-40.

With Coach Severance's revamped lineup of Chuck Drizen and Lou Reynolds up front, Frank Frascella and Ray Kodish at guards, and Co-Captain Bob Kelty at center, a fast and furious encounter ensued. Ben Celian, Muhelnburg forward, started things off with a clean lay up shot. Bob Kelty rebounded with a field goal and a foul and the Blue and White forces were soon out in front, 7-5.

Lead at Half

Leading 16-11 at the quarter, the score rose rapidly, with most of the point-making being accomplished by Severance's promising freshmen, Kodish, George Burns, and Frascella. Scoring five consecutive points, the Wildcats left the floor for intermission with a 28-19 margin.

Chapter number three, however, was completely dominated by "Doggie" Julians' Mules. In a breathtaking offense, with Jim Crampsey and Ken Stone pacing the attack, the Dribblers from "Peanut Town" gradually closed the existing gap. With nine minutes gone in the third period the count stood at 33-32, Villanova still leading. Kelty then came through with a pair of double-deckers to close that stanza, 37-32.

'Cats Pull Away

Crampsey, Muhlenburg's stellar guard, attempted to stage a repeat performance of the previous period as he garnered four markers before Lou Reynolds intervened with a free throw. Kelty sank a set-shot and Drizen added a foul to send Villanova's share of the score into the fourth decade.

Leading 41-38, Kodish and Frascella put on a nine point spree, interrupted only by Bob Meyerdierk's field goal ,and the game ended, 50-40.

Kelty Gets 17

For Villanova it made a season total of nineteen wins and two losses for one of the best records in recent years. Bob Kelty, the lone senior, who received a rousing ovation during a third quarter time out, scored seventeen points before taps were blown on his college career. These final seventeen ran his total for the season to 190, which was exceeded only by Billy Wood's 221 and Chuck Drizen's 211. Ray Kodish was runner-up in the offense department with twelve markers, ten of which came in the second half.

For Muhlenburg, it closed a mediocre season of thirteen wins and eight losses. Ken Stone, its center and potential scoring threat, was somewhat hampered by Villanova's defense.

Villanova Quartet Takes K Of C Mile Relay Event In 3:25

Guida, McCarthy, Keefrider And O'Sullivan Combine For Third Victory In Five Starts At Garden

Villanova's Mile Relay team staged a thrilling comebacfl last Saturday evening in Madison Square Garden, when it captured the eight-furlong event of the Knights of Columbus games in 3:25 The Wildcats, having been able to garner no better than third places in the recent A. A. U. and I. C. 4-A meets, after starting out the season with victories in the Millrose and N. Y. A. C. games, beat out St. John's and Fordham in their race, and their time was the lowest of the evening.

Manhattan, victor over Rhode Island State and Colgate, was timed in 3:26 in another of the Mile Relay races. Pennsylvania, victor over Syracuse and Columbia in a third mile event was nine-tenths of a second slower than Manhattan, covering the distance in 3:26.9.

Keefrider Stars

Villanova's conqueror in the recent I. C. 4-A games, and favorite in Saturday's competition, N. Y. U., finished a poor last in the same heat with the Wildcats, as ragged baton passing ruined the Violets' chances.

The combined victory of George Guida, "Dutch" McCarthy, Harry Keefrider and Bob O'Sullivan brought to a close the Mile Relay events to be staged in Madison Square Garden. Keefrider, who joined the Blue and White foursome three weeks ago, when Captain Johnny DiCarlo was called by the Army Air Corps, was the chief cause of the Wildcats' victory. He had the best time of the evening in running his leg.

3:23.1 Season's Lowest

Although the time compiled by the Villanova quartet was good enough to win Saturday's event, it was still a good one and nine-tenths second off the pace set by the Wildcats in the New York Athletic Club games. In this meet the Blue and White runners toured the Garden's eleven laps in the brilliant time of 3:23.1. Despite the fact that Seton Hall and New York University won the Mile Relay in the ensuing two weeks, the mark

The Sophomore Day-Hops Maintained their first place position by defeating the Junior Civils last Saturday afternoon 4-0. Two league records were smashed in the course of their victories. "Angie" Rosa rolled a total of 559, including a 203 game, to replace the Tom Dolan high three of 537. The Sophs, by breaking their own record, set a new league high team total of 2381.

Cryor, Simpson Excel

Close on the heels of the Sophs are the Senior M. E. Day Hops, who rolled two nifty games of 813 and 776, but fell through in the third contest to lose to the Sophomore Residents. Don Cryor led the Seniors with a total of 530. Bob Simpson rolled 201 in the second match.

There is an interesting three-way tie for third place between the Junior M. E. "A" Club, the Senior M. E. Residents and the Senior Chemicals, that will prove to be even more interesting during the closing weeks of the league. Of this trio, the Juniors won three, the Senior Residents won one, and the Chemicals took all four last Saturday afternoon at the Ardmore Recreation Center.

By BOB BOLGER

Four years ago a cherubic-faced, sandy-haired lad entered Villanova to later become one of its most publicized and honored sons. The one in question is none other than Frank Desmond, Villanova's National Intercollegiate and National High Point Outboard Motorboat champion. Let's, however, start from the beginning.

Frank, who hails from Short Hills, N. J., prepped at the Canterbury School, in Connecticut, before entering Villanova. It was during his scholastic days that Frank took to motorboat racing as a fish does to water. Six years ago, back in 1937, he entered his first sanctioned event, an interscholastic affair, at Saratoga, N. Y. He compiled enough points to garner second place. This was the needed incentive which was later to lead him to the top rung of the ladder in outboard motorboat racing.

Two Awards

During that same year, sanctioned races at Boston and Philadelphia found him on top. His second important achievement took place when Frank won the Albany-New York race in five hours and forty minutes at an average speed of 22.8 M.P.H. Frank's victory entitled him to win the Interscholastic and Intercollegiate trophies of this race.

The grand finale of that year's racing was at North Hatley, Quebec, where the now experienced skipper carried off the Canadian Outboard Championship. Frank had arrived at the top, a place he has held the last six years of outboard racing.

Wins Cooperstown Event

In 1938, at Cooperstown, N. Y., where the Centennial Anniversary of Baseball was being commemorated, Frank won the Class A Outboard Championship. It was during this year, also, that he entered the Nationals for the first time, but to no avail. The year 1939 found him at Montauk Point, N. Y. where he took firsts in Classes A, B, and C, more than enough to win the National Interscholastic Championship.

With the coming of 1940, Frank Desmond's supremacing in intercollegiate outboard motorboat racing began. On Lake Seneca, at Geneva, N. Y., he won the National Intercollegiate cup for the first time over representatives from Cornell, Yale, Harvard, Dartmouth and Princeton. He managed to take firsts in Classes A and B, and a second in Class C

Gains High Point Trophy

The Eastern Division Championships at Philadelphia in the same year found him placing second in the three classes. He then traveled to Worcester, Mass., for his second try at the Nations, where this time he placed fifth in Class A, second in Class B, and first in Class C. This great showing enabled him to win the National High Point trophy.

The President's Cup regatta on the Potomac was only another victory for him. He took the Loew's trophy for Class B boats. At Ocean City, N. J., he won the Class A title over a very formidable field.

1941 Big Year

1941 saw Frank win practically everything possible concerned with outboard motorboat racing. He started the year off by winning the New York State Championships at Geneva, N. Y. He also won there the High Point trophy. Frank then proceeded to Carlstad, N. Y., where, by copping a third in Class A, and firsts in Classes B and C, he won the New Jersey State Championship as well as the High Point trophy.

At New Brunswick, N. J., for the second straight year, he won the National Intercollegiate trophy by taking first in all three classes. The Philadelphia Eastern Division finals again saw him High Point man in this regatta.

Defends Title Successfully

The National Championships at Austin, Texas, saw Frank defend his National High Point title. It was the second straight year that the coveted Heintz and Col. Green Trophies remained in possession of this Villanova man. The National regatta was also a grand conclusion of his racing prowess, because Frank's boats are in storage for the duration. The Eastern Intercollegiate Outboard Motorboat Association somewhat later conferred on him the title of "Commodore."

Wins Major Letter

According to Frank, much of his success is due to his father, who is his greatest supporter. The senior Mr. Desmond was a motorboat racer of his own right and his experience s concerning motorboat racing and knowledge of marine engines certainly has been of invaluable aid to his prodigy.

On winning the National Intercollegiate title in 1940, Frank became the first student in the history of Villanova to receive a major letter without participating in a major sport.

In Naval Reserve

Swimming the breaststroke for the swimming team during the past two years, while also being the star of the recent Intramural swimming meet, are only some more of his great achievements. Besides this, he was invited to the Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming Championships at Annapolis in 1941.

After completion of the current semester, Frank leaves for training with the Navy under the V-7 program. So, to future Ensign Desmond, we say "Good luck, Skipper."

a certainty. The Villanova offense, even without the services of its main cog, was able to garner 71, 46 and 50 points in these last three contests, respectively.

Chuck Drizen, who finished in third place behind both Wood and Red Klotz last winter, finished eleven points behind his teammate this season with his total of 211.

Bob Kelty, Co-Captain of this year's highly successful court combine, along with the high-scoring Wood, finished in third place with 190 tallies. Kelty played brilliantly in the Seton Hall game when he tallied 13 markers while everyone else was being held practically scoreless, and then brought down the curtain on his collegiate court career with seventeen points against Muhlenburg last Thursday.

place, however, and in the gym look as if they might have something on the ball. They are Bill Koerner, Bob Dorasavage, and Jim Lafferty. Doug Boyd and Gene Weinert, other moundsmen, have one or two years experience and will undoubtingly prove a valuable asset to the team.

Even though the squad lost three catchers, that spot will not be too weak with Johnny Dzitko, Joe Mihalek, and Charlie Labelle of softball fame trying out for positions.

To fill the shoes in the outfield there are Syl Yanelli, Joe Pezelski, Lou Lopez, Jim Carter and Chet Czarnecki.

As yet the schedule is not complete, but it will probably be ready for publication within the next week.

goals while DeBlois, Bill Lamb, Jack Koval and Biggins had one each.

The Purple and Gold had a tough man in Rogers, who led the scorers with eight, while being the sparkplug of the team. Rafferty was right behind him with three field goals and a foul for seven markers.

By winning this game the All Stars brought to a close a very successful initial season with a record of nine games won and three lost. The three teams which won were beaten in return games. This fact shows that the All Stars had a spirit which would not be extinguished. Congratulations go to Father McKee and the fellows who helped make this team a success.

of Guida, McCarthy, O'Sullivan and Johnny DiCarlo still stands as the lowest clocking of the recently concluded indoor season at the Garden. Seton Hall came closest to breaking the Wildcat mark in the A. A. U. competition, when it was timed in 3:23.3.

Second in Washington

In another meet staged at Washington, D. C., a week ago last night, the Villanovans were edged out in the team scoring by one point. Fordham was the winner, with 13, Villanova was second with 12, followed by Pennsylvania, Columbia and Penn State with 8, 5, and 5 tallies, respectively.

George Guida was the star of the evening for the Blue and White cause, as he won the 50-yard dash in 5.6, over Herbert Truxton of West Chester State Teachers College, and Pat McMullin of V. P. I.

Reagan Wins

Had the Wildcat Mile Relay team come through as expected, the Main Liners would have won the meet, but poor baton passing enabled Fordham's Rams to break the tape a scant three yards ahead of anchorman O'Sullivan.

Centennial Convocation Planned Here For May 3

Representatives Of 200 Institutions To Attend Colorful Formal Academic Gathering; Governor Martin And Army, Navy Officers Also Invited

Officially closing the centennial year at Villanova, the Centennial Convocation has been announced to be held here on May 3. This convocation will be an academic gathering of official delegates from sister institutions who will attend in traditional cap and gown appropriate to their ranks.

At the present time it is expected that approximately 200 various colleges and universities will be represented at the celebration. There is also assurance from correspondence received that a large number of distinguished men have accepted invitations to be present. Such personages will include Governor Edward Martin of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, prominent presidents of universities and colleges, and distinguished representatives of the Army and Navy.

To Form Procession

Plans for the affair indicate that it will be a colorful and picturesque gathering and the first of this type of formal academic convocation to be held in the hundred year history of the college.

The program for the day, starting in the morning, will be inaugurated by the registration of the participants in the School of Commerce and Finance and their processional march in formal cap and gown to the Field House. Following the set order of such academic processions, it will be led by the marshalls followed by members of the Villanova faculty, members of the board of trustees, delegates of learned societies, official representatives of college and universities in order of their dates of founding, the recipients of honorary degrees, and finally the president of Villanova, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., accompanied by the speaker of the occasion.

Classes Suspended

In the main gymnasium of the Field House, the singing of the National Anthem by the assembled will start the exercises. An invocation or opening prayer will then be recited. Fr. Stanford will deliver an address of welcome and a response will be given by one of the visiting presidents or delegates. Several musical selections will then precede the address by the speaker of the occasion, as yet unannounced. The program will be closed with a prayer following the awarding of honorary degrees by Villanova's president.

Since the entire student body is expected to attend, classes will be suspended for the day. A cordial invitation will also be extended to members of the alumni and the friends and parents of both students and alumni. Fr. Stanford speaking concerning the affair said, "Any of the students who had the privilege of attending the Centennial Mass on Sept. 20 will find this convocation equally inspiring."

Spanish Club Hears Speech At Rosemont By Romero Navarro

The Spanish Club of Villanova was the guest of the language group of Rosemont College last Wednesday afternoon. Guest speaker on the occasion was Romero Navarro, professor of Spanish at the University of Pennsylvania.

Following the talk, which was delivered in Spanish, Miss Helen Ford of Rosemont entertained the audience with her vocal interpretation of 'Siboney' and "La Golondrina." Refreshments were served after the meeting, and an informal discussion followed.

Cervantes Celebration Postponed

Rev. Lorenzo Lonzano, O. S. A., moderator of Villanova's Spanish Club, announced that the annual Cervantes Day celebration will be postponed until an undefinite date after Lent. The anniversary of the birth of this Spanish author is April 23; since the date falls upon Good Friday this year, the organization was forced to make the postponement.

Briefs Of CAMPUS NEWS

Last Tuesday, at a meeting of the Sanctuary Society, Maurice Bingham, sophomore education student, was elected secretary of the group. He will replace Edward Gregory, sophomore C. & F., who was recently inducted into the Army. A special committee discussed plans with the other members to make the society more active in Catholic Action.

A joint committee headed by John Sweeney, senior chemical engineer, representing the American Institute of Chemical Engineers and Robert Koob, senior B. S. in Chemistry and president of the Student Affiliate of the American Chemical Society, has arranged two trips to neighboring manufacturing plants.

Tomorrow the group will visit the brewery of C. Schmidt and Sons, while on March 31 a trip to the physical and chemical laboratories of E. J. Lavino will be made.

On Thursday, March 18, eighteen members of the Villanova faculty and all of the seminarians on the campus each donated a pint of their blood to the Main Line Red Cross Unit at the Ardmore Skating Rink.

At a joint branch meeting of the Villanova College and University of Pennsylvania chapters of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, held at the latter's Moore School on Thursday, March 18, the differential analyzer and its use in the present war effort was discussed. Professor Weygandt of the Moore School was the peaker.

Members of the Villanova chapter of the A. I. E. E. recently attended a discussion on "Electrical Systems in Ships." This topic was delivered by Lt. Commander Hammond of the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

War Bond Raffle Postponed

Due to a last minute rush to obtain chances on the twenty-five dollar War Savings Bond which the Student Council is to raffle, it has been necessary to change the announced date of the drawing, yesterday, March 22, to tomorrow, Wednesday.

Registrar Resigns

PAETRUS F. BANMILLER

Banmiller Leaves College Position For War Industry

Registrar Accepts Engineering Post At Budd's; Graduated Here In 1935

After eight years of service as Villanova's Registrar, Paetrus F. Banmiller will resign his position on the college administration staff on March 31. Banmiller will begin a new career starting the first of April as an electrical engineer with the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Company in Philadelphia.

Immediately following graduation from Villanova in 1935, Banmiller took over the position of both Registrar and Alumni Secretary-Treasurer of Villanova. Since that time he has been a member of the Board of Governors of the Villanova Alumni Association, and the American Alumni Council. For three years he was editor of the Alumni magazine, the "Alumnus." Both the "Alumnus" and the "Villanova Engineer," as they appear in their present form, may be accredited to Banmiller.

Performs Many Duties

As college Registrar, Banmiller has controlled all admissions to Villanova, kept all student records, conducted the annual placement tests given to freshmen, and acted recently as Selective Service officer. He has also acted as secretary to the engineering faculty as well as N. Y. A. Administrator, and claims membership in the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, the American Association of College Registrars, and the Middle States Association of College Registrars, serving as both president and vice-president of this latter organization.

For the past two years Banmiller has been an instructor in mathematics and physics in the evening classes of the engineering defense courses sponsored by Villanova, and this past semester he taught algebra to a Commerce and Finance class.

Banmiller received his B. S. in Electrical Engineering in 1935 as class valedictorian. During his active college years, he had been a member of the Foreign Relations Club, the Belle Masque Dramatic Society, Beta Gamma Debating Society, the editorial staff of the 1933 and 1935 Belle Airs, the A. I. E. E., the Student Council, and the Sanctuary Society. He held the position of editor-in-chief of the "Villanova Engineer" for three years, and held office as both treasurer and vice-president of the Literary Society. As a freshman he was a member of the Interfraternity Ball Committee, and played freshman football, later played junior varsity football. In his junior year he was named chairman of the Junior Prom and was also elected vice-president of the Phi Kappa Pi Engineering Fraternity. Graduating first in his class the following year concluded Banmiller's four years of activity as a Villanova student.

Craven, Simpson Chosen Chairmen of Frat Dance

Inter-Fraternity Ball To Be Held In Field House On May 7; Informal Affair Featuring Villanovans Will Close Current Social Season

Villanova's war-restricted social season will be concluded on Friday night, May 7th, by an informal dance in the Field House sponsored by the four leading campus fraternities. Co-chairmen for the affair will be William A. Craven, C. & F. senior, and Robert H. Simpson, senior engineer.

Plans for the Inter-fraternity Ball and names of the committee heads were revealed today by the fraternity presidents who met informally last Friday. As yet the committee chairmen named to assist Craven and Simpson have not been approved by the office of the Dean. Their names will be announced within the next week.

Active on Campus

Co-chairman Craven is a member of Delta Pi Epsilon, C. & F. fraternity, and has previously assisted in several school dances. In addition, he has been manager of the track team since his freshman year and is now managing the baseball team; he has been active in intra-mural athletics; and he was a member of the now extinct Radio Club.

Simpson is now secretary of Phi Kappa Pi, engineering fraternity. As a member of this organization he has been instrumental in the formation of the bowling league as well as the football league for day hops. He has also been a college cheer leader for four years, belongs to the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and has played intramural basketball.

Engineers Plan Active Schedule

Meetings In March And April To Be Followed By Regional Convention

William Doyle, secretary-treasurer of the Villanova branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, recently announced that the organization's members are scheduled to participate in many regional engineering activities during the coming six weeks.

The first of these meetings is to be held on March 23 at the Engineer's Club, located at 1317 Spruce St., Philadelphia. Louis B. F. Raycroft, director of the War Manpower Commission for Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware, is to deliver an address on "Manpower." In addition, a sound movie entitled "Motion Study Principles," produced at the University of Iowa, will be shown.

Plan Joint Meetings

A joint assembly of the mechanical engineers of Villanova and Drexel is to take place here on March 29. The highlights of the program proposed for this date are a movie on power plant boilers, and a talk by E. V. Gallagher, plant superintendent of the Richmond station of the Philadelphia Electric Company, on "Operations of a Power Plant."

An election to fill the office of vice-president in the Villanova chapter of the society will be conducted at the same time. This position was left vacant by James E. Schultes on his recent graduation. The recently nominated candidates for the office are J. Bonner, J. Quinn, J. Roth, and R Gerngross.

Annual Convention at Drexel

On April 14, Drexel is to be host to a similar joint meeting. Besides the Villanova and Drexel students, however, the Junior Chapter of the A. S. M. E., an organization of the younger graduate engineers from the Philadelphia district, is to participate.

NO ISSUE MARCH 30

Due to the quarterly examinations, there will be no issue of the VILLANOVAN next Tuesday. The next paper will appear on April 6.

Hannon Addresses Civil Engineering Group On "Concrete"

Robert J. Hannon, junior civil engineer, addressed a meeting of the Amercian Society of Civil Engineers held last Friday afternoon. The title of his lecture was "A Modern Ferry Boat."

The main topic of Hannon's talk was an explanation of the increased use of concrete on the exterior portions of construction work. He said that this new development has been put to use because of the possibility of achieving not only strong, but beautiful effects through the use of concrete moulds which can be made into any desired shape.

Beginning his lecture by citing the former predominance of cast iron and wrought iron in construction work, Hannon went on to explain how the war and the resulting scarcity of iron first suggested the extensive use of concrete in construction. Use of concrete ships will, according to the speaker, decrease steel consumption by forty percent.

At present there are twelve concrete ships under construction in the southern states, and concrete and steel buildings are being widely used in outside construction in South America.

Protect Small Business

REGARDLESS of whether we win or lose the war, there is one casualty that we can be absolutely certain will result if our policy remains unchanged, and that is small business.

Despite the fact that small business constitutes a large percentage of our national production capacity, it is, for the most part, being ignored by the government which has distributed a disproportionately greater part of its contracts to large concerns. Such action is resulting in the closing of numerous small shops all over the country, destroying production much more effectively than any air attack could do.

The W.P.B. argues that it is much costlier to give contracts to many small firms than it is to give them to a comparatively few large companies. This is true, but it is also true that many of the larger firms have at the present time backlogs of orders that they can not possibly fill within their allotted times. These concerns refuse to subcontract the piled up work to small businesses that are now standing idle and would welcome the orders. As a result, the nation is seriously delaying final victory by not utilizing its full capacity, and for a relatively few dollars, sacrificing the equipment so urgently needed now.

Besides, the conclusion of the war will find only those firms that had war contracts still in operation. Since it would be a difficult matter at best for a small business man to revive an organization forced out of business by the war, especially when he must compete with an already established large firm, this will mean virtual control of peacetime production by large business.

There is only one remedy, and that is to allow small business to have a hand in the war effort. Until this is done, we are threatening the very foundations of the principles for which we are fighting; namely, free enterprise, the abolishment of poverty, and a fair distribution of the nation's wealth.

Support Press Apostolate

DISTRIBUTED about the various halls on the campus are several pamplet racks containing booklets treating the many and diverse problems of the Catholic student. They are placed there for the convenience and benefit of Villanovans by the Catholic Press Apostolate to aid them and to discuss the innumerable questions of faith, morals and everyday living. Their use and reading by the students are evident by the large number that have been taken from the racks. But donations for their use have been few.

The prices, small as they are, are plainly printed on the faces of the booklets, but it is apparent that few readers pay attention to them. Even if the students who find these pamplets interesting would merely return them to the racks after they have finished, it would remedy the condition greatly. But without the necessary funds the replenishing of these stands is impossible, since the Press Apostolate can only purchase such books with the money the students donate for their use.

Certainly it is worthwhile to everyone to have a source of interesting and helpful information such as the booklets present. With a little cooperation from all who read them and either their return after using them or the payment of the necessary prices, it would be an easy matter for the Press Apostolate to continue supplying the students with this valuable reading matter.

Meet The Boys:

Pushing Pills Is Joe's Pastime, For The 150's, Dick Hit The Line.

By TOM SULLIVAN

AFTER a long and arduous search, your reporter finally tracked down the subject of this little biography, and cornered him in his lair—the infirmary. There, 'mid the surrounding bottles of medicines and pills, we managed to draw from him the story of his life in order that it might be preserved for posterity.

Joseph John Coll, better known here at Villanova as "Doc," made his first appearance in 1922 in that suburb of Villanova—Philadelphia. At the tender age of three "Doc" went to see the "Miss America Pageant" at Atlantic City, and he liked the scenery so well, he remained there.

Aspirin-Dispenser

At present "Doc" is in his Senior year in the C. & F. school. He is majoring in accounting and has from the first been one of the luminaries of his class. If you need any proof, look at his record; the honor roll has contained the name J. J. Coll five out of the last six times.

Although he claims to lead a very hum-drum existence, "Doc" has found time to participate at various times in the glee club, Sanctuary Society, Beta Gamma Debate Society, Belle Air, and the D. P. E. Fraternity, of which he is now secretary. He has also been the pulse feeler, aspirin-dispenser, and temperature-reader for the college. In a word he is the infirmarian.

A Future Ensign

That fact seems a bit confusing to us. How did a C. & F. student ever become infirmarian? We asked "Doc" this, and his answer was typically modest and self-effacing. "I really don't know," he said. "I was merely asked, and here I am." The fact is that "Doc" holds a Red Cross certificate, his diploma for successfully completing the First Aid course given at Villanova last year. And, we think, somewhere in the far distant recess of the Coll mind there might have lurked once the thought of becoming an M. D. instead of a C. P. A.

When queried about the fair sex, "Doc" was very reticent. "I'm very dead on that subject," he maintained. "Oh yeah, what about—" broke in "Doc's" brother and room-mate, Bill. But a well placed hand over his mouth quickly ended any further comment and the interview as well.

ROCKVILLE CENTER, Long Island, claims the honor of having been the birthplace and home of Richard John Ryan. The balmy, summer day of August 7, 1922 saw Dick's debut into this world. However he was not alone, for, as he put it, "A girl came with me." Yes, Dick was one half of the Ryan twins, and ever since he's been trying to get away from the girls.

He attended St. Agnes's Parochial and High School in Rockville Center. While at the latter, he played some basketball. "Not much of a team," he modestly explained.

Plays 150 Lb. Football

Like "Doc" Coll, Dick is a senior C. & F. student majoring in accounting. To complete the parallel he, too, has made the honor roll five out the last six times. He missed it the last semester by one-tenth of a point.

Dick was a member of the 150 lb. football team in his sophomore year, and was prevented from being on it last year by a knee injury. He was also quite a baseball player, playing the field where 'they hit them the least." Along with his sports activities, Dick is also a member of the D. P. E. Fraternity, and that awe-inspiring body, the Student Council.

Little Female Interest

Dick wants all and sundry to know that the picture resting on the desk in his room, 323 Fedigan, does not belong to him. This is more in the fashion of a lament than a boast. For as he puts it "I'm so-so with the women, but I must admit I'm out more often with the fellows than with girls. I really wish I could tell you about some mysterious female who sends me heavily perfumed letters." So there you are girls — a lonesome man.

Keeping up with "Doc" Coll, Dick, too, is in the Navy. But his is the confusing position of being a senior in the V-1. The accelerated program is to blame, for Dick entered the Reserve last year and has, since then, finished his junior year and started his senior. For Dick, too, that gleaming sheepskin with B. S. in Economics on it is just around the corner.

So, as "Ensign" Ryan started thumbing through Thurman Arnolds' "Bottlenecks of Business" in an attempt to find his place, we, taking the hint, grabbed our hat, pencil, and notebook, and took our leave.

100 Years At Villanova

CHAPTER II

AN increase in the number of students called for new buildings, and these were planned at once. The carriage house was torn down and on the site was erected a building 68 by 30 feet, with two stories and an attic. The boys slept upstairs and used the large hall below for class room, study hall, and chapel on Sunday.

In 1844 the "Catholic Herald" carried the first advertisement of the new college. It stated. . ."none but Catholics received. . .classical and scientific (subjects) or purely mercantile, or so blended. . .as to qualify the pupil to embrace any of the learned professions or to apply himself to business. . .Terms $125.00 per annum; under twelve years old, $100.00. Further particulars. . .the President Rev. Mr. O'Dwyer."

Riots Endanger Lives

But the times were greatly troubled. The anti-property agitation which had plagued the nation from its birth finally culminated in murderous incendiary riots. The worst were in Philadelphia, the very cradle of Liberty. In May, 1844, the church of St. Augustine with our adjacent convent and its superb library were burned to the ground; Catholics were hunted through the streets and the mob threatened to proceed to Villanova to burn likewise that infant institution.

The boys had to be taken to safety elsewhere each night until the crisis passed. The Augustinians lost so much that it took their utmost efforts to survive. Two Fathers went abroad to collect alms, and two others travelled through the States and Canada, when parochial duties could be arranged to permit it, begging the aid of the charitable The remaining members tried to keep the parish of St. Augustine and the College going.

President Closes College

Fr. Hartnett, ordained in September 1844, was both curate in the city and professor at Villanova. Fr. O'Dwyer was president here, and at the rebuilding at St. Augustine's. The college was able to start the second semester in 1845, but the accumulating difficulties seemed too great. Fr. O'Dwyer closed the

INASMUCH as Villanova's crack Mile Relay team is closing a very successful indoor season at Cleveland, on Saturday, it is only fitting and proper that we devote a column to the interest of this quartet, before it draws the curtain on its waning campaign.

Never before in the history of Villanova has an indoor Relay team garnered as many honors as has this year's foursome. First places in three of five starts against the East's best competition at New York's Madison Square Garden this winter, and thirds in the other two meets, is the record of this amazing Blue and White team.

Starting to get ready for the present campaign as far back as last October, the Wildcat trackmen were rewarded for their sedulous training efforts. Not being counted upon to be too successful in this winter's competition, as a result of the loss of "Dixie" Dunbar to the Merchant Marines, the boardmen were a pleasant surprise to all Villanova track followers.

"Dutch" McCarthy, who had previously specialized in the "880", was named to fill the all-important "Dixie's" shoes, and he did a splendid job. Every Villanovan awaited eagerly the result of the initial test of the Wildcat Mile Relay team, the Millrose games, to see if McCarthy were fast enough to run in the third slot of a team comprised of George Guida, Bob O'Sullivan and Captain Johnny DiCario, all of whom were veterans of the previous year. All doubts were removed, however, when the results were discovered. Villanova had won the Millrose Mile Relay in 3:24.8. "Dutch" had come through with flying colors. Expecting another win in the New York A. C. games, the Main Line following was not disappointed, as the Wildcats came through again, this time in 3:23.1. Our track team was really going places!

A telling blow was dealt the 'Cat runners the following week, however, as Captain, Coach and anchorman Johnny DiCarlo was called into active service by the Army Air Corps. This meant that the Wildcats would have to find another replacement.

Harry Keefrider, also a halfmiler, was selected. McCarthy was moved up to second position, and O'Sullivan was placed in anchor spot, with Keefrider filling in at the third slot. Once again, the quartet was a question mark. Could Keefrider, with only a week's practice at the "440" distance, possibly keep up the pace necessary to

Wildcat Trackmen Close Indoor Season Saturday

Knights' Of Columbus Meet In Cleveland To Bring Down Curtain On Highly Successful Winter Campaign; Frosh At Camden

Villanova's outstanding Mile Relay team, winner in three of five starts on Madison Square Garden's boards this winter, will bring down the curtain on a very successful indoor track season on Saturday evening, when it participates in the Knights of Columbus games in Cleveland. In this event the Wildcat quartet, composed of George Guida, "Dutch" McCarthy, Harry Keefrider* and Bob O'Sullivan, running in that order, will face the same outstanding competition which characterized the events held in the Garden in meets up until this time.

Having won the Knights of Columbus Mile Relay in New York on Saturday night, March 13, to close the season at the Garden, the Wildcat foursome was inactive last weekend, resting up for their final test of the indoor season in Cleveland, four days hence. Fordham and New York University, both of whom trailed the Blue and White runners to the tape in their last meeting, will also be on hand at Cleveland to provide the favored Villanovans with top-flight competition. Colgate, another outstanding contender in events so far this season, will also be a contestant at the Cleveland arena, as will numerous midwestern relay outfits, who have not been seen in action in New York this winter.

Possess Best Time

The Main Liners, possessors of the best record of any Mile Relay quartet which saw action at the Garden this year, with three first places and two thirds in five races, also posses the lowest clocking for the mile distance this season. Winners of the Millrose games, the first encounter of the season, in the time of 3:24.8, the Wildcats lowered this mark to 3:23.1 in the New York Athletic Club contests which took place two weeks later.

With both N. Y. U. and Fordham participating against the Wildcats in this final tussle of the indoor campaign, it would seem that there is a good chance of the Wildcats' 3:23.1 clocking being lowered. The Cleveland track is not on a par with the Garden's eleven lap layout, however, and for this reason alone, it is generally agreed by the experts, that a clocking of 3:25 will be good enough to win on Saturday evening.

Try for Team Trophy

Simultaneous with the Mile Relay team's journey to Cleveland will be the venture of the Blue and White yearlings in Camden, N. J., in the Middle Atlantic A. A. U. meet. Although the chances that Villanova will carry off the team trophy are considerably weakened, as a result of the fact that the Mile Relay team will be in Cleveland on the same evening, the Wildcats are still ranked as favorites in this encounter. This seeded position is granted the Wildcat yearlings on the basis of their brilliant showing in the Middle Atlantic A. A. U. "polar bear" meet held outdoors at

Wildcats Named On Post-Season Quintets

Villanova's crack cage quintet, which concluded its 1942-1943 campaign on March 11, with a 50-40 victory over Muhlenburg College, was well represented on the various court teams selected annually by the Philadelphia sportswriters. Bill Wood, Bob Kelty, "Chuck" Drizen and Joe Lord were all given some sort of post-season recognition for their outstanding work on the hardwood during the past season.

Wood, high scorer of the Wildcats for the second consecutive year, was awarded a second team berth on the all-Pennsylvania aggregation chosen by the Associated Press last week. A member of the first five last winter, Wood was just nosed out for a similar berth this year. Drizen was given honorable mention on this same squad.

Inquirer Honors Kelty

The All-Philadelphia team chosen by the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin scribes, gave Wood a guard berth on the first five, while Drizen was named at forward on the alternate quintet. Kelty and Lord received honorable mention on this quint. Kelty, very effective rebound man during the recently completed campaign as well as being hailed for his excellent floorwork and unselfish team play, gained individual honors on the All-District quintet chosen by the Philadelphia Inquirer last Friday morning. Drizen and Wood, whose combined point total for the recently concluded campaign was 432 markers, were named on the second team, thus including three Villanovans in the ten best players in the Philadelphia area.

Sophs Retain Lead In P. K. P. Bowling Loop

Scoring one of the most surprising upsets of the current bowling season last Saturday, the Junior M. E. "B" five defeated the Senior M. E. Day Hops, who had previously lost only four points since the first week of the season. The Juniors snowed them under by a 4-0 count. In the first game they managed to win by fifteen pins, by twenty-two in the second and sixty-four in the third. The Juniors were paced by Jim Correale, who had a 444 total for three games. The Seniors' high three was posted by Bob Simpson, who managed to pick off 447 maples.

Rosa Paces Sophomores

The Sophomore Day Hops continued on their victorious way as they took three from the Junior Chemicals. The Sophs gave away the largest handicap that has been given yet, as they presented the Chems with 100 pins. The Sophs, a little slow to warm up, dropped the first by eighty-two pins, and then came back strongly to take the next three. They took the second and third by seventy-four and sixty-one pins, respectively, with "Angie" Rosa posting a 204 in the final game. Rosa also had a 509 three game total. The Chems were paced by Art Skahan.

Cahill Rolls 236

Paced by Jim Cahill the Senior M. E. Residents took three out of four from the Faculty. Cahill moved into first place in the high averages division, as he boosted his mark to 160, one point ahead of Tom Dolan. Cahill also posted a new high single score as he rolled a 236 in his final game, to chalk up a 508 total for the day.

Intramural Card Lists Three Sports

Baseball, Softball And Tennis To Provide Spring Competition For Student Body; Golf Dropped

By LEM WENTLING

Due to the present emergency, intercollegiate athletics are on the decline. Intramurals, however, have come forth with a new popularity. This is true at Villanova, as plans are already in formation for the spring session on the intramural calendar.

Rev. Edward McKee, O. S. A., moderator of Intramural athletics, and Thomas Sullivan, freshman C. & F. student, will conduct the spring program. Sullivan was selected to aid Fr. McKee, when Rev. John Dunne, O. S. A., now a chaplain in the army, resigned his post as co-moderator.

Four Nines Compete

Three sports will be represented: baseball, softball and tennis. The golf tournament, sponsored in the past, had to be eliminated this year, because of transportation difficulties, and the inability to get equipment.

The tentative setup for baseball will be a four-team league, comprising nines from the four resident halls: Austin, Fedigan, Alumni and Mendel. The teams will be coached by their respective moderators: Austin—Fr. Kemme; Fedigan—Fr. Giorolami; Alumni — Fr. Burke or Fr. McCarthy, and Mendel—Fr. Kropp. Teams will engage twice a week, on Thursday and Friday evenings. This is a change from the former practice of playing on Sunday afternoons.

Austin Defends

Austin Hall, which annexed the crown last year, will be the defending champ. Predicting a winner would be difficult because new faces will represent Alumni and Mendel, and many of the stars of the remaining two halls have been graduated or called into the service. Varsity baseball, likewise, is expected to deplete the intramural ranks.

The softball plans are expected to be more elaborate. The four halls will meet on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. A similar program was inaugurated during the accelerated program last summer in which Joe Barry's Fedigan team emerged the winner in a close race.

Both leagues will be divided into a first and second half, with the winner of each section engaging in a three-game playoff at the completion of the regular schedule.

Gavin Tennis Favorite

As soon as the tennis courts are conditioned, a tennis tournament will also go into effect. It will be an elimination tourney, with the winners advancing into the semifinals and finals, respectively.

Similar competition was held last summer, Thomas Quigley, sophomore Artsman, now in the Army Air Corps, being crowned champion. Austin Gavin, science senior, who was defeated by Quigley in the finals, will be the favorite. Jim Daly and Jim Carbine are also strong contenders.

Call Of Smith By E. R. C. Fatal Blow To Diamond Plans

Loss Of Star Hitter, Who Was To Share Mound Duties This Season, Adds To Jacobs' Woes

By JIM CARBINE

As the date for the first game draws nearer and nearer the weather seems to be slowly improving, but not quick enough for "Doc" Jacobs, Villanova baseball coach, who had hoped to start regular fresh air drills last week. The ground is still too soft to do much practicing.

Last week the prospects for the team had two days of outdoor work, but not much was accomplished, for they limited themselves to a little bunting and perhaps a pepper game now and then. The pitchers, however, are rounding into shape quickly, because they have been able to practice in the Field House for the last three weeks. They were pretty well loosened up when they went outdoors and looked very good. Frank Chapler, the only veteran hurler from last year is beginning to show signs of his last year's form, and looks as if he will be able to hold down the position of chief moundsman.

Had .429 Average

The loss of Bill Smith added several more problems for "Doc" to solve. The E. R. C. had overlooked Bill when it called up the Reserves three weeks ago, and he had hopes of being able to play ball this season. But it quickly rectified its mistake and he was ordered to report on Saturday. Last year Smith played left field and his fielding average was close to 1.000. At the plate he was always a threat as was shown by his batting average of .429. This year, on account of the weakness of the hurling staff, "Doc" had hoped to use Smith as a pitcher as that was his original position when he entered Villanova as a freshman three years agp.

Entire '42 Infield Gone

The main problem, however, is the formation of an infield. The "million dollar infield" of last year is completely dissolved with the loss of Joe Lord, Joe Yednock, Jim Traitz, and Joe Coffee. With the material that is coming up, however, "Doc" has some hope of forming a smooth combination. Al Postus and George Warner are two of the many candidates out to take Joe Coffee's place at shortstop. Some more infield candidates are Bill Breen, Tom McCarthy, Tom Burns, Joe Dervin, Dick Breen, Bill Sullivan and Al Mamic.

In the outfield there is a large representation from the football team consisting of Syl Yanelli, Joe Pezeiski, Lou Lopez and Joe Koproski. Koproski played center field last year and led the Wildcat nine in extra base knocks.

In Armed Forces

BILL SMITH, leading hitter on last year's Blue and White diamond aggregation, with an average of .429, who was called into active service by the E. R. C. last Saturday. An effective hurler as well as being proficient at the plate, Smith was counted on to bear much of the mound burden this season.

In The Sportlight

HARRY KEEFRIDER

By BOB BOLGER

FROM out Upper Darby way, or more correctly still, Carroll Park, hails a somewhat serious lad,, who, after quite a strenuous struggle, became one of the members of Villanova's crack mile relay team. Harry Keefrider did just this. In order not to confuse the reader, however, we will trace Harry's early history on the cinders and boards.

West Philadelphia Catholic High School was his Alma Mater during his pre-collegiate days. In his first two years there, Harry didn't participate in athletics. Came his junior year, however, and he had the urge to try out for the track. Jack Glascott, famous track coach, saw immediately the future of this newcomer. Harry specialized in the "220" that year, while also being a member of the Mile Relay team. During that same year, his school entered in the National Interscholastic Outdoor Track Championships at Notre Dame. Here it captured the team championship. Harry ran in the "220" and was also a member of the second place Half-Mile Relay team.

Senior Year Outstanding

His senior year found him a fully experienced trackman. He helped his team take the Philadelphia Catholic League Track Championship for the second straight year. Harry won the quarter-mile event and placed third in the "220." The Nationals at Notre Dame again found his outfit on top According to Harry, West Catholic won the Nationals during the entire five year period it was held at Notre Dame.

This, however, was not enough. On entering the famed Penn Relays, the Mile Relay team, of which Harry was a member, won the first section of the Mile championship. Altoona High won the second section. On the playoff, which took place at the Penn Interscholastics, the West Catholic relay team won by twelve yards. Their time was 3:21.9, only a half-second from the Worlds' Mile Championship record.

Breaks Elliott's Record

West Catholic then entered the Villanova Interscholastics, where it won everything except the staduim. Harry won the quarter-mile in the record time of 52:3. This by the way, broke the Villanova record previously held by track coach "Jumbo" Elliot.

The University of Delaware Interscholastics at Newark, Del., came next. It was another team championship for West Catholic and another great individual performance on the party of Harry. The Norristown Interscholastics which closed out the season had the same result.

Future Villanovans

Harry was fortunate to be on such a great track squad. His other three teammates on the Mile Relay team were Johnny Di Carlo, "Dixie" Dunbar and "Ike" McCarthy. In other words, this complete Relay team later donned the Blue and White, and continued its outstanding performances in intercollegiate circle. "Ike" McCarthy completed only two years at Villanova, while "Dixie" is now in the Merchant Marine.

When Harry entered Villanova, he immediately became a member of the freshman track team. During that year, the quartet raced for the Penn A. C., as Coach "Jumbo" Elliot was one of the coaches there. While so doing the frosh met the outstanding trackmen of the country. Though victories were few, the experience proved very helpful.

Herculean Performance

A dual meet with the University of Pennsylvania freshmen followed. Harry and four others, representing Villanova, engaged forty-seven trackmen from Penn. The result favored Penn, 63-54, but certainly not to its credit. Forty-three of the points were garnered by Di Carlo, Stan Nazian and Harry. He also won the mile and the half-mile events on famed Franklin Field.

At the Catholic University Invitation meet, Harry placed recond in Rectors' 1,000 yard event. He was a member of the Freshman team which won and tied the meet record at 3:59.7, in the Medley Relay.

Misses Relay Team

In his sophomore year, he became a member of the Varsity Mile Relay team. I suppose we should say, the fifth man of this team. Because he was not fortunate enough to be one of the four. His presence, however, certainly made competition the bitterest. It was during this year in which in the Penn Relays, the Relay team took the classified mile relay in 3:26.5.

In his junior year, he won the 1,000 yard event at the Catholic University meet. He again missed being one of the starting four on the Mile Relay team.

Attains Coveted Goal

It appeared this year that Harry would again be in the same status. But when Johnny Di Carlo was called up in the Army Air Corps Reserve, he got his chance. He immediately did a splendid job in the National A. A. U. Championships, in which the team finished third, and also in the I. C. 4-A Championships, where another third place was taken.

It was in the recent Knights of Columbus meet in New York, however, that Harry really "came through." He ran the fastest lap and was greatly instrumental in the teams' first place victory.

The Knights of Columbus meet at Cleveland, Ohio, on March 26 will be the windup of Harry's collegiate indoor track career.

The travelling part of being a member of the track team is what he enjoys most. His famed appetite on road trips as well as on the campus attracts much attention.

Harry is an accounting major in the School of Commerce where he has been a consistent member of the honor roll during the last four years. He expects to enter the accounting field after serving in the Navy, in which he is a V-7 candidate.

Harry's social life is dominated by the "steady" girl friend with whom he has been going for seven years. He is treasurer of the present senior class, and is very active in other student affairs.

beat the best collegiate quartets in the East?

When the results showed that Villanova had finished in third place, it appeared that Keefrider had not been able to keep up the pace. Few bothered to find out, however, the real story of that National A. A. U. race. Harry, starting his leg on even terms with the third runner from Seton Hall, lost three yards on the first turn, but fighting valiantly in the final stretch, caught up to his adversary and handed the baton to Bob O'Sullivan with Villanova and Seton Hall tied for the lead. The real reason that Villanova finished in third place was not because of Keefrider, but actually because O'Sullivan was elbowed on the Eight Ave. turn, and and knocked off stride. Before he could regain his running form, Seton Hall and Fordham had both gained too much of a lead to be overcome.

Tough luck again dogged Keefrider in the I. C. 4-A encounter, where sloppy baton handling cost the Wildcats another Mile Relay victory. N. Y. U. was the victor in 3:24, Fordham coming home in second place for the second consecutive week.

Determined to prove their supremacy, in the event which made them famous, in the recent Knights of Columbus games in New York, the Blue and White runners were not denied in their endeavor, as they crossed the finish line ahead of all opposition. Keefrider proved his mettle in this race, recording the lowest of the four Villanova "440" clockings.

With this enviable record behind them, it is no small wonder that the Villanovans are favored in Cleveland's K. of C. meet, on Saturday.

To Johnny DiCarlo, George Guida, "Dutch" McCarthy, Harry Keefrider and Bob O'Sullivan, then, we extend our heartiest congratulations on their successful New York campaign, feeling confident that Villanova's anchorman will also breast the tape in the Cleveland encounter.

Regan, Schmidt in Mile

Bob Regan, frosh distance man, who placed third in the two-mile event at Museum Field, and then won the handicap mile in Catholic University meet held in Washington two weeks ago last night, will be on the starting line for the mile in Camden. Running with him in this event will be Don Schmidt, another outstanding distance man among the frosh trackmen. Schmidt won the two mile novice event at Penn, and, with Regan, should be able to garner some points toward the team trophy which will go to the winner of the meet.

Ed Fitzgerald, Chuck Harrington and Frank Hinnencamp will be on the starting line for the "600." Harrington grabbed a first place in novice "600" at Penn's Museum Field, while Hinnencamp carried off the honors in the novice "1000" in the same meet.

Three Hurdle Entries

George Rideout, proficient at the 60 yard hurdle competition, will try his hand at a comparatively novel event, on Saturday, when he runs in the 50 yard dash. This will not be his only endeavor of the evening, however, as he will also participate in the 50 yard high hurdles, as will his teammates, Jim Rooney and Bernie Dickhaus. Rooney, a sophomore, captured a third place in the open competition of the 60 yard high hurdle event at Penn, while Dickhaus was first across the finish line in the novice competition of the same meet.

Performing a herculean task will be Regan, as he will perform in the two mile event, along with his mile endeavor.

college on Feb. 20 and the students went home. Thirty-six had been enrolled from the opening day. Villanova parish and farm continued.

Plans to re-open started at once. Rev. George A. Meagher, O. S. A., arrived from Italy during the summer of 1846, wtih twenty-four students. The war ended with the first public Commencement, on July 21, 1847. Fr. Harnett, acting-president of the college, was away ,and Rev. James O'Donnell presided in his absence. Mr. M. J. Bryant read an essay on "Education," and after the exercises the guests had a picnic on the grounds.

CHESS ENTHUSIASTS!

In view of the fact that chess has become increasingly popular among the student body of late, Rev. Edward McKee, O. S. A., has discussed the plans of conducting a chess tournament. All students interested in this pasttime are urged to contact Fr. McKee.

SKAFF WITH A's

Frank Skaff, former Villanova diamond luminary, was signed to a contract last week by the Philadelphia Athletics. Widely known for his ability at the plate while an infielder for the Wildcats during the 1933, 1934 and 1935 seasons, he has been a member of three minor league clubs since that time.

Committee Heads Chosen For Ball

McEvoy, Pinto, Elman, Young, Eni, Coleman, Daly And Cryor Receive Posts

William A Craven and Robert H. Simpson, co-chairmen of the Interfraternity Ball, have announced the names of the committee chairmen who will assist them with the dance.

These men were chosen by the presidents of the various fraternities and approved by the Office of the Dean. Joseph McEvoy, senior C. & F. student, will head the ticket committee. Decorations will be under the direction of Gene T. Pinto and Edward J. Elman, seniors in C. & F. and engineering respectively, while Robert F. Young, C. & F. junior, will head the publicity.

Louis Eni, junior engineer, will be in charge of the refreshments, and George T. Coleman, education sophomore, will be chairman of the program committee. The position of chairman of the blind dates committee will be shared by M. Joseph Daly, science senior, and Donald Cryor, senior engineer.

Decorations Planned

It has also been announced that designs for the decorations are now being considered. The motiff planned will be one representing the four campus fraternities and the activities of their respective schools. Tickets, posters, and floaters have already been sent to the printers, and their distinctive designs will soon be seen around the campus.

Co-chairman Craven said that all those affiliated with the dance are endeavoring to make it the best informal affair ever held here. He also expressed the conviction that th efforts of the various committees in this task will be rewarded by the complete co-operation of all the students.

The dance will be held on Friday evening, May 7, in the Field House.

Authorities Plan Victory Gardens

In view of the pending food shortages, a part of Villanova's campus will be cultivated into victory gardens.

Portions of the area owned by the college will be leased to the residents of Old Oaks and Aldwyn Lane. Eighteen persons have thus far contracted for plots on the college land adjacent to the P & W Railroad tracks. This covers an area of approximately twenty thousand square feet. The produce of these plots will be for the consumption of the lease holders themselves.

The greenhouse and property surrounding it, and the grounds behind St. Mary's Hall have been turned over to the seminarians and the Fathers of the monastary for cultivation. The food grown here will be used to replenish the college's and monastary's supplies which are rapidly becoming depleted under rationing.

Several professors and workmen have also made arrangements for victory gardens on the campus. Rev. John J. McMenamin, O. S. A., who is in charge of the program, has emphasized that under present conditions it will be unnecessary to use the front campus for victory gardens. He pointed out, however, that if the war lasts another year it might be necessary to convert this also into farm land.

A.I.E.E. Members Watch Program At KYW Studio

In conjunction with the Philadelphia Section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, members of the Villanova chapter of that society were guests at the KYW radio station on Wednesday evening, March 31.

The students witnessed the broadcasting of the Esslinger show, and at its termination toured the studios and observed the technical side of radio operation. The following day Samuel Burruano, a senior electrical engineer, related the details of the trip to the members who failed to attend.

Fr. McGrath Adds Alumni Position To Other Duties

Sophomore Religion Teacher Will Continue Work Of Preserving Alumni Information

At the third quarterly meeting of the Board of Governors of the Villanova Alumni Association held Sunday, March 28, Rev. Robert E. McGrath, O. S. A., was chosen secretary-treasurer of the organization. He succeeds Paetrus F. Ban-Miller who resigned the office last Thursday to assume a position at the Budd Manufacturing Company of Philadelphia.

Recently appointed to the faculty of Villanova, Fr. McGrath is now a professor of sophomore religion and counsellor of O'Dwyer Hall. He is a native Californian, a graduate of Villanova Preparatory School, Ojai, California, and entered the Augustinian Order in 1928. He graduated from Villanova in 1933 together with his brother, George D. McGrath, who is president of the Villanova Club of Southern California, and is at present a Captain the United States Army Engineering Corps stationed on San Nicholas Island, off the coast of California.

To Keep In Touch With Alumni

In commenting upon his new duties, Fr. McGrath expressed the hope that he would be able to carry on the alumni work manifest in the labors of Banmiller and William G. Slaughter. Under present war conditions, Fr. McGrath said, the activities of the various Alumni Clubs throughout the country have been greatly curtailed. Yet he hoped, through the efforts of the Alumni Office, to keep in touch with the clubs and especially those Alumni in the armed forces, through the service record published in the Alumni magazine, the "Alumnus."

Concerning the latter, Fr. McGrath said, "We are attempting to collect and preserve all data of our men in the armed forces and would greatly appreciate the cooperation of all Villanova men or their parents, relatives, and friends in this regard. We would like to augment this record with a picture of the person in the service together with any newspaper clippings — giving name and date of teh newspaper, excerpts from personal letters, or any other information of interest. All such material should be sent to the Alumni Office, as soon as received."

Doyle Wins Bond; Drive Successful

Jacques Mauch, president of the Student Council, announced that William J. Doyle, junior mechanical engineer, was the winner of the twenty-five dollar war savings bond at the raffle held on Wednesday, March 24, at one o'clock. It was stated that about 700 dollars worth of stamps and bonds were purchased by Villanova students during this two-week drive.

The war bond was donated by the Student Council in order that the lagging interest in the purchase of stamps and bonds on the campus might be stimulated. For a person to obtain a chance on the bond, it was necessary for him to buy a twenty-five cent war stamp from a council representative. This automatically gave him an opportunity to win.

Said Mauch, "I think that the fellows here in the college responded quite well to our request to put their extra money into war stamps. The amount we sold in the past two weeks may not seem to be a great deal, but considering that the entire drive was conducted on the campus, I feel that we accomplished much. I hope that Villanova students will continue this fine work."

Council Sponsors Red Cross Drive

Goal Set Higher Than In Other Years; Aim To Support Fighting Men

Yesterday began the Student Council's war-time edition of their annual Red Cross drive. For the past few years, it has been the custom for the Student Council to devote several weeks to a concerted effort to obtain funds for this organization, but president Jacques Mauch has announced that this year's drive will be on a much larger scale than that of any previous year.

By narrowing the field of their endeavor and setting in view a definite goal, the Council hopes to make the drive more real and personal to the individual student. The object will be to provide the Red Cross with funds necessary for caring for our fighting men.

Will Provide Comforts

Red Cross officials have announced that they are able to provide all the comforts within their ability for a single American service man during an entire year for the sum of ten dollars. This figure amounts to three cents a day, and it is expected that many fighting men can be provided for with what will be collected from the Villanova students.

When the students consider the enormity of the task which confronts the Red Cross and the manner in which they are undertaking it, the Council feels confident that the returns will be much higher than in former years.

Drive To Be Pressed

In commenting on the drive, Mauch said, "We realize that many of the students will not be able to afford ten dollars, but those who can should be urged to make every possible effort to support this noble work. Every student should set a one dollar minimum as his contribution."

Ample opportunity will be provided for the students to make their offerings. Members of the Council will be assigned to the various halls, and a representative will be at a desk in the Mendel Hall lobby on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

'Doc' LaDow's Death Mourned By Friends On College Campus

The sudden death of the corner druggist, Claude Spenser La Dow, on Sunday, March 28, was mourned by his many friends from both the Villanova campus and the surrounding community. "Doc," as he was affectionately called by the students, passed away quietly in the Bryn Mawr Hospital of pneumonia following a cold which lingered with him for over two months.

The store, located on the corner of Spring Mill Road and Lancaster Pike, was popular with the students and frequently visited by them for a "coke" and a few words with "Doc." Many graduates from Villanova now in the armed forces had been corresponding with him, and cards he received from them post-marked from places all over the country may be seen on the large mirror behind the soda-bar.

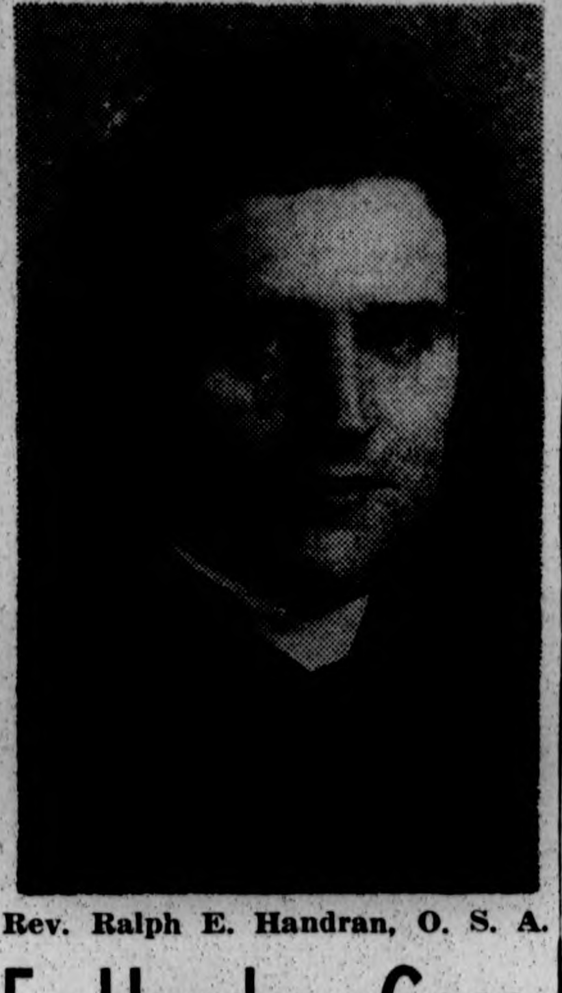
Whether or not the store will continue its service of thirteen years standing depends on the ability of his wife to secure a pharmacist.

Engineers Nominate Officer Candidates

Nominations for officers of Phi Kappa Pi, Engineering School fraternity, for the summer and fall terms are now being accepted. In order to be eligible, candidates must be active members in good standing. A list of these members is posted on the bulletin board.

Anthony Mannino, junior mechanical engineer, has been appointed to make arrangements for the presentation of the Carl T. Humphrey Award. This award, inaugurated last summer by the fraternity, is named after a former dean of engineering. It is given to the outstanding freshman engineer and will be presented at the graduation exercises in May.

Becomes Lieut. (j.g)



Rev. Ralph E. Handran, O. S. A.

Fr. Handran Goes To Naval Station

Former Music Director Assumes Roll As Chaplain In Navy At Sampson

Lieutenant (j.g.) Ralph Ellsworth Handran, Ch. C., U. S. N. R., left for the Naval Training Station at Sampson, N. Y., on Thursday, March 25. Leaving his duties at Villanova as professor and head of various musical groups, he was assigned as chaplain at the motor torpedo boat house. This, however, is only a temporary assignment, and he will receive other orders in the near future.

Fr. Handran was ordained in June, 1937, in Washington, D. C. He received his A. B. degree here at Villanova in June, 1934, and in June, 1938, he obtained his Master of Music degree at Catholic University. During the summer of 1938, Fr. Handran also did graduate study in music education.

Directs Musical Societies

For three years before his ordination and for one year after being ordained, Fr. Handran led the Augustinian Choir in Washington until he received his first appointment to Villanova College in 1938. Since coming to Villanova, he has been the director of choral groups here as well as at Rosemont College, and he had charge of our band before his sudden call. Symphonic bands both here and at Immaculata College have been under his supervision, and he was the director of the annual Immaculata-Villanova concert.

While at Villanova, Fr. Handran taught both music and American literature. He was counsellor for three years at Alumni Hall and for one year in Austin Hall. Fr. Handran has also been a well-known figure on the Rosemont campus where, since 1940, he has acted as chaplain.

Debaters Conclude Ursinus Schedule In Three Meetings

Betta Gamma, Villanova's debating society, traveled to Collegeville, Pa. last Friday evening to engage Ursinus College in a twin forensic meet.

The topic under discussion was the national question on World Federal Union. Two debates were held simultaneously in different rooms. While one Villanova team upheld the affirmative side of the question, another in the next room was defending the negative. Wilfrid Gagen, Junior C. & F., James Connelly, Junior Arts, and Frank Cahill, Senior C. & F., represented Villanova in the affirmative, while Thomas Sullivan, Freshman C. & F., and Louis De Simone, Senior Arts, composed the negative team

After each round of discussion the judges gave their criticisms of the debater's technique in presenting and developing his views.

Two members of Ursinus College's team had visited Villanova two weeks ago. Friday's session culminated relations between the two schools for the present debating season.

College Selected For V-12 Training Program In July

Minimum Quotas Assigned To Villanova For Basic, Pre-Medical, And Engineering Curricula

Word has been received in the form of an official letter from the Navy Department that Villanova has been selected as a site for a Naval training school under the new Navy College Training Program to begin on or about July 1. Minimum quotas have been assigned to date for basic, pre-medical, and engineering curricula.

Ask what effect, if any, this Naval program would have on the present student body, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, replied that no great changes are anticipated inasmuch as the college year has already been operating on the basis of three equal terms per year as calld for under the V-12 Program.

Summer Term Starts on July 1

The next scholastic term will begin on or about July 1 and subsequent terms on or about Nov. 1 and March 1.

Fr. Stanford pointed out that it is probable that for the first term at least, there will be relatively few Naval students entering due to the fact that there are about 300 of the present students enrolled under V-1 and V-7 programs which will be transferred into the new V-12 program. Civilian students will be carried on as usual and new students will be admitted at the beginning of each term.

As the VILLANOVAN goes to press it is understood that the prospectus of the Navy program is now in the hands of the college officials. It is also rumored on good authority that the prospectus calls for thirty minutes of calisthenics every morning before breakfast except Sunday. The time schedule for classes, laboratory work, and study periods will total fifty-eight hours per week, Monday through Saturday, inclusive.

Decorations Set For Convocation

Fr. Vrana In Charge Of Plans; Dignity To Be Keynote Of Affair May 3

Decorations for the Centennial Convocation to be held here on May 3 have been planned by Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., of the engineering faculty. As simplicity was the keynote of decorations which Fr. arranged for the Pontifical Centennial Mass last summer, those for the coming celebration are being chosen to conform with the dignity of the occasion.

The exterior of the Commerce and Finance Auditorium and of the Field House will be decorated with American, Papal, and Villanova flags, similar to those used at the Mass. The ceiling of the interior of the Gymnasium will also be hung with flags.

Delegates from the various colleges and others in attendance at the convocation will occupy the floor alone. The dignitaries of the occasoion will be on the stage, which will be appropriately decorated to enhance their seating arrangement.

A silk banner displaying the schools' coat of arms will be used against a backdrop of a black velour curtain. A cluster of American flags will be on either side of the stage, bordered by ferns.

SINCERE REGRET

In the name of the faculty and students of Villanova College, the VILLANOVAN offers its condolences to Rev. Charles F. Kropp, O. S. A., on the death of his mother on Thursday, March 25.

Let's Ration Complaints

TWO weeks ago the resident student body was told by Fr. Stanford that because of the point rationing put into effect by the government a definite lessening in the amount of food available in the cafeteria would result. Almost immediately his words became an actuality, and the residents found that their meals were restricted in not only choice but also amount.

The reduction up to the present time has been far from drastic, but, in contrast to the supply of food to which the students were formerly accustomed, it has brought a decided bit of ill feeling on their part. Perhaps because it is difficult for them to realize the necessarily large amounts in which foods must be purchased in contrast to the quantities which their parents are accustomed to buy, they do not consider that it is almost impossible to acquire them.

Certainly they are aware that even their mothers cannot provide the family with the amount of food normally used and are having difficulty obtaining many products such as meat, butter, fresh vegetables, and particularly canned foods. For unrationed products the prices may be exorbitantly high or the demand so much larger than the supply that it is almost impossible to get them.

If these troubles are true of the individual families, and everyone will agree that they are, it is obvious that it must be an immense problem to procure food for some 450 students residing at the college. No one will deny that the effects of war are not pleasant, and the majority of the students will face any hardships that may result if they have a clear understanding of the difficulties involved. After viewing facts and logically weighing the problems on hand, it should be little to ask each resident to have patience and sympathize with those trying to do their best to ease the situation.

China Points The Way

FROM all the multitude of agitation for post-war planning and actual suggestions of programs to be followed in that period, one fact alone thus far stands forth as undeniable.

The most Christian, most intelligent, most practical suggestions of secular origin yet made public have come from pagan China.

Supposedly less advanced in civilization and religious development than either of her English-speaking allies, China has sent to this nation as her representative a woman who has proved to be one of the foremost Christian thinkers and speakers in the world today—Madame Chiang Kai-Shek.

While men of this nation who have never seen the smoke of battle harangue their listeners with a creed of hate, she who has seen her beloved countrymen bear all the horrors of war through long years of ruthless invasion quietly enunciates the God-given principle that we must hate sin but love the sinner.

While others devise diabolical schemes of human revenge and degradation or paint roseate dreams of ethereal freedoms, she judiciously expounds the Vatican-born truth that only a peace founded on Christian charity can possibly endure.

Unless the eloquent oratory of this great Oriental can win the attention of our government before she returns to her own troubled homeland, it well may be that the weakest voice at the council of the United Nations after victory will be the wisest.

Meet The Boys:

Joe and Bob From The South Come; In The Labs They Make Things Hum

By GEORGE HOBERG

WITH the advent of spring, conversation quite frequently swings to a discussion of the weather. So it is by a somewhat far-fetched analogy, that your columnist this week turns the spotlight on two young men whose lives have apparently been very much affected by changes in climatic conditions.

Michael Joseph Daly, first of "the boys" interviewed this week, chose a sultry July in 1921 to favor the world—or, more specifically, New York City—with his presence. Finding his desire for a cozy atmosphere unsatisfied even by the stifling heat of the big city in midsummer, Joe spent his first three months in an incubator.

Braves Northern Climate

After a little "warm-up," our northern (??) climate was just too, too cold and clammy for him, so his parents finally yielded to his persuasions and moved south. Joe found Orlando, Florida quite comfortable, and remained there to attend St. James High School.

Winner of a citizenship award for "scholastic record and good fellowship" during his senior year, Joe decided to risk braving the icy winds of a Pennsylvania autumn in search of higher education. Venturing north in September, 1940, he matriculated in Villanova's science department as a pre-medical student, thus beginning a highly successful career.

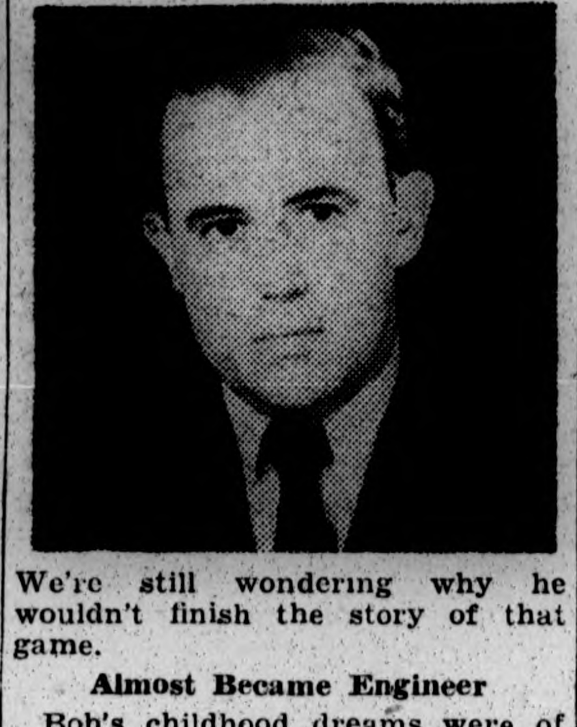
As a sophomore, Joe was elected vice-president of the class of '44, and became secretary of the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity. He served on the staff of the Belle Air for three years, and has been a sports writer for the VILLANOVAN for the past two years. Last season he played tennis with the varsity squad.

It is rumored that quite a few of the boys from Fedigan Hall contribute (financially, of course) to his education by playing pinochle with him, but the ever-present expenses incurred by an interest in the fairer sex serve to keep him pretty well on par, economically. Plenty of personality and an accent that has been dubbed "southern bronx" enable Joe to "wrap 'em around his little finger"—at least, so says his roommate.

Enrolled in the Navy's V-7 program, Joe would like eventually to become a Navy doctor. A confirmed optimist, he thinks life is wonderful, and expects much of the future. His ambition is to be "just a good doctor," and, as was to be expected—"to practice in a mild climate, such as that of Florida or California."

THIS half of our column is devoted to another advocate of the sunny south. Robert Edward Lind was born in New Orleans, Lousiana, in September, 1921. Unlike Joe, Bob takes a somewhat impartial stand on the weather, and so suffered no great inconvenience when his family moved north about seven years ago for business reasons.

He attended Chamindale High School, in Mineola, Long Island, where he was chairman on the senior prom committee and served on the business staff of the yearbook. Quite a baseball player, Bob started to tell his interviewers about the championship team on which he was a catcher, and the play-off game in which he played the first few innings, when one of the "lookers-on" mentioned something about Mickey Owen. Oddly enough, he just stopped talking, and told us to forget about the baseball angle.



We're still wondering why he wouldn't finish the story of that game.

Almost Became Engineer

Bob's childhood dreams were of engineering, but when he entered Villanova in 1940 he decided he would rather be a doctor, and so chose the science school. Two brothers, now in the service, preceded him here. John graduated from the school of Commerce and Finance as an honor student, but Ray was inducted into the army during his junior year in January, 1942.

Bob acted as band manager for four years, but was forced to give up that position during the latter part of the past season because of increased scholastic pressure. He was photography editor for the Belle Air, and was on the committee for last August's Summer Hop, and has been an active member of the Sanctuary Society for four years.

Likes Variety

When asked about women, he laconically insisted that he maintained "just the usual Villanova attitude." As if we didn't know, we asked him to explain his statement. He said that he believes it well-expressed in the adage "variety is the spice of life."

Bob like friend Joe of the previous biography, is a dyed-in-the-wool card player. An honorary member of the celebrated "Fedigan Hall Bridge Club," he is owner of a somewhat dubious reputation with the pasteboards, as is evidenced by the fact that he is widely known as "faux pas" Lind.

State Grants Charter

With the new start things moved ahead quickly. Three young members of the Order arrived from Italy and were added to the faculty. A charter was granted to Villanova College by the State of Pennsylvania, on March 10, 1848, and it began its legal existence. Seven incorporators were named and the first meeting of Trustees was held May 7, 1848. Fr. O'Dwyer was named president, Fr. Harnett, vice-president. The now stable organization sped plans for expansion. The first of Villanova's several "new colleges" was started in April, 1848, and was completed the next February. It measured 80 by 55 feet, and stands today, the east wing of Alumni Hall. It cost $11,958.74, and at the Commencement of 1849 Fr. O'Dwyer, the president, announced that the college was out of debt.

An advertisement in "The Catholic Instructor," Feb. 17, 1849, sums up many points of interest, and is here reproduced. "The location of this college is remarkably healthy and pleasant; it is only ten miles from Philadelphia, from which it can be reached in an hour and a half by the Columbia Railroad or Lancaster Turnpike.

"The new building erected last summer is now completed; it contains six large class-rooms, a hall for studies sixty by fifty feet, and fifteen feet high, two dormitories of similar dimensions, with wash-rooms, playrooms, etc. Whether pupils pursue the general course of studies or confine themselves to particular branches will be left to the option of parents or guardians.

SAILING, sailing - - around the first of July" was the theme that was heard rather frequently this past week when all these fellows in V-1 and V-7 received those large brown envelopes. The reactions were ones of eagerness to start sailing, and thankfulness that we were spared those false rumors and erroneous dates associated with the E. R. C.

With only a few more months of grace left, the majority of the fellows are really storing up a lot of dates and rare times to remember when a rifle will be on their arms instead of a nice blonde. . .

A-TISKET:

Bob Kelty is going to get a kink in his neck due to those long phone calls that come in every evening from Norristown. . .and frosh, Don Reinhardt was burning the mails to tell the truth to Carol about the alleged mixup with some of the local belles. . .now that spring is really beginning to be felt it seems the time is ripe for Joe Kerrigan to be heading down West Virginia way. . .is it true that John "Moose" Murray is giving a heavy rush to Molly McCabe, a co-ed at Penn. . .Joe Donnolly, one of the more quiet men on the campus, was seen over at Rosemont with one of the fairer coeds. . .

The Loyola "Loyolan" came up with this one. . .A militant daughter of Liberty accosted a farm lad who was milking a cow. "And why," she demanded, "aren't you up at the front?" "She doesn't have any milk up there," was the none too ingenious reply. . .

'Cat Capers was a bit in error when it reported that Leo Hin, a recent grad, was engaged. This seems to have been an unfounded rumor . . . humble apologies, Leo . . .Lem Wentling and Marie Bowers of Rosemont seem to have not let a mere two years absence stand in their way of some pleasant reunions. . .why does Joe Lamperiello go over to New York instead of getting off the trains at Newark where he should? . .

Brad Johnson and Gail Kane are getting to be as smooth as Southern fried chicken. . .why it is that the heavy regular correspondence between Phil Koen and Maria has dropped off to a slight trickle? . . . in tune with the popular song, John May would rather be a private with Liz than a colonel with an eagle on his shoulders. . .a lot of the fellows have been asking Jim "Lover" Keays to show his Rosemont matric card or to explain his methods with the coeds there . . .Bob Roualt is now a full fledged college man with a date with Terry to chalk up for his credit . . .the word to describe Jim Bradley for the past few weeks was "downhearted," for after seeing Janet his condition was really bad. . .

THIS IS IN THE BASKET:

Condolences to Bob Fitton—the lad is having tough luck with the gals; none of them will write to him; perhaps that is the reason he doesn't go home so often. . .Tom Delehanty was rather chagrined because our spring vacation did not fall at the same time as Penn State's. . .Unpatriotic is the word that describes George Shahood's writing to a girl while the other fellow is in the Army. . .

The question of the week is "How old is Dick Ryan?" Answers should be forwarded to the corner of Lancaster and Merion Avenues . . . Jack Kramer has been going home to Bayonne for periodic checkup at the local hospital—your health, Jack? Norm Kordwitz, Don McDonald, Ben Paradee and Bob Gruss were very much the gentlemen about the town escorting coeds from Penn Hall. . .

Trackmen Place Second In K of C Mile At Cleveland

Fordham Winner In Final Indoor Event; Annapolis Scene Of First Open Air Competition On Saturday

By BOB BOLGER

Villanova's Mile Relay team closed its indoor track season a week ago last Saturday night when it finished second in the annual Knights of Columbus meet in Cleveland. This was somewhat of a disappointment to the experts, as victory had previously been conceded to the Wildcats.

Fordham, which previously had been beaten by the Blue and White three times, took first and Colgate third in the comparatively slow time of 3.25.6. The 3.23.1 time which the Wildcat foursome compiled in the New York A. C meet still stands as the best time of the indoor season.

Possess Enviable Record

In looking back over the board campaign, however, Villanova's Mile Relay team is seen to possess an enviable record. In the six meets in which it met the outstanding relay teams of the country, the Blue and White took three firsts, one second and two thirds. No other indoor Mile Relay quartet can this year boast of such a record.

The Millrose Games in the Garden, which opened the indoor season, saw the Wildcats carry off first place in a 3.24.8 clocking. The New York A. C. meet was also another win for the Blue and White and in the excellent time of 3.23.1.

K. of C. Comeback

The loss of Johnny Di Carlo before the I.C.4-A competition somewhat handicapped the team and it finished third. The National A. A. U. event followed, with the Wildcats again third and with newcomer Harry Keefrider doing a splendid "fill-in" job. Keefrider really showed his "stuff" when in running the fastest lap the Blue and White took the Knights of Columbus Relay in New York.

To George Guida, "Dutch" McCarthy, Bob O'Sullivan and Harry Keefrider much praise is due for their admirable performances. The loss of their coach, "Jumbo" Elliott, in the beginning of the season and anchor man Johnny Di Carlo still found them on top.

Freshmen Participate

The intercollegiate indoor season now closed, the Wildcat foursome will travel to Annapolis next week for an outdoor meet. This will be the first meet of this kind this season and much is expected. With such a splendid record behind them, the Wildcats will be favorites in the Mile Relay event.

Villanova's Freshmen track team entered the Camden A. A. U. meet on the same day that the Varsity was in Cleveland, but the yearlings were also not too successful. Bob Regan took a third in the mile, while Ed Fitzgerald and Frank Hinnencamp finished fourth and fifth, respectively, in the 600 yard event. Throuhg their efforts, four points were garnered toward the team title which was won by the Shanahan A. C.

Many of the freshmen who participated in the competition at Camden, will also be on hand for the Annapolis meet.

Intramural Baseball, Softball Leagues Start Spring Program This Week

Twelve Hardball, Twenty-Two Softball Contests Listed; Tennis Enthusiasts Await Favorable Weather

By DAVE WARD

Within the next week Villanova's Spring Intramural sport schedule will start functioning with two softball leagues, one for Day Hops and the other for Residents, a baseball circuit, and a tennis tournament.

The hardball teams were first to get under way as Fedigan met Austin, defending champion, and Mendel met Alumni on Sunday, April 4 at 10:30 A. M. and 1:00 P. M., respectfully, with Fedigan and Alumni coming out the victors by scores of 9-3 and 26-14. These teams will play on Sundays, and one team will play each of the other aggregations twice.

The Day Hop Softball league will get under way either today or tomorrow, with five teams competing. The teams will use the names of Major league nines. The clubs will be led by Bob Simpson, Fred Gerngross, Johnny Wilson, Frank Bruni, and Bob Koob, respectively, who have been chosen as captains.

These aggregations will meet one another twice and games will be played on the first four days of the week at 12:35 P. M. with Friday in reserve, if Jupiter Pluvius decides to misbehave.

Winners to Meet

Tonight will witness the first game of the Resident softball league, with Austin meeting Fedigan, and Alumni, the holder of last year's crown, tackling Mendel.

Referring to the Resident Intramural program last week, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., the president of Villanova, issued the following notice to all contestants: "Because of the accelerated program and the heavy scholastic demands made upon the students, intramural games will be scheduled on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays. The recreation time on Tuesdays and Thursdays will be extended 15 minutes past the study bell or until 7:45 P. M. The students are asked to cooperate with Father McKee by their promptness in reporting to Chapel and then to the field on time."

Phi Kappa Pi bowling league closed last Saturday, the Sophomore Day Hops taking the championship by six full games. The Sophs posted a new three game scratch total of 2447 pins in putting the championship race on ice.

Jim Cahill took the prize this year for the high single game as his 236 posted two weeks ago stood against all comers. Joe Barnes, a freshman rolling with Junior Civils, came through this week to take high average from Cahill by .66 pins. Barnes' average for the year was 160.43, Cahill's 159.77. "Angie" Rosa posted the best high three as he came through with a 559 three game total.

Next week the singles sweepstakes will be held, the winner gaining possession of the Connelly Trophy. This Trophy was donated by Bill Connelly, one of Villanova's most ardent rooters. The sweepstakes will be run on a handicap basis. Each man who enters will have added to his average eighty percent of the difference between his average and 160.

Bill Connelly is one of the most widely known men in bowling circles throughout the city. He manages to sponsor nine bowling teams in the city and still finds time to roll a mean game himself. For years he has been a Villanova follower and rarely misses a football game whether it be in Cuba, Texas, or in Shibe Park. When he was informed that Villanova's Engineers were sponsoring a bowling team, his love of bowling and his loyalty to Villanova combined to give the league this beautiful trophy to be awarded yearly to the man posting the highest average in the sweepstakes at the end of the regular season.

Jacobsmen Meet Lehigh At Bethlehem Next Week; Fordham, Pennsylvania, Manhattan Highlight Nine Game Card

By JIM CARBINE

Villanova's wartime baseball schedule, released for publication last week, shows the problems arising in intercollegiate sports. Up to this time, the Main Line school has not been affected to any great extent in major sports, but this year's diamond schedule shows a decided decrease in the number of games to be played. This is caused for the most part by the transportation difficulties involved in playing "away" games. Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A. Director of Athletics, stated that the schedule was made out with that difficulty in mind, and although suffering from the loss of so many men in the services, the Wildcat team will carry on in true Villanova fashion.

The teams scheduled are neighboring colleges, at the most a few hours' train ride away. The season opens with Penn State next Saturday at Villanova. With the majority of their lettermen returning, the Nittany Lions will be a stiff opening test for the Jacobsmen. On the following Saturday Villanova will journey to Bethlehem, Pa., to meet Lehigh. Although Lehigh was not scheduled last year, it has always proved a tough competitor in previous years.

Fort Meade Pending

There is a pending date set for the game with Fort Meade which is to be played at Villanova. The game with the Coast Guards from Philadelphia is definite but no set date has been agreed upon. Father McGuire hopes to be able to fill the schedule with other service teams and is presently working with that end in view.

On April 24, Manhattan will come to the Main Line to avenge its defeat of last year, a 13-12 slugfest which was won in the last inning. The following week the Blue and White diamonders travel to New

ALTHOUGH it's true that the days are now getting warmer and consequently most of the Physical Training classes will be held on the football field, there will still be many occasion on which it will be necessary to hold workouts in the gym. The majority of students usually arrive for their body - building sessions about ten minutes ahead of time and some even as much as half an hour before the "fall in" whistle is blown.

The natural question arises: "What are these early comers to do from the time they arrive at the gym until the official signal to begin class is given?" By far the most popular and certainly the most natural choice, with five baskets on the gym floor, is to make up separate games of basketball. That is precisely what everyone would do, were he permitted to use one of the many basketballs which are in the custody of the gym attendant.

est gymnasiums and most beautiful basketball courts in the country, the general student body is no longer permitted to take advantage of this facility.

Nor is the lack of cooperation on the part of the authorities limited to the fifteen or twenty minutes before P.T. classes. This time is used as a classic example because it is then that most of the students are affected by the prohibition.

Up until a month ago, the students were not hindered in this respect, the only requisite being that they sign out for the ball, and then turn it in when they were finished with it. This was, we think, fair all around. The students realized that some check must be made or dire consequences might be the result. Why there has been such a sudden change in policy, however, is beyond our comprehension. What possible harm can result from a group of students playing a spirited game of one of America's most popular sports for a few minutes before a Physical Training class?

We sincerely hope, therefore, that the next week will bring a general clearing up of the matter, and that if there be a misunderstanding somewhere along the line, as we think there is, that it will be rectified as soon as possible.

York to meet Fordham in what will undoubtedly prove to be the game of the season.

The next three weeks bring Lehigh and Muhlenberg to Villanova, and the Wildcats to River Field to engage Pennsylvania.

Temple Game Out

For the first time since relations have existed between Temple and Villanova the Owls will not play the Wildcats in baseball this year. The reason is that Temple made up its schedule and the dates that were left conflicted with Villanova's present schedule. There were usually two contests between the two teams.

The squad has been outdoors about a week and although the first team has not yet been decided upon, it will be ready for Penn State. In practice last week Dick Breen hit a homer with the bases loaded, and the next time up banged out a triple. Frank Chaplar will be the chief hurler and will see plenty of action. In last week's practice he looked as if he were in fine shape and will undoubtedly be the mound choice on Saturday.

Engineers Named Committeemen

New Appointments Made For Inter-Fraternity Ball To Be Held May 7

Phi Kappa Pi, engineering fraternity, has announced that seventeen men have been selected to represent Villanova's engineering society in the arrangements for the Inter-fraternity Ball, which is to be staged in the Field House on Friday evening, May 7. The dance, which is being sponsored by the four college fraternities, will serve as a climax to Villanova's social season this year, featuring the music of the Villanovans from 9 till 1. ed that assisting Louis Eni, junior engineer, who is acting as chairman of the refreshment committee, will be Peter D'Onofrio, a junior, and George Giacchino an Thomas Dougherty, both accelerated seniors. As members of the decoration committee, which is under the leadership of Gene T. Pinto and Edward J. Elman, seniors in C. & F. and engineering respectively, P. K. P. has named three seniors: Thomas Dolan, Samuel Burruano, and George Baird; juniors: Anthony Mannino, Arthur Roth, and Edward Brennan; and the following sophomores: Harold O'Connor, Angelo Rosa, William Regii, William Steiert, and Frank McGuinn.

Place Orders Early

Two juniors, John Allen and Herbert Bansback, and one senior, Dennis Boyle, have been appointed to the blind date committee. All students desiring to obtain blind dates are urged to contact either Joseph Daly or Donald Cryor, co-chairman of this committee, as soon as possible in order to secure the best results.

As yet, all the fraternities have not submitted their list of representatives on the various committees for the affair, but it is expected that the entire dance committee will be completed this week. General co-chairmen, William Craven and Robert Simpson, have asserted that the ball, although informal, will be one of the most outstanding and successful events that have been presented on the campus this year.

Tickets for the affair which will be priced at $1.65 per couple will be on sale within the next week. They may be secured from any member of the ticket committee of which Joseph McEvoy is the chairman. A full list of the students on this committee will be published on the bulletin boards as soon as they have passed the office of Dean.

Music Seminar To Hear Tschaikowsky's Concerto

Tomorrow's music seminar is scheduled to feature a program of piano and orchestral music. Among the highlights will be the presentation of the first movement of Tschaikowsky's "Piano Concerto."

Recordings of Liszt's "Liebestraum," Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in C Sharp Minor," and a number of Chopin's waltzes will also be played.

Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, director of the weekly seminar, announced that the program is open to the suggestions and requests of the students.

Physics Class For V-1 To Be Held April 16

Of interest to those students enlisted in the Naval V-I Reserve is the announcement that Rev. John H. Crawford, O. S. A., professor of Physics, will hold a refresher course in physics on Friday, April 16, at 12:35 P. M. All Naval students are urgently advised to attend the class in preparation for the examinations to be given by the Navy on April 20.

A.S.M.E. Attends Meeting

Herman Behnke, president of the Villanova chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, revealed that members of the organization attended a convention of all the chapters in this district at Drexel Institute of Technology last night. He also announced that the election of officers for the new term would take place this week.

Prominent Educators To Be Present At Centennial Convocation

Scholarship Exam Set For April 17

Three Partial Scholarships To Be Awarded On Results Of Comprehensive Tests

An announcement was recently made by the Registrar's Office that competitive scholarship examinations will be conducted on the campus next Saturday morning. These examinations are held annually each Spring to aid in the selection of three Catholic young men to be awarded scholarships to Villanova College.

The test is a comprehensive one designed to measure the general knowledge and achievement of the students in subjects that are usually required in secondary schools. These studies may be grouped under four main headings: English usage and literature, algebra and plane geometry, general science, and social studies.

New System Initiated

Changes have been made in the manner of applying the scholarship money to the payment of tuition in order to conform with the accelerated course of studies, but the total amount of the awards remains the same.

The sum of $1,000 will be allotted to each winner. Formerly this amounted to a $250 deduction from the student's bill for one scholastic year. Under the present system, a stipend of $150 will be credited against each semester's expenses.

Catholic young men who are high school seniors and need financial help to assist them through college are eligible to apply for examinations. Award of scholarships will be based upon the need for financial aid and the results of next Saturday's test. The scholarships may be put into use either at the beginning of the summer term or at the start of the semester next fall.

High Schools Get Details

Details of the examinations were sent to all the Philadelphia high schools as well as many others from outlying districts in order that those desirous of participating might send their applications to the Office of the Registrar before the day of the examinations. Each entry bears the signature of the principal of the competitor's high school as a mark of his recommendation.

Activities of the day will begin at 9 o'clock when the participants will assemble in Room 106, Mendel Hall. The examination will begin at 9:30 and ends at 12:20.

March 'Engineer' Features Newly Designed Cover

The long heralded change in cover design for the Villanova "Engineer," monthly publication of the engineering school, became an actuality last Friday with the appearance of the March issue of that magazine.

This new cover design, a product of the skill and labors of John M. Millet, the Engineer's photography editor, has as its dominating feature a large letter "V." In this "V," a different picture and color scheme will be presented each month.

Since this was the first appearance of the design, the picture chosen for the "V" was appropriately, one of the college campus, and the colors were those of our national flag.

Two electrical engineers explained different phases of radio engineering in the principal articles of the magazine. George A. Baird, senior president of the college chapter of the American Society of Electrical Engineers, wrote a discussion on "Radio Communication." Hitio Takeuchi, a sophomore, gave a more detailed description of one phase of radio work, "the microphone."

C. & F. Frat Cancels Members' Key Orders

Delta Pi Epsilon, C & F. fraternity, at a meeting last week, decided to return the down payment made on fraternity keys to the members. It would be impossible to have the keys before the middle of summer and the members decided that due to the unsettled conditions which exist it would be wiser to dispense with the keys for this year.

Plans were also made for the formation of softball teams to play in a league similar to that conducted by day-students.

The members were also urged to co-operate with the members of the Inter-fraternity ball committee since the D. P. E. is one of the fraternities which will be represented

Staff Meeting Today

All members of the college staff of the VILLANOVAN are requested to attend an important meeting in the VILLANOVAN office today at 1:10 P. M. It is imperative that every one be there on time.

Plans Completed For Guild Party

Villanovans To Supply Music For Dancing; Girls' Colleges To Attend

Rev. John J. Coffey, O. S. A., director of the Augustinian Seminary Guild, has announced that plans for the forthcoming Card Party and Dance on May 4 are proceeding satisfactorily and that he is confident that the affair will be a success. Approximately 700 persons are expected to attend. Music will be provided by the Villanovans, the student orchestra, and dancing is to be held from 10:30 till 1:00.

In his first year as head of the Guild, Fr. Coffey has inaugurated many new features in an attempt to outdo the successes of former years. The administrative bodies of Rosemont, Immaculata, and Chestnut Hill Colleges have been contacted, and they have assured Fr. Coffey that many students from their institutions will be present at the affair.

Emphasizes Spiritual Nature

Fr. Coffey, who has emphasized the spiritual nature of the organization since the time of his appointment, has also announced that he intends to keep in contact with those who have aided him in making arrangements for this Card party. He will conduct days of recollection and spiritual retreat for them at some time in the future.

This annual card party and dance is the only event which the Seminary Guild sponsors. Its main purpose is identical with the purpose of the Guild itself; namely, to obtain funds for the support of the various houses of study maintained by the Augustinian Order for the training of seminarians.

Support Religious Houses

In explaining this, Fr. Coffey pointed out that there are many of these houses and that the cost of supporting them is high. In addition to St. Mary's Hall, which is situated on the campus, the House of Postulants at Staten Island, N. Y., the Good Counsel Novitiate at New Hamburg, Pa., and the Augustinian College in Washington, D. C., rely on the Guild as their principal source of income

Fr. Coffey, in extending a cordial invitation to all students in the college to attend the affair, expressed his assurance that they will cooperate to the fullest in supporting this worthy cause.

Outstanding Men Named To Speak At Convocation

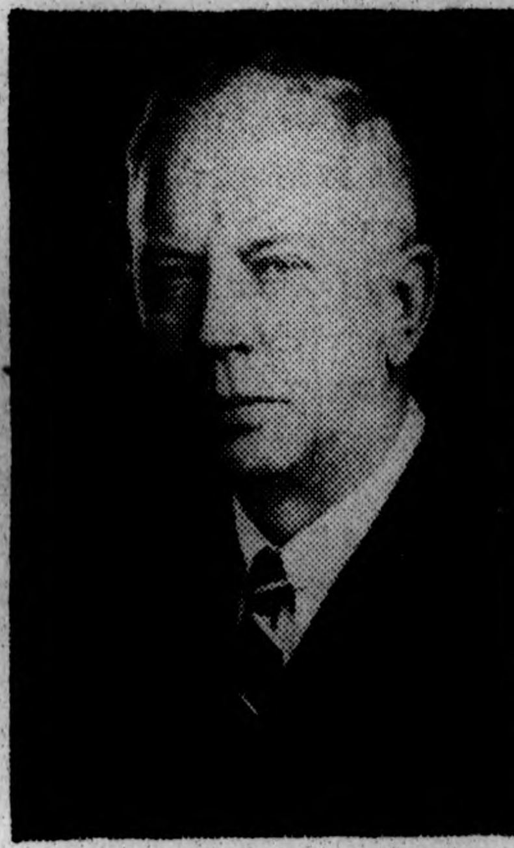
Chancellor Tolley, Governor Martin, Fr. Sheenan, Fr. Stanford, And Lewis Will Deliver Addresses

Chancellor William Pearson Tolley, Ph. D., D. D., LL. D., Litt. D., of Syracuse University, has been recently announced as the principal speaker of Villanova's Centennial Convocation to be held on May 3. Chancellor Tolley, widely renowned as an eminent educator, will walk in the formal academic procession in company with the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., M. S., LL. D., president of Villanova, from the School of Commerce and Finance to the Field House where the ceremony will take place.

The Chancellor is now president of the Association of American Colleges. Formerly he was president of Allegheny College and president of the Association of College Presidents of Pennsylvania. He will be arrayed in the traditional cap and gown appropriate to his rank, and will occupy the place of honor in the auditorium.

Governor Martin to Speak

Following the Convocation ceremonies, there will be an informal luncheon for the assembled dignitaries. At the luncheon, Governor Edward C. Martin of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will deliver an informal talk. The Governor was formerly Auditor General of Pennsylvania. He also served as Major General of the 28th Division of the U. S. Army.



GOV. EDWARD C. MARTIN

According to the program drawn up for the celebration, an invocation prayer will be recited by Rev. John T. Sheenan, O. S. A., S. T. D., J. C. D. Now in his fifth year at Villanova as Chairman of the Board of Trustees, Dr Sheenan holds the position of Provincial of the Eastern Province of the Augustinian Order.

After the invocation, Fr. Stanford will give a formal address of welcome to the many representatives and delegates of the various colleges and universities as well as to the students and friends of the college present. Fr. Stanford is now serving his eleventh year as president of Villanova College. Besides his position here, he is acting as a member of the educational board of the War Manpower Commission.

Music Precedes Address

The president of Lafayette College, William Mather Lewis, LL. D., L. H. D., D. D., D. H., will deliver the response to the greeting address in behalf of the delegates and distinguished visitors. He is a former president o the Association of American Colleges and was once president of George Washington University. He also served for a time as director of Selective Service.

Several musical selections by the Villanova College band will precede Chancellor Tolley's address. Immediately following, Fr. Stanford will award honorary degrees to several of the dignitaries. The program will be concluded with a prayer offered by Rt. Rev. J. Carrol McCormick, D. D., present Chancellor of the Arch-Diocese of Philadelphia.

Support, Don't Criticise

ALTHOUGH it seems unavoidable on every college campus to hear criticisms about the Student Councils, many of the critical remarks against this organization on the Villanova campus are unnecessary and unjust. Few, if any, stop to consider the work that the council has accomplished through the thankless efforts of its members.

It has always been the guiding hand for the orientation of incoming freshmen; it has directed the election of class officers; it has aided the various clubs and fraternities; it has acted as mediator between students and the faculty; and it has done all in its power to obtain a fair recognition of the legitimate complaints of the students. Since the effect of war has accelerated the classes and disrupted their organization, the council has taken over the duties of promoting dances and other normal class functions, held drives for the advancement of the war effort upon the campus, and in general striven to do its best for the interest of the student body.

Especially are criticisms ironical when a few weeks ago nominations for class officers were held for two successive weeks, and only a handful of the students were present. This naturally meant that they were called off. How in the name of common sense can full representation of the classes on the council be acquired if no one shows sufficient interest to elect the students they think best suited?

Instead of promulgating hasty complaints, why not remember that it is the students who elect the council men and their interest or disinterest is directly reflected in the council's actions? To give the student council credit for their efforts might prove to be an advantage to the student body.

History Teaching Poor

EVERY now and then the New York Times comes out with an editorial that sets up a nation-wide controversy. Such was the case when paper revealed the results of 7,000 freshmen in 36 colleges, which showed that they have "virtually no knowledge of the country's historical background."

According to the survey, for example, 25 per cent of the students tested did not know that Lincoln was President of the United States during the Civil War. This pathetic showing would seem to indicate a definite failing in the methods of teaching history now generally practiced in our high schools.

Too much emphasis, for one thing, is placed on the sequence of cut and dried facts without relating them to their proper niche in the whole panorama of past and present events. How can a student be expected to grasp the fundamentals of our great history when he is given a long list of names and dates to memorize. These facts for the most part are soon forgotten, with the result that the student has nothing but his credits to show for his course in American history.

Instead, teachers should strive to impress upon their pupils the broader aspects associated with each individual event, and, if possible, how that event fits in with present trends and occurences. By so doing, the unretainable facts will be sacrificed for a more general knowledge of the entire subject. Besides, information presented in this manner would tend to increase the student's interest, and as a result, the proportion of the material remembered would be increased considerably.

Meet The Boys:

'Cat Capers Is Bill's Joy And Pride; In Joining Clubs, Lou Hits His Stride

By JERRY LEE

STRANGE indeed are the little tricks of fate which go so far toward fashioning the lives of men. One notable example is that phenomenal "accident" which occurred a few years ago when William Stanford Swan by mistake caught the express train for Villanova when boarding what he thought was the local to Princeton.

Born in 1922 in Portland, Maine, "the finest place in the world" (maybe the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce won't like that! ! !), Bill attended Deering High School of that city. There his athletic interests centered around swimming and baseball, and his business tendencies led him to serve on the advertising staff of the yearbook.

Heads Spanish Club

He matriculated at Villanova in the Commerce and Finance School in 1940, and started the scholastic ball rolling by hitting the honor roll in his very first semester.

Among his many extra-curricular interests we might mention his devotion to the band, Spanish Club, Glee Club, and as a sophomore his singular joy as a member of the orientation committee. As an outstanding Spanish student, he was recently elected to the presidency of that club. Particularly noteworthy is Bill's work on the VILLANOVAN, in which he became interested last year. The finest of his labors have been those weekly classicisms of wit captioned "'Cat Capers."

Likes Advertising Work

Favorite pasttimes include reading (he has a wide reputation as a bookworm) and sailing. Strangely enough for such a handsome specimen of personality, Bill takes the "nothing serious" attitude toward women.

After he obtains his B. S. in Economics from our C. & F. school, he is majoring in marketing, Bill hopes to attend Columbia University via the Navy's V-7 program. When the war is over, he intends to enter the commercial advertising business.

Summing up his four years at Villanova, Bill stated: "Everybody says college years are a man's best; they certainly have been for me—and that's none of Swan's soap! !"

AFTER several unsuccessful attempts at cornering "day hop" Louis A. Merlini, we finally caught up with him during the second period last Friday. If Professor Blumenthal missed Lou during that period, we hope he understands now.

Lou first saw the light of Philadelphia on July 23, 1922. His early years were spent between St. Mary's School and Shibe Park, where he rabidly cheered the then powerful Athletics aggregation.

The year 1936 found the scene of his scholastic endeavors shifted to Roman Catholic High School. Here he swam, played intra-mural football, and was coxswain on the crew. He distinguished himself by missing only one football game and making frequent visits to Hallahan Girls' High.

In his freshman year here, Lou was initiated into Phi Kappa Pi, engineering fraternity, and has since become a members of the honorary math clubs Mu Alpha Theta. As a sophomore, he was elected treasurer of the math society, joined the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, and served on the "Owl Hop" committee.

He rated the distinction of presidency of the math society in his junior year, was elected to the post of sergeant-at-arms of the A. I. Ch. E., and was chosen secretary of his class.

When he is not devoting time to a multitude of club activities or to intramural softball, one may find him centering his interest around a certain Marjorie, whom, we are told, is mutually "that way."

Because of his accelerating courses last summer, Lou expects to graduate this September. Some day, after the war of course, he would like to work for his master's degree.

As for personal tastes, Lou is a devotee of classical music, spending practically every Wednesday in rapt attention at the music seminar.

He thinks that Chemical Engineers make the best husbands and hopes to tie the proverbial knot with Marjorie in the near future—after he has taught her how to cook.

100 Years At Villanova

(This is the fourth in a series of articles relating the history of Villanova as written by Rev. Thomas F. Roland, O.S.A. and Rev. Thomas F. Gilligan, O.S.A. in the "Tagastan."—Ed.)

WHEN Fr. O'Dwyer presided at the Commencement of '49, it marked his last public appearance. He was taken to a hospital in Baltimore soon after, and died there May 24, 1850. Fr. Hartnett succeeded as president. The college advanced under his administration, and growing numbers brought more attention to problems of discipline. The new note appears in the advertisements he sponsored, and which carry the first picture of the institution. He noted "the system of government is mild and paternal; yet a strict observance of established discipline is invariably exacted."

The "jug books" which survive show the details of this exaction. Penalties were inflicted for breaches of the rules, and there were plenty of rules. Students rose at 5:30, retired at 9:00. Studies and classes were from 8:30 till noon, 2:00 to 4:30, 5:00 to 6:00, and 7:00 to 8:00.

There were four recreation periods daily and three for prayers. Silence was kept in study hall, washroom, dormitory, and refectory. Eight things were forbidden: liquor, tobacco, snuff, bad conduct, absence, idleness, negligence, and injustice. Surely, Utopia was the aim of these early disciplinarians.

Dr. Moriarty returned from Europe on the death of Fr. O'Dwyer, with the assignment of commissary general. He took over the presidency of Villanova College in 1851, and held it till 1855. He enlarged the monastery and improved the studies. The degree of Bachelor of Arts was awarded for the first time at Villanova at the commencement of '55. Fr. Harnett resumed the office of president, and the master's degree was awarded in '57.

These awards would seem to mark the coming of age of the college. As a matter of fact, they climaxed a long series of difficulties that forced the closing of Villanova after that commencement in 1857.

The services of the priests were needed in parishes far-scattered and growing; the work of spreading the Order kept some of the Fathers far from the home base; and the multiplying of subjects taught put too great demands on the faculty. Times were hard, money was scarce, and the "panic of '57" was on. The college bowed before the storm, and closed for the second time. The farm continued, and milk from Villanova was peddled through the streets of Philadelphia. During the years of the closing the twenty-seven students were educated at the monastery, mostly clerics of the Order. During the same period the Augustinian Fathers took over the care of parishes in the diocese of Boston and Albany. "The Chronicle," in its issue dated July 1, 1867, stated that "Villanova was used as a hospital during the Rebellion.'

THE Centennial Year, although drastically curtailed by the wartime conditions, is entering into its last and by no means least stages. From the look of things the Convocation will be something to remember and to tell your grandchildren about. To whet the appetite of the students and prepare them for the big day many and varied events are to take place in the near future.

For the bridge and whist sharks there is the card party, and 'tis rumored that there will be no lack of pleasant partners. So practice up on your tricks, fellows, and follow suit by heading for the Field House.

The Blue and White Ball should be an interesting evening. The Spanish Club will be putting on the dog in honor of Cervantes at Conestoga at the end of the month, and last, but most important of all, will be the Inter-fraternity Ball to close the year and draw the curtain on college days for many of us.

Keeping in tune with the seriousness of the times are Bob Casey and Nancy Lee. . .A regular occurence on Saturday evenings is the dating of Frank Labor and one Nancy from Immaculate. . .Carton Conway finds that Fedigan Hall is a very useful base for operations for the spring offense as well as defense. . .Perhaps the many air mails received every week is the main reason that "Senor" Lopez wished to head back to Puerto Rico.

To "Saratoga Charlie" whose letter appeared in the "help wanted" column of the Bulletin: . . .you, my lad, are in a dilemma. Lose your hair and go bald, or keep your hair and go steady. . .all this is due, by the way, to showers taken during the basketball season.

That keen interest was shown on the part of the students can be seen by the following bits of student advice. . ."Don't bother to take showers". . ."Put two dollars on Saratoga's hair". . ."Saratoga, fight to save track; La Belle, fight to save hair". . .Extra! That Notre Dame and Villanova have one thing in common can be seen by reading and trying to digest the following story. . .With the golfing season about to open and the shortage of golf balls in store for the golfers, may the "'Cat Capers" suggest that the dining hall contribute about six dozen of the mystery meat balls so often served . . .Upon the presentation ceremony Mac might say "You can't top our mystery balls." And in unison, fellows: "You can't slice them either." Thanks to the "Scholastic."

Guida Stars In Defeat For Wildcats, Winning 100, 200 Yard Events; McCarthy, Rideout, Lillienthal Also Victorious

Despite the efforts of Villanova's undermanned track squad at Annapolis, Maryland last Saturday afternoon, the Wildcats came out on the short end of an 88-38 count in a dual meet with the Midshipmen of the U. S. Naval Academy. Greatly outnumbered in every event, the Blue and White runners, although winning their share of first places, could not cope with the plentiful reserve strength of the Middies. The Main Liners fared well in the track events, as they split eight first places evenly with their opponents, but Navy walked away with the field events, winning the high jump, broad jump, pole vault, shotput and javelin. In the high jump, pole vault, shotput and javelin. In the high jump, javelin and broad jump, the Middies made clean sweeps, taking first, second and third places.

9.9 "Century"

George Guida was the big gun for the Wildcats, as he garnered first places in both the 100 and 200 yard dashes. He toured the "Century" in 9.9 seconds, and was clocked in 21.9 seconds for the 200 yard event.

Guida's three teammates during the recently concluded indoor season, when the Wildcat Mile Relay quartet won three first places in six starts, combined to give Villanova its only clean sweep of the day, that being in the quarter-mile. "Dutch" McCarthy crossed the finish line the winner in 50.9 seconds, but right on his heels were Bob O'Sullivan and Harry Keefrider.

Freshman George Rideout gave Villanova its fourth victory in the track events, when he crossed the finish line the winner in the 120 yard high hurdles race. His time for the distance was 16.5 seconds.

Bill Lillienthal garnered the only points for the Wildcats in the field.

Rolls 237 In Second Game Of Winning Series; Correale, Miller, Elman Finish In Money; Butera, Barnes Win Exhibition Match

By JIM BONNER

Saturday afternoon saw the close of one of the finest seasons that the Phi Kappa Pi Bowling League has had to date. The sweepstakes were held with Joe O'Donnell coming out on top with a 562* three game total. Joe was definitely on as he came through to also take the prize for high singles game for the afternoon. He managed to topple 237 pins on his second attempt.

The afternoon was full of excellent bowling. Some of the finest kegling of the season was seen as several dark horses came through to finish in the money. In the second place was Jimmy Correale, as he posted a 554, eight pins behind the pacemaker. Correale, who was a threat all season, found himself and rolled one of the best series that he has had since the season began nearly three months ago. In third place was Jimmie Miller of the Junior Civils. Miller, who had never had a series that could be called exceptional, came through to cop the third place with a 535 total, his best of the campaign.

Two Prizes

Ed Elman, who represented the senior M. E. Residents this season, took fourth place with his 522 total. The prizes for the first four places ranged from the Connelly Trophy and five dollars for first place to two dollars for fourth position. O'Donnell also took the prize that was offered for the high singles game of the day.

An exhibition match was held between Mary Snyder and Bill Connelly who opposed Charley Butera and Joe Barnes. Miss Snyder is the present Pennsylvania State Woman's champion. Charlie Butera holds the title of Philadelphia Match game doubles king, while Bill Connelly is known to all as the most ardent of Villanova rooters. Joe Barnes, who rolled with the Junior Civils during the regular season, held down the high average slot in the bowling archives.

Barnes and Butera won the match as they picked off 1128 pins to 1004 for the opposition. Mr. Butera was high, as he came through with three two hundred games to post a 635 total. Barnes was able to finish up with 493 for his day's work. Miss Snyder posted two 167 games and sandwiched a 212 between them to gain a total of 556. Bill Connelly ended his day with 448.

WITH the advent of the first baseball game of the season last Saturday afternoon, we wonder where the majority of the student body was during this initial contest against Penn State. Stretching the figure to the limit, we still can't say that there were more than seventy-five students in attendance.

With the encounter being staged right here on the campus, there is no reason at all why the turnout for a baseball game can't number four or five hundred. If there were a charge for the game there might be some excuse for the laxity on the part of the Villanova student body, but with the presentation of a matriculation card being the only requisite for admission, it seems that no valid excuse can be offered.

We will admit that Saturday was a cold, blustery day for basebal, but this is no reason why there shouldn't have been a much larger group of spectators at the contest. At football games, when the cold is much more intense, there is no trouble at all in getting almost the entire student body out to witness the gridiron contests.

As no valid excuse can be offered, the only reason for the lack of attendance seems to be the indifference on the part of the students. They are apparently too indolent to bother walking down to the gym. These same "slackers" were also the first to criticize the inexperienced nine when it lost a heartbreaker in the twelfth inning, 3-2.

We hope, then, that for future home contesst, there will be a turnout creditable to a college which numbers eight-hundred students.

Penn State Ekes Out 12th Inning Victory Over 'Cats

Nittany Lions Register 3-2 Win Over Jacobsmen In Hard-Fought Battle; Wildcats Meet Lehigh At Bethlehem On Saturday

By JIM CARBINE

Villanova opened its baseball campaign last Saturday by bowing in defeat to Penn State, 3 to 2. After twelve innings of tight playing by both teams, Orient Martela blasted a double into deep center field enabling "Chuck" McFarland, first baseman who had singled, to cross the plate and break the tie.

Penn State wasted little time in scoring its first run in the initial inning. Flowers reached first on an error by Bill Sullivan, advanced to second on a sacrifice, and scored on McFarland's double. The side was then retired in quick order. State again scored in the fifth inning with McFarland in the leading role. With one out, he reached first, this time on an error by Gene Adair, and advanced to third on Jack Burford's single. A slight dispute developed on the next play, however, when on Martella's fly ball to Joe Pezelski, both runners advanced after the catch and Burford was called out at third. The altercation arose over whether or not McFarland had crossed the plate before the out. The ump ruled that he had, and the run was good.

Stover Commits Balk

The Wildcats, who hadn't showed any power at the plate up to this point finally broke loose and tied the game. Joe Koproski moved to second when pitcher John Stover walked Al Postus, who had just replaced Doug Boyd at first. Stover then balked, enabling both to advance. George Shahood then batted in both runs with a sharp single over second base, and the game was all tied up.

9th Inning Scare

All was quiet until the ninth inning when a scare was thrown into both teams. In the first half of the inning Ed Flowers reached second when Captain Billy Sullivan overthrew to first. As in the first frame, Ed Sebastinelli moved Flowers to third on a sacrifice. With only one out Frank Chaplar took an active part in the putout by snatching Dale Bowers' hit and throwing to Sullivan, who in turn threw to Joe Mahalek at the plate for the out.

Load Bases

George Warner started off Villanova's half of the inning by singling to right, Sullivan and Mahalek both grounded out, but advanced Warner to third. Stover intention-

Fedigan, Alumni Lead Residents

Gigoloes, Frosh Have Record Of One Win And One Tie; Austin Drops Two

Villanova's Resident Intramural Softball League opened with a "bang" last Tuesday night on Mendel field when Alumni-Mendel and Austin-Fedigan Residents squared off.

The Intramural League is again being directed by its founder, the Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., and his able assistant, Tom Sullivan. In the spring games of last year, Austin copped the title while during the summer term, Fedigan came out on top. The opening of this spring's play found a well-rounded league with many dark-horses forecasted. Both Alumni and Mendel showed much in practice games and seem serious contenders along with the always strong Austin and Fedigan teams.

Lowney Excels

Alumni showed considerable power when on Tuesday evening it crushed the Mendel Residents by the lopsided score of 13-2. The Green batsmen opened with a heavy barrage of base hits in the first inning which produced seven runs and coasted into the win. The "big guns" in the Alumni attack were Wally Breen, who collected a double and single, Bill Savage, who garnered three doubles in three times at bat and Bill Lawney, who mixed a very neat pitching assignment by socking a home run and a double with the stick. The Mendel Residents collected only one base hit, but took advantage of walks to gather their runs.

Fedigan Wins, 10-8

In the other game, played Tuesday evening, Fedigan "eked" out a 10-8 win over Austin. Jim Hobbs, Joe Daly, and Ken Breitzke were the big guns for Fedigan, while Bob Barrett, "Brook" Di Girolamo and Stan Zeeman led the Firemen. This game was very closely-contested, and it wasn't until the final out that it was decided.

In the encounters staged Thursday evening, the Mendel Residents came back from their defeat of Tuesday to beat Austin by a 7-3 score, and Alumni and Fedigan played to a 5-5 stalemate. A great defensive game, along with timely hitting by Bob Corbett, Bill Koerner and Bill Lamb led the Mendelites to their well-deserved victory. Norm Kordwitz and Bob Barrett turned in fine performances for the Kemmemen.

5-5 Stalemate

The most exciting game of the early season was the contest played between Alumni and Fedigan. Quite a large following from both halls watched the game and did their utmost to "bronx" both pitchers. Charlie La Belle went all the way for the "Gigoloes" and so did Bill Lowney of Alumni. The Green led all through the game and built up at one time a 5-1 lead but Fedigan kept hacking away until the score was tied and darkness forced a halt.

Szal Hits Homer

Joe Boischki hit a homer and a single, and Lowney, besides turning in another splendid mound performance, collected a double and a single. Joe Szal, with a homer, led Fedigan, while Ed Quinn and Hal Cutrone also sparkled in the field as well as at the plate. During several parts of the game, the going became so tense it was all Fathers Girolami and McCarthy could do to keep peace amongst both teams as well as the spectators.

Though the first week of play saw victories turned in by Alumni and Fedigan, it doesn't prove in any way who will dominate the league, as Austin and Mendel are far from out. With such a great beginning displayed last week by all the teams, however, this spring should se even better and more hard-fought games.

Gigoloes, Frosh Tie For Lead In Baseball Circuit

Continuing their winning ways, Fedigan and Alumni halls overcame their opponents in the Intramural Baseball League last Sunday afternoon by scores of 12-11 and 12-10, respectively. The Gigoloes took the Mendel Freshmen into camp in a free for all contest, while Alumni defeated the Austin Firemen in the day's other slugfest.

Opening the hostilities at 10:30 A. M. was the contest between the charges of Fathers McCarthy and Kemme, representing Alumni and Austin Halls, respectively. Bill Lowney, star softball moundsman of the Frosh aggregation, took the mound for the Greenies, while Normn Kordwitz assumed the hurling duties for the Firemen.

7 Runs in First

Kordwitz was met with a seven run barrage in the opening frame, and was eventually replaced on the mound by Tom Burns, who finally checked the offensive surge of the Freshmen. Austin bounded right back in the second stanza, tallying six runs, with the result that Lowney was replaced on the mound by Al Mamzic.

Putting together four more tallies in the next four innings, Alumni went into the first half of the seventh with a comfortable lead, but the Austin batsmen really went to work in this frame, and scored four runs to knot the count at 11-11. Faced with the possibility of extra innings, however, the Frosh, with two walks and two bingles, crossed the plate with the

Browns, Dodgers, Cards Defeat Day Hop Rivals

By DAVE WARD

This past week saw the opening of the Day Hop Softball League as the Browns beat the Yankees 15-12, the Dodgers thumped the Phillies 10-0, and the Cards walloped the Reds 7-3.

The opening game of the league was played on Wednesday, April 7, between the Browns and the Yanks in which the former were the victors, by a 15-12 score. The game was featured by the long hitting of the Browns as Ray Hill hit the first home run of the season in a first inning eight-run barrage which drove pitcher Joe Coursealt of the Yanks from the mound. However, the Yanks managed to stage a last inning rally which fell three runs short as Bob Koob pulled a "Casey" and struck out to end the game.

De Luigi Stars

The following day the Dodgers, composed of the winners of the Summer league, come out on top of the Phillies as Tony De Luigi pitched a one-hit shutout. He was by far the outstanding performer of the week, as time after time he struck out his opponents or forced them to ground weakly to the right side of the diamond. While he was doing this, his mates were having a field day on the offerings of the Phillies pitcher, Graziano leading the way with two long doubles.

In the last game of the week, on Friday, April 9, the Reds lost a tough one to the Cards by a 7-3 score. Scoring five runs in what was almost the first half of the last inning, they went ahead 8-7 . Before the Cards had finished their turn at bat, however, the bell rang and the game had to be called. Consequently, the score reverted to that of the previous stanza and the game went down in the books as a loss for the Reds.

The announcement was also made last week that two new teams have been added to the Day Hop League. These aggregations, however, having just been organized, were not able to play any contests as yet, and will have to make up these contests this week. The new clubs are from the Commerce and Finance School, but the names which they will assume is not yet known.

winning tally. Mamzic received credit for the win, while Burns was declared the loser for the Firemen.

With Jim Hobbs taking the mound for the Fediganites in the afternoon game, the minions of Father Girolami were also the victims of a first inning assault, the Mendel Freshmen putting together four hits and a walk for a total of three runs in that frame. As a result, Hobbs left the mound post in favor of Charlie Labelle, of softball fame.

Fedigan, although tallying one run in the same stanza, didn't find its hitting power until the later innings. Tally three, two, four and two runs, respectively, in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth innings, the Gigoloes seemed well on their way to a one-sided victory when they took the field for the last half of the sixth frame.

Mendel came to life in this stanza, however, putting together a pair of singles, four walks and a hit by pitcher, to cross the plate with five much-needed runs, and make the score 12-10.

ally walked Joe Koproski to get at Postus, but Postus went to first after being hit by the pitcher. With the bases loaded Stover saved his own game by striking out George Shahood.

It was a pitching battle from then on until the twelfth when McFarland's double ended the game.

Frank Chaplar, only senior on the squad, twirled the entire game for the Wildcats, giving up nine hits and three walks, while striking out seven. Stover, for State, allowed five safeties, six walks and fanned the same number.

Heath Lehigh Star

George Warner played a beautiful game at shortstop and brought the crowd to its feet in the seventh inning with a wonderful stop and a long peg to first to nip the runner by two steps.

This coming Saturday, the Blue and White travel to Bethlehem to meet Lehigh. So far Lehigh has played two games, those being against Muhlenberg and Temple. It nosed out the Mules two weeks ago, 3 to 2, and went down in defeat last week, 10 to 1. Jeff Heath, shortstop, has proved himself quite capable at the plate as well as being a good infielder, by collecting three hits in five trips to the plate in the Muhlenberg game.

GIVE HIM A BREAK!

From 7 to 8 in the evening is the peak hour for long distance calls. It's then that telephone lines are most heavily burdened.

It's then, too, that most men in the armed forces have an opportunity to call home from camp and navy yard.

You'll make it possible for their calls to go through more quickly if you will, whenever possible, avoid the busy hour of 7 to 8 when making out-of-town calls.

You can also help to keep war-time telephone service fast and accurate if you will make your long distance calls on a station-to-station basis and call by number.

When you first learn a telephone number that you may wish to call again, make a note of it so that you will have it next time you call.

Twelve Dignitaries To Be Given Honorary Degrees In Law, Literature, Science, And Military Affairs

By GEORGE HOBERG

At the forthcoming Ceintennial Convocation, twelve nationally prominent personages are to be awarded honorary degrees for outstanding work in various fields, including those of law, literature, science, religion, education, and military affairs. The presentations will be made by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., President of Villanova, immediately after an address by Chancellor William P. Tolley of Syracuse University.

The degree of honorary Doctor of Laws will be conferred upon the following dignitaries: His Excellency, Edward C. Martin, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; William Pearson Tolley, Chancellor of Syracuse University; Rt. Rev. Monsignor J. Carroll McCormick, Chancellor of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia; Rt. Rev. Monsignor Michael J. Ready, General Secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Also honored will be Rear Admiral Milo F. Draemel, U. S. N., Commandant of the Fourth Naval District; Major General James A. Ulio, Adjutant General of the United States Army; Rear Admiral John J. Brady, U. S. N. (Ret.), Vicar Delegate and Military Ordinariate; Thomas J. Love, S. J., President of St. Joseph's College; George P. Rea, President of Drexel Institute of Technology; Brother Emilian James, F. S. C., President of La Salle College.

In addition, an honorary Doctorate of Literature is to be given to Anne O'Hare McCormick, noted lecturer and journalist, while Doctor Harold Walter Jones of the Jefferson Medical College will receive the degree of Doctor of Science.

The following are biographical sketches of these dignitaries in the order in which they are to receive their degrees:

Major General Edward Martin, Governor of Pennsylvania, has long been distinguished in the fields of military and political science. As a major in the Pennsylvania National Guard during the World War, his conspicuous bravery under fire merited him the Distin-

April 23 Set For Cervantes Dinner

The annual Cervantes Day banquet, conducted by the members of the Villanova Spanish Club, will be held on Thursday evening, April 29, at the Conestoga Mill in Bryn Mawr. Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A., moderator of the Spanish Club, announced that this date has been definitely set, although in the past it has been customary to hold the celebration on the poet's birthday, April 23. Since that day falls upon Good Friday, however, the celebration has been set for the date after the Easter vacation.

Fr. Lozano announced that the guest of honor and principal speaker for the occasion will be the Spanish consul. An extensive program of entertainment will follow the dinner, and prizes for the best composition and poem about Cervantes will be awarded. The first prize will be the annually bestowed Columbia University prize.

Members of the Spanish Club will feature a series of songs of Spanish origin which have become popular in this country; they will render these songs in the native Spanish. Harry Waters of the Spanish Club will be the accompanist for these selections . Following this, two Spanish motion pictures will be presented: "The Spanish Civil War," and "Old Romantic Madrid."

Fr. Lozano has extended an invitation to all members of the Spanish Club and to all students interested in Hispanic affairs to attend.

Reserve Program Fully Described

Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., Military Liaison Officer, has released the following information pertaining to members of the Navy and Marine Reserves of Villanova.

Students now in the reserves of the navy and marine corps will be expected to continue their collegiate studies. On or about July 1, 1943, but not before, all Villanova undergraduates now in any navy reserve will be called to active duty. These students will be given free tuition, board, and room, and paid $50.00 a month as appentice seamen, or marine privates, 7th grade. They will be dressed in the standard sailor's uniform or marine private uniform and made subject to navy discipline.

Will Remain Here

Since Villanova will participate in the Naval College Training Program, the navy reservists will all remain at Villanova regardless of their "major" field of study. While these reservists (classes V-1 and V-7) will be housed with the apprentice seamen brought to Villanova as part of the Naval College Training Program, (V-12), and be subject to the same personal discipline, they will not be subject to the prescribed V-12 program of study. They will continue to follow their present course of studies on a calendar basis of three terms per year, subject only to completing

150 Colleges to Attend Program Set for May 3

Procession To Start At 10:45 A. M. At C. & F. Building; Students Aid Requested To Insure Success Of Academic Celebration

By GERALD LEE

According to the office of the president of the college, final detailed plans have been formulated for the Centennial Convocation which will be held Monday, May 3.

Approximately 150 colleges and universities, a veritable cross-section of academic America, will be represented by various presidents, deans, and alumni. Distinguished personages from the educational and military fields will make up the bulk of the prominent guests of the day.

The program for the event follows:

At 9:30 A. M., the registration of official delegates will commence in the first floor classrooms at the Commerce and Finance Building. Donning of caps and gowns will take place immediately afterwards in the C. & F. auditorium. Special guests, including those who are to receive honorary degrees and members of the College Advisory Board, will assemble in the C. & F. faculty offices without registering.

Procession Begins at C. & F.

Promptly at 10:45, the academic procession will begin from the C. & F. building. It will be led by the marshalls and will be comprised of members of the Villanova faculty; members of the Board of Trustees of Villanova; delegates and representatives of institutions of higher learning; recipients of honorary degrees; and, finally, the president of the college, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., M. S., LL. D., and Chancellor William Pearson Tolley, Ph. D., D. D., L. L. D., Litt. D., of Syracuse University, speaker of the occasion. All other visitors, including the parents and friends of the students, will be directed to the Field House where separate seating accommodations have been arranged.

Fr. Stanford to Speak

At the Field House, the termination of the academic procession, the Convocation will open with the singing of the National Anthem and the delivery of the invocation by Very Rev. John T Sheehan, O. S. A., T. T. D., J. C. D., chairman of the Board of Trustees of Villanova

The welcoming address will be delivered by Fr. Stanford. This will be followed by several appropriate choir selections rendered by the seminarians with organ accompaniment. Chancellor Tolley's oration will immediately follow this interlude.

After the presentation of the honorary degrees and the close of the Convocation ceremonies, an informal luncheon will be held in the Field House for the official delegates and special guests. Here a talk will be delivered by Governor Edward C. Martin of Pennsylvania.

Students' Help Urged

Classes will be suspended for the day, and it is expected that student volunteers will expedite various functions as traffic directors, ushers, campus guides, etc.

"The success of the Convocation," said Father Stanford, "will depend in a large measure upon whether or not our guests are made to feel 'at home.' The cooperation of all the students will be necessary if our guests are to carry away with them the impression that there was some order and system to the celebration, and that the students were enthusiastic and were helpful and friendly to them."

EASTER VACATION

Easter vacation will commence on Thursday, April 22, at 12:30 noon for all students. Residents are to return by 8:30 on Easter Sunday night. Classes will resume as usual on Monday morning, April 26.

Committee Aides Chosen For Ball

Ticket And Decoration Committee For Inter-Frat Dance Announces Names Of Members

Co-chairmen William A. Craven and Robert H. Simpson have announced the names of the various committee members for the Interfraternity Ball to be held on Friday evening, May 7, in the Field House.

The following men have been appointed to assist chairman Joseph McEvoy in order to insure the widespread distribution of the tickets: William Devine, C. & F. junior; Stanley Zeeman, science junior; and two C. & F. freshmen, Joseph Foley and John Fitzgibbons. Tickets will be on sale starting Monday, April 19, and may be purchased for $1.65 from any of the above named men. The dance will be held from 9 to 1 in the Field House, with music furnished by the Villanovans.

Decorations Present Activities

The decoration committee, under the direction of Gene Pinto and Edward Elman, has announced the addition of the following members: John Newell, a C. & F. senior; and four sophomores: James Daly, Louis Jakovic, Thomas Eadon, and Hugh Burns. According to present plans, the decorations will feature the four campus fraternities represented in their various school activities.

Co-chairmen Elman and Pinto promise distinction and originality in the design of all decorations, and indicate that plans will include displays significant of the respective fraternities. Tentatively, the science school will be represented by their traditional test tubes and beakers; engineers by their slide rules and "T" squares; the C. & F. students by their balance sheets and ledgers; artsmen by their crossed quills and globes. Like motiffs will be carried out through all other decorations. Specially designed props are being constructed and all details are being carefully worked out.

Listen To One Who Knows

THE present world conflict has thus far produced one great American general—Douglas A. MacArthur. To him has been assigned the task of holding the yellow hordes of Japan at bay until the Nazi menace in Europe has been destroyed.

For the accomplishment of this, a skeleton army of land, sea, and air forces has been assigned to him. Already the remarkable victories achieved over Japanese naval strength have caused a wholesale return among American civilians of the once-discarded theory that the little man from the Orient can easily be disposed of, once Uncle Sam turns her full attention to him.

This foremost American military strategist has examined at first hand the concentration of Japanese forces in the southwest Pacific, and has presented the urgent appeal that more planes be sent to him immediately if a Nipponese invasion of Australia is to be met successfully. In the face of this, Secretary Knox from his office in Washington has decided that the threat of Australian invasion is not imminent and that MacArthur's need is not urgent.

That the threat of Nazism is greater than that of Japanese imperialism is a postulate which can best be left to military experts to accept or decline, but there are two factors which must be taken into consideration when an apportioning of strength is made

First, MacArthur's forces face a Japanese army enriched by the fruits of early conquest alone, while our European forces engage the Germans in common with British and Russian allies. Second, if we now lose more ground in the Pacific, fighting the way back later will cost ten-fold in lives and materials what holding it now would.

Let us put faith in the only American general who has thus far proved his temper in the fire of battle, and send him at once these materials which he considers essential to the holding of his position.

—T. M. S.

Retain Lenten Fervor

AS THE penitential season of Lent draws to a close, the Church prepares to celebrate the glorious feast of Christ's rising from the dead, Easter Sunday. Catholics have observed the Lenten season by practicing extraordinary works of privation, reparation, and in general trying to keep the commandments of God.

After Easter the tendency of many is to relax in their religious duties as they feel that they have done sufficient for the past forty days. But is that the true Catholic spirit? Our religion is one to be practiced twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, throughout the entire year, and not only during Lent. Particularly in these chaotic times, religion is coming to the foreground as the world finds that hatred, aggression, and brutality cannot be stopped without the aid of God.

What are now being proclaimed as civic and patriotic duties are actually principles that have always been put forth by the Church to be practiced by its members. Men of all creeds on the battlefields are particularly turning to religion and God for comfort and aid; nations are slowly discovering that man without God has made the chaos that is apparent today.

Let us not feel that because Easter Sunday brings the end of the penitential season we should let up in our being close to Christ, or relax in religious duties that should be practiced ceaselessly.

100 Years At Villanova

(Ed.—This is the fifth in a series of articles relating to the history of Villanova as written by Rev. Thomas F. Roland, O.S.A., and Rev. Thomas F. Gilligan, O.S.A., in the "Tagastan." So far, it has been related how seven boys paid their tuition on Sept. 17, 1843 to become the first students of Villanova College. The school itself was located on John Rudolph's Belle Air estate which was purchased for $18,000 by the Brothers of the Order of Hermits of St. Augustine.

The institution, at that time consisting merely of one building, had barely gained its feet when in 1845 the anti-Catholic bigotry that was rampant at the time forced the college authorities to close its doors. The rioting was halted, however, and the next year classes were resumed.

As the years rolled by, the college gradually increased both in size and academic standing until monetary difficulties, caused by the great "panic of '57" forced the school to close once again.)

Chapter V.

WITH the close of Civil War things looked brighter; there were more priests in the Commissariate, some of them recently arrived from Italy. With this infusion of new blood, Villanova was ready to reopen. It did, in fact, in September, 1865 with Rev. Ambrose A. Mullen, O. S. A., as president. Six priests, five young clerics, and a lay alumnus of '57 made up the new faculty. The subjects taught were substantially those of the earlier years.

A graduate of Heidelburg and Geneva, Pierre Arnu, a layman, joined the staff of teachers in 1866, bringing a foreign university influence to leaven the faculty. Commencements were resumed in '67, and the next president, Rev. Patrick A. Stanton, O. S. A., took office in 1869. He built the first gym, 81 by 40 feet in size, and advertised it as containing "ten-pin alleys, trapeze, horse, bars, pole, etc., and striking bag."

College Grows

The first catalogue was issued in 1871. It listed a faculty and two disciplinarians. Definite courses of studies were outlined with three years of preparatory school, a four year college course in arts, a six year scientific course, and a two year commercial course. One hundred and four students were enrolled from nine states and four foreign countries. The college had a sodality, debating, and dramatic societies, Library Association, and a cornet band. The reborn college was prospering and progressing.

Rev. Thomas Galberry, O. S. A., was made president in 1872. He built the second "new college" at Villanova. It is the main body of the present Alumni Hall, added to the "new college" of '49, which became the east wing. Begun with the laying of the cornerstone on April 1, 1873, it was occupied by the students on Feb. 3, 1874. That year marked the introduction of written examinations. The following year, the Alumni Society was formed at a meeting presided over by the then Bishop-elect Galberry.

Chapel Cornerstone Laid

Rev. Thomas C. Middleton, O. S. A., took the president's office next in '76, and his administration lasted two years. During this period the grounds were improved, and the walk to the railroad station was laid out and lined with trees. Rev. John Fedigan, O. S. A., took the office in 1878 for two years also. He enlarged the monastery, adding the fourth floor.

Rev. Joseph A. Coleman, O. S. A., held the office for the next six years, 1880 to 1886. He started the present church, the third of Villanova's chapels. The cornerstone was put in place June 3, 1883, but the edifice was not finished and blessed until July 3, 1887, by which time Rev. Francis M. Sheeran, O. S. A., was president.

Academic Standards Raised

The steady building program reflected the stability of the college. Each year saw about a hundred students enrolled. The faculty remained about the same number, but standards of studies were gradually increased abreast of those of the secular colleges throughout the land. Commencements were big days in every sense. Festivities combined the outstanding features of a scholastic premiation, a ceremonial banquet, and a popular picnic. Menus still treasured show the attention given to make a visit to the Villanova Commencement a day to be remembered.

Athletic competition, as we know it, was a gradual growth. In the early days sports were homemade; marbles, handball, swimming, running and rounders are remembered. The favorite seemed to have been something called "chase the rabbit," combining the exercise of racing with the guile of foxing the prefects. Competition with outside teams started with baseball. Villanova played Radnor Farmers in 1872, and won by the modest score of 103 to 0. That year too, the Athletics, forerunners of Connie Mack's warriors, played here and won. Disgusted, Fr. Middleton wrote in the box score: "were all professionals."

Dramatics Encouraged

Theatricals had a place in college life. Usually there was an annual play, the collegians furnishing both dramatic and musical talents for the evening. Lecturers came from time to time, and discoursed on the glories of past ages or the promise of the new era. Elocution held a place of honor, and prizes were awarded each year to the champions.

So, quietly and unruffled, Villanova came to its fiftieth year. Eleven presidents had guided it. Students numbering 1559 had passed through its classrooms. Bachelor degrees had been awarded to 76 of them. It had gone from tallow candles through coal-oil lamps to the gas-lit era; warm-air furnaces fed by logs gave way to coal stoves, and these in turn to central steam-heating. The curriculum had been adjusted to met the call of the times, as such call became evident.

Golden Jubilee Celebrated

Modern in every respect, though still small, Villanova greeted its golden jubilee. This reached its climax on Commencement Day, June 21, 1893. Archbishop Ryan presided, assisted by Bishops Keane and O'Farrell. Twenty-eight degrees were awarded, a dozen gold medals, and hundreds of premiums were bestowed on deserving students. A banquet followed, and six students from Villanova's group of fifty years earlier were the honored guests of their alma mater. Toasts were made, and pledges of devotion given; the feast ended, followed by the removal of the decorations. Villanova, with fifty years to its credit faced forward.

Many Buildings Added

Those who were present at both the fiftieth and the hundredth anniversaries were able to observe the striking changes wrought in the latter half of the college's existence. If, on both occasions, one had climbed into the steeple of the church, the expansion of the last fifty years would be most vividly apparent.

In 1893 he might have seen from this vantage only Alumni Hall and the church—of the building now extant. In 1943 he would have to turn his gaze to the west to see Fedigan, Mendel, and the monastery; then moving his eyes eastward he would see St. Rita's, Alumni, Austin, St. Mary's, Commerce and Finance, and, in the distance, the gymnasium and stadium.

City Closes In

Along the old Lancaster Turnpike he would see today O'Dwyer and Simpson, the tennis courts, a strange new railway called the Philadelphia and Western, and beyond the tracks he might see the sun glinting on the little lake beyond the latest in a long succession of barns. He would note too, and not without some regret, the encroachments of suburban life; land formerly part of the campus now filled with shiny modern houses.

Doubtless he would be filled with a pleasing nostalgia for the old and better days when things were smaller and slower and easier, for such is the way with the old and loyal, the "laudatores temporis acti." But doubtless too, he would be moved with wonderment and acclaim, that so much had been accomplished with so little in so short a space of time.

Enrollment Vastly Increased

Fifty years ago the Villanova community consisted of sixteen priests, fifteen students for the priesthood, and seventy-five lay college students. Today there are at Villanova sixty priests, fifty seminarians in the philosophical department alone, and almost a thousand full-time college students. In the various summer and part-time schools there are another two thousand students. A graph of this growth would show a slow steady increase in the first twenty-five years of the half century and a more rapid rise in the last twenty-five.

Similarly, in the expansion of the physical plant, after the great building program at the turn of the century there was no more construction in the college proper until the twenties, which saw most of the present structures completed in a fifteen year period. Yet, of the faculties and schools of the college, all were in existence in some form or other early in the century, and the educational developments of the last quarter century flowed naturally from the wise advances made in the first quarter.

WITH the various sections of the campus in the process of becoming Victory Gardens, the residents of Fedigan Hall, not to be outdone by anyone, turned out "en masse" to work on that area between the hall and Spring Mill Road. Hitching George Smith and Ben Danik to a plow, the ground was turned up in short order. Old bottles, Dixie cups, Brannigan's hockey stick, a few Willkie buttons and a copy of "Steering the Boy To A Happy Marriage" were discovered in this process.

A general discussion was held as to when the planting should begin. With the unreliable Pennsy weather to cope with, this was a delicate problem. That old dirt farmer from Vermont, Bernie Haus, shifting his cud, said, "The sooner the better." Irrigation will be carried on by tapping a leaky faucet on the first floor. Led by Fr. Boyle, the gentlemen farmers were mistaken as the last of the W. P. A. workers by the nearby residents of the area.

The turnout was largely due to the fact that Joe "Good Rumor Man" Daly had started a rumor that agricultural workers were to be deferred. The big problem—what is to happen after May 23 graduation? Perhaps the answer was found in the words of one of the more disgruntled hands; to wit, "This is for the birds." Any semblance of reality is purely coincidental.

CHATTER:

More interest was shown on the part of Phil Wendel in connection with a lovely red head than with the Penn State game last Saturday . . . They are the best of friends too: Bob Bolger and "Ogle" Gretz were at a party last weekend. As an aftermath, the "Ogle" has a date with Bob's date for this week . . . Let's hope that there is no snow this Saturday evening. At Harcum's last dance Harry Waters had a smooth date, but heavy snows held him up . . . Now with another dance in the offing everyone concerned awaits to see how the weather will be this Saturday. Pete Mento is arriving at college much earlier these days . . . It seems that in order to meet Rita every morning he must leave at an earlier hour.

How about that? Jim Brecker had a date with Mary recently, and now he is suffering from a case of measles . . . Bob Lind and Jane are recovering very slowly after her episode in New York . . . Who said that there is no safety in numbers? There is a rumor floating around that Hal Cutrone has five dates for the Inter-fraternity ball . . . How about sharing the wealth with the more unfortunate brethren, Hal?

PATTER:

This is rather good . . . when Villanova was up at Ursinus on a debate, the fellows were entertained at a dance . . . Jim Connolly proceeded to look around and before anyone knew what had happened he had disappeared with one of the nicer coeds . . . The rare part comes in when he arrived back at school he discovered a fresh, new letter awaiting him at the P. O. Ted "the Smooth one" Prieto has been receiving long and interesting phone calls from Bryn Mawr . . . someone should tell him that she goes steady . . . And speaking of going steady there is always Frank Perna and Virginia . . . How come that Howie Connelly and John Brinjac have such a sudden interest in Bryn Mawr College and Ardmore? Another question is, who seems to have been the instigator? . . . If Ray Jahoda isn't careful his lines are going to be crossed by Elaine because of frequent calls to Helen at Rosemont.

MATTER:

The best one of the week is the story about Frank Chaplar throwing out with the rest of the daily papers his roommate's thesis on which he had been working like a fiend . . . Dick Yensel has transferred the scene of his operations to the University of Pennsylvania . . . And after that softball game between Fedigan and Alumni Hall last week there are all the makings of a good fued.

Letter To Villanovan, Class Of '52, Contrasts Students Then and Now

'As long as there are postmen, life will have a zest." William James.

It is doubtful whether or not William James had in mind the familiar expression on the faces of Villanovans as they leave the post office each morning, when he made the above statement, but never theless one can feel most assured that a similar attitude really prevails here on the campus today. Those sad, weary faces which one encounters on the path to the P.O. are usually the result of a futlie journey to a dust laden mail box.

Letters Always Welcome

In the progress Villanova has made these past hundred years, emerging as a Catholic institution of higher learning, it is only natural that many changes were accomplished in her development. However, it seems evident that within the student body itself, time has managed to make little change, if any, in regard to student attitudes and outlooks. Then, just as now, there was that comfort and joy found in an unexpected letter and that unlimited pleasure involved in thoughts of an approaching holiday.

Recently the library came into possession of a rather antique letter, which was written by Mrs. Hannah Quigg of Philadelphia in March, 1848, to her son, John, at that time a freshman here at Villanova, then known as St. Thomas College, and it is this which we believe will tend to prove our point:

Master John T. Quigg,
St. Thomas College
Villa Nova.

Philadelphia, Mar. 13th, '48..

My Dear little John,

We were very much pleased to hear from you and exceedingly so to learn that you are satisfied and making good use of your time. We received your little letter last Saturday evening, and feel very happy to hear of your improvement in your different studies, this Dear John will always give us satisfaction. I trust you will continue to improve Daily in your studies and still more so in your conduct. Every day you should endeavor to become more edifying and copy more closely the virtues of your beloved sister who has gone I trust before us into that Heavenly kingdom where she will intercede for you and for us all, my Dear John. That you may imitate her virtues and become like her is my most sincere wish. Be contented Dear John, Easter will soon be here, then you shall come home for a little while. I will send you a few things, as it is Lent I suppose you do not expect much. My Dear Little John again I tell you to be satisfied. If you love me you will not grieve for home. Adieu Dear John, be attentive to your studies but above all be obedient and docile to your teachers and you will please your ever affectionate Mother—

Hannah Quigg.

The above letter is a direct copy of the original which may now be seen in the library. It was graciously presented to the college by Mrs. P. F. Murphy of Mt. Airy who is the grand-daughter of the author of the letter, and the niece of the recipient. Mrs. Murphy informed Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., that the family records show that John Quigg was born in 1836 which would make him only twelve years old at the time the letter was written.

This, although it may now seem incredible, is easily understandable when one is reminded of the fact that in those days it was customary for youths to begin their college education at a much earlier age than is accepted by this present generation. It is also due to this age element that Mrs. Quigg had made such frequent reference to "My Dear little John," and in addition is the probable source for the lad's homesickness which is discussed in the brief message from mother to son.

Lonesome For Home

The college records show that there was a John Quigg registered for the year 1847-48, and then again for the years 1849-52. After reading the letter it is only natural to come to the conclusion that the lapse of a year between Quigg's freshman term and his sophomore year is also most likely the result of his homesickness.

Perhaps one of the most startling points observed in viewing the letter is the fact that it has suffered such slight deterioration in all these years that have passed by since the day it first reached its destination. Although written almost a century ago, the paper still retains much of its original firmness and quality, and the writing remains clear and legible. No stamps or postmarks appear on the letter, and in keeping with the fashion of the day, the letter was not enclosed in an envelope, but merely folded in such a way so as to provide ample protection for the contents.

Letter Bridges the Years

It appears coincidental that the letter should be brought to our attention during the same period of the year in which it was originally composed, namely the Lenten season. Then as now the students were waiting for that trip home for Easter, but we are inclined to believe that it was for a longer visit than is now permitted.

The letter in general is not a masterpiece in the field of American literature, or a valuable souvenir of some historic importance, but yet in its casual simplicity and sincerity it renders the reader a feeling of union with the Villanovan of yesterday; a link between the scholar of 1848 and the student of 1943!

Villanova's Grotto To Virgin Mary Possesses Historical Significance

By JOHN GOLDSCHMIDT

On the northern approach to the Villanova campus stands the seldom noticed and almost forsaken Grotto in honor of the Blessed Mother of God. Perhaps the seeming lack of interest that surrounds the Grotto arises from the lack of knowledge of the purpose for which it was built and the significance of its design.

To many, its unique lines may appear as a construction whose plans were not fulfilled but merely hurriedly completed so as to present some semblance of a finished building. But actually, the architecture of the Grotto bears special significance in that it was designed to express a specific idea. So, too, has its very existence a particular purpose.

Sets Difficult Goal

The Grotto was the idea and design of the Very Rev. John J. Fedigan, O. S. A., after whom the present Fedigan Hall was named, who was Prior Provincial of the Augustinian Order for the term 1898 to 1902. Envisioning the future possibilities of expansion, Father Fedigan undertook the difficult and almost impossible task of constructing two new buildings which to this day serve as the college and monastery.

To everyone but Father Fedigan this task seemed so impossible that the proposed buildings were named "Fedigan's Folly." But before the end of his term of office both buildings were erected and paid for in full. The completion of this endeavor was possible only through the unfailing work of Father Fedigan with the aid given him by the Virgin Mary.

With sincere gratefulness to the Immaculate Mother of God for her assistance to him during that time he erected the Grotto to her honor. This tribute still stands on the campus at Villanova. It is today revered as a place of reflection and consolation under the mantle of the Blessed Lady.

The secondary purpose of the Grotto was to provide a suitable repository for the Blessed Sacrament during the ceremonies of the feast of Corpus Christi. At this time it had been customary to carry the Holy Eucharist in public procession about the campus. The Grotto furnished a fitting place from which benediction was given and added much to the solemnity and sanctity of the occasion.

The design of the Grotto itself was the product of much deliberation and reflection. The plans were entirely the conception of Father Fedigan and it was through his great effort that they were completed. The idea that underlies the design of the structure is briefly this:

Its form represents a triangle which is the symbol of the Trinity or Triune God; the arch of stone and concrete represents the rolling globe or Earth. With this structure Father Fedigan signifies that the earth and people in it are founded on the God-head and that they are to be held accountable in the name of the Trinity for themselves and their actions while on the earth.

The three statues which occupy the three points of the triangle were carefully selected with due reference to the significance of the Grotto as a whole. St. Augustine's statue justly holds the head of the triangle, not only because he was the founder of the Augustinian Order and foremost among the Doctors of the Church, but also because he is the most profound expounder of the mystery of the Trinity.

St. Nicholas of Tolentine, O. S. A., is the patron of the old Academy (now Alumni Hall) and so faces that building as he asks the blessing of the Trinity upon the students within the college. St. Rita of Casia, an Augustinian nun, is the patroness of Villanova's old Monastery, the former Rudolph Mansion of Belle Air (now St. Rita's Hall), and faces that building.

Four paths converge into one point and at this spot is situated the Grotto. The Grotto is a pause at the crossing of the ways. It is a retreat where men of Villanova may find themselves and deliberate upon their relationship to God and their fellow-men.

Promotion Is Bill's Favorite Line; In The Chemistry Lab, Bob Does Very Fine

By ED LASICK

IT was a beautiful day that 30th of June, 1921. The sun was casting its majestic rays on a glorious morning of a peaceful summer. In the midst of this serenity, a commerce and finance student was born. Mrs. Craven had given birth to an heir who was to be registered in the annals of time as William Anderson Craven.

Even at this early age, Bill set about at his favorite pursuit, the gentle art of promotion. Through his influence, the Superex Noise Absorbent Cotton Company trebled its sales volume in West Philadelphia.

Attended West Catholic

Much of Bill's grammar school education was received in Louisville, Kentucky. Since leaving, he has paid many return visits to the blue grass state. Friends often wonder why Bill hasn't had a hand in the promotion of the Kentucky Derby, and how that famous event has managed to attain so high a degree of success without his assistance.

The singular honor of vesting Bill with a diploma was awarded to West Catholic High School in the Quaker town. While attending this institution, he was prominent on the staff of the publications as business manager.

Managed Varsity Teams

In 1939, Bill graced the portals of Villanova and enrolled in the C. & F. school, majoring in marketing. West Catholic's pride has not been inconspicuous in collegiate activities. He has served as track manager for four years, as well as manager of the varsity baseball team for one year. He has also engaged in intra-mural basketball and softball. Last year, Bill was chairman of the pre-Temple game decorations committee for the C. & F. Building.

Before the pressure of the war caused its curtailment, he took an active part in helping to stage the annual amateur night. He has found it advisable, however, to limit his own vocal talents to the shower.

Despite his many campaigns for promoting others into various fraternity offices, it wasn't until this year that his name made its appearance on the Delta Pi Epsilon ballot. He is a nominee for the vice-presidency.

When not sponsoring some activity, Bill divides his time between carpet-slicing and sketching. He designed the official seal for his fraternity and made many of the drawings for the Centennial Convocation decorations. February 1943 brought a tragedy into the C. & F. playboys' life. In that month his co-nuisance-creator, John Coleman, graduated. Jack is now in South Carolina with the United States Army.

Headed for Altar

Bill has two primary ambitions. One is attaining a second lieutenants' commission in the Marine Corps in which he is now a reservist. The other is treading to the altar with Marion. To most students, failures are the cause of great remorse and discouragement, but to Bill it was an upheaval. While making up a flunk at Villanova night school, he met this blonde secretary of the Maritime Commission.

CONSTRASTING with the boy you've just met, the entry of powder-mixer Robert P. Koob was greeted with icy wintry winds. The addition to the Koobs came on January 3, 1922.

Bob, often called "Smiling Jack" for the eternal grin on his countenance, has had the dubious pleasure of spending his entire life in South Philadelphia. He cannot understand the prejudices held against it. He claims his neighborhood is the most misrepresented part of the earth, and to quote, "It's really a nice place; the people are nice too." Naturally a biased opinion from a Northeast Philadelphian could easily discredit such comments by a few sarcastic remarks. However, for the sake of charity and as an assurance against distasteful physical consequences, they will be restrained.

Plays Trombone

As might be expected, Bob chose Southeast Catholic High School for his secondary education. During his stay at that school, he began his attempts at coaxing musical notes from a trombone and played in the school band.

Bob graduated from South Catholic in June 1939 with the highest four-year average. Due largely to this record, he was awarded a four year scholarship to Villanova.

Since Santa Claus brought him his first chemistry set, Bob has held it as his ambition to spend his life inhaling sulfuric acid fumes. So it was natural that he chose to major in chemistry when he came to college.

The future concoction brewer wasted no time entering extra-curricular activities. In his freshman year he was initiated into Phi Kappa Pi, the engineers' fraternity, and became a staff writer for the "Engineer."

Excels in Math

As a tribute to his outstanding grades in mathematics that year, he was admitted as member of the Mathematics Club. In his sophomore year he joined the Chemistry Society and served on that organization's plant trip committee. During that year he also became a member of the German Club.

"Robert P. Koob" appeared on the programs of both the Villanova Immaculata symphonic band concerts. At the last concert he rendered a trombone solo. Last year this smiling chemist was found working on the Junior Prom committee.

Bob is now editor of the "Engineer." He directed the change in the cover design, replacing the familiar engineer and his transit with a V-shaped picture of the school. To his troubles as editor were added difficulties at the printer's office brought about by shortages of paper. He has organized a student affiliate of the Americah Chemical Society at Villanova.

A Lamb from Wolf St.

Despite the fact that Bob's home is on Wolf St., he maintains a misogonistic attitude toward women. He dispells the reason for their existence as merely being a social necessity. When seeking recreation, he makes his way to the nearest bowling alley.

From all outward appearances, Bob has not died as yet. Since this is the customary manner of concluding a biography and Bob has not come to such an end, this may well serve as the culmination of his history to date.

Convocation

By TOM HITCHELL

The day has ben set for the gala celebration,
May 3rd is the date for the Centennial jubilation,
One century of progress, development, and strife,
The Augustinian offering for a better type of life.
This be the reason for our Convocation day,
To pay homage and respect the Villanovan way.

The visitors number many; from near and from afar,
An academic gathering; an educational bazaar,
The occasion will be solemn, one of dignity and pride,
To suit the historic importance of our anniversary tide.
From the greeting of welcome, to the very last adieu,
Words of praise will ring out for our own dear white and blue.

The delegates don caps and gowns, and join the long procession,
The marshalls followed by honored guests, create a fine impression.
Presidents, Deans, faculty, and alumni, are all there in the array,
From C. & F. to Field House, where ceremonies get under way.
The national anthem is first sung, and then Father Sheehan's invocation,
Father Stanford welcomes the throng; Chancellor Tolley renders an oration.

The seminarians are scheduled to sing, adding music to the affair,
Classes are disbanded for the day, for the students are to be there.
The program nears end with the Honorary Degrees, the president proudly presents,
Next comes the informal luncheon, during which Governor Martin comments.
The day is truly a memorable one; one mingled with laughter and tears,
For those Villanovans who find special joy in recalling the last 100 years.

guished Service Cross and the Oak Leaf Cluster.

He was promoted to the rank of Major General in 1939, when he assumed the position of commander of a National Guard division which then became part of the Regular Army. However, General Martin was recently relieved of his command because he reached the age limit for active duty.

After his retirement, he became active in Civilian Defense activities throughout the East, until elected Governor of Pennsylvania in November, 1942.

Governor Martin was awarded the degree of Doctor of Laws by Washington and Jefferson College in 1938, by the University of Pittsburgh in 1941, and by Temple University and Pennsylvania Military College in 1943. He was also presented with the degree of Doctor of Military Science by his alma mater, Waynesburg College, in 1940.

Rt. Rev. Monsignor J. Carrol Mccormick is Chancellor of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia. A native Philadelphian, Monsignor McCormick was ordained in the Archbasilica of St. John Lateran, at Rome in 1932.

Having received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from the Seminario Romano Maggiore, at Rome in 1929, and later the degree of Doctor of Theology from the same institution in 1934, Monsignor McCormick returned to this country. In 1934 he was appointed Vice-Chancellor of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia.

Two years later, 1936, he was advanced to Chancellor of the Archdiocese. In that same year His Holiness, the late Pope Pius XI, raised him to the rank of Domestic Prelate with the title of the Right Reverend.

Dr. William Pearson Tolley is an eminent educator. He graduated from Syracuse University in 1922, and holds a Master's degree and the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from Columbia University. He has also received honorary degrees from Mount Union College, Dickinson College, Grove City College, Bucknell University, and Hamilton College.

Dr. Tolley quickly rose to national prominence in the field of higher education after attaining the presidency of Allegheny College in 1931. He served as secretary-treasurer of the College Presidents' Association of Pennsylvania, and was president of that organization when elected to the Chancellorship of Syracuse University in September, 1942.

Last fall he became president of the Association of American Colleges. He was recently appointed a member of the advisory council to the War Manpower Commission in Washington. The author of "The Idea of God in the Philosophy of St. Augustine," Dr. Tolley is a frequent contributor to educational journals.

Rt. Rev. Monsignor Michael J. Ready has been active in missionary and welfare work since 1927, when he was appointed the first Diocesan Director of the Pontifical Society for the Propagation of the Faith. A native of New Haven, Connecticut, he was ordained at Our Lady of the Lake Seminary, Cleveland, and has filled several pastoral posts in the Cleveland Diocese.

Monsignor Ready is General Secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, and at the present time is serving as director of speakers for the "Catholic Hour."

In 1938, Monsignor Ready attended the Intergovernmental Committee for Political Refugees at Evian, France. He also serves on the President's Board of Trustees of the National Catholic Community Service, an agency of the U. S. O.

Rear Admiral Milo Frederick Draemel, U. S. N., Commandant of the Fourth Naval District, graduated from the Naval Academy in 1906. He has served approximately twenty years at sea aboard a score of ships. He attended the Naval War College at Newport, R. I., in 1926, and later served on the staff at this institution.

In 1937, Admiral Draemel became Operations Officer on the staff of the Commander-in-Chief of the Fleet. Later in the same year he was made Commandant of the U. S. Naval Academy, a post which he held for two years. In the fall of 1940 he assumed command of all battle force destroyers and subsequently served as Chief of Staff and aide to the Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet. He then accepted a command at sea which he held until ordered to Philadelphia in his present status.

Major General James A. Ulio, Adjutant General of the United States Army, enlisted as a private in 1900 and four years later was commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry. He served at various posts throughout the country, and in the spring of 1918 was sent to France where he attended the General Staff College.

General Ulio went to Greece in 1923 as Chief of the Administrative Division of the American Red Cross at Athens. On his return he became assistant to the Adjutant General of the Second Corps Area, New York, and later graduated from the Army War College at Washington, D. C. He was appointed to his present position on March 1, 1942.

A recipient of the Distinguished Service Medal for his exceptional executive ability, General Ulio has received many foreign awards, including that of the French Legion of Honor.

Rt. Rev. Monsignor John J. Brady is a retired Rear Admiral of the United States Navy. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1908, and in 1914 entered the Navy as Chaplain. For his service with the Marines at Verdun and Chateau Thierry, he was decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross, the Navy Cross, and the Croix de Guerre with bronze palm and gold star.

He retired in 1935 after twenty-one years of service. Accepted back into the diocese of New York, Monsignor Brady organized a program designed to curb child delinquency. He continued in this work until 1941, when he won an appointment as Delegate of the Military Vicar of the Armed Forces of the United States. Later in that year he was elevated to the rank of Domestic Prelate with the title of Right Reverend.

Anne O'Hare McCormick, noted lecturer and journalist, has been a contributor to the New York "Times" since 1922, and in 1936 received the distinction of being the first woman appointed to the editorial staff of that publication.

Mrs. McCormick, in her role as free lance writer, has interviewed many of the world's leaders, including President Roosevelt, Premier Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini. In 1937 she won the Pulitzer Prize for the most distinguished foreign correspondence. Her name was once placed on a list of the ten greatest women in the United States.

A graduate of St. Mary's College, Columbus, Ohio, she received the degree of Doctor of Laws at the University of Dayton. Besides many awards for her journalistic accomplishments, Mrs. McCormick has received honorary degrees from Elmira College, Smith College, Columbia University, New York University, Ohio State University, Middlebury College, Wilson College, and New Jersey College for Women.

Very Rev. Thomas J. Love, S. J., is president of St. Joseph's College. He was ordained in June, 1923, after having prepared for a position as instructor of physics and mathematics. He taught those subjects at Georgetown University and Loyola College until he became President of St. Joseph's College in 1939.

Father Love holds the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts from Woodstock College, and a Doctorate in Philosophy from the Gregorian University at Rome, Italy. He is a prominent member of the Association of College Presidents of Pennsylvania.

George P. Rea, President of Drexel Institute of Technology, has had much experience in financial and corporate affairs. He has been associated with various business organizations since his graduation from Cornell in 1915. He served with the A. E. F. as captain of a machine gun battalion during World War I.

Mr. Rea played a large part in organizing the financial, industrial, and civil life of the Territory of Hawaii. Since his return from there several years ago, he has been president of the New York Curb Exchange. He was recently active in the Congressional and S. E. C. hearings at Washington on the matter of amendments to the Securities Exchange Commission Act. Mr. Rea was chosen for the presidency of Drexel because of his unusual administrative ability.

Brother Emilian James, F. S. C., is President of La Salle College. He graduated from Villanova College in 1929 and received his Master's degree from Catholic University in 1932. He also attended the University of Pennsylvania, and was awarded an Honorary Degree of D. Ped. by St. Francis College, Loretto, Pa., in 1940.

Brother Emilian is one of the organizers of the Educational Conference of the Christian Brothers. He ascended to the presidency of La Salle in 1941, after an eleven-year association with that institution which began with his appointment as registrar in 1930.

Harold Walter Jones, M. D., has been connected with Jefferson Medical College since his graduation from there in 1917. He has served it in various capacities ranging from intern to chief resident physician. At present he holds the professorship of clinical medicine and hematology.

A captain in the Army during the First World War, Dr. Jones was honorably discharged in 1919. He is a member of many medical societies, among them the Association of American Physicians, the American College of Physicians, and the American Board of Internal Medicine. He was the founder and first president of the Jefferson Society of Clinical Investigation. Dr. Jones has written numerous scientific articles.

EASTER GREETING

The VILLANOVAN wishes to extend Easter Greetings to the faculty and student body of Villanova. Due to the Easter holidays and the coming Convocation the next issue of the VILLANOVAN will appear on May 11.

Academic Forum To Be Held Here

Beta Gamma Host To Bryn Mawr, Immaculata, And Haverford April 29

Beta Gamma Debate Council will present the first College Forum of this year on Thursday evening, April 29, at 8 o'clock in Room 215, Mendel Hall. The much discussed Negro question will be the topic, "What is the place of the Negro in America." Four of the major colleges of this area will participate.

Wilfrid Gagen, junior C. & F. student and president of Beta Gamma, will initiate the affair with a speech of welcome to the participating members and will introduce the presiding officer of the forum, Mrs. A. E. McGarry. Mrs. McGarry is a district leader of the Inter-racial Conference and a noted authority on the problems of the Negro. As presiding officer, she will give the background of the question and will arrange the tempo and tenure of the forum.

WILFRID GAGEN

Discussion to Follow

Following this, the members of the four colleges will present their speeches, each dealing with a specific phase of the question. The following order of topics has been agreed upon and released by Gagen: "The Social Aspect," Bryn Mawr College; "The Political Phase," Immaculata College; "The Economic Status," Villanova College; "Practical Solutions," Haverford College.

After these formal speeches, there will be a roundtable discussion in which the audience will be free to ask questions of the speakers. It is definite that there will be representatives from the various neighboring colleges present for the forum. James Connelly, junior artsman, will present the speech on behalf of Villanova.

Students Invited

Members of the faculty and the student body of Villanova are most cordially invited to attend this forum and to participate in the discussion which will follow.

"This idea has formulated a major problem in America. It can be worked out only by studying and enlisting the issue at hand," said Gagen. "If this forum is successful and popular with the audience, other College Forums on questions of vital, universal interest will be held in the future."

Blackout Blues Blithely Belittled; Crazy Cavorting Calmly Committed

By BILL SWAN

As a state-wide air raid and blackout drill is to be held sometime during this month (indeed we had a slight preview last week), air raid wardens are urging all Pennsylvanians to restudy air raid regulations. For the benefit of the students and faculty these rules are presented for study in an effort to make things smoother and more efficient during the actual tests.

In case of a blackout. . .turn on all lights, throw up the shades, and increase the volume of your radio. The raiders will think that they have arrived at the Autocar Plant and waste their bombs here. . .the Centennial Year will then end with a big bang.

Run, Don't Walk

What to do in case of an air raid. . .The residents of Alumni Hall should get out of there fast, the red roof is an enticing target for a practice run. Run like the devil! It doesn't matter where. Wear track shoes if possible. . .If people in front of you are slow, you won't have any trouble getting over them.

If, while you are running, you should happen to pass a shelter, yell that there is an unexploded bomb inside. Then you can have a lot of people running with you—the more the merrier.

To the residents of Mendel Hall . . .those stairs were always too long to walk. Wait until there is a direct bomb hit. . .You will then have a quick, direct shaft down to the Pie Shoppe for a quick coke . . .Don't be surprised if there is no quick service. . .In fact, there may be no one there, so just help yourself.

Save Pin Ball Machine

Take advantage of opportunities . . .If you are in Louie's, grab the pin ball machine. . .If you are in the dining hall take the few remaining salt shakers, thereby cleaning off all the tables. . .If you are out on the campus, grab all the PLEASE signs that you can, (thanks). . .The commerce students in Mr. Henry's business associations class should yell in unison, "Air raid," and from long association with his last class he will get the general idea.

If you are in Bryn Mawr, hop on that white horse in front of the hardware store. It has wheels on it and you should be able to have a good fast ride down the hill. . .If you are in the movies—remember that you are a Villanova gentleman and grab the nearest blonde.

Engineers are Expendable

What to do in case the bombs fall . . .Always act excited and holler bloody murder. It adds to the general confusion. If you should find an unexploded bomb, grab the nearest engineer. He will probably pick is up and rattle it. . .This will take care of these two things in short order. Perhaps an incendiary bomb will land in your building. Throw some gasoline (a gallon will do) on it. You can't put it out anyway, and there hasn't been too much heat in the halls for a long time. If there is no gasoline handy, throw a bucket of water on it. Then lie down. . .you're dead!

In case of a gas attack. . .ask anyone around you, "What's cooking that smells so good " It is surprising how many enemies you can make that way.

Garlic Assures Elbow Room

Air raid shelter conduct. . .Eat plenty of garlic, limburger, or onions before entering a crowded shelter. You will thereby assure yourself plenty of room in the crowd . . .Push aside all air raid wardens who try to hinder you. They always reserve the best seats for themselves and their friends.

If these items are available, bring along a portable "vic" with one record of "As Time Goes By" by Rudy Vallee. Assume an "out of this world" expression, and keep on playing the record until all are driven out. After a few playings you should be quite alone.

Get Blood Back

In case you are hit. . .Don't go to pieces! Lie still and you won't be noticed. Carry a few band-aids to hold your skull together. . .and in case you can talk, demand that you be taken to Bryn Mawr Hospital—there are some really nice nurses there. Say a prayer that in case you need a blood transfusion the blood that you sold last month will once again be restored to your withering veins.

If these few hints are remembered and followed, there should be a lot of fun for everyone. Of course don't die trying to have a rare time, but at least make it good in the true Villanova manner.

1943 Year Book Raised In Price

John Fitzgibbons Named New Business Manager Of Centennial Belle Air

John Fitzgibbons, freshman C. & F. student, has recently been named as business manager of the Centennial Belle Air. In taking over the duties of his new position, the former circulation manager has announced that because of the great increase in the size of the Belle Air this year, it has been found necessary to raise the price from five to ten dollars per yearbook in order to met the extremely heavy costs of publication.

In former years the price of the Belle Air was covered for each student by his matriculation fee which he paid upon registration at the beginning of each semester. Now it is imperative that the student pay the balance of the yearbook cost after deducting the amount which he has already paid in the form of matriculation fees, that is, $3.00 per semested.

Summer Students Exempted

For example, if a student has attended Villanova during the past summer semester and through the fall and spring semesters, then he has already paid $9.00 of the total charge for the Centennial edition of the college yearbook. This leaves him a balance of $1.00, which he must pay personally before he will receive his copy of the '43 Belle Air.

If a student has not followed the accelerated program, attending only the fall and spring semesters this year, thereby paying only $6.00 as matriculation fees, he will be required to pay $4.00 for his yearbook. The student who has attended Villanova for the past three semesters and will continue on through this forthcoming summer term, will have paid over $10.00 as matriculation fees, and thus will have his yearbook entirely paid for.

Placques Now on Sale

It is desirable that the student body take this matter into consideration immediately, and make the personal payments called for before the end of this present semester. Yearbook fees will be received by Fitzgibbons in Room 51, Mendel Hall, any day between 12:30 and 1:30 P. M. It is expected that the yearbooks will be ready for distribution by September, at which time they will be mailed to the students at their home addresses.

Fitzgibbons also wishes to announce that students may place their orders for the Villanova College seal plaques, which are currently on display in the bookstore and in the library, with him either in the yearbook office or else in the library. The price of these plaques is $1.00 each plain, or $1.15 with a stand.

Briefs Of CAMPUS NEWS

Rev. Robert E. McGrath, O.S.A., secretary of the Villanova Alumni Association, has announced that the next issue of the "Alumnus," the official magazine of this organization, will make its appearance around May 15th. He has requested that anyone having names of former Villanovans now in the service, submit them to the Alumni Office before April 26th, including rank, branch of service and address. This request has been made in order that a more complete list of Villanova men now serving their country may be published in the forthcoming edition of the "Alumnus."

Malachy Boyle, president of the Phi Kappa Pi engineering fraternity, announced that nominations for officers were held and that the names of the respective nominees were being subjected to the approval of the school authorities. The final elections will be held on April 26. It was also revealed that final arrangements are nearly completed in deciding the recipient of the Carl T. Humphrey award, which is bestowed on the outstanding freshman each year.

Members of the Villanova Chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers attended a convention of all the chapters in this district at Drexel Institute of Technology on Wednesday evening, April 14, and again last night. At the former event, Commander Allan, U.S.N., was the chief speaker. His topic of discussion was "Aircraft Structures."

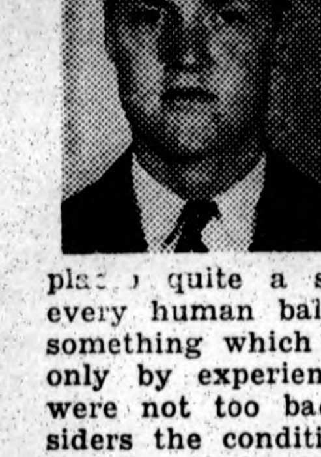
WITH Saturday's diamond contest with Lehigh having been rained out, we still don't have too much of a line on our 1943 baseball team. We did see the present edition of the Jacobsmen play one game, yes, but in view of the fact that the weather was certainly not condusive to good baseball, and that the majority of the positions in the lineup were filled by raw recruits, we still don't think we saw the present nine at its best in the Penn State encounter.



The four errors committed by the Wildcat infield did not look too bad in the box score of that contest when it was noticed that the Nittany Lions were guilty of the same number of miscues. That the 'Cats defensive play will improve, however, is almost a certainty. Being in intercollegiate for the first time places quite a strain on almost every human ballplayer, and it is something which can be overcome only by experience. Four errors were not too bad when one considers the conditions under which the game was played, but the fact that two of the three runs tallied by the Penn State nine were unearned, brings out the importance of these misplays.

Hitting on the part of the Jacobsmen in this engagement was also very weak. A total of four hits is bad enough, when you consider that the Nittany Lions garnered nine bingles, but the fact that two of Villanova's safeties were fluke infield popups, the fact becomes even more evident. This famine at the plate, however, can also be attributed to the lack of experience on the part of this year's club.

It must be admitted, nevertheless, that the two freshmen who graced the lineup of the Blue and White nine performed remarkably well. Although George Warner and Gene Adair were both guilty of errors, their play on the whole was a pleasant surprise to all Villanova diamond followers. Warner, at short, seems to be the same brand of fielding shortstop which Joe Coffey and Tony Callandra were in the past two years. His aggressiveness left little to be desired, and with a little more experience at the plate he will rank with the

Rain Postpones Lehigh Encounter; To Be Played Thursday At Bethlehem

Last Saturday's Scheduled Contest With Engineers To Be Played This Week; Moravec, Star Hurler Of Brown And White Nine, Called By Armed Forces

April showers played havoc with the scheduled baseball game between Villanova and Lehigh last Saturday afternoon, and as a result, the game will now be played on Thursday, provided Jupiter Pluvius doesn't interfere once again. This, together with the Manhattan game on Saturday, will make this week a busy one for the Blue and White diamonders.

Having played only one contest to date, the untried Wildcats will journey to engage a club which has encountered three opponents so far this season, being the victor in two of these contests, while going down to defeat in the third. The Engineers opened their season with a 3-2 verdict over Muhlenburg College, and made it two in a row when they overcame the West Chester State Teachers' nine by a score of 8-1.

Trounced by Temple

Ten days ago, however, the same day on which Villanova was nosed out in the twelfth inning by Penn State, the team from Bethlehem was soundly trounced by the Temple Owls to the tune of 10-1. The bats of the Engineers, which had been so potent in the first two contests of the season, were strangely silent against the offerings of Joe Papiano, Cherry and White football star who made his initial trip to the mound in that tilt.

Lose Star Hurler

With a .667 average in its games to date, the Brown and White diamonders hope to add Villanova to their list of 1943 victims. Whom the Lehigh mentor will send to the mound to oppose the Wildcats, however, is a puzzling question. Had the Army not stepped into the picture it would be almost a certainty that Vinnie Moravec would be on the hill for the home club, but with this hurler going into the Armed Forces on the morning of the game, the question as to whom the Engineer coach will send to the box remains doubtful.

Wins Two Games

The loss of Moravec to the Army this week will be a severe blow to the hopes of Lehigh sports followers, as he had pitched and won both the first two games of the season for the Brown and White nine, and had also been chosen captain of the 1943-44 Lehigh court team. Although only a sophomore, Moravec was very successful against Muhlenburg and West Chester in the first two games of the current campaign.

Heath Outstanding

With the exception of the mound post, however, the rest of the Lehigh lineup is quite certain. Jeff Heath, at shortstop, is a sure starter for the Brown and White aggregation. His fielding play has been almost phenomenal for the Engineers in the games to date, as he has handled over twenty chances in the field without making one misplay. At the plate he is also performing very nobly, having an average way over .300. He started off the season with three hits in five trips to the plate in the Muhlenburg game, and has been holding his own ever since that time.

Shafer Behind Bat

Bill Shafer, husky backstop of the Lehigh club, is another hitter who has been socking the apple for the honor and glory of Lehigh. Although not possessing an average as high as that of Heath, he has driven in six runs for the Brown and White in its three contests to date, thus performing his duty of cleanup man very capably. Jim Fuller, in right field, is another hitter on the Lehigh club, of whom much is expected this week. He led the team in batting last season, but has not been able to find his eye yet this spring, having garnered only one hit in thirteen trips to the plate. He is still being kept in his number three spot in the batting order, however, in the hope that he will break out of his lethargy in Thursday's contest.

Many Newcomers

The remainder of the Lehigh lineup, most of whom are newcomers, are Bill Swayne at second base, Jim Ferrell in centerfield, Joe Geiger, patroller of the outer gardens behind shortstop and third base, Dick Fermen at the hot corner, and Bill Somers at the initial sack. Swayne is the leadoff man in the Lehigh batting order, and Ferrell follows him to the plate.

For Villanova, the lineup will be much the same as that which was seen in action during the Penn State contest, although the mound choice of "Doc" Jacobs has not as yet been definitely decided.

Manhattan Weekend Foe Of Blue and White Nine

Jaspers Journey To Main Line On Saturday; Wildcats Meet Fordham On May 1st; Return Engagement With Lehigh May 8th

Villanova resumes one of its most ardent baseball rivalries next Saturday afternoon when it engages Manhattan's Jaspers at the Main Line Field. Victors in the memorable slugfest between the two clubs last season, when they won out in eleven innings, 13-12, the Wildcats also hope to top their New York City foes this weekend, but this time by a more decisive margin.

Manhattan, like Villanova, is composed mainly of inexperienced men, but has had many more opportunities to give these untried recruits the necessary competition so far this spring. Despite the fact that games against Columbia and Hofstra were rained out earlier in the season, the Jaspers will have played six contests when they meet the Blue and White diamonders this weekend.

9-3 Victory

Princeton was the first opponent met by the minions of John W. Balquist this spring, and the Tigers came out on top in this contest, defeating the Kelley Green in a tight pitchers' battle, 3-2. The two postponed encounters then followed, and then on April 10th, the Jaspers trounced City College, 9-3. Hits were plentiful in this contest, as the future rivals of Villanova pounded four City hurlers to cover in a powerful offensive assault.

Army Defeat

A crack Army nine set the Kelley Green back on its heels last Wednesday, however, as the Manhattan bats were helpless against the puzzling slants of the Military Academy hurler, and the New Yorkers were rather decisively beaten, 5-1.

With one win in three games, the Jaspers will have met three more opponents by Saturday. Brooklyn College and St. John's are two of the Jaspers' rivals, in this space of time, while the other contest will pit City College against the Green and White in what will be a return contest between the clubs.

Six Veterans

Despite the fact that most of the members of the Manhattan club are freshmen and sophomores, however, the team does have three seniors and three juniors numbered among its forces. Captain Eddie Schneider and Dick Murphy are two infielders on the Manhattan nine who are no newcomers to collegiate competition. Jerry Gerard, veteran hurler, is the other senior on this season's Jasper outfit.

Mound Choice

Mike Kostynick, Bill McLaughlin and Jack McLoughlin are three third year men who have seen much action under the colors of the Green and White, and Kostynick and McLoughlin are certain starters against the 'Cats, as are Schneider and Murphy. McLaughlin and Gerard, being the two outstanding hurlers of the Manhattan nine this spring, will, in all probability be the

Wildcat Runners Meet Second Test In Penn Relays

Blue And White Trackmen To Participate In Five Events In Competition At Franklin Field This Weekend

Having participated in only one outdoor meet to date that being the dual competition with the Naval Academy ten days ago, the Villanova trackmen will make their second attempt of the curtailed cinder campaign in the Penn Relays this weekend. Although beaten decisively by the Middies in their previous outdoor endeavor, the Blue and White runners did manage to garner four first places in eight running events against the Midshipmen, and their defeat was due mainly to the plentiful reserve strength possessed by the Naval Academy.

50.9 for McCarthy

In the Relays on Saturday, much is expected of the quartet composed of George Guida, "Dutch" McCarthy, Harry Keefrider and Bob O'Sullivan. All were members of the Wildcat Mile Relay team which only recently finished a very successful indoor campaign, winning three of the six events in which it participated against the best collegiate competition in the east. In the Annapolis meet, Guida won two of the Main Liners' four first places in the running events, when he breasted the tape the winner in both the 100 and 200 yard events. McCarthy, Keefrider and O'Sullivan also compiled points for the Wildcats when they finished one, two, three in the quarter-mile event. McCarthy's winning time in this race was 50.9, very remarkable considering the weather conditions.

Favored in Mile

This quartet will attempt to carry the same prestige, which characterized its indoor campaign, on the cinders in the Class A Mile Relay Championship on Saturday. The

Dodgers, Browns Lead In Day Hop Softball Circuit

By DAVE WARD

Despite the weather of the past seven days, four teams, the Yanks, Cards, Dodgers, and the Reds, braved the cold winds to play their games, the Yankees emerging victorious over the Cards, 13 to 8, as the Dodgers beat the Reds, 16-2, for their second straight win.

Highlight of the week was the feat of Rocco Giannanni, Soph Engineer, for he poled two long homers over the head of the Reds' left fielder to aid in the Dodgers' victory. The game, as indicated by the score, was never close from the time of "Rocky's" first home run, which drove in two runners ahead of himself, until the last out. Consistently being outplayed by their opponents, the Reds kept fighting, but being stymied at bat theirs was a "lost cause."

Conway Stars

In the meantime, however, the other Dodgers had solved the slants of pitcher Stan Wagner, and proceeded to add another game to their win column. The Dodgers, in winning their two games, displayed hitting, pitching, and a teamwork that marks them as a tough team to beat, and a top-flight contender for the title.

On Wednesday, the Yanks beat the Cards 13-8 to win their first game as well as to hand the Cards their first defeat. The game was close throughout, and this may be seen by the fact that the score was tied twice, once at 3-3, and another time at 7-7. However, the Yanks became accustomed to the Redbird pitching, and in the last two innings scored enough runs to tuck the game under their belts. The individual star of the contest was Joe Conway, Senior Chem Engineer, who led his team's attack with a home run, aside from making a beautiful defensive play, at short, that snuffed out a Card rally.

Contests Postponed

The two new additions to the league were supposed to meet on last Thursday afternoon, but because of the inclement weather, the contest had to be postponed. Incidentally, these two have been chosen to go under the names of the Pirates and Senators. The new clubs are composed of men from the Commerce and Finance School, and they were organized through the efforts of Jack Dudley. Both of these should make the league more interesting, particularly the Senators, who played together last year.

Mendel Assumes Undisputed Lead In Softball League

Frosh Defeat Alumni And Fedigan For Record Of Three And One; Gigoloes In Second Place; Austin, Alumni Follow

By JOE DALY

The past week saw the up and coming Frosh from Mendel Hall assume undisputed lead of the Intramural Softball League. They defeated both Alumni and Fedigan, who had shared top honors up until this time.

Wednesday night the Gold Bugs led by the big bats of Tom Corbett and shortstop Dick Healey, jumped into an early lead in the first, and were never headed. Bill Lamb was the first to score as he walked and Healey reached Labelle for a home run to left, marking up the second tally for his club. Mendel scored twice in the second, as Fred Cascella laid into a three and two pitch and drove it into deep center for another round tripper, after two were down. Two hits and an error counted for run number four.

Fedigan Breaks Ice

Fedigan then broke the ice, as Ken Brietzke took things into his own hands. After walking, he stole second and third and then scored on a fielder's choice. Mendel, however, got these runs right back, as they tallied once in the fourth and fifth, and then put the game in the bag in the sixth with three more counters, as the Gigoloes were scoring twice, giving the Freshmen an 8-3 victory.

Three Straight

In the final game of the week, the same spirited Mendel club, which hasn't lost a game since its initial tilt, met its stiffest test when it faced the Greenies from Alumni. The minions of Frs. McCarthy and Burke drew first blood, as Ted Borsky was safe on a fielder's choice, and Jim Higgins lifted the ball into deep center for a round-tripper. Mendel came right back in its half of the first stanza, when Jack Noble scored on Bill Bross' fly to left after he was safe at first on Wally Breen's error.

5-2 in Fifth

Alumni increased its lead in the second by adding two more runs, as George Vehling and Bill Lowney lined out successive singles, Vehling scoring on Andy Murphy's fly to right and Lowney came in a moment later as Borsky reached Joe Harpo for a single. Mendel went down in order in the last of the second as did Alumni in the first half of the fourth. Mendel, however, closed up the gap a notch in its half of the inning, making one run. Alumni went into the fifth leading by two tallies and put the game on what apparently seemed to be ice, as Lowney crossed the platter making the score read 5-2.

Four Run Rally

Mendel was not stopped quite so easily, though. Jim Penavato walked, Bob Duma followed him with a single over second and Harpo was safe on a wide throw to first. Three walks and a hit gave the Goldbugs four runs and the ball game, allowing them to go into first place by a one game margin.

The second place Fedigan club, behind the steller pitching of Charly Labelle, and with the help of some timely hitting by Ed. Quinn and Ken Brietzke, held on to a .500 average.

Snow Stops Contest

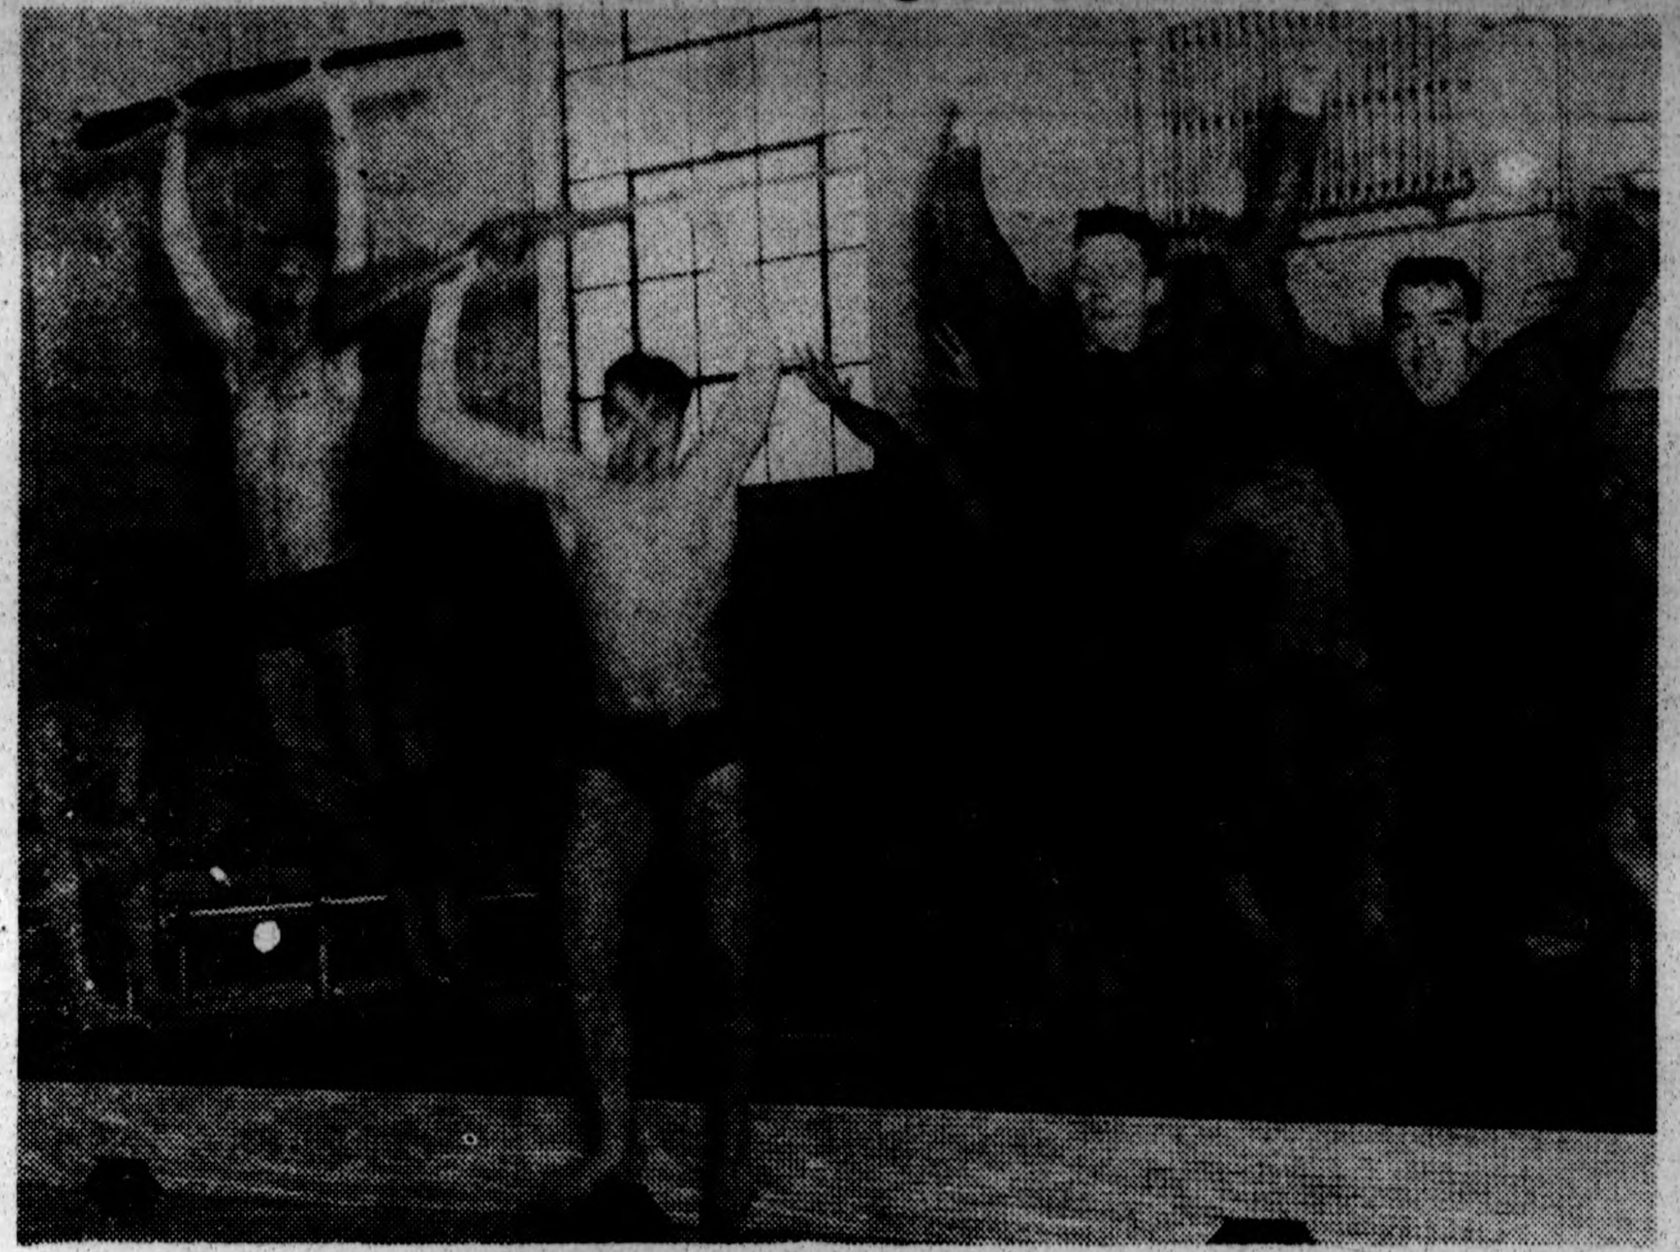
It lost its first game of the year to Mendel, and was not too successful against its arch rivals, Austin, as the best it could do was to gain a tie, as the game was called in the fourth because of snow. Fedigan had jumped into an early lead in the first, but Father Kemme's boys tied it up in the third and went into a one run lead as Labelle lost control momentarily. Fedigan came back in the first of the fourth scoring twice, but Austin tied it up once again in its half of same inning as the snow began to fall.

Runs Numerous

In the other game of the week, Austin handed Alumni its first defeat of the current campaign by a score of 10-7. The Greenies took the lead in the first, as they tallied twice. Austin, however, scored once in the first and second and twice in the third and fifth to go way out in front.

Today Fedigan will meet Alumni in a game which should supply plenty of action, while Mendel and Austin will vie in the day's other tilt.

Start Of Tough Grind



Pictured above are four members of one of the ten Navy Swimming classes which are held in the College swimming pool every week. Clothed with wet sweat suits and armed with nine pound wooden rifles, the above quartet has just been pushed into the water as it starts out on a 50 yard grind. The two students holding the guns must swim two lengths of the pool without getting the rifles wet, while the other duo must cover the same distance in the very burdensome sweat suits.

Swimming Classes Run Smoothly at Villanova

Fathers McQuade, Sullivan, Burke, Girolami, Kemme And Klekotka Direct Ten Naval Classes Each Week; Varied Program Given

By JIM BONNER

For the first time in the history of Villanova a compulsory swimming class has been inaugurated at this institution. Those required to participate in this course are all members of the Naval Reserve, continuing at school on an inactive status until such time as they are called to active duty.

Shortly after the second semester started, a notice was posted informing the Naval Reserves that they would be required to take an extra period of Physical Training each week; this extra period to consist of swimming. This order was issued to comply with the wishes of the Naval authorities. The basic idea behind this training is not to make the man a swimming champion but merely to give him endurance and confidence in the water so that he will be able to cope with any situation that may confront him upon going on active duty.

Six Priests Direct

At this time there are six priests taking an active part in this training. Classes are now supervised by Fr. McQuade, Military Liaison Officer at this college, and Frs. Klekotka, Burke, Sullivan, Girolami, and Kemme. The classes are held ten times a week in order that every reservist may have an opportunity of availing himself of this training. By having this many classes every week it enables the instructors to give more personal attention to the needs of each individual student.

Students taking the training vary from non-swimmers to former members of the swimming team. This makes the training slightly more difficult than it would be if every man were at the same stage in his development as a natator.

Underwater Swimming Stressed

The training is taking a definite course and greatly resembles that being given Aviation Cadets at the Naval Pre-Flight School, Chapel Hill, North Carolina. The first aim is to make every man at home in the water, able to handle himself, and do from ten to twenty laps using a slow free style. Another early requirement is underwater swimming which, according to the Navy, is one of the most important things to be taught to these future officers of the Navy. Many reports have come back from the fleet concerning men that had to swim great distances under water to escape burning oil on the surface.

25 Foot Jump

As they advance in training the students are required to leap into the water wearing their clothes and get out of them while keeping afloat. This is to assimilate abandoning ship. Wooden guns are supplied and the swimmers must jump into the water and swim while keeping the gun dry at all times.

One of the newest innovations is climbing up to the rafters and jumping into the water. The distance is well over twenty-five feet.

There are about two hundred students who take the course now and according to the priests in charge they are showing marked improvement. When the Navy takes over this will undoubtedly be one of their first physical requirements, proficiency in the water. When these men do finally go on active duty with the Fleet, or wherever they may be stationed, they will be well prepared to handle themselves in any emergency that might confront them in the water.

group did not run in a relay event against the Annapolis Midshipmen in the season's previous competition, but the fact that three of the members of the outstanding quintet finished one, two, three in the "440," while the other carried off both sprints, bodes ill for the Main Liners' opponents this weekend.

Freshmen in Two Mile

Four freshmen will toe the line in the Two Mile Championship, as Bob Regan, Frank Hinnencamp, Ed Fitzgerald and Chuck Harrington will carry the Blue and White colors in this competition. Regan placed second in the mile and two mile runs at Annapolis a week ago last Saturday, while Fitzgerald was third in the 880 yard run.

Run in Three Events

With this experience under their belts, the frosh quartet stands a good chance of garnering a place in the event on Saturday. Nor is this to be their only performance of the day. This same quartet will be on the starting line in the Distance Medley and in the Freshmen Mile Relay events. Don Schmidt and Tom Kiely have also been named as possible starters in the Medley and Freshmen Relays.

Try Sprint Medley

Rounding out the day as far as the Wildcats are concerned will be the attempt of the Mile Relay team members in the Sprint Medley race. They will not run in the same order as in the mile, however, as McCarthy will run the first leg in this event, and Guida the third, while Keefrider will be the second runner of the quartet. O'Sullivan, however, will maintain his anchor position.

great shortstops which have characterized "Doc" Jacobs' teams of the past.

Adair, at second base, received more chances in the field than any other Wildcat infielder in the Penn State contest, and his rough and tumble-style of play will play havoc with enemy base-runners in future engagements. On the basis of this contest Adair seems to be the more experienced of the two freshmen on the varsity, and should develop very quickly. It is also expected that he and Warner will be able to make a few double plays in future games. Not one of these apparent rarities was performed by the Wildcat infield ten days ago.

Joe Pezelski, in left field, also received a wealth of fielding opportunities in this encounter, and performed all his tasks without a miscue. His brilliant throw from deep left in the fifth inning to nab a Penn State runner at third base was one of the outstanding plays of the day.

George Shahood, sophomore rightfielder, was really placed in the tight spots in this contest. In the sixth inning, with two men on base, he drove a sharp single into right field, thus batting in the first two runs of the game for the home team, and knotting the count at 2-2. In the ninth inning with the score still tied, two out, and three men on the base paths, the same Mr. Shahood went to the plate. This time, however, his efforts were in vain, as he went down swinging against the offerings of the Penn State hurler. To have expected the inexperienced Shahood to come through on two different occasions, however, would have been too much. Playing in his first collegiate ball game, he is credited with having batted in the only runs scored by the Wildcats so far this season.

So, with inexperience their main handicap, the Wildcats enter upon the tougher part of their schedule in the game with Manhattan this Saturday. If they can successfully get by the tilt with the Jaspers there is every reason to believe that they will come out the victors in the remaining contest of the season.

VILLANOVANS IN ARKANSAS

Bill Smith, former hurler on "Doc" Jacobs' 1943 baseball nine, and "Major" McDonald, court minion of Al Severance during the recently completed basketball season, are in the Camp Robinson, Arkansas.

Intramural Baseball Lead Taken By Fedigan Hall

Gigoloes Overcome Alumni In Nine Inning Slugfest To Remain Undefeated; Austin Wins First Game, 7-5

Fedigan Hall moved into an undisputed lead in the Intramural Baseball League last Sunday afternoon when it defeated Alumni, with whom it had been tied for first the week before, by the score of 11-10. In the other game of the day, the Austin Firemen won their first game of the season as they overcame the Gold Bugs from Mendel Hall to the tune of 7-5.

Austin and Mendel started off the day's hostilities when they took the field at 10:30, each in quest of its first victory of the year. The two teams had been tied for the cellar the week before, each having a record of no wins and two losses. The game started off with a bang, each team scoring a run in the first frame, via a hit and an error. Austin really went to town in the second stanza, however, and when the smoke had cleared after its offensive barrage in that inning, the Mendelites found themselves on the short end of a 4-1 score.

Knot Count

The minions of Father Kropp came back strongly in the next two innings however, scoring one in the third and three in the fourth, to take a 5-4 lead as the Firemen came to bat in the fifth stanza. Jack Koval singled sharply down the left field foul line, his second bingle of the day, and then advanced to third base by virtue of a stolen base and a sacrifice by teammate Phil Koen. When Mike Cheppa then hit the first pitch to center field, Koval scored after the catch, knotting the count at 5-5.

Koval Stars

Both teams were scoreless during the sixth inning, but in the first half of the seventh, with the score still tied, the Firemen, coached by Father Kemme, pushed across two tallies, and when Mendel could do nothing in the last half of the same frame, Austin had won its first hardball game of the current season. Koval was also instrumental in these tallies, as he smacked a triple into deep left field for his third bingle.

Early Lead

In the other contest of the day, in which the up-to-that-time two undefeated teams vied for honors, Alumni diligently went about its task in the opening canto, tallying three runs against the offerings of Charlie Labelle, on the same number of hits. Fedigan could do nothing in its half of the same frame, and both teams were held scoreless in the second stanza The third frame, however, was the scene of two runs being scored, one by each aggregation, to make the score read, Alumni 4, Fedigan 1.

Big Fifth Inning

After a tallyless fourth canto, both teams put their offensive guns to work in a big fifth inning. Alumni pushed across two runs in the initial half of the frame, and then Fedigan tallied five runs before it was finally retired. Although Alumni was put out in order in the next stanza, the Gigoloes' bats went on another rampage and the upperclassmen led 11-6.

This contest was to go the nine-inning route, thus giving the Freshmen two more chances in which to knot the count. They did their best in the first half of the ninth, crossing the plate three times, but their efforts fell one short, and Fedigan didn't need its final turn at the plate, winning the game 11-10.

Here And There

By JIM CARBINE

"CLIPPER" SMITH who is renowned for his worried look and wrinkles of despair, changed them during the Lehigh game with a broad smile. He had just witnessed a play at second base which brought back old times. Gene Adair, in typical football fashion, crashed into the base-runner for the final out and it was one of the nicest blocks that we have ever seen. "Clipper" smiled when Gene jumped up and started for the bench, leaving the runner stretched out on the ground.

—V—

George Shahood was placed in one of the tougest spots in baseball during the game. He came to bat in the ninth inning with two outs, the bases loaded, and the game was all tied up 2 to 2. George didn't make out so well, but if it hadn't been for him in the seventh inning there wouldn't have been a tied ball game at all.

Temple came out on the baseball field last Tuesday full of pep which is characteristic of a team which had just received an inspiring talk. They started to warm up and prepare themselves for the game. After about half an hour someone noticed that the visitors hadn't showed up yet. After a few telephone calls, it was finally discovered that the visiting team, the University of Virginia, had cancelled baseball for the duration and had simply forgotten to notify Temple to that effect.

The boys from the C. & F. school tried their hand at softball last Friday and looked like the baseball team in England which set 20 records (errors, hit by pitcher, walks, balks, caught between bases, etc.) last month. The pay-off came when Bill Meehan hit a home run through shortstop, short fielder, and left fielder.

The school ought to renew the softball games between the priests and the students, as were played last summer. Those games provided no end of amusement for the spectators, especially when a delicate point was to be decided by the umps. The priests have a good team, that is to say, they have plenty of material, but who would replace Fr. Dunne at third?

—V—

One member of the track team visited every hardware store in Annapolis on his recent trip down to Maryland, but he had no luck, for which the rest of the squad was thankful. The Navy took unfair advantage of the track team, however, and awakened the boys at six o'clock in the morning as they marched by to breakfast. The track team wasn't supposed to get up until 9:00 A. M.

This will be the first in about five years that Johnny DiCarlo will not run in the Penn Relays being held this coming Saturday. He has held the 200 yard Middle Atlantic title on and off for the last four years. Villanova's outstanding relay team will represent the Blue and White, however, and will undoubtedly do as well as if Johnny were running with them.

Name Wood On Siena All-Opponent Quint

Bill Wood, high scorer of the Wildcat basketball teams during the past two seasons, who was ordered to active duty by the Army Reserve on March 1, added another to his long list of court honors last week, when he was unanimously chosen to the Siena College All-Opponent five.

Chuck Drizen, second this year in high point total, was also honored by the Indian players, when he was chosen to an alternate berth on the same squad. Drizen tallied 15 markers in the game against the Siena quintet.

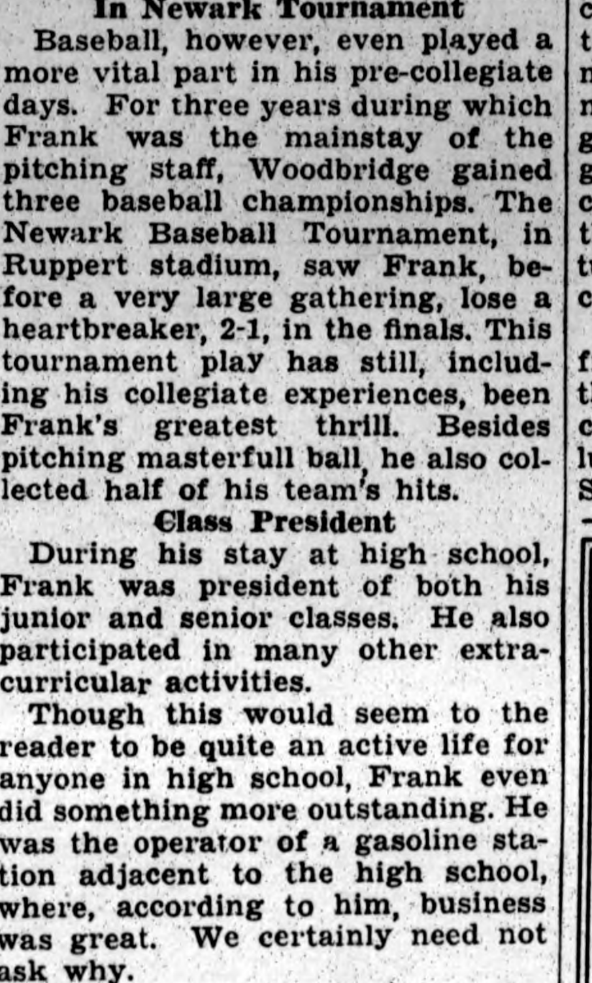
By BOB BOLGER

From New Jersey, a state which has contributed many Villanovans, in the city of Hopelawn, comes another important personality who has made quite a name for himself in both the scholastic and athletic fields during his four years on the Main Line. He is Frank Chaplar, one of "Doc" Jacobs' best pitchers the last four years, as well as a gridiron performer under "Clipper" Smith.

Frank has engaged in sports as long as he can remember, but it wasn't until his high school days that he really came into his own. He attended Woodbridge High School, where he excelled in football, baseball, and basketball. While he was quarterback there, Woodbridge won two championships in succession. In his senior year, '39, his team lost in the finals for the mythical New Jersey State Football title.



In Newark Tournament

Baseball, however, even played a more vital part in his pre-collegiate days. For three years during which Frank was the mainstay of the pitching staff, Woodbridge gained three baseball championships. The Newark Baseball Tournament, in Ruppert stadium, saw Frank, before a very large gathering, lose a heartbreaker, 2-1, in the finals. This tournament play has still, including his collegiate experiences, been Frank's greatest thrill. Besides pitching masterfull ball, he also collected half of his team's hits.

Class President

During his stay at high school, Frank was president of both his junior and senior classes. He also participated in many other extra-curricular activities.

Though this would seem to the reader to be quite an active life for anyone in high school, Frank even did something more outstanding. He was the operator of a gasoline station adjacent to the high school, where, according to him, business was great. We certainly need not ask why.

Tryout with Giants

Before entering Villanova, Frank had a tryout with the New York Giants, to whom he was recommended by Travis Jackson, Giant scout, and former great third baseman of the New Yorkers. After much consideration as whether to join the Giant farm system or matriculate at college, Jackson's recommendation to play under "Doc" Jacobs at Villanova was taken. Frank is certainly glad now it turned out that way.

Stars Against N. Y. U.

On entering the Main Line school Frank became a member of another great Wildcat freshman football team. He played in all the frosh games and lived up to expectations as a great running back. In the N. Y. U. game of that year, while playing safety man, he gathered in a punt and raced fifty-yards to a score.

In his sophomore year, he became a member of the varsity gridiron squad. Though he never could attain a starting assignment, Frank was generally always "in there." In his senior year, he decided to concentrate mainly on baseball, however, although he did help coach football at Valley Forge Military Academ, in Wayne. The diamond found him even a little more active than football. He was a member of the pitching staff of the Freshman nine and saw much action against the varsity.

Four Victories

The following year found Frank as a regular pitcher for another one of "Doc" Jacobs outstanding diamond aggregations. Along with "Connie" O'Leary, "Connie" Nicholas, and Bill Wood, he was instrumental in the enviable record of sixteen victories in twenty-one games the Wildcat nine compiled in '41. He started five games and won four. Frank pitched the 'Cats to victory over Ursinus, Loyola (Baltimore), Western Maryland, and Providence. He lost a close game to the Penn A. C. early in the season. The Blue and White, however, later avenged this setback. Frank at the time was a great admirer of "Connie" O'Leary who was the No. 1 pitcher for Villanova that year.

Wins Two

In the next year the baseball card was somewhat smaller. Frank pitched and won over Rider and Western Maryland besides doing mound work in several other contests during this campaign.

With the opening of Villanova's 74th diamond season last Saturday against Penn State, Frank was called on to hurl against the Nittany Lions. In a game which was not decided until the twelfth inning, he lost his first collegiate game by the score of 3-2. With many games left, however, Frank will certainly be called upon to assume the mound duties again, and in future contests will undoubtedly come out the winner.

Frank has a steady girl friend from Bryn Mawr who answers to the name of Betty. Being a V-7 candidate, he hopes to go to Columbia University's Midshipmen School.

only two pitchers considered by Coach Balquist in his mound choice for the Wildcat contest. Regardless of whom is chosen, however, it is certain that the other will be ready for immediate call to action, should the Wildcat hitters suddenly find the offerings of the Manhattan twirler to their liking.

Sophomore Outfielders

Bill Vellante, Bob Schuessler and Earl Lambert are three sophomore outfielders who will undoubtedly be selected to start against the Main Line aggregation. All three of these second year men have proved themselves potent at bat so far this season, and unless they decline considerably in their work at the plate in the next three contests, it is quite certain that they will be patrolling the outer gardens on Saturday. Vellante and Lambert are not newcomers to many of the Wildcat diamonders as they were members of the Manhattan eleven which Villanova so soundly trounced in Shibe Park last fall. Lambert is particularly remembered for his ground-gaining ability, as it was he that sparked the Green offense in the first half of the contest.

Rams Seek Revenge

Unless the encounter with Fort Meade, the date of which is still pending, takes place some time during Easter week, the next opponent met by the Wildcats after the Manhattan contest will be another arch diamond rival of the Jacobsmen. On May 1st, the Blue and White nine journeys to New York City to engage the Fordham Rams, a team which they have beaten the last two seasons by scores of 8-0 and 8-3, respectively. It is easily seen, therefore, that the Rose Hill nine is starving for a victory over the Jacobsmen. It is very seldom that any club wins two games in a row from the Rams and this fact makes the contest a "must" as far as the Rose Hill lads are concerned.

Cheverko Behind Bat

Although Jack Coffey, Fordham diamond mentor, who was victim of the past two defeats, lost many of his minions of last spring, many of the members of the 1942 Fordham nine are still on tap this year. Juniors Ray Goodrich, Jack Szajna and George Cheverko are three veterans who were regulars on the Fordham nine last season. Cheverko, of football fame, holds down the backstop position on the club, while Szajna and Goodrich are third baseman and shortstop, respectively, on the Ram diamond aggregation.

Lack Veteran Hurler

The Maroon pitching staff, however, is lacking any veterans this season, and consequently not much is known concerning the calibre of the pitching staff of the Gothamite nine this season. Southpaw Harry McGee and righthander George Stevenson both performed on the mound for the Rams in their opening game this season, that being a 5-4 setback suffered at the hands of the Princeton Tigers. Although they permitted the Princetonians nine hits, these bingles were pretty well scattered in spite of the score, and both showed that they had plenty on the ball, particularly for that early in the season. So it is very likely that one or the other of them will start on the mound against the Jacobsmen. Stevenson seems to be the more likely choice, however, as he has the lowest earned run average on the Gotham club this spring.

Following the Fordham game, the Wildcats have another seven day layoff before tackling Lehigh in a return encounter, this time on the Main Line field.

CHISICK HONORED

Andy Chisick, outstanding center on "Clipper" Smith's football elevens during the 1937, 38 and 39 gridiron seasons, was made a second lieutenant in the field recently, while seeing action with the Marine forces.

An honor which is seldom given to enlisted men without the necessary Officers' Candidate Training, Chisick was commissioned while in action, as a reward for his outstanding bravery and leadership during the attack on Guadalcanal.

Pictured above are ten of the many presidents of colleges or universities who will be present at the Centennial Convocation on May 3. They will attend the meetings in formal cap and gown as representatives of their institutions. Approximately 65 other college or university presidents are expected to be among those present. In addition to these, at least the same number of persons of lesser rank from institutions of higher learning throughout the nation will attend the academic gatherings. The ceremonies will mark the termination of the war-restricted Centennial year.

the minimum requirements for admission to officer training schools.

To Work for Degrees

Engineering students (V-7, V-7) who are in good standing will be allowed a total of eight semesters since their matriculation at college. Other students (V-1, V-7) will be granted additional terms of study in accordance with the number of equivalent terms they will have completed as of July 1, 1943.

In both cases the reservists will complete a minimum program of technical study which will also allow them to complete further work on the requirements for their degree. With the exception of engineering, where the minimum requirements are more specific, for the most part this means courses in physics, engineering drawing for one-half year, and one year of college mathematics including completion of trigonometry.

Navy, Marines Segregated

Originally it was planned to put the navy and marines together; however, it now appears that the present plans call for a segregation of the marine reserves in a few specified institutions. It is unlikely that Villanova will have a marine unit, since the space will not be available. Seniors in the marine and navy reserve desiring to remain at Villanova at their own expense should request deferment at their call to active duty; however, they thus forfeit all the rights of active duty enumerated above.

All Naval reservists will be transferred to class V-12 when they are called to active duty. It is important to remember, though, that those now enlisted in the V-1 or the V-7 branches, will be permitted to continue following their present courses of study, subject to a minimum requirement of basic subjects.

V-1 Exam Scheduled

Hours of study, laboratory, class work, and physical training are estimated to be about 55-58 hours per week. Discipline will be under the control of the Commandant, and will be administered with the aid of the cadet system—students taking turns enforcing discipline as Cadet Officers.

All apprentice seamen (V-1) hoping to obtain a commission (except those in V-5, naval aviation) must finish at least the four-term course of study required for deck officers. Naval reserves, Class V-1, who are not at the present time in the second semester of their sophomore year, will be required to take the qualifying examination toward the end of the semester in which they attain that class standing.

For further information, students are urged to see Father McQuade.

Tolley, Martin Discuss Problems Facing Education

Speakers Emphasize Need For Leadership; Governor Martin Addresses Luncheon Group On Necessity Of Sacrifice

At Villanova's Centennial Convocation on May 3, more than 200 academic delegates heard Chancellor William Pearson Tolley of Syracuse University speak on the American college in this age of crisis.

In the principal address of the day, he stated: "Nineteenth Century liberal democracy has been liquidated, and we shall never see it again. There is increasing evidence that the leadership of western cuture is moving from Europe to America and that the future of western civilization will be largely determined here." He warned that, following the return of our service men, they as "students, will want education for the living of a life as well as the earning of a living." He further asserted that it is the duty of American colleges to provide this educational opportunity.

Governor Addresses Luncheon

At a luncheon following the formal Convocation ceremonies, Governor Edward S. Martin urged greater effort and sacrifice on the part of all Pennsylvanians. He stressed that "long hours, faithful hours, and intelligent hours" must be devoted towards the exigency of winning immediate and complete victory and of preparing now for a reasoned reconstruction.

He also stated that "this decade is the time for us to assert ourselves, to nerve ourselves" for the most difficult job in history. Praise was given the small colleges when the governor said that privately conducted institutions such as Villanova have borne the burden of

Graduation Day Set For May 23

Seventy-Five To Receive Baccalaureate Degrees In College Chapel

Villanova College will confer Baccalaureate degrees on approximately seventy-five men on Sunday, May 23, at 11:30 A. M. This will be the second war-time graduation under the new accelerated program.

The ceremonies which have formerly accompanied Villanova graduations have been dispensed with under the new system. Whereas previously the affairs were held in the field house with a larger class and therefore greater crowd, this graduation will be held in the college Chapel. Another of the ceremonies, the valedictory address, has been done away with.

To Hear High Mass

The graduates will assemble in Mendel Hall at 11:30 A. M. to don caps and gowns, and will then march in procession to the chapel. Here, Solemn High Mass will be celebrated by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., President of Villanova, assisted by Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., and Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A. The Mass will be sung by the Augustinian Scholastic Choir.

After the celebration of the Mass, the pledge of loyalty, given at all Villanova commencements, will be recited by the graduates. This will be followed by the conferring of degrees, with members of the faculty officiating. At the conclusion of the exercises, luncheon will be served to the graduates and their parents.

Owing to the limited accommodations in the Chapel, admission will be granted only to those who have been given tickets by the graduating students.

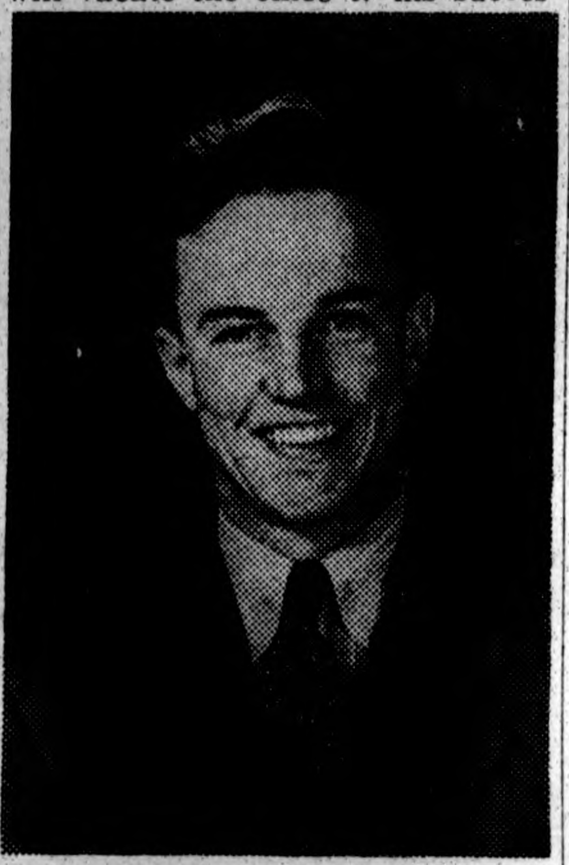
Engineering Frat Elects Officers

McManus, Allen, Wilson, Roth, Cellucci, And Quinn Assume New Posts In P.K.P.

Members of the engineering fraternity, Phi Kappa Pi, recently held an election in which the officers who are to preside over the fraternity during the coming semester were chosen. They are as follows: president, John McManus; vice-president, John Allen; secretary, John Wilson; treasurer, Arthur Roth; sergeant-at-arms, Philip Cellucci; Student Council representative, Francis Quinn.

Malachy Boyle, senior electrical engineering student who has held the presidency since last October, will vacate the office to his successor upon graduation in May. At a meeting held yesterday for the purpose of transferring the fraternity records, Boyle made several suggestions for improvement of the organization to the new officers.



JOHN S. McMANUS

Advocates Private Room

He is in favor of still further changes in the recently revised constitution, and suggested that the officers contact the proper authorities and attempt to secure a room somewhere in the school where the fraternity records could be kept. Boyle also said he would like to see the revival of all the old social affairs as soon as conditions make it practicable.

The new president, McManus, held the vice-presidency of the organization during the past semester. At present a junior, McManus has been very active in fraternity work ,and holds the position of secretary in the Villanova branch of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Speaking for all the newly elected officers, he said, "I realize that

Social Season Bows Pleasant Exit To Strains of the Interfrat Ball

Villanova's condensed war-time social season came to an auspicious end last Friday night as the campus fraternities combined to present their first annual Inter-fraternity Ball.

For a great many Villanova students, it was the last college dance; for numerous others it was the last that they will attend while attired in the latest civilian fashion.

Villanovans Very Versatile

From nine until one o'clock, music was amply supplied by an enthusiastic group, heralded as the Villanovans. There were not too many fast tunes for the less energetic dancers, although Ralph "Tex" Carucci, leader and Villanova student, called for just enough "jive" numbers to satisfy the craving of the jitterbugs. None of the numbers, however, fell upon unappreciative ears.

Toward the end of the evening, the spotlight fell on that tall, versatile Southern gentleman, Brad Johnson, who rendered his vocal interpretations of several "boogie-beat" songs. Earlier, the mellow trumpet of the band's featured trumpet player, known only as "Reds,' 'earned a round of applause.

Fraternity Banners Displayed

Between numbers, small groups dotted the floor, engaged in the exchange of greetings and inquiry as to which favored place would be honored by their patronage after the dance. During the frequent intermissions, those who were not lighting "smokes" in front of the Field House, were either resting their weary arches inside, or indulging in refreshments in the Blue Room.

Decorations in the Field House were simple, but quite effective. Over the bandstand hung a large Villanova banner, with the respective fraternity banners placed around the sides of the room. Retiring hours on the whole must have been late, as evidenced by the large number of sleepy-eyed students seen staggering to Saturday classes.

Statement On Degree Status

In response to requests from the Student Council for an official definition of policy on the awarding of degrees to men called for military service, the following statement has been released by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of the college:

"The calling up of college students for military service inevitably means for many, interruption of their education before they have completed the work for their degrees. This is a matter of regret to all, and the problem is being sympathetically studied by educational and governmental agencies with the purpose of enabling such students to complete the work for their degrees at some future date.

"There is complete agreement between the agencies concerned on two points; namely, that educational standards must be maintained, even in wartime, and that granting of "blanket" credit for military experience is desirable neither for the student nor for education nor for the welfare of the country as a whole.

"Procedures have been worked out and are constantly being refined, whereby all educational experience with the armed forces will be recorded in a way that will be understandable to educational institutions in order that they may evaluate it and grant credit in accordance with good educational practice. Opportunities are also being provided to continue with education while in military service under the program of "The Armed Forces Institute." Villanova College is following very closely the developments along these lines. We will cooperate in whatever practices or procedures are found to be acceptable generally to colleges.

"In view of the foregoing, Villanova does not contemplate awarding degrees automatically to seniors entering the armed service who have completed the equivalent of three and one half years of college work. This does not mean that such seniors will be ineligible for degrees at some subsequent date if they can present evidence that they have pursued additional and comparable courses or have fulfilled additional requirement.

"We are keeping careful records of each individual case and will consider the matter open until such time as a definite policy has been worked out for all the colleges. Any other procedure would result in the cheapening of the bachelor's degree and would not be fair to all students.

"As a specific example, the case of members of the class of 1943 may be cited. Members of this class who were enrolled in the Army Enlisted Reserve and who follow the advice of the college by attending the summer accelerated course, completed the work for their degrees and were graduated in January before being called to active military service.

"Classmates who did not choose to follow the accelerated program had completed only three and one half years of college at the time they were called to military service. In such cases it would be manifestly unfair to award such men baccalaureate degrees on the basis of three and one-half years work. Such students will be given subsequent opportunity to complete the work for the degree."

Dr. George Sperti Named Mendel Medal Recipient

Fifteenth Annual Award To Be Presented To Noted Scientist At Faculty Banquet On Sunday

Dr. George Speri Sperti, noted research professor and director of the Institutum Divi Thomae of Cincinnati, Ohio, will be this year's recipient of the Mendel Award, which is annually presented by Villanova College to an individual who has made outstanding achievement in science. The Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, C. S. A., college president, has announced that the award will be presented to Sperti at a faculty dinner in his honor to be held here on the campus on Sunday, May 16.

After receiving his electrical engineering degree at the University of Cincinnati in 1923, Sperti was awarded the Baldwin Fellowship 1923-25, the Rockefeller Foundation Travelling Fellowship 1930-31, the National Research Council Fellowship 1929-31, and was also a Fellow of the Graduate School of the University of Cincinnati from 1930-35.

Aids Science With Inventions

Dr. Sperti was co-founder of the Basic Science Research Laboratory of the University of Cincinnati and from 1925 to 1935 served as research professor and director at that institution.

In 1935 he co-founded the Institution Divi Thomae of the Athenaeum of Ohio and since that time has been research professor and director of the Institutum and its affiliated laboratories.

Dr. Sperti has contributed to the advancement of science in diversified fields of research. He is the inventor of the K-va and polyphase power-factor meter which has formed the basis of modern power measurements. In the field of illumination he has developed a line of therapeutic lamps based on his inventions in the field of gaseous discharges and on his work with selective irradiation.

Other Sperti developments with selective irradiation include methods for the sterilization of food products, endowment of food products with anti-rachitis properties, sterilization of enzymes and the detoxification of vaccines, tenderization of meat and similar products. He has also made fundamental contributions to the field of fluorescent lighting.

Worked on Cancer

Dr. Sperti is the discoverer of a new family of biological substances termed biodynes which regulate cell metabolism. He is responsible for the development of a new wound healing ointment that is being used extensively on major burns. Most of his research career has been devoted to the study of the problem and the cause and cure of cancer." Dr. Sperti has made

A Personal Appreciation

As another scholastic year draws to a close at Villanova so also does it bring with it the end of the duties of several of those connected with the editing of the VILLANOVAN. Perhaps it is not following the strict journalistic rules of a newspaper to devote an editorial column to its own interests, but considering the unrewarded work of the staff, members, I feel that it is permissable in this instance.

The past year has been a particularly difficult one for the college weekly as it has for every campus organization. It has forced the cutting down to many four page issues because of the lack of news, advertising, and time to work of the staff members. But still, through the wholehearted efforts of each member, the paper continued to appear weekly with a coverage of the most interesting news available on campus.

As in former times, the VILLANOVAN has received criticism, both favorable and unfavorable, and the Editorial Board has done their utmost to remedy its many faults and to continue producing a paper worthy of the standards set by its predecessors. As to the amount of success we have accomplished, it remains to you, the student body, to decide. Nevertheless, we can honestly say that we have tried, and tried hard.

Aside from occasional words of praise from readers and the keys received by older members, the staff has received no recompense for its efforts. Even the annual staff banquet to which all have always looked forward, was necessarily eliminated because of the already great strain on restaurant facilities. Even so, the staff writers took their assignments each week and in spite of the heavy burden of studies came through with some excellent work. Those who worked on the circulation, business, and photography staffs have done equally as well in adding to the make-up of the paper and its circulation.

In particular I think it justifiable to give the assisting editors personal mention for their long hours of work every single week. Tom Schubert and Stan Zeeman, College and Copy Editors respectively, have given up their weekends and spent long hours to assist in the final make-up of the VILLANOVAN besides rewriting and copy reading countless stories. Their talents, good will, and generosity were invaluable. Bud O'Connor, Business Manager, Ed Mancuso, Photography Editor, and Frank Facciolo, Circulation Manager, are all deserving of the highest credit for their ceaseless work.

The one section of the paper that has really been handled to perfection this past term and one that has met with the approval of the student body is the sports section under the capable editorship of Bill Walsh. A fine job has been done by Bill and one of which he can justly be proud.

Last but far from least noteworthy of mention is the controlling hand behind the entire VILLANOVAN; the man whose heart and soul is devoted to seeing a paper produced in spite of all obstacles; an advisor whose aid has been looked to by every student that has the privilege of editing Villanova's paper; a priest who cannot be given too much thanks or words of appreciation for his untiring help; it is Father McKee, our energetic moderator and true friend.

As for the immediate future of the VILLANOVAN, it is difficult to say with so many uncertainties ahead. But it is certain that with staff members as I have had the privilege to work with it cannot fail to succeed whenever conditions permit it to resume publication.

Students Merit Praise

ONE week ago yesterday, May 3, Villanova celebrated her 100th anniversary with the Centennial Convocation and it can be truthfully said that it was a colorful and impressive event that deserves to go down in red letters in the archives of the college. The carrying out of difficult plans for this celebration was done so excellently that every Villanova student who had the privilege to take part in them can be rightly proud.

Although details were carefully worked out by various members of the faculty, full cooperation of the student body was needed to make the affair a complete success. And this cooperation was evidenced in every way possible—by those who acted as guides for the arriving delegates — by those who transformed the Field House from an auditorium with approximately 1000 chairs into an attractive setting for the luncheon which followed in a period of eighteen minutes—by those who acted as ushers during the actual Convocation ceremonies—by those who merely attended the event but extended every courtesy to Villanova's guests whenever they came in contact with them.

To illustrate the appreciation felt by the many representatives of the colleges and universities, words of a college president are quoted from one of the many letters received by Fr. Stanford, ". . .It is easy to understand how much careful preparation was necessary for these festivities. Even the little things had been planned with remarkable foresight. Since my handbag was heavy, I greatly appreciated the assistance of one of your nice undergraduates in carrying it from the station to the building where we donned our gowns. The procession moved forward with smoothness—no easy thing to accomplish—and the dexterity of your men in arranging luncheon so swiftly was remarkable."

In summing up the praise which the student body has indeed merited for their excellent work, we quote the following from the statement given to the VILLANOVAN by our president, Fr. Stanford, "The student body is deserving of the highest commendation for their whole-hearted cooperation in the Centennial Convocation on May 3rd. The assistance of the students was unstinted. They created a most favorable impression on the delegates, many of whom by word and in writing expressed their appreciation. Personally, I never felt more proud of the students than I did on the day of the Convocation. I commend them and congratulate them most sincerely."

Press Distorts Truth

WITH the outbreak of the Spanish Civil War several years ago, the American government and press immediately lent their encouragement to the efforts of communist loyalists to crush Catholicism in Spain. When Generalissimo Franco emerged victorious from the sea of martyr blood in which his country was bathed, it was the signal for a campaign of villification in the American press which has been revived by the present war to a new height of infamy.

Most highly publicized and thereby farthest-reaching in harm done of these articles to appear in recent weeks is the forthcoming "March of Time" feature, "Inside Fascist Spain," which has been previewed in "Life" and "PM" magazines.

These articles are a defiance of the American tradition that the press shall serve the people with news and truth; they are propoganda as misleading and condemnable as the most distorted inventions of the soulless Nazis; they are distinctly anti Catholic.

By presenting numerous pictures of Loyalists, jailed for their participation in the wanton destruction of Catholic life and Church property at the time of the war, who are still in prison, the impression is falsely created that Spain today is a nation incarcerated.

Final reference of the article is to an oath of allegiance taken by the Spanish Bishops which "Life" editors in a direct insult to American intelligence describe as "bloodcurdling." This oath, modeled on past Papal Concordats, is nothing more than a solemn expression made to reassure secular authority, of an obligation to God and conscience that no Bishop can ignore. It simply promises ". . .as befits a Bishop, fidelity to the Spanish State."

While it is proper that rule by force against the will of the people should not be sanctioned, it is an everlasting disgrace to our country that we who attained our own form of government by rebellion against a tyrant should fail to recognize legitimate revolution. "Life" editors in one statement tell us that Spain is "overwhelmingly Catholic," and in the next, refuse to accept as legitimate any but an anti-Catholic regime.

Such complete contempt of logic and deliberate distortion of fact can only be regarded as a plain manifestation of the anti-Catholic motives which are becoming increasingly evident in the American press.

THE consensus of opinion seems to have it that Villanova should have Centennial celebrations more often, for since the beginning of the past week the lads have been doing aplenty. . . The general atmosphere around the campus seems to have been conducive to heavy action. . .The balmy weather, social functions coming along, and the end of it all in a few weeks seemed to make one and all very extra-curricular.

On Monday the Centennial Convocation was held. . .Many prominent and important personages were present. . .Not to be outdone, a few of the fellows brought in some important people . . . Jack Laffan was seen escorting two on each arm during the day. . .Jim "88" Keays was overheard explaining the ceremonies or something to a nice delegate. . .

The next evening the annual Card Party and Dance turned out to be a great success due, no doubt, to the efforts of Father Coffey. . . Both coeds and "eds" were well represented. . .Some of the boys, especially Ed Reilly, played their cards rather neatly. He was playing a solitary hand with a very neat brunette. . .Tom Hitchell was a smooth one. . .After two dances with a coed from Immaculata he had an invitation for its prom . . .Joe Pezelski was seen showing a few tricks to a table full of neat looking gals.

Digressing a bit from the doings of the week a few choice morsels cropped up here and there. . .Joe Lech was a hard-hit victim of the weather. . .Having a few short winks in the warm class-room after a good lunch, Joe forgot to keep one eye open. . .In fact he didn't hear the bell or the fellows file out very quietly so as not to disturb our sleeping hero. . .An hour or so later Joe awoke to find himself alone in the classroom and very much the foil of nature.

The boys are wondering if Bill Fallon is returning to a period of second childhood at this early stage in life. . .He claims that he is just doing a bit of review work in some of his high school courses. . . "Dunny" Donahoe has finally broken into the win column at Rosemont, but is trying to overcome an intense liking for the Marine Corps . . .and it was too bad that Jim Connelly had to get in trouble with his O.A.O. just because he came to the Card Party instead of to her birthday party. . .Perhaps he was looking for a prize or something.

One of the brighter items of the week was the return of Patty's picture on Bob Fittin's desk. . . Things seem to be very much better these days. There seems to be more here than meets the eye. . . Jim Finnigan has been heard playing with the phrase "She likes me" so often recently that friends are wondering just what the whole story is concerning Helene.

From the outside world comes reports that Jack Farrell and Tom McQuade were very much present at New Rochelle's prom of a recent date.

On Friday evening the year ended in a gala manner. . .The weather was very balmy, the music by the Villanovans was very smooth, and the fellows and their dates were out to make the most of the last affair of the year. . .A good hunk of credit goes to Bill Craven and Bob Simpson for the solid evening of entertainment that they provided.

As usual there was a variety of interesting angles during the evening. . .Doug Boyd came out of retirement for the evening and turned out to be one of the sharper boys on the floor. . .A few of the fellows, notably Tom Martin, were the subjects of the disastrous news that their dates had come down with the measles, of all things at all times. . .

All the lads with a bee in their bonnet got their respective heads together and conspired for the downfall of the lad who had caused so much trouble with his snoopings during the year, namely, 'Cat Capers. In a masterful stroke, an en-

Meet The Boys:

A Busy College Life Bill Has Led, Along With Job Of Being Sports Ed

By RAY WILLE

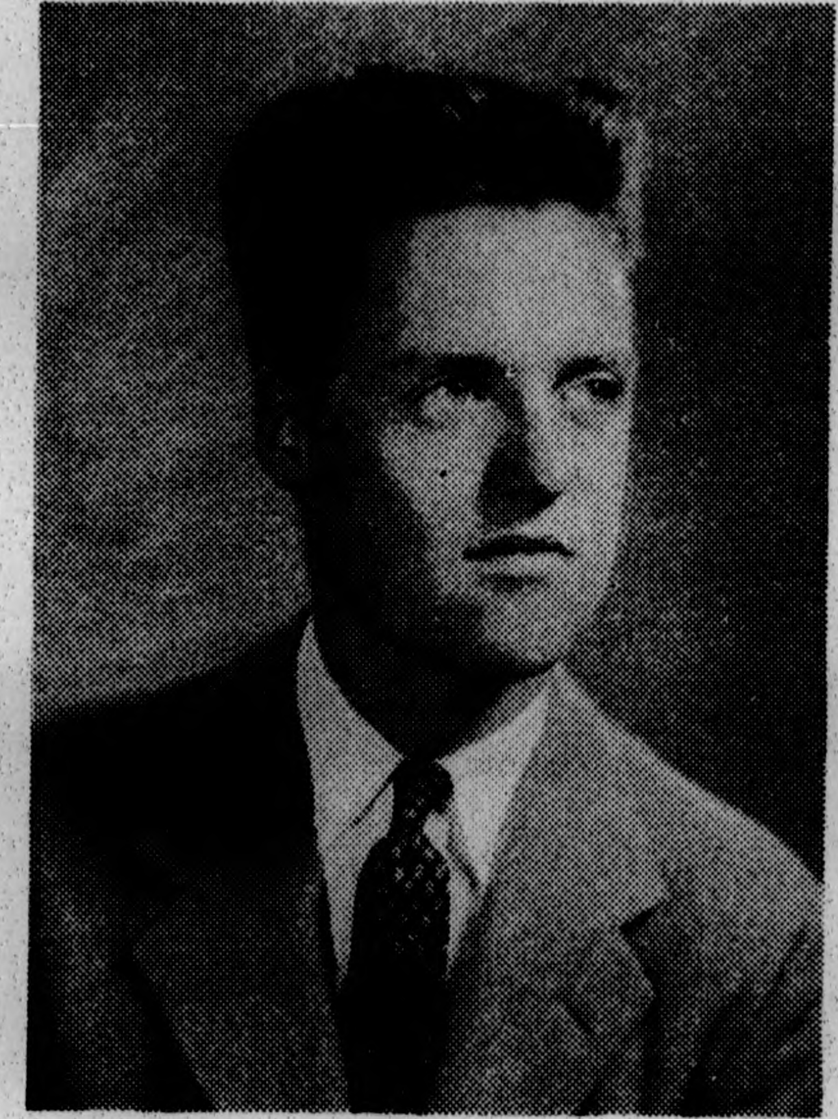
TO say that we bring into the spotlight this week the sports editor of the VILLANOVAN, Bill Walsh, would be a misstatement of fact. Around the campus he is continually in the spotlight, and even those who do not know him intimately have seen his picture each week in the VILLANOVAN under his column "Sportorial." However, we do present this account of the more personal side of his life.

An unidentified stork swung low over the Walsh home in Westfield, N. J., on March 23, 1922, opened his bomb racks, then sped away to escape the withering barrage beneath him. When the smoke had cleared away, the Walshes discovered a chubby figure wearing the latest thing in three-cornered sarongs, and they promptly named him William Thomas. Bill lived in Westfield until he was ten, then the family moved a short distance to the town of Metuchen.

Majors in Pre-Law

He attended St. Francis grammar school in Metuchen, but the lack of a Catholic high school there made it necessary for him to go to New Bunswick where he was a pupil at the St. Peter's High School. Here he participated in freshman and J. V. basketball and baseball. Bill was also a member of the sports staff of the school paper, and he took an active part in dramatics and debating.

Although Bill graduated from St. Peter's in the spring of 1939, he did not come to Villanova until the fall of the following year. During this lapse in his studies, he was employed at the law firm of Milbank, Tweed and Hope, where he became familiar with the workings of such organizations. As Bill is now finishing a pre-law course at Villanova, this experience should be of use to him.



Edits Two Sports Sections

By the narrowest of margins, Bill missed the honor roll twice in his freshman year, but since then he has been on it almost consistently. Last summer, he proudly relates, he made the highest average he has made so far and came out second in his class. Of his subjects, Bill prefers philosophy, public speaking, and mathematics; even the thought of physics strikes terror to his very core.

In the spring of his freshman year, Bill began writing for the VILLANOVAN and during that same year he started to work on the Belle Air. At the present time he is sports editor of both publications. He and Jake Mauch served the only split terms as sports editors of the VILLANOVAN with Jake holding the post last spring and last winter while Bill took over last summer and during the present semester.

Active in Many Clubs

Bill joined the Spanish Club as a freshman, and in his junior year he was elected vice-president of this group, in which capacity he still serves. Also as a frosh he became a member of the Sanctuary Society and of the Holy Name Society, and he was secretary of both organizations in his sophomore year. He was vice-president of the former society last year and he still holds this position. In his second year at the college, Bill was initiated into Delta Pi Epsilon, C & F fraternity, and he sang with the Glee Club. He started with the Debating Society as a freshman, and since then Bill has been a member of the varsity debating group. In his sophomore year, he took part in the History Seminar.

On his key chain hangs a small key indicating that Bill is a member of Who's Who Among Students in America Colleges and Universities. This honor was awarded to him as a result of his good grades and his many extra-curricular activities. Last year Bill received nine merit awards, a higher number than any other student. As a freshman he obtained five of these awards, and this year the number will be six or seven.

Excels in Golf

Bill does not only look at sports as an editor and columnist; he is also an enthusiastic participant. He is in every intramural swimming meet, hardball and softball game that he can possibly enter, and he was a member of the Intramural All Star baseball team that played such colleges as Haverford and Swarthmore.

Golf, however, is his true love. As he used to watch his father play the game, Bill developed a genuine appreciation of it. He began to play just after his first year in high school, and around that time he was knocking off a 132 game for eighteen holes. The following year he received a membership in the Metuchen Golf and Country Club for his birthday, and he cut his game to eighty-four. He kept slicing his scores down until, as a high school senior, he tied the course record with a hot sixty-six game. The only other person to do it is the present New Jersey State amateur champion.

Plays on Varsity

His graduation day was really a banner day for Bill because it was then that he won the Junior Club championship, and last year when he returned to Metuchen and entered the Senior Club championships for the first time, he also won that. To prove that he hadn't lost any of his form when he came to Villanova, as a freshman he won the intramural tournament. That spring Bill was low in qualifying, and hence he was number one on the team for all nine matches that season. The following year he was low again, duplicating his number one place on the team.

His best match, Bill says, was against Fitzgerald of Fordham at the Pennsylvania Golf Club in Frazer. During the entire game, Bill was never more than one up on his opponent until he reached the last two holes, when he managed to squeeze out a 74-72 victory.

Member of Navy Reserve

When the question of women was brought up, Bill shrugged his shoulders, then said that he was too busy around the college to become very interested in any girl. Though few people who meet Bill cannot be called his friends, among those who know him best are his roommate, Jack Bambrick, Jake Mauch, and "Doc" Coll, and since he met Fr. Coffey last summer, Bill regards him as one of his very best friends.

The fact that he is extremely careful about his grammar has earned him the nickname "Doctor Johnson," but he takes this joking good-naturedly. Bill's tall frame and ready smile, which bespeaks a mild and genial temperament, is a familiar sight anywhere on the campus and especially where there is any athletic contest in progress.

The navy has taken care of any plans for the immediate future as far as Bill is concerned, since as a member of the Naval Reserve, class V-1, he will be put into uniform on July 1. He hopes to train as a deck officer, and after the war Bill expects to go to law school. He hasn't definitely decided which one he will attend, but he suspects he'll have plenty of time to think it over.

CAPT. JOSEPH B. CHRISTOPH

Villanova Grad Killed In Crash Of Army Bomber

On April 2, 1943, Captain Joseph Benedict Christoph, of the Army Air Forces, met his death in an airplane accident near Childs, Florida. The flyer was a graduate of Villanova College, having received his B. S. degree in Mechanical engineering here in 1940.

This Maplewood, New Jersey, lad enlisted in the Air Corps in September, 1940, a few months after his graduation, and was sent immediately to Jackson, Mississippi, for his primary instruction. This was followed by his basic training at Gunther Field, Montgomery, Alabama. Christoph received his wings, becoming a Second Lieutenant, at Maxwell Field in July 11, 1941. He was then retained as an instructor for one year, and in August 1942 went to Hendricks Field, Sebring, Florida for Combat Crew School. It was while here that he received his Captaincy on March 19, 1943, and only a few days later lost his life in a fatal airplane accident.

Active at College

While at Villanova Christoph had been a constant member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the Holy Name Society. He served on the Open House Committee as well as the Belle Air Ball committee, and also was a member of the editorial staff of the Villanova "Engineer" and took part in the Music Seminar in his senior year. Throughout his college career he displayed intense interest in short wave radio sets, and was known to have a definite ambition to be a licensed airplane pilot.

In a personal letter of sympathy to the captain's mother, Mrs. Eva Christoph, General H. H. Arnold, U. S. Army, Commanding General, Army Air Forces, states: "My attention has been called to the splendid military and academy record attained by Captain Christoph during his cadet training and in the Advanced Flying School at Maxwell Field. Both as a student and as an officer he endeavored earnestly and industriously to perform all duties in an exemplary manner, and achieved the success which his enthusiasm and initiative merited. Captain Christoph had an excellent personality which together with his accomplishments won for him a host of loyal friends."

In another expression of sympathy, received by the family, from General Marshall, the Chief of Staff writes: "Joseph B. Christoph has made the great contribution to the American ways of living. He died while serving as an American soldier and his sacrifice will not be forgotten by those who are determined to bring this terrible struggle to a victorious conclusion."

Lt. Tolan Dies

As the VILLANOVAN was going to press, it was with deep sorrow that we learned of the death of Lieutenant James E. Tolan, Jr., of the United States Naval Air Corps, who was killed during a test flight at Curtiss Bay, Maryland, last Friday.

Lieutenant Tolan was a member of the Villanova Class of '44, but left here in 1941 during his sophomore year. He received his "wings of gold" last October, and was married on the same day.

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., college chaplain, will offer up the students' Mass at 7:15 on Thursday morning for the repose of the soul of Lieut. Tolan.

100 Years At Villanova

(Ed.—This is the sixth and last in a series of articles relating to the history of Villanova as written by Rev. Thomas F. Roland, O.S.A., and Rev. Thomas F. Gilligan in the "Tagastan."

The first fifty years of the college's existence were marked by alternate periods of prosperity and adversity. Indeed, twice in the history of the school it was necessary for the authorities to close its doors due to the pressure of the times. With the indomitable courage and loyalty of those who made up the faculty and student body, however, Villanova overcame these difficulties and gradually rose to new academic heights. At the turn of the century, Villanova began to assume its respected position in academic America.)

IT must not be thought that the modern development of the college happened overnight or that Villanova awakened in 1920 from a long sleep. There was, it is true, a sudden spurt in the growth of the school in the twenties. It was the result primarily of economic and social conditions in the country and was felt by every educational institution in the land. It is to the credit of Villanova's planners that the college was ready for it, thanks to a program of progress which began really at the very start of the second fifty years of the college.

A wise and foresighted man, taking reckoning of the resources of Villanova in 1893, might list its assets and liabilities thus: one beautiful collegiate church, one college hall, one small gymnasium, one small monastery, a nineteenth centurn college curriculum and the preparatory school attended by the larger number of Villanova's students, a critical dearth of teaching priests and very few vocations to supply future needs in this regard.

Competent Leaders Named

One priceless possession which the college had was the vast expanse of real estate which was becoming increasingly valuable and which was in later days to contribute in no small measure to the resources needed to expand the institution. A wise and zealous man appointed by his superiors to build a greater Villanova would surely plan his part in the enterprise in such a way that he would contribute to the remedying of these conditions. It is Villanova's glory that many such wise and visionary leaders were given by God to the college when it most needed them.

The first steps forward came in the presidency of Rev. Lawrence Delurey, O. S. A., while Frs. Charles Mary Driscoll, John J. Fedigan, and Martin J. Geraghty were Provincials. Fr. Delurey, who was president from 1895 to 1910, was a thoroughgoing schoolman, a leader in the Catholic intellectual life of the day, and one of the earliest promoters of the Catholic Educational Association. His task as he saw it was to build up a real college curriculum based upon the best standards of the day and enlarged to include all those courses demanded by the best collegiate practice of the times.

Modernized Curriculum

It was to the great merit of these three priests that they ably seconded these plans of the president with all the force of authority and their own enthusiasm. The work of Fr. Delurey in broadening and solidifying the curriculum, in founding the School of Engineering and in establishing the prestige of the college in educational and Catholic circles gave the needed direction to the growing momentum of the school's progress.

It was Fr. Fedigan who undertook the construction of the magnificent group of buildings begun in 1899 and finished in 1901. That this was a task of the first magnitude is seen not only in the tremendous cost, but it can likewise be gleaned from the displeasure which was evoked in the more conservative of the faculty members.

Academy Segregated

When the new buildings were occupied in 1901, the old college building became the Tolentine Academy and the old monastery became the hall for postulants. The first and most obvious result of the steps thus far taken was the adequate housing of the college men. The new main building supplied dormitories, lecture halls, dining room, gymnasium, auditorium, and offices of administration. But the results were more far reaching than that. The removal of the college to buildings of its own left the old college hall as a place to house the Academy, and thus that school was segregated from the college and given a separate existence of its own.

The establishment by Fr. Geraghty of St. Ritas' Hall for Postulants in the old monastery was the first and hardest step in the move to promote vocations and insure a continuing supply of priests for the Province and the college. With an abundance of clerical students, many improvements were possible, not the least important of which was the higher education of members of the faculty.

Curriculum Expanded

Villanova before 1893 was exclusively a liberal arts college. The School of Arts remains as the core of its organization. In the course of time, however, various other departments developed naturally to supplement this original department in accordance with the needs of the times and the demands for specialized training. The early efforts made at the turn of the century to build up the curriculum resulted, for one thing, in the establishment of the School of Engineering in 1905.

This necessitated the addition of drafting rooms, laboratories, and all the equipment needed for courses in civil, electrical, and mechanical engineering. The first students of this school graduated in 1906.

The School of Science evolved gradually as a result of the increasing requirements of medical schools. At first these requirements were met by a two year pre-medical course which had its beginning in 1915. As the demands of the medical associations increased, the length of the course for pre-medical students was likewise extended until finally such students were taking a full four year course leading

AS another scholastic year draws to a close at Villanova so also does it bring with it the end of the duties of several of those connected with the editing of the VILLANOVAN. Perhaps it is not following the strict journalistic rules of a newspaper to devote an editorial column to its own interests, but considering the unrewarded work of the staff, members, I feel that it is permissable in this instance.

The past year has been a particularly difficult one for the college weekly as it has for every campus organization. It has forced the cutting down to many four page issues because of the lack of news, advertising, and time to work of the staff members. But still, through the wholehearted efforts of each member, the paper continued to appear weekly with a coverage of the most interesting news available on campus.

As in former times, the VILLANOVAN has received criticism, both favorable and unfavorable, and the Editorial Board has done their utmost to remedy its many faults and to continue producing a paper worthy of the standards set by its predecessors. As to the amount of success we have accomplished, it remains to you, the student body, to decide. Nevertheless, we can honestly say that we have tried, and tried hard.

Aside from occasional words of praise from readers and the keys received by older members, the staff has received no recompense for its efforts. Even the annual staff banquet to which all have always looked forward, was necessarily eliminated because of the already great strain on restaurant facilities. Even so, the staff writers took their assignments each week and in spite of the heavy burden of studies came through with some excellent work. Those who worked on the circulation, business, and photography staffs have done equally as well in adding to the make-up of the paper and its circulation.

In particular I think it justifiable to give the assisting editors personal mention for their long hours of work every single week. Tom Schubert and Stan Zeeman, College and Copy Editors respectively, have given up their weekends and spent long hours to assist in the final make-up of the VILLANOVAN besides rewriting and copy reading countless stories. Their talents, good will, and generosity were invaluable. Bud O'Connor, Business Manager, Ed Mancuso, Photography Editor, and Frank Facciolo, Circulation Manager, are all deserving of the highest credit for their ceaseless work.

The one section of the paper that has really been handled to perfection this past term and one that has met with the approval of the student body is the sports section under the capable editorship of Bill Walsh. A fine job has been done by Bill and one of which he can justly be proud.

Last but far from least noteworthy of mention is the controlling hand behind the entire VILLANOVAN; the man whose heart and soul is devoted to seeing a paper produced in spite of all obstacles; an advisor whose aid has been looked to by every student that has the privilege of editing Villanova's paper; a priest who cannot be given too much thanks or words of appreciation for his untiring help; it is Father McKee, our energetic moderator and true friend.

As for the immediate future of the VILLANOVAN, it is difficult to say with so many uncertainties ahead. But it is certain that with staff members as I have had the privilege to work with it cannot fail to succeed whenever conditions permit it to resume publication.

Students Merit Praise

ONE week ago yesterday, May 3, Villanova celebrated her 100th anniversary with the Centennial Convocation and it can be truthfully said that it was a colorful and impressive event that deserves to go down in red letters in the archives of the college. The carrying out of difficult plans for this celebration was done so excellently that every Villanova student who had the privilege to take part in them can be rightly proud.

Although details were carefully worked out by various members of the faculty, full cooperation of the student body was needed to make the affair a complete success. And this cooperation was evidenced in every way possible—by those who acted as guides for the arriving delegates—by those who transformed the Field House from an auditorium with approximately 1000 chairs into an attractive setting for the luncheon which followed in a period of eighteen minutes—by those who acted as ushers during the actual Convocation ceremonies—by those who merely attended the event but extended every courtesy to Villanova's guests whenever they came in contact with them.

To illustrate the appreciation felt by the many representatives of the colleges and universities, words of a college president are quoted from one of the many letters received by Fr. Stanford, ". . .It is easy to understand how much careful preparation was necessary for these festivities. Even the little things had been planned with remarkable foresight. Since my handbag was heavy, I greatly appreciated the assistance of one of your nice undergraduates in carrying it from the station to the building where we donned our gowns. The procession moved forward with smoothness—no easy thing to accomplish—and the dexterity of your men in arranging luncheon so swiftly was remarkable."

In summing up the praise which the student body has indeed merited for their excellent work, we quote the following from the statement given to the VILLANOVAN by our president, Fr. Stanford, "The student body is deserving of the highest commendation for their whole-hearted cooperation in the Centennial Convocation on May 3rd. The assistance of the students was unstinted. They created a most favorable impression on the delegates, many of whom by word and in writing expressed their appreciation. Personally, I never felt more proud of the students than I did on the day of the Convocation. I commend them and congratulate them most sincerely."

Press Distorts Truth

WITH the outbreak of the Spanish Civil War several years ago, the American government and press immediately lent their encouragement to the efforts of communist loyalists to crush Catholicism in Spain. When Generalissimo Franco emerged victorious from the sea of martyr blood in which his country was bathed, it was the signal for a campaign of villification in the American press which has been revived by the present war to a new height of infamy.

Most highly publicized and thereby farthest-reaching in harm done of these articles to appear in recent weeks is the forthcoming "March of Time" feature, "Inside Fascist Spain," which has been previewed in "Life" and "PM" magazines.

These articles are a defiance of the American tradition that the press shall serve the people with news and truth; they are propoganda as misleading and condemnable as the most distorted inventions of the soulless Nazis; they are distinctly anti Catholic.

By presenting numerous pictures of Loyalists, jailed for their participation in the wanton destruction of Catholic life and Church property at the time of the war, who are still in prison, the impression is falsely created that Spain today is a nation incarcerated.

Final reference of the article is to an oath of allegiance taken by the Spanish Bishops which "Life" editors in a direct insult to American intelligence describe as "blood-curdling." This oath, modeled on past Papal Concordats, is nothing more than a solemn expression made to reassure secular authority, of an obligation to God and conscience that no Bishop can ignore. It simply promises ". . .as befits a Bishop, fidelity to the Spanish State."

While it is proper that rule by force against the will of the people should not be sanctioned, it is an everlasting disgrace to our country that we who attained our own form of government by rebellion against a tyrant should fail to recognize legitimate revolution. "Life" editors in one statement tell us that Spain is "overwhelmingly Catholic," and in the next, refuse to accept as legitimate any but an anti-Catholic regime.

Such complete contempt of logic and deliberate distortion of fact can only be regarded as a plain manifestation of the anti-Catholic motives which are becoming increasingly evident in the American press.

THE consensus of opinion seems to have it that Villanova should have Centennial celebrations more often, for since the beginning of the past week the lads have been doing aplenty. . . The general atmosphere around the campus seems to have been conducive to heavy action. . .The balmy weather, social functions coming along, and the end of it all in a few weeks seemed to make one and all very extra-curricular.

On Monday the Centennial Convocation was held. . .Many prominent and important personages were present. . .Not to be outdone, a few of the fellows brought in some important people . . . Jack Laffan was seen escorting two on each arm during the day. . .Jim "88" Keays was overheard explaining the ceremonies or something to a nice delegate. . .

The next evening the annual Card Party and Dance turned out to be a great success due, no doubt, to the efforts of Father Coffey. . . Both coeds and "eds" were well represented. . .Some of the boys, especially Ed Reilly, played their cards rather neatly. He was playing a solitary hand with a very neat brunette. . .Tom Hitchell was a smooth one. . .After two dances with a coed from Immaculata he had an invitation for its prom . . .Joe Pezelski was seen showing a few tricks to a table full of neat looking gals.

Digressing a bit from the doings of the week a few choice morsels cropped up here and there. . .Joe Lech was a hard-hit victim of the weather. . .Having a few short winks in the warm class-room after a good lunch, Joe forgot to keep one eye open. . .In fact he didn't hear the bell or the fellows file out very quietly so as not to disturb our sleeping hero. . .An hour or so later Joe awoke to find himself alone in the classroom and very much the foil of nature.

The boys are wondering if Bill Fallon is returning to a period of second childhood at this early stage in life. . .He claims that he is just doing a bit of review work in some of his high school courses. . . "Dunny" Donahoe has finally broken into the win column at Rosemont, but is trying to overcome an intense liking for the Marine Corps . . .and it was too bad that Jim Connelly had to get in trouble with his O.A.O. just because he came to the Card Party instead of to her birthday party. . .Perhaps he was looking for a prize or something.

One of the brighter items of the week was the return of Patty's picture on Bob Fittin's desk. . . Things seem to be very much better these days. There seems to be more here than meets the eye. . . Jim Finnigan has been heard playing with the phrase "She likes me" so often recently that friends are wondering just what the whole story is concerning Helene.

From the outside world comes reports that Jack Farrell and Tom McQuade were very much present at New Rochelle's prom of a recent date.

On Friday evening the year ended in a gala manner. . .The weather was very balmy, the music by the Villanovans was very smooth, and the fellows and their dates were out to make the most of the last affair of the year. . .A good hunk of credit goes to Bill Craven and Bob Simpson for the solid evening of entertainment that they provided.

As usual there was a variety of interesting angles during the evening. . .Doug Boyd came out of retirement for the evening and turned out to be one of the sharper boys on the floor. . .A few of the fellows, notably Tom Martin, were the subjects of the disastrous news that their dates had come down with the measles, of all things at all times. . .

All the lads with a bee in their bonnet got their respective heads together and conspired for the downfall of the lad who had caused so much trouble with his snoopings during the year, namely, 'Cat Capers. In a masterful stroke, an en-

Meet The Boys:

A Busy College Life Bill Has Led, Along With Job Of Being Sports Ed

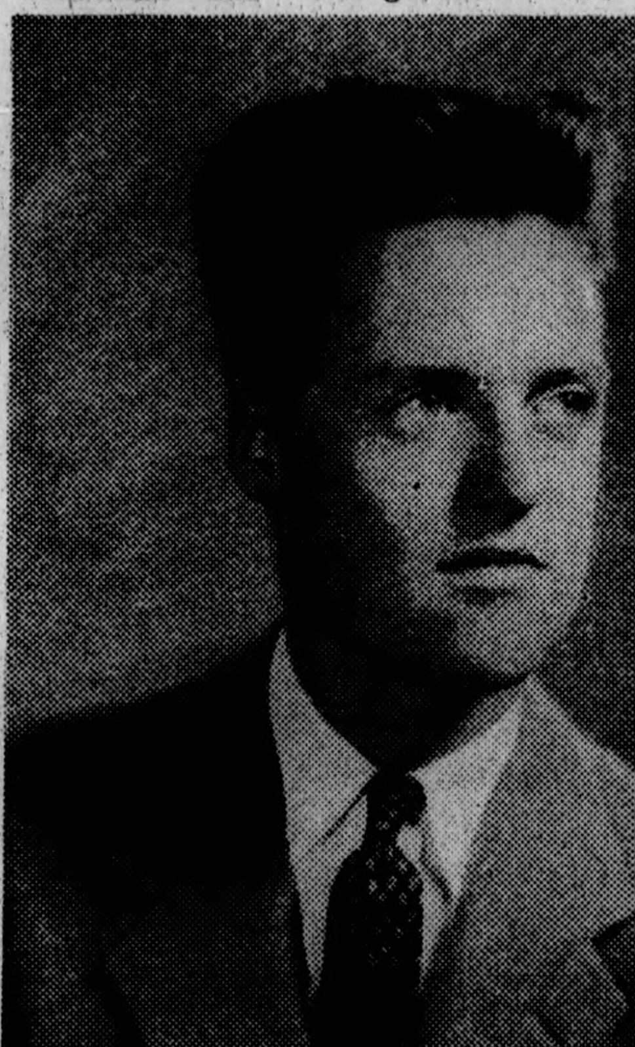
By RAY WILLE

TO say that we bring into the spotlight this week the sports editor of the VILLANOVAN, Bill Walsh, would be a misstatement of fact. Around the campus he is continually in the spotlight, and even those who do not know him intimately have seen his picture each week in the VILLANOVAN under his column "Sportorial." However, we do present this account of the more personal side of his life.

An unidentified stork swung low over the Walsh home in Westfield, N. J., on March 23, 1922, opened his bomb racks, then sped away to escape the withering barrage beneath him. When the smoke had cleared away, the Walshes discovered a chubby figure wearing the latest thing in three-cornered sarongs, and they promptly named him William Thomas. Bill lived in Westfield until he was ten, then the family moved a short distance to the town of Metuchen.

Majors in Pre-Law

He attended St. Francis grammar school in Metuchen, but the lack of a Catholic high school there made it necessary for him to go to New Bunswick where he was a pupil at the St. Peter's High School. Here he participated in freshman and J. V. basketball and baseball. Bill was also a member of the sports staff of the school paper, and he took an active part in dramatics and debating.



Although Bill graduated from St. Peter's in the spring of 1939, he did not come to Villanova until the fall of the following year. During this lapse in his studies, he was employed at the law firm of Milbank, Tweed and Hope, where he became familiar with the workings of such organizations. As Bill is now finishing a pre-law course at Villanova, this experience should be of use to him.

Edits Two Sports Sections

By the narrowest of margins, Bill missed the honor roll twice in his freshman year, but since then he has been on it almost consistently. Last summer, he proudly relates, he made the highest average he has made so far and came out second in his class. Of his subjects, Bill prefers philosophy, public speaking, and mathematics; even the thought of physics strikes terror to his very core.

In the spring of his freshman year, Bill began writing for the VILLANOVAN and during that same year he started to work on the Belle Air. At the present time he is sports editor of both publications. He and Jake Mauch served the only split terms as sports editors of the VILLANOVAN with Jake holding the post last spring and last winter while Bill took over last summer and during the present semester.

Bill joined the Spanish Club as a freshman, and in his junior year he was elected vice-president of this group, in which capacity he still serves. Also as a frosh he became a member of the Sanctuary Society and of the Holy Name Society, and he was secretary of both organizations in his sophomore year. He was vice-president of the former society last year and he still holds this position. In his second year at the college, Bill was initiated into Delta Pi Epsilon, C & F fraternity, and he sang with the Glee Club. He started with the Debating Society as a freshman, and since then Bill has been a member of the varsity debating group. In his sophomore year, he took part in the History Seminar.

On his key chain hangs a small key indicating that Bill is a member of Who's Who Among Students in America Colleges and Universities. This honor was awarded to him as a result of his good grades and his many extra-curricular activities. Last year Bill received nine merit awards, a higher number than any other student. As a freshman he obtained five of these awards, and this year the number will be six or seven.

Bill does not only look at sports as an editor and columnist; he is also an enthusiastic participant. He is in every intramural swimming meet, hardball and softball game that he can possibly enter, and he was a member of the Intramural All Star baseball team that played such colleges as Haverford and Swarthmore.

Golf, however, is his true love. As he used to watch his father play the game, Bill developed a genuine appreciation of it. He began to play just after his first year in high school, and around that time he was knocking off a 132 game for eighteen holes. The following year he received a membership in the Metuchen Golf and Country Club for his birthday, and he cut his game to eighty-four. He kept slicing his scores down until, as a high school senior, he tied the course record with a hot sixty-six game. The only other person to do it is the present New Jersey State amateur champion.

His graduation day was really a banner day for Bill because it was then that he won the Junior Club championship, and last year when he returned to Metuchen and entered the Senior Club championships for the first time, he also won that. To prove that he hadn't lost any of his form when he came to Villanova, as a freshman he won the intramural tournament. That spring Bill was low in qualifying, and hence he was number one on the team for all nine matches that season. The following year he was low again, duplicating his number one place on the team.

His best match, Bill says, was against Fitzgerald of Fordham at the Pennsylvania Golf Club in Frazer. During the entire game, Bill was never more than one up on his opponent until he reached the last two holes, when he managed to squeeze out a 74-72 victory.

When the question of women was brought up, Bill shrugged his shoulders, then said that he was too busy around the college to become very interested in any girl. Though few people who meet Bill cannot be called his friends, among those who know him best are his roommate, Jack Bambrick, Jake Mauch, and "Doc" Coll, and since he met Fr. Coffey last summer, Bill regards him as one of his very best friends.

The fact that he is extremely careful about his grammar has earned him the nickname "Doctor Johnson," but he takes this joking good-naturedly. Bill's tall frame and ready smile, which bespeaks a mild and genial temperament, is a familiar sight anywhere on the campus and especially where there is any athletic contest in progress.

The navy has taken care of any plans for the immediate future as far as Bill is concerned, since as a member of the Naval Reserve, class V-1, he will be put into uniform on July 1. He hopes to train as a deck officer, and after the war Bill expects to go to law school. He hasn't definitely decided which one he will attend, but he suspects he'll have plenty of time to think it over.

CAPT. JOSEPH B. CHRISTOPH

Villanova Grad Killed In Crash Of Army Bomber

On April 2, 1943, Captain Joseph Benedict Christoph, of the Army Air Forces, met his death in an airplane accident near Childs, Florida. The flyer was a graduate of Villanova College, having received his B. S. degree in Mechanical engineering here in 1940.

This Maplewood, New Jersey, lad enlisted in the Air Corps in September, 1940, a few months after his graduation, and was sent immediately to Jackson, Mississippi, for his primary instruction. This was followed by his basic training at Gunther Field, Montgomery, Alabama. Christoph received his wings, becoming a Second Lieutenant, at Maxwell Field in July 11, 1941. He was then retained as an instructor for one year, and in August 1942 went to Hendricks Field, Sebring, Florida for Combat Crew School. It was while here that he received his Captaincy on March 19, 1943, and only a few days later lost his life in a fatal airplane accident.

Active at College

While at Villanova Christoph had been a constant member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the Holy Name Society. He served on the Open House Committee as well as the Belle Air Ball committee, and also was a member of the editorial staff of the Villanova "Engineer" and took part in the Music Seminar in his senior year. Throughout his college career he displayed intense interest in short wave radio sets, and was known to have a definite ambition to be a licensed airplane pilot.

In a personal letter of sympathy to the captain's mother, Mrs. Eva Christoph, General H. H. Arnold, U. S. Army, Commanding General, Army Air Forces, states: "My attention has been called to the splendid military and academy record attained by Captain Christoph during his cadet training and in the Advanced Flying School at Maxwell Field. Both as a student and as an officer he endeavored earnestly and industriously to perform all duties in an exemplary manner, and achieved the success which his enthusiasm and initiative merited. Captain Christoph had an excellent personality which together with his accomplishments won for him a host of loyal friends."

In another expression of sympathy, received by the family, from General Marshall, the Chief of Staff writes: "Joseph B. Christoph has made the great contribution to the American ways of living. He died while serving as an American soldier and his sacrifice will not be forgotten by those who are determined to bring this terrible struggle to a victorious conclusion."

Lt. Tolan Dies

As the VILLANOVAN was going to press, it was with deep sorrow that we learned of the death of Lieutenant James E. Tolan, Jr., of the United States Naval Air Corps, who was killed during a test flight at Curtiss Bay, Maryland, last Friday.

Lieutenant Tolan was a member of the Villanova Class of '44, but left here in 1941 during his sophomore year. He received his "wings of gold" last October, and was married on the same day.

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., college chaplain, will offer up the students' Mass at 7:15 on Thursday morning for the repose of the soul of Lieut. Tolan.

100 Years At Villanova

(Ed.—This is the sixth and last in a series of articles relating to the history of Villanova as written by Rev. Thomas F. Roland, O.S.A., and Rev. Thomas F. Gilligan in the "Tagastan."

The first fifty years of the college's existence were marked by alternate periods of prosperity and adversity. Indeed, twice in the history of the school it was necessary for the authorities to close its doors due to the pressure of the times. With the indomitable courage and loyalty of those who made up the faculty and student body, however, Villanova overcame these difficulties and gradually rose to new academic heights. At the turn of the century, Villanova began to assume its respected position in academic America.)

IT must not be thought that the modern development of the college happened overnight or that Villanova awakened in 1920 from a long sleep. There was, it is true, a sudden spurt in the growth of the school in the twenties. It was the result primarily of economic and social conditions in the country and was felt by every educational institution in the land. It is to the credit of Villanova's planners that the college was ready for it, thanks to a program of progress which began really at the very start of the second fifty years of the college.

A wise and foresighted man, taking reckoning of the resources of Villanova in 1893, might list its assets and liabilities thus: one beautiful collegiate church, one college hall, one small gymnasium, one small monastery, a nineteenth century college curriculum and the preparatory school attended by the larger number of Villanova's students, a critical dearth of teaching priests and very few vocations to supply future needs in this regard.

Competent Leaders Named

One priceless possession which the college had was the vast expanse of real estate which was becoming increasingly valuable and which was in later days to contribute in no small measure to the resources needed to expand the institution. A wise and zealous man appointed by his superiors to build a greater Villanova would surely plan his part in the enterprise in such a way that he would contribute to the remedying of these conditions. It is Villanova's glory that many such wise and visionary leaders were given by God to the college when it most needed them.

The first steps forward came in the presidency of Rev. Lawrence Delurey, O. S. A., while Frs. Charles Mary Driscoll, John J. Fedigan, and Martin J. Geraghty were Provincials. Fr. Delurey, who was president from 1895 to 1910, was a thoroughgoing schoolman, a leader in the Catholic intellectual life of the day, and one of the earliest promoters of the Catholic Educational Association. His task as he saw it was to build up a real college curriculum based upon the best standards of the day and enlarged to include all those courses demanded by the best collegiate practice of the times.

It was to the great merit of these three priests that they ably seconded these plans of the president with all the force of authority and their own enthusiasm. The work of Fr. Delurey in broadening and solidifying the curriculum, in founding the School of Engineering and in establishing the prestige of the college in educational and Catholic circles gave the needed direction to the growing momentum of the school's progress.

It was Fr. Fedigan who undertook the construction of the magnificent group of buildings begun in 1899 and finished in 1901. That this was a task of the first magnitude is seen not only in the tremendous cost, but it can likewise be gleaned from the displeasure which was evoked in the more conservative of the faculty members.

Academy Segregated

When the new buildings were occupied in 1901, the old college building became the Tolentine Academy and the old monastery became the hall for postulants. The first and most obvious result of the steps thus far taken was the adequate housing of the college men. The new main building supplied dormitories, lecture halls, dining room, gymnasium, auditorium and offices of administration. But the results were more far reaching than that. The removal of the college to buildings of its own left the old college hall as a place to house the Academy, and thus that school was segregated from the college and given a separate existence of its own.

The establishment by Fr. Geraghty of St. Ritas' Hall for Postulants in the old monastery was the first and hardest step in the move to promote vocations and insure a continuing supply of priests for the Province and the college. With an abundance of clerical students, many improvements were possible, not the least important of which was the higher education of members of the faculty.

Villanova before 1893 was exclusively a liberal arts college. The School of Arts remains as the core of its organization. In the course of time, however, various other departments developed naturally to supplement this original department in accordance with the needs of the times and the demands for specialized training. The early efforts made at the turn of the century to build up the curriculum resulted, for one thing, in the establishment of the School of Engineering in 1905.

This necessitated the addition of drafting rooms, laboratories, and all the equipment needed for courses in civil, electrical, and mechanical engineering. The first students of this school graduated in 1906.

The School of Science evolved gradually as a result of the increasing requirements of medical schools. At first these requirements were met by a two year pre-medical course which had its beginning in 1915. As the demands of the medical associations increased, the length of the course for pre-medical students was likewise extended until finally such students were taking a full four year course leading

Merit Awards To Be Granted "In Absentia" To Students In Service

On Thursday, May 13, during a general assembly of the entire student body to be held in the C. & F. Auditorium at 11:30 o'clock, the annual presentation of Villanova College Merit Awards will take place. For the first time in the history of the college, the awards will be presented "in absentia" to all those Villanovans who have entered the service during this past year. These awards will be mailed to the parents of the above students, who will be unable to receive their awards in person.

The Merit Award is bestowed upon a student who is "worthy of merit," because of his cooperativeness and efficiency in some approved branch of extra-curricular activity, and is also in "good standing." To be in "good standing," a student must have a good academic, chapel, and disciplinary record.

Fr. Stanford to Speak

This year the list of campus activities upon which the presentation of Merit Awards will be based consists of over thirty-five societies and organizations. It includes memberships in many of the seminars, fraternities, school publication staffs, and participation in the various major athletics, as well as all intra-murals.

After the third period on Thursday the bell for the ending of class will ring five minutes earlier than usual in order that the program may be prompt in commencing.

The Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova, will open the exercises with a prayer. Following this the vice-president, Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., will make a few brief remarks. Next on the program will be the conferal of the awards by Fr. Stanford with the assistance of Father McGuire. The president will then address the student body and the assembly will come to an end with the singing of the Alma Mater.

Lt. James Ordille, Former Villanovan, Awarded Air Medal

Word has been received that Lieutenant James A. Ordille, a member of the class of 1937, now attached to the Ninth U. S. Army Air Forces, somewhere in the Pacific, was awarded the air medal for "bravery in action" recently.

It seems that while in the air, one of his bombs fouled and was dangling from the plane. Immediately Ordille opened the bomb bay, lifted the bomb into its safe position, returning the pin and continuing his flight.

Ordille received a B S. degree in Biology here in 1937. During his college days he took active part in intra-mural athletics as well as being a member of the swimming team throughout his four years at Villanova. He was a constant member of the Day Hops Club, and in his junior year served on the Blazer Ball committee.

Beta Gamma Holds First College Forum On Negro Question

The Betta Gamma Debate Council presented the first College Forum of the year on Thursday evening, April 29. Four of the major colleges of this district were represented. The topic under consideration was the place of the Negro in America. Villanova participants elaborated upon the economic aspects, Immaculata handled the political effects, while Bryn Mawr took the social side, and Haverford the post war solutions.

An audience of about 150 attended the Forum which was held in the amphitheater in Mendel Hall. Mrs. Anna E. McGarry, district leader of the Catholic Inter-racial Conference, presided at the affair. Also present were representatives from the various neighboring colleges.

Following the formal speeches there was a round table discussion among the speakers after which there was an open question period for the audience. Spirited arguments were bandied back and forth and ideas expressed by both speakers and audience.

Anthony Mannino Chosen To Head AIEE Chapter

The Villanova branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers held elections on May 2 for the purpose of determining the officers who are to preside over the organization during the coming semester.

Anthony J. Mannino will replace George Baird, who graduates this month, as chairman, while James J. Gerrity will assume the duties of vice-chairman. The office of secretary-treasurer will be filled by Richard C. Jordan. All of the newly elected officers are at present in the final semester of their junior year.

Previous to the elections on April 29, the group assembled to view two educational moving pictures. "Airwaves" showed various methods of broadcasting and creating sound effects, while "Electrons on Parade" explained the theory of the vacuum tube. On the following afternoon, a discussion on the basic theories of electronics was conducted.

Next Thursday several more films will be shown to the A. I. E. E. members. They will explain the electron microscope, and show some of the recent advances made in the field of television.

Cervantes Dinner Climaxes Activity

Fifty members of the Spanish Club attended the annual Cervantes Day Dinner, held on Thursday evening, April 29, at the Conestoga Mill, in Bryn Mawr. There, under the direction of Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A., moderator of the club, and William Swan, president, they participated in an evening of song and entertainment.

A number of Spanish songs which have become popular in this country were sung by the members, and two Spanish motion pictures were shown.

In accordance with a previous announcement, the Spanish consul, who had been invited to attend as the principal speaker was unable to be present. Fr. Lozano and president Swan spoke briefly congratulating the members on their cooperation throughout the year and urging them to keep up the high standard which they have set.

Alex Infanzor was the recipient of the Columbia University prize for the best piece of writing about Cervantes. His work was judged the best of the numerous entries.

Fr. Lozano wishes to thank all those who worked so hard to make this affair such a success and all the Spanish Club members for their cooperation all year.

Mann Will Edit Mendel Bulletin

Senior Science Student Succeeds John Bongiovanni As Head Of Quarterly Publication

Lester Mann, senior science student, has been named to succeed John Bongiovanni as editor of the "Mendel Bulletin," according to an announcement received recently from the science school office. Bongiovanni, who has been taking several post-graduate courses here since his graduation in February, withdrew from the school several weeks ago to matriculate at a medical college.

Mann has been active in the science school since his freshman year. His deep interest in research work in the various fields of his chosen profession led to his appointment as chairman of the Research Seminar in his junior year. This organization has been disbanded for the duration of the war because of the demands made on student time by the accelerated program. Mann will continue in his present post as editor until his entry into Jefferson Medical School in January of 1944.

LESTER MANN

Assisting the new editor are the following men: John Kramer, John Bigley, Joseph Daly. Horace Cutrone, David Chesner. Francis Fagella, and Albert Resnick. Newcomers to the staff were appointed on the basis of their literary accomplishments.

Mann announced last week that the first issue of the magazine to be edited by the new staff will appear within the next two weeks. Featured articles in the forthcoming publication will be "A Venture with a Senator" and "Villanova's Permanent Boarders.' The latter is written by John Kramer, senior scienceman; the first is anonymous.

Nicholas Eni, a former member of the staff who was recently admitted to dental school, has written one of the other articles.

we have a big job ahead of us, but with the proper cooperation from all the members we should keep up the high standards set by our predecessors." Other new officers who held positions on the fraternity board during the past semester are Allen, who has ascended to the vice-presidency from the position of sergeant-at-arms, and Quinn, who has been elected representative to the Student Council from his office as treasurer.

Newer members of the fraternity who have not yet filled out membership cards are urged to contact Allen or Celucci as soon as possible.

President Named To Serve Council As Secretary

The Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., President of Villanova, has been recently elected to the positions of secretary and member of the Executive Committee of the American Council on Education. Fr. Stanford, who succeeds George D. Stoddard, Commissioner of Education for the State of New York, will hold this office for three years.

The American Council on Education, with headquarters at Washington, D. C., was formed by leading educators of the country at the time of the last World War. It is the liaison agent between education and government. In the intervening years it has won a well-recognized place in academic circles, being the outstanding organization of its kind in this country. During the last few years it has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in educational research, and it regularly publishes its official organ, the "Educational Record."

More recently, the Council has rendered outstanding service to education, publishing emergency bulletins on "Higher Education and National Defense and National Welfare," and "War Service Opportunities for College and University Students."

The Committee on Relationships of Higher Education and the Federal Government, of which Fr. Stanford is a member, was formed at government request. Membership in this institution is open to individual colleges and various academic associations and state departments of education.

ERC Faces Call After Semester

Remaining Reservists In Engineering and Science May Be Sent to Specialized Schools

Students in the Enlisted Reserve Corps will be eligible for call to active duty not later than two weeks after the close of the current semester on May 23, 1943, according to information received recently by Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., college military liaison officer, from the Third Service Command Headquarters in Baltimore, Maryland.

At this time they will be assigned to an appropriate specialized training and reassignment unit for classification and reassignment. They should have in their possession certificates from the college authorities that they are students in good standing and transcripts of their academic record.

Science students who have been accepted for matriculation in an approved school of medicine, dentistry, or veterinary medicine should also have official letters of acceptance.

In the near future a list of students in the Medical Administrative Corps who contemplate resigning their MA,AUS commissions in order to be detailed to school under the Army Specialized Training Program will be published. Any student contemplating such action should contact Fr. McQuade in the near future in order that this list will be complete

Students will be called to active duty from their home addresses unless they indicate in writing to college authorities that they desire to be called from the college. Since notification must be made to the service command ten days proir to May 23, it will be necessary that any student desiring such action should signify his preference in the near future.

VILLANOVAN SPORTS

Sportorial

By BILL WALSH
Sports Editor

AFTER working in the sports department of the VILLANOVAN for almost three college years, we have finally reached that point in our collegiate journalistic career where it is time to sign off with our final "—30—." It is quite hard for us to realize that our tenure of office has come to end so quickly. It's true, of course, that it will be quite a relief not having to meet deadlines any longer, but we also must say that our stay on the VILLANOVAN was very enjoyable. From it we feel that we have derived benefits which will prove to be a great advantage to us in later life.

We began writing sports in the spring of our freshman year under the tutelege of Bob Funabashi. We continued to have the same Mr. Funabashi as our boss from September until January while a sophomore. At that time our very good friend "Jake" Mauch took over the reins, and we wrote articles for him up until last May.

There was much discussion at that time as to whether there were to be a paper during the summer months, and, if there were to be a VILLANOVAN, how often would it be printed, and how large would it be? Just before the semester terminated it was definitely decided that there was to be a VILLANOVAN which would consist of four pages and would be published weekly. With "Jake" having decided to resume his regular post as life guard at a fashionable Jersey shore resort, we suddenly found ourselves thrust into the position of Sports Editor for the summer months.

It was quite difficult, at first, to find enough sporting news to fill the one page which had been allotted for sports. Father McKee, however, came to our rescue with the establishment of a Resident and a Day Hop Intramural Softball League, as well as an Intramural Tennis Tournament. A further illustration of the VILLANOVAN director's versatility was his inauguration of an Intramural All Star Baseball team at Villanova, which would play teams of the same nature from the various colleges of the surrounding vicinity which were also on the accelerated program.

As a result of his efforts, together with "Clipper" Smith's very

Fedigan, Alumni, Austin Deadlock For Baseball Lead

Fedigan Hall, undisputed leader of the Intramural Baseball League at the termination of the third week of competition, found itself in a three way deadlock for first place as a result of the contests of the last two weeks. Both Alumni and Austin now have the same record as the Gigoloes, that being three wins as against two defeats. Mendel, which had no victories after three games had been played, staged a comeback in its last two contests, and is now holding down fourth position just behind the leaders, with a record of two and three.

On Sunday morning, May 2nd, Austin, behind the superb hurling of John Donahue, eked out a close decision over the Fediganites, defeating them 6-5. In the afternoon of the same day, a theretofore lowly Mendel nine trounced the second place Alumni outfit to the tune of 11-5. The minions of Father Kropp jumped into an early lead as a result of three runs in the first and five more in the second stanza, and were never headed thereafter.

Alumni Scores Easily

Last Sunday, these same Mendelites went to work in the early innings and had the Fedigan team shut out until the final stanza, when the Gigoloes scored four runs. This, however, was not enough to catch the Gold Bugs, as they had already compiled a total of seven markers.

The Standings

Fedigan	3	2	.600
Alumni	3	2	.600

Close Play At First

Joe Mihalek, Villanova catcher, is out by a step in the seventh inning of the Wildcat-Lehigh baseball encounter last Saturday afternoon on the Main Liners' field. Although out at first on this occasion, Mihalek did garner a single and a double in four trips to the plate. Villanova won the game, 5-3.

Blue And White Diamonders Defeat Lehigh 5-3; Lafferty Stars On Mound

Score In First And Third Frames To Down Engineers; Freshman Hurler, In First Collegiate Test, Limits Rivals To Six Scattered Hits

Scoring three runs in the first, and two more in the third inning, the Villanova Wildcats defeated a strong Lehigh outfit last Saturday to the tune of 5-3. Trailing 3-0 as they came to bat in the first inning, the Jacobsmen went right to work, knocking the starting Lehigh hurler from the mound with a deluge of solid base hits, and tied up the score at 3 all. In the seventh, three more hits, a walk, and a Lehigh error culminated in two additional markers for the 'Cats.

Freshman Jim Lafferty started on the mound for the Blue and White nine, and with the exception of the first inning he was never in any difficulty. Singles by Jack Heath, Jim Ferrell and Joe Geiger, together with an error in the Wildcat infield gave the Engineers three tallies in that frame.

Moravec Chased

Vinnie Moravec, the most successful of the Lehigh hurlers to date, whose induction into the army two weeks ago was postponed until the termination of the present semester, opened the contest on the hill for the team from Bethlehem. His stay was abruptly ended, however, with the barrage of base hits by the Main Liners in that stanza, and he was removed from the mound after having been successful in retiring only one Wildcat batter. Jim Carter, another righthander, then came to the hill, and retired the Blue and white hitters in short order, getting himself out of a tough hole.

Lopez Bats in Two

A scoreless inning followed, but in the last half of the third, Joe Mihalek, who had pounded a beautiful clothes line double in the first frame, garnered another base hit. Joe Koproski then walked, and Al Postus was safe at first on an error. Lou Lopez, diminutive leftfielder of the Main Line aggregation, followed with a sharp single over second base, scoring both Mahalek and Koproski.

From that point on both pitchers hurled airtight ball, with only a smattering of base hits being permitted in the last six frames. Leading 5-3, Villanova did not need its turn at the plate in the final frame, but in spite of this, the Jacobsmen garnered eight hits, as compared with the Engineers' total of six.

Other Contests Cancelled

Lafferty, having gone all the way, was the winning pitcher in his first start in collegiate baseball, while Carter was charged with the defeat.

The contest between these two clubs which was scheduled for April 15 at Bethlehem, and postponed because of rain, still hasn't been played. A new date was set a little over a week ago, but inclement weather also nullified the playing of the contests on that date. As a result the game has been cancelled for good, and this means that the Wildcats will play only six foes on the diamond this spring.

Games with the Fort Meade nine and the team representing the Philadelphia Coast Guard base have also been cancelled. This fact, together with the Lehigh affair, makes three scheduled encounters which have been erased from the Wildcat card this season. It will be the smallest number of opponents met by the Blue and White nine in over ten years.

Jacobsmen Face Penn, Muhlenburg This Week

Meet Quakers In "Must" Game At River Field Tomorrow; Mules Journey To Villanova On Saturday

With a diamond record which is none too impressive at this point of the present campaign, Villanova's baseball forces hope to redeem themselves tomorrow afternoon with a decisive win over their arch rivals—the Quakers from the University of Pennsylvania. Having been defeated by the Penn nine as a result of a late inning, base-clearing home run off the bat of Captain Walt Wiesmiller last season, the Wildcats have a double incentive in their attempt to subdue the minions of Dr. Walter Cariss, veteran Penn diamond mentor.

Penn, although starting the present season rather poorly, has developed surprisingly well in its later games, and is at present leading the Eastern Intercollegiate League. Its initial game of the current campaign resulted in a 12-2 setback at the hands of the crack United States Naval Academy nine. Its next attempt, against the Leopards of Lafayette, showed a vast improvement in the efforts of Dr. Cariss's boys, but the score at the end of the closely contested tilt showed the Quakers once more on the short end of the count, this time, 2-1.

Discover Hurler

Although it did lose the Lafayette contest, Penn unveiled a new hurler in the encounter, who although only a freshman, permitted the victors nine well-scattered hits and struck out six men. This pitcher, who goes by the name of Ed Gniewek, did not have one base on balls charged against him in the contest.

Second baseman Teddie Barszcz, rightfielder Bill Miller, and tender of the center gardens, Bernie Kuczynski, of football fame, were the big offensive guns for Penn. Barszcz and Miller garnered two for four, while Kuczynski was successful in two out of three attempts at the plate.

Three Consecutive Wins

The next three encounters on the Red and Blue schedule were chalked up in the win column, as West Chester State Teachers' College, Swarthmore and Haverford were defeated in that order. West Chester was beaten 6-2. Swarthmore was his second victory in two starts, and overwhelmed 17-2. The Penn batsmen really went to work in this contest, and this fact, coupled with eight Haverford miscues, turned the game into a complete rout. Ken Jamieson, junior moundsman from Rochester, N. Y., received credit for the win, although Ralph Cox, a Naval Pre-Flight cadet at the University, worked from the sixth until the ninth inning.

Split With Cornell

A game with Army, scheduled for April 17, was then rained out, and the Penn diamond aggregation next saw action in a double-header against Cornell on April 24. In what was the first league game of the season for both outfits, Cornell defeated the Quakers in the opener, 3-1, but the Philadelphia boys came to life in the nightcap and subdued

Wildcat Runners Meet Final Test

Blue And White Trackmen In I.C. 4-A Championships At Randall's Island Saturday

Villanova's injury-ridden track squad will participate in the Intercollegiate championships at Randall's Island, in New York, on Saturday, in an attempt to regain some of the prestige which its Mile Relay team held during the comparatively recent indoor track season. With Bob O'Sullivan, anchor man on the famous indoor quartet, sidelined from competition as a result of a pulled leg muscle, however, the chances of the Blue and White runners in their specialty are not too good.

Guida in "100," "200"

George Guida, who usually leads off for the relay combine, and who won both the 100 and 200 yard events in the dual meet with the Naval Academy earlier in the season, will also compete in these two events on Saturday. Having practiced at the shorter distances very sedulously during the last few weeks, Guida is conceded better than an average chance to cop one of these two events, and for this reason, he, too, will not run in the Mile Relay event.

Freshman Replacements

O'Sullivan's and Guida's places in the relay will be taken by Ed Fitzgerald, and either Frank Hinnencamp or Tom Kiely. These three men are all freshmen and are not too experienced in collegiate competition as yet. Fitzgerald and Hinnencamp, however, did place fourth and fifth, respectively, in the "600" in the Camden A. A. U. meet during the indoor campaign. Hinnencamp also garnered a first place in the 1000 yard event in the competion at Penn's Museum Field in March. Rounding out the foursome will be "Dutch" McCarthy and Harry Keefrider.

Villanova's other entry in Saturday's competition will be its sophomore pole vaulter—Bucky Coleman. Coleman has not seen too much competition this season, but was very successful in his competitive attempts while a freshman last year.

Saturday's meet will close out the spring track season for the Wildcat runners. In a war-curtailed schedule, the Blue and White trackmen have participated in a dual meet with the Naval Academy, and also ran in the Penn Relays.

'Cats Trip Manhattan, Then Lose To Fordham

By BOB BOLGER

Bouncing back from its opening game defeat at the hands of Penn State, Villanova crushed the Manhattan nine for its first win of the season by the score of 7-2. Frank Chaplar, Blue and White righthander, who was the victim of the twelve inning State battle, allowed the Green only three hits.

The Jaspers scored their two runs in the initial frame, when Bill Vellante and Bob Schuessler both connected for hits, and Ed Schneider then smashed a clean single to score Manhattan's only markers. From then on Chaplar allowed only one hit and shut out the Green for the remainder of the contest.

Koproski Leads Attack

Warren Schlickenrieder, Jasper pitcher, had things his own way until the last half of the fourth, when the Cats bunched together five of their eight hits which netted three runs and drove him from the mound. Jerry Gerard replaced Schlickenrieder and was greeted by another barrage of base hits in the 'Cats' half of the fifth which was good for four more runs. Koproski's double and Bill Sullivan's, Al Postus' and George Warner's singles led the attack on Gerard. Sullivan drove in three and Warner two of the Villanova runs.

The remaining four innings found a pitching duel taking place and both teams being blanked for the remainder of the contest.

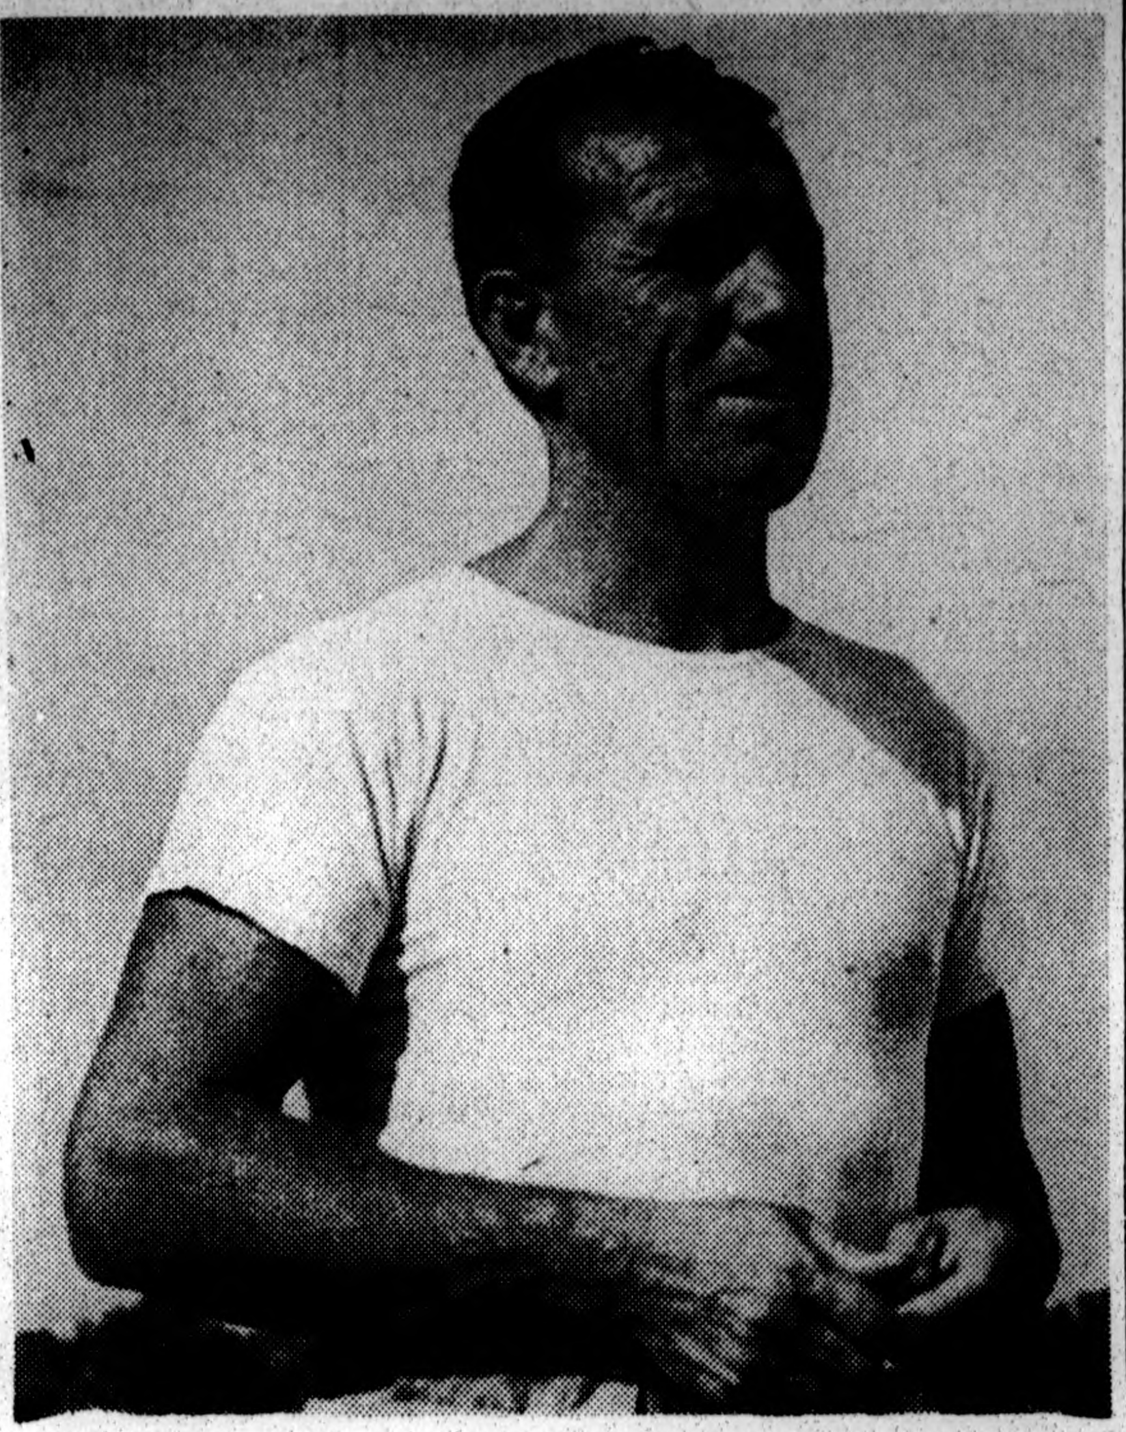
The Wildcat attack was led by Joe Koproski, stellar footballer, who collected two hits.

The 'Cats played a very good defensive game while the Green outfit was guilty of five miscues.

Szajna Stars

On Saturday May 1, Villanova's baseball team travelled to New York to engage Fordham in an annual game. The Rose Hill nine, scoring heavily in the first three innings, defeated the 'Cats, 13-2. John Szajna, third baseman of Fordham, collected four for four and led the Rams in their eleven hit attack on Frank Chaplar and Jim Lafferty. Six of the Fordham runs were unearned, however, the Wildcats being guilty of four miscues.

Three pitchers twirled for the Rams and allowed five hits in the seven inning contest. It was the first win for the New Yorkers over Villanova in several years



Maurice J. "Clipper" Smith, Villanova football coach and Physical Training Director, who was sworn into the Marines as a captan just a week ago today. Having been connected with Villanova football since 1936, Smith was given a leave of absence by the college authorities until the termination of the war.

"Clipper" Smith Receives Commission In Marines

Football Mentor Given Leave Of Absence By College Authorities To Accept Captaincy; Had Brilliant Rcord On Gridiron

By JIM BONNER

Tuesday, May 4, 1943, saw Maurice J. "Clipper" Smith sworn into the United States Marine Corps with the rank of Captain. "Clipper" had been attempting to get into service for the last year, however, so his departure from Villanova came as no surprise to his host of friends throughout the country.

"Clipper's" duties have not been announced as yet. It is thought, however, that after an indoctrination period he will be assigned as a physical fitness director at one of the Marine training camps. It is quite certain, however, that his years of experience as a football coach and this past year spent as the director of the Villanova Physical Training Program will stand him in good stead when he assumes his duties, whatever they may be.

22 in Row

"Clipper" Smith came to Villanova on the crest of a wave of victories at Santa Clara University on the West Coast. When he took over the coaching duties in 1936, Villanova rapidly rose to assume the prominent spot that it now holds in the national sportlight. During the 1937-38 seasons his teams compiled a total of 22 straight victories—one of the longest ever made by a major college eleven. The string was finally snapped by Texas A and M., the nation's top team of 1939. The "Clipper's" teams were consistently good and had more color than any other team in the district. The swing shift, conceived by "Clipper," worked in with the "T" formation, made Villanova one of the most feared and trickiest teams in the East.

"Watch Charm" Guard

"Clipper" is one of the immortals of Notre Dame University where he was the original "Watch Charm" guard. When he first reported to Knute Rockne in 1917 Clipper was a backfield candidate and tipped the scales at somewhat less than 150. His fire and enthusiasm gained him the substitute position for the now immortal George Gipp. Smith acquitted himself so well that Rockne shifted him to a varsity position in the line. He was the first of a long line of running "Watch Charm" guards to perform for the famous Rockne. The name "Clipper' 'has been so synonomous with Smith that few people remember that he got his name for his deadly blocking during his college days.

As "Clipper" goes to join the Armed Forces of our country we wish him all of the good fortune he so justly deserves. We hope that after the war is over he will return and take up his coaching duties that he was forced to put aside for something more important to all of us the Ithacans, 5-1. Gniewek, loser of the Lafayette battle, was the victim of another close defeat, in spite of the fact that he allowed the New York state team only five hits. In the second game of the twin bill, Bernie Kuczynski came in from his regular left field position and hurled a three-hitter for the Quakers. It was his first start in collegiate competition, and was the most creditable performance turned in by any Red and Blue moundsman up to that time.

Beat Dartmouth Twice

Another double-header ten days ago found the Pennsylvania nine playing host to the Dartmouth Indians at River Field. The up and coming Quakers came out on top in two free scoring games that afternoon, winning the first encounter, 8-5, and taking the nightcap, 9-6. After his very remarkable performance against Cornell, Kuczynski again took the mound for the Quakers in the opener against the Indians. Although he again permitted only three hits, a streak of wildness in the fifth inning, in which he gave up four walks, coupled with three Penn errors and two hits, gave Dartmouth its five runs in that frame. For the former Quaker football captain, it was his second victory in two stars, and in both contests he has gone the full route.

Cadet Pitches

Cox, the former Gettysburg College ace, started his first game for the Penn outfit, and he, too, was unwontedly wild, giving up four walks to the Green batters. He was charged with only six hits, however, and although he trailed 6-4 at one point in the game, the big fifth inning in which Penn scored five runs, enabled him to coast to victory from that point in. Miller, the junior rightfielder, was the big offensive gun in the nightcap, getting three hits in four attempts at the plate. Veteran Barszcz performed the same feat in the opener, one of his hits being a home run.

Mound Choice Doubtful

With a wealth of pitching material, and plenty of capable hitters the Penn team will be at full strength when it meets the Wildcats tomorrow afternoon on River Field. The starting mound choice of Dr. Cariss is still in doubt, but it will very probably be Kuczynski, as he has been the most effective of the Penn hurlers to date. In reserve will be Jamieson and Gniewek, should Kuczynski find the going tough. If Kuczynski is the starter he will hold down the sixth position in the batting order, but if either of the other two begins on the mound, he will hit from the ninth slot.

Barszcz Leads Off

Leading off for the Quakers will be second baseman Barszcz, followed by shortstop Ken Jamieson and rightfielder Miller. Captain Wiesmiller will hit from the cleanup position, and freshman Walt Bubien, first baseman on the squad, will follow Penn's centerfielder to the plate. In seventh position will be catcher Bob Yeabsley, another freshman who has been successful in making Penn's 1943 varsity baseball team. Dave Boney, still another frosh, who holds down the hot corner for the Quakers, will follow his classmate to the batters' box. If Kuczynski hurls, Al Cassman will play leftfield and bat in ninth position, but if not, Kuczynski will play left field, bat in sixth position, and the mound choice will bat in the customary ninth spot.

Trip Lafayette

Four days after the Penn tussle, the Wildcats meet what should be a lesser foe in Muhlenburg College, on the Main Line field. Muhlenburg also started the season very poorly, losing its opening games by one and two run margins, but it turned the tables on an outstanding Lafayette nine last week, defeating the Leopard aggregation by the score of 1-0. In what was probably the outstanding collegiate hurling feat of the present season, basketball star Ken Stone allowed the Leopards only one bingle in pitching the Mules to victory over a major foe. Lafayette, victor over Penn in an earlier game this season, was favored to take the Allentown nine, and their being held in complete check by Stone was a feat which was not at all expected.

Crampsey Dangerous

Although the lone run tallied by the Mules would seem to indicate that they, too, were weak at the plate, this was not the case, as the Muhlenburg batsmen garnered ten hits, one of these being a triple, and the other a double Jim Crampsey, another recent baseball hero at the Allentown school, was the big offensive gun for the Mules, getting two hits in three official trips to the plate, one of these bingles being the double, which was one of the two extra-base blows garnered against the offerings of the Lafayette hurler.

It is quite probable that Stone will be nominated by the Mule mentor to do the mound chores in the Wildcat game on Saturday.

HERE and THERE

By JIM CARBINE

THE war has made Villanova put aside for the duration many of its prized traditions. Last wek "Clipper" Smith, who had grown to be a tradition here at Villanova, joined the Marines and thereby, at least temporarily, terminated a relation that had started in 1936. His name had grown synonymous with that of Villanova and whenever the Blue and White was mentioned, "Clipper's" name was always sure to come into the conversation.

Who will ever forget the stirring speeches he made at the celebrated Temple rallies, followed by his going out on the field the next day and living up to everything that he said? Who will fail to remember the way in which he would walk up and down in back of the bench observing every move out on the field and always quick to make the proper decision?

The boys that were here last summer will tell you that they, as they look back on it now, really got enjoyment out of the physical training classes as conducted by "Clipper" and Vince.

Every day that they went down there "Clipper" had something new for them to try out and in the end it turned out to be a lot of fun. That obstacle course that he and Vince built by hand was reputed to be one of the best in the East, and Movietone News even came out and took pictures of the boys running through it.

When "Clipper" came to Villanova back in 1936 he was new in the East since he had been coaching on the West Coast. But it took only one football season to instill him in the hearts of the sporting fans of this area. For his 1936-37 team was one of the best teams that Philadelphia had ever seen. It was that team that produced the All-American John Wysocki and his running mate Johnny Mellus.

It was this team that started the 22 game winning streak and also produced Jordan Olivar, who is at the present time doing so well coaching on of the local high schools.

It is not so surprising to see what branch of the service "Clipper" picked, since he is typical of the average Marine and if he is half as good a Marine as he is a football coach, you can be sure that the Marines that he gets into shape in his job of athletic director will end this war sooner than is expected.

So, to "Clipper" Smith we extend our best wishes and with the hope that this war will soon be over so that an old tradition can be renewed.

Alumni, Mendel In Softball Tie

Freshmen Halls Deadlocked For Lead With Records Of Five and Three

By JOE DALY

As the Intramural Softball League goes into its final stretch, the race is very far from being over. The Greenies from Alumni Hall, with three successive wins, have pulled up to a first place tie with their fellow freshmen from Mendel, league leaders throughout the season.

Finding the needed punch in the bats of George Veling, Wally Breen and Bill Savage, Alumni made a clean sweep of its last circuit, giving it a record of five wins, three losses and one tie. Mendel lost ground when it was defeated by Fedigan and Alumni.

Zeeman Homers Twice

In the first contest of the week, Alumni easily rolled over the third place Fedigan club when it piled up a five run lead in the first, and added two more in the third to place the game on ice. The upperclassmen were handed their third defeat of the season. The following night the Greenies were hard pressed by the lowly Firemen from Austin, who just can't seem to get started. The Austinites went into an early lead on the first of two home runs hit by Stanley Zeeman. Alumni, however, kept banging away at Tony Scalzetti until it finally went into the lead in the fifth, scoring three runs. Zeemans' second homer was to no avail as the Frosh won out 7-4.

Austin Trips Mendel

Mendel started out slowly as it lost a close one to Austin, 3-2. The Firemen drew first blood in the second as they tallied once, but Mendel came right back to go into the lead with two runs. Howie Noll was safe on an error, went to third on a single, and both runners came home as Bill Koerner doubled to left. Both pitchers bore down for the next two frames, each allowing only one hit. In the seventh, Austin came to bat trailing by one run. Jack Koval, with one away, singled over second. He stole second, and went to third as Zeeman beat out an infield hit. Cheppa then popped out to the pitcher. Phil Koen, however came through with a booming double to deep center scoring both Koval and Zeeman to give Austin the victory.

Leaders Meet

Tonight Alumni and Mendel will come face to face, and this contest will influence the final outcome of the season no little. Both clubs are primed for the game and it should prove very interesting. With only four contests left on the schedule, this week should supply plenty of action. In the other game, Fedigan will meet Austin and if Fedigan is successful in this contest it will still have a slim chance for the title.

popular Physical Training program, our search for news was over, and we continued without mishap for the remainder of the semester.

With the start of the fall classes, however, we again went back to our old position of reporter, as "Jake" still had to serve the last half of his term.

Last January found us again back in office and "Jake" and we became the first editors to serve interrupted terms of office. There was no worry about getting enough to fill the sporting pages this time. In fact, very often we found ourselves with too much news and consequently had to cut many stories shorter than we wished. We were very lucky, during the last four months, in having both a winning basketball and a winning track team about which to write. It is always a much easier task to comment upon a winning aggregation rather than a losing one.

And, in this, the final issue for us, we prepare to hand the reins over to Jim Carbine, up and coming sophomore reporter, who has appeared as the "Here And There" columnist in this and the last issue. We wish to sincerely thank Father McKee, "Jake" Mauch, Tom Devine, Bob Young, and all the others with whom we have worked since we first took over last summer, and to Jim, we say "Good luck."

Dodgers, Browns Lead In Day Hop Softball Circuit

By DAVE WARD

With the advent of the first real spring weather, the Day Hop Softball League started a new policy of playing two games during each lunch period, one on the upper and one on the lower field. The Browns, by winning three games this week vaulted into a first place tie with the Dodgers, who won their only scheduled game with the Senators, 7-2. The Yankees passed the Cardinals in the standings as they beat the Reds 9-3 and the Phillies, 5-3, while the Red Birds were losing to the Pirates 14-4.

The highlight of the week was the uprising of the Browns. Scoring 12 and 11 runs in their tilts with the Phillies and Pirates, respectively, they completely dominated the play throughout the game. In their conquest of the Cards, they had some difficulty, but at the crucial moment Mal Boyle stepped up to the plate with two men on and hit a homer which put the game on ice.

Cryor Excels

The individual stars in the triumphs were Don Cryor and Mal Boyle, Senior Engineers. Cryor pitched all three games and this now gives him the best record in the league with four wins and no losses. In addition to this, Cryor also won his own game in the Pirate tilt by hitting a three run homer to put his team ahead to stay. Boyle, besides driving in the winning runs in the Card game, also had a round tripper against the Bucs as that team had its three game winning streak broken.

De Simone Hurls

The Dodgers continued their winning ways as they trounced the Senators, 7-2 behind the pitching of Lou De Simone. This pitcher was in hot water only once during the game, but sharp fielding in the form of a double play, Giannini to Carfagno to Tramitulo, pulled him out. A tough break, and one which deprived the Dodgers of a run, was the fact that on what should have been a homer, Steve Vassilati ran wide around third base and was caught at home on a beautiful peg from the outfielder. But Rocco (just call me DiMaggio) Giannini came up in the next inning and clinched the game with a home run to center field with two men on. This win, however, was essentially a team triumph, as may be seen by the fact that nearly everyone in the lineup had at least one hit.

Annual Guild Card Party and Dance Provides Assorted Entertainment

The college Field House was the scene of the tenth annual card party and dance held by the Augustinian Seminary Guild on Tuesday evening, May 4. Approximately 750 students and benefactors crowded the auditorium for an enjoyable evening of cards and dancing.

Student committeement appointed by the director of the Guild, Rev. John Coffey, O. S. A., served as ushers and made certain that bashful students were supplied with attractive bridge partners from the neighboring colleges of Immaculata and Rosemont.

Amusement Diversified

Around the sides of the room there were various forms of amusement operated by students acting as pitchmen; the auditorium was filled by their hawking cries. The blue room was the scene for those devotees of the little boards with their five letters across the top—BINGO.

However, card playing held full sway on the main floor until 11 o'clock, and rapt indeed, was the expression on many a face as that last slam was attempted. Table prizes were awarded at this time for the individual high score in each foursome.

Grand Drawing Held

Then came, perhaps, the highlight of the evening for many. Father Coffey, at the microphone, announced that the drawing would be held for the five grand donations, totalling $200 in war bonds and stamps, and for the five door prizes of $5 in war stamps each. Three of the younger members of the audience were selected to draw the stubs from a large barrel while the assembled crowd waited with baited breath.

Father Coffey wishes to thank again all those who worked so hard in making this the biggest and best affair that the Guild has had. He wishes particularly to thank those who donated their services for the evening—the committeemen, barkers, and the Villanovans—and to all those who attended in such great number. As he said at the affair "You are, in helping in the education of the seminarians, helping Villanova, which is run by the Augustinians, to another glorious hundred years. And when Villanova celebrates its second centennial, the priests on the faculty then will look back and have you and this work, which you have accomplished so well, to thank."

C. & F. School Added

The School of Commerce and Finance was organized in 1922 to meet the growing demand for specialized training in the business world. By this time, therefore, all the "schools" on the campus had taken their definitive form.

The terrible fire of January 1928 destroyed completely the main college building. It seemed almost inevitable that the college would have to close its doors, but heroic efforts and self-sacrifice on the part of the priests combined with the wholehearted cooperation of the students averted disaster. Perhaps never in the long history of the school did an event occur which showed to better advantage the temper of the Villanova spirit than the attitude of the students on that occasion.

College Loyalty Manifest

With accommodations reduced to a primitive state, with destruction and confusion surrounding their daily movements about the college, Villanova did not lose a single student. Never to be forgotten either are the kindness and generosity shown by the friends of the college in this hour of deep depression. The Archbishop of Philadelphia, His Eminence Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, graciously permitted collections in the archdiocese for the benefit of the college. A campaign for funds was organized into which the Fathers threw their utmost of energy and devotion.

New Structures Completed

A new dormitory known as Fedigan Hall was added in 1930, and the Commerce and Finance Building was completed in 1931. The south side of the stadium was built in 1927; the north side was added in 1929, and the gymnasium was constructed adjacent to it in 1932. To complete the picture, two small dormitories were acquired recently, Simpson Hall in 1940 through the gift of the college trustee, William Simpson, and O'Dwyer Hall purchased in 1941.

Thus, in 1943, Villanova finds itself a great college: great in numbers, great in physical endowments, great in its faculty, and great in the traditions which link it to old Belle Air. At every one of its jubilees it has found itself looking upon a world of war. In 1868, the Civil War had just been terminated; in 1893, five years were to pass before the tryst with manifest destiny in the Spanish American War; in 1918, the campus was a military camp. Once again we face the future in a world of turmoil.

One hundred years of divine guidance have taught Villanova to put its trust in Him who will be with us till the end of time and in Her who is the Lady of Victory and the Queen of Peace.

Passanante Leads Air Corps Unit

Captain Bartholemeo A. Passanante, a Villanova graduate and recipient of the Order of the Purple Heart, has been assigned to immediate duty as the Commanding Officer of the thirty-fourth detachment of the Army Air Corps unit stationed at Lafayette College.

As a member of the class of 1939 Captain Passanante received a degree from the School of Science. After his graduation from Villanova, he was enrolled at the University of St. Louis. He completed one year of medicine, and then became a member of the Army Air Corps in 1940.

Wounded in Action

Upon receiving his commission in April of 1941 as a member of the Army Air Corps, his first assignment was with a pursuit squadron in the Philippine area. It was there about ten hours after the attack at Pearl Harbor that Passanante received wounds for which he later was to receive the Purple Heart.

Later he was removed to Australia to recover from the effects of injuries. From there Captain Passanante returned to the United States. Here he has toured the country on various war bond campaigns and served as a member of the Aviation Cadet Examination Board at Rochester, New York.

education better than state-endowed colleges.

Fr. Stanford Gives Welcome

Preceding the speech of Chancellor Tolley, an address of welcome was delivered by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College. Fr. Stanford pointed out that World War I overshadowed the 75th anniversary of Villanova in 1918, and now another war in 1943 has intercepted the long range plans for the 100th anniversary.

Greetings were offered to the delegates and visitors by William Mather Lewis, president of the Lafayette College. He stated that we must be more concerned with "what effect colleges will have on war, rather than the effect the war will have on colleges." He assured the gathering that "we face the future of education with confidence because of institutions such as Villanova."

Honorary Degrees Conferred

Governor Martin and Chancellor Tolley were the recipients of honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws. The Governor was cited for the outstanding achievements of his military and civilian life; the chancellor, because of his sterling leadership in the field of education.

Other recipients of the degrees of Doctor of Laws were: Brother Emilian James, F. S. C., president of La Salle College; George P. Rea, president of Drexel Institute; Thomas J. Love, S. J., president of St. Joseph's College; Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael J. Ready, general secretary, National Catholic Welfare Conference; Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. Carroll McCormick, Chancellor of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia.

From the field of military and naval leadership, Rear Admiral John J. Brady, U. S. N. (Ret.); Rear Admiral Milo F. Draemel, U. S. N.; and Major General James A. Ulio of the U. S. Army were deemed outstanding and worthy of the conferring of the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

For his notable efforts in the advancement of medical education, the honorary degree of Doctor of Science was conferred on Harold Walter Jones of the faculty of Jefferson Medical College. Anne O'Hare McCormick, one of the leading woman journalists of America, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Literature.

The college A Cappella Choir preceded and followed the principle speech with vocal selections. Benediction was invoked on the future of Villanova in a closing prayer by Monsignor McCormick.

The entire Convocation was one of colorful and academic ceremonies starting with the procession from the Commerce School to the Field House and the exercises held therein. Because the principal speeches were kept at a minimum in length the program was completed by 12:30 P. M.

many significant contributions in this field.

From 1923 to 1935 he was editor and co-author of the "Bulletin of Basic Science Research," and also co-author of "Correlated Investigations in the Basic Sciences," and the "Quantum Theory in Biology." At present, this Ohio doctor is Editor-in-Chief of "Studies of the Institutum Divi Thomae."

Dr. Sperti will be the fifteenth scientist to receive the Villanova award since it was founded in 1929 to commemorate the work of the Augustinian abbot, Gregor John Mendel, the discoverer of the Mendelian laws of heredity.

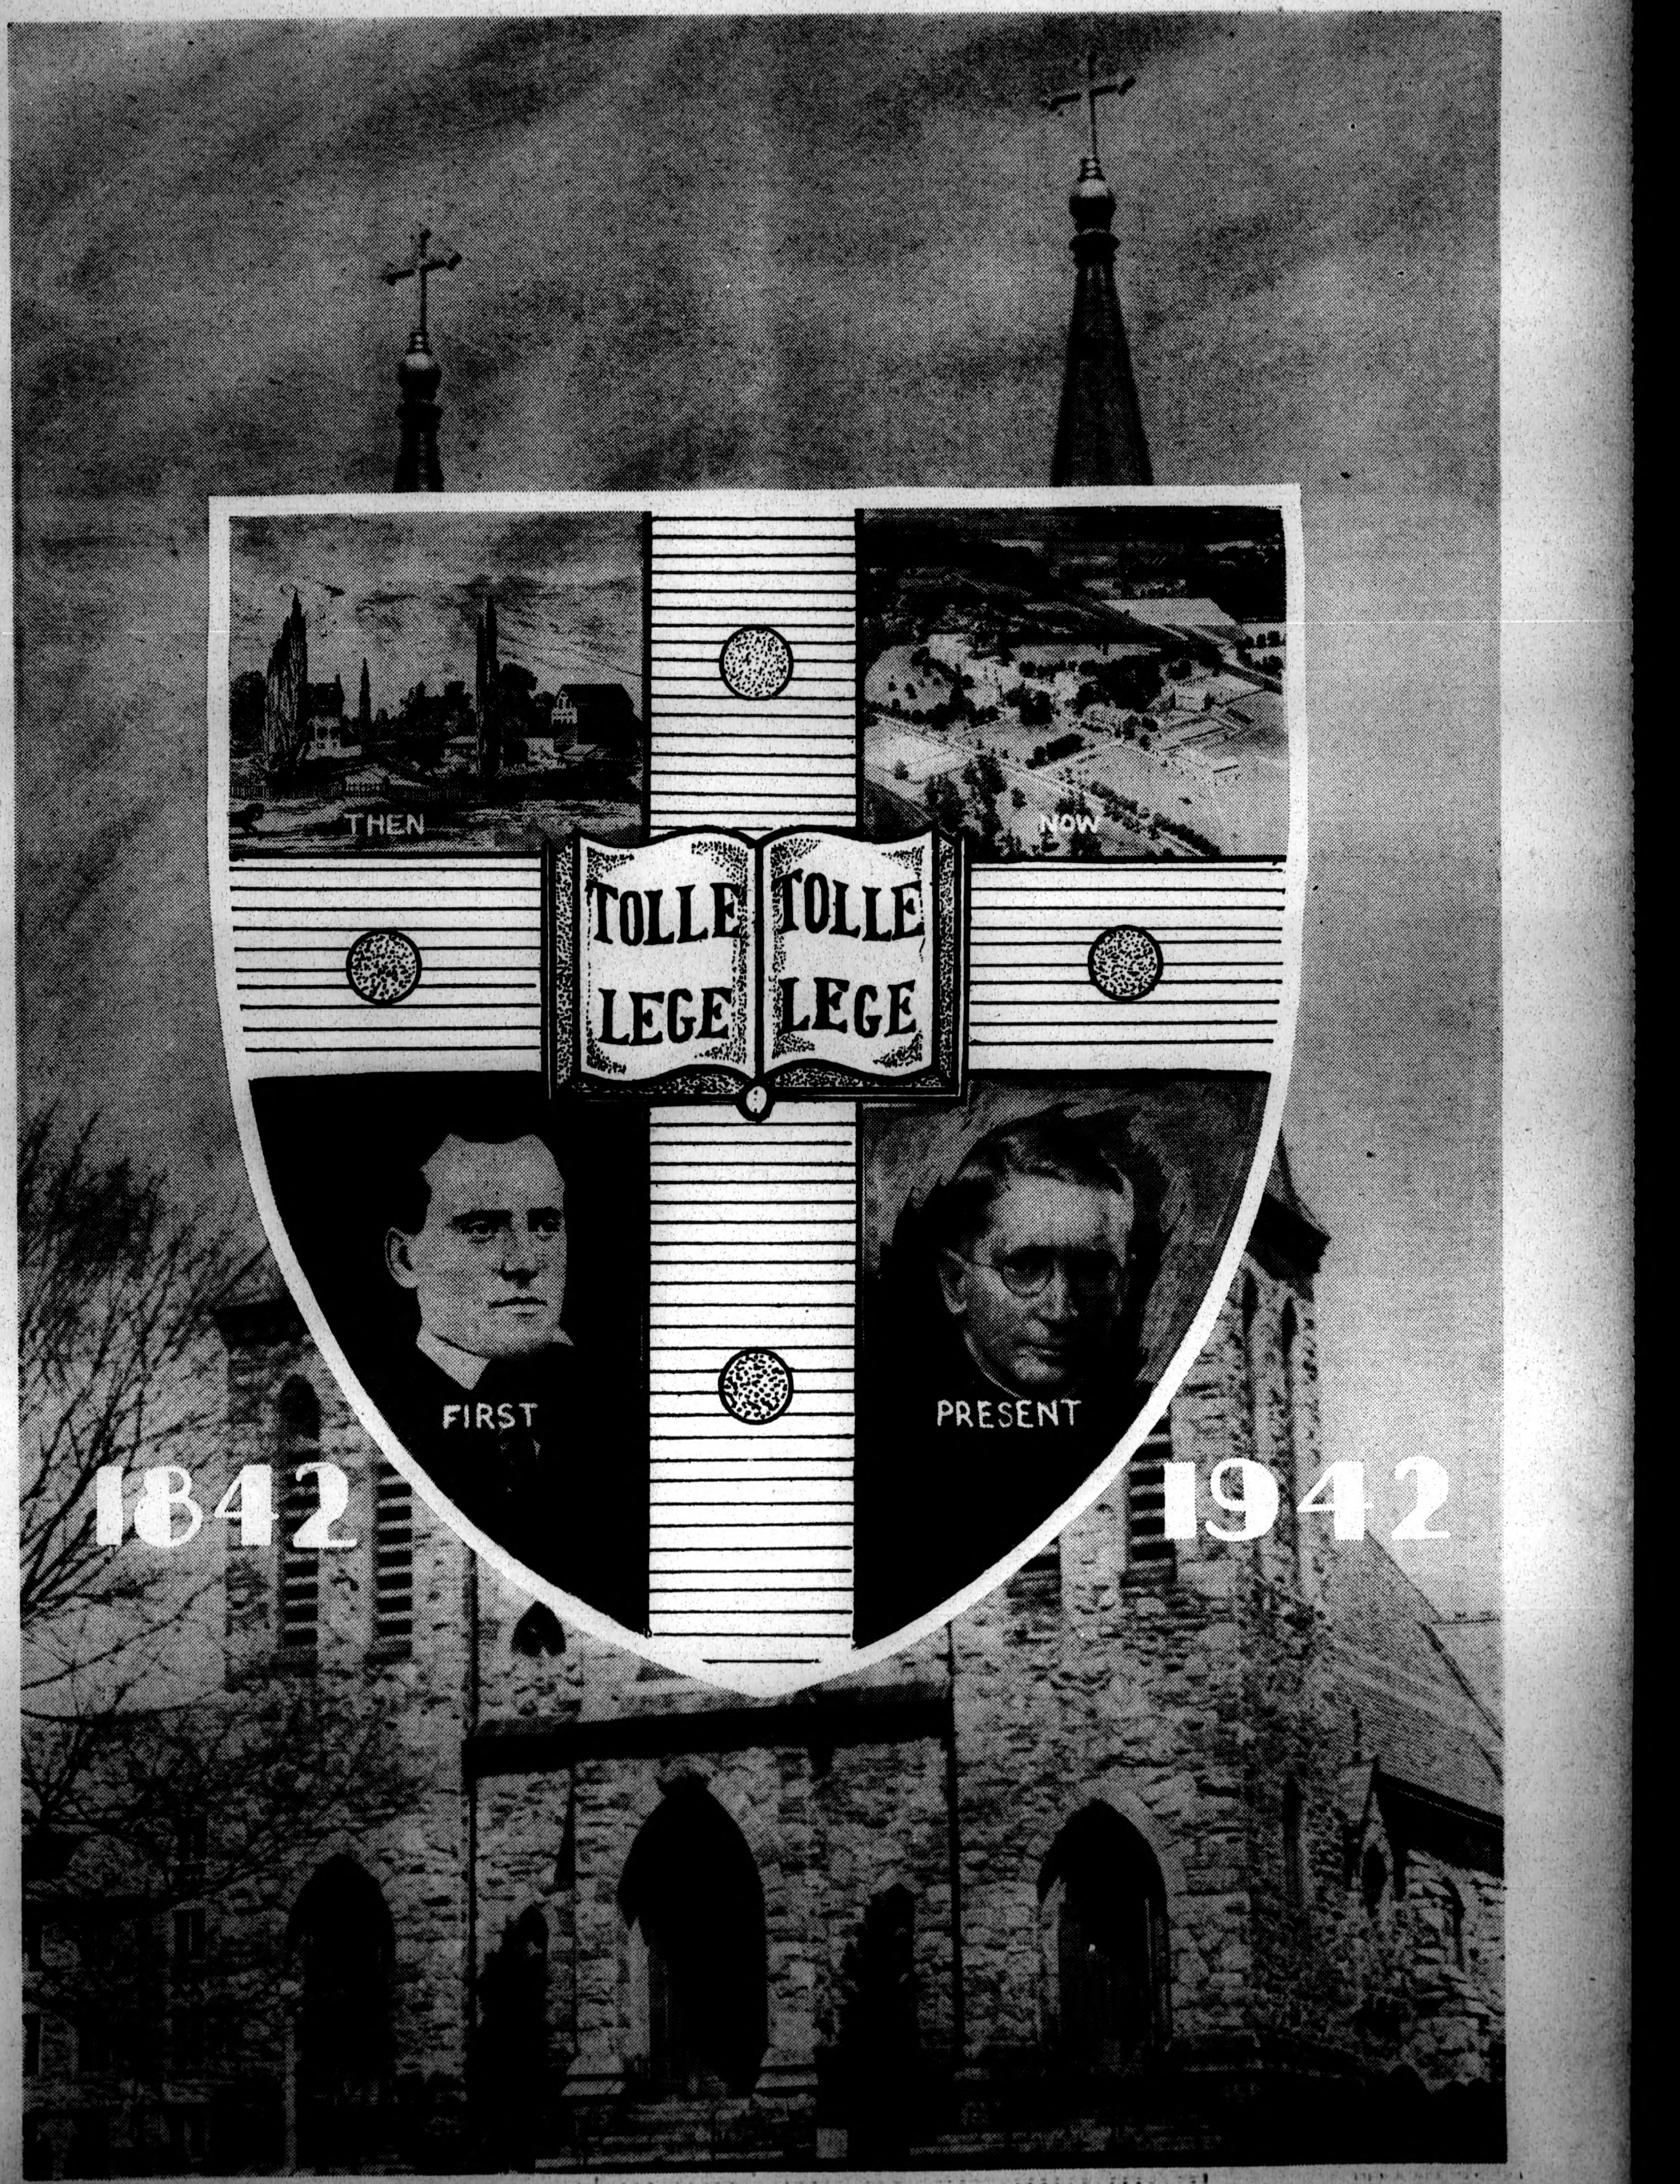
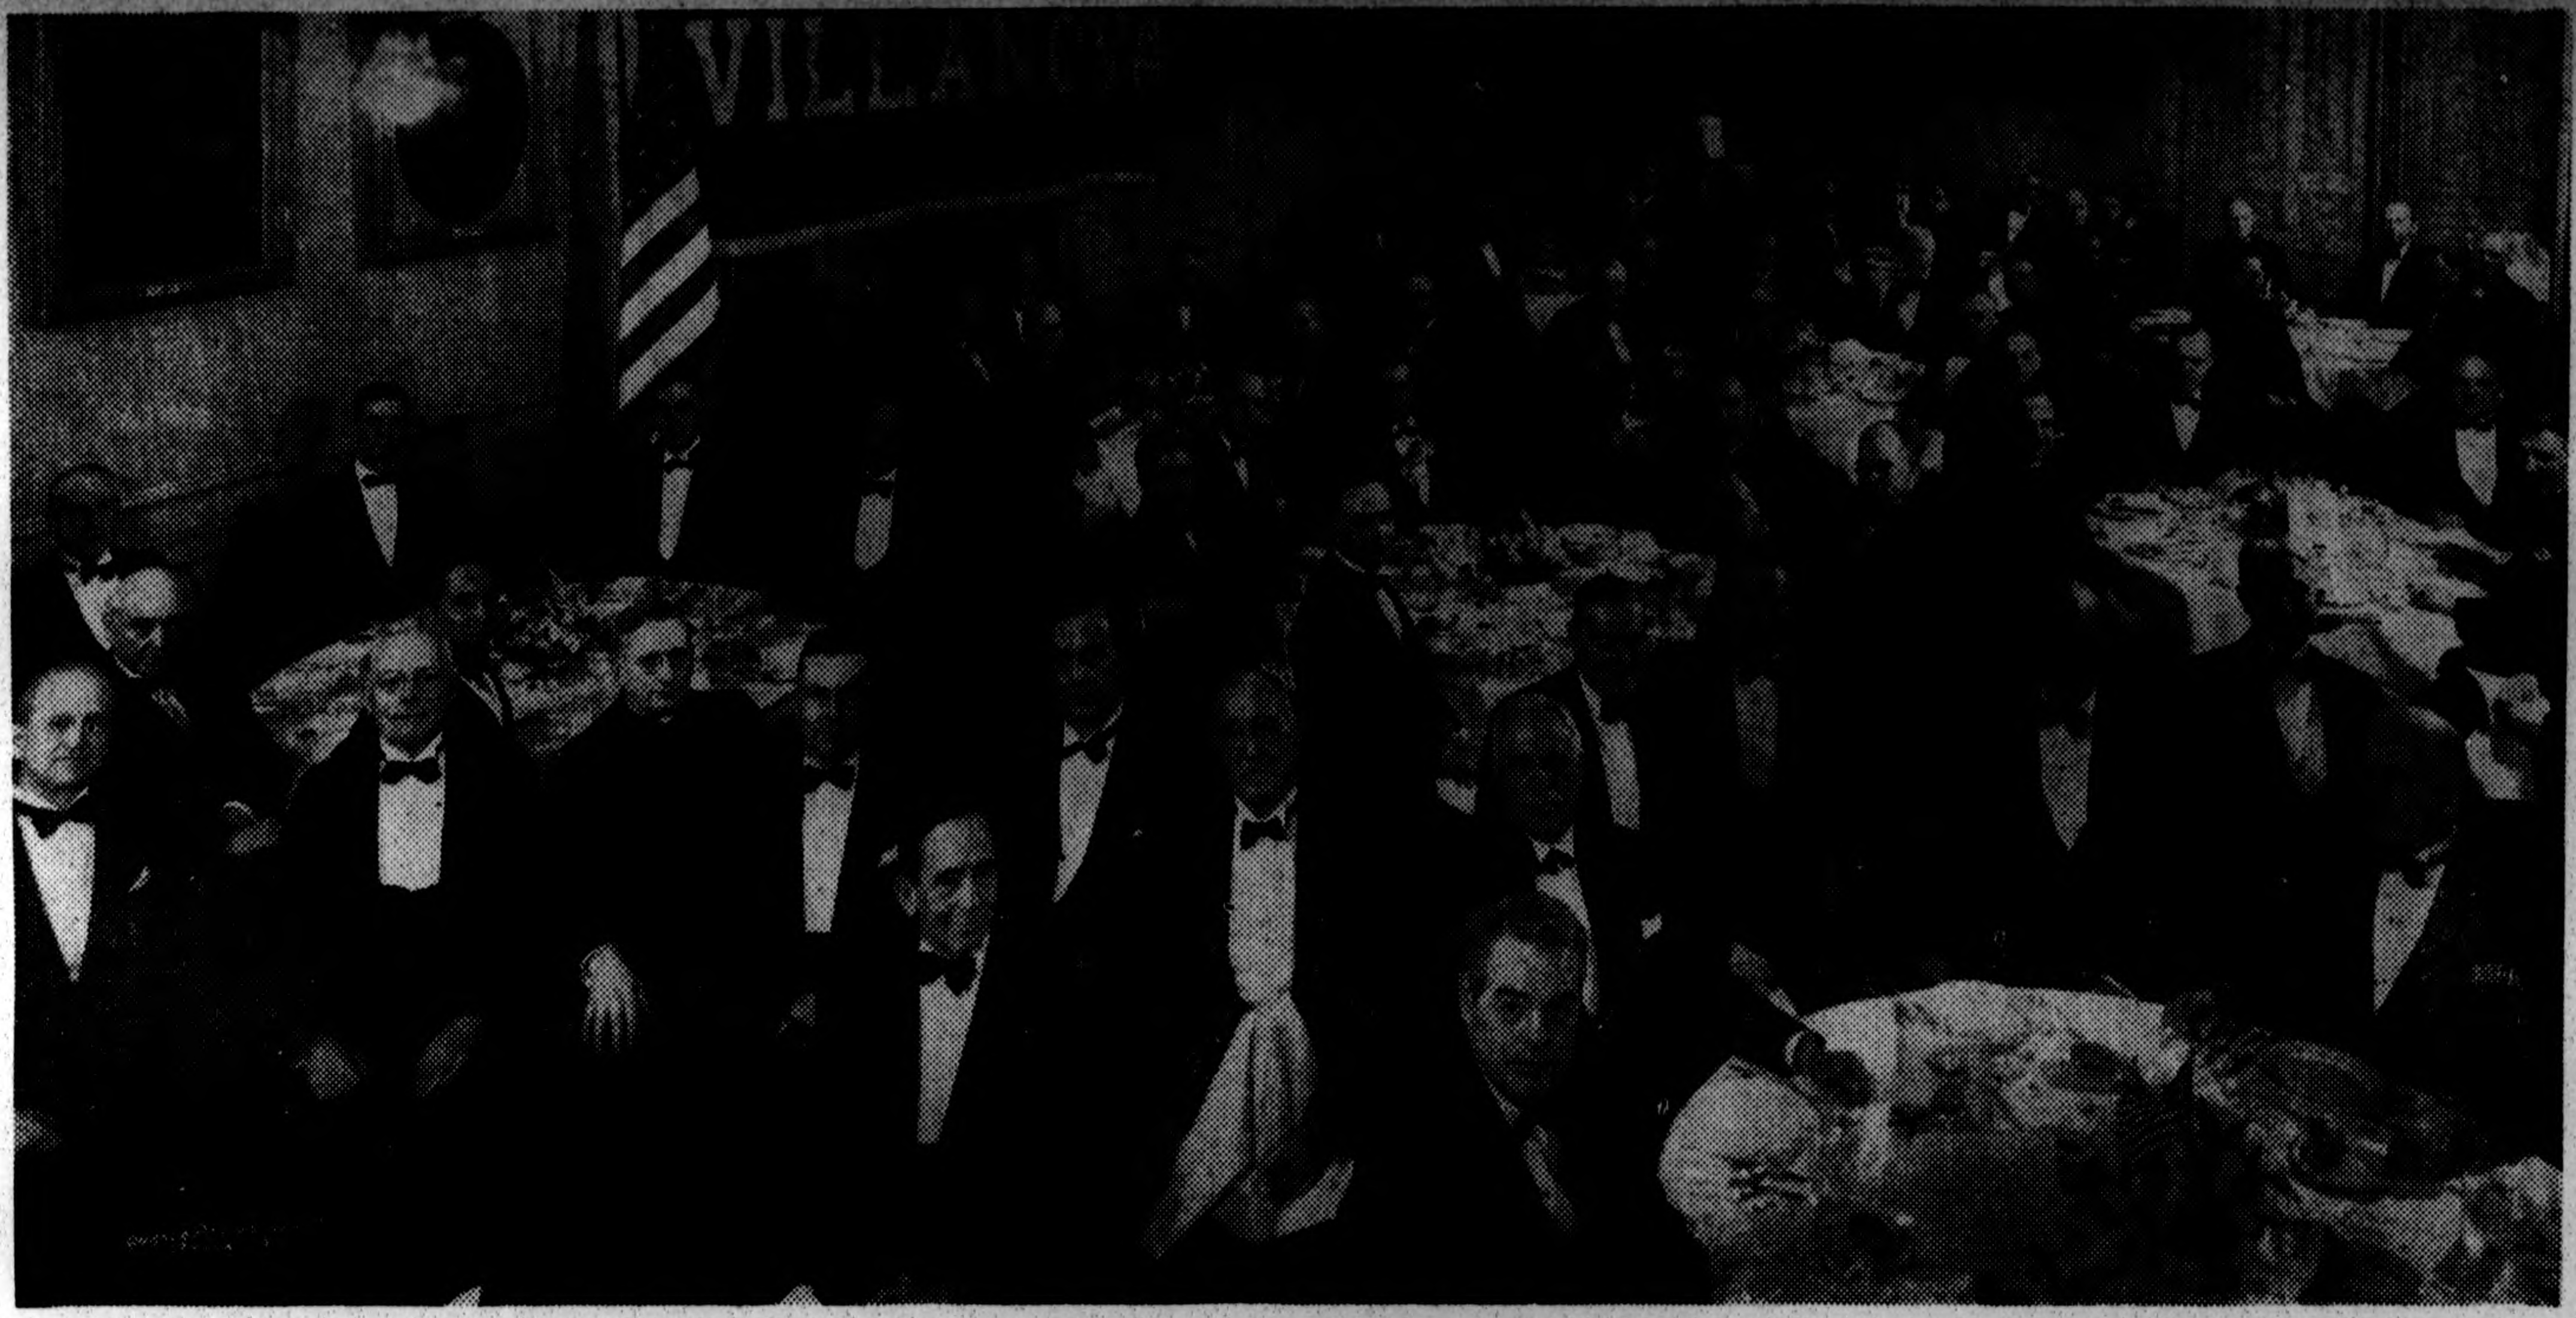
CENTENNIAL YEAR
SECOND SECTION
Vol. 15—No. 32 N. A. S. Z-660 VILLANOVA COLLEGE, VILLANOVA, PA. TUESDAY, MAY 11, 194





Pictured above are the more than sixty college presidents who were guests at a pre-Convocation dinner held on Sunday evening, May 2, at the Union League Club of Philadelphia. " . . . To the Presidents of Colleges and Universities, who have spared a few precious hours from anxious busy days in wartime to join in commemorating the coming-of-age of a sister institution—this dinner is humbly dedicated as a token of appreciation and good will . . . "

THE men and events reviewed in the following pages witness the high tribute paid Villanova College on the commemoration of its one hundredth year of educational service at the Convocation Ceremonies held here on Monday, May 3. Outstanding academic, civilian, and military leaders of an America at War lent their time and prestige to the honoring of an Institution of the Augustinian Order.

Governor Edward Martin of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania speaks to Fr. Stanford shortly after they have donned their academic robes. The governor walked in the place of honor with the principal speaker and the president of Villanova in the formal procession. Governor Martin was formerly a Major General of the 28th Division of the U. S. Army and also served as Auditor General of Pennsylvania.

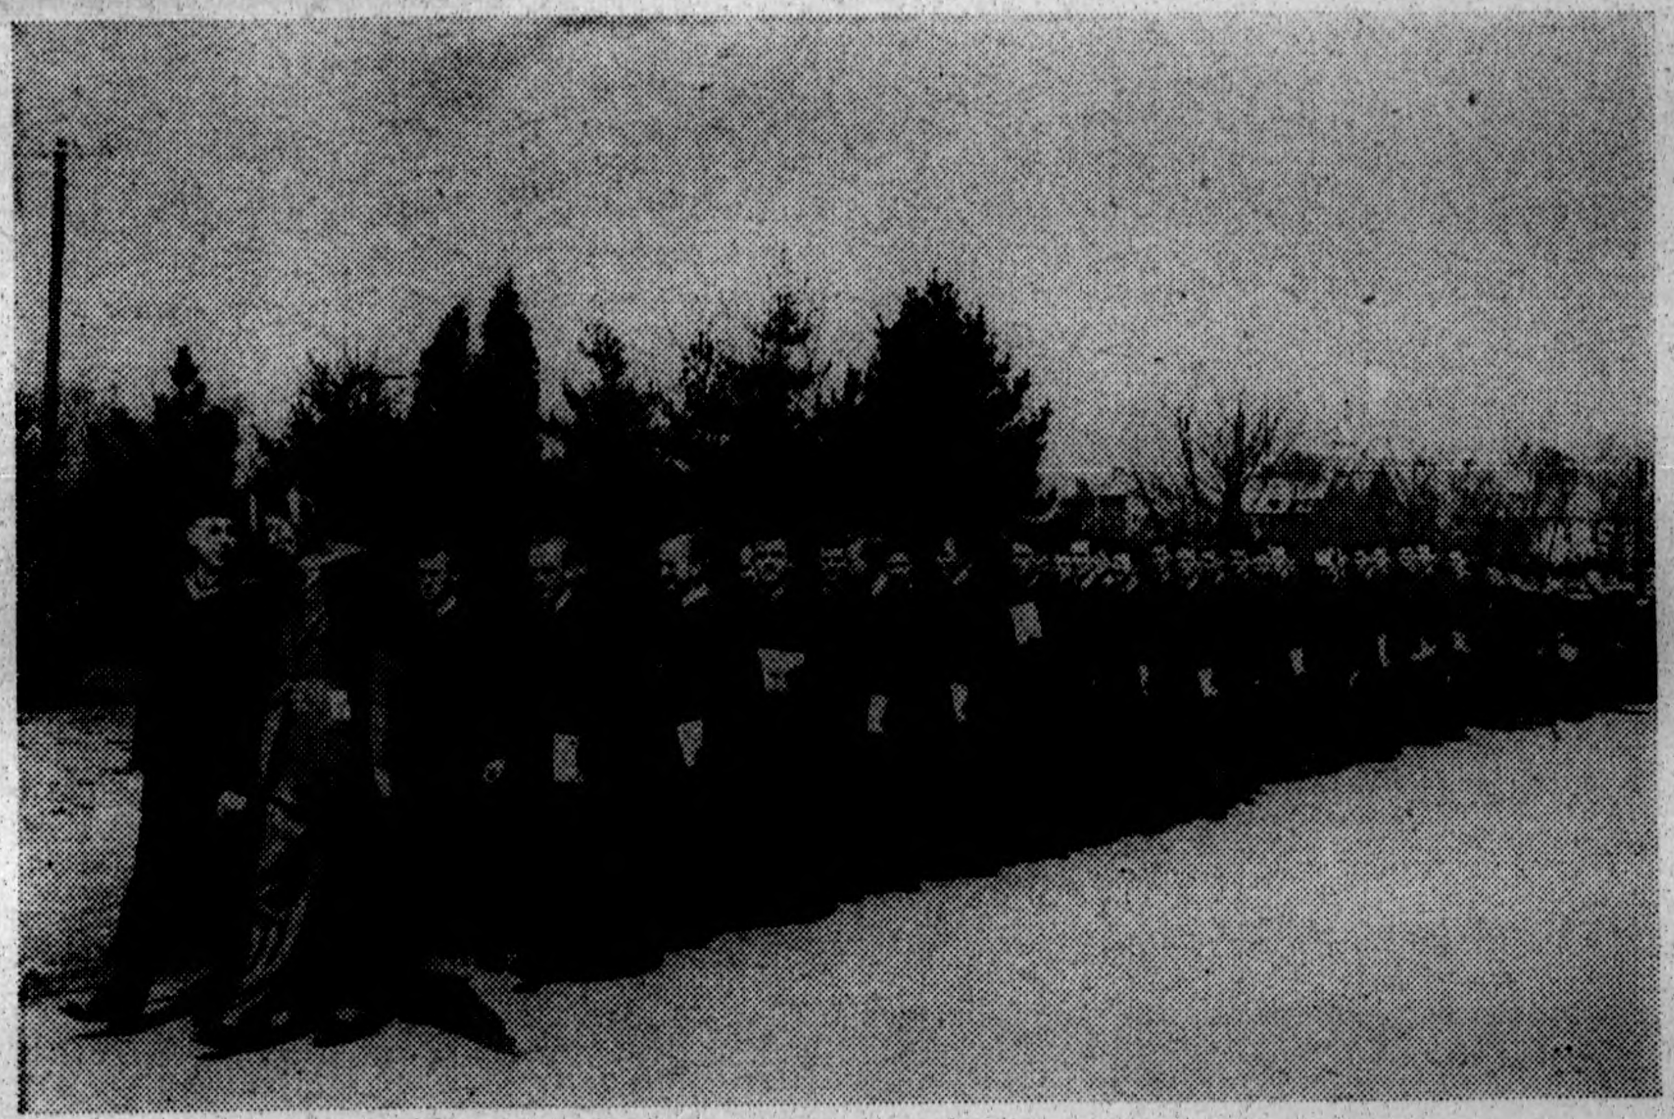
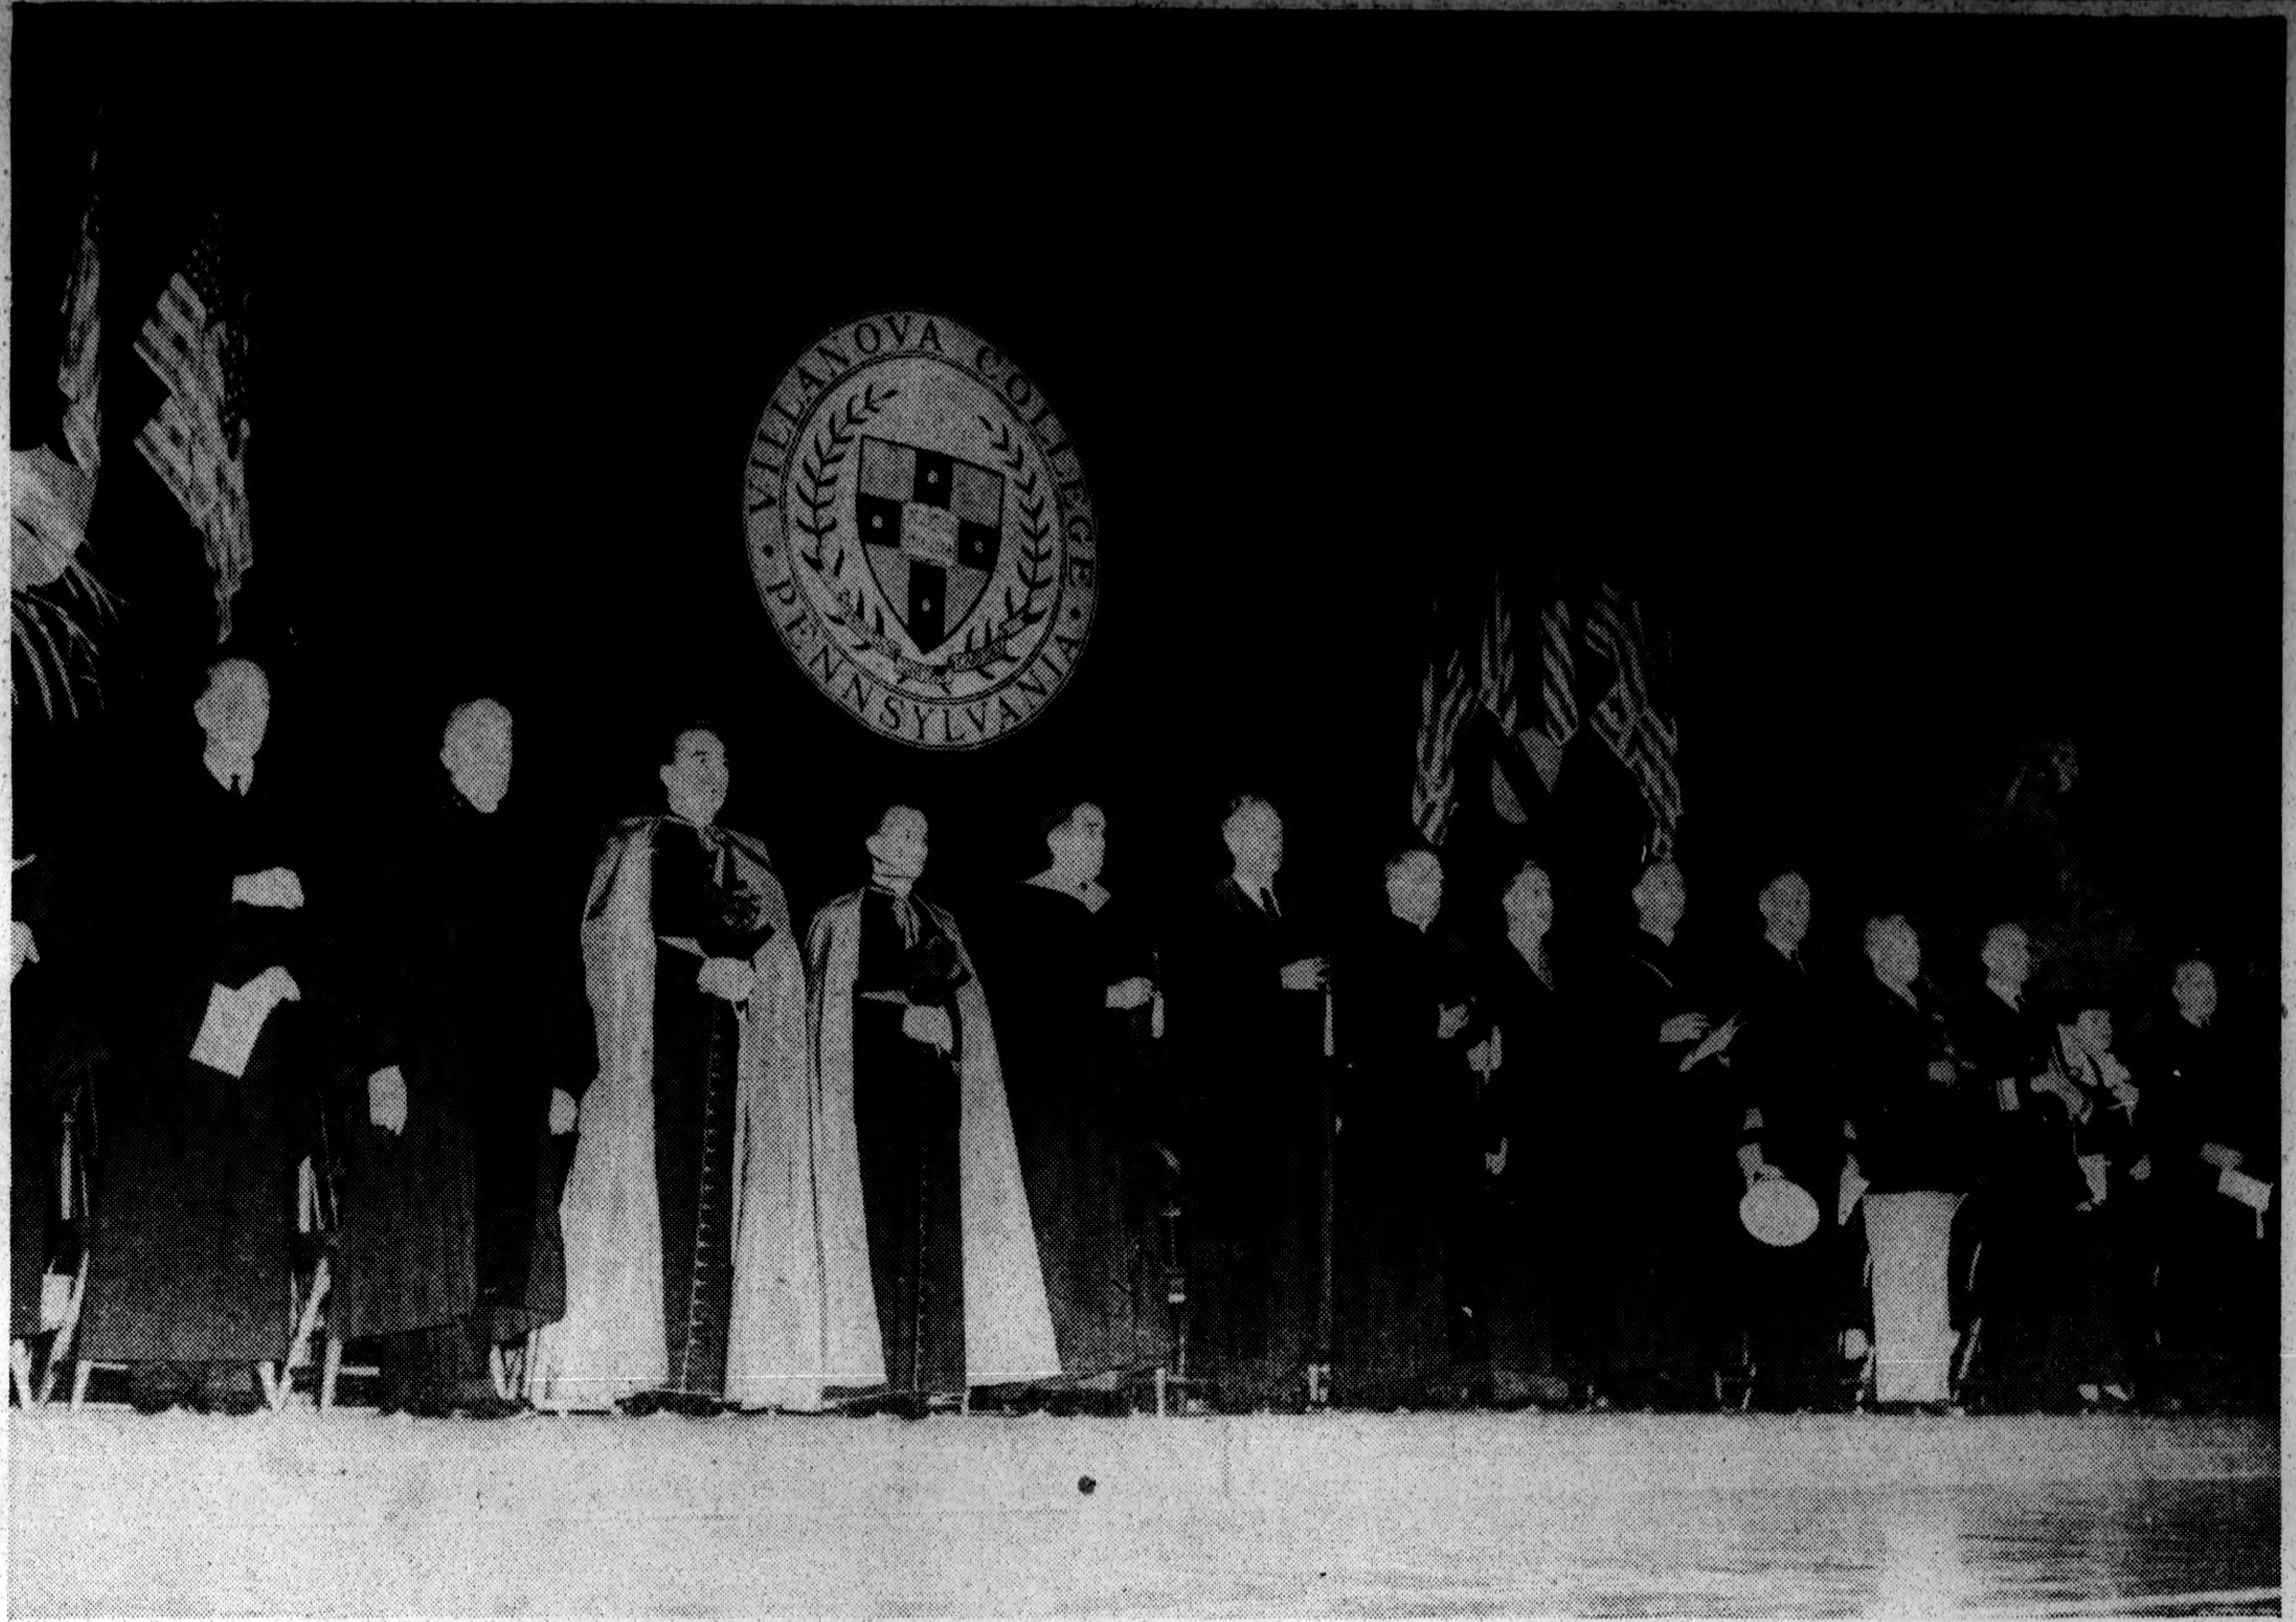
BEGINNING at about eight o'clock Monday morning, May 3, guests representing academic, journalistic, and military America, as well as delegates from some 200 colleges throughout the United States, arrived by automobile and train to take part in the celebration of Villanova's hundreth year of existence. Following registration in the Commerce and Finance Building, they all assembled outside, where they formed ranks according to the date of the founding of their respective colleges and universities, representatives of the youngest institutions following those of the more venerable schools.

At the top, left, are seen several of the honorary degree recipients about to join the procession, since they have completed registration. Directly below, the assemblage is lead by the Marshalls, J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of the School of Engineering, and Patrick J. Dougherty, Professor of Statistics of the Commerce School; they are followed by the A Cappella Choir composed of students in Villanova's Seminary.

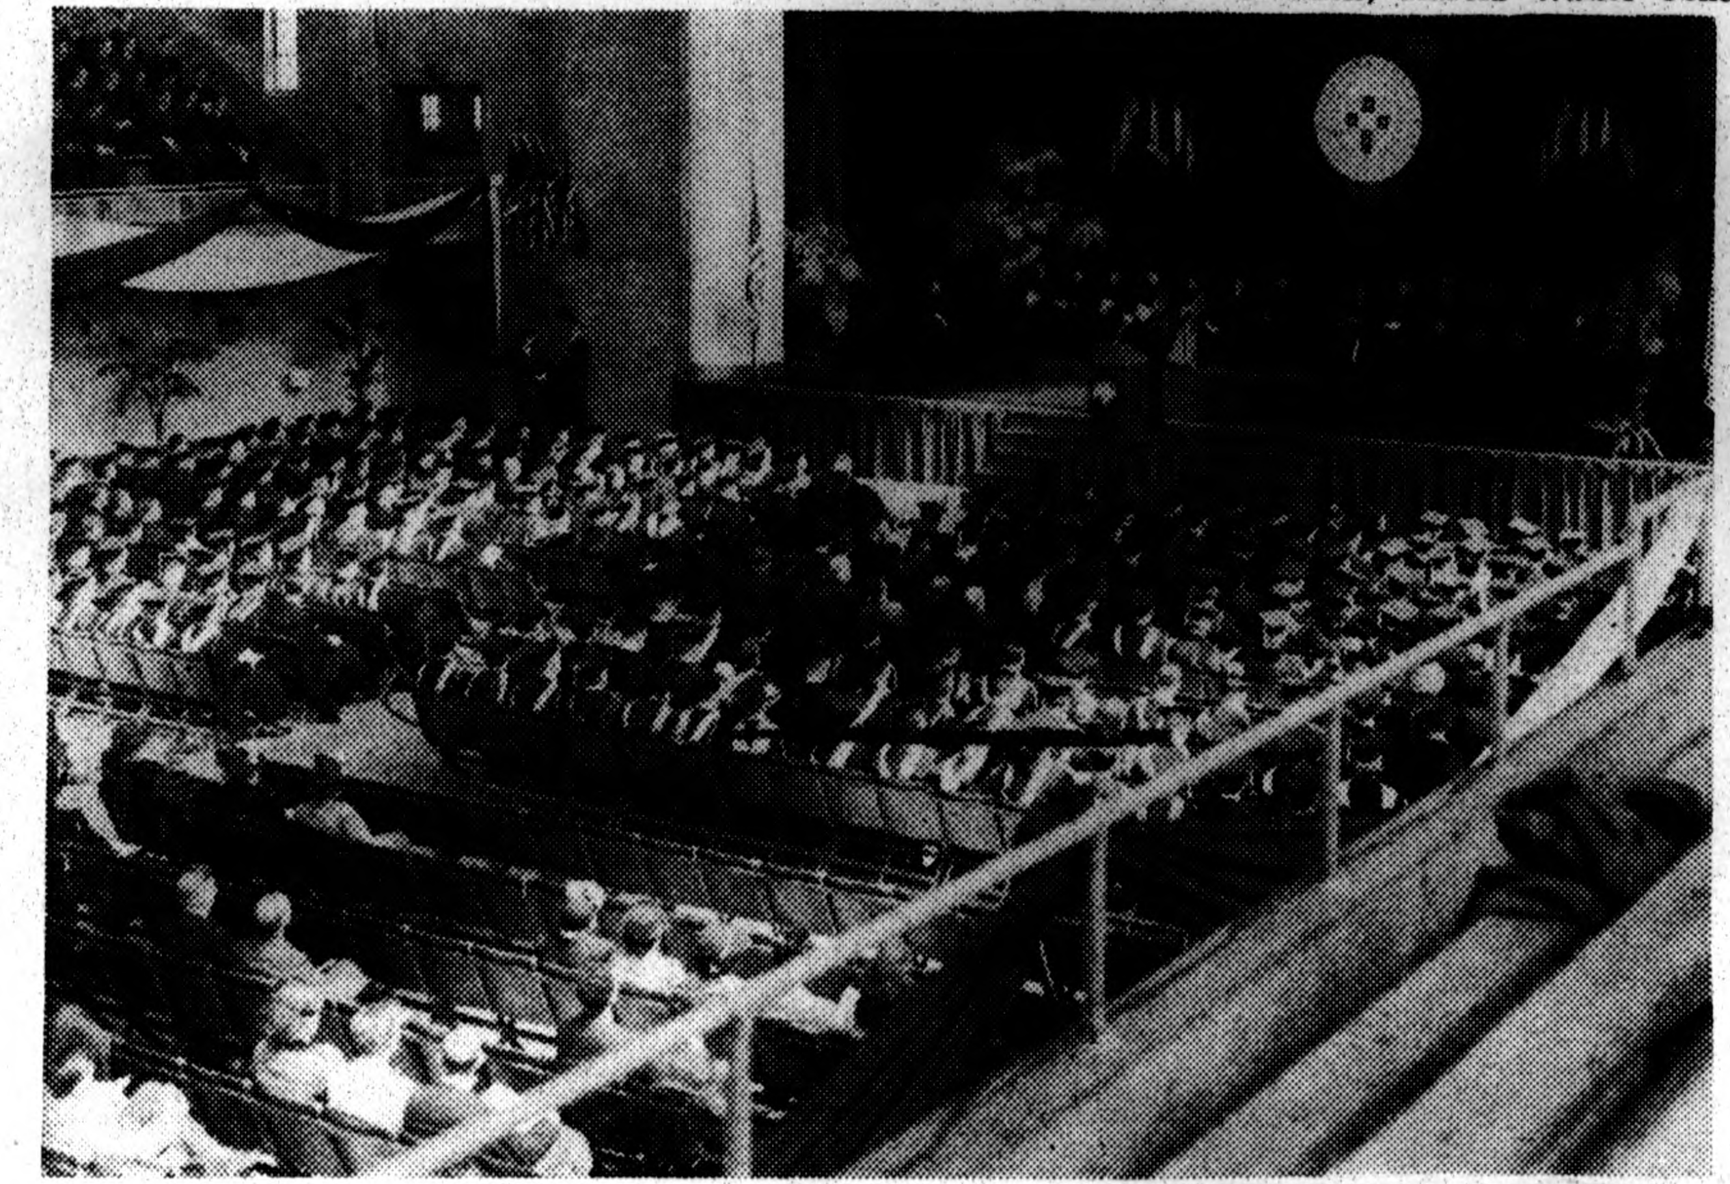
FOLLOWING the seminarians came members of the faculty of Villanova, shown below. Behind the faculty came the delegates in the order named, followed by the honorary degree recipients, pictured at bottom. Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova, and Chancellor William Pearson Tolley of Syracuse University, principal speaker of the occasion, concluded the march.

A soft wind which caused the flowing gowns of the participants to flutter gently, added a further aesthetic touch to the already colorful procession. The trees lining the path to the Field House, heeding the belated call of spring, were just beginning to show their budding leaves. This also seemed to contribute to the significance of the occasion, almost as if the appearance of the new foliage symbolized the beginning of a new era in the history of Villanova.





Pictured above on the stage of the Field House singing the National Anthem are, left to right: George P. Rea, Rev. Thomas J. Love, S. J.; Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael J. Ready; Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. Carroll McCormick; William Mather Lewis; Governor Edward Martin; Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A.; William Pearson Tolley; Very Rev. John T. Sheehan; Rear Admiral Milo Frederick Draemel, U. S. N.; Major General James A. Ulio, U. S. A.; Rear Admiral John J. Brady, U. S. N. (Ret.); Anne O'Hare McCormick; Harold Walter Jones, Md.



THE Field House was decorated in a fashion fitting this significant gathering. red, white, and blue bunting was displayed profusely from the rafters, as well as along the sides of the stands. Clustered groups of American flags set off still further the patriotic motif and served to remind the audience of the seriousness of the times.

The degree recipients as shown in the picture at the left, were seated on the stage facing the audience beneath the backdrop of a large banner bearing the new school seal. To the sides of the stage and around the circumference of the room were large palms. Not shown in the picture is the drawing of the Villanova campus of 1843, and the aerial photograph of the college as it stands today.

The delegates were seated in the front part of the auditorium. Behind them were the students and friends of the college. The seminarian A Cappella Choir was seated in the balcony above the delegates.

AT THE right are shown the seated delegates as they listened to the various speakers chosen to address the assembled. The representatives, from most of the forty-eight states, came from as far west as Washington, as far south as Louisiana, and as far north as Canada. As Fr. Stanford brought forth in his speech of welcome, they were forced to brave the exigencies of war-time travel, conditions which could easily have been offered as an excuse for not attending the celebration. Yet these representatives of higher education, by their sacrifices, showed their indomitable devotion to the cause of learning, the same devotion that is responsible for the high position America holds in the academic world.

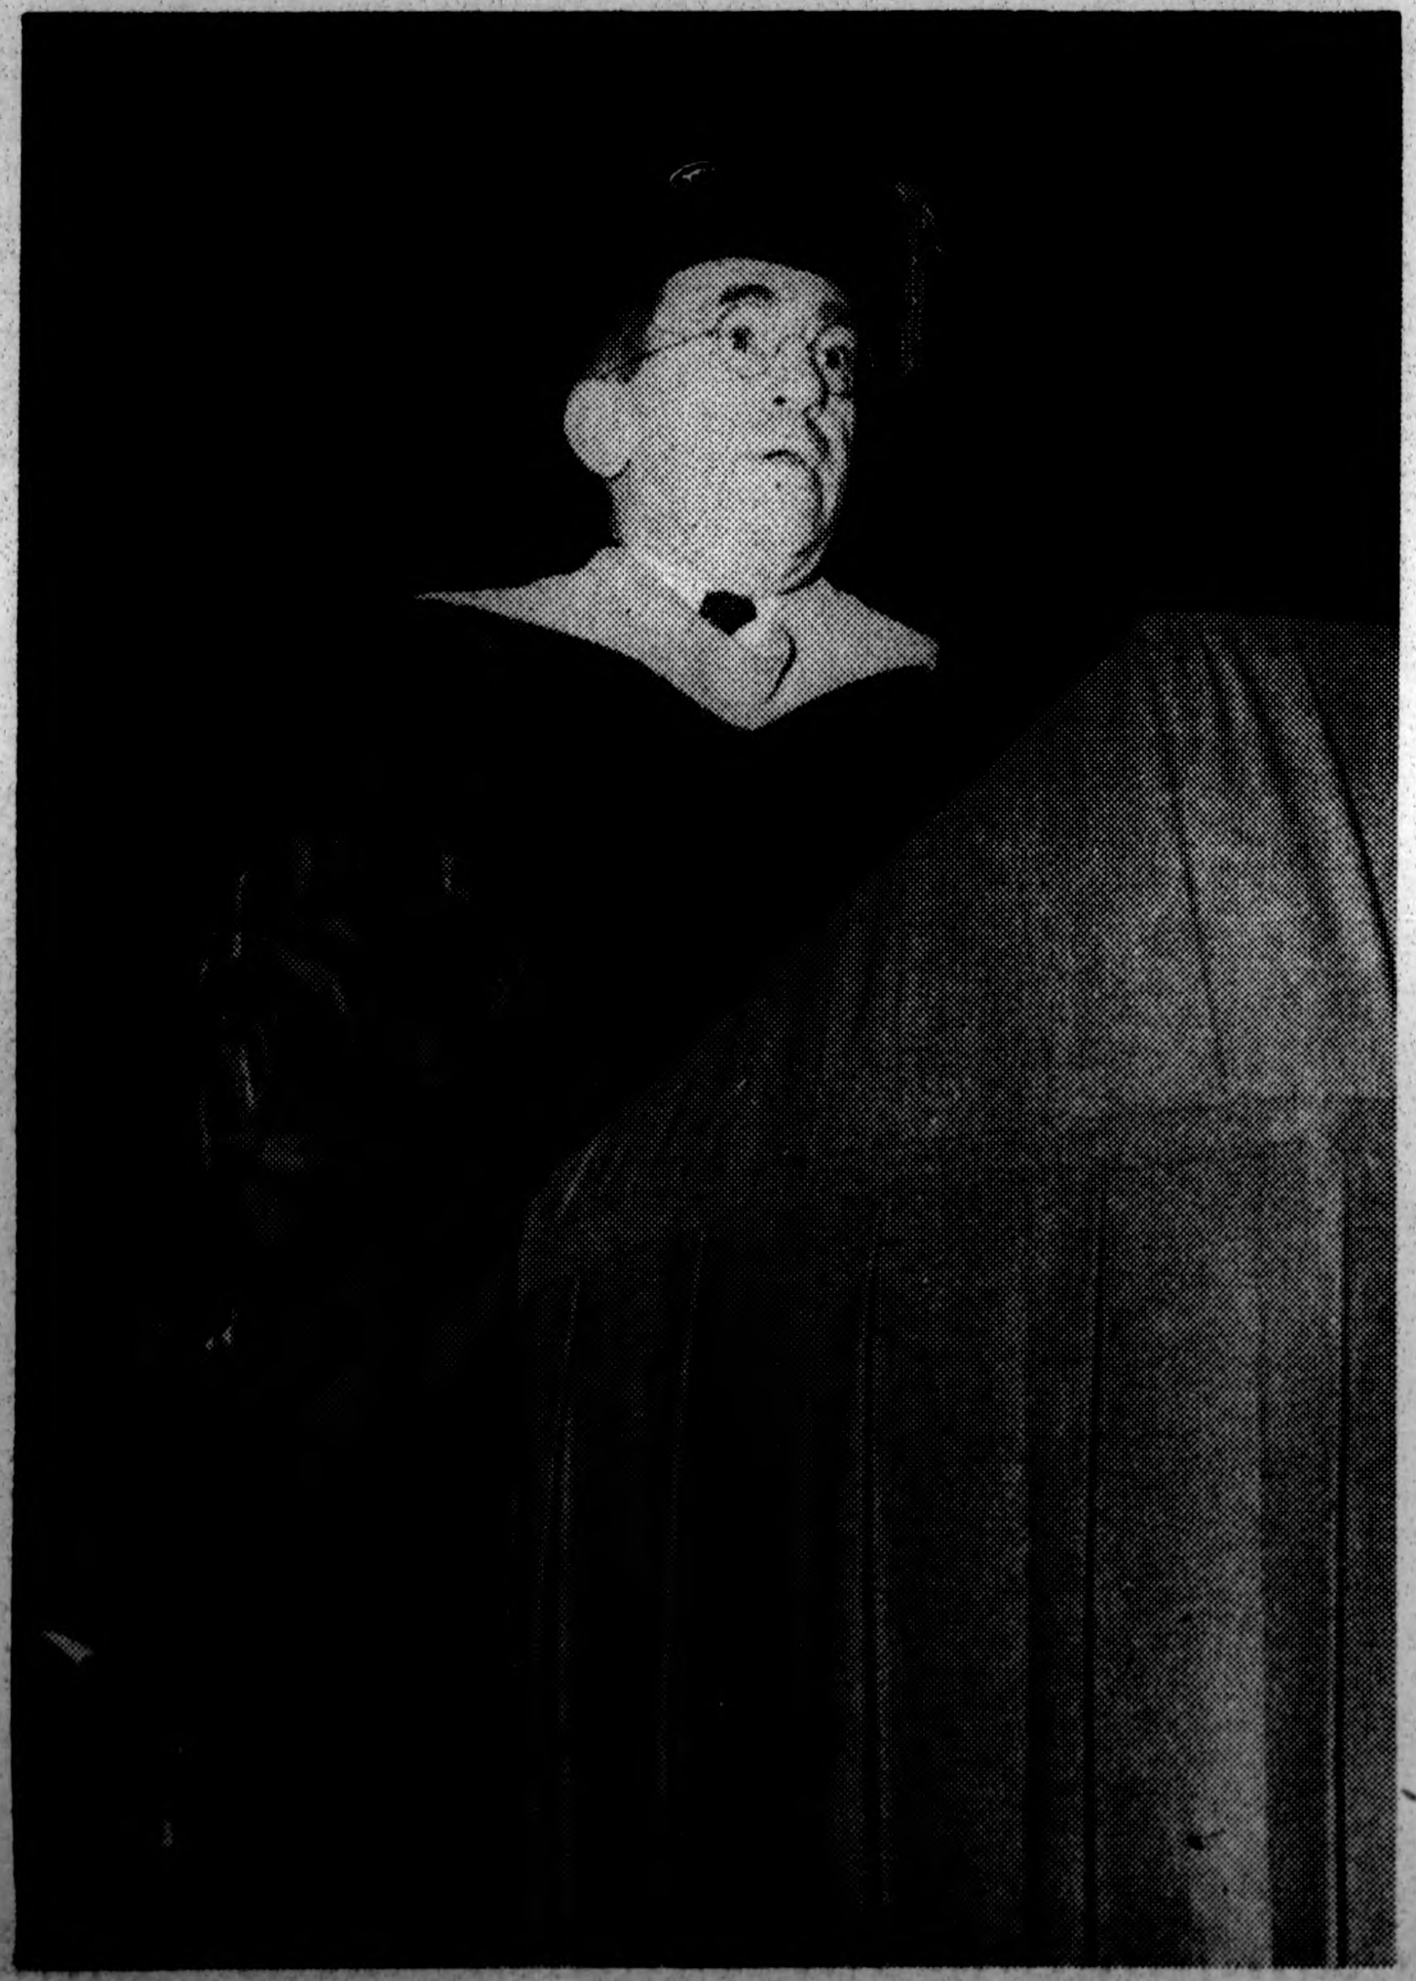
The delegates represented schools sponsored by both the state and various religious orders, without discrimination to race or creed. This fact made the entire Convocation of still broader significance, bearing testimony to the theme of higher education—that of increasing man's knowledge in every field possible regardless of his personal convictions and beliefs.

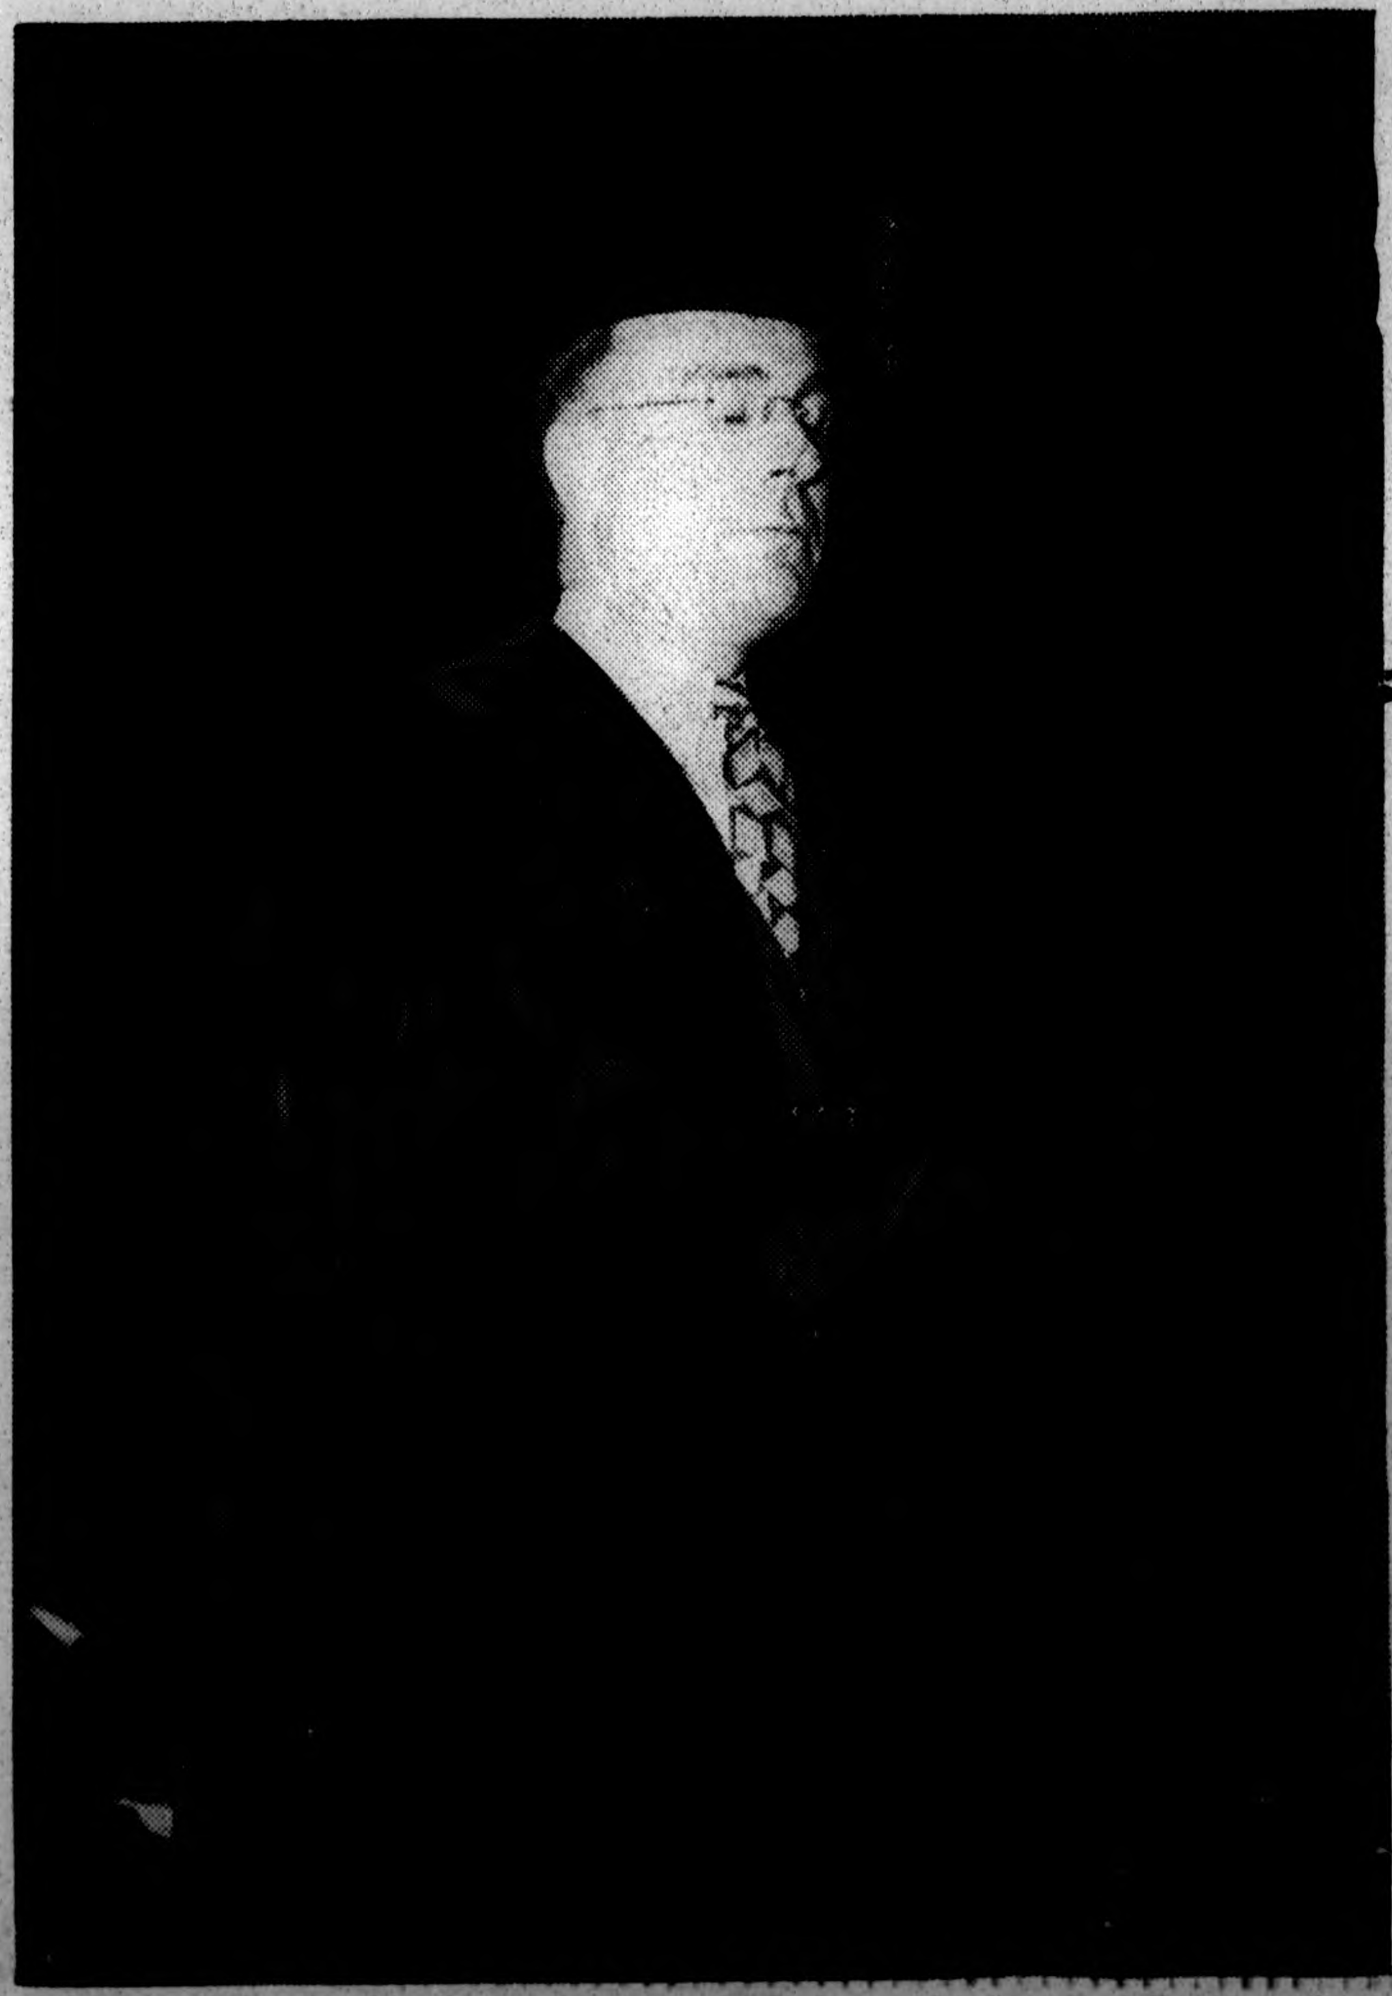
VERY Rev. John T. Sheehan, O. S. A., upper left, is pictured as he delivered the opening invocation in which he beseeched "Almighty God to accept the celebration as a testimony that higher education has a rightful place in war as well as peace."

In the upper right hand corner is Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova, welcoming the delegates. Fr. Stanford pointed out how the First World War overshadowed Villanova's 75th anniversary in 1918.

President of Lafayette College, William Mather Lewis, lower left, in his speech following Fr. Stanford, expressed confidence that the American system of higher education would successfully meet the challenge presented by the war.

Chancellor William Pearson Tolley of Syracuse University, lower right, is shown delivering the principle address. Chancellor Tolley predicted the post-war transfer of the seat of higher education from the old world to the new.





SHOWN on the left is Harold Walter Jones, M. D., as he received the honorary degree of Doctor of Science from Fr. Stanford. Dr. Jones was selected by the faculty for the degree on the basis of his distinguished work in the medical profession. He is professor of Clinical Medicine and Hematology at Jefferson Medical College, and Director of the Charlotte Drake Cardeza Foundation and Laboratories. Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., delivered the citation.

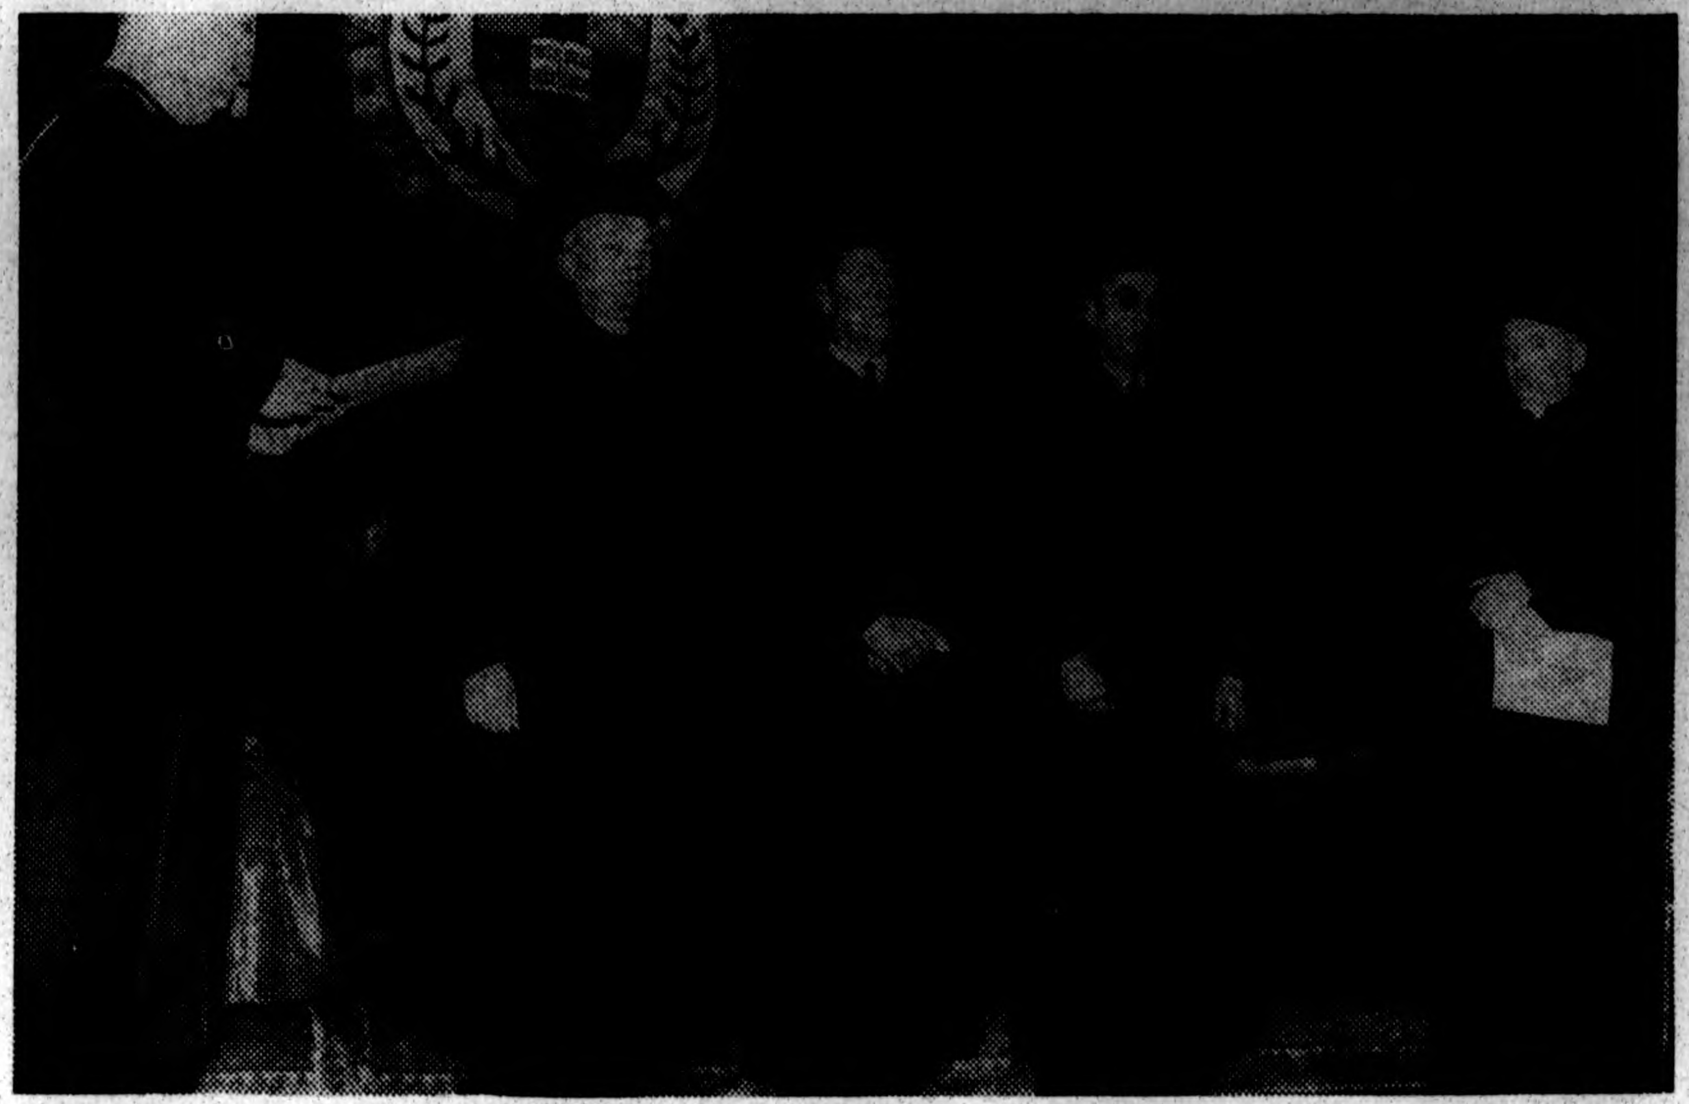
On the right is Anne O'Hare McCormick receiving the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters. "Mrs. McCormick," said Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., in the citation, "is the leading woman journalist in America. Her name has become a by-word for accurate reporting of the European scene. Her feature articles for the New York "Times" have been most iluminating to those who wish to know the background of European happenings and a delight to lovers of good English. She was a winner of the Pulitzer prize for the most distinguished foreign correspondence."

PICTURED to the right, reading in the usual order, is Fr. McQuade reading the citations for Rev. Thomas J. Love, S. J.; George P. Rea; and Brother Emelian James, F. S. C., each of whom received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Fr. Stanford.

Fr. Love is President of St. Joseph's College and is well known in academic circles as an eminent scholar and educator. He is a prominent member of the Association of College Presidents of Pennsylvania.

George P. Rea is president of Drexel Institute of Technology and recognized for his administrative ability. He played a large part in organizing the financial, industrial, and civil life of the Territory of Hawaii.

Brother Emelian James, a graduate of Villanova College in 1929, is now President of LaSalle College. He is one of the organizers of the Educational Conference of Christian Brothers.



AT A TIME when our country is engaged in the most momentous war of history, it is fitting that recognition be given to representatives of the armed forces," stated Fr. McQuade in the citations for (left to right) Rear Admiral Milo Frederick Draemel, U. S. N.; Major General James A. Ulio, U. S. A.; and Rear Admiral John J. Brady, U. S. N. (Ret.). Fr. Stanford presented the degrees.

Admiral Brady is a distinguished member of the Chaplain's Corps of the United States Navy. Since his retirement a few years ago, he has been Vicar-Delegate for the Military Ordinariate of the United States.

General Ulio's military career is most exceptional. He has risen from the ranks of the United States Army to his present position of high responsibility which amply attests to the energy and ability which he has continually shown.

Admiral Draemel has had a distinguished career of over forty years with the United States Navy. Formerly Chief of Staff and Aide to the Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet and the recipient of many notable awards, he is now Commandant of the Fourth Naval District.

RECEIVING degrees at the left from Fr. Stanford are two of the three churchmen holding the rank of the Domestic Prelate who were honored at the Convocation, Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. Carroll McCormick and Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael J. Ready.

The two men were chosen for the honor because of the important places of responsibility and trust which they hold in this country. Msgr. Ready is the General Secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Conference and is "universally respected for his ability to administer his important office with rare foresight and prudence." He also serves on the President's Board of Trustees of the National Catholic Community Service.

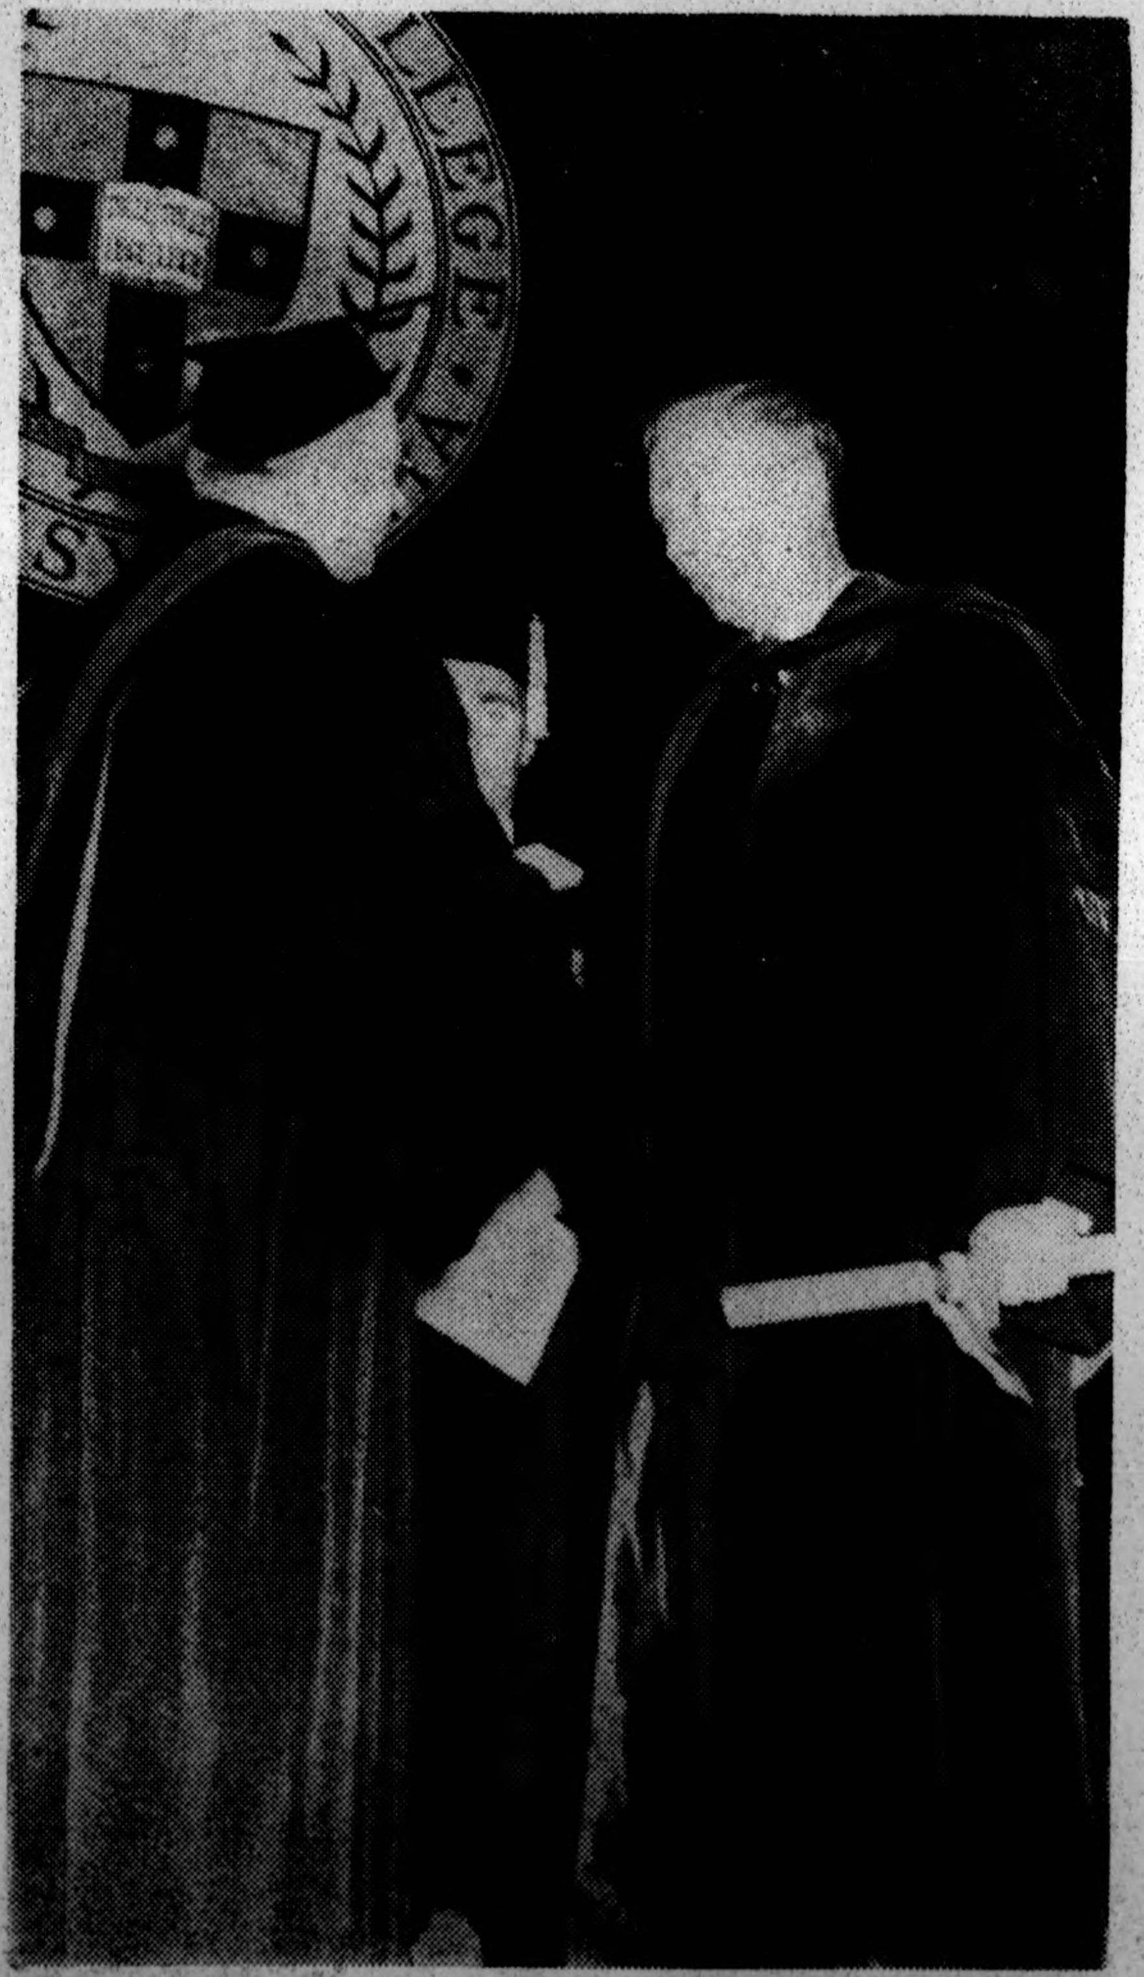
Msgr. McCormick is the young but able Chancellor of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia. He received Doctor's Degrees in both Philosophy and Theology from the Seminario Romano Maggiore in Rome, before returning to this country in 1934 to assume his present high post.

According to the citation at the presentation of his degree, "He has administered his office of great trust and responsibility with a tact and prudence that belie his years. He has been a devoted friend of Villanova, interested in our progress and in all our activities." Both men were named for Doctor of Laws.

CHANCELLOR William Pearson Tolley of Syracuse University adds another to the long list of honorary degrees which have been conferred on him by colleges throughout the country.

Dr. Tolley was at one time Dean of Brothers College in Drew University, became president of Allegheny College in 1931, and assumed the Chancellorship of Syracuse University in September, 1942. He became president of the Association of American Colleges last fall, and was but recently appointed a member of the advisory council to the War Manpower Commission in Washington.

He was presented at the Convocation as "a man whose learning, poise, and judgment have merited for him a position of great educational trusteeship at a time in life when most men are building up their fund of experience for the responsibilities of the future."



MAJOR General Edward Martin, Governor of the Commonwealth (left), receives the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. Governor Martin has served his country conspicuously in the Spanish American War and World War I in a military capacity. He has also taken part in the administration of the Commonwealth as Auditor General, State Treasurer, and Adjutant General.

At the right, is Monsignor McCormick as he delivered the closing Benediction. He asked God for His Blessing "to descend in a particular way on this venerable institution." He asked that "this college be granted the length of days to carry on the work for God and Country through the years of a second century." With this prayer the principal ceremonies of Villanova's Centennial Convocation came to a close to be followed by luncheon of the delegates.

TO complete the festive occasion of Villanova's 100th anniversary, the Field House was quickly transformed from an auditorium to an attractive setting for an informal luncheon at which were present the entire assemblage of dignitaries who took part in the ceremonies and procession, together with the members of the college faculty. Placed in front of the stage facing those attending was the president's table, colorfully decorated with flowers, in front of which a small tinted fountain made the scene even more picturesque.

When the repast had been completed, Governor Martin, seated beside Fr. Stanford, was introduced, and he addressed his audience with an informal but timely speech. Discussing the seriousness of the times and the whole-hearted cooperation of everyone that is needed to bring this world conflict to a quick and decisive victory, he emphasized the necessity of speeding up production and the laying aside of those extraneous matters not concerned with the war effort.

WITH this, the celebration came to a pleasant end and the representatives dispersed to return to the duties in the administration of almost 200 various colleges and universities all over the United States. Pictured below are men delegated by institutions from the farthest north, west and south, respectively. At the right is Rev. Philip A. Mugan from the University of Western Ontario, Canada; next to him is H. H. Mottern of Washington State University; and at the extreme lower right is Col. Lewis S. Sorley of Louisiana State University.

These men exemplify a few of the many who did not allow the difficulties of war-time travel prevent them from paying honor to this venerable institution of higher learning.

AS Chancellor Tolley pointed out in his address, the need for education is greater than ever before, not only during the present time but particularly in preparation for the period of reconstruction which will follow this chaotic period of world crisis. Education must be kept in the foreground and continue to advance in all possible fields. In celebrating her centennial, Villanova College and the institutions who have shared in her festivities have paid a high tribute to her past accomplishments.

Now about to begin her second century of existence, this college faces the grave uncertainties of a world at war. With profound confidence in God, with strong trust in the ultimate happy destiny of the United States of America, she is not without firm hope for the future. Fortified by her Christian philosophy with its belief in the education of the whole man,—body, mind, and soul—Villanova pledges herself to carry on her mission of higher education for God and country.

Comdr. Milner, 25-Year Veteran, Is Head of Military Unit Here

Commander Edward J. Milner, USN, head of the contingent of Navy and Marine trainees assigned to Villanova, has a record typical of the men who have devoted their entire lives to the service of their nation. A shore post such as he holds now is a rare experience for one who has spent twenty-five years on the sea. The galaxy of service ribbons which he wears is ample proof of myriad adventures from the China coast to the Mediterranean Sea. It is indeed appropriate that such a man be entrusted with the guidance of our embryonic officers, for his vast experience will enable him to determine the phases of their training which must be emphasized.

Native Philadelphian

A native Philadelphian, Comdr. Milner was born on May 19, 1897. He attended Southern High, and in 1917 was awarded an appointment to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis.

He experienced his first three month tour of sea duty in 1918. A varsity baseball player for three years Comdr. Milner captained the Academy team during the 1920 season from his position at shortstop. He graduated and received his commission in 1920.

His first assignment as a commissioner officer saw him attached to the Atlantic fleet as a member of a destroyer squadron. In 1921, however, he returned to Annapolis as coach of the baseball team. He held this post until 1924, when he shipped aboard the USS Marblehead for another tour of duty.

While on that vessel, he accompanied the Atlantic fleet on a shakedown cruise in the Atlantic Ocean and the Mediterranean Sea. He saw his first action during an uprising in Nicaragua, when the Marblehead was detailed to land troops on the beaches and to patrol the shoreline.

Assigned Asiatic Fleet

After four years in the Atlantic, Comdr. Milner was assigned to the Asiatic fleet, and engaged in patrol activity on the Yangtze River and at various points along the coast of China.

He returned to the States, and in 1926 was placed in charge of several Navy athletic teams participating in the celebration.

In 1929, Comdr. Milner was detailed to commission the USS Salt Lake City. He served four years on

College Presidents Discuss V-12 Plan

An informal conference of the presidents of the colleges affected by the operation of the Naval College Training Program was held at the office of the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova, late in June. The plans and methods of operation of V-12 were discussed.

Those presented at the meeting were John W. Nason, president of Swarthmore College; N. E. McClure, president of Ursinus College; Theodore A. Distler, president of Franklin and Marshall College; and Dean Page, of Bucknell University, who acted as the representative of President Martz of that institution.

The group plans to hold similar informal meetings at frequent intervals in the future.

Building Remodeled For New Sick Bay Near End Of Campus

In order to accommodate the Navy, and still provide facilities for non-Navy students, Villanova College has acquired rights to the property situated next to O'Dwyer Hall on the southwest boundary of the campus.

At present the building is being completely renovated, and preparations for its use as a combined Navy Medical Department and Sick Bay are under way.

When the building is finished, it will be used exclusively for Navy trainees under the direction of Commander William T. Minnick, USN, (Ret.) Dr. Minnick was formerly attached to the Medical Staff of the Navy Hospital in Philadelphia, before undertaking his present assignment here at Villanova.

Isolate Sick Bay

The reason for this choice of location was the desire of the Navy officials to have the Sick Bay somewhat isolated from the remainder of the college buildings. Because of this, they indicated a wish to use O'Dwyer Hall.

However, the college authorities not wanting to deplete the dormitory facilities, acquired the new propery. The Navy has stated that it is completely satisfactory.

The Villanova Infirmary located in Mendel Hall, under the joint authority of Rev. Charles F. Kropp, O. S. A., the Infirmarian, and Dr. Paul A. Loefflad, college physician, will continue to operate as in the past for the convenience of students not included in the V-12 program.

Service Students Receive Welcome From President

Fr. Stanford Gives Address Of Greeting To Navy And Marine Trainees At Meeting In C. & F. Auditorium

In an address on July 7, before the members of the Navy and Marine Corps now in training at Villanova, the Very Reverend Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, welcomed all those who had returned to their Alma Mater in uniform and also those who have been transferred from other colleges.

He said that he realized that the students were sorry to leave the colleges of their first choice, but he added that Villanova is sympathetic and will try to adjust things to make these transferees feel comfortable. The old students can be a great help in bringing about such an ideal situation.

Fr. Stanford Praised

In introducing the main speaker, Lt. Harry W. August, U. S. N. R., Executive Officer, pointed out that Fr. Stanford was one of the committee very instrumental in getting the V-12 program under way. This program is now enabling 80,000 students to finish their education as Apprentice Seamen in the Navy or Privates in the Marines.

Fr. Stanford pointed out that, since he had been so closely connected with the V-12 and V-1 programs, he knew that the Naval authorities want the scholastic program to be foremost with the military training at a minimum. Further military training will come when the trainee has finished his college training.

Exam System Explained

Although the College will give the regular term examinations and recommend that deficient students be dropped from the program, the Navy itself will administer achievement tests at the end of each term. This puts the trainees at Villanova in direct competition with the trainees in other colleges throughout the country.

As an aid in breaking the barrier whcih exists among the strangers on the campus, Fr. Stanford urged that the trainees should keep up the practice of greeting all fellow Villanovans and faculty members whom they meet on the campus whether they know them personally or not. This habit perpetuates the principles of democracy and creates a spirit of friendliness which will be remembered in the times to come.

Stresses Religious Opportunities

Fr. Stanford then told the trainees of the religious opportunities available to them at Villanova. He stressed the fact that because it was so easy to attend the services some students were inclined to forget them.

Convocation Talks Printed In Booklet

In answer to a large number of requests from delegates who attended Villanova's 100th Anniversary Convocation last May, the addresses given by the leading speakers at the event have been published. They are contained in the August edition of the Villanova College Bulletin.

Copies of this booklet will be sent to all the official representatives of the colleges and universities who were present at the celebration. A limited number of copies will be available at the book store for free distribution to the faculty and student body in the near future.

The following is a list of the talks given: "The American College in an Age of Crisis" — William Pearson Tolley; "Address of Welcome" — Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A.; "Greetings From Sister Institutions" — William Mather Lewis; "The Invocation" — Very Rev. John T. Sheehan, O. S. A., and "The Benediction"—Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. Carroll McCormick.

V-12 Program Inaugurated With 600 Naval Students

Navy And Marine Reservists Begin Training In Courses That Will Eventually Lead To Commissions

On July 1, the Navy V-12 program was inaugurated at Villanova College when approximately 400 Naval Reservists and 200 Marine Reservists were placed on active duty to continue their education.

This college was one of many in the country chosen to further the education of about 80,000 men especially selected as officer candidates. The education will be carried on while the men are on active duty, in uniform, receiving pay, and subject to naval discipline.

However, it is basically a college program; its primary purpose being to give prospective naval and marine officers the benefits of a college education.

All the college facilities and extra-curricular activities have been made available to the trainees, and already many have joined teams or organizations.

Milner Heads Staff

Comdr. Edward J. Milner, USN, has been assigned as Commanding Officer of the program at Villanova. Assigned to his staff are the following officers; Comdr. William T. Minnick, USN (Ret), Administrative Medical Officer; Lt. Harry W. August, USNR, Executive Officer; Capt. Robert L. Morgan, USMCR, Officer-in-Charge Marine Department; and Ensign Samuel T. Maniaci, USNR, Athletic Officer.

These officers are assisted by CPO Robert F. Beck, CPO Julian A. Horgan, CPO Abisha C. Pritchard, Ernest Azarva, Y1/c, Acting Frst Sgt. Daniel P. Lewis, Corp. Charles A. McGrath, Sgt. Quartermaster George A Maharg, Sgt. Joseph A. Bastedo, Sgt. Benjamin W. Doerfler, William M. Ellis, SK 3/c, Bruno Dahlhausen, M. 1/c, Charles W. Zimmerman, Ph. M. 1/c, Charles W Zimmerman, M. 3/c.

Program Outlined

The first four days of the program were devoted to registering for classes, receiving uniforms, and taking physical examinations. Classes began on Monday, July 5.

The Navy trainees have occupied Fedigan and Mendel Hall, as well as part of Alumni Hall. The Marines are quartered in Austin Hall and the remainder of Alumni Hall.

Reveille is at 6 A. M. everyday except Sunday and is followed by a half hour of calisthenics on the drill field. Breakfast is served starting at 7:15, and the first class begins at 8:30. From then until 5:45, the trainees attend classes according to their respective schedules, with lunch being served between 12:15 and 1:30.

After supper, which begins at 4:45, there is a free period until 7:30 when the trainees return to their rooms for study until lights out at 11.

Drill is held every Saturday morning at 11.15. Liberty begins immediately after drill and continues until midnight on Sunday.

Heads VILLANOVAN

Hoberg Named As Editor-In-Chief Of VILLANOVAN

First Sophomore To Hold This Position; New Editorial Board And Staff Members Named

George G. Hoberg, sophomore engineering student, has been appointed Editor-in-Chief of the VILLANOVAN for the coming scholastic year, it has been announced by the Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., moderator of the publication. He succeeds Robert F. Young, A. S.

The new Editor-in-Chief served on the VILLANOVAN staff during his freshman year and is the first sophomore to hold this position. Besides being an honor student and a member of Phi Kappa Pi, Hoberg is a member of the Navy V-12 program on an inactive status, expecting to go into uniform this November.

Will Assist Hoberg

Thomas M. Schubert, A. S., sophomore engineer, who was former College Editor, now takes over the position of Managing Editor. Also assisting Hoberg on the new Editorial Board are Thomas F. Hitchell, junior education student, who succeeds Schubert as College Editor; Pvt. William J. Devine, junior commerce and finance student, who replaces Frank Facciolo as Circulation Manager and David V. V. Ward, A. S., who claims the position of Sports Editor formerly held by William T. Walsh, A. S.

Harold C. O'Connor, junior engineer, is resuming his duties on the staff as Business Manager; a position which he has held since the retirement of Eugene Smith last summer. Louis J. Eni, a junior in the Engineering School, replaces Edward E. Mancuso as Photography Editor.

Among the new staff writers are Thomas Ward; Allen Schneider, AS; Wendel Yealy, AS; Joseph Boyle, AS; John Atkinson, AS; Charles Koerwer, AS; Donald Collins; Pvt. William Dawson; Jerome Dolan, AS; Pvt. James Carter; and John Wade, AS.

Alumni Secretary Asks Information For Service Lists

Through the efforts of the Alumni Office, the editors of the VILLANOVAN have been sending the college paper each week to every Alumnus known to be in the Service. That this aim may be fulfilled, the service record must be correct and complete. To this end, Rev. Robert E. McGrath, O. S. A., the Alumni Secretary, is appealing to the Alumni in the Service to keep the office informed as to their correct mailing address.

As of May 30, 1943, the Alumni Office records show 1,202 Villanova men in military service. To these it is hoped may be added the names of many more who belong to one of our armed forces, but who have not as yet been brought to the attention of the Alumni Office.

TUESDAY - - - - - - - - - - - - JULY 20, 1943

Welcome, Service Men

RECENT addition of a complement of almost 400 Naval and 200 Marine Corps Reservists to the student body here has come as the dawn of a new day for Villanova. The staccato bark of the cadence count and the rhythm of marching feet are innovations to an institution which for a full century has been devoted to the task of equipping men with the intellectual tools required for peaceful enterprise; but the college has rapidly acclimated itself.

The change from "campus rags" to the khaki and white of the service has been surprisingly smooth. The college students have responded magnificently to the call to arms, and their rapid orientation to the new life is a perfect example of the versatility of the modern American youth.

Dreams of officership have caused them to obliterate completely the tendencies that were once so comonplace. Diligence and close application to studies have become the order of the day.

College authorities have frequently reiterated that they wish the trainees to feel perfectly at home here, and to consider themselves welcome to all facilities of the school. It is to this end that the VILLANOVAN takes this opportunity to welcome these new men to the campus, and to express a hope that their stay here will be a happy one.

—G. G. H.

Unity For Freedom

FROM unity comes strength, and the efforts of divided forces are foredoomed. Years of repetition have weakened the efficacy of this statement by placing it in the category of the trite, but they have likewise strengthened it by continually providing instances wherein its truth is demonstrated.

Nowhere should oneness of purpose be more present than among the members of the armed forces of a nation at war. Since the United States Marine Corps is a component part of the United States Navy, it is wholly absurd for members of these two organizations to attempt in any way to keep their objectives or activities separate.

In the present war it has been demonstrated more forcibly than ever before that complete coordination between land, sea, and air forces is essential to the success of any military operation. The seeds of a feeling of trust for fellow service men should be sown here on the campus by navy and marines alike.

The fact that their uniforms are of different color, and that their equally important tasks in theaters of war will be of a somewhat different nature, can never serve as a logical explanation for any feeling of disregard between the two groups.

It is more incomprehensible for either Marines or sailors to feel apart from those who have not yet donned the uniform of active service. Many are already enlisted in reserve programs; all others, for whom it is physically possible, will eventually become a part of some service program.

All here on the campus are pursuing similar courses for a common purpose: to serve our country as best we can. Let us bear this in mind, and look on fellow-students as co-workers in a great cause which transcends all distinctions of service.

'CAT CAPERS

By BILL SWAN

ONLY a few short weeks ago, it seemed as if the snooping career of the "Cat Capers was finished, and the battle-scarred cat was to spend the rest of his days in senile glory, bathing in the aurora of scoops that he never did find . . . . But with the arrival of the Navy and Marines, as well as the regular operators, the atmosphere became too pungent for the old cat to remain holed up . . . Coming out in the open, he at once found big doings . . . so from now on in the Cat will try to keep the situation well in hand . . . if possible ..

And watch the temperature rise when Bob Bolger dates Mary Jane . . .To escape the local atmosphere Heck Martinez made a trip to Newark; but, from reports, things were warmer there than locally ... The postal authorities are complaining that the letters received by George Aulbach are burning the mails with that flaming red lipstick that seals them . . .

ANCHORS AWEIGH

A lot of the former big time operators are now working for the honor and glory of the U. S. Navy. Austin Gavin is now being dubbed U.S.O., which might stand for "U Sure Operate" . . . May He Rest In Peace

He died, Oh! yes, but not in vain,
For he lies among the valiant slain;
The men who gave their very lives,
That freedom always will survive.

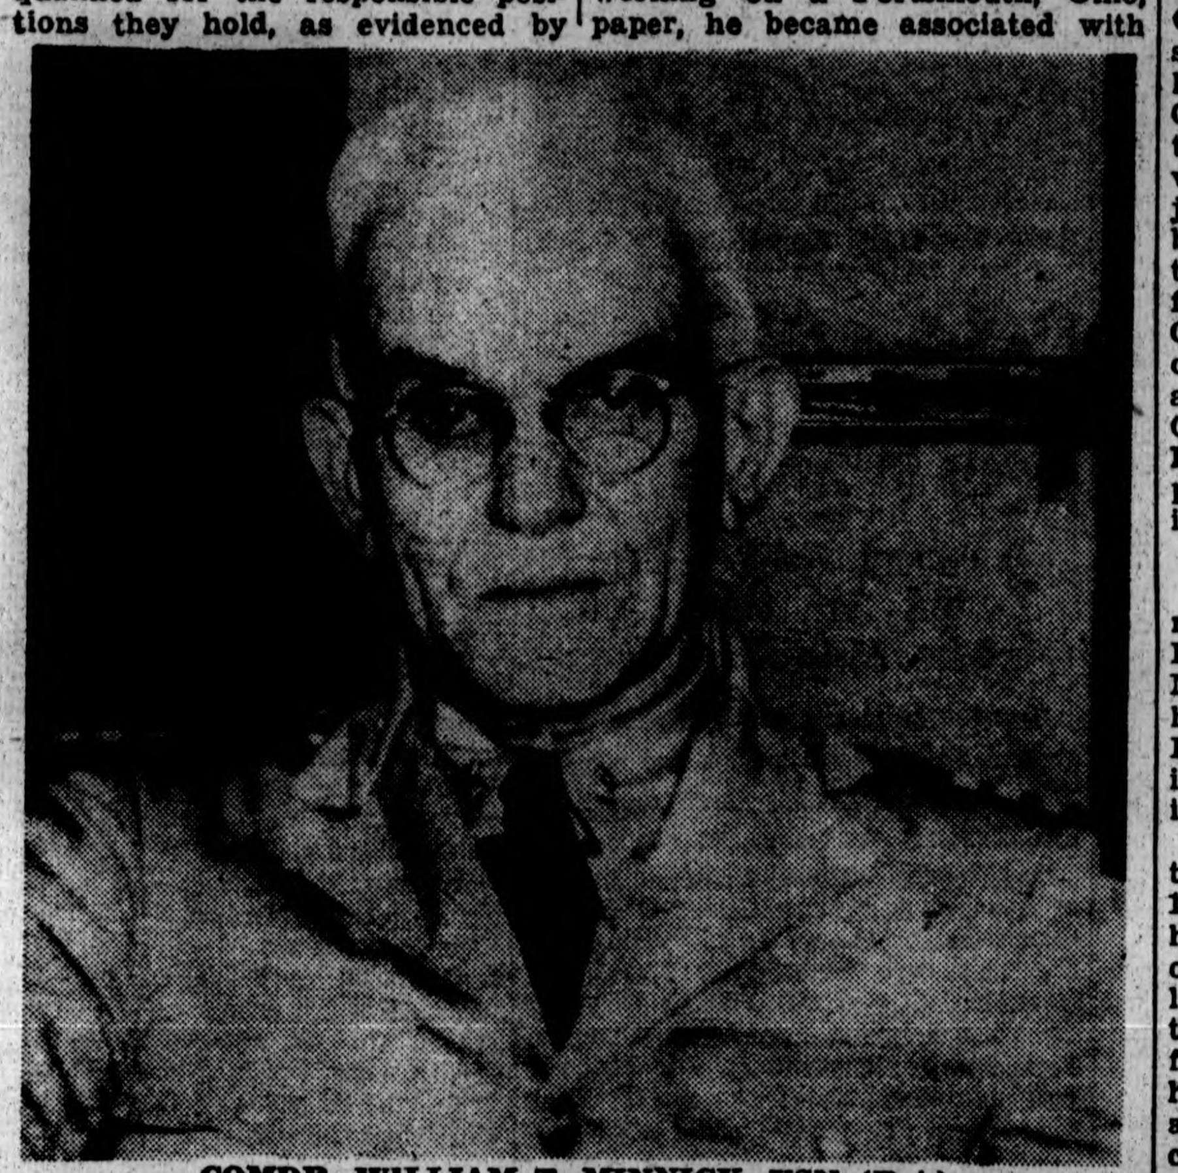
We shall always mourn him as a loss,
But keep on smiling — bear the cross;
So that others guided by his light,
Will go more valiantly to the fight.

For the fight he fought while in that fray,
Made him the hero of the day;
So let's not forget what he has done,
And go on fighting 'til freedom's won.

(In March of 1943, First Sergeant James N. Wright of the United States Marine Corps gave his life for his country in battle with the invader foe. In humble tribute to the gallant sacrifice of his comrade in arms, Corporal Charles A. McGrath, USMCR, has written the above poem.)

Naval Officers Assigned To Training Unit On Campus; Possess Wide Military Experience In Varied Fields

THE VILLANOVAN deems it appropriate at this time to introduce to the members of the student body and their parents the officers who make up the staff of the Commandant in charge of the nearly 600 reservists on the campus. All of the men are well qualified for the responsible positions they hold, as evidenced by the brief account of their lives which follows.



COMDR. WILLIAM T. MINNICK, USN (Ret.)

Commander William T. Minnick, USN (Ret.) has been appointed administrative medical officer for the trainees stationed here. This appointment adds nother chapter to his already lengthy record of service to his country.

Excelled in Athletics

Born on a farm near Wabash, Indiana, he specialized in the running broad jump and cross country meets while at Somerset High School. His unusual speed and endurance served him well on the Marion Normal College football team. After the usual long years of painstaking work, he received his degree, Doctor of Medicine, from Indiana Medical College in 1904.

He first entered the Navy in 1908, when he was assigned to the U. S. S. Galveston. After a year he was transferred to the U. S. S. Denver, on which he served until 1912. Later assigned to the U. S. S. Tennessee, he made a memorable trip to Turkey during the Balkan War. 1916 saw him on the U. S. S. Colgoa, and a year later he received his commission and was assigned to the transport U. S. S. Powhatan.

He was on the Powhattan during World War I and related some experiences . . . One day in 1917 the vessel encountered a storm, and after a long battle against the elements was beached on the unchartered rocks off the northern coast of Haiti. He saw a number of men washed overboard, one of whom lost his life. Two months were required to free the ship from her rocky perch and effect temporary repairs sufficient to enable her to be towed to port.

At the time of the second Nicaraguan campaign, Comdr. Minnick was attached to the Marine Corps. He has seen action on every continent in the world, except Australia.

Recalled to Duty

From 1923 until his retirement in 1931 he served aboard the U. S. S. Denver. In 1939 he was recalled to active duty because of the severe shortage of naval officers which was brought about by the rapid increase in the size of the Navy due to the troubled international situation.

In January, 1942, soon after Pearl Harbor, he was promoted to the rank of Commander, and after serving in various capacities, was assigned to Villanova as Administrative Medical Officer, responsible for keeping the health of the many trainees present on the campus up to the Navy's high standards.

LT. Harry W. August, USNR, Executive Officer and second in command of the Villanova detachment, attended Ohio State University prior to World War I. He left school to serve in the army, and immediately after the war returned to State for a short time.

He began a long journalistic career in Athens, a typical Ohio small town. Here, Lt. August put out a newspaper almost single-handedly; he not only was a reporter for the paper, but held the positions of editor, copy man, etc., as well. In addition, he acted as assistant coach for the local high school football team.

Becomes Editor, Professor

After spending a year and a half working on a Portsmouth, Ohio, paper, he became associated with the Scripps-Howard Newspaper Association and moved to Akron, Ohio. Remaining there from 1922 to 1929, Lt. August became a staff writer for the "Pittsburgh Press", and in 1933 was appointed news editor of this paper.

LT. HARRY W. A. AUGUST, USNR

Lt. August again demonstrated his versatility by accepting a position as a professor of journalism at Duquesne University; he held this post and that of editor of the "Press" from 1936 until 1943.

During the Harding-Cox presidential campaign, he toured the country with the candidates as a political writer.

Holds Varied Positions

As a natural consequence of his active participation in sports both in high school and in college, he has done a considerable amount of sports writing. He has also written detective stories and similar magazine articles.

Lt. August has traveled extensively. He has seen much of Europe and Central America. Like all other members of our armed services, he is desirous of visiting the Orient in the near future.

Enlists in Navy

Previous to our entry into the war, he made extensive tours, during which he lectured on international and military problems and attended the war conferences at Harvard.

With the wartime shortage of competent naval officers in a critical condition, Lt. August felt it his duty to enlist March 28, 1943, and was commissioned as a lieutenant. Shortly thereafter came his appointment as Executive Officer of the new naval unit being formed on the campus.

ROBERT L. Morgan was born on October 23, 1919, in Lawrence, Massachusetts. He entered Boston University in 1937 and graduated with the Class of 1941. After leaving college he worked at public accounting for one summer until answering the call-to-arms.

He enlisted as a Private First Class in October 1941, and was shipped to Quantico, Virginia, where he started his training as a Marine Corps Officer Candidate. After three months of rigorous training, which included forced marches, judo, obstacle courses, night combat problems, and various other activities designed to make him fit for duty, he was graduated from Officer's Candidate School and commissioned as a second lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps Reserve. Further training at Reserve Officer's School served to polish the rough spots of his training for officership.

Assigned to South Pacific

Following two and one-half months of R. O. C. School, Second Lieutenant Morgan was sent to New River, North Carolina, where he was attached to the famous Fifth Marines who won their name in World War I and proudly upheld it in World War II.

After four weeks he was sent to the South Pacific War Theatre in 1942. The assault force to which he was attached went over the side of the troop transport and into landing barges which took them to the island of Tulagi, twenty miles from Guadalcanal. Tulagi was the headquarters of the Japanese forces and had to be taken if the Jap communication lines were to be effectively blocked.

CAPT. ROBERT L. MORGAN, USMCR

Occupy Tulagi

Naval forces, in the meantime, were laying a barrage of thirty-two hundred eight inch shells into the island to cover the Marines' attack. Through the efforts of the Marines the island, occupied by seven hundred Japanese, was taken in three days.

Lt. Morgan remained on Tulagi for two weeks, and then was transferred to Guadalcanal by destroyer. He was sent ashore at Henderson Field, which the Marines had taken while Tulagi was being captured.

His unit was assigned to a section of the defense ring that had been thrown around the airfield. While patrolling this sector, the lieutenant's sergeant was wounded, and died while he was being brought back to the field.

Receives Promotions

After coming through all this unscathed, Lieutenant Morgan was overcome by malaria and was forced to leave the combat area in the latter part of 1942. He was promoted to first lieutenant and sent to the West Coast to recuperate.

After spending five months in the hospital, First Lieutenant Morgan was assigned to duty in the Boston Navy Yard. In June he was promoted to the rank of Captain and assigned to duty as the commanding officer of the Marine Detachment at Villanova College.

V-12 Program Carefully Designed To Provide Future Naval Officers

When the Navy V-12 program went into operation on the first of this month in over 200 American colleges and universities, approximately 80,000 men especially selected as officer candidates were placed on active duty to continue their education.

The present program prevailing throughout the country absorbed the previous V-1 and V-7 programs, as well as the special college training program of the Marine Corps Reserve. It is also coordinated with the N. R. O. T. C., which is continuing substantially in the same manner as in the past.

First of all, to completely understand this new Navy project, it is essential that we take into consideration the type of individual included in this special training program. The Navy has made every effort possible to select only the most intelligent students, who also possess necessary potential officer-like qualities.

Navy Selects Best

By considering only those men who will in the end measure up to officer qualifications, there obviously results a saving of energy, time, and money. Of course, this does not mean that every selectee is guaranteed his commission, for it must be remembered that those students who are not successful in their college courses will ultimately be important additions to the enlisted complement of the fleet.

Civilians who were accepted by the Navy for this V-12 program had to be between the ages of seventeen and twenty years, had to pass both a mental and physical examination, and were also obliged to be approved by a board composed of a naval officer, an educator, and a representative civilian, at district offices of Naval Officer Procurement.

Enlisted Personnel Included

The program was also open to the enlisted personnel of the Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, who had to apply for the Navy V-12 program through their commanding officers.

Four-fifths of those called to active duty this month were men who previously attended colleges in an inactive reserve status. The majority of the remaining one-fifth entered the program directly from civilian life; the others being drawn from enlisted personnel of the Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard.

Of this total about fifteen percent are officer candidates for the Marine Corps; several hundred are destined for service with the Coast Guard, and the rest are to be future naval officers.

Not only has the Navy chosen its men "from the cream of the crop," so to speak, for this training, but it has also selected institutions of the highest type to administer this education.

Navy administration staffs were assigned to colleges in proportion to the number of enlisted men attached. The commanding officer has adequate assistance to handle routine problems of discipline, pay, issuance of uniforms, innoculations, etc.; to teach the course in naval organization; and to supplement when necessary the physical training staff of the college.

College Life Preserved

One of the highlights of the V-12 program is the fact that it is described as a college program, with military procedures subordinated to study. In so far as possible, the normal pattern of college life has been preserved. Colleges have, at their own discretion, given regular academic credit for all or most of the Navy courses; and college faculties are enforcing all necessary regulations to keep academic standards high.

Made available to the Navy are not merely classroom, dormitory, and mess-hall space, plus a stipulated amount of instruction, but also the highest teaching skill, the best judgment, and the soundest administration of which the colleges are capable. Navy students will have all the benefits of the best undergraduate education that the colleges can offer.

Participation of Navy students in extra-curricular activities is optional. Navy students will be encouraged however to support student unions, and other beneficial campus organizations.

Intensive military training, outside of such present obligatory duties as standing watch, shore patrol, care of rooms, etc., will come later in midshipmen's schools, naval training schools, or indoctrination schools especially set up for that purpose.

Program Started in 1938

The long series of steps involved in the formation of the V-12 program dates back to 1938, when the National Reserve Act was passed, providing for the appointment of Midshipmen, USNR. To further this act, a class of enlisted men, age limit between nineteen and twenty years, who had completed two years of college and to be known as V-7, was established. Their first cruise was in July, 1940. Of this group 4,621 were commissioned ensigns.

In 1941, the V-7 Program changed the educational requirements to four years of college instead of two. In mid-December 1941, when the outbreak of war brought about the necessity of our armed forces looking deeper for its supply of officer candidates, the V-5 and modernized V-7 programs for men still in college in junior and senior years were approved.

Colleges Cooperate

These programs were announced to college and university presidents at a meeting in Baltimore on January 3, 1942. It was during this meeting that colleges and universities were urged to stress technical fields, guide students along lines of best interest to the Nation, and to accelerate their programs as well as stress physical fitness for all students.

This was the first emergency use of the Nation's private educational institutions for providing officers. Following closely came the announcement of the V-1 program on February 21, 1942.

Finally, with the aim of providing an even more adequate flow of officers for the Navy in the future, the college training program, now known as the Navy V-12 program, was proposed before the Navy Advisory Council on Education in August of last year. This council drew up their recommended plan in preliminary form at that time, and met again in October when their finished recommendations were made.

this craft, after which time he was ordered back to the Orient, where he held the post of executive officer on the coastal gunboat USS Tulsa. He was in Peking, the old capital of China, when it was invaded by the Japanese in 1937, and barely escaped being trapped in the ensuing engagement.

He was transferred to the fleet tender USS Blackhawk in 1939. Immediately prior to his being ordered ashore to duty at Villanova, he acted as executive officer on the fleet ammunition carrier USS Nitro.

Faculty Dinner Held On July 6

New Members Of Faculty And Naval Staff Introduced At Formal Affair Here

In honor of new members of the teaching faculty of Villanova and staff officers of the Naval and Marine Reserve Corps, a formal dinner was held at the college on the evening of July 6.

Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova, acted as master of ceremonies and introduced the new additions to the faculty, Rev. William J. Sofrenko, O. S. A., Rev. Daniel J. Deehan, O. S. A., Joseph C. Greyson, and Jacob Yavitch, all of whom will teach engineering subjects.

Turning to the Naval Reserve unit officers, Fr. Stanford then presented Comdr. William T. Minnick, USN, (Ret.) who is the present Medical Officer here.

Comdr. Edward J. Milner, USN, Commanding Officer of the V-12 Program at Villanova, followed with a brief speech. He lauded the pleasant reception given to him and his staff officers and expressed appreciation of the fine manner in which the president, faculty members and college authorities cooperated in aiding the establishment of the Naval Unit at this college.

At the conclusion of his remarks, the Commander introduced the members of his executive staff to the gathering. They are: Lt. Harry W. A. August, USNR, second in command and executive officer; Capt. Robert L. Morgan, USMCR, veteran of the landing operations of Guadalcanal and marine executive officer; Ensign Samuel Maniaci, ex-pro-football player and star of Columbia University's 1934 Rose Bowl champion, and athletic director at this unit; Chief Specialists Robert Beck and Julian Horgen, assistant drill and athletic officers; Yeoman 1/C Ernest Azarva, ship clerk; Acting First Sergeant Daniel P. Lewis, USMCR; Corp. Charles A. McGrath; Sgt. Quartermaster George Maharg; Sgt. Benjamin W. Doerfler; William Ellis SK 3/C, mail clerk and supply officer; and Bruno Dahlhausen, Ph. M. 1/C; Charles Zimmerman, Ph. M., 2/C; William Hall, Ph. M., 3/C, assistants to the Medical Officer.

The principal speaker and guest of honor was Comdr. Scott G. Lamb, USN, head of the Fourth Naval District Training Program and Director of V-12 training. Comdr. Lamb revealed some little known facts about Father Stanford, whom, he pointed out, was on the original committee which drafted the preliminary plans and organized the V-12 Program throughout the United States. He commended Father Stanford on his humility in reserving to himself the active role he had taken in establishing the program.

In conclusion, he expressed his confidence in Villanova's success in promulgating the naval program.

New Registration Statistics Shown

Registration at Villanova for the new term which began on July 5, produced a situation unparalleled in the college's history. It marked not only the return and arrival of nearly 300 former and new students in civilian ranks, but also the transfer of about 600 service men from high schools and colleges stretching from Maine to California.

Predominant among the students were the service men now training under the V-12 Program. They are composed of 382 navy men and 194 Marines. Together with the civilians, who in turn are divided into 128 resident students and 158 day students, the total comes to 962. The students themselves are well divided in their various terms which range from the beginning of freshman year to the end of senior year. However, second term sophomores and first term Juniors are slightly in the lead numerically.

Engineers Predominate

In the courses selected, among the service men engineering subjects dominated the field, while for the civilians engineering and science were well balanced. In reference to this, the Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., Registrar of the college, pointed out that because of the war physics, mathematics and mechanical drawing were receiving emphasis never before felt. "The physics laboratory," he said, "is in use throughout the day."

Four New Members Added To Faculty

Rev. William J. Sofranko, O.S.A.

Priests, Laymen Join Department Of Engineering

Frs. Sofrenko, Deehan, And Messrs. Greyson, Yavitch to Teach Engineers

In a move necessitated by the enlargement of the student body, brought about by the influx of Navy and Marine Corps students, four new members have been added to the college faculty. All have been placed in the School of Engineering.

Two priests, Rev. William A. Sofrenko, O. S. A., and Rev. Daniel J. Deehan, O. S. A.; and two laymen, Jacob Yavitch and Joseph C. Greyson, make up the complement. Three of the incoming instructors, Fr. Sofrenko, Fr. Deehan, and Mr. Greyson, are alumni of Villanova. Mr. Yavitch obtained Bachelor's and Master's degrees in Mechanical Engineering from Cornell University.

JACOB YAVITCH, M.M.E.

Teach Physics and Drawing

After graduating from Villanova in 1937, Fr. Sofrenko attended the Augustinian College in Washington and was ordained there in 1940. He was then sent to the Augustinian Novitiate in New Hamburg, New York, where he acted as Assistant Master of Novices. Fr. Sofrenko is now teaching Physics.

Prior to his appointment to Villanova, Fr. Deehan attended the Augustinian College and the Columbia Institute of Technology in Washington. A native of Boston, Massachusetts, he will be an instructor of Engineering Drawing.

Wide Industrial Experience

Before his arrival on the Villanova campus, Jacob Yavitch had a wide and varied industrial experience. He was attached at various times to such companies as Westinghouse Electric, General Electric, American Locomotive, Baldwin Locomotive, as well as the Chemical Warfare Service. At present, Yavitch assumes most of the duties formerly performed by Kenneth J. Mozer. He will teach power plant courses and take charge of the Mechanical Engineering Laboratory.

Greyson, the fourth newcomer, majored in chemistry at Villanova, and after graduation taught for three years at Roman Catholic High School. Entering the industrial world, he became associated with the Allied Metal and Stamping Company, a naval aircraft factory, where he was employed as a process engineer and special process machinery and tool designer. Greyson, a member of the American Society of Tool Engineers and the Franklin Institute, enters the faculty as a teacher of applied mechanics and mechanisms.

Due to circumstances beyond our control, Professor Joseph G. Greyson's photograph was not available as the VILLANOVAN went to press. For this reason Greyson is not pictured above with the three other new faculty members.

REV. DANIEL J. DEEHAN, O.S.A.

Seminarian Dies As Rescue Fails

Undertow Carries Stricken Youth Away Before Eyes Ot Four Companions

Tragedy descended on a group of Augustinian Seminarians who were engaged in summer studies at St. Rita's Cottage, Sea Isle City, New Jersey, on the weekend of July 10, when one of their number met a sudden death. The youth was George A. Phelps, twenty year old son of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Phelps of Rockford, Illinois, who had just completed his first year in the Seminary.

A group of five seminarian students were swimming in an unprotected area of this New Jersey seashore resort, when the victim was struck by a high wave and swept out by a strong undertow. Three of the students rushed to his aid, while the lifeguards were summoned by the other man, but their efforts to rescue the lad proved futile.

Search Proved Futile

After a search which lasted two and one half hours, Phelps' body was washed ashore into shallow water five blocks away from the scene of the fatal accident. Resuscitation was attempted for more than two hours, but only in vain; he was pronounced dead by Dr. Alexander Stuart.

Funeral services were held at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in Rockford, Illinois and interment followed in Holy Calvary Cemetery, also located in Phelps' home town. His was the first death in the western province of the Augustinian Order.

Membership Drive Initiated By ASME

The student chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers held their initial meeting of the present term on Friday, July 16. The meeting was of an organizational nature.

At that time a drive was initiated to recruit new members for the society. A period of two weeks will be devoted to this work, and the chairman has invited all mechanical engineers, sophomore, junior, and senior, to avail themselves of this opportunity to increase their knowledge of their chosen field of professional work.

Students interested in joining the A. S. M. E. may make their application for membership to any one of the following officers: Arthur J. Roth, '4., chairman; Francis X. Quinn, AS, vice-president; or John N. Breen, '45, secretary.

President Renamed To Naval Council

The Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova, recently completed the renewal of his contract with the Navy Department as special consultant and member of the Naval Educational Council. This is the third consecutive year Fr. Stanford has held this position.

In his various capacities as advisor to the Navy Department, Fr. Stanford helped to organize the V-1, V-7, and V-12 programs, and was a member of the committee which drew up the list of colleges throughout the country which were to be used as service schools.

STAFF MEETING

An important meeting of the entire VILLANOVAN staff will be held today in the VILLANOVAN office, 119 Mendel Hall, at 4:45. It is especially necessary that all new members of the staff attend.

O'Brien Appointed AIEE Secretary

The campus chapter of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers held its first meeting of the current semester last Thursday. Plans were formulated to have sound movies on radio, electronics, dynamics, and various other subjects related to the field of Electrical Engineering at each meeting of the group.

At the same meeting, an election was conducted in which James L. O'Brien, junior electrical engineer, was chosen secretary of the group. A consistent honor student in his two and a half years here, O'Brien is also a member of Phi Kappa Pi and has written articles for the "Villanova Engineer."

College Offers New War Courses

Technical Subjects To Be Taught To High School Graduates In Night Classes

Short, tuition-free courses, designed to equip high school graduates for work in shipyards, arsenals, and defense factories, are being offered by Villanova College in cooperation with the U. S. Office of Education. Besides Villanova, branches are located at Northeast Catholic High School and West Catholic High School, according to J. Stanley Morehouse, Director of Engineering, Science, and War Management, and Dean of Engineering at Villanova.

A new semester of the three-year old program started Monday, July 19. Courses include engineering math, physics, and drawing; physical metallurgy; radio and electronics; and a special course for Navy yard workers.

Classes are held at night (three times a week), thus enabling young men and women to hold jobs at the same time. Although they carry no college credit, a certificate is awarded upon completion of each course. Instructors are specially - selected men from the fields of industry who have been given a short course in teaching methods. A nucleus from the college faculty supervises their teaching activities.

Father Fitzgerald, Chemistry Professor 21 Years, Succumbs

Rev. Robert Fitzgerald, O. S. A., Ph. D., professor of chemistry at Villanova for 21 years, died just before the opening of the summer semester here. He had been a patient at Misericordia Hospital for about a month before finally succumbing to a stroke.

Fr. Fitzgerald was born 74 years ago in County Tipperary, Ireland. Ordained to the priesthood in the Order of St. Augustine on June 9, 1892, he did graduate work in chemistry at the University of Wurtzburg, Bavaria, Germany and received his doctorate in 1906.

He continued his graduate work at the National University at Dublin, and joined the foreign mission staff of the order in Australia in 1913. Fr. Fitzgerald spent five years in this work, until coming to the United States in 1918.

Becoming affiliated with Villanova shortly after his arrival in America, he was transferred to the American Province of the Order of St. Augustine in 1923.

He retired from active work in 1939 because of ill health, and had lived at the Villanova Monastery. He possessed no immediate relatives, and was interred in the Monastery Cemetery here at the College.

Musicians Needed For College Band

High hopes for a Villanova band sank fifty percent last week when a tally of twenty-nine musicians who appeared at a special meeting revealed that all but nine played either the trumpet or the drums. If more men who play instruments sign up, a band might still be organized.

All students, regardless of status, who play a band instrument, and who are interested in joining should sign the sheet on the bulletin board in the main lobby of Mendel Hall. This includes those who attended the meeting with Captain Morgan. Men who have played in bands before are especially invited to turn in their names.

Fr. Boyle Named Liaison Officer

New Status Of Pre-Professional Students Clarified As To Draft

Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O. S. A., has been appointed to succeed Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., as Villanova's official representative in handling students' Selective Service matters.

In his first official act as military liaison officer, Fr. Boyle urged all students who are subject to the selective service laws to consult him promptly. He also requested that those who wish affidavits of deferment letters should bring their local board numbers and addresses. They should also bring their own order numbers.

"Careful attention to these details will guarantee better assistance from the College Selective Service Office," Fr. Boyle explained.

Fr. Boyle adds this responsibility to his present duties as moderator of Medigan Hall and teacher of religion in the Department of Education. In past years he has held various other positions on the campus. Prior to the appointment of Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., Fr. Boyle was college chaplain. Being well versed in all fields of music and its appreciation, he has at different times directed the Glee Club, the Seminary Choir, and the Villanova band.

New Status Clarified

In an attempt to clarify the standing of engineers, medical students, and dental students under present regulations, Fr. Boyle has released the following explanation of the new arrangements which have been made for classifying them.

The July 1, 1945 date which had formerly been set as the latest date for completion of training of students eligible for deferment has been eliminated and in its place has been substituted a continuing policy; a student is eligible for deferment if he can complete his training within twenty-four months after certification.

In the case of pre-professional students in medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, osteopathy, and heoology, the July 1, 1945, date has likewise been eliminated and the twenty-four months from time of certification substituted. No longer must the student possess "unqualified acceptance for admission" certified by a recognized medical, dental, veterinary, osteopathic, or theological college. It is now sufficient that the pre-professional student is accepted for admission and will be admitted to undertake professional studies upon completion of his pre-professional work.

"Date of Certification"

Fr. Boyle also made further explanation of the phrase "Within twenty-four months after the date of certification." This does not refer to the age of the individual student. The period begins with the date on which the institution certifies to the local board that the student can complete his training within twenty-four months.

When the student reaches his eighteenth birthday he registers with his local selective service board; shortly thereafter, the board mails him the regular registration questionaire. Upon receipt of this form, the student or the institution may request occupational deferment for the student and attach thereto the institution's certification that the student can complete his training within twenty-four months from that date.

Quotas Established

The amendment regarding pre-professoinal students in medicine and related fields, leaves to the discretion of the professional schools the period during pre-professional training when they will accept the student for admission. Although no statement is made regarding the time which may elapse between the completion of training and first attendance at the professional school, it may be assumed that this should be of reasonable length, certainly not to exceed the opening of the next class after such pre-professional training is completed.

Through requiring acceptance for admission the amendment thereby establishes the quotas for the number of pre-professional students which should be considered for deferment. This is very important in the light of the Army and Navy utilization of the professional facilities in these schools.

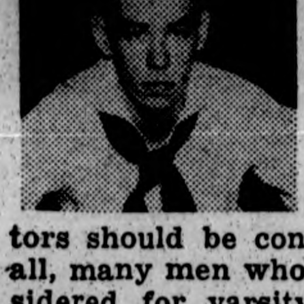
Inasmuch as Bill Walsh has completed his tenure of office as Sports Editor, the job has fallen on our shoulders. Following in the footsteps of such a fine sportswriter makes our position all the more difficult, but we shall try to follow the precedent which has been set.

—V—

Congratulations are in order to "Doc" Jacobs, baseball mentor, and the baseball team for making the showing that they did. Winning games from Penn, Lehigh, Muhlenberg, and Manhattan while losing a 3 to 2, twelve inning game to Penn State and taking a shellacking from Fordham, the Blue and White hung up a record of four wins against two losses. While this may not have been on par with the records of other years, many factors should be considered. First of all, many men who were being considered for varsity ball were lost when the Army Reserves were called to active duty. Joe Lord, Bill Smith, "Major" McDonnell and Bill Wood were all lost in this manner. This necessitated the use of inexperienced players most of whom had never played college ball before. These players are to be congratulated for the way in which they came through. particularly "Reds" Lafferty, freshman pitcher who finished the season with a record of two wins and no losses, as well as the keystone combination of Gene Adair and George Warner. Besides this, many men who ordinarily would have come out for the team were prevented from doing so by the extra pressure of studying under the accelerated program. For these reasons it is apparent that "Doc" and his boys deserve an extra slap on the back for coming through in what was probably the toughest baseball season in the history of Villanova.



—V—

Whether the college authorities or the Naval Athletic Department know it, the baseball team mentioned above has returned intact, except for the veteran hurler, Frank "Chick" Chaplar, and a reserve infielder, Frank McCarthy. The complete infield of Al Postus, Gene Adair, George Warner, and Billy Sullivan who played first, second, shortstop, and third, respectively, are all back, as well as the substitute third baseman, Dick Breen. In the outfield there is an even better situation, as practically all positions are two deep. Joe Koproski, last year's leading hitter, George Shahood, Joe Pezelski, Lou Lopez, and Johnny Dzitko, who was also second string backstop, have returned.

The pitching department could not be termed the weak sister of the aggregation as "Reds" Lafferty has reported here as a member of the Navy, along with Gene Wienert, who is about due for a starting assignment. In addition to these two, there is on the campus a Gordon Muller who pitched for the Lancaster "White Roses" before being bought by the Baltimore Orioles to whom he is now under contract. Naturally this would eliminate him from intercollegiate competition but if there is a Navy team, he would in all probability be permitted to play, as the pros did last year with the pre-flight elevens.

Looking over the catching staff, we find that the first string receiver, Joe Mahalek, is back in a navy suit, while Johnny Dzitko, whom we mentioned above, is with the Marines, thus giving us a well-fortified receiving department.

The Navy would, in all probability, be in favor of such a movement as Commander Milner is known to be quite a sports fan, and in favor of all competitive sports, while Ensign Maniaci, Ath-

Action In Softball Tilt

A familiar scene takes place in one of the many softball tilts which are played on the campus every week. In this action shot, Jim Carey, second baseman of the blues, (Fedigan Hall) slides into home plate in the fifth innnig of the contest which took place last Thursday evening on the diamond in back of Mendel Hall. Carey, incidentally, is one of the men who came to Villanova under the V-12 program, directly from the fleet.

Day Hops Start Softball Circuit

Games Played During Lunch Hour; Yanks Hold Down First Place

This week, in addition to the Intramural Softball League being run by Rev. E. B. McKee, O. S. A., the Day Hops under the management of Lou Merlini, Senior Engineer, have organized their own league. Games were played during the lunch hour and were of seven inning length. Four teams have entered in the competition. These include the Dodgers, who, incidentally, were the champions of the league run last semester by Bob Simpson, and the pre-season favorites. The three other aggregations are the Yanks, composed mostly of some second half freshmen, who at present are leading the league and lost none, plus the Cards and the Phils. Tied for second place are the Dodgers and these same Phils who look as if they won't live up to the record set by their namesake. Perched in last place is another team that is not following in the footsteps of its major league counterpart, that is, the Cards.

Phils Win Slugfest

The games themselves were thrillers as the Yanks beat the Phils, 12 to 4, and the Dodgers, 6 to 4. The first of these tilts was close until the fifth inning when the eventual winners caught on to slants of the opposing pitcher, and scored more than enough runs to win. The second game was tight until the Yanks blasted a three run barrage in the next to the last inning to put the contest in their win column.

The Cards lost a tough one to the Phils, 13 to 12, when a last inning rally fell short by the one run. Going into the fifth inning, the Red Birds were behind about six runs when they solved the slants of the Phils' moundsman and pulled within striking distance only to fall short.

The Standings

Marine Combine Leads 'Mural Softball League

Austin Hall Aggregation, Nicknamed "Commandos," Has Record Of Four Wins And No Losses; Student Team In Second Place

By JOE DALY

Last Tuesday saw sotfball once again come into the hearts of every Villanovan, as the summer intramural program was inaugurated under the guidance of Father McKee. The league is composed of six teams. The Marines have entered two clubs to represent the Austin barracks. The Navy has three entries, Alumni, Fedigan and Mendel, while the sixth club is made up of Resident students.

This program, although not compulsory, is looked upon with great favor not only by college officials but also those of the Navy and Marines. Intramural sports create a spirit of rivalry and the will to win, as well as good sportsmanship.

Commandos Leading

After the first week of play, we find that the league has been completely dominated by two clubs. The Commandos, who true to the color they represent, are undefeated in four contests. Keeping step with the league leaders, who are captained by Al Postus of football fame, are the Resident students. The Zips have won three out of three, and will bear watching.

In third place with an average of .333, we find the Jackets of Mendel, who have won one while dropping two. The remaining three clubs are tied for fourth place. Each winning one tilt while dropping three.

The Commandos, behind the brilliant hurling of Al Kusulas, who hurled for the University of Miami, won their opener easily seventeen to six over Fedigan. The loss may be laid to the wildness of Biggins In the first stanza, three consecutive walks by Biggins and a round-tripper by Joe Koproski accounted for three runs. The merry-go-round continued for the next six frames as the Marines collected fifteen hits to the Navy's eight.

The following night, Johnny Dzitko took the mound for the league leaders, and turned in a masterful job as he let down the Medics from Alumni with eight hits and one run. Brilliant infield play aided him in the pinches.

Ramsay was not quite so fortunate, however, as the Marines, led by Feeney and Kusulas at the plate netted eight tallies and fifteen safeties. Cardner led off in the first with a free pass to first. Burns then grounded out, short to first. Then Feeney drove out a double to left, scoring Cardner. After Koproski flew out to right, Kasulas and Lopez singled in succession to push across two more, and put their club in the lead which they never relinquished.

The Commandos, now known as the team to beat, had more trouble than they expected in facing the big bats of Mendel. Kusulas seemed to be ineffective with his wind-mill as the Navy drew first blood. Sonheimer, Femiano and Winteris greeted him with three safeties in order. Winters, driving in two tallies before him, put his club out in front three to nothing. The Marines did not take any heed to this as they scored five times in the second, to take the lead five to three. But again the Navy were not to be downed so easily as they counted four times in their half of the second to go back into the lead by two runs. However, the Marines had just a little too much in reserve as they finally eked out an eleven to nine victory in the fourth as they scored five more times. This without a doubt was the most bitterly fought contest of the week.

The Commandos easily downed their fellow service men, twenty to one, as every man on the squad succeeded in getting at least one safety while Dzitko allowed only three safeties and one run to become the leading pitcher of the loop.

Navy Physical Fitness Program Now In Full Swing

Strength Tests Given During Past Two Weeks; O'Rourke Tallies 67, Weldin 63; Boxing To Be Featured

With morning calisthenics and the regular Naval Physical fitness program under way, many a muscle that formerly sagged the bones has drawn itself up into a vigorous vibrant mass. It is a fairly safe bet that the physical condition of the blue and white boys will gradually increase in the future instead of getting soft, as many found out in the initial G. I. Strength Test.

This G. I. test was given under direct orders from the Navy department to all the V-12 units stationed at bases all over the country. The purpose was to determine the endurance, speed, and strength of the various individuals and groups so that a check can be made on their progress, and the averages compared to that expected by the Navy.

Low Averages

The average of the Villanova trainees was just a little below par. This was the first of an extensive Physical Fitness program which will include a basic program with compulsory attendance for all. The Navy expects every man to raise his average above a certain standard and will extend special privileges to those men who do. The privileges are contained in the ruling that any man who scores higher than that average may substitute a varsity or intramural sport for their Physical Fitness periods. However, they must still maintain their rating or higher by taking a test periodically.

A glance through the score sheets showed that the number one man on the muscle parade was Bart O'Rourke of the United States Navy toting an average of 67. Close behind him was John Weldin of the Marine Corps with a hard earned 63. A tie exists between John McManus also of the Navy, and Joe Gardner, a leatherneck, who both scored an even 60.

Tourney Planned

Boxing will probably start the 9th or 10th week. A tournament will be held which will be open to all students. The tournament itself will be similar to the one held last year but more extensive. Last year the tournament consisted of but one night of boxing with two wrestling bouts thrown in. Those who wanted to participate last year gave their names to Fr. McKee, O. S. A., moderator of Intramural Athletics, and were then excused

New Sports Head

David V. V. Ward, A. S., Sophomore engineer, has been appointed Sports Editor of the VILLANOVAN for the coming term to replace James T. Carbine Jr. according to an announcement by Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., Moderator of the publication. Carbine resigned in order to accept an appointment to West Point. Ward has been a member of the staff of the Sports Department for the past year, writing under Bill Walsh and Jake Mauch, retired Sports heads.

As a Freshman, he maintained an honor rating in the Engineering School. Besides this, he also found time to participate in the Intramural Basketball League and was chosen a member of the All Star team which played preliminary games to the Varsity tilts. This year Ward has come back to school as a member of the V-12 Unit.

Admitted to the Sports staff as writers in this issue are Hugh O'Rielly, Frank Solis, and Sam Ciriaco. The former two are Soph. engineers who matriculated at Villanova last September, while Ciriaco wrote for the college staff last year but switched to sports this term. At present, all three are also members of the V-12 Unit stationed here.

Tennis Tourney Added To Intra-Mural Program

Many Entrants Expected To Participate In Annual Court Tournament; Gavin Picked In Competition Which Begins On July 24th

Complementing an already successful softball league is the recently announced tennis tournament. In an effort to promote intramural activity and interest, Father McKee has now proposed a summer tennis tourney. Plans for the contest are in the preliminary stages but already a general outline of the procedure has been formed.

This tourney is unlike the softball league in the fact that there will be no general competition between the various halls; rather the inter-hall contests will constitute the grand finale of the tourney.

According to Father McKee, separate champions will be determined in each hall through a series of elimination contests. These winners will then compete in a final round-robin which will determine "King Tennis" of Villanova.

Balls Hard to Obtain

The already apparent rivalry between dorms that is rapidly developing and the increasing trend toward athletic activity, generated by the Navy physical training program, should insure a large turnout of entries. Added to these is the enticing fact that all the courts are to be reconditioned and put in perfect shape for the contests.

Because of acute difficulties in obtaining tennis balls, they will not be supplied for the tournament; but efforts are being made by Father McKee to secure a supply of balls which, if obtained, can be procured at the Pie Shoppe.

The influx of new students in the Navy Program and the graduation of former stars makes it hard to predict any favorite. Informed sources seem to think however that Austin Gavin, star of previous years, stands more than an even chance to come out on top. The tentative starting date of the tournament is July 24th, but this date may be changed due to circumstances. More detailed information will be issued at a later date and interested entries can consult the moderator, Father McKee, as to particulars.

Civilian Physical Training Led By Jacobs, Severance

When the summer session began, Rev. E. V. McQuade, O. S. A., had to relinquish his place as head of Civilian Physical Training. Rev. E. B. McKee, O. S. A., who heads the Intramural Sports, has taken over the position with "Doc" Jacobs and "Al" Severance as his aides. "Doc" Jacobs is taking over the morning classes and "Al", the afternoon classes.

The P. T. classes will be held twice a week for two periods or the equivalent of an hour workout. During this time the "Civies" will engage in setting up exercises with games or swimming following. Such games as Softball, Volley Ball, Push Ball, will be on the list. Along with the active games, the boys will learn the art of Boxing from the capable "Al" Severance.

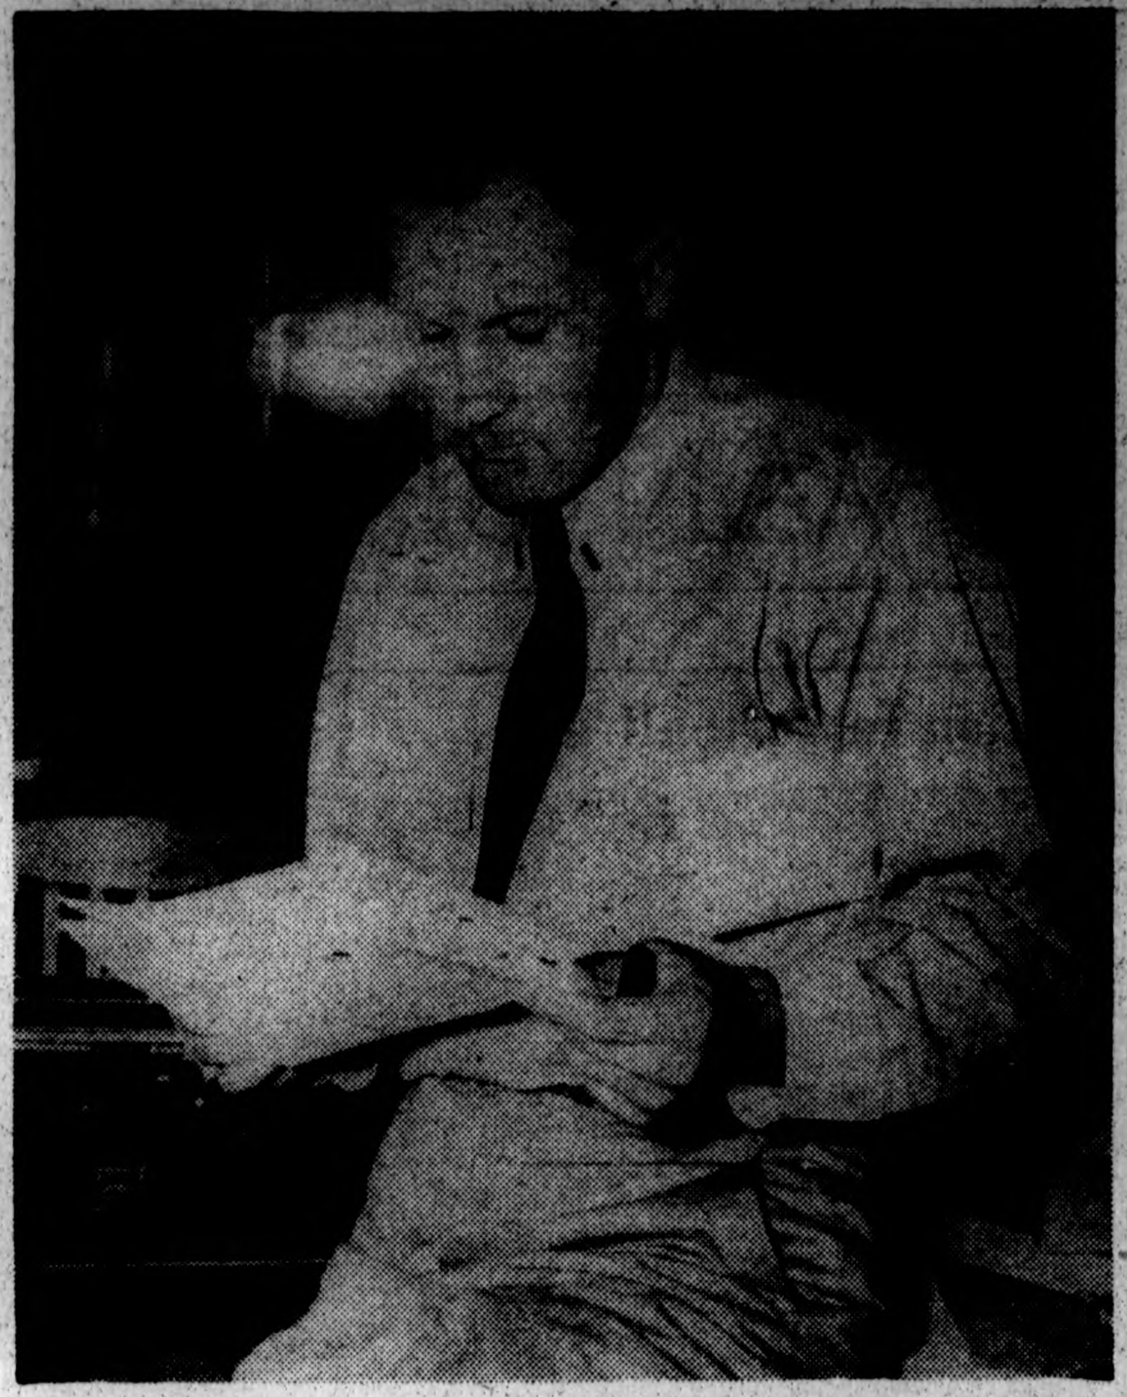
Course Enlarged

Aside from the above body building exercises the obstacle course will be encouraged. This course was recently re-built behind the stadium, with new and more difficult obstacles added. Some of the obstacles are a seven foot wall, 20 foot water swing, rope climb, and various other body twisting and balancing obstacles.

Father McKee is endeavoring to help the "Civies" take to the P. T. "as a duck takes to water." He wants them to enjoy themselves at the varied program and to build their bodies for the days ahead.

So when you hear the familiar 1-2-3-4, 1-2-3-4; you'll know that the civilians are non-the-less equal to the Navy and Marines who are separate from them in the P. T. course.

Naval Athletic Head



Head man of the Navy's physical fitness program here at Villanova, is Ensign Samuel W. Manaici, former football and track star at Columbia University. At present, he is the co-holder of the World's 60 meter record along with Jesse Owens, great Negro Olympic star.

Ensign Samuel Maniaci Naval Athletic Director

Former Columbia Football Star, Participant In 1934 Rose Bowl Conquest Of Stanford, Heads Physical Fitness Program

By BOB BOLGER

With the opening of the present college term and the inauguration of the V-12 Naval College Unit, Villanova had the great fortune in being able to have one Ensign Samuel W. Maniaci, assigned as director of the Unit's Physical Fitness program.

Ensign Maniaci, who was born June 6, 1912, fulfilled his undergraduate duties at Columbia University, where he graduated with an A. B. degree. He majored in Chemistry there and how received such a degree is even a mystery to the Ensign.

Being a little over six feet tall and weighing close to two hundred pounds, it is only natural that he is athletically inclined. During his collegiate stay at Columbia, Ensign Maniaci found time enough to be quite active in wearing the light Blue and White colors of the Lions. For, as a member of Lou Little's great 1934 football team and Rose Bowl champions, he was greatly instrumental in the Lions' 7-0 victory over Stanford University. The pet KF 79 play of Coach Little resulted in a teammate of Maniaci's, Al Barabas, making the only touchdown of the game.

Track Star

Football, however, took a sideline during the spring as he was an outstanding track man at Morningside Heights. On the cinders, Maniaci was Intercollegiate sprint champion as well as the Metropolitan champion of New York in that event. He is at present co-holder with Jesse Owens, great Negro Olympic track champion, of the world's record for the 60 meter event.

Outstanding Golfer

Graduating from Columbia, he played six months of professional football with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Even during both his football and track achievements, he found time enough to become quite handy on the links. He is considered one of the best amateur golfers in the New York City area and just last Saturday he went out to the Bala Country Club and shot a 69.

Former Chief Specialist

In August 1942, he enlisted in the Navy as a Chief Specialist. Reporting to Norfolk, he was placed in charge of the Physical Fitness program of the brig, which he held for two and one half months. Ensign Maniaci was then sent to the Destroyer Escort school, at Norfolk, where he was a lecturer on Night Lookout, Ship and Aircraft identification, and Anti-Submarine warfare.

Passes Exam

While at Norfolk, he took the examination to become a commissioned officer in the United States Naval Reserve. The then Chief Specialist was sent to Bainbridge, Maryland, where he was assigned Platoon commander for the Chief Specialists' school. While there, the news of successfully passing the examination and being commissioned Ensign was received. He then received orders to come to Villanova and arrived here on the campus, June 6, which by the way was his birthday.

Has Numerous Duties

The Ensign is not only the Athletic Director but is also the Supply Officer and Assistant Drill officer here at Villanova as well. The Physical Fitness program set up under Ensign Maniaci for the V-12 Unit is one that includes everything, in order to keep this Unit in shape for the bigger obstacles yet to come. Ensign Maniaci said: "In my opinion the Naval physical fitness program as now administered in Navy V-12 units throughout the country will profoundly affect the future methods employed in physical training throughout the country. The emphasis being placed mainly on the development of the large muscles of the body and to develop a better average muscular endurance."

Likes Football

When asked his opinion about football as a means of Physical Fitness, he said: "Football is certainly a great conditioner for all participants." Asked directly about Villanova football and the possibilities for the coming season, Ensign Maniaci added: "With what little contact with the men that I have had so far, I should say that Villanova could take care of itself on any gridiron against any opposition. I ought to know as I gave the fellows the strength test," he concluded very humorously. Ensign Maniaci has also had some coaching experience to back up his statements. He was track coach at Hasbrook Heights High School in New Jersey, as well as being Assistant football coach.

At present he is living in Wayne, is married, but has no children.

The VILLANOVAN wishes to extend to Ensign Maniaci a very pleasant and long stay at Villanova and great success with his duties here, hoping that they will be more than enjoyable.

heads-up ball all week, found little trouble with the service men except the league-leading Commandos. They easily downed the Jackets from the Mendel Barracks, ten to four, as Corkhill, aided by the solid hitting of Casellac, who belted out a homer on the first ball pitched to him, easily held Winters and his fellow teammates at bay throughout the contest. First-baseman Tom McQuade suffered a twisted muscle in the third frame, and will be lost to the club for at least two weeks.

Corkhill, even more the master for the Zips in the next twilight engagement, easily shut out the Blues of Fedigan, nine to nothing. Following this victory, Corkhill and his teammates made it number three as they downed Alumni ten to four in a very one-sided game.

The Mendel club won its first tilt over the Marines in a closely fought contest, sixteen to fifteen. Alumni found their victory the easy way as they romped over the Rangers, aided by errors, seventeen to seven.

The other two games which were played, saw the Rangers finally break into the win column as they downed Fedigan. The following night Fedigan won their only contest at the hands of the Medics of Alumni, five to three.

SMITH STATIONED

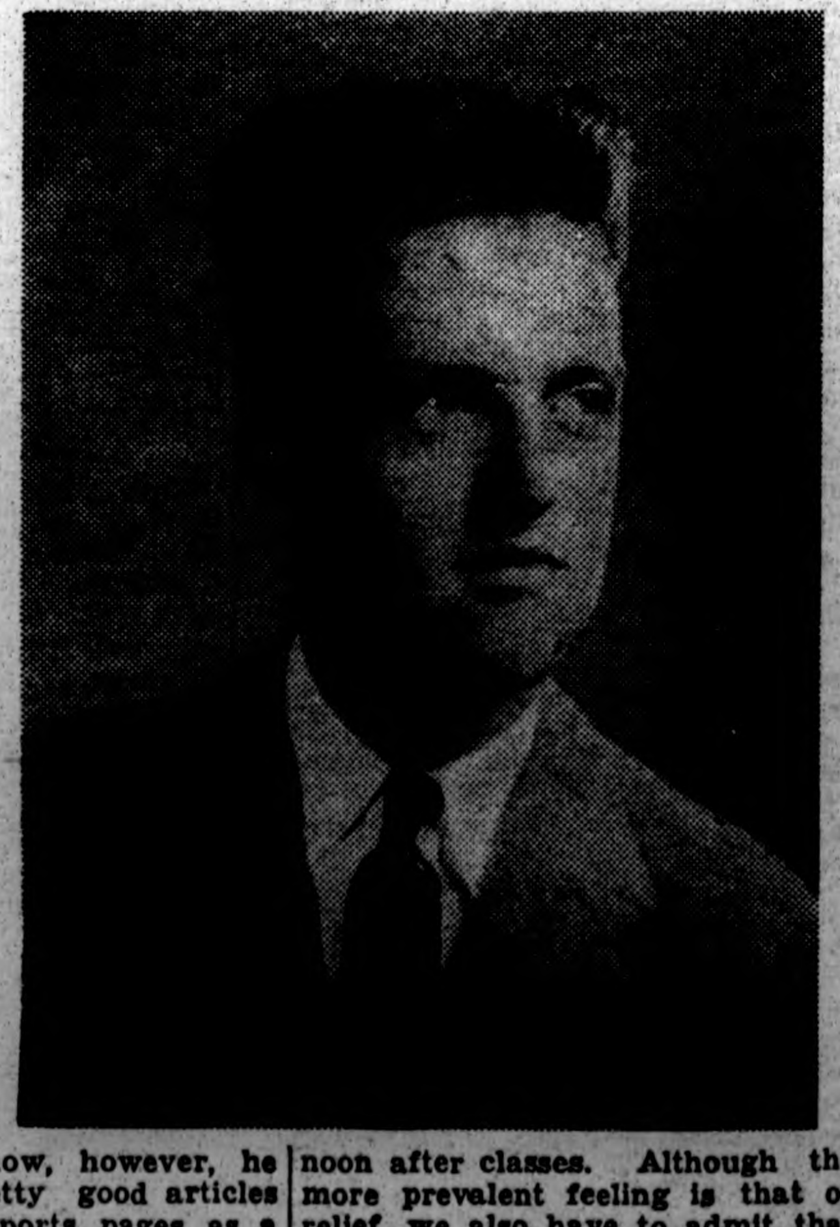
Maurice J. "Clipper" Smith, ex-head football coach at Villanova College, is stationed at Camp Elliot, California. "Clipper" was sworn into the Marine Corps Reserve on May 4, 1943, and left for training about a week later. Besides being gridiron coach, Smith was the director of the Villanova Physical Training Program, and with few exceptions devised the obstacle course which is now being used so much. With "Clipper" as coach, the Wildcats compiled a string of twenty-two victories during the 1937-38 seasons. His teams were known for their showmanship, as well as their deadly down field blocking, and very seldom did a Smith-coached eleven get near scoring territory, without crossing the goal line.

Former Sports Editor Is Relaxing, Deadlines Mean Nothing To Him Now

By BILL WALSH, A.S.,
Former Sports Editor

ALTHOUGH our term as Sports Editor officially came to a close last May, we're back again in this issue, in what should be our last publication. Our capacity is not that of the Sports Head this time, however, as that position is now being very capably handled by Dave Ward. Dave, incidentally, was thrust into a rather tough spot for this issue, as it is his first, and eight pages at that. Furthermore, he had no schooling whatever in the job last semester, as the post was originally to be taken over by Jim Carbine. Jim, the "Here and There" columnist in the later issues of last term, received an appointment to West Point at the end of May, however, and consequently had to relinquish the post which he was to take over this summer.

The next choice of Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., was Dave Ward, who, inasmuch as he is just commencing his sophomore year at Villanova, is the first writer in the history of the VILLANOVAN to assume the post of Sports Editor with only one year of training behind him. This, of course, makes his job just that much tougher. As most of you know, however, he wrote some pretty good articles for these same sports pages as a staq writer last year, and with this in mind, we have no doubt that his tenure of office will be a very successful one.



News Plentiful

One thing in his favor is the fact that there should be a wealth of sports news about the campus this summer. Although it wasn't an easy task filling these three pages in this issue, the subsequent publications will consist of only one page of sports, and he should have little trouble filling them. With this fact, the bane of a Sports Editor's existence, not affecting Dave, we feel that his term will be a highly successful one.

Final—30

In conclusion, then, we write our final article for the VILLANOVAN, knowing that we will no longer have to meet deadlines, correct stories, and rush down to the Main Line Times office every Monday afternoon after classes. Although the more prevalent feeling is that of relief, we also have to admit that we will miss many of the more pleasant things which went with being on the VILLANOVAN. From it we feel we have derived benefits which will be of great value to us in later life.

Ex-Villanovans Learning How To Fight

etic Officer, when queried about a team, replied that he thought it would be a "wonderful idea."

As far as games are concerned. Swarthmore has already announced that it intends to have a baseball team composed mainly of navy men. Since Swarthmore is very close to Villanova, the transportation problem would be negligible, and the players wouldn't have to be out overnight. Last year, a twilight game with Haverford was arranged, and provided an evening's excitement for all who witnessed it. Penn has also announced that it intends to have a summer baseball team composed of many naval trainees. At Penn, of course, besides the V-12 unit, there is also the pre-flight cadets, so that the Red and Blue should provide some lively competition under its new coach, Horace Henderson. Penn also has the jump on everybody else in this sector since the first practice was held last Thursday.

—V—

While on the subject of baseball, might be well to acquaint the w students with the record that illanova has established. Probably o other college in the country has o many men active in the major agues as does our school. Mickey ernon, Senators, Nick Etten, anks, Frank Skaff, A's, Len Mer- llo, Cubs, and Ben Geraghty of e Braves are all athletes who in e past have worn the blue and hite of the Wildcats. An odd coin- idence is that in reading these ames one immediately recognizes e fact that three of the five, amely, Etten, Vernon, and Skaff, re all first basemen. One of the xceptions, Merullo, plugs the gap etween second and third for the hicago team, while the other, Ger- ghty, plays the second sack for oston.

Etten has been around the big time for about five years. Coming up with the A's during the 1938 season, he was sent back to the minors for weak fielding. The White Elephants let him go, and two years later he was brought back to the majors by Doc Prothro of the Phils. He stayed with the Quaker city team through the '42 season under Hans Lobert. During last winter he was sold o the Yanks, with whom he now plays. At present he is one of the league leaders in the r b i column.

Vernon, as we remember, came with the Washington team and s been with them about four ears. He was put in the lineup to place Jimmy Bloodworth, who s moved to second and later sold Detroit. Merullo's in his second ear with Chicago, having been de- loped in the Coast league before ing brought up by the parent or- anization.

This is Skaff's first full season in e big time. So far this year he as seen limited action, as he has en understudy to Dick Siebert, st base starter for the American gue All-Stars last week.

Six Former Villanovans Train At Paris Island Base

John McFadden, Jacques Mauch, Joseph McEvoy, Leo Jagoe, Stephen Pritko, and Robert Kelty, all former Villanova athletes, are now in training with the Marines at Paris Island, S. C. Having been located at this base since June 3, the six former Blue and White huskies have completed more than half of their basic training at this site. All officer candidates, the sextet's next stop will be Quantico, Va.

One of the above mentioned was also a former Sports Editor of the VILLANOVAN, namely, "Jake" Mauch. Beginning his term in January, 1942, he retired from office just six months ago. Nor was this his only accomplishment at the Main Line institution. As president of the Student Council in his senior year, he presided over last year's one big social function—the Centennial Ball. He was also a member of the track and swimming teams during his stay at Villanova, as well as being Byron Saam's assistant in the broadcasting of all the Villanova football games played in Shibe Park.

Basketball Star

Bob Kelty, with Bill Wood the Co-Captain of last season's highly successful basketball team, also hopes to successfully become a Marine Officer. A native of nearby Trenton, N. J., Bob was honored by the Philadelphia Inquirer last winter, when he was chosen to a first string position on the All District quintet of Philadelphia. Holder of a first string berth on the Severance quint for three seasons, he tallied 190 points last season, to hold down third place in the team scoring, just thirty-two points short of the winning total. Essentially a team player, however, Kelty excelled as a rebound man, and he was undoubtedly the principal reason for the Wildcats' going through last season with the enviable record of seventeen wins and two losses.

Temple Game Captain

Another outstanding Villanova stalwart at the same base is the giant right end of the gridiron eleven, Steve Pritko. Playing the greater part of every contest since his sophomore year as a crashing wingman, Steve was rewarded for his continued shining performances on the gridiron when he was chosen to captain the Blue and White squad in the game with Temple last fall. Everyone knows the outcome of that contest. With Steve leading the way, the Owls, arch rivals of the Smith eleven, took it on the chin, 20-7.

Varsity Guard

A teammate of Pritko's on the varsity for the past three years was Leo Jagoe, Villanova's nearest thing to a watch charm guard. Weighing only 165 pounds, the aggressive Leo held down a starting berth in every contest during his junior year, and it was only the recurrence of an old leg injury, suffered in pre-season practice, that put him on the sidelines for most of the '42 season. The only mathematics major of the recent graduating class, Leo was a shining example of a football player who really had brains.

150 Pounder

Known as the "Irish Thrush" since his bass voice led all the Spanish club songs during his freshman and sophomore years, Joe McEvoy is another Villanova grad at the South Carolina training site. A Commerce and Finance student who majored in Accounting, Joe was a member of the 150 pound football aggregation during three of his four years on the campus, besides holding down the office of Sergeant-at-Arms in Delta Pi Epsilon, the C. & F. school fraternity.

MICHAELS SIGNED

Eddie Michaels, captain of the Wildcats' football team in 1935, has been signed to play for the Eagles-Steelers combine. Michaels played two years of varsity ball for the Wildcats before his teammates chose him squad leader. He will long be remembered by those who saw the Temple game in his last year, as he played the full 60 minutes without a helmet, and was a standout all afternoon. For his playing throughout that season he was given All-American mention. After graduation he worked with Autocar Company, Ardmore, and for the last six years he has been a member of the professional football team, the Wilmington "Clippers."

from the P. T. classes for a few weeks in order to get into fighting trim with more specialized training; sparring, lessons, rope jumping, etc.

However, boxing classes will be compulsory this year for all Naval and Marine trainees, and it is doubtful whether they will be excused in this manner. There may be a slight change in the manner of scoring bouts this year. In the previous tournament, Al Severance, Wildcat basketball mentor, was the third man in the ring, and the only judge as to who the best cuffer was. This year with the somewhat larger group of Physical Instructors, a scoring system similar to the professional and amateur systems now in use in Pennsylvania may be utilized. That is, three judges will rate each boxer's qualities, two at the ringside and one in the ring. This would be a fairer manner of judging the bouts, especially in close heats. This will come into frequent use because with the return of last year's top notchers, such as Ben Paradee, Dick Breen, Jim Cahill, Lou Lopez and John Dzitko, many a close and furious bout is expected.

A wrestling tournament modeled after the boxing tournament will also be held. With the larger group of combat minded men, it is probable that this year's tournament will surpass the meagre two contests of last year.

Wrestling and Judo plans, as far as the V-12 program is concerned, are not made up as a judo expert is not in enrollment as yet. However, the Navy is on the outlook for such a man since they are very much interested in this step.

An intramural swimming contest is also planned. Alumni Hall won last year's tournament, dethroning Austin with Fedigan as runner-up. Gene McFarland won the 50 yard backstroke and diving for Alumni and together with George Vehling scored two-thirds of the winner's points.

Three Villanova Graduates Receive Decorations For Bravery In Battle

Three more graduates of Villanova have demonstrated concretely the part which the college and all Villanovans, past and present, are playing in the present war effort.

Lieut. Gerald H. McAteer, former chief resident physician at Georgetown University Hospital, has been awarded the Silver Star medal for "conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity" during the Battle of Santa Cruz, while acting as assistant medical officer on the aircraft carrier U. S. S. Hornet. He had previously been awarded the Order of the Purple Heart.

Ignores Own Wounds

The presentation was made at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, where he is now stationed, by Admiral J. R. Beardall. The citation stated that, though weakened by a wound received earlier in the battle from a bomb explosion on the carrier deck, Lt. McAteer performed his duties of ministering to the wounded despite the fact that he had to be carried about by two enlisted men. It also related that he refused medical attention for himself.

A native of Bayonne, N. J., Lt. McAteer attended Georgetown University Medical School at Washington after graduating from Villanova.

Pilot's Heroism Rewarded

Another Villanova Alumnus, 1st Lieutenant William W. Neel of the Army Air Forces, was among a group of ten pilots of American attack planes awarded Distinguished Flying Crosses for their work in the Bismarck Sea last March.

A despatch from Allied Headquarters in Australia told how Neel and the other pilots attacked eight Japanese naval ships and the transport and cargo vessels that composed the convoy.

They flew through heavy anti-aircraft fire to drop their bombs at low level, and then made string attacks that provided a cover for other bombers coming in mast high.

Last month, flying with a group of A-20 attack bombers, Neel strafed ten grounded Jap planes in a surprise hedge-hopping raid on an enemy airfield in northern New Guinea.

Bombardier Fights Japs

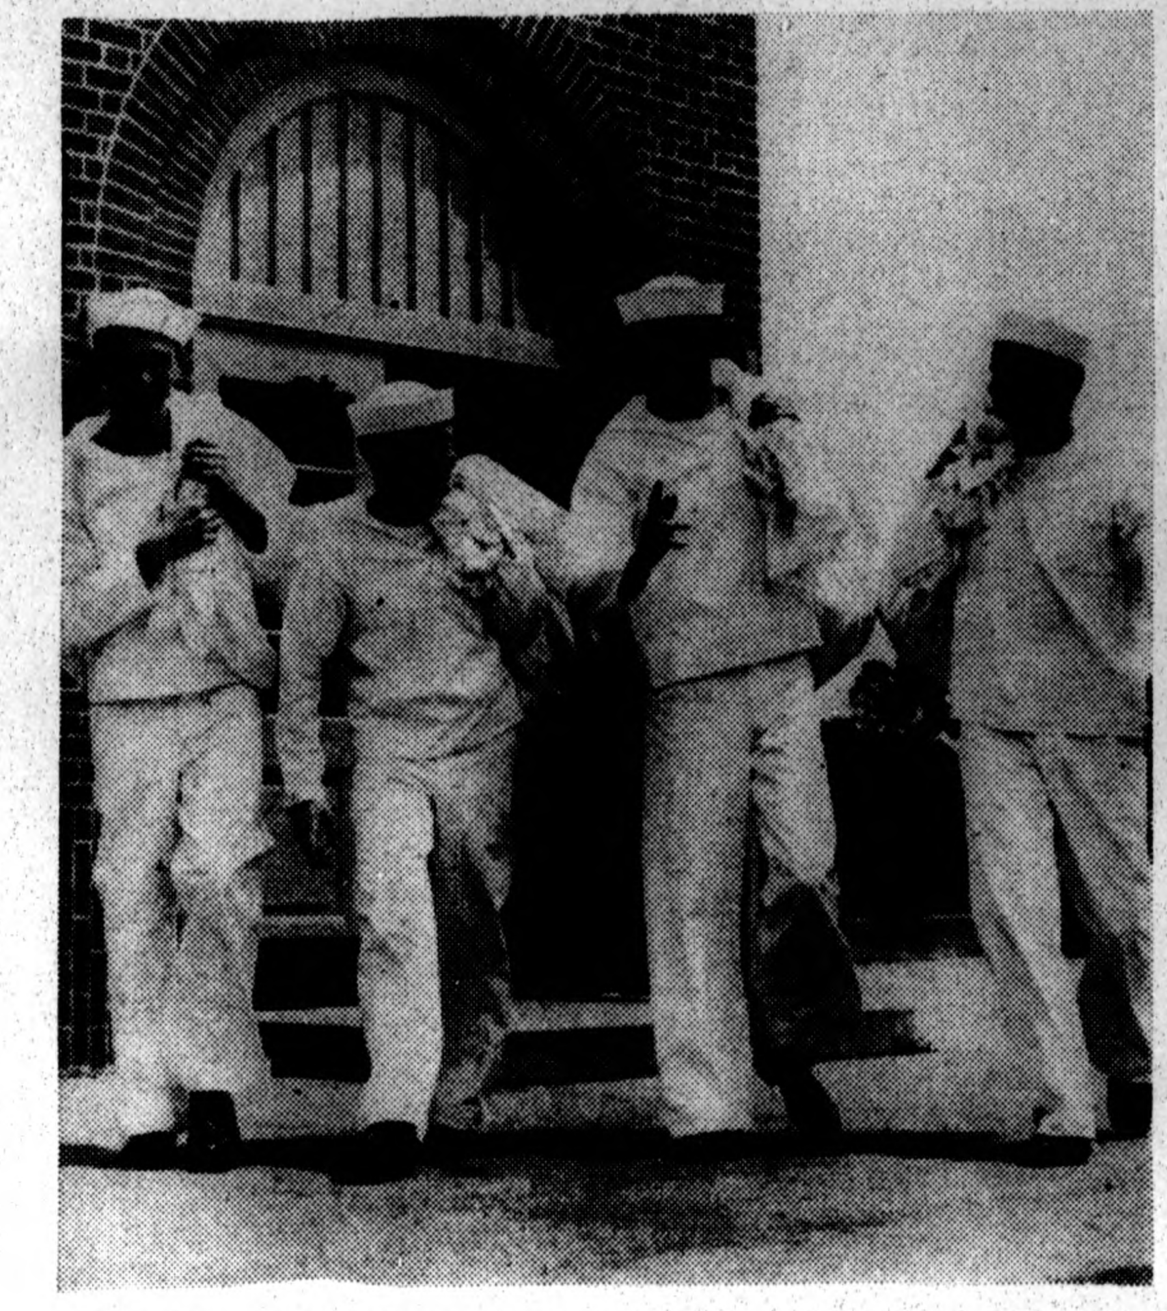
First Lieutenant William E. Dougherty, who also attended Villanova, has recently come back from the wars with hair-raising tales of a bag of three Jap Zeros, a large transport, and a small 1,000 ton cargo vessel.

Bombardier on a B-24 Liberator, Dougherty said, "We spotted the transport in Rabaul harbor about dawn on New Year's Day, and really let them have it. The cargo ship was knocked out by skip-bombing from not much more than seventy-five feet above the water, on April 5."

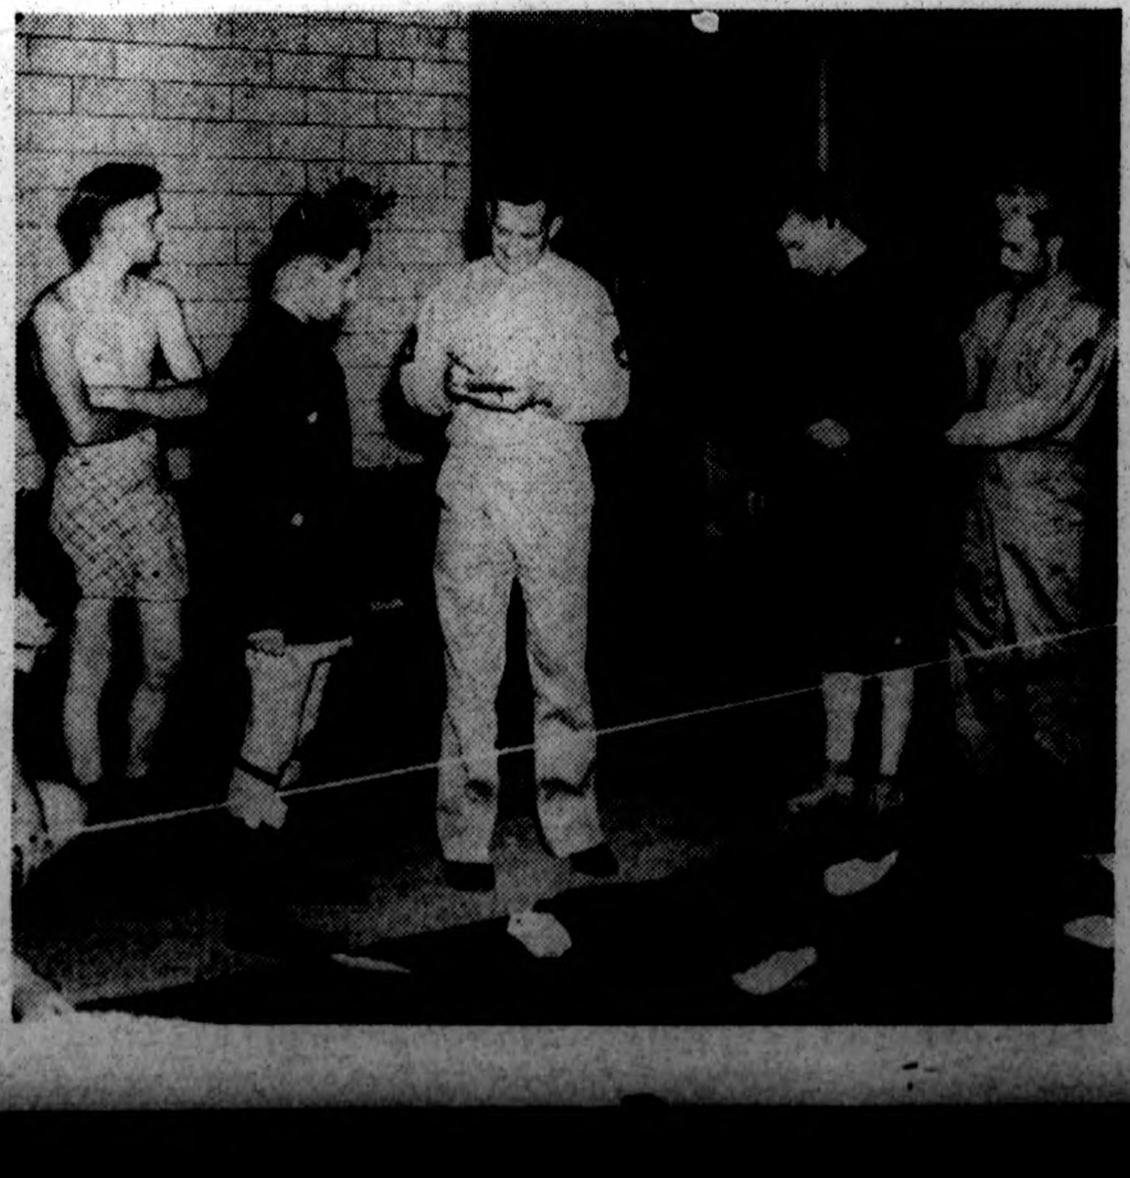
Although his plane got away safely from that particular foray, Dougherty has had an engine shot away from one bomber, and had been aboard several that were badly riddled by the ack-ack fire.

"Despite the damage suffered by some of our planes, the only injury to any member of our crew was the wounding of Staff Sergeant Parsons, a waist gunner," Dougherty said.

Lt. Dougherty has been awarded the Air Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Silver Star.



With the arrival of some 600 new service students at Villanova, the campus became the scene of considerable activity as conversion from a peacetime civilian college to a wartime service school was accomplished. First task of the busy commissioned and non-commissioned officers was to outfit the new arrivals. All was performed with the order and speed typical of military organizations. Above and below different phases of this work are pictured. Complete stories of the arrival are found on pages one and three.



Chaplain Lists Church Services

Fr. Grimes Announces Religious Schedule Convenient For All Service Men

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., Chaplain of Villanova, has announced that religious services have been scheduled to meet the needs of students at times which will not conflict with their daily programs.

Three masses are celebrated daily at 6:40, 7:00 (side altar), and 7:15. Communion will be given out at all these masses, and confessions will be heard during the morning masses scheduled, as well as on Wednesday evening at 6:45. Evening prayers will be said at 6:35 P. M. Monday through Thursday.

On Sunday, the student masses have been set for 8:30 and 10:30. In order to cooperate with the students, the cafeteria will remain open until those attending the 8:30 mass arrive for breakfast.

For the convenience of students of all faiths, a list of services being conducted in nearby churches of other religious denominations has been posted on the religious bulletin board in Mendel Hall.

In commenting on the attendance at chapel devotions, Fr. Grimes expressed his hearty satisfaction by stating, "The large attendance of service men at evening prayer in Villanova's chapel gives evidence of the inherent goodness, strong faith, and solid piety of our boys in the service today. It is sincerely hoped that this commendable practice will find a permanent place in their daily lives while on the Villanova campus."

Students desirous of serving Mass and Benediction are requested to contact the chaplain as soon as possible. Classes will be conducted for those who wish to learn how to serve Mass, at some time within the near future. The Chaplain's Office is located in Room 221, Mendel Hall, where Fr. Grimes may be found any weekday after 1:30 P. M.

In keeping with campus tradition, Solemn High Mass was celebrated on Sunday, July 5, by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova, as the formal opening of the second summer semester in the history of the college.

Former Villanovans Receive Promotions As Aviation Cadets

Three ex-students of Villanova have recently reported to the Army Air Forces Pre-Flight School for Pilots at Maxwell Field, Alabama, to begin the second phase of their training as pilots in the Air Corps' expanding program.

Naval Flyer

Naval Aviation Cadet John Jacob Arnold, holder of a B.S. degree from Villanova and a member of the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity, has been transferred to the Naval Air Training Center, Corpus Christi, Texas, after successful completion of the primary flight training course at the Naval Air Station at Glenview, Illinois.

After passing the advanced flight training course at Corpus Christi, Cadet Arnold will have won his "Wings of Gold" as a Naval Aviator, and will be commissioned as an Ensign in the Naval Reserve.

Arnold began his Aviation career at the Navy's Pre-flight School at the University of North Carolina, Chapel, Hill, N. C.

Marines Train

Undoubtedly the most avid Marine since his enlistment into that branch of the service, Joe is no doubt in his glory at the Parris Island base.

Intramural Star

A classmate of McEvoy's in the business school was John McFadden, former member of the varsity basketball squad. Chosen for the All-Intramural court team in his freshman year, "Red" made the varsity in his sophomore and junior years, but returned to the intramural ranks last season, when he was again elected to the All Star aggregation. Chairman of the Senior Dinner Dance last winter, John was also a member of the Commerce and Finance School fraternity.

Villanova's Summer School Shifts To Rosemont Campus For Duration

Villanova's Summer Session, which has been conducted on the campus without interruption for the past twenty-five years, has this year been transferred to the neighboring premises of Rosemont College, in order to satisfy present conditions.

Through the Summer School, founded in 1918, the Administration and Faculty of Villanova College feel that they have been able to render a distinct service to members of various Catholic teaching Sisterhoods and Brotherhoods, lay-teachers, librarians, nurses, and many others who desired advanced instruction in academic or professional work.

In addition to the courses that have been offered here at Villanova in the past, summer classes were held in Philadelphia since 1931, and also in convents of several communities of Sisters. The combined enrollment of the 1942 Summer Session was 1,046.

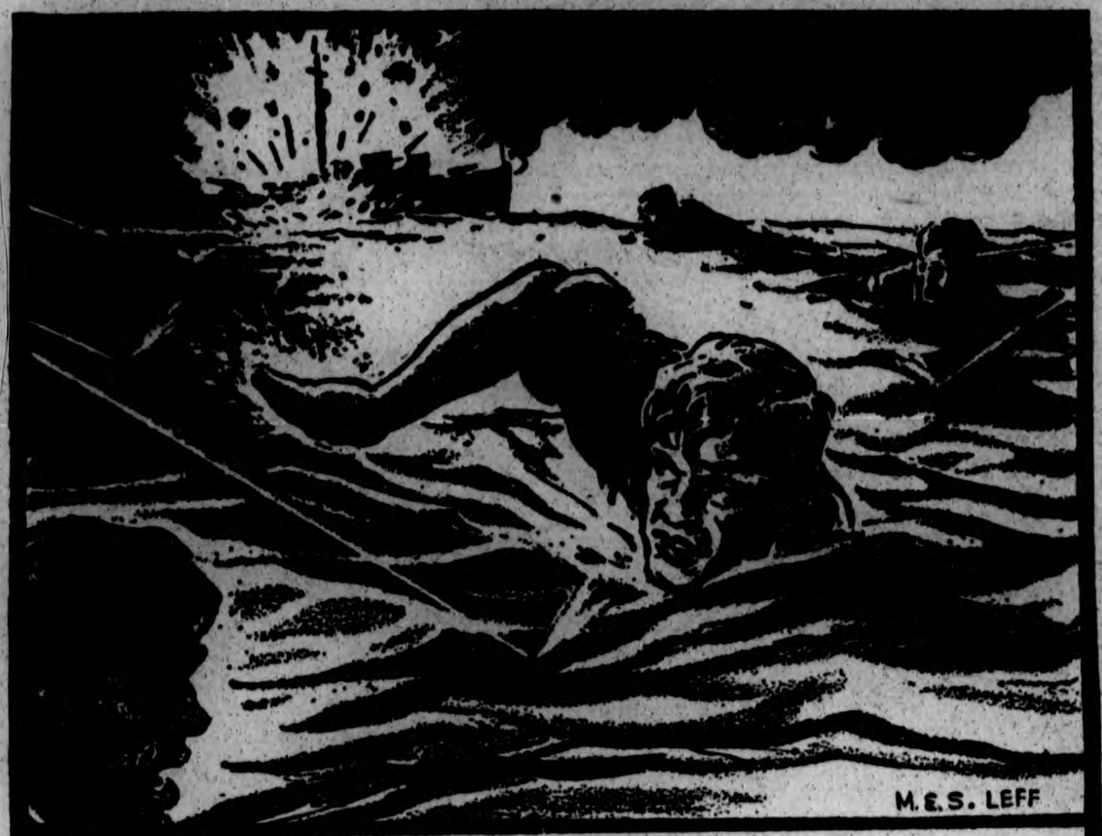
Rosemont Campus Used

The designation of Villanova as a Naval Training School, as well as the requirements of the accelerated program, have made it impossible to utilize the college's campus facilities for this years Summer Session.

In order that the Summer School might still function, a change of campus was thus necessitated. Through the endless cooperation of the Sisters of the Holy Child of Jesus the officials of Rosemont College, the complete facilities of Rosemont were made available for Villanova's Summer Session.

AMERICAN HEROES

BY LEFF



After being ordered to abandon the minesweeper Quail and making shore safely just before Corregidor's fall one year ago, Lt. Comdr. John Morrill received orders to scuttle his ship. His landing boat was already shot out of commission. With a volunteer party he swam back under heavy Jap fire to carry out orders. The Navy Cross and American Defense Service Medal have been awarded him. Your Second War Loan Bonds help build replacements for such heroes and swell our Navy's strength.

Trainees Receive New Regulations For Liberties

Servicemen's Liberty Passes Returned in Place of Identification Cards; New Scholastic Restrictions To Be Enforced

In an effort to make the week-end liberties more convenient and enjoyable for the Navy and Marine trainees, Lt. Harry W. August, USNR, Executive Officer, announced new liberty regulations which went into effect this past week-end.

The new regulations require that every trainee sign the liberty list each week, checking the meals he will eat at Villanova, and stating whether he intends leaving the campus or not. This is done in order that the cafeteria will have an accurate account of the number of meals which will have to be served.

Liberty Passes Returned

Liberty passes were returned and are to be kept by each individual until the identification cards are issued. This makes it unnecessary to log out at the Naval Office before leaving on liberty. Those going on leave, however, must still report to the office first.

The 12:30 deadline on Saturday night has been withdrawn and the trainee on liberty may come and go as he pleases anytime until 12 Sunday night without reporting in or out. However, when coming in for the last time he must log in at the Naval Office and not with the Watch Detail as has been the custom.

New Scholastic Restrictions

In connection with these new regulations came the announcement that there would be week-end restrictions for scholastic reasons as well as disciplinary reasons. The faculty will hand in a list of trainees who are deficient in their work to the Navy Office every Friday afternoon.

The teachers have been requested to designate each student's work as being satisfactory or unsatisfactory. Upon this basis of classification the navy will judge whether the trainee has merited a leave or not.

Those students who fail to meet scholastic or disciplinary requirements will be obliged to remain on campus the week-end of their deficiency, forfeiting all Liberty rights. During this period they must report to the Watch Officer or Duty non-commissioned officer every two hours from 4 to 10 P. M. on Saturday, and on Sunday from 10 A. M. to 10 P. M.

This past week-end the majority of those students denied leave were those whose scholastic reports were not satisfactory.

Each week the names of the students affected by these new regulations will be posted on the V-12 bulletin board in the "tree." The term "tree," used to designate a list of students, originated at the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., and since then has been officially used by the Navy when publishing student deficiencies.

ASME Membership Open To Freshmen

Moving into the second week of its summer membership drive, the Villanova branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers decided to extend the membership privilege to freshman M. E. students this semester. This decision was made at the group's second meeting held last Friday afternoon.

Disappointed by the great decrease in membership, chairman Arthur Roth wishes to make it known that service men as well as civilians are eligible for membership, and may join the society's next meeting this Friday in Room 202. At this meeting definite plans will be formulated for the summer program, dues will be collected, and the society will officially open its new season.

Belle Air Plans Naval Section; Delays Printing

Moderator Issues Call For Staff Members To Fill Depleted Ranks

Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., co-moderator of the Villanova College yearbook, the Belle Air, has announced that plans for the 1943 edition are practically complete.

An innovation to the yearbook is a special Navy section. This will embrace the many new aspects of college life brought about by the establishment of the Navy's V-12 program here. Pictures of assembled groups of Navy and Marine Corps men were taken in front of the monastery last Saturday.

Staff Members Wanted

Fr. Sullivan has issued a call for candidates for membership on the staff. Typists are especially needed. Many of the old members have been lost through the draft and by the calling to colors of the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps last February. As a result, John Fitzgibbons, sophomore commerce and finance student and Belle Air Business Manager has taken the burden of much of the work.

Men interested in joining the Belle Air may leave their names with Fr. Sullivan at any time. It is particularly desirous that men who have had previous experience with yearbooks apply, although such experience is not a requisite for membership on the staff.

Publication Delayed

Publication of the Belle Air had to be delayed this year in order that pictures of the Centennial Convocation held last May might be included. September 15 has been established as the deadline for the Belle Air's going to press.

Copies of the Belle Air will be sent to graduates and former students now in the armed services who have paid for the book.

Briefs of Campus News

The weekly music seminars held last year under the direction of Dr. Edward L. Haenisch will not be continued unless it is decided that a sufficient number of students are interested. A survey to determine if student interest will warrant the resumption of the program is being taken by Louis Merlini, senior chemical engineering student.

Anyone desiring the continuation of this weekly feature should submit his name, together with the day and time which would be most convenient to him, to Merlini. Information thus obtained will enable Dr. Haenisch to decide whether or not the meetings will be resumed.

A meeting of the campus chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers will be held today at 1:30 in Room 102 Mendel Hall. It is important that all concerned attend, for arrangements concerning the ordering of pins and keys are to be made.

The Villanova branch of the American Society of Electrical Engineers, under its new president, Arthur T. Menino, formulated at its last meeting a plan for bringing educational motion pictures in the field of Science to the College during the summer months.

Starting July 29, the shows will be held from time to time in Room 215 Mendel Hall until the end of the Summer Program. The films were obtained from the General Electric Company and deal with topics ranging from Frequency Modulated Transmission to the theory of color.

The Society, which meets every Thursday, is anxious to receive as many new members as possible while membership still remains open. All sophomore and junior electrical engineers are eligible to join Villanova's A.S.E.E. Chapter and can receive applications at the next meeting.

Yeoman Azarva And Sergeant Lewis Take Care Of Many Military Details

Under the competent direction of the officers introduced to our readers last week, a small company of enlisted men who form the ship's company of the V-12 unit on the campus are responsible for the smooth functioning of the numerous details of routine military life. Two of the busiest of these are Ernest Azarva, Yeoman First Class, and Daniel P. Lewis, Gy/Sgt., U.S.M.C.

Familiar figure at the Navy Office is Ernest Azarva, Yeoman First Class, Ship's Clerk in charge of Navy service records of officers, ship's company, and trainees; Ship's Secretary in charge of routing all unclassified communications and distributing all internal communications, notices, and memoranda.

Ernest Azarva was born on the 7th of June, 1918. Following graduation from Philadelphia's Central

ERNEST AZARRA, Y 1/c

High School in 1936, where he was a member of champion cross country teams of '33, '34, 35, ran 440 on '34 track team, and a member of class boxing team of '35 and '36 in Junior Lightweight class, he entered a Philadelphia business school in July, '36.

Accepted Accounting Position

Almost two years later he accepted a position as accounting clerk in the Budgetary Expenditure and Control Department of the Unemployment Compensation Division of the Department of Labor in Harrisburg. In 1939 he returned to Philadelphia to work with the Philadelphia Board of Assistance. Later he went to the Quartermaster Transportation Division of the Frankford Arsenal, and then to the Fourth Naval District, Navy Yard, Phila., Pa., as civilian recruiter for the Naval Reserve.

While employed in Philadelphia, Azarva attended Temple University at night. In 1939, he enrolled in the Teacher's College there. Forced to withdraw because of sickness, nevertheless in 1940 he began again and completed two years in the School of Commerce, majoring in Accounting, Economics, and Law.

Yeoman Azarva's service in the Navy has given him a variety of experience. Enlisting on September 19, 1941, he was first stationed at the Receiving Ship at the Navy Yard, where he received his "boot" training. The next step in his naval career found him at Staff Headquarters recording statistics, which was succeeded by a post on a catapult lighter, AVC, an experimental craft, which purpose was to catapult land based planes.

Assigned to Supply Office

He then returned to Headquarters and was later assigned to the District Supply Office, employed in property accounting and maintenance of materiel and equipment of the Bureau of Ships, Bureau of Aeronautics, and Bureau of Ordnance for District Activities and District craft. June 1, 1943 found Yeoman Azarva at Villanova, a member of the Ship's Company in charge of the Naval Training Program.

Yeoman Azarva has spoken enthusiastically concerning this new program: "This V-12 Program serves a great purpose in that by its operation this country is assured the maximum number of young men with officer-like qualities and potentialities for valuable service with the Navy, ashore and afloat. It is a wonderful opportunity for these boys; an opportunity, which, if not realized now, will be recognized in later years."

DANIEL P. LEWIS, Gy/Sgt.

Gunnery Sgt. Daniel P. Lewis, U.S.M.C., was born on Prince Edward Island on May 11, 1905. At the age of one year, he came to the United States and lived at Sommerville, Massachusetts, until his enlistment.

In the year 1927, he enlisted in the United States Naval Reserve and served his four year enlistment

Captain Womble, Officers Inspect Naval Unit Here

High - Ranking Officers of Navy, Marine Corps Give Thorough Inspection to All Activities

On last Thursday, Villanova played host to a group of high ranking officers of the Navy and Marine Corps. The occasion of the visit was an informal inspection of two typical colleges in the Navy and Marine College Training Program. Villanova and Franklin and Marshall were selected as typical schools. The inspection, though informal, was complete, as it included all the activities of the trainee, both physical and educational.

Captain Womble Heads Group

Captain J. P. Womble, U.S.N., who is Officer in charge of Quality Control Liaison Section, Training Division, of the Bureau of Naval Personnel in Washington, D. C., conducted the inspection. Accompanying him was Commander Scott G. Lamb, U. S. N., Director of Trainees in the Fourth Naval District Training Office. Commander Milner and his staff escorted the party on the premises.

Colonel Frank L. Kilmartin, U.S.M.C., Department of Personnel Plans on Policies Training and also head of the M-1 section of the Marine Corps was head of the Marine Group. Major John H. Davies, U.S.M.C.R., who is the former president of Colorado University, accompanied him. Escorting them were Captain Morgan and his staff. Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O. S. A., represented the college in the group.

Included in the inspection were trainees' rooms, the new sick bay a physical training class, the swimming pool, a lecture, a lab, and dinner in the mess hall.

Late in the afternoon, the party departed for Franklin and Marshall, having completed their tour of Villanova.

Austrian Movie Features Choir

A Viennese musical film entitled "Concert in Tyrol," featuring the Vienna Choir Boys accompanied by the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra, was shown in the amphitheatre, Room 215 Mendel Hall, last Friday evening. The motion picture was presented immediately following the dismissal of the naval and marine students from the drill field.

Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A., German professor, arranged the presentation with the hope that the German dialogue might familiarize students with the idioms and accents used by natives of the country.

A light musical romance, with winter sports furnishing a gay atmosphere, serves as a rich background for the well trained voices of the celebrated Vienna Choir Boys. The film was produced in Europe just before the Anschluss, and was later transported to this country where it has been shown since in many American cities.

A large number of students, as well as several nuns and Augustinian Seminarians attended the program.

Engineering Frat Opens Drive For New Members

A meeting of Phi Kappa Pi, Villanova's engineering fraternity, was held yesterday in Room 215 Mendel Hall. The purpose of the meeting was to spur a drive for new membership and to lay plans for the forthcoming smoker which is to be held in conjunction with the initiation of new members.

Special emphasis was made on the procurement of new members from the students transferred form other schools by the Navy and Marine Units.

Three Villanova Graduates Receive Decorations For Bravery In Battle

Three more graduates of Villanova have demonstrated concretely the part which the college and all Villanovans, past and present, are playing in the present war effort.

Lieut. Gerald H. McAteer, former chief resident physician at Georgetown University Hospital, has been awarded the Silver Star medal for "conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity" during the Battle of Santa Cruz, while acting as assistant medical officer on the aircraft carrier U. S. S. Hornet. He had previously been awarded the Order of the Purple Heart.

Ignores Own Wounds

The presentation was made at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, where he is now stationed, by Admiral J. R. Beardall. The citation stated that, though weakened by a wound received earlier in the battle from a bomb explosion on the carrier deck, Lt. McAteer performed his duties of ministering to the wounded despite the fact that he had to be carried about by two enlisted men. It also related that he refused medical attention for himself.

A native of Bayonne, N. J., Lt. McAteer attended Georgetown University Medical School at Washington after graduating from Villanova.

Pilot's Heroism Rewarded

Another Villanova Alumnus, 1st Lieutenant William W. Neel of the Army Air Forces, was among a group of ten pilots of American attack planes awarded Distinguished Flying Crosses for their work in the Bismarck Sea last March.

A despatch from Allied Headquarters in Australia told how Neel and the other pilots attacked eight Japanese naval ships and the transport and cargo vessels that composed the convoy.

They flew through heavy anti-aircraft fire to drop their bombs at low level, and then made string attacks that provided a cover for other bombers coming in mast high.

Last month, flying with a group of A-20 attack bombers, Neel strafed ten grounded Jap planes in a surprise hedge-hopping raid on an enemy airfield in northern New Guinea.

Bombardier Fights Japs

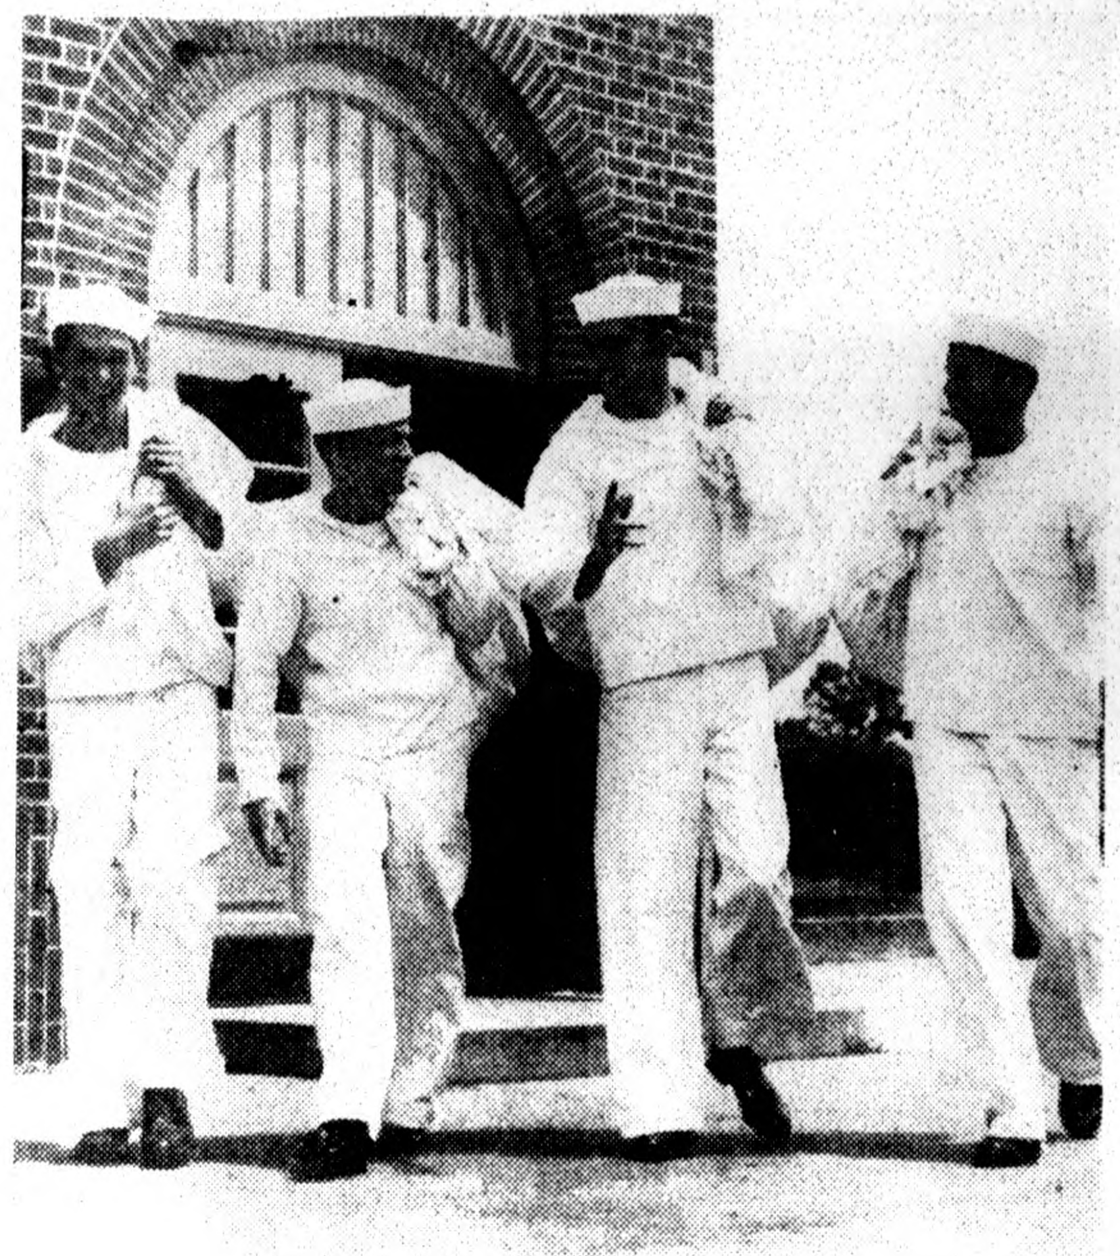
First Lieutenant William E. Dougherty, who also attended Villanova, has recently come back from the wars with hair-raising tales of a bag of three Jap Zeros, a large transport, and a small 1,000 ton cargo vessel.

Bombardier on a B-24 Liberator, Dougherty said, "We spotted the transport in Rabaul harbor about dawn on New Year's Day, and really let them have it. The cargo ship was knocked out by skip-bombing from not much more than seventy-five feet above the water, on April 5."

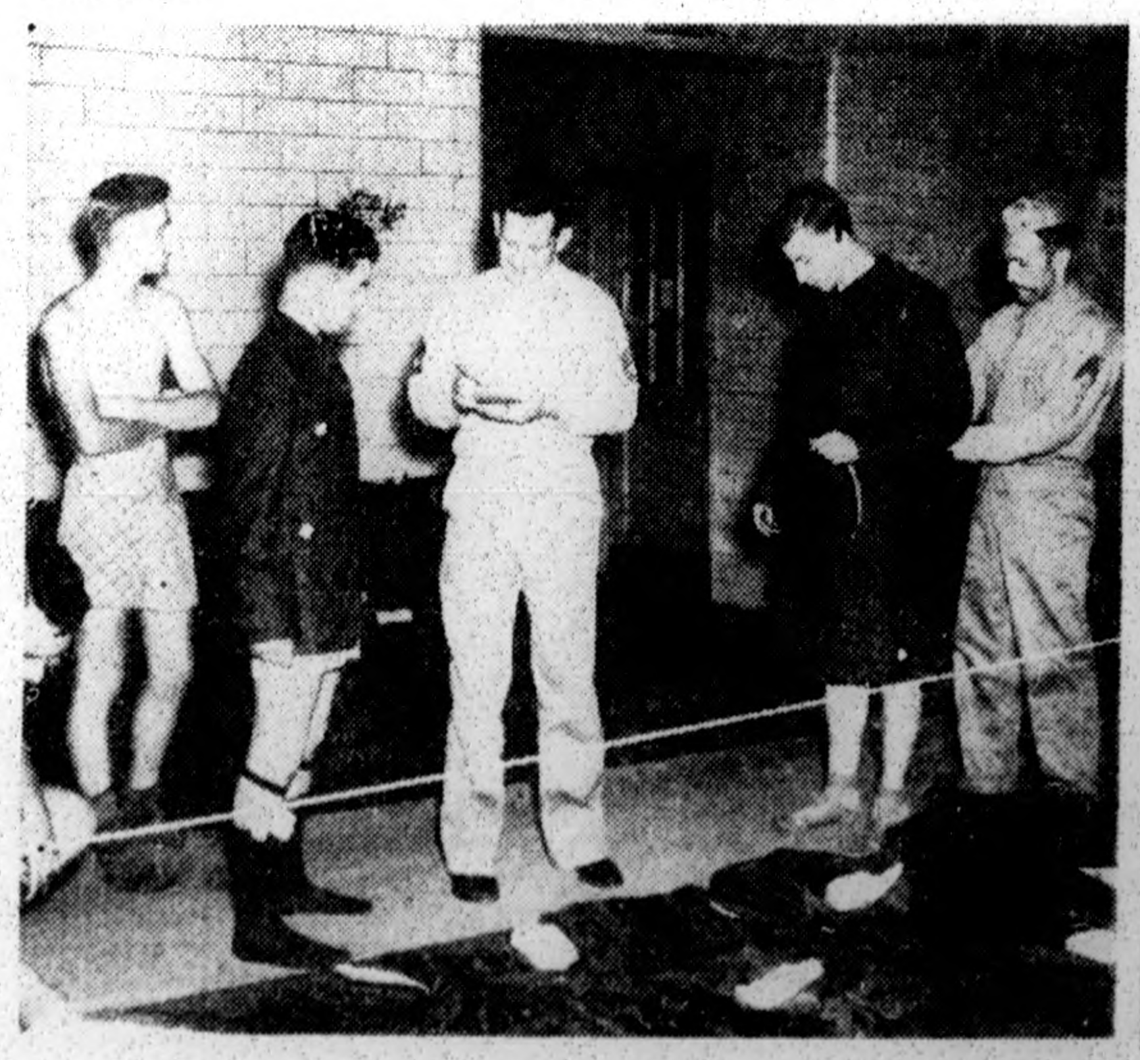
Although his plane got away safely from that particular foray, Dougherty has had an engine shot away from one bomber, and had been aboard several that were badly riddled by the ack-ack fire.

"Despite the damage suffered by some of our planes, the only injury to any member of our crew was the wounding of Staff Sergeant Parsons, a waist gunner," Dougherty said.

Lt. Dougherty has been awarded the Air Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Silver Star.



With the arrival of some 600 new service students at Villanova, the campus became the scene of considerable activity as conversion from a peacetime civilian college to a wartime service school was accomplished. First task of the busy commissioned and non-commissioned officers was to outfit the new arrivals. All was performed with the order and speed typical of military organizations. Above and below different phases of this work are pictured. Complete stories of the arrival are found on pages one and three.



Chaplain Lists Church Services

Fr. Grimes Announces Religious Schedule Convenient For All Service Men

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., Chaplain of Villanova, has announced that religious services have been scheduled to meet the needs of students at times which will not conflict with their daily programs.

Three masses are celebrated daily at 6:40, 7:00 (side altar), and 7:15. Communion will be given out at all these masses, and confessions will be heard during the morning masses scheduled, as well as on Wednesday evening at 6:45. Evening prayers will be said at 6:35 P. M. Monday through Thursday.

On Sunday, the student masses have been set for 8:30 and 10:30. In order to cooperate with the students, the cafeteria will remain open until those attending the 8:30 mass arrive for breakfast.

For the convenience of students of all faiths, a list of services being conducted in nearby churches of other religious denominations has been posted on the religious bulletin board in Mendel Hall.

In commenting on the attendance at chapel devotions, Fr. Grimes expressed his hearty satisfaction by stating, "The large attendance of service men at evening prayer in Villanova's chapel gives evidence of the inherent goodness, strong faith, and solid piety of our boys in the service today. It is sincerely hoped that this commendable practice will find a permanent place in their daily lives while on the Villanova campus."

Students desirous of serving Mass and Benediction are requested to contact the chaplain as soon as possible. Classes will be conducted for those who wish to learn how to serve Mass, at some time within the near future. The Chaplain's Office is located in Room 221, Mendel Hall, where Fr. Grimes may be found any weekday after 1:30 P. M.

In keeping with campus tradition, Solemn High Mass was celebrated on Sunday, July 5, by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova, as the formal opening of the second summer semester in the history of the college.

Former Villanovans Receive Promotions As Aviation Cadets

Three ex-students of Villanova have recently reported to the Army Air Forces Pre-Flight School for Pilots at Maxwell Field, Alabama, to begin the second phase of their training as pilots in the Air Corps' expanding program.

They are Aviation Cadets John Joseph Hackett, Vitty Peter Miciunas, and Henry Bain Smith, who are receiving nine weeks of intensive physical, military, and academic instruction, preparatory to beginning their actual flight training at one of the many flying schools located in the Army Air Forces Southeast Training Center.

Naval Flyer

Naval Aviation Cadet John Jacob Arnold, holder of a B.S. degree from Villanova and a member of the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity, has been transferred to the Naval Air Training Center, Corpus Christi, Texas, after successful completion of the primary flight training course at the Naval Air Station at Glenview, Illinois.

After passing the advanced flight training course at Corpus Christi, Cadet Arnold will have won his "Wings of Gold" as a Naval Aviator, and will be commissioned as an Ensign in the Naval Reserve.

Arnold began his Aviation career at the Navy's Pre-flight School at the University of North Carolina, Chapel, Hill, N. C.

A classmate of McEvoy's in the business school was John McFadden, former member of the varsity basketball squad. Chosen for the All-Intramural court team in his freshman year, "Red" made the varsity in his sophomore and junior years, but returned to the Intramural ranks last season, when he was again elected to the All Star aggregation. Chairman of the Senior Dinner Dance last winter, John was also a member of the Commerce and Finance School fraternity.

Villanova's Summer School Shifts To Rosemont Campus For Duration

Villanova's Summer Session, which has been conducted on the campus without interruption for the past twenty-five years, has this year been transferred to the neighboring premises of Rosemont College, in order to satisfy present conditions.

Through the Summer School, founded in 1918, the Administration and Faculty of Villanova College feel that they have been able to render a distinct service to members of various Catholic teaching Sisterhoods and Brotherhoods, lay-teachers, librarians, nurses, and many others who desired advanced instruction in academic or professional work.

In addition to the courses that have been offered here at Villanova in the past, summer classes were held in Philadelphia since 1931, and also in convents of several communities of Sisters. The combined enrollment of the 1942 Summer Session was 1,046.

Rosemont Campus Used

The designation of Villanova as a Naval Training School, as well as the requirements of the accelerated program, have made it impossible to utilize the college's campus facilities for this years Summer Session.

In order that the Summer School might still function, a change of campus was thus necessitated. Through the endless cooperation of the Sisters of the Holy Child of Jesus the officials of Rosemont College, the complete facilities of Rosemont were made available for Villanova's Summer Session.

After being ordered to abandon the minesweeper Quail and making shore safely just before Corregidor's fall one year ago, Lt. Comdr. John Morrill received orders to scuttle his ship. His landing boat was already shot out of commission. With a volunteer party he swam back under heavy Jap fire to carry out orders. The Navy Cross and American Defense Service Medal have been awarded him. Your Second War Loan Bonds help build replacements for such heroes and swell our Navy's strength.

Trainees Receive New Regulations For Liberties

Servicemen's Liberty Passes Returned in Place of Identification Cards; New Scholastic Restrictions To Be Enforced

In an effort to make the week-end liberties more convenient and enjoyable for the Navy and Marine trainees, Lt. Harry W. August, USNR, Executive Officer, announced new liberty regulations which went into effect this past week-end.

The new regulations require that every trainee sign the liberty list each week, checking the meals he will eat at Villanova, and stating whether he intends leaving the campus or not. This is done in order that the cafeteria will have an accurate account of the number of meals which will have to be served.

Liberty Passes Returned

Liberty passes were returned and are to be kept by each individual until the identification cards are issued. This makes it unnecessary to log out at the Naval Office before leaving on liberty. Those going on leave, however, must still report to the office first.

The 12:30 deadline on Saturday night has been withdrawn and the trainee on liberty may come and go as he pleases anytime until 12 Sunday night without reporting in or out. However, when coming in for the last time he must log in at the Naval Office and not with the Watch Detail as has been the custom.

New Scholastic Restrictions

In connection with these new regulations came the announcement that there would be week-end restrictions for scholastic reasons as well as disciplinary reasons. The faculty will hand in a list of trainees who are deficient in their work to the Navy Office every Friday afternoon.

The teachers have been requested to designate each student's work as being satisfactory or unsatisfactory. Upon this basis of classification the navy will judge whether the trainee has merited a leave or not.

Those students who fail to meet scholastic or disciplinary requirements will be obliged to remain on campus the week-end of their deficiency, forfeiting all Liberty rights. During this period they must report to the Watch Officer or Duty non-commissioned officer every two hours from 4 to 10 P. M. on Saturday, and on Sunday from 10 A. M. to 10 P. M.

Pray While You Can

MAN'S tendency to procrastinate has too often been excused by vague references to an alleged immanent psychological factor called "human nature." This expression is frequently used to describe a weakness of character that is supposed to be an inherent part of the makeup of all men. Reference to it is so common that men have begun to use it as an excuse for not having fulfilled obligations.

Perhaps it is this factor of "human nature" which causes the lax attitude toward the attendance of religious services which exists on the campus. More likely, however, present attendance records are the result of sheer indifference, or even laziness—qualities which, while they could probably be attributed to the factor expressed by the aforementioned cliche, would more suitably be classed as the result of an irresolution caused by the individual's own failure to exert himself toward suppressing these natural propensities.

For all the students, and especially those in the service, the necessity for maintaining absolute peace with God at all times cannot be disparaged.

The irony of the present situation, wherein the thousandfold religious opportunities here at Villanova go unused, becomes apparent when one considers the ultimate destiny of the majority of us: the battlefield. The pricelessness of the grace of God to the fighting man has been proven time and again. It is wholly essential if one is to suffer the mental and physical horrors of modern internecine warfare and still remain sane.

Yet, while many of us see action, and perhaps not return from it, have we stopped to consider the facilities for obtaining that spiritual comfort so necessary to self-confidence offered by a muddy foxhole or a shell-ridden gun turret?

We would do well to think over these conditions now while there is yet ample time, and decide whether we would rather take advantage of the available spiritual opportunities, or wait until these opportunities become very much in demand, but do not exist.

Our students are using Villanova's excellent physical training set-up to build bodies capable of withstanding hardships. We are being mentally enriched by learned educators in an institution which has been devoted to developing minds for over a century. Many of us are accumulating the knowledge necessary to guide our fellow men in a crisis. However, we have not been taking full advantage of a great opportunity to round out our lives by making ourselves spiritually mature.

The United Nations are supremely confident of achieving Victory. We are rapidly piling up the odds on our side. However, if we delve back into history, we find that we today are fighting to preserve the vestiges of Christian Culture which were saved from the Turks by John Sobieski, King of Poland. After his small body of men had defeated a pagan army which possessed overwhelming odds, and preserved Christendom for future generations, he exclaimed, "I came, I saw, GOD conquered." Only such faith can guide us to true victory, and preserve for us a lasting peace.

Meet the Boys

As Chief Editor Bob Was Fine; With The Girls He's Got A Line

WHEN the VILLANOVAN resumed publication last week, there was much thought given as to whether or not the familiar feature, "Meet the Boys," should be included, inasmuch as the arrival of so many students from other colleges would render quite difficult the task of deciding who should be introduced.

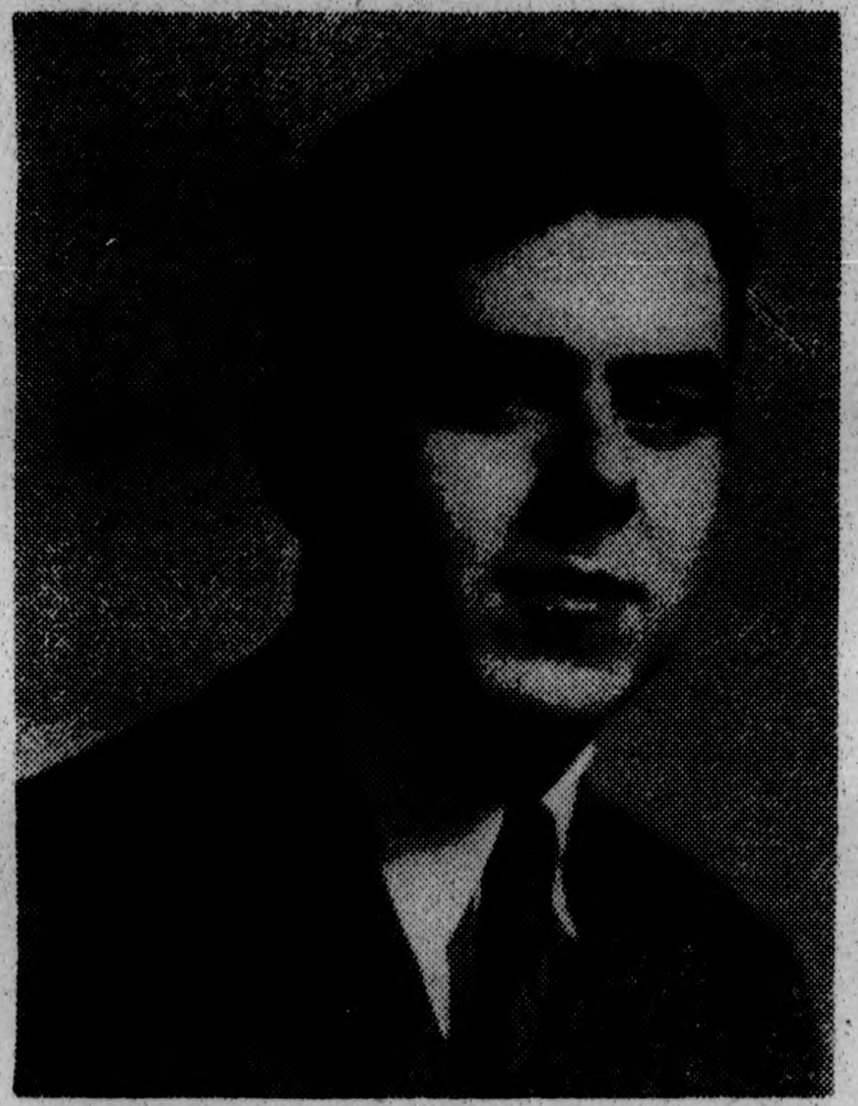
But one thing was always clear; the column would have to be printed one week at least, in order that some portion of the credit due Robert F. Young, former Editor-in-Chief, might be given him.

Bob was born on September 30, 1922, in a small town in northern New York called Rochester, which our hero crassly describes as "the flower city of the Empire State." (First time we ever knew corn was a flower.)

Attended Aquinas Institute

It was during the days of his high school education at Aquinas Institute that young Mr. Young began to display unusual talents which eventually enabled him to come forth from his local obscurity and successfully enter into the life of a big city.

Here he began a precedent which is by now practically a habit with him — that of appearing regularly on the honor roll. His journalistic tendencies also became apparent at this point as Bob became copyreader and columnist on the school newspaper as well as photography editor of the year book. His other high school interests included oratoricals, the camera club, and the German club.



Won Villanova Scholarship

With graduation came the honor of being chosen as the man in his class most worthy of a scholarship to Villanova, and the following year found Bob on the Blue and White campus enrolled in the School of Commerce and Finance as a marketing major.

Immediately he launched an active extra-curricular career, highlighted in his first year by an appointment as secretary of the freshman debating society. He also began his highly successful collegiate newspaper career that same year, when he became a humble cub reporter on the staff of the VILLANOVAN.

As a member of Belle Masque, now inactive college dramatic society, Bob made his first appearance on the stage in his first year here, and showed enough talent to be chosen for an important part in the one-act play produced by that organization.

Active in D. P. E.

In the following year, Bob was initiated into the business school fraternity, Delta Pi Epsilon, and has been an active member of the club ever since. He has served on numerous committees, and in particular has been a member of nearly every dance committee formed by the fraternity in the last two years.

Among the other campus organizations of which he has been a part we might mention Sophomore Debating, the Spanish Club, the Student Council, and the Orientation Committee.

But foremost among all Bob's activities at Villanova has always come the task of being a first class writer for the school paper. In his sophomore year, he was appointed College Editor, and at the beginning of his junior year, with the former editors graduated one semester earlier than usual by virtue of the accelerated program, Bob was faced with the task of assuming the leadership of the staff with

ALTHOUGH it does not seem possible, nearly a month has slipped by. . .For the most part it has been a busy one. The last half seniors are already beginning to talk about that day in October. . .The fellows in the military programs are awaiting with much desire and expectation that first pay day. . .And the underclassmen for the most part are just looking. The new "Frosh" are beginning to acquire the college approach to life . . .whatever that is. It just sounded good. . .

Clipper Shows 'Em How

Maurice J. "Clipper" Smith, Villanova's ex-head football coach, who is now a captain in the Marine Corps, demonstrates his gridiron ability to a contingent of Leathernecks who are now stationed at Camp Elliott, California. Smith coached out on the coast at Santa Clara for a few years before coming to the den of the Wildcats. However, his teams were feared all over the country, and during the 1937-38 seasons the Blue and White compiled a string of 22 straight victories.

Chief Specialist Beck Has Athletic Background

By BOB BOLGER

Assigned to the Naval V-12 Unit at Villanova as an assistant drill and athletic officer is a man that has a very highlighted background. He is Chief Specialist Robert Beck. Chief Beck was born back in 1914 in the state of Illinois. However, he was raised in Kingsport, Tennesse where he received his elementary as well as his secondary education.

After graduating from high school, Chief Beck matriculated at Tuculun College in Tennessee where he played football and basketball. While there, in his third year, he was captain of both the football and the basketball teams. This is an honor that few athletes attain.

With three years of undergraduate studies completed at Tuculun, he transferred to the University of Tennessee. He remained there for two years, and then was graduated with a degree of B.S. in Civil Engineering. Being ineligible to play any intercollegiate sport in his first year at Tennessee, Chief Beck devoted most of his time to his scholastic duties.

Missed Bowl March

In his second year at Tennessee, which was the last of his college, Chief Beck held down the center position on one of the great elevens turned out by Major "Bob" Neyland. The Tennessee-Alabama and Tennessee-Vanderbilt games saw Chief Beck play great football and this was more than enough for him to be selected on many All-American teams. Though he graduated in '36 from Tennessee, just a year short of the Bowl march of the Vols, in which they consecutively played in the Sugar, Rose, Orange and Cotton Bowls, Chief Beck was also a member of a powerful team. The Alabama game of that year which the Vols won by a 7-0 score, saw Johnny Butler, Beck's teammate, run ninety yard to score after the rest of the Tennessee team had given him beautiful blocking.

Directed Swimming Classes

After his graduation, Chief Beck became a teacher at the Kingsport High School in Tennessee where he taught mathematics and was coach of football for six years. He coached many men there who later won national recognition. Among them was Bob Peters who played plenty of football at Princeton several years back and Bobby Cifers who led two Tennessee teams into Bowl games as well as being selected on the majority of the All American teams.

Chief Beck entered the Naval service about fourteen months ago as a Chief Specialist. He received his training at Bainbridge, Maryland along with Ensign Maniaci and Chief Specialist Julian Horgen. On the completion of this training, he was sent to Jacksonville, Florida, where he was assigned to the Personnel Department there. Here he interviewed prospective Naval V-7 and V-5 candidates as well as being director of several swimming classes at this Naval station.

May Be Commissioned

Sometime the past June he received his second assignment, that of assistant athletic and drill officer of the Naval V-12 Unit at Villanova. Chief Beck was more than pleased with this assignment although he understood that Villanova has severe winters compared to the warm airs of the South. His stay is also made pleasant by the fact that two of his friends, as already mentioned before, Ensign Maniaci and Chief Specialist Horgen are assigned here.

Chief Beck is married, and is only temporarily situated now as he is looking for a more permanent abode.

At present, he is working on a swimming tourney in conjunction with Rev. E. B. McKee, Moderator of Intramural Athletics. Since

Yanks Have Four - Game Streak; Phils Close Behind in Second Place

This week saw the Day Hop Softball League really get under way as the Phils won two, and the Yanks won a single game. One of the Phils' wins was a five-four thriller over the last year's champs, the Dodgers, who seem to be having a tough time winning a ball game without the services of their star pitcher, Tony DeLuigi. The other win of the Phils was a tough one to lose for their opponents, the Cards, who have yet to win a game. This game was a pushover for the Quakers until the eighth inning at which point the game was 12-7. In this inning, the Cards pushed over four tallies and in the ninth with two out added another as Vince Skahan hit a well placed ball between center and right fields for a home run to tie the score at 12 all. Then in the last half of the inning Lou Merlini beat out a single and scored on successive hits by Joe O'Brien and Johnny Willson to win the ball game 13-12.

The other game was played between the league-leading Yanks and the "screwballs of the league," the Dodgers, with the Yankees winning out by a score of 6-4. The Yearlings seem to have what it takes to cop the pennant. Although it is a little too early to predict anything, they still are the team to beat.

UMPS NEEDED

The VILLANOVAN wants to make public the appreciation that is felt by the boys for the umpiring thats' being done by Pvt. Martin J. Greely, U.S.M.C.R.

However, many more competent umpires are needed for the other games. Those wishing to apply should give their names to Rev. E. B. McKee, Moderator of the Summer Intramural Softball League.

Commandos Maintaining Seven Game Win Streak

Marine Aggregation Leads League By Staving Off Last Ditch Rally Of The Residents; Rangers Most Improved Ball Club.

By JOE DALY

The Marine Commandos of Austin Hall still boast of an undefeated record, as they have rolled up seven consecutive victories. The Resident Students are still the outstanding contestants for the top berth as they have dropped only one contest, while the Medics of Alumni, after having a very successful week, winning three out of four now roost in third place. The Marine Rangers have raised themselves to the fourth position, while Fedigan is fifth and the Mendel aggregation has dropped from third place to the cellar.

Koerner Drives In Two

Monday saw the league leading Commandos tangle with the powerful Zips who were finally downed for the first time by the Marines. However, the final outcome was not decided quite so easily. The Rangers drew first blood as they scored twice. Burns drew a free pass, Feeney drove him to third and took second on the throw in. Then clean up man, Joe Koproski, drove in both men on a long single to right center. The Residents came right back in their half of the first to take over the lead as they scored three times on three safeties. Casella received a walk, as Kusulas found it hard to find the plate. Grange followed with the first of his three hits which coupled with a free pass gave him a perfect night at the platter. Zaul grounded out but Koerner drove two men in with a long double into center field. Big Tom McQuade, once again back in action, singled Bill to third and he scored a moment later on Cahill's one sacker. Schmitt and Reagan grounded out to end a very promising inning.

Rally Falls Short

In the fourth the Zips went even further in the lead as they counted twice more but Captain Morgan's charges finally solved Corkhill's slants in the fifth as they tallied six times to break up the ball game.

Tuesday night, the Commandos were not scheduled but Wednesday found them rolling over Alumni eight to four as Johnny Dzitko pitched five hit ball. Mendel gave the pacesetters a little more trouble than expected Thursday as they slugged it out right up to the last

Sportorial

By DAVE WARD, A. S.,
Sports Editor

WITH the Day Hop Softball League well under way now, in addition to the Intramural Circuit, it should be evident to the new students that Villanova is a college that stresses the importance of intramural athletics. The reason for this may not be so clear. The original purpose of intercollegiate athletics was to provide a means of physical exercise for the undergraduates. However, the advent of big time football definitely brought about a change in this policy. The introduction of highly paid coaches and the subsidizing of athletes made it necessary for the student to put in long hours of practice if the team were to give a good account of itself. The average college man, who was taking any kind of scientific or engineering course was thereby prevented from competing because of the length of his college day. This meant that some type of physical exercises had to be found to keep the boys in shape as well as to provide a means of recreation in what leisure time was available.

Villanova in going along with the trend of the country stressed big time football and the intramural program under which students might have some form of competitive sports without having to spend too much extra time practicing was the natural consequence.

At present, Fr. McKee, able moderator of Intramural Athletics, has plans for a tennis tournament which will probably be started within the week. Later on in the summer, a swimming meet, and boxing and wrestling bouts will be held. These last three mentioned will be run in close cooperation with the Naval Athletic Department. During the winter months, a basketball league will be promoted similar to the one that was held last year. Games were played every Tuesday and Thursday, afternoon and evening. The season was broken up into two halves and the winner of the first half, Austin Hall, met the winner of the second, Alumni Hall, for the championship. Alumni in a very close game won this crown as well as most of the I-M championships last year. The games in this circuit on the whole were quite interesting to watch and Alumni Hall particularly, had a great number of followers to cheer them on. In fact the spirit of this hall last year was something that probably won't be matched for quite some time.

These leagues and tourneys are, of course, the important parts of the program. However, anybody desiring to play a game of touch football, baseball, or basketball may get the necessary equipment from the moderator or one of his assistants if it is available. It is sincerely hoped by this column that every student, resident, or day hop, will avail himself of the opportunities thus offered. Not only does this program provide the advantages mentioned above but it also helps one to meet new acquaintances and by doing so, fosters a spirit of friendship on the campus.

Gains New Posts

FRANK PERNA
sophomore in the Commerce and Finance School, was appointed to the positions of Assistant Business Manager of the VILLANOVAN and the Student Representative on the Intramural Athletic Council by Rev. E. B. McKee, O.S.A., Moderator of both activities. Perna's duties will consist mostly in helping Fr. McKee run the athletic program. His appointment came as a result of the great deal of effort that he has put forth so far this year in the interests of his fellow students.

Servicemen Get First Injections

Vaccinations Given For Smallpox Last Tuesday; Blue Uniforms Issued

On Tuesday, July 20, all the V-12 trainees received the first set of innoculations to which all service men are subjected as soon as possible after induction.

They were vaccinated against small pox and given injections designed to prevent tetanus.

These innoculations will be continued at regular intervals until each man has become immune to all major diseases. They were given during free periods so as not to interfere with the college curriculum. Men from the fleet and former marine regulars, who had previously been immunized, were not required to take the injections over again.

As a check-up on the possibility of illness resulting from the vaccinations, the men were required to report to the medical officer the day after receiving their shots.

On the same day the sailors were issued their blue uniforms. Storekeeper Ellis began giving them out at 8:30 A. M. Shortly before noon the distribution was completed. The shortage of clothing necessitated issuing many wrong sizes which will be exchanged when more supplies arrive.

only half as much training as any editor previous to him.

Outstanding Journalist

Last years' papers stand as mute but indisputable evidence of the manner in which he rose to meet this difficult task. Working alone on his first college paper, with the former Editor and Managing Editor who might otherwise have lent him assistance, out of town on publicity work, Bob produced an issue of which he well might be proud.

This year, with an even more inexperienced man than he had been in charge of publication, although his own tenure of office has officially expired, Bob has lent as generously of his time and experience as ever he did when the paper was his own responsibility.

Newspaper work is, in fact, the guiding motive in Bob's life, and it is his intention eventually to become engaged in some sort of journalism as a career.

So far, all of our Rochester youth's working days have been spent with the Eastman Kodak Company, the foremost industry of that fair town. He has worked at various times in the shipping department and stock room.

Likes 'Em Young

When seeking information about the social side of his life, we met with much greater success by questioning the many other students from Rochester on the campus than by questioning Bob himself.

At length we did succeed in determining that the object of his affections is an eighteen year old local girl who graduated this year from high school. It seems his motto is "Never too young for Young!"

period in the Boston Navy Yard. Upon receiving his discharge from the U.S.N.R., he immediately enlisted in the United States Marine Corps as a regular.

Pvt. Lewis was then sent to San Francisco, California, where he received his "Boot Camp" training.

Eight weeks after completion of this training he was shipped to Shanghai, China, with the Fourth Marines. He stayed in Shanghai until 1936 and during that time he was in charge of the Officer's Club there. He was raised to a Private first-class rating during his first enlistment.

Toured China

Following his tour of duty in China, Pfc. Lewis returned to the States and remained at the Boston Navy Yard until his first enlistment period was completed. He reenlisted for another four years and served his enlistment period as a cook at the Naval Prison at Portsmouth, New Hampshire.

During the years 1938-'39 he was advanced to the rating of corporal and attached to maneuvers with the Navy Fleet in the Fleet Marine Force at Culebre, Puerto Rico. Following these maneuvers he became a "buck" sergeant and served two years in Cuba.

Assigned to Villanova

In 1942, Lewis had another stripe added to his chevrons and he was sent to the First Sergeant's School in Philadelphia, Pa. He graduated from the school as a Gunnery Sergeant and was assigned to the V-12 Program at Villanova College as acting First Sergeant.

During his service in the Marine Corps, Gy./Sgt. Lewis earned the Expeditionary Medal with one star, the Yangtze Medal for participation in the Chinese-Japanese conflict in 1931-'32, the American Area Campaign Medal, the American Defense Medal with one star, and a Good Conduct Medal with two bars. He has seen service on twenty different posts.

Educational Films To Be Used By Navy

Lt. Harry W. August, USNR, Executive Officer of the Naval unit stationed on the campus, has recently announced that the Navy intends to make frequent use of motion pictures as a means of orienting the men to the various phases of military life. Used to supplement or replace lectures on various subjects, the movies will be shown under the direction of Sergeant Joseph A. Bastedo, Marine drill instructor, who is a licensed projectionist.

Large Navy Class

The V-12 class in Naval Organization, composed of 240 members of the school's trainee unit, was of such proportions that order became difficult to maintain when the men attempted the usual scramble into the already crowded chow lines after the one late-afternoon session each week. As a result, the class has been broken down into two smaller groups, meeting in the Mendel ampitheatre on Monday and Wednesday afternoons, respectively.

Tennis Tourney To Be Conducted

Committeeman Named for Each Hall; Students State Times Able to Play

Following up the tentative information about the recently announced tennis tournament, is the latest data issued by Rev. E. B. McKee, O. S. A., Moderator of Intramural Athletics. According to Father McKee, the inter-hall contests determining the champ in each dorm, will necessarily be played within a certain time limit. This limit which will be announced at a later date, is necessary in order that ample time will be had to play the final round-robin to determine the champion.

Therefore, each man desirous of entering the tourney will be obliged to leave, together with his application, a list of the times when he will be free to play. In this manner, matches will be scheduled to conform with the contestant's playing opportunities.

Arrange Entry Immediately

As previously mentioned, these contests must be played within a certain alloted time. If at the end of this period, a hall champion has not been determined, then one must be selected to represent his dorm. This selection of a representative will be left up to the finalists in that hall.

To receive applications and answer questions about the tourney a tournament committeeman has been chosen for each hall. In Mendel Hall apply to Bob Casey, 251; Alumni-men have George Lord, 222; for Fedigan Hall, Alan Curtis, 223, is the representative; and the marines will give their entries to Dick Turner, 304 Austin Hall. Day-hops and civilian residents should make application with Frank Perna, 4 O'Dwyer Hall.

These Students will arrange the individual matches and post a time schedule for these elimination contests. So, according to the general outlook the best method of getting the tourney underway would be to place an immediate entry and in that manner have matches arranged.

Certainly this tournament should exceed those of former years for there is talent from colleges all over the country. In this respect there will be players of all degrees of brilliance. If this tourney should even match in spirit or in skill that of last year's contest an excellent tournament will be the result.

Chief Beck

Chief Beck is at the swimming pool most of the day, he has been looking over prospects for the meet. However, this tournament will not be held until a diving board is obtained. This is difficult to get at the present time because of priorities.

In about four months, he may be commissioned an Ensign and with this in view the VILLANOVAN hopes his stay at Villanova, as well as in the Navy, is one of complete satisfaction.

frame. The Jackets gave a two run handicap in first as they errored twice and Elsesser gave up three hits. The Marines scored again in the second to go into a three run lead. The Navy then came to life with one tally in the fourth, two in the fifth, three in the sixth and one more in the seventh to fall short by one run of tieing the game as Formiani was left on base.

After losing their first game of the year, the Residents could not get off on the right foot and were forced to settle for a tie with the Rangers, as the game was called in the ninth because of darkness. The Rangers are a greatly improved club, which is shown by their rise to fourth place. Probably the chief reason for this is the shake up in their line up and the addition of Joe McCarthy behind the plate, Doug Boyd on first, Carlissimo at short, and a great outfielder, Ken Breitsky, who can really wallop the ball with the timber.

The Residents finally reached their stride against Mendel as Corkhill shut out his opponents twelve to nothing. The following night he let up a little allowing Fedigan to score once while his team-mates collected thirteen runs. In the other games played throughout the week Alumni downed Mendel ten to five, and came out on top of the Rangers fifteen to eleven. Fedigan beat the hard luck Mendel club twelve to seven but lost to the Marines eleven to seven.

This week the first place Commandos again must face the Zips as well as the Rangers who because of their added strength will bear considerable watching. Alumni, on the other hand, is making a bid for the leadership and should give the top teams plenty of competition along with Mendel who has been getting all the bad breaks.

Attends Army School

Private William F. Upon completion of an intensive field program there, he will study army pey methods.

Students Urged To Buy Bonds

Lieutenants Explain Method of Pay Allotments for Purchase of Securities

Last Friday evening at a special assembly of both the Navy and Marines in the C. & F. auditorium, the advantages and means of purchasing War Savings Bonds from monthly pay were described. Lt. Lilly and Lt. (jg) Bottariny of the Philadelphia Navy Yard outlined the program to the gathered service men.

Lt. Lilly explained to the assembly that bonds might be bought either monthly or quarterly depending upon the size of deduction for which they signed. The serviceman has his choice of having his bonds sent home or held in safe keeping by the Navy Department in its' vaults in Cleveland, Ohio.

Lt. Lilly then dwelt on the value of purchasing bonds and the advantages of having them bought through salary deductions.

Urges Bond Savings

He remarked that sailors and marines always manage to spend all the money they have in their pockets regardless of their resolutions to save. The lieutenant expressed the opinion that since this unit was 100% cooperative in the insurance drive, he could see no reason why it should not be right on the top of the list in the Bond campaign. He concluded his remarks with a bit of philosophy: "that a country worth fighting for, was a country worth investing in."

All the V-12 units within the Fourth Naval District are now set up in the "War Bond Victory League" and the competition promises to be keen in determining which units will be the first in reaching 100% participation.

Each unit that has over 90% of the roll participating in the War Bond Allotment Program will qualify for the Commandant's Pennant. In addition, a special certificate will be given to the Commanding Officer of that unit which has the highest participation for each session.

President Talks On Radio Program

Fr. Stanford Acts as Guest Moderator on Program "You and Your Vote"

Last evening at 6:45 over Station KYW, the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College, presided as guest moderator for the weekly broadcast "You and Your Vote."

Participating in the discussion and asking Fr. Stanford questions were three recent graduates from the Philadelphia Catholic high school for girls. The topic of the discussion was "The Importance and Duties of the Magistrates' Courts of Philadelphia."

Election Responsibilities Discussed

This broadcast was the second in a series of programs being presented weekly on KYW in cooperation with leading educators and political scientists from metropolitan Philadelphia. During the broadcasts open discussions will be held on the duties and responsibilities of the holders of offices which are to be filled in the coming election.

Through these discussions, it is hoped that there will be a more intelligent vote and that the man most qualified for the position will be elected.

Weekly Programs Planned

This program is an outgrowth of the Junior Town Meeting of the Air series, which had been conducted in the various private, public and Catholic high schools in the Philadelphia area.

Next Monday evening the discussion will cover "The Duties and Responsibilities of the County Commissioners. The guest moderator for this topic will be Dr. Felix Morley, president of Haverford College.

College Announces New Warning System For Air Raid Drills

In keeping with the regional revision of air raid warning signals, the college authorities have recently promulgated a new system for ringing the school bells, in an effort to avoid the confusion which usually resulted under the old method.

In the future, the bells will ring only twice during air raid drills. The first warning will indicate the beginning of a drill and will consist of three half-minute rings occurring at ten-second intervals. This will mean that at night all lights are to be turned out, and that all students are to proceed to shelters during the daytime.

The second bell will indicate the end of a drill, and will be a steady one-minute ring. After this bell all activities may be resumed.

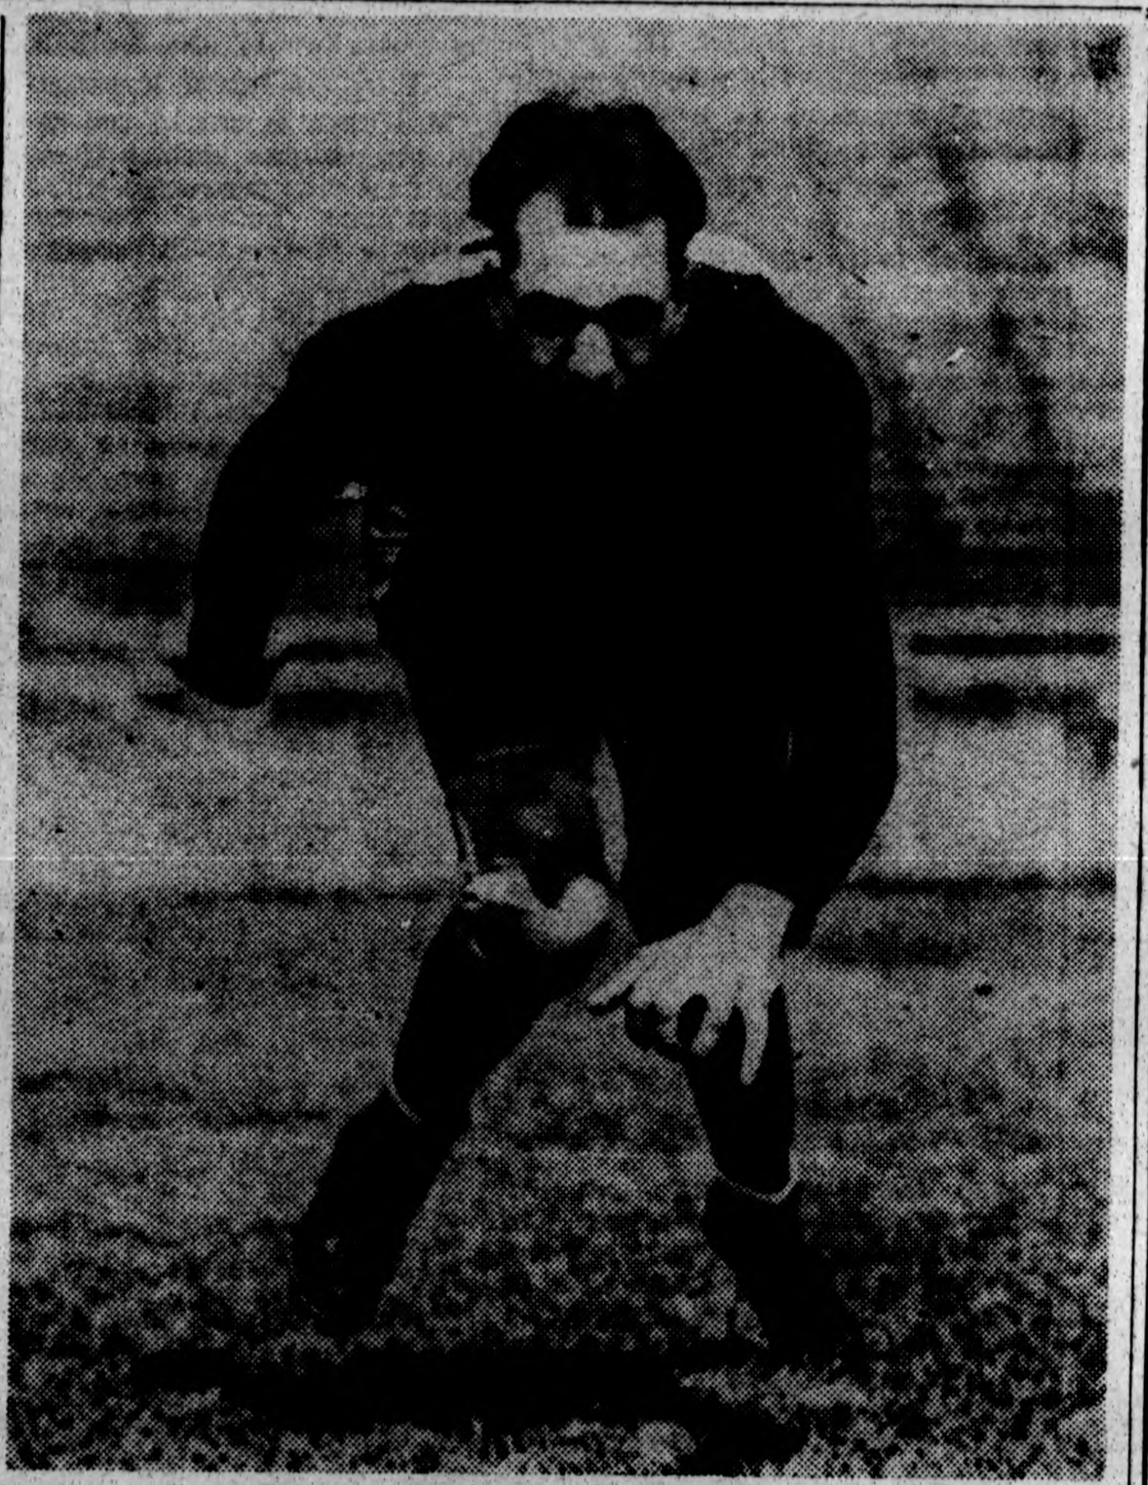
With regard to this matter, the following precautions are to be observed: (1) Do not go out of your room and leave the light on. A blackout may occur during your absence. (2) Note the instructions carefully, and be sure to follow them. Know exactly where you are to go when the alarm sounds. (3) All fooling, horse play, etc., are out of order, and will not be permitted.

First Meeting Held By Sanctuary Society

The Villanova Sanctuary Society held its first meeting of the summer semester last Thursday evening following Benediction in the chapel.

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., college chaplain and moderator of the society, announced to the group that instructions in the method of serving Mass and Benediction will be given every evening following night prayers.

All students, regardless of present status, who desire to take advantage of this training are welcome to attend these sessions which will be held in the rear of the main altar.



JORDAN OLIVAR

Jordan Olivar Appointed By Board of Athletics

New Coach Graduated First In Class of '38; Starred On Undefeated Team Which Played Bowl Game At Havana

By DAVE WARD, A.S.
Sports Editor

According to an announcement made yesterday by Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., Moderator of Athletics, the Board of Athletic Control of Villanova College has appointed Jordan Olivar as acting coach of varsity football and as a member of the physical training staff.

Although the inauguration of the Navy V-12 program here had made it questionable as to whether Villanova would field a team during the coming season, Fr. McGuire's announcement came as an assurance that the college would continue to participate in intercollegiate football.

Jordan Olivar is one of Villanova's football immortals.

He played the tackle position on the great Wildcat eleven which ranked fourth in the nation in 1937. Olivar called the plays from the line, and along with All-American Johnnie Mellus formed the greatest tackle combination the Blue and White ever had.

He starred in the Havana, Cuba, Bowl game on New Year's day in 1938, which, besides being the first bowl game in which Villanova participated, was the start of the intense Auburn-Villanova rivalry.

Brilliant Player

He was one of the headiest, as well as one of the best, athletes ever to wear the Blue and White. He went out for yearling football under Harry Stuhldreher, who is at present coaching at Wisconsin University. As a sophomore, Olivar became a member of the varsity squad. The following year, under the new coaching regime of Maurice J. ("Clipper") Smith, he began hitting the headlines. However, it was not until his senior year, with two season of intercollegiate ball behind him, that he really "caught on."

Calling the plays from his slot in the line, he led the team to an undefeated season, as well as to the position of fourth in the national intercollegiate football circle.

Becomes Teacher

Even before graduation he began teaching history at Radnor High School, where he later assisted the football and basketball coaches and became a permanent member of the faculty.

He also found time to act as player-coach of Magnolia A. C. This semi-pro outfit was a member of the Eastern Pennsylvania Football League, and during Olivar's first

Congratulations

Commander William T. Minnick, USN (Ret.), Medical Officer of the V-12 unit, will celebrate his sixty-fourth birthday on Saturday, August 7.

Sixty-four is the normal age for navy men to be permanently retired. However, the Commander is not certain as to his future status. "It's all up to them," he says.

His birthday will mark over 35 years service in the Navy. The VILLANOVAN, in recognition of his outstanding service, extends its sincerest congratulations.

Victory Gardens Gain Prominence

The increasing popularity of victory gardens, which has been currently sweeping the country, has even manifested itself on the Villanova campus this year.

Present conditions of food rationing have resulted in the transformation of much college territory previously dedicated to purely scenic purposes, into a number of both practical and profitable victory gardens.

These gardens are not only supplying the tables of the monastery with an abundant supply of fresh vegetables, but in addition have been a great asset to the homes of several Villanova professors which have felt the effect of wartime food rations.

Profs Attempt Gardening

Several members of the faculty, led by a veteran horticulturist, J. Stanley Morehouse, the Dean of the Engineering School who has spent a great part of his life on a Connecticut farm, have united their talents in cultivating a large plot of ground on the other side of Lancaster Pike.

This land has been divided into six portions; each separate area being placed under the care of one of their group. In charge of the various gardens, in addition to Mr. Morehouse, are Dr. Gilbert Macbeth, Leo H. Schaefer, Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, Emil Amelotti, and William M. Gorman.

The total cost of the six gardens has been estimated to be approximately sixty dollars. This amount, however, is actually very small, in comparison with the value of the products now produced.

Experiment Proves Profitable

Our amateur farmers, besides reaping the harvest of their crops, have benefited greatly by the outdoor exercise.

Besides the ones already mentioned, several gardens exist in back of St. Mary's Hall. Two of these flourishing plots are tended by Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A., and Rev. Joseph W. Parquette, O. S. A. Others are being cared for by several of the seminarians.

Rev. John J. McCabe, O. S. A., has chosen a spot adjacent to the green house across the Lancaster

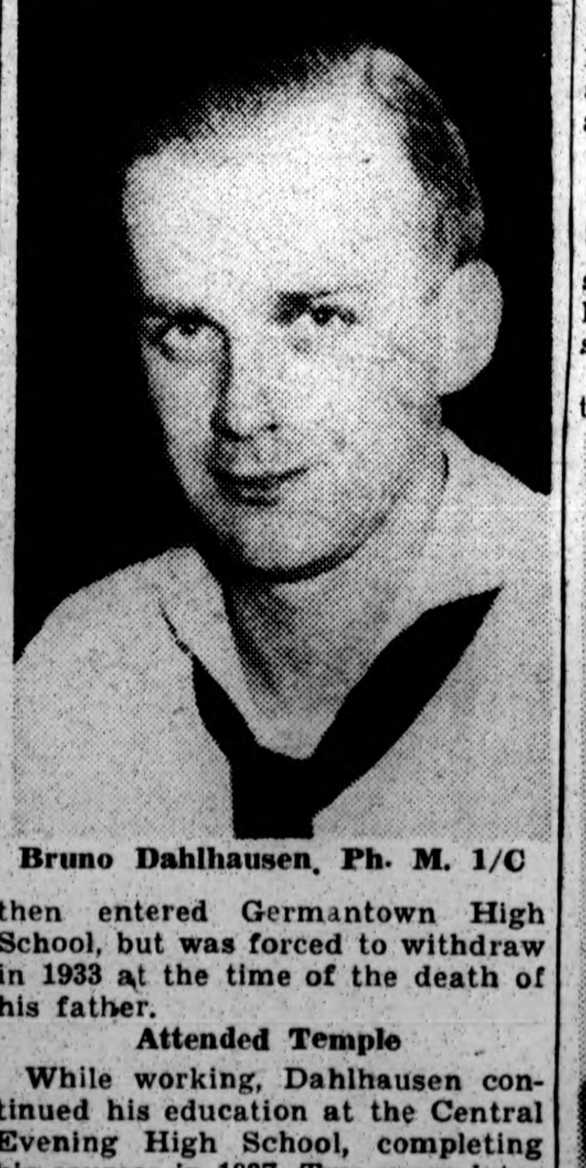
Pharmacist and Drill Instructor Have Ample Training For Jobs

ANOTHER of Philadelphia's contributions to the Villanova Ship's Company is Bruno Dahlhausen, Pharmacist Mate First Class, assistant to Commander William T. Minnick, USN (Ret.), Medical Officer.

Born in Philadelphia on July 7, 1917, Bruno Dahlhausen began his education at the John L. Kinsey Public School. Later he attended Wagner Junior High School, from which he was graduated in 1931. He then entered Germantown High School, but was forced to withdraw in 1933 at the time of the death of his father.



Bruno Dahlhausen, Ph. M. 1/C

Attended Temple

While working, Dahlhausen continued his education at the Central Evening High School, completing his courses in 1937. Two years later he enrolled at Temple University's Night School, and completed two terms in blueprint reading and estimating, and heating and air conditioning.

While attending school at both Central and Temple, Dahlhausen first worked at prosethetic dentistry, filling orders from a half dozen dental laboratories in and about Philadelphia. Following this he served as a salesman for the General Baking Company of Philadelphia for nearly three years. Subsequently, he was employed by the Philadelphia Kopper Coke Company.

Enlisted in 1942

On March 7, 1942, Dahlhausen enlisted in the Navy as a second class Pharmacist Mate. He was first stationed at the Philadelphia Naval Hospital, where, after six months of intensive training in the various branches of medicine, he was tested for his first class rating.

After successful qualification in the medical and Blue Jackets' Manual tests, he served there seven more months as a Pharmacist Mate, 1st Class. In June, Dahlhausen was assigned to the Navy V-12 Program at Villanova.

Fr. Falvey Changes Hours Of Library To Fulfill Demands

Increased use of the college library this semester has necessitated the lengthening of library hours over those of former years, it was announced last week by Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O. S. A., college Librarian.

The library will now be open one-half hour earlier in the morning, and will close one hour later each evening. This means that the new hours will be from 8:30 A. M. until 10 P. M.

Formerly, very few students made use of the library early in the morning; but this year it has been noticed by the library staff that this time has become quite popular with both service men and civilian students for doing special research work.

Fr. Falvey feels confident that the new arrangements will make it possible for all students to avail themselves of the facilities of the library.

Still A Long Road

WITH the removal of Benito Mussolini from his dictatorial pedestal in Italy last week, came the unwarranted belief in the minds of many optimistic Americans that "Peace is just around the corner."

Perhaps such a prophecy bears some truth, for it has not yet been explained just how far away that "certain corner" might be!

Are we so foolish as to be misled into believing that World War II is rapidly approaching a grand finale? This war is not ending; on the contrary, the real fighting is just commencing.

There is no doubt, however, that the collapse of the Fascist regime has had a drastic influence on Italy's present situation in this world conflict. Nevertheless, the situation does not guarantee the Allies an open road into Berlin.

We have progressed considerably since the great awakening at Pearl Harbor, but the road to a lasting peace is a long and exceedingly difficult one. We still have a great distance to go!

Our men on the front are putting forth every possible effort to keep up this present pace. It would be folly for us to relax our efforts now before we have reached our complete goal.

Only by our combined and continuous sacrifices, at home and abroad, can that "long road" be shortened. It is our duty to continue to aid the war effort in every way within our power. Remember, no matter how much has been done, there is constantly a need for more.

If we stop to consider the consequences should the home front "sit down on the job", we will soon realize that no sacrifice can be too great for victory!

—T. F. H.

Future Leaders?

IF we are to be certain of winning this war, and of winning the peace after it, we must have on hand a large reserve of trained men—as well as a number of outstanding individuals possessing qualifications which will enable them to direct large groups of these men during any serious crisis which may arise.

These leaders, who will assume responsibility for the lives of those they command as well as for the success of any mission they may be required to perform, are the future commissioned officers of the armed forces. The requirements for the positions which they will hold vary, but in almost all cases a technical knowledge of all facts concerning their duties, and the duties of their subordinates, is a prerequisite.

The majority of the students here at Villanova have been selected as men possessing the natural qualifications necessary for those who are to assume these posts as officers and leaders. However, for tasks such as they face, natural qualifications will not suffice. Their educational background must be broad enough to enable them to cope with the problems offered by the technicalities of modern warfare, and their knowledge must be such that the men under them will have faith in their judgment.

The embryonic officers in training here might derive great benefit from a little consideration of the repsonsibility that lies ahead of them. The manner in which they apply themselves now will determine the quality of their leadership in the near future, and the quality of that leadership might very well determine our status as a nation in the years to come.

Meet the Boy

Herb Has Often Shuffled The Pack; Quite A Sports Enthusiast Is Jack.

By TOM WARD

ON September 11, 1922, Philadelphia witnessed a great occasion: the birth of Herbert Leo Bansbach. Five years after this noble event, however, young Herbie moved to Drexel Hill, where he attended St. Charles' elementary school.

He entered West Catholic High in 1936, but two years later transferred to Upper Darby. He graduated in 1940, and the following year entered Villanova as a student of mechanical engineering.

Quite a Joiner

Herb has participated in many types of extra-curricular activities ever since his enrollment here. He joined the engineering frat, Phi Kappa Pi, in his freshman year, and has been a loyal and active member ever since. He tells us that he will never forget the time he bowled a magnificent score of 47 for the fraternity team, but remarks that he has since succeeded in raising his average to a respectable 150.

As a sophomore, Herb entered the Math Club and campus chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. During this year he was also a member of the Sophofore Cotillion committee, the Orientation Committee, and the Student Council. He served on several dance committees in his junior year, and was elected as representative of his class a second time.

Has Many Pastimes

A rabid softball fan, Herb has played on the day-hop intramural softball team for the past two years. He also plays quite a fair game of tennis, but insists that his favorite pastimes are pinochle and bridge.

Herb has been on the honor roll for three years, and hopes to continue his fine scholastic record this semester. He is enlisted in the Navy's V-7 program, but is still on inactive status.

JOHN Stanley McManus' origin can be traced back to a spot known as Drexel Hill; the date, October 5, 1920. Pursuing some instruction in the 3 R's, our prodigy attended St. Andrew's Grammar School, and later West Catholic High School in Philadelphia.

His high school days are recalled with many pleasant memories of his athletic activities in such sports as track, tennis, and football.

Previous Naval Experience

McManus is one of the few men on the campus besides those from the fleet who possessed some naval experience before becoming a member of the V-12 program here at Villanova this year. Following his graduation from high school, he spent a year on the school ship "Annapolis", preparing to become an officer in the Merchant Marine.

Entering Villanova in 1939, McManus became a member of the School of Engineering, choosing civil engineering as his specialized field. Since that time his activity with Phi Kappa Pi has elevated Jack to an outstanding position in campus life; in other words, he is truly a B. M. O. C.

President of P. K. P.

In recognition of his qualities of leadership, he was elected vice president of the engineering fraternity [illegible] his junior year, and last yea[illegible] made president of the sam[illegible] ganization.

Besides his participation in P. K. P. affairs, McManus has been a member of the freshman debating society, the American Society of Civil Engineers and has served on the committees for the Owl Hop and the Sophomore Cotillion.

As a member of the 150 lb. football team, under Tom Caspar, Jack has gained prestige through his excellent punting. He has also found time for playing softball on one of the day-hop teams in the intramural softball league.

FOR lack of a suitable idea to open this week's column we thought perhaps that a bit of humor might go rather well . . . Rather unsubtle, we admit, but in spite of this it has merits . . .

DIS:

John Bittig is really worried about the possibilities of seeing his La Salle coed from Boston . . . After two years of collegiate retirement Ray Kaspar found that it took only a Marine uniform to walk a date down the Main Steam of Phillie. . . Speaking of hitting the jackpot. . . the best one seen in a long time was Bill Dennis on Saturday evening last with a certain Jo who hails from Germantown.

In search of one of these lovely (like you see in the flickers) hostesses, Jack Evans rolled into Philadelphia last weekend. Upon his entering the Canteen, a kind old matron introduced him to a hostess. The conversation went something like this: "Hello" . . . "Hello" . . . "Eh, ah . . ." Then the gal came to the rescue . . . "I no speak English. I be in this country five years." You can guess the rest. To sum up the evening, and this is a quote . . . "She was an exponent of platonic love."

The iron man of the Corps, Forster Blaugh, is running a high temperature with a nurse of Philadelphia. A major operation and encircling movement took place on one of the locals recently . . . the strategist was "Kolmenzetto" alias Alexander Coleman . . . the opponent was a luscious night club singer.

DAT:

The Navy was not doing so well this week . . . Many of the lads were expecting to be paid, and had worked up some good plans. But the Treasury was not ready so there were a few long faces. Speaking of faces . . . you can imagine the look upon the faces of Ed Crotty and Bill McGowen when they discovered that they had both received goodies from the same girl.

For a lad who is supposed to be going steady, Jim Sutton was doing rather well in Reyburn Plaza the other evening . . . can it be that there is no honor amongst Navy men? . . . "Sparks" Winters was heard calling the Saratoga exchange in town, and this number has been called so much before. If you want a few new games ask Hank Weldon, Val Jansante and Jim Carey who worked out a new one down at the shore last weekend . . . Overheard in a telephone booth . . . Cart Conway speaking: "I just called you to let you know that what I said a month ago still goes."

DESE:

Dating from the events of the past week or so Tom McQuade has been killing the song "A Woman's a Two Face" and so on . . . Tom Junker is badly in need of some new angles on how to approach a career girl . . . Larry Prospt has been wearing out the Camden train every weekend and not for the usual collegiate reasons . . . Watch for the news break any time about the contents of a letter that Ed Lucas received not too long ago. According to the lads this was really rare . . . John May is hitting a new high since his home town flame arrived on the scene. If Ann remains in Philly all summer, you'll see very little of "Centralia" around Villanova.

They Lead The League

Commandos' Slate Clean In 'Mural Softball League

By JOE DALY

After two complete circuits, the Commandos of Austin Hall are not only out in front of the pack, but have yet to be defeated. The league leaders had a rather easy time of it this week as they played only two scheduled games. Victory number eight came to the Marines at the expense of the Fedigan Jackets. Kradulin took the mound for Al Postus and his teammates and turned in a thirteen to five victory. Al was in trouble only in the final stanza as the Fedigan bats began to boom, and before the third man was retired, five runs had crossed the plate. Ringlestein started things off with a walk, Greenberg followed with a single as did three of his mates. However, the rally fell far short of giving the Commandos a scare.

Krusicka Triples

In their other game, the Commandos downed the second place Residents, six to three. The Marines drew first blood, when Feeny with two away singled to left. Koproski followed with another safety and then Krusika smacked a triple into deep center, and came in a moment later on Lopez's double to put his club out in front three to nothing. The Zips came back to score once in their half of the first as Costella hit safely, and two errors allowed him to tally.

In the second, Corkhill found more trouble in the lower half of the Commandos batting order, as the Marines netted two more counters in the second and one in the third. The Zips tried to get back in the ball game as they scored once in their half of the third, and then again in the fourth; but they still fell three runs short as the game was called in the fifth because of the eight P. M. ruling.

Zips Bat Around

The standings remain the same as of last week although the second place Residents took the count twice. They downed the Rangers Tuesday night, ten to four, as Corkhill held the Marines at bay while his teammates started banging the ball around in the first inning and gave him a ten run lead to work on. The Zips not only batted around but three men came to the plate twice. It took the Rangers ten minutes to retire the side as they committed a total of five errors, which, coupled with three walks, decided the outcome.

Thursday night the Students met the Medics of Alumni Hall and were beaten eight to two. The Zips got away to a one run lead in the first when Costella received a free pass, stole second and came home on Welsh's single. The Navy scored twice in their half of the first to go into the lead. Schmitt tied it at two all for Corkhill as he raced home on an infield out to score what later proved to be the Zips' last run. In the third, however, the Alumni club scored six times to put the game in the bag and to come a game closer to second place.

Blues Have Field-Day

They were not quite so fortunate against a much improved Mendel Club Friday night, after they had easily defeated them in the first game of the week, eleven to eight. This previous defeat seemed to anger the Engineers as they pounded out ten runs in the first frame, to blow the Medics right apart as they went down to the tune of twenty-one to three. Winters playing third base led his team with four for four, while McManus secured three safeties along with a fielder's choice. The Blues had a field-day at the plate as they banged out twenty hits which are enough to win two games.

Mueller the Spark-plug

Fedigan played the most improved ball of the week although they dropped two while winning one. Mendel beat them on Wednesday, ten to six, as the Jackets came from behind twice only to be beaten out in the final innings. They also lost to the league leaders, but they showed what they can do by defeating the Rangers eight to four. Mueller, playing short field, sparkplugged the play as he netted three for three and drove in all of the Jackets' runs. Batting in the cleanup position, Mueller showed the power at bat as well as superb fielding that made him a member of the Baltimore Orioles.

For the remainder of the schedule all contests will begin promptly at ten minutes to seven, so that a complete game may be played before calling time at eight o'clock.

Silverio Pitches 2-Hitter To Win

Things have really been buzzin' in the Day Hop Softball League this week. The green sod is now a scorched brown with all those sizzling fielding plays and high temperature upsets. The Phils were really in the upper Centigrade strata this week. Toasting the not too doughty Dodgers to the tune of 9 to 4, they proceeded to keep the ball rolling, but fast, to beat the hitherto unbeaten Yanks, 1-0. The Yanks were flying high up till then, as they slaughtered the Cards in a 23 to 9 game, and were very reluctant to let the Phils climb their backs, as can be seen by the fighting spirit displayed in the most gossiped contest of the season. The Yanks slammed out 2 of the 3 hit total for the game but due to the spectacular fielding and one-hand stabs of the fidgetin' Phils, were held scoreless.

Graziano Hits Home Run

Much credit is due to Vince Silverio, who really pitched a swell game for the conquerors. Vince sprained his shoulder, however, and the big question is whether or not he can continue to play top ball or if the Phils can make up his loss by sharpening their ball playing.

The other headliner of the week was the tie between the Dodgers and the Cards, both racking up a solid 6 runs. The Cards were ahead 6 to 4 in the last inning when Graziano of the Dodgers plowed one far out into left field for a round trip with one man on base.

Phils	5	1	.733
Yanks	5	1	.733
Dodgers	1	4	.200

Faculty Triumphs

The other night, while the Navy and the Marines were viewing motion pictures, the Faculty and the Civilians engaged in a Softball game. This being their first meeting, the Faculty showed the students that they had the power — to the tune of 9-5.

The Faculty team consisted of the "Slugging, Teaching Fathers" of the Monastery and the Body-Builders of the Navy. Lt. H. W. Slugger August, from the Navy Office, and not from the field of "sweat and toil," paved the way for the Faculty when he hit safely 3 out of 4 times at the plate, thus accounting for 4 of the 9 runs. Fr. Meany sparked the club in a fielding way rather than hitting. His two sensational fielding plays saved the day for the Faculty, as the balls hit were labeled trouble. Besides power at the plate, and superb fielding, C. P. O. Pritchard held the "Students" to 9 hits. His hurling was most effective for the first 3 innings of the game, during which he didn't surrender a hit.

The opponents, who were amazed by Pritchard's hurling, waited until the fourth inning to get 3 runs. These came on a home run by Welsh, preceded by two singles. Joe Portale, who tossed for the "Naturals," was poorly supported by the team in fielding and hitting.

CONDOLENCES

The VILLANOVAN wishes to express sincere condolences to Vince McNally, former assistant coach of football and former assistant director of the Physical Training Program under "Clipper" Smith, and to his family upon the death of their mother. Mrs. McNally was ill for a short time and passed away last Tuesday. A number of priests from Villanova attended the Requiem Mass which was celebrated at St. Anne's Catholic Church in Philadelphia.

Olivar First Villanovan To Return As Head Coach

New Mentor Coached At Three High Schools In District; Led Paulsboro's Undefeated Team To Championship

year at the reins won almost all of its games.

In 1940, he moved to Paulsboro High School, Paulsboro, New Jersey, where he became head coach of football as well as assistant to the basketball mentor. Here, he realized the dream of every coach, for in his first year at the helm he piloted his team through an undefeated and untied season.

Heads Roman Catholic

Last year he returned to the Philadelphia area to accept the position of head football coach at Roman Catholic High School. Here he succeeded Tom Caspar, one of his teammates on the undefeated 1937 squad, who entered the armed forces.

After the football season ended, Olivar assisted Billy Markward coaching the basketball team. However, Markward, dean of the city's basketball coaches and a twenty-five year veteran at Catholic High, chose this time to resign and thus left Olivar in full charge.

Under his direction, the Cahillites came to life and the same team which had lost its first six league games started a streak which earned it a position in the play-offs. This "Cinderella team" as it was later called, won the Catholic League championship, but was stopped just short of the city pennant by an extra-period game with West Philadelphia.

"Ollie," as he was known to his classmates, is the second of the Philadelphia Catholic High School coaches to be appointed as head coach of a collegiate football squad within the last year, the other being Anthony "Ank" Scanlon, of St. Joseph's Prep, who was recently given a berth at Holy Cross. Inasmuch as he is only 28 years of age, he is probably the youngest head mentor of a major football eleven in the country.

Versatile Student

He came to Villanova in 1934, three years after his graduation from Curtis High School, New Brighton, Staten Island. Although he entered college as a member of the Commerce and Finance School, he soon decided that he would like to teach and as a result transferred to the Education department. He not only obtained his degree, but was president of and ranked first in his graduating class, two outstanding achievements for a football player. He was secretary of the college's Spanish Club as well, and mastered that language to such an extent that he once gave a full hour-and-a-half lecture in it. Summing up his accomplishments, the 1938 yearbook states that "Ollie" was "the most intellectually brilliant football player ever to attend this school, "and describes him as being "a type of versatile individual which is too rarely found."

Resides at Philadelphia

Olivar is living in Philadelphia at present. He is married and has two children. An interesting sidelight is the fact that his wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., faculty moderator of this newspaper.

Concerning the schedule for the forthcoming season, Fr. McGuire has announced that although it is being held up by a few details, it will, in all probability, be published in the near future.

Chief Specialist Horgen Is Former Three-Letter Star At Wisconsin

By BOB BOLGER

Ordered to report to the newly established Navy V-12 Unit here at Villanova as an assistant drill and athletic officer on June 6, along with Ensign Maniaci and Chief Beck, was Chief Specialist Julian Horgen.

Chief Horgen was born July 27, 1914 in Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin where he still makes his home. He received both his elementary as well as his secondary education there and then matriculated at the University of Minnesota. He remained at the Gopher institution for only one year, after which he went into the business world. After several years in this endeavor he enrolled at the University of Wisconsin, from which he was graduated in 1940 with a B. S. degree in Physical Education.

Coached Three Sports

While at Madison, Chief Horgen played some football and basketball for the Badgers. He played under Harry Stuhldreher who formerly held down the coaching reins here at Villanova. During his final year at Wisconsin he coached football and basketball at the University High School at Madison. An early football injury to his legs rendered him incapable of playing varsity sports that year.

At the termination of his collegiate course, Chief Horgen became athletic director at the West Bend High School in Wisconsin, where he coached football, baseball, and basketball for a year. He then relinquished this position to become athletic director at the Norris Foundation School for Boys, a private institution at Mukuunago, Wisconsin.

Offered Baseball Contract

While he held these coaching positions, Chief Horgen played semi-pro football in an organized league in Wisconsin. He played against the Green Bay Packers, Chicago Bears, and the Chicago Cardinals in different practice tussles in the Dairy state. "I was quite scared when I made my initial appearance against the pros," he said, and no wonder. During the summer he held down the shortstop position with a team in the Northwestern League which embraced several teams from Canada. He was offered a contract to play in the 3-I League, which he refused because of his enlistment into the Naval service.

With the Navy routine in full swing at Villanova, the trainees are rapidly becoming accustomed to a program which is definitely not the serene college life of bygone days. In the swimming classes they are taught just how to jump into the water from various heights, so that they will not become panicky if they ever find it necessary to abandon ship. Two recently constructed towers are used for the purpose, and the men practice leaping from them in quick succession.

A cargo net and several new type Navy life-jackets have been added to the training equipment. At present the men are being taught how to handle themselves while wearing these jackets, and will soon be shown the correct method of using a cargo net to climb up and down the sides of a ship. The pictures here illustrate some of the uses to which the navy is putting their new equipment in training future afficers.

tedo was sent to Shanghai, China. Here he spent six months, until the time of his transfer to the Philippine Islands. A two year period of service there was followed by three months of active duty on Mare Island.

Later, upon his return to the United States, Bastedo was stationed at the Brooklyn Navy Yard for eight months. In 1940 he was given an honorable discharge from the Marine Corps, but after a very brief interval, was recalled to active duty to train a Seabee Unit at Norfolk, Virginia.

Became Sergeant in '42

During his fulfillment of the latter position, Bastedo was promoted to a corporal's rank. On October 26, 1942, Bastedo was again rewarded for outstanding military merit by being made a sergeant.

This year, with the formation of the new V-12 program, Sgt. Bastedo was assigned to Villanova as a member of Captain Morgan's staff and made a non-commissioned officer in charge of Marine drills and instruction.

Members of V-12 Represent School At Track Meet

Ex-Villanovans Take Three Firsts In Meet Sponsored By Mitchell A.A.

Trodding the cinder path for the first time under Navy colors, four V-12 trainees from Villanova ran in the annual Billy Morrow track meet in Philadelphia. The meet, sponsored by the Mitchell Athletic Association, was held last Friday night at Southern High School Stadium. Represented were many athletic clubs from Philadelphia and also four Navy V-12 schools, Swarthmore, Villanova, Franklin and Marshall and Penn. These clubs and colleges together formed a large field of twenty entrants in which our small team of four men made a fine showing. But their glory was overshadowed by two other Villanova men who represented city athletic clubs.

Guida Wins Double

George Guida, Villanova track ace, and holder of the Junior National 200 metre record, ran away from the field to take the only double win of the evening. Running for Shanahan C. C., George won the 100 yard dash in 10.1 seconds and then came back to make a clean sweep of the dashes by winning the 220 yard dash in 22.2 seconds.

The other Villanova star who managed to steal the limelight from our sailors was George Coleman, representing the Varsity Club, who vaulted 12 ft. 6 in. to take first in the pole vault event.

Four in Special Relay

Our own V-12 team of Ed Fitzgerald, Bob "Ace" Reagan, J. "Dutch" McCarthy and John Foreman, made good showing although they didn't take a first place. Bob Reagan, entered in the mile, ran hard against good competition and garnered a third place. Running the 440 yard dash, McCarthy secured a fifth place. In the only other individual race in which our men were entered, Ed Fitzgerald took a fourth closely followed by John Foreman who had fifth place in this half-mile run. Finally, the four runners teamed up in a special service relay race and took fourth place.

Considering the small team representing our Navy unit and the little practice these boys had, Villanova's V-12 outdid themselves. Forced from amassing a large number of points by not having the men to place, they had to be content with individual showing against topnotch competition.

Represented at the meet were such strong competitors as: Bob Bredin, Penn Freshman and coholder of the National Championship in the high jump; Jeff Kirk, Penn ace and holder of the Junior National 440 yard title; Dean Cummings, Louisiana State Teachers' great hurdler and a host of other collegiate track aces.

Two of our quartet, namely Fitzgerald and McCarthy, were members of Villanova's great mile relay team, which was victorious last year in the Millrose, Knights of Columbus, and N. Y. A. C. games and placed third in the A. A. U. and I. C. A. meets.

Business Fraternity Will Choose Officers

New officers will be chosen by Delta Phi Epsilon, commerce fraternity, at a meeting to be held in Room 101, C. & F. building at 10:20 A. M. Friday.

All commerce students wishing to join the fraternity are invited to attend this meeting. Any of these potential members who, due to a conflict in schedule, cannot attend the meeting are urged to hand in their names to any fraternity member.

John J. Fitzgibbons is acting chairman, having been appointed by former fraternity president John J. Dudley to direct activities until the new elections are held.

Plans will be made at the meeting Friday for a combined smoker and initiation of new members.

Victory Gardens

Pike as the ideal location to carry on his farming. Fr. McCabe enjoys working in his garden tremendously and has devoted a great deal of his time to its development.

These varied gardening exploits have resulted in many amusing anecdotes. One which deserves special attention is the humorous tale related by Dean Morehouse.

Dean Outsmarted

Early in May Morehouse was approached by a colored man who professed to be in charge of all county plowing. Morehouse, considering himself very fortunate in securing the services of such an authority in the field, consented to have this man take care of plowing his plot. Later, when the job was completed, the Dean received a rather sudden shock — a bill for twenty dollars for the man's services! Perhaps he was outsmarted, but Mr. Morehouse still claims it was well worth the expense.

From all reports these Villanova victory gardens have been a complete success. This may partly be accounted for by such factors as good soil and favorable weather. However we feel assured that the careful planning and hard work of our campus gardeners is more responsible for such satisfactory results.

was sent to the Norfolk Naval Training station where he received his indoctrination and primary training. After the completion of this work, Chief Horgen was assigned to the Seabees as athletic and drill officer. He remained with this assignment for a year and was then transferred to the Naval Officer Battalion also located at the Norfolk station.

Sent to Bainbridge

After completing some time at the N. O. B. in Norfolk, Chief Horgen was sent to Camp Allen in Virginia. There he drilled recruits and lectured to them. After a short stay here he was sent to Camp Bradford, Virginia, where he was assigned as battalion adjutant as well as an instructor in primary training. From Camp Bradford Chief Horgen was sent to Camp Peary at Williamsburg, Virginia. Again he drilled recruits, acted as battalion adjutant, and lectured to the trainees at this camp. After several months' stay at Camp Peary, Chief Horgen was sent to Bainbridge, Maryland to the Naval training station there. There he became an intimate friend of Ensign Maniaci and Chief Beck, both of whom are assigned to the V-12 Unit here.

Lives in Phila.

He then received orders to report to Villanova on June 6 as an assistant athletic and drill officer. He is officially in charge of the field drills while Chief Beck is in charge of the swimming classes. Asked how he likes Villanova, Chief Horgen said, "It is a swell place and I am certainly fortunate in being assigned here."

At present he is unmarried and is living in Philadelphia with a former college friend, also in the Navy, and Chief Specialist Cherundolo.

President Holds V-12 Conference

Executives From Six Navy Colleges Discuss Common Experiences And Problems

At a meeting held last Wednesday, August 4, in the office of the president of Villanova, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., several presidents of neighboring colleges attended to discuss mutual experiences and problems connected with the various V-12 units now associated with the institutions.

Those present, beside Fr. Stanford, were: R. H. Rinenberg, acting president of Bucknell University; Theodore A. Distler, president of Franklin and Marshall College; Livering Tyson, president of Muhlenberg College; John W. Nason, president of Swarthmore College; and Norman E. McClure, president of Ursinus College.

Announcement was made that a similar meeting will take place soon at Franklin and Marshall College. The meeting held here last week was the second of its kind to convene at Villanova.

Briefs Of CAMPUS NEWS

Members of Phi Kappa Pi, the campus engineering fraternity, held a meeting at 12:45 P. M. yesterday for the purpose of appointing regular bi-weekly meeting committees. These groups are to outline and plan the activities for succeeding assemblies. They will also arrange informal discussions, talks and movies.

The annual smoker and initiation of new pledges of the Delta Phi Epsilon, commerce fraternity, will be held Wednesday night, August 18.

A meeting of the fraternity will be conducted in Room 101 C. & F. building at 10:20 A. M. Friday. New officers will be chosen at this time.

All commerce and finance students wishing to join the fraternity are invited to attend.

A meeting of the college chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers will be held today at 1:30 in room 102.

Joseph Centrone, Secretary-Treasurer of the organization, has announced that all sophomores taking the civil engineering course are invited to attend.

This afternoon the Student Council will hold its first meeting to determine a policy for the coming semester. Because the classes are not organized, only last year's representatives will be present. This meeting will also include the election of officers for the coming term.

There will be a drive for members because the body is very small.

Dr. Norman Hixon, professor at the University of Pennsylvania, will give a comprehensive talk on the production of Nylon at a meeting of the college branch of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, to be held tomorrow in Room 213 Mendel at 2 P. M.

Members of the American Chemical Society are invited to attend.

Capt. Morgan To Wed

Captain Robert L. Morgan, U. S. M. C. R., Acting Executive Officer for the Navy V-12 unit at Villanova, will marry Miss Patricia Reynolds on Saturday, August 14.

Miss Reynolds is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Reynolds of Cambridge, Mass. She is a recent graduate of Emanuel College.

The ceremony, which is to take place in the rectory of the Rosemont chapel, will be performed by the Rev. Francis X. N. Maguire, O.S.A., vice-president of the college.

Capt. Morgan is taking a ten day leave after the wedding. Following their return, he and his bride will reside in Bryn Mawr.

Engineering Group Sponsors Contest; Offers Cash Awards

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers is sponsoring a thesis contest for student-members.

Three awards will be given in the competition which closes June 30, 1944. The first prize, known as the Charles T. Main Award, for $150, will be given to the author of the best paper on "A Case Study of Management Labor Cooperation in Influencing the Effectiveness and Efficiency of Production." Information on this topic should be drawn from a study of a particular plant.

The awards, each in the amount of $25 will be presented for the best papers on any engineering subject or investigation, prepared by student members under the direction of the Department of Mechanical Engineering, to an undergraduate and a graduate student, respectively. A senior undergraduate must submit his paper within thirty days after completion of his senior year.

Student should consult the Honorary Chairman regarding the rules for the contest. Only papers by single authors will be considered.

Weekly Programs Of Classical Music To Resume Tomorrow

The music seminar, a weekly feature conducted successfully during past years by Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, associate professor of chemistry and chemical engineering, is expected to reach a new peak in popularity when it is resumed tomorrow. It is to be held in the parlors of Simpson hall between the hours of 12:30 and 1:30.

All students, regardless of status, are invited to attend the sessions, which serve not only as a means of developing an appreciation of classical music, but as a means for inducing relaxation during the luncheon period.

The program for the initial seminar will include Beethoven's Symphony Number 7, more often called "The Dance Symphony," and Brahm's Academic Festival Overture.

Dr. Haenisch has stated that he realizes most students will not be able to attend for the full hour because of their class schedules, but nevertheless they should feel free to come and go at will. He asks that requests for selections be submitted to him so that he may arrange future programs accordingly.

Sgt. Doerfler Has Seen Wide Duty; Pharmacist Mate Owns Drug Store

The two non-commissioned officers interviewed by the VILLANOVAN this week represent important phases of the military service. They are Charles W. Zimmerman, a pharmacist mate 2/C of the Navy's medical department, and Sgt. Benjamin W. Doerfler, a Marine drill instructor.

Benjamin W. Doerfler was born in Meridan, Connecticut, on November 17, 1918, just six days after the World War I armistice was signed. He attended Lewis High Academy and graduated with the Class of 1937.

On October 14th, 1939, Doerfler went to New York City, where he enlisted in the United States Marine Corps as a "buck" private. The same day he was on his way to Parris Island, the Marine Corps Basic Training Camp, for his "boot" training.

Two and one-half months later, he was transferred to the Marine Sea School at the Norfolk Navy Yard in Virginia. Here he was trained in the use of secondary battery weapons and code.

Sgt. Benjamin W. Doerfler

Assigned to Sea Duty

After completing his training at Norfolk, he was assigned to a Navy cruiser as an orderly. Besides being an orderly, Doerfler also acted as a battle-phone talker and a gun crewman. His first trip aboard the cruiser terminated in North Africa. The ship then sailed back to the States and immediately set sail again for the Caribbean Sea where it took part in Navy maneuvers. Following the maneuvers, Pvt. Doerfler, still aboard the cruiser, went to South Africa and then back to the States. Doerfliers' next duty was in Iceland where he took part in patrolling along the coast. Four months later he was transferred to Newfoundland and assigned to patrol duty in the Atlantic Ocean. On his last trip aboard the cruiser, Doerfler sailed to North Africa and then down the coast to South Africa. During this trip he was made a pfc.

Served in Philadelphia

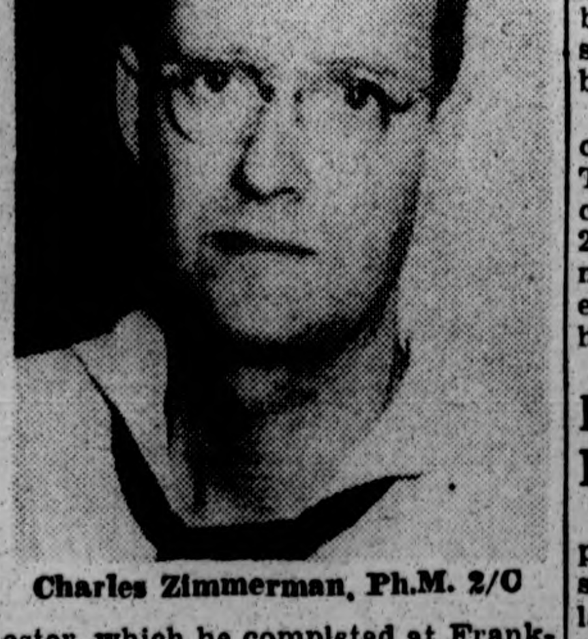
Following his tour of duty on board ship, Doerfler was shipped to the Philadelphia Navy Yard. While at the Navy Yard he worked in the Fourth Naval District Communications Office. Nine months later, Doerfler, now a corporal, was sent to Parris Island as a drill instructor to train recruits in the fine art of becoming Marines. He was advanced to the rating of sergeant while stationed there.

In June, 1943, Sergeant Doerfler went to Quantico, Virginia, where he trained under Colonel Hanley in preparation for his position in the V-12 Program. Three weeks later he came to Villanova to act as an instructor in drill and physical training.

Faculty Complimented

In reference to their work at Villanova, when asked, Charles W. Zimmerman, pharmacist mate, second class, said: "I am greatly impressed by the general co-operative attitude of the entire faculty and staff here at Villanova."

Born in Philadelphia on July 12, 1908, Zimmerman began his education at McIntire Public School. From there he attended Central High School up until his last semester, which he completed at Frankford High.



Charles Zimmerman, Ph.M. 2/C

Developing an interest in Pharmacy, he attended the Temple Pharmacy School and completed his courses in 1929. Shortly after his graduation, Zimmerman and his brother went into the Pharmacy business, opening a drug store in Philadelphia.

Capt. Kelly Receives Further Decoration; Esposito Overseas

From overseas comes word concerning two of Villanova's recent graduates now in foreign service, Capt. Walter E. Kelly, U.S.A.A.C., and Corporal Louis J. Esposito, U.S.A.

Captain Kelly, a graduate of the School of Engineering in the class of 1940, was awarded the eighth Oak Leaf Cluster as a supplement to the Air Medal previously bestowed upon him.

His service record has been outstanding since his enlistment in the army in July, 1941. Although at the time of his assignment to service with the Army Air Corps in England, he was a member of one of the youngest bombing crews overseas, he has since distinguished himself by making more than fifty trips over enemy territory.

The first mention of Capt. Kelly in the press came last year, when, as a lieutenant, he piloted one of the huge Flying Fortresses which participated in the now historic raid on Rouen.

Esposito With Intelligence

Corporal Esposito, a member of the Intelligence division of the army, has recently been sent overseas. He expects to be commissioned soon after arrival at his destination. He left the country in July for what he was told would be a noncombat area.

Esposito graduated last February from the Villanova School of Arts. While here, he held an editorial position on the VILLANOVAN.

Eight years ago, Esposito toured Rome and the surrounding country while on a scholarship tour. One of the qualifications which aided him to attain this opportunity was his knowledge of the Italian language. He expects that his experience as a linguist will enable him to obtain a post in an administrative division of the army of occupation in captured Italian territories.

Building To Be Used As Navy Sick Bay

A new building, immediately adjacent to O'Dwyer hall at the southwest corner of the campus, has been added to the college. It is to be used as a sick bay for the V-12 students in training here, and has been completely renovated.

The staff of the new infirmary is composed of Commander William T. Minnick, U.S.N., and three medical corpsmen. It will accommodate 28 men. Arrangements have been made for bringing meals to interned students from the college dining hall.

Large Football Squad Reports On First Day

Yesterday afternoon, in the first practice session to be held this season, eighty-eight aspirants for Villanova's 1943 football squad reported to Jordan Olivar, recently appointed head coach.

The new mentor took a poll to ascertain the time most convenient to these men for the daily practice routine. He has stated several times previously that he will not permit football to interfere with the scholastic programs of the students.

Those reporting received light workout togs in which they will drill for the next few weeks.

Fr. Stanford Emphasizes Need For Cooperation In Preserving Catholic Higher Education

Commencement exercises, bringing to a close the 26th annual summer school of Villanova College, were held last Saturday morning at 9 o'clock in the chapel of Rosemont College.

Following the celebration of High Mass by the Very Rev. V. Stanford, O.S.A., LL.D., president of the college, 103 candidates for degrees were presented by the Rev Joseph C. Bartley, O.S.A., Ph.D., director of the summer school since its inception.

In his address to the graduates, Fr. Stanford paid tribute to the cooperative spirit of the Rosemont College officials for the manner in which they had contributed to make possible the continuance of these sessions.

Extols Cooperation

With the facilities of the campus already filled to capacity with the V-12 Unit stationed here, it would have been necessary to discontinue the excellent work performed by these six-week summer sessions had not Rosemont agreed to let its campus become the scene of study.

Fr. Stanford described it as a symbol of the type of cooperation that must develop between Catholic institutions of higher learning and an example of the mutual cooperation that must be obtained between the members of the various religious communities conducting these institutions, if the future of Catholic higher education in this country is to be assured.

Hopes for Progress

Expressing the conviction that post-war problems of education may be even more complicated and difficult, the president urged that joint and cooperative efforts between Catholic institutions, particularly where they are situated close together, should zealously be promoted.

Fr. Stanford concluded by expressing his "earnest hope that the summer session of Villanova College, held on the campus of Rosemont College, may be another step towards this desirable objective."

Religious Predominate

Of the 103 degrees conferred, forty-seven were of the order of Master of Arts; five were Master of Science degrees; five Bachelor of Arts; 41, Bachelor of Science in Education; two, Bachelor of Science in Library Science; two, Bachelor of Science in Nursing Education; and one, Bachelor of Science in Economics.

Twenty-two religious communities were represented by the 97 members of religious communities for women who comprised the vast majority of the graduates. In addition to three members of religious communities for men, all from different communities, three laymen received degrees.

A.I.E.E. Presents First Of Educational Films

Last Thursday and Friday from 12:15 to 1:00 P. M., the Villanova branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers presented two showings of the first in a series of educational motion pictures to record-breaking audiences. The technicolor film, entitled "Railroadin'", traced the history of railroads in the United States, and also showed the part they played in the development of the nation.

Anthony J. Mannino, Chairman of the organization, announced that in the near future a sixty minute dramatic film, entitled "Bill Howard, R.F.D.", will be shown; the time and date will be posted on the bulletin board.

It has also been announced that freshmen are eligible to become members of the A.I.E.E., and that all those interested in joining should see the chairman for application forms.

Better World Order?

WE Americans have always had faith in our ability to "get things done." Our forefathers have established for us a reputation as empire builders. Consequently, we are frequently inclined toward the belief that, if we try hard enough, there is no obstacle too great for us to overcome.

This intrinsic egotism, together with the relatively favorable position which we hold in world affairs, has apparently aroused in us a philanthropic attitude toward the less fortunate peoples on the earth. Although our primary reason for participation in this war is the preservation of our own ideals and principles, we have come to regard ourselves as the potential saviours of a decadent world.

Our determination to establish the "four freedoms" throughout the world has made them an important issue in our intended foreign policy. However, while we ourselves know that democracy is the only form of government which we could tolerate, have we stopped to think whether the nations we are allegedly rescuing from foreign domination would want any such system for themselves? Or if they were in favor of it, are they psychologically prepared for it?

Consider the attitude of the conquered nations toward the "New Order" of the third Reich. What sound reason have we for thinking that their reaction to boisterously imposed democratic principles would be any different? Henry J. Taylor, a well-known foreign correspondent, recently stated: "Once you leave our shores, the only voices you hear speak about a Better World Order are either German, Japanese, or American."

For centuries, Europe has had problems peculiar to itself, and Europeans have spent centuries trying to combat them. Are we, then, who are naively ignorant of their background and the factors influencing them, to clear up these enigmas by merely manifesting our interest in them?

If we could truthfully say that we have solved all our own domestic problems, we might be justified in our attempts to unravel those of our neighbors. However, a little consideration of the difficulties which will confront us within our own shores in the very near future might lead us to realize that we are just as much in need of help as those whom we are trying to aid.

Although we are morally obliged to see that the people of the beleaguered nations have the food and clothing necessary for livelihood, it might be better for all parties concerned if we refrained from meddling in their domestic political affairs.

Isolationism is out of the question as a criterion for our post war international policy, but exaggerated internationalism can be just as dangerous. The American "Boondogglers," in the bungling role they have played so often in the past, have been given an unprecedented opportunity to sink the post-war world into even deeper turmoil. Perhaps they shall succeed, but, according to Taylor, "our fatuous assumption that we can set all well with words and dollars and a "police force" is a thoughtlessly impossible undertaking."

As a Committeeman Art Really Rates; Will Has Reigned As King of Debates.

By TOM HITCHELL

OUR first victim this week is a Quaker City lad named Arthur J. Roth. Born in the historic town of brotherly love on July 27, 1920, Art soon emerged from his "thre cornered pants" and trotted off for eight years of grammar schooling at Our Lady Help of Christians Parochial School. Tempus fugitated, and in short time Master Roth claimed his first pair of "longies" as well as a seat in Northeast Catholic High School.

Membership on the editorial staff of a monthly school publication and on the yearbook staff occupied most of Art's leisure moments at Northeast Catholic.

In 1940 the Roth heir began his college career at Villanova in pursuit of a B.S. degree in Mechanical Engineering.

As a frosh, Art became a member of Phi Kappa Pi and the Math Club. The American Society of Mechanical Engineers welcomed Roth into its midst in his sophomore year. It was during this same period that Art became a member of the Program Committee for the Sophomore Cotillion as well as the P. K. P. Initiation Committee.

While a Sophomore Roth completed a course in Civil Aeronautics in addition to his regular engineering curricula.

As a junior, Art became an active worker on the decorations committees for two dances; namely the Centennial Ball and the Interfraternity Ball. The A. S. M. E. held its annual convention on the Villanova campus last year, and Roth was named a member of the Reception Committee for the affair.

Last semester he became a writer for the "Villanova Engineer."

This year Art holds two offices in campus organizations. He is currently serving as Treasurer of P. K. P. and is Chairman of the Villanova branch of the A. S. M. E.

Throughout his college days Art has been a participant in intra-mural softball and touch-football.

NEXT on our list we present Pvt. J. Wilfrid Gagen, U. S. M. C. R., born in little old New York on the first day of March, 1923. Before his appearance on the Main Line, Will attended St. Michael's Prep, where he excelled in varsity basketball and tennis.

He entered Villanova in the Fall of 1940 as a pre-law student in the Commerce and Finance School. The Glee Club and the Freshman Debating Society comprised Gagen's chief extra-curricular activities during his freshman year here. Beta Gama granted membership to our Bronxville leatherneck in his sophomore year, and during the same term he became a member of both the editorial and business staff of the Belle Air.

Last year Gagen was elected president of Beta Gama. His activity with Villanova's Debating Society has proved him to be one of the outstanding orators on the campus. He was one of the originators of the College Forum Program in the Philadelphia area. Towards the end of last semester he arranged a College Forum with representatives from Immaculata, Bryn Mawr, Haverford, and Villanova discussing the topic, "What is the Place of the Negro in America." This latter forum proved to be one of the highlights of Beta Gama activity for the year.

Besides participating in all phases of the intra-mural athletic program here at Villanova, Gagen held the position of Varsity Basketball Coach at St. Matthew's High School in Conshohocken. Pa., in his junior year.

During his summer vacations (gone are the days!) Will recalls his position as salesman for the American Writing Machine Company in Philadelphia, and also his employment in the Advertising Department of the Philip Morris Company in New York. He also served at one time as Physical Training Director of the Eastchester Recreation Commission in New York.

IN the space of the last few weeks, the Marines "A" team has shown its proverbial heels to the rest of the league and now is safely perched in first place by reason of its clean slate. This team, in comparison with the rest of the league, reminds us of the New York Yankees.

Not only in their winning ways do these Commandos resemble the World's Champions, but also in their manner of smacking down the luckless opponents. It is a well known fact that the Yanks won a majority of their games through a blow-out in one stanza. A pitcher might weaken; an infielder might be a little slow in starting after a ball; an outfielder might misjudge a fly. Any one of a number of small things might occur to give the New Yorkers their chance and once that was theirs, they usually made things pretty difficult for their adversaries. The one outstanding reason for this was that the Yankees were a team composed of money-players. We don't mean by this that each man was paid a top salary or that there was a great deal of money involved in getting the players, although both of these are probably true. Rather that when the chips were down, this was the time for somebody to come through with a home run or an extra-base blow.

—V—

In like manner do these Commandos live up to their name. Usually in their games they have one big inning and then it's all over but the shouting. Take for instance the last time they played the Fedigan Blue Jackets. In one inning the Marines scored nine runs on a series of singles, and extra-base knocks. The Fedigan team lost this tilt by a 14-5 score and one can easily see that without that one stanza, the

Mendel Scares Commandos But Loses Tight Ball Game

Blues Move Up To Fifth Place By Downing Fediga wAs Residents Nose Out The Rangers On McQuade's Homer.

With only two more weeks of play left in the first half, the Marine Commandos lead the pack by four and a half games after increasing their lead by a game and a half during the past week. The Residents, who still hold on to the runner-up position, are being strongly pressed by both Alumni and Fedigan. The Jackets by winning two of their three contests for the week have moved up to fourth place. The Rangers slipped down to the cellar as they lost three contests, moving Mendel up a notch.

McManus Scores

All teams were active on Monday with the Commandos barely escaping their first defeat as they downed Mendel three to two. The pace-setters drew first blood as lead off man Mike Cardner singled, Burns followed immediately with a double to deep center pushing across the first Marine run. At this point Famiano got control of himself retiring the next three men in order. Al Kasulan held the Navy at bay until the third when Belletti reached him for a single to open the inning; Costello then drew a walk. Elsesser's fielder's choice moved Belletti to third and he scored a moment later on Sondheimer's fly to left field to tie up the ball game. The Marines, with the chips down, came to bat in the top half of the fourth. Famiano retired the first two men to face him. Then Zamlynski drove out a double over second; Lopez with a count of three and two on him duplicated Ziggy's effort, as he drove the ball deep into left while the Commando's big first baseman crossed the plate. Johnny Dzitko kept the rally alive driving in Lopez, with what later proved to be the winning run, on a sharp single to left. Nealon was retired via the strikeout route but the damage had already been done. McManus attempted to put his club back in the game in the last of the sixth as he singled after two were away, stole second and scored on Borski's hit. However, Famiano was an easy victim of Kasulin's underhand slants as he went down swinging.

Hitting Spree

The following night the Commandos behind the six hit pitching of Johnny Dzitko, beat their fellow Marines, nineteen to five. The Rangers went into the lead in the first stanza as they scored on a walk to Dervan and hits by "Booky" Carlissimo and Wally Breen. However, this margin was only a mirage as "Ziggy" Zamlynsky doubled down the third base line. Then followed the most consecutive hitting spree seen in one game. Eight men hit safely before the first man was retired. This merciless beating did not take the spirit out of the Rangers however, as they scored four runs of their own, but they couldn't stop the still unbeaten league leaders.

Thursday evening saw the Commandos engage the third place Alumni club. From the first, the outcome was definite, as the Marines rapped Mosier for five runs in the first, adding three more in both the third and sixth while they counted twice in the fifth to win thirteen to four.

Mueller Hits Homer

The second place Residents who have gradually been losing their hold, came to life Monday to nose out the Rangers three to two as Corkhill was back in his early season form letting the Marines down with four hits. The Rangers held a two run lead going into the fifth as the Zips couldn't manage to get a hit from Turner. Then Koerner broke the spell with a single, Kurnsky kept it going with a liner over

Olivar Introduced To Unit; Princeton Game Scheduled

First Practice Session Held Monday; Game With Muhlenburg Also Announced; Remainder Of Schedule Not Published

By HUGH O'REILLY. A.S.

At an assembly held in the C. and F. auditorium Friday night, Jordan "Ollie" Olivar, recently appointed head football coach here at Villanova, was introduced to the V-12 trainees. After a few brief comments on the many changes observed about the campus since he was a student here, "Ollie" issued a general call for candidates for the gridiron team. In his talk he pointed out the plans which had been made in order that practice might be held at a time convenient to all candidates. He also reasoned that due to the accelerated program of studies a great mental strain has been placed on the students, and for this reason football should prove a source of relaxation and pleasure to the players, and that since these students had not much time to engage in athletics, certainly this sport, sanctioned by the Commander and the President, should prove to be excellent for their energy and of value to the college.

Practice Time Not Set

In his call for candidates he attempted to ascertain what hour would be best suited to the players for practice. On the basis of this poll he selected 6:30 Monday evening for a meeting of all candidates. The purpose of the meeting, he said, was only to acquaint himself with the volunteers and perhaps to issue light training equipment. According to "Ollie," this hour was not to be set time for daily practice. The time for regular practice, he said, would be decided at a later date.

Ends Back

From the general outlook, this team should be one of Villanova's best. Many outstanding players from last year's squad are holdovers in the V-12 plan. The roll of the Marines produces such shining football names as: Al Postus, great back of last year's varsity eleven, who was one of the chief factors in our winning so many tough games; Johnny Dzitko, brilliant signal-caller and blocking back;

Navy Administers Test To Trainees

With many men drowning at sea because of the lack of proper swimming instructions, the navy is determined to reduce the number lost by training its men. Here at Villanova, under Chief Petty Officer Robert Beck, the V-12 men are engaged in an intensive swimming program. After many weeks of proper swimming instructions, C.P.O. Beck gave a navy second class swimmer's test connected with this test is the significance of the real thing—a ship at sea going down!

The first part of the test consisted of the men jumping off a six foot platform and then swimming, any racing stroke, for 25 yards. This was given mainly to acquaint the swimmer with getting away from a sinking ship, so that he would not be caught in the suction. The swimmer then changed to one of the three elementary strokes, and did twenty-five yards, using each type.

The distance swimming was to help the sailors pretend they were going for a raft on the high seas—in actuality the edge of the pool in the college Field house. Last, but definitely not least, came the most difficult feat, that of floating 10 minutes without progressing in the water. Most of the "old salts" who didn't pass failed on this one test.

Those who failed will have more swimming added to their schedule. Those who passed will go on to more difficult feats, so as to be able to overcome the dangers of the ocean.

CPO Cherundolo Played Pro Ball In National Grid League

By BOB BOLGER

It was last Friday down at the Field House that your reporter got in touch with a gent who fancies the distinction of being the largest man on the campus in body and voice. After the "pleased-to-meet-you," Chief Cherundolo proceeded to relate some of the highlights of his life to date. We both had a seat with me more attentive because of the fact that I thought I was standing in a hole, tilting my head skyward in order to converse.

The Chief was born in the heart of Pennsylvania in a small hamlet called Old Forge—just outside of Scranton on August 8, 1916. His youth was spent in the surroundings of Old Forge, his birth place, and he centered his efforts on the field of athletics. At his local high school Chief performed in both football and basketball, being made captain of the grid team in his senior year. The following fall found him journeying seventy-five miles southwest of his home town to the Nittany Hills, and entering Penn State as a student of Physical Education. Four years later the Chief was a recipient of a B.S. degree in Physical Education but not without raising quite a bit of dust

A new era in the annals of the VILLANOVAN has begun. The once hectic days when "manana" was never too late, and a cut from a class merely meant an extra hour of sleep, are gone forever. With them has gone much of the color formerly associated with college life, and a consequent diminution in prospective news for the VILLANOVAN has followed.

The bye-word of the day, "Victory," has radically altered the mechanism behind our newspaper. Foremost among these changes has been government advocated self-sponsored censorship. Any information which might give the slightest hint of restricted military or naval news must be rigidly suppressed.

Accelerated scholastic schedules and intensive, time-consuming physical training programs have made serious changes in our routine necessary. Neither the service-men or the civilian students among our staff can burn much of the midnight oil over copy and editorial issues. The war comes first, and right now, this means that scholastic standing is of paramount importance.

Despite these and many similar obstacles, we of the VILLANOVAN staff are doing our best to provide interesting reading for the students on the campus, and news of their accomplishments for their parents at home.

Beginning at the top left, and reading counter-clockwise, are pictured several of the men responsible for the publication of our humble "rag": Thomas M. about State's campus. In his junior year he held the pivot slot on the Lion grid squad.

It was during said junior year that Penn State ran rough shod over Villanova by a 27-13 count. The following autumn, the season of 1936, found the State football squad electing the Chief to the role of captain. Incidentally, the Cat's led by Andy Stopper, came back that year to thump Penn State by a 33-7 margin.

Plays Pro Ball

After his graduation, the Chief set out for a year's graduate study in Physical Education and so became an M.A. in Physical Education in the Spring of 1938. From the '37 season until last Fall the Chief was in the play for pay ranks. The initial three seasons were spent with the Cleveland Rams following which he was traded to the Phila. Eagles. After two years under Bert Bell the Chief went to Pittsburgh with the rest of the Eagle clan when the franchises were swapped. The Chief was no cringing violet in "pro" set either. Several years found his ability rewarded by being chosen as second team all-pro center, nosed out only by the immortal Mel Hein, and brother that ain't hay. The Chief's comment on the do-or-die-for-dear-old-dollar-league was that the game was naturally a lot rougher, and that every game played in, was just like the "season's game" for the college squads. However, despite the six seasons of battle in the survival of the fittest ranks, the Chief doesn't show a sign of being thumped around and accordingly complains of no repercussions. That pals, is a miracle. However, the duties of the Navy will prevent the Chief from donning "pro" togs this season. The sport must be in his blood though, because the Chief expresses the wish to coach the sport, at a college preferably.

Ordered to Colgate

Last January the Chief joined the United States Navy at Norfolk, Va. After finishing his boot training, the Chief was shipped out to the U. of Wash. as a physical instructor in the N.R.O.T.C. After six weeks the Chief was transferred to Bainbridge, Maryland. This assignment also lasted six weeks from which the Chief was shipped to Colgate U. as a physical instructor for V-12.

The next stop was Villanova which found the Navy and Marine trainees wondering whether or not this physical instructor was kidding in his ability to hold callisthenics that would have made our "Clipper" Smith look like a dude.

The Chief is now living in Philly with Chief Horgen, and finds the Villanova assignment to his liking. We are glad he's here at Villanova and in America. We want these big boys on our side of the fence.

Notice

Because of necessary plumbing work in Mendel Hall, both hot and cold water will be turned off throughout the campus this evening from 8 P. M. until midnight.

During this time, please do not leave faucets and showers in the "on" position.

Lt. Comdr. McGrath Inspects V-12 Unit

Lt. Comdr. Earl J. McGrath, USNR, attached to the special service division of the Bureau of Personnel at Washington, visited the campus Tuesday night. He was previously associated with Fr. Stanford in forming the Navy's V-1 program. Although his visit was entirely unofficial, he was apparently very interested in the work being done here and toured all parts of the campus.

merman is an expert on the rifle range. Shooting against stiff competition, he won the First Place Medal at the Bear Rock Club in Allentown in the Spring of 1942. Along with this, he has captured many medals at various clubs in and around Philadelphia.

Enlisted in the Navy

In April 1942, an end came to the drug store partnership, when his brother was drafted into the Army. Zimmerman continued in business alone up until November, when he decided he could put his knowledge and skill to better service in the United States Navy.

On Nov. 10, 1942, Zimmerman enlisted as a Second Class Pharmacist Mate, and was assigned to a post at the Philadelphia Naval Hospital. He continued at this station until Junt 1, when he was appointed to Commander William T. Minnick's Staff for the Naval Unit at Villanova College.

Vinnie Carlissimo, bulwark of a great defensive team at his tackle position; Joe Pezelski, flashy tailback and star of last season's Temple game and others. In the Navy, Billy Sullivan and Milt Anderson, the fleet, glue-fingered ends, stand out as examples of potential strength. Newcomers from other famous colleges fill out the Navy and Marine rolls of players and abundant material, which has yet to prove itself, was on hand.

In an interview Commander Milner expressed the opinion that this team has promises of being one of the outstanding of the season and would surely carry on the proud record of Villanova. He also said the players will have only one hour of practice daily so that less of their spare time will be used in this extra-curricular activity.

Game With Princeton

The details of the scheduled opponents have not as yet been fully worked out. In a statement issued by the Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., Vice President of the college and Moderator of Athletics, the schedule is complete except for one game which is on the fire and will be settled in a day o two. A governing factor in making up this schedule which was not present in former years is a statement issued by the Navy Department that Navy V-12 training schools may not play games outside of their own district. This order prevents our playing such games as Auburn, Kansas, Texas and others. Already public announcements have been made by two of our opponents. Muhlenburg College has already announced that a game with Villanova has been listed on their schedule, and Princeton University has also named Villanova as one of their opponents.

'Cats Out For Revenge

This game with Princeton will mark the first football game with this school in 32 years, for that time marked the end of a series between the two schools in which our team did not register even one triumph over the Tigers. In view of this, the game should prove to be one of the highlights of the schedule for the Wildcats will attempt to avenge these defeats while on the other hand, the Tigers will be out to maintain their supremacy over Villanova in this sport.

short. Schmitt then grounded out, second to first, and Tom McQuade with two strikes on him swung from his heels on one of Turner's hard pitches. The ball sailed over Dervan's head and before he could retrieve it, Tom, and the other two men were across the plate and the ball game was all but over. After being idle Tuesday, the Zips were downed by the up and coming Fedigan aggregation, six to two. The Students scored first as they pushed across a run in the second frame while Corkhill pitched one hit ball for three innings. He lost control in the fourth, walking two and pitching a home run ball to Mueller, giving up three runs. The Jackets scored three more in the fifth on four hits to sew up the game.

Facing Mendel for the fourth time, the best the Zips could do was to settle for a five-five stalemate. The game ended in a deadlock due to the eight o'clock rule. The Blues, leading five to four, still were having the bad breaks, virtually gave the Residents their tieing run in the last frame.

Other games played throughout the week saw Fedigan down the Medics of Alumni, eleven to six, as the Jackets were making their bid for the first division. Mendel then came through the following night and downed Fedigan in a hard fought battle, eight to seven. Alumni got back in the win column by overpowering the Rangers, twelve to seven, to hang on to third place.

game would have been close if not a tie. In some of their other games, the base-paths have looked like a quarter mile track with the Commandos running against themselves.

—V—

While the Marines pack a terrific wallop at the plate, they are also the best fielding club in the circuit. This is another of the reasons that this aggregation is out in front and as a result of it, almost all balls hit any place in the infield are almost sure outs. Only last week this air-tight infield ended a ball game by a double play, third-to-second-to-first—quite a rarity in softball because of the short distance between the sacks.

The outfield is composed of fellows who can go a long way to pull a ball down and who also possess arms which are good for pegs to any base. The only trouble is that this outfield doesn't get to run too much because not many long hits are made against the pitching staff, and those that are made are usually of the fly variety and can be caught easily.

—V—

As one can gather by reading the above, the Commandos have no weakness as far as this reporter can see. Of course it is true that most of the team is composed of athletes who have previous college or semi-pro experience behind them. This naturally gives them the edge over the rest of the teams which are made up of fellows trying to have a little recreation, and at the same time to keep in shape.

—V—

We have heard remarks about the campus to the effect that this team should be broken up. However, when the league was organized no clause was put in the rules whereby those with collegiate experience would be ineligible to play. Breaking their team up now definitely would be unfair to these fellows who undoubtedly comprise the best aggregation in the circuit.

Frat Announces Award Recipients

Hoffman And Grostas Receive Carl T. Humphrey Medals From Phi Kappa Pi

Yesterday, at a meeting of Phi Kappa Pi, the campus engineering fraternity, Anthony J. Mannino, chairman of the second Carl T. Humphrey Award, reported that duplicate awards were presented to Edward A. Grostas, AS, sophomore electrical engineering student, and Joseph H. Hoffman, AS, sophomore mechanical engineering student.

In this report, he also revealed that the winners were chosen from the ranks of the freshmen who entered Villanova College in June and October of 1942 by Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, associate professor of chemistry and chemical engineering, with the help of Emil Amelotti, assistant professor of mathematics, and Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., assistant professor of music and fine arts.

The C. T. H. Award, a silver medallion, is given every second semester to the one outstanding freshman. Extra-curricular activity, as well as scholastic standing, is taken into consideration. In this case, however, it was impossible to choose between the two winners. In addition to receiving the medallion, the names of the winners are engraved on the C. T. H. Award Memorial Plaque, which is now in the office of the Dean of Engineering.

In order to set up a memorial to former Dean of Engineering, Carl T. Humphrey, Phi Kappa Pi first attempted to establish a trust fund for a Carl T. Humphrey Scholarship in 1938. However, when it was apparent that such a project would be financially impossible, the medallion and plaque were finally decided on as being within the financial means of the organization. The first award was given to Edward V. Murray and Paul V. Simpson in June, 1942.

Fr. Stanford Answers Questions On Recent Student Restrictions

During the past week there was put into effect upon the campus a policy whereby weekend restrictions are imposed on civilian students who are rated deficient for either scholastic or disciplinary reasons. This new policy naturally occasioned quite a reaction among some of the students.

The VILLANOVAN received its share of questions, and in order to clear the air sent a reporter to interview the President, the Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A. As a service to our readers we reproduce below the questions asked, together with the answers given by Fr. Stanford.

Q.—What is the purpose of the recent weekend restrictions imposed on civilian students?

A.—To impress on students the seriousness of their obligation under wartime conditions to "step-up production" over and above what would normally be required in peace time. For the past few weeks the conviction has been growing among faculty members that a sub-standard work on the part of a minority in a class is extremely unfair to the serious students.

Q.—Are such regulations an attempt to parallel Naval regulations on the campus?

A.—Not necessarily, although obviously the Navy set a good example. With classes in common it should be evident that as far as possible similar standards should prevail.

Q.—Are weekend restrictions for scholastic deficiencies to be a permanent policy?

A.—I hope not! It makes more work for an already hard-worked faculty. I hope that the improvement in student application to studies will soon make it unnecessary.

Q.—Do they in any way affect non-resident students?

A.—It is intended that they shall,

Engineers Meet; Doyle Appointed As Program Head

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers held a meeting Friday at which they discussed their future program schedule. At this meeting William Doyle was appointed chairman of the Program Committee.

Doyle stated that he had made arrangements for securing several technical films and also for certain members to deliver talks on subjects related to mechanical engineering.

Those members who had not paid their dues were urged to do so before the twentieth of August when the society's membership drive will end. No dues will be accepted after this date.

The first formal meeting of the society will be held on Wednesday, the eighteenth of August at 5:30 P. M., at which time Dean J. Stanley Morehouse will address the group. At this meeting a paper on the subject of marine boilers will be distributed. To conclude the program there will be a motion picture which will deal with internal combustion engines.

All members of the society are expected to attend and an invitation to be present was extended to all those who might be interested in this program.

Briefs Of CAMPUS NEWS

The second session of the music seminar for the current semester will be held tomorrow in Simpson Hall between the hours of 12:30 and 1:30.

All students and members of the faculty are invited to attend.

The programme for the afternoon will open with Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata, which will be followed by Tschaikowsky's Symphony No. 4 in F Minor: Op. 36.

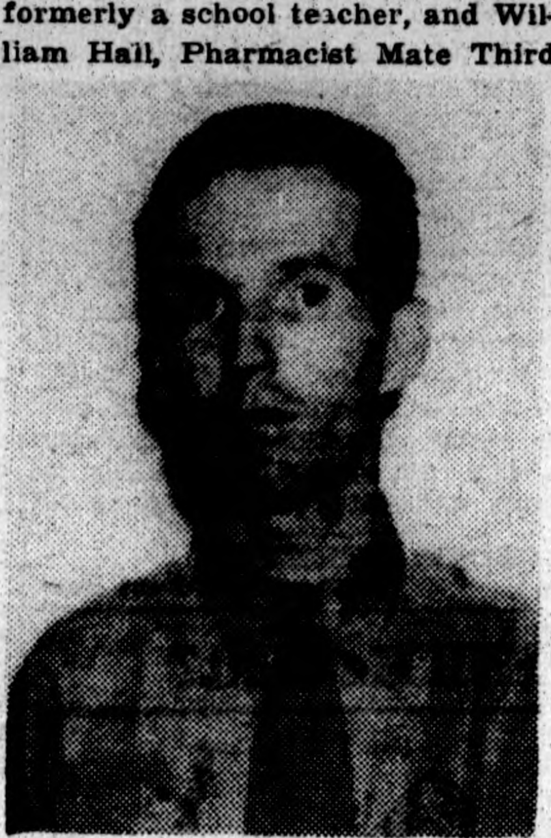
All students have been urged to settle their accounts with the 1943 Belle Air before the end of August. These accounts must be settled before copies of the Year Book can be received. A staff member will be in the Belle Air office at Room 235, Mendel Hall, between 12:00 and 1:00 every day, or John Fitzgibbons, Business Mgr., may be seen in reference to this matter.

* * *

Mr. C. R. Woodhams, employment representative of the Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation of Ft. Worth, Texas, will interview and hire engineering students here on August 26 at 9 A. M. in Room 210, Mendel Hall. For further information, contact Dean J. Stanley Morehouse.

G. I. News Routed by Cpl. McGrath; Ph. M. Hall Helps Comdr. Minnick

Versatility has been definitely demonstrated as a characteristic in the members of the Ship's Company at Villanova. Additional proof of this is afforded this week by both Corporal Charles McGrath, USMCR, formerly a school teacher, and William Hall, Pharmacist Mate Third Class, who as a civilian was an embalmer.



CPL. CHARLES A. McGRATH

Charles McGrath was born on July 8, 1916, in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. His educational background is excellent. During his first year of high school he attended St. John's in Manayunk. He completed his high school work at Beacon Prep School, Beacon, New York, where he majored in history and English.

Taught Elementary School

After graduating from Beacon Prep in 1933 he enrolled in the University of Dayton Normal School, Dayton, Ohio, and continued his studies in history and English. Two years later, he went to Northside, Pittsburgh, and taught elementary subjects at St. Mary's Parochial School. He was only eighteen years old at that time. While McGrath was there the school was turned into an auxiliary hospital, where persons injured in the Pittsburgh flood were treated.

In 1936 he left St. Mary's and returned to Dayton where he once again taught elementary subjects; this time at Our Lady of the Rosary School. Three years later, during the summer of 1939, McGrath became athletic supervisor at the Thomas Shallcross Reform School for Boys.

Employed As Clerk

From the Fall of 1939 until the middle of the following year, he assisted his father as a clerk in gasoline and air equipment repair. For the remainder of the year he was employed as a clerk in the Birth and Death Certificate Department in the City Hall at Philadelphia.

On January 12, 1942, McGrath enlisted in the United States Marine Corps Reserve. On that same day he left for Parris Island, South Carolina, the Marines' "boot" camp, where he completed his basic training. Pvt. McGrath was then transferred to the Marine barracks in Washington, D. C., which is the oldest post in the Corps.

Served As Honor Guard

For a period of three months he was on duty as an honor guard for such famous people as Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, ex-Prime Minister Chamberlain of England, and numerous others. His next post was in the Morale Office in Washington. While serving on this post, McGrath was an assistant to the Morale Officer and was put in charge of recreation.

Fifteen months later, in May, 1943, he was sent to Quantico, Virginia, on the recommendation of his superior, for training under Colonel Hanley for the V-12 Program. In June, the corporal arrived at Villanova and is now the Company Clerk in charge of external and internal communications.

Unusual Experiences Mark Flying Career Of Captain McManus

Captain J. Bradley McManus has recently established his name among the Villanova's fighting men already winning fame in the war.

McManus is an Army Air Corps man who worked his way up to the position of squadron leader before being sent overseas. His flight to England began in routine fashion, but the squadron soon encountered storms and head winds which cut down their speed and exhausted their fuel tanks. McManus, responsible for the lives of everyone in the squadron, began looking around for someplace to set down. Just as his motor "conked out," he sighted land through a rift in the clouds and signaled his men to go down for a look.

"BRAD" McMANUS

Crashes in Snow

The airmen's troubles were far from over, however, for they knew nothing of the terrain below them, except that it was covered with snow. There was of course, no time to lose, and their only chance was to try, so Brad did just that. Landing ahead of his flight with wheels down, he nosed over in the deep snow.

Profiting by their leader's experience, the remainder of the squadron landed safely with wheels up, skimming over the snow on the bellies of their planes. The men were taken out of the snowbound field, which they learned was in Greenland, and brought back to civilization on dog sleds.

Commissioned Twice

After this adventure Brad was separated from his squadron and sent to California, where he became attached to a training squadron. Shortly afterward he was commissioned a 1st Lt. and again shifted to a ferry squadron, bound this time for Africa. In Casablanca he located his original squadron and also discovered that he had received his first lieutenancy the previous November. Thus he had been commissioned a 1st Lt twice—a distinction seldom achieved, and has never had an official explanation of how it happened.

These commissions are of little consequence today, however, for McManus is now a Captain, again assigned to the training squadron in California and eager for another assignment as exciting as his previous ones.

Villanova Graduate Weds At Ceremony In College Chapel

At a quiet nuptial mass celebrated last Saturday morning at 10 o'clock in the Villanova chapel by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., Edward B. Arnade, an alumnus, married Miss Lorraine Delafrange.

Arnade is a Storekeeper, third class, in the United States Coast Guard. His bride is a graduate of Chestnut Hill College. Previously, both bride and bridegroom have been school teachers in Vineland, New Jersey.

Best man at the wedding was Edward Morin of Vineland, New Jersey, home town of Arnade. The bridesmaid was Miss Frances Colehan of Bayonne, New Jersey.

Faculty Members Assigned To Duty With C.B. Outfits

Frs. O'Donnell And Handran Hold Ranks Of Lt. And Lt. (j.g.), Respectively

Two former members of the college faculty, Lieut. (j.g.) Ralph E. Handran, Ch. C., USNR, and Lieut. Michael J. O'Donnell, Ch. C., USNR, are currently enjoying short leaves preparatory to going overseas with their respective Seabee Units in the very near future.

Lieutenant Handran entered the Navy in March, 1943. He was immediately sent to the Naval Training Station at Sampson, New York, as chaplain at the motor torpedo boat house. Later he attended the Chaplain's School at William and Mary College in Virginia, and was recently placed on active duty with the Seabees.

Former Musical Director

Before his entrance into the Navy, Fr. Handran taught both music and American literature here at Villanova. He was the moderator of the college choral society, the band, and the orchestra. He was also the director of the annual Rosemont-Villanova Glee Club recitals and the Immaculata - Villanova symphonic band concerts. In addition to his duties on the Villanova campus, Fr. Handran served as chaplain of Rosemont College from 1940 until his resignation last March.

Lieutenant Handran received his A. B. degree at Villanova in 1934, and in June, 1938 he obtained his Master of Music degree at Catholic University. He was ordained in 1937 in Washington, D. C., where he led the Augustinian Choir until the time of his appointment to Villanova College in 1938.

Promoted Recently

Fr. O'Donnell, upon his appointment and reception into the Navy in July, 1942, was commissioned a lieutenant (j.g.) Recently he was promoted to the rank of a full lieutenant

At the time of his induction Fr. O'Donnell was sent to Norfolk, Virginia for basic training. Following this he was assigned to active duty at Manhattan Beach. Like Fr. Handran he, too, is waiting to leave the country shortly with a Seabee unit.

Lieutenant O'Donnell graduated from Villanova in 1927 with an A. B. degree. For the next three years he studied at Catholic University, where he received the degree of Master of Arts in 1931.

Directed Augustinian Guild

While at Villanova, Fr. O'Donnell was associate professor in English. Besides his teaching duties, and his position as moderator of C. & F. Intramural activities, he served as director of the Augustinian Guild prior to the appointment of Rev. John J. Coffey, O. S. A., to that position.

This past Saturday Lieutenant Handran paid a brief visit to the campus, during which he reviewed the V-12 trainees at drill together with the staff officers stationed here at Villanova.

Notice

Due to the fact that most of the professors have scheduled mid-semester examinations for the early part of next week, the VILLANOVAN will conform with former policy and produce no issue next Tuesday.

Now Or Never

WITH Allied successes in both theatres of war daily giving concrete evidence that ultimate victory is to be ours, optimism on the home front is growing out of all proportion to the magnitude of the task remaining.

With such a carefree attitude toward the war increasing dangerously, it is well that the voice of someone prominent in the public view is occasionally raised on a note of warning. Such a timely admonition was the recent statement of Admiral King that one of the principal problems confronting the United Nations is that of keeping China in the war.

His words were given added force when an announcement appeared in the American press this week that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek recently turned down a peace offer from Japan, which involved a return to the territorial status prevailing in China on July 7, 1937. Such a proposal must undoubtedly have appeared attractive to many of the war-weary Chinese, and loyalty to the cause of the United Nations had to be the major factor in influencing their leaders' decision.

Why some elements among the Chinese people should favor an immediate negotiated peace with Japan (as reliable sources indicate that some undoubtedly do) may not be immediately evident to the American people, now that they see the war progressing so favorably. A consideration of some of the conditions prevalent in this backward nation will serve to clarify the situation.

To begin with, China has now battled the invader for more than six long years, and the destruction which her cities and towns, geared to the pace of centuries ago, have suffered from the might of the modern Nipponese war machine has been enough to sour the taste of brave men for further combat.

Second, and perhaps more important, is the absence of modern communication methods in the Orient. There are few radios; newspapers are scarce, and many of the people cannot read those which are in circulation.

Consequently, China's oppressed people garnered no satisfaction from the downfall of the Nazi might in Africa. They receive no day by day account of the Allied progress toward their objectives on the European continent. Correspondents from the Pacific assure us that the majority of the Chinese people do not yet know of such nearby victories as the recapture of Munda.

Any attempt to demonstrate the value of China as an ally when the day comes to begin the attack on Japan would be superfluous. The fact that China cannot successfully battle the well-equipped armies of her foe, unless her own inadequate manufacturing system is supplemented by the mass-production war machines of the United States, is equally evident.

It then becomes our responsibility to send an abundance of planes, tanks, guns, and ammunition, and—as soon as possible—troops in great force to the Chinese theater of war to begin the subjugation of Japan. Americans and Europeans may appreciate the strategy of beating Hitler first, but the Chinese people have already waited long years to see the Nipponese invaders driven back into the sea.

A MAN'S MAN

By FR. KLEKOTKA

ABOUT 16 centuries ago, long before football became a major college sport, and long before physics became a major college burden, there was a bright young boy taking his appointed courses of study. You couldn't help noticing this fellow. His teachers noticed him. Many of them had to admit — only to themselves, of course—that here was a boy who was more brilliant than his instructors, a real brain. But they weren't all agreed about him.

"He'll go far," said some of the more enthusiastic, "what a mind!" "Not he," countered the more sage, "he goes too much for the women. They'll slow him down plenty."

"Oh, I don't know," said a few, "he's really a man's man, too. Notice how the other fellows all follow his lead? He has personality plus." "Yes, but he's a bit too cocky," decided others, "and that will get him in the end. He'll be a flash in the pan—a big shot, maybe, but only in some small town."

1600 Years Ago

All these conversations were held in Latin, of course, for this was 1600 years ago, and it was in the northern coast towns of Africa, in places where today resound the steps of thousands of American soldier boys. And the men who spoke these words are forgotten today. You know how it is trying to remember men and things after 16 months. Imagine 1600 years! Yes, they're forgotten, all right. But not the boy. For that boy did go far, and he turned out to be not a flash in the pan, but one of the brightest lights the world has ever known.

This boy was named Augustine, later to become Saint Augustine, about whom Pope Pius XI of happy memory could say that he was "a man than whom, by the verdict of history, past ages produced no greater or grander in all the world." But not only the churchmen have extolled St. Augustine. Every man who has in any way become acquainted with him or his work has stopped to pay tribute to the intellectual genius of Augustine or to his electric personality and fervent heart.

Leader of Men

But it was strange about those who tried to predict Augustine's future. They couldn't agree on him, and perhaps that was because each one was right in a way. It was a long and tortuous journey of life from the boy student to the saint, and in travelling that journey Augustine experienced and did almost everything that men predicted of him and much more.

He had his "women problems" and they did slow him down, but he got over that. He was a leader of men, and he led many men the wrong way for a while, but his name later became a byword for the path of truth.

He was cocky, but he learned to be humble, and then he really made something of himself. He did become a big shot in a small town, but from that small town his voice and pen shot to the heart of men and nations, and his ideas helped to shape the destiny of Europe for hundreds of years to come.

Gives Life Record

The story of this eventful life has been left to us by Augustine himself in his "Confessions." This remarkable work has given renewed hope, courage, and understanding to untold numbers of readers, who have felt the warmth of Augustine's very human heart in its pages. To this day the "Confessions" of St. Augustine is second only to the Holy Scriptures in total number of copies sold, just as St. Augustine, after only the Evangelists, is the most consistently quoted man in history.

St. Augustine is best known to men, Catholic and non-Catholic, as a sublime intellectual genius. Many a scholar has followed with amazed delight Augustine's investigations into the intimacies of the Most Blessed Trinity. His writings on the difficult mysteries of predestination and grace have been given special sanction by the Catholic Church. His thoughts on human society and political philosophy helped immeasurably to form the new Europe which followed the collapse of Rome as an empire.

His sermons and discourses to the lowly town and country people of Hippo, in Africa, where he was bishop, are models of sublimity coupled with simplicity. These are some of the things which have won him renown as a Doctor and Father of the Catholic Church.

Founds Religious Orders

Perhaps less known to men, but no less dear to his own heart, was his founding of the religious life in Africa. He himself formed several communities of men dedicated to the service of God in prayer, study, and charity. The foundation he laid has lasted through the centuries, and the rule of life he gave his religious associates continues to be

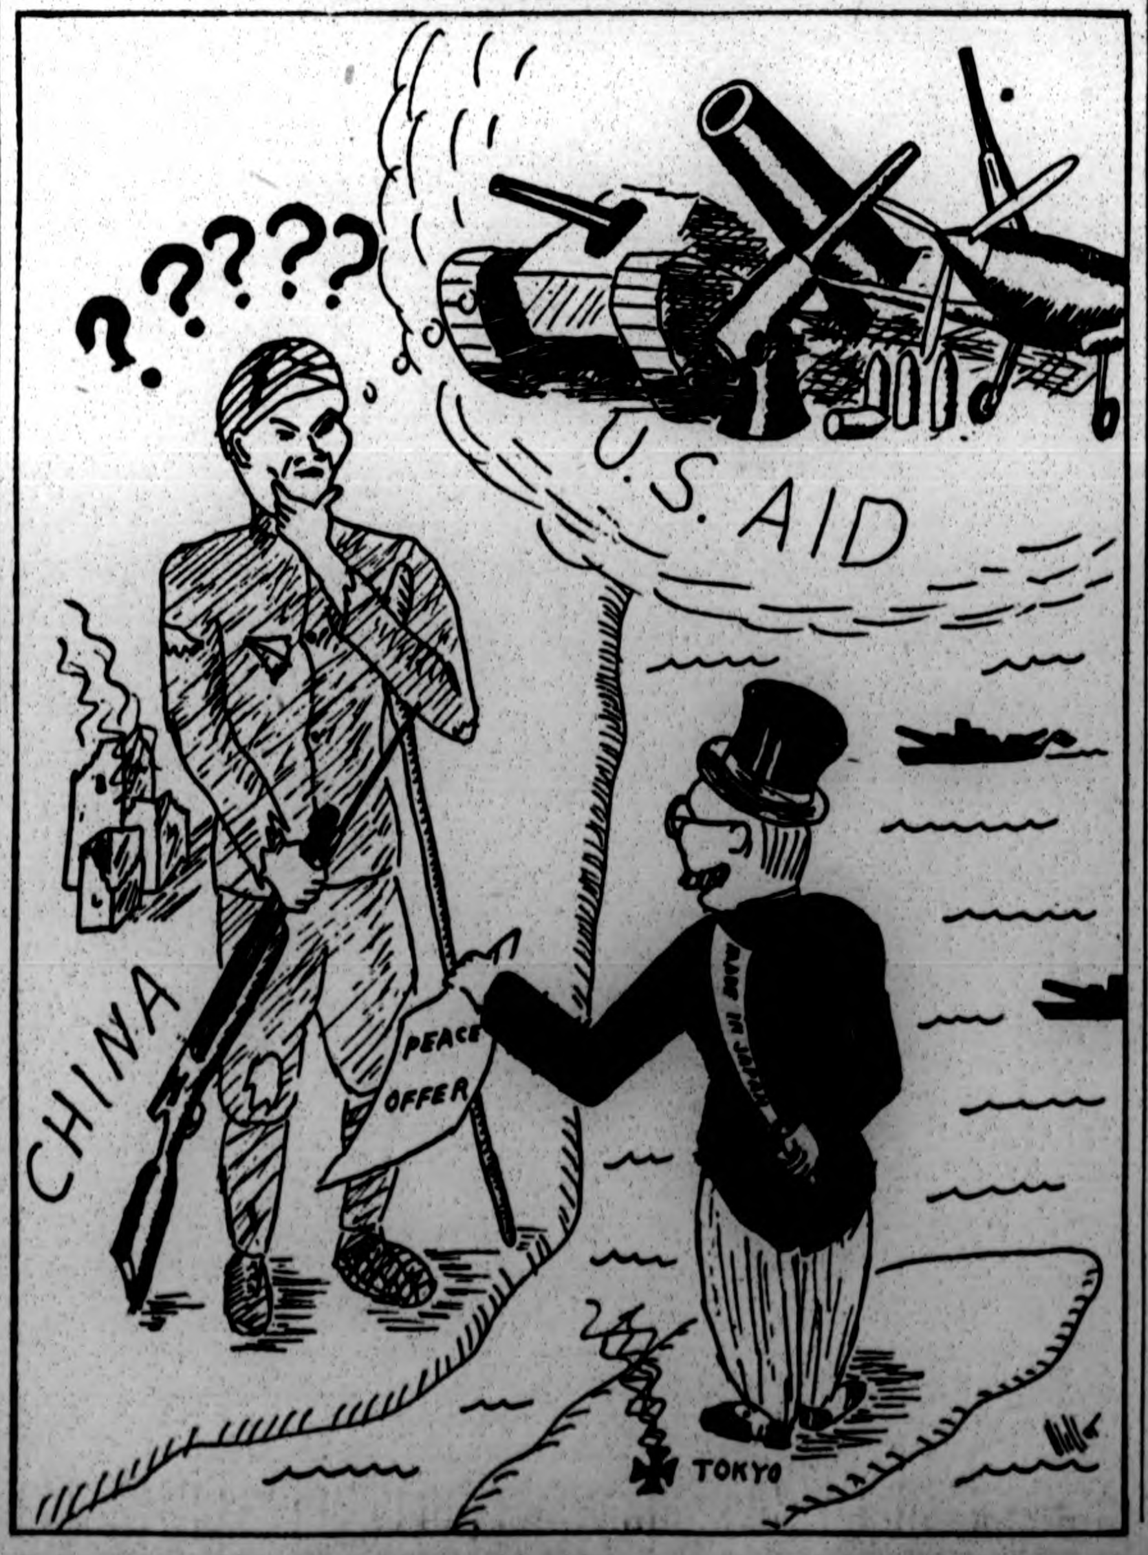
How Much Longer Will He Wait?



'CAT CAPERS

by BILL SWAN

THE TOP OF THE WEEK:

The sudden sound of a whistle shrilled through the corridors of Mendel Hall one morning of last week . . . Rounding the corner by the Info Booth we saw Fr. McQuade sounding off for all he was worth . . . Just rising to the occasion . . . announcing the end of the period . . . The bell system broke down . . . just another proof of his versatility.

THE TALK OF THE WEEK:

Perhaps the best one of the week is the tale of the way that some of the lads in Fedigan fixed the alarm clock of Jim Finnigan and his roommate Dever . . . At four o'clock it raised the roof . . . Sleepily they both rolled out, jumped into the uniform, and started to hurry out for reville . . . It wasn't too long before they discovered that things were too quiet . . . The sudden realization and awakening that something was all wrong.

The regular phone calls that come in at Alumni each night around ten o'clock from Betty to Joe . . . The amount of mail that Joe Carey receives each and every day . . . The big greetings that Charlie Wilcox received at the Immaculata shindig . . . Jim Daly and June seen at the local bistro . . . The way that John Kennedy and Oscar Hinski made their way back from the college on the hill . . . The way that Tom Delehanty seems to find someone that knows him well wherever he goes.

THE THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:

Jack had money—Jill had nil.
Jill married Jack—so Jack had Jill.
Jill went to Reno—now she is back.
Jack has nothing — Jill has jack.

THE CRACKS OF THE WEEK:

Doug "I am twenty-one in November" Boyd seen on his way to Huntington Valley . . . Greg "Privalone" D'Angelo being embarrassed no end in the Physics lab upon discovering an ever so neat engagement announcement linking he and Patsy . . . "Don't look at the red leather frame — feature the girl" . . . John Fetting . . . "Someday I learn how to operate a cigarette machine" . . . Wally Brannigan. "Neat place that New York" . . . Larry Bradley—one of the brethren from Maine.

THE BOTTOM OF THE WEEK:

Was struck when that restriction list for the residents appeared on the boards . . . Just listening, comments such as these reached our ears . . . "Oh Brother!" . . . "That's the best one yet!" . . . "This is worth fighting for" . . . "Neat way to spend our tuition."

Entering a few of the upperclassmen's rooms the talk was universal . . . Said Joe Higgins . . . "Legislation without representation" . . . Chimed in roomie Hugh Wells — "Restrictions? O. K. but how about some of those Saturday evening benefits a la military" . . . Quipped Jack Cella "As the Roman gladiators used to say —— Ave Caesar! Nos moratari sunt. Salute" . . . "We could have used one of Fr. McGuire's man to man talks" . . . Ed Lucas. Helped out by Mike Rocket "O. K. for discipline reasons, but—you can show a student a book but you can't make him study."

Even the lowly Frosh had something to say . . . Al Dumsa "This reminds me of prep days" . . . A few others added their thoughts . . . "When a fellow gets to college he should know what the story is; and, if he doesn't stay on the ball, he is not college material." . . . "Why not suggest respectfully that a meeting be held to discuss the purpose of such a movement?" . . . "What happened to the Student Council?"

This, by far, was the biggest thing to hit the campus in a long time. "C'est la guerre" could not even be applied in this case!

Special Athletic Week Planned

All-Star Teams To Be Formed; Marines To Play Navy And Civilians

There will be a complete cessation of intramural sports during the week of August 22. This is done in order that the students may have more time to study for their exams. However, all the after-dinner athletes better keep in trim during the following two weeks as a series of special events will be held.

Stars to Be Tough

The Marine All-Stars or Marine "A' team has been going great lately and has not as yet bowed its head under the bludgeonings of opposition. But nevertheless, it is the popular opinion that a game between the Commandos and a Navy All-Star team would be of great interest. To prove this, a clash between the two will be one of the special events mentioned above. The all stellar Bluejacket squad may contain such outstanding players as Gordon Mueller, Joe Mahalek, and George Warner of Fedigan; Winters, Sondheimer, Borshki, and Costello of Mendel; and Moser and Pula of Alumni. Dom Famiano of Mendel will probably be the Sailors' pitcher. Gordon Mueller, flashy fielder for Fedigan, may play in the field or first base for the Bluejackets, since he can play equally well in either position. The Marines are certainly due for a tough if not heartbreaking day. The Students team will probably play the winner of this long awaited contest to determine the champions of the college.

Hardball Also Planned

Although no exact time has been set, there will be an all-star swimming meet among the Marines, Navy, and Civilian students. The date depends on the day that the new diving boards will arrive and probably, although not definitely, they will arrive before the two-week special event period (August 29 to September 12).

There will also be a hardball all-star set-up during this period among the big three of the campus—the Navy, Marines, and Civilians.

The exact dates of these contests have not as yet been decided and it is advisable to consult your local bulletin board for further information.

Villanova Track Team Cops Third

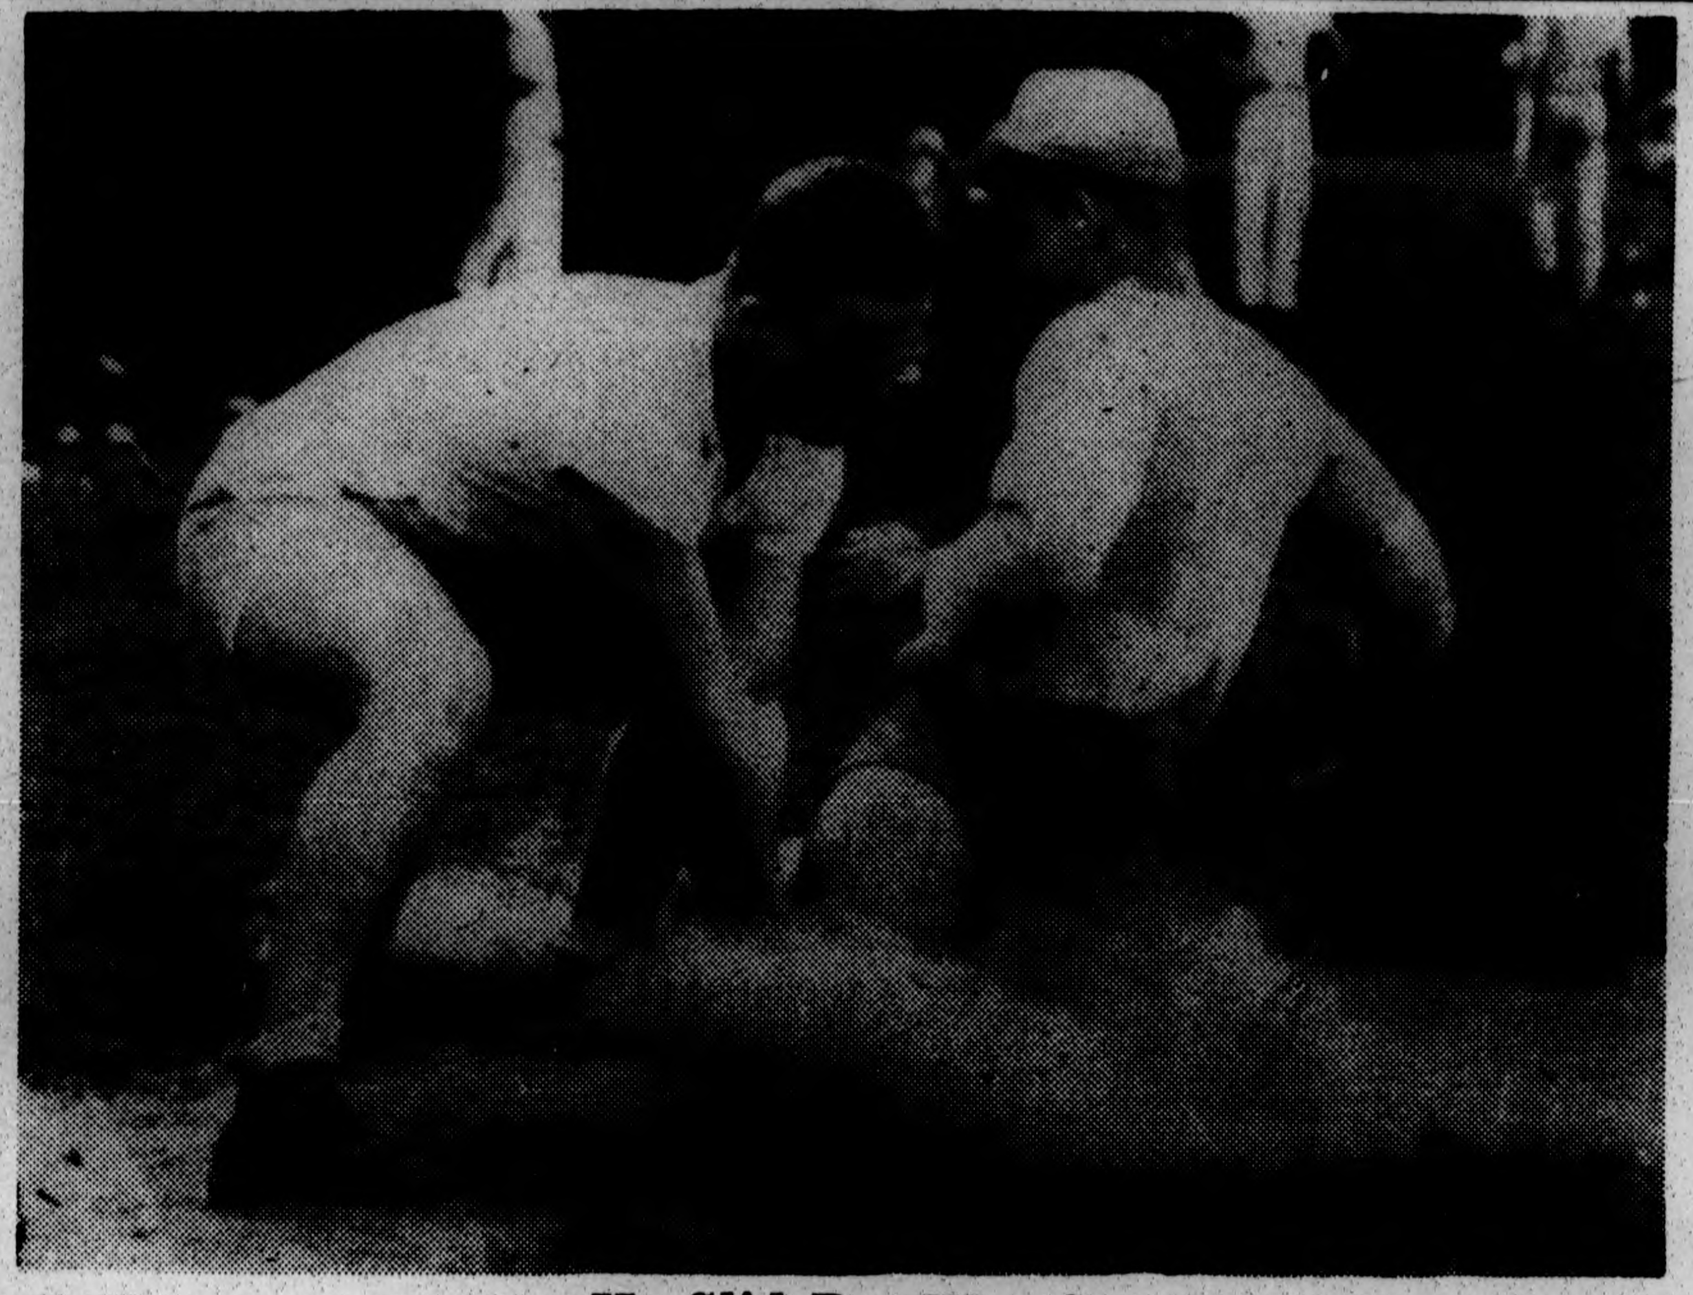
Entering a large, accomplished field of track stars, Villanova's track team registered a brilliant third in the Middle Atlantic A. A. U. meet held last Saturday night. The meet, sponsored by Shanahan C. C., was held in Philadelphia at the Drexel Tech Field, 46th and Haverford Ave. The team, consisting of three V-12 trainees, Ed Fitzgerald, John Foreman and Bob Reagan, pulled a superman stunt by winning enough events to garner an amazing third in a field of sixteen entries.

Competing in four events, these men registered two firsts, two seconds, a third and a fourth to amass a team total of 19 points. Considering the number and organization of their opponents, this uncoached team made a marvelous showing.

Foreman Shines

Foreman, a transfer from Penn State under the V-12 plan, outdid himself. Personally, he secured seconds in the 440 yard dash and the 880 yard run. Then, competing in the high jump, which is out of his line, he took a fourth place. Ed Fitzgerald, a member of last year's crack relay team, garnered a brilliant first in the 440-yard dash and then came back to gain a third place in the half-mile run. Keeping up with his teammates, Bob Reagan outran the field in the stifling heat to breast the tape first in the servicemen's mile.

VILLANOVAN SPORTS



He Slid But Was Out

In the Alumni-Mendel game last Monday, the Medics' Bob Moser tried to advance to third but was put out as Borshki threw a strike to "Sparks" Winters, the Jackets' third baseman who tagged Moser for the out. The Engineers prevailed in the contest by a ten to six score, and by winning this game moved up a notch in the standings and pushed Alumni down to the next to last place.

IN view of the fact that the football team has started to practice, and that the season is just around the proverbial corner, one immediately tries to visualize what sort of team we will have, and what kind of a record it will compile. However, the mention of the word record brings to mind not so much the future, but rather the past. For this reason, we decided to look through some old records, and see just what kind of reputation the Wildcats have established.

Scanning through these, we found that the Blue and White had, at different times, engaged Princeton, who is back on the schedule this year, Army, Navy, Yale, Penn, and Fordham.

To get down to particulars, in 1907 Villanova won the Catholic college championship of the East by scoring a 15-11 win over the Fordham Rams. This was quite a feat at the time for the Alma Mater of the Wildcats was not as large as it is today. Two years later the Main Liners encountered the Midshipmen from Annapolis and emerged as the victors from a hard fought game by an 11-6 score. According to a statement in one of the Philadelphia newspapers, this was quite opposed to our usual method of "holding all big teams to a small score but not winning the games."

This last statement is illustrated very well by the Princeton game which was played in 1908. The Tigers just managed to score one touchdown, convert the extra point, and by doing so they nosed out the 'Cats 6-0.

Skipping over a few seasons to 1915, the Blue and White tangled with the West Point Cadets and stunned the sports world by coming out on top by a 16-13 score. On the

Commandos Have Winning Streak Of Fifteen Games

Marines Nose Out Mendel In Close Game; Fedigan Moves Up To Third Place By Downing Students And Alumni

By JOE DALY, A. S.

Breaking all the rules of average, the Marine Commandos are still undefeated after five weeks of play. The league leaders have now won fifteen games without a single defeat. The Resident team is still resting in second place, five and a half games behind the leaders. Alumni hit a landslide during the past week, losing three games, being dropped all the way from third to fifth place, and Fedigan and Mendel each went up a notch. The Rangers are still holding up the rest of the league as they lost three contests to move further down in the cellar.

Errors Costly

Tuesday night the Commandos, behind the six-hit pitching of Al Kasulin, downed the Fedigan Blues, eleven to five. The game was much more closely contested than the score indicates. Neither club scored in the first. The Blues, however, went into an early lead in the second as they scored four times on three hits and an error. The Marines got two of these back in their half of the second when Dzitko was safe on an error, was advanced to second on an infield out by Lopez and driven in on a double to center by Zamlynski. On the throw in, there was an error at the plate and Ziggy came all the way in. The Commandos really got rolling in the third frame as they scored four times to take the lead away from the Navy, six to four.

Al Kasulin opened the inning with a homer to left as he really laid into the first pitch that Connelly offered. Cardner kept things jumping as he singled over third. Burns then pushed him along the paths as he too hit safely. On the next play, Feeney was safe at first as McCowan tried in vain to nip Cardner at the plate. Koproski and Dzitko flied out but Lopez came through with a single, driving in Feeney and Burns with runs number five and six. The league busters

First Football Drill Held Last Friday Afternoon

Squad Put Through Light Workout On Fundamentals; Naval Athletic Staff To Aid Olivar

Football practice finally got underway here last Friday afternoon at three o'clock. Coach Jordan "Ollie" Olivar sent the new recruits through an hour and a half of light drill. Kicking, passing, following punts down the field, and drill in the fundamentals of the game constituted the practice. According to Coach Olivar the players will engage in no contact work for a week or so. This first week will be spent in limbering up and getting into shape. Assisting Ollie in his coaching job will be the four former football stars: Chief Petty Officers Beck, Cherundolo, Horgan, and Pritchard. In addition to these, Ensign S. Maniaci, Naval Athletic Director, is also lending a helping hand.

Will Use Box System

The hour for practice is still not definitely set. Temporarily it will be 3 P. M., at which hour practice was held Monday. All players may not be able to make this hour but they will come to practice as soon as they are free.

In a statement, Coach Olivar said that the team would use the Box System since the limited time available for practice would not allow a complicated style. He also said that the team would use no shift of any kind. Gone from the Villanova teams now, probably for the duration, is the famous "swing" shift for which former Wildcat aggregations were so well known.

Newcomers Present

Some of the members of last year's team who showed up for practice on Friday were: Al Postus, Gene Konopka, Joe Pezelski, Johnny Dzitko, Zig Zamlynski, Lou Lopez, Joe Koproski, Zig Gory, Milt Anderson, Billy Sullivan, Tom McCarthy and Jim Harkins. Also present were some transfers from other colleges, prominent among whom were: Bill Nealon and Al Kasulin, newcomers from Miami University and Al Coleman from St. Mary's in California. With such an array of talent of other untried material, the outlook for the coming season is reasonably promising.

Chief Pritchard Selected As An All-American Back At V. M. I.

By BOB BOLGER

The Naval V-12 Unit here at Villanova was quite fortunate in having one, Chief Specialist "Bosh" Pritchard, assigned here. Chief Pritchard was born in Windsor, North Carolina on September 10, 1919. He lived there for only four years as his family moved to Hopewell, Virginia, where he still makes his home. He completed his elementary education at this town and then attended Hopewell High School. The Chief made himself known as soon as he started his high school training. In his first year at Hopewell he won four varsity letters, in football, basketball, baseball and track. The next three years found the Chief repeating his initial performance and he garnered a total of sixteen varsity letters. This was indeed quite a feat but it was not all. He was chosen in the second string backfield for the All-State team in his sophomore year and the next two years saw him as a first team selectee. The Chief was also All-State in basketball for two years as well as being chosen captain of the All-Central District team of Virginia.

Anchor Man

Being graduated from Hopewell High, Chief Pritchard matriculated at the famous southern military college, Virginia Military Institute. In his freshman year he attained four letters in the same sports as in high school. In his second year

Now Or Never

WITH Allied successes in both theatres of war daily giving concrete evidence that ultimate victory is to be ours, optimism on the home front is growing out of all proportion to the magnitude of the task remaining.

With such a carefree attitude toward the war increasing dangerously, it is well that the voice of someone prominent in the public view is occasionally raised on a note of warning. Such a timely admonition was the recent statement of Admiral King that one of the principal problems confronting the United Nations is that of keeping China in the war.

His words were given added force when an announcement appeared in the American press this week that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek recently turned down a peace offer from Japan, which involved a return to the territorial status prevailing in China on July 7, 1937. Such a proposal must undoubtedly have appeared attractive to many of the war-weary Chinese, and loyalty to the cause of the United Nations had to be the major factor in influencing their leaders' decision.

Why some elements among the Chinese people should favor an immediate negotiated peace with Japan (as reliable sources indicate that some undoubtedly do) may not be immediately evident to the American people, now that they see the war progressing so favorably. A consideration of some of the conditions prevalent in this backward nation will serve to clarify the situation.

To begin with, China has now battled the invader for more than six long years, and the destruction which her cities and towns, geared to the pace of centuries ago, have suffered from the might of the modern Nipponese war machine has been enough to sour the taste of brave men for further combat.

Second, and perhaps more important, is the absence of modern communication methods in the Orient. There are few radios; newspapers are scarce, and many of the people cannot read those which are in circulation.

Consequently, China's oppressed people garnered no satisfaction from the downfall of the Nazi might in Africa. They receive no day by day account of the Allied progress toward their objectives on the European continent. Correspondents from the Pacific assure us that the majority of the Chinese people do not yet know of such nearby victories as the recapture of Munda.

Any attempt to demonstrate the value of China as an ally when the day comes to begin the attack on Japan would be superfluous. The fact that China cannot successfully battle the well-equipped armies of her foe, unless her own inadequate manufacturing system is supplemented by the mass-production war machines of the United States, is equally evident.

It then becomes our responsibility to send an abundance of planes, tanks, guns, and ammunition, and—as soon as possible—troops in great force to the Chinese theater of war to begin the subjugation of Japan. Americans and Europeans may appreciate the strategy of beating Hitler first, but the Chinese people have already waited long years to see the Nipponese invaders driven back into the sea.

A MAN'S MAN

By FR. KLEKOTKA

ABOUT 16 centuries ago, long before football became a major college sport, and long before physics became a major college burden, there was a bright young boy taking his appointed courses of study. You couldn't help noticing this fellow. His teachers noticed him. Many of them had to admit — only to themselves, of course—that here was a boy who was more brilliant than his instructors, a real brain. But they weren't all agreed about him.

"He'll go far," said some of the more enthusiastic, "what a mind!" "Not he," countered the more sage, "he goes too much for the women. They'll slow him down plenty."

"Oh, I don't know," said a few, "he's really a man's man, too. Notice how the other fellows all follow his lead? He has personality plus." "Yes, but he's a bit too cocky," decided others, "and that will get him in the end. He'll be a flash in the pan—a big shot, maybe, but only in some small town."

1600 Years Ago

All these conversations were held in Latin, of course, for this was 1600 years ago, and it was in the northern coast towns of Africa, in places where today resound the steps of thousands of American soldier boys. And the men who spoke these words are forgotten today. You know how it is trying to remember men and things after 16 months. Imagine 1600 years! Yes, they're forgotten, all right. But not the boy. For that boy did go far, and he turned out to be not a flash in the pan, but one of the brightest lights the world has ever known.

This boy was named Augustine, later to become Saint Augustine, about whom Pope Pius XI of happy memory could say that he was "a man than whom, by the verdict of history, past ages produced no greater or grander in all the world." But not only the churchmen have extolled St. Augustine. Every man who has in any way become acquainted with him or his work has stopped to pay tribute to the intellectual genius of Augustine or to his electric personality and fervent heart.

Leader of Men

But it was strange about those who tried to predict Augustine's future. They couldn't agree on him, and perhaps that was because each one was right in a way. It was a long and tortuous journey of life from the boy student to the saint, and in travelling that journey Augustine experienced and did almost everything that men predicted of him and much more.

He had his "women problems" and they did slow him down, but he got over that. He was a leader of men, and he led many men the wrong way for a while, but his name later became a byword for the path of truth.

He was cocky, but he learned to be humble, and then he really made something of himself. He did become a big shot in a small town, but from that small town his voice and pen shot to the heart of men and nations, and his ideas helped to shape the destiny of Europe for hundreds of years to come.

Gives Life Record

The story of this eventful life has been left to us by Augustine himself in his "Confessions." This remarkable work has given renewed hope, courage, and understanding to untold numbers of readers, who have felt the warmth of Augustine's very human heart in its pages. To this day the "Confessions" of St. Augustine is second only to the Holy Scriptures in total number of copies sold, just as St. Augustine, after only the Evangelists, is the most consistently quoted man in history.

St. Augustine is best known to men, Catholic and non-Catholic, as a sublime intellectual genius. Many a scholar has followed with amazed delight Augustine's investigations into the intimacies of the Most Blessed Trinity. His writings on the difficult mysteries of predestination and grace have been given special sanction by the Catholic Church. His thoughts on human society and political philosophy helped immeasurably to form the new Europe which followed the collapse of Rome as an empire.

His sermons and discourses to the lowly town and country people of Hippo, in Africa, where he was bishop, are models of sublimity coupled with simplicity. These are some of the things which have won him renown as a Doctor and Father of the Catholic Church.

Founds Religious Orders

Perhaps less known to men, but no less dear to his own heart, was his founding of the religious life in Africa. He himself formed several communities of men dedicated to the service of God in prayer, study, and charity. The foundation he laid has lasted through the centuries, and the rule of life he gave his religious associates continues to be

by BILL SWAN

THE TOP OF THE WEEK:

The sudden sound of a whistle shrilled through the corridors of Mendel Hall one morning of last week . . . Rounding the corner by the Info Booth we saw Fr. McQuade sounding off for all he was worth . . . Just rising to the occasion . . . announcing the end of the period . . . The bell system broke down . . . just another proof of his versatility.

THE TALK OF THE WEEK:

Perhaps the best one of the week is the tale of the way that some of the lads in Fedigan fixed the alarm clock of Jim Finnigan and his roommate Dever . . . At four o'clock it raised the roof . . . Sleepily they both rolled out, jumped into the uniform, and started to hurry out for reville . . . It wasn't too long before they discovered that things were too quiet . . . The sudden realization and awakening that something was all wrong.

The regular phone calls that come in at Alumni each night around ten o'clock from Betty to Joe . . . The amount of mail that Joe Carey receives each and every day . . . The big greetings that Charlie Wilcox received at the Immaculata shindig . . . Jim Daly and June seen at the local bistro . . . The way that John Kennedy and Oscar Hinski made their way back from the college on the hill . . . The way that Tom Delehanty seems to find someone that knows him well wherever he goes.

THE THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:

Jack had money—Jill had nil.
Jill married Jack—so Jack had Jill.
Jill went to Reno—now she is back.
Jack has nothing — Jill has jack.

THE CRACKS OF THE WEEK:

Doug "I am twenty-one in November" Boyd seen on his way to Huntington Valley . . . Greg "Privalone" D'Angelo being embarrassed no end in the Physics lab upon discovering an ever so neat engagement announcement linking he and Patsy . . . "Don't look at the red leather frame — feature the girl" . . . John Fetting . . . "Someday I learn how to operate a cigarette machine" . . . Wally Brannigan. "Neat place that New York" . . . Larry Bradley—one of the brethren from Maine.

Was struck when that restriction list for the residents appeared on the boards . . . Just listening, comments such as these reached our ears . . . "Oh Brother!" . . . "That's the best one yet!" . . . "This is worth fighting for" . . . "Neat way to spend our tuition."

Entering a few of the upperclassmen's rooms the talk was universal . . . Said Joe Higgins . . . "Legislation without representation" . . . Chimed in roomie Hugh Wells — "Restrictions? O. K. but how about some of those Saturday evening benefits a la military" . . . Quipped Jack Cella "As the Roman gladiators used to say — Ave Caesar! Nos moratari sunt. Salute" . . . "We could have used one of Fr. McGuire's man to man talks" . . . Ed Lucas. Helped out by Mike Rocket "O. K. for discipline reasons, but—you can show a student a book but you can't make him study."

Even the lowly Frosh had something to say . . . Al Dumsa "This reminds me of prep days" . . . A few others added their thoughts . . . "When a fellow gets to college he should know what the story is; and, if he doesn't stay on the ball, he is not college material." . . . "Why not suggest respectfully that a meeting be held to discuss the purpose of such a movement?" . . . "What happened to the Student Council?"

This, by far, was the biggest thing to hit the campus in a long time. "C'est la guerre" could not even be applied in this case!

Special Athletic Week Planned

All-Star Teams To Be Formed; Marines To Play Navy And Civilians

There will be a complete cessation of intramural sports during the week of August 22. This is done in order that the students may have more time to study for their exams. However, all the after-dinner athletes better keep in trim during the following two weeks as a series of special events will be held.

Stars to Be Tough

The Marine All-Stars or Marine "A" team has been going great lately and has not as yet bowed its head under the bludgeonings of opposition. But nevertheless, it is the popular opinion that a game between the Commandos and a Navy All-Star team would be of great interest. To prove this, a clash between the two will be one of the special events mentioned above. The all stellar Bluejacket squad may contain such outstanding players as Gordon Mueller, Joe Mahalek, and George Warner of Fedigan; Winters, Sondheimer, Borshki, and Costello of Mendel; and Moser and Pula of Alumni. Dom Famiano of Mendel will probably be the Sailors' pitcher. Gordon Mueller, flashy fielder for Fedigan, may play in the field or first base for the Bluejackets, since he can play equally well in either position. The Marines are certainly due for a tough if not heartbreaking day. The Students team will probably play the winner of this long awaited contest to determine the champions of the college.

Hardball Also Planned

Although no exact time has been set, there will be an all-star swimming meet among the Marines, Navy, and Civilian students. The date depends on the day that the new diving boards will arrive and probably, although not definitely, they will arrive before the two-week special event period (August 29 to September 12).

There will also be a hardball all-star set-up during this period among the big three of the campus—the Navy, Marines, and Civilians.

The exact dates of these contests have not as yet been decided and it is advisable to consult your local bulletin board for further information.

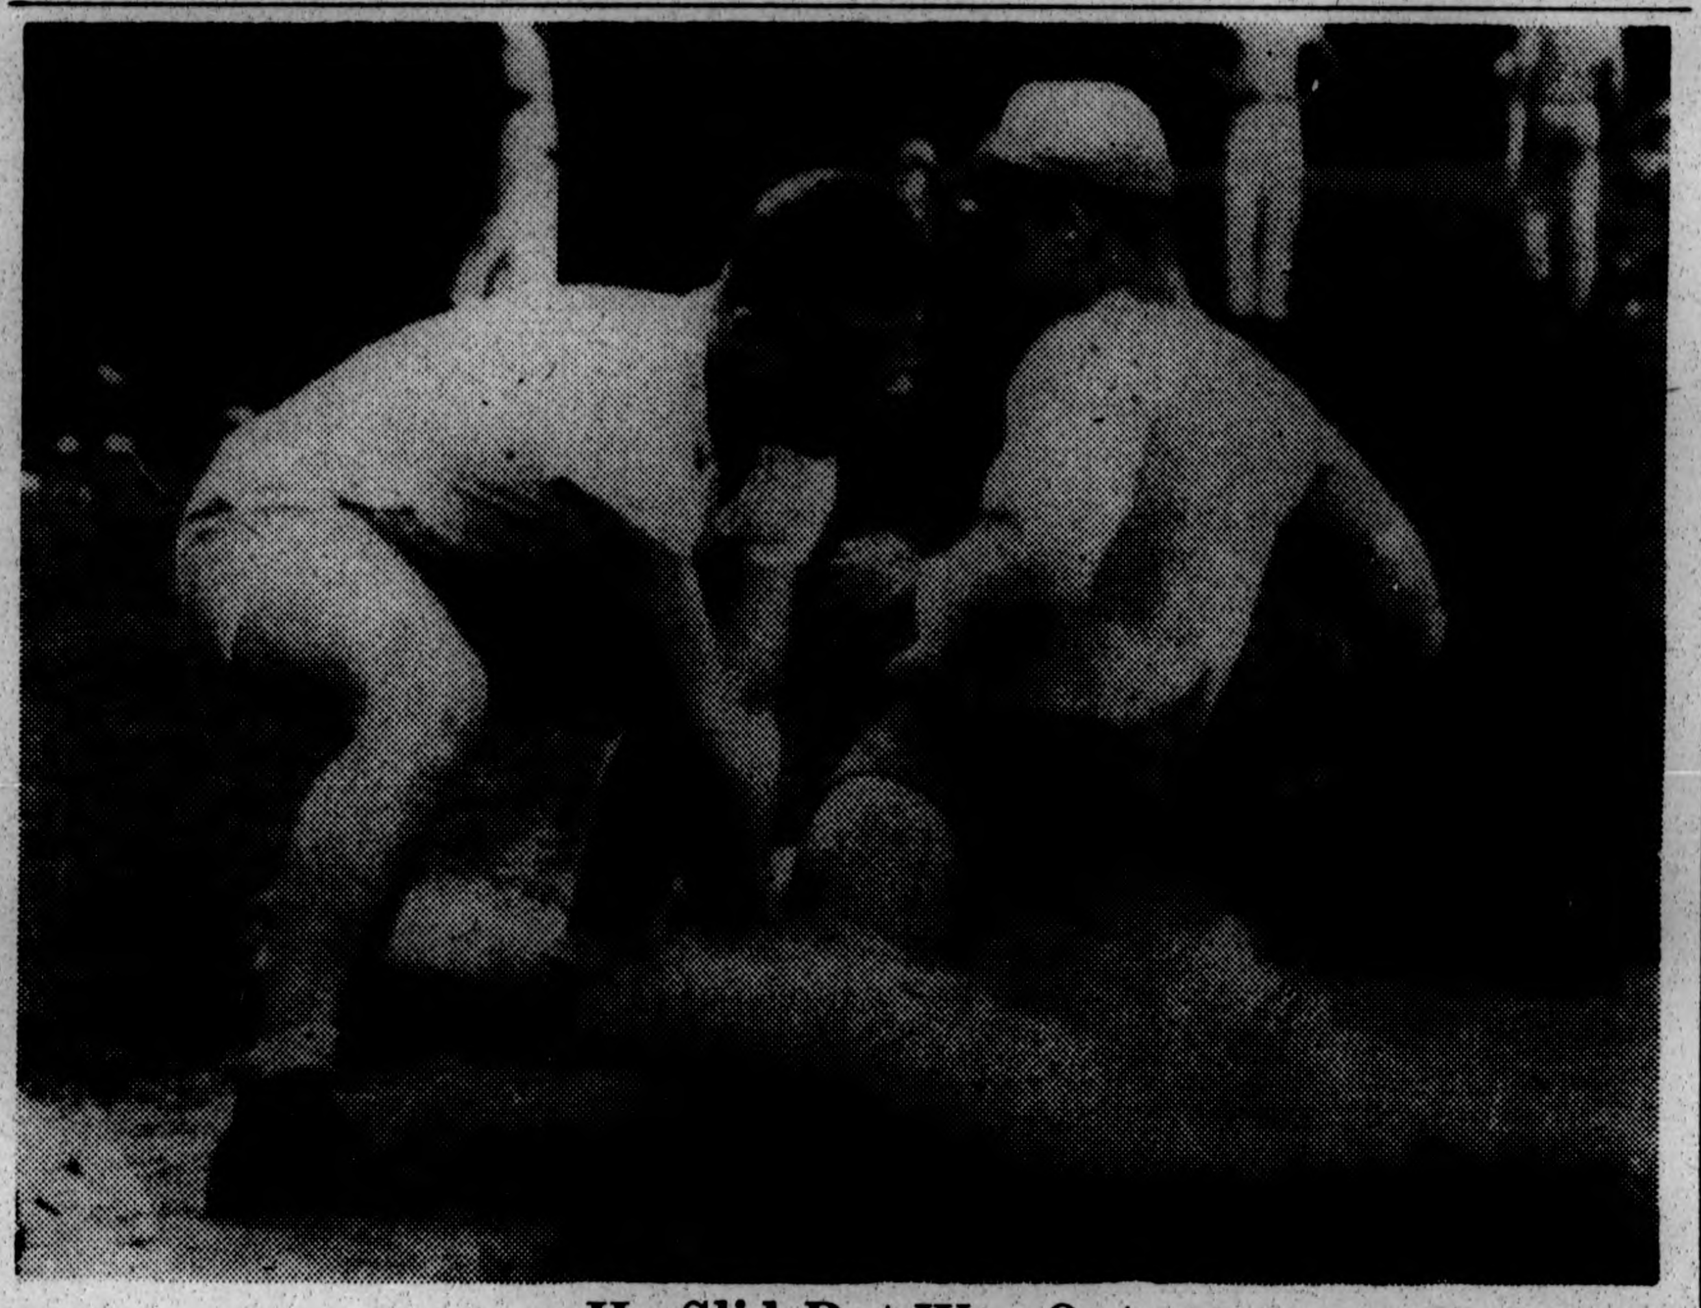
Villanova Track Team Cops Third

Entering a large, accomplished field of track stars, Villanova's track team registered a brilliant third in the Middle Atlantic A. A. U. meet held last Saturday night. The meet, sponsored by Shanahan C. C., was held in Philadelphia at the Drexel Tech Field, 46th and Haverford Ave. The team, consisting of three V-12 trainees, Ed Fitzgerald, John Foreman and Bob Reagan, pulled a superman stunt by winning enough events to garner an amazing third in a field of sixteen entries.

Competing in four events, these men registered two firsts, two seconds, a third and a fourth to amass a team total of 19 points. Considering the number and organization of their opponents, this uncoached team made a marvelous showing.

Foreman Shines

Foreman, a transfer from Penn State under the V-12 plan, outdid himself. Personally, he secured seconds in the 440 yard dash and the 880 yard run. Then, competing in the high jump, which is out of his line, he took a fourth place. Ed Fitzgerald, a member of last year's crack relay team, garnered a brilliant first in the 440-yard dash and then came back to gain a third place in the half-mile run. Keeping up with his teammates, Bob Reagan outran the field in the stifling heat to breast the tape first in the servicemen's mile.



He Slid But Was Out

In the Alumni-Mendel game last Monday, the Medics' Bob Moser tried to advance to third but was put out as Borshki threw a strike to "Sparks" Winters, the Jackets' third baseman who tagged Moser for the out. The Engineers prevailed in the contest by a ten to six score, and by winning this game moved up a notch in the standings and pushed Alumni down to the next to last place.

IN view of the fact that the football team has started to practice, and that the season is just around the proverbial corner, one immediately tries to visualize what sort of team we will have, and what kind of a record it will compile. However, the mention of the word record brings to mind not so much the future, but rather the past. For this reason, we decided to look through some old records, and see just what kind of reputation the Wildcats have established.

Scanning through these, we found that the Blue and White had, at different times, engaged Princeton, who is back on the schedule this year, Army, Navy, Yale, Penn, and Fordham.

To get down to particulars, in 1907 Villanova won the Catholic college championship of the East by scoring a 15-11 win over the Fordham Rams. This was quite a feat at the time for the Alma Mater of the Wildcats was not as large as it is today. Two years later the Main Liners encountered the Midshipmen from Annapolis and emerged as the victors from a hard fought game by an 11-6 score. According to a statement in one of the Philadelphia newspapers, this was quite opposed to our usual method of "holding all big teams to a small score but not winning the games."

This last statement is illustrated very well by the Princeton game which was played in 1908. The Tigers just managed to score one touchdown, convert the extra point, and by doing so they nosed out the 'Cats 6-0.

Skipping over a few seasons to 1915, the Blue and White tangled with the West Point Cadets and stunned the sports world by coming out on top by a 16-13 score. On the

Commandos Have Winning Streak Of Fifteen Games

Marines Nose Out Mendel In Close Game; Fedigan Moves Up To Third Place By Downing Students And Alumni

By JOE DALY, A. S.

Breaking all the rules of average, the Marine Commandos are still undefeated after five weeks of play. The league leaders have now won fifteen games without a single defeat. The Resident team is still resting in second place, five and a half games behind the leaders. Alumni hit a landslide during the past week, losing three games, being dropped all the way from third to fifth place, and Fedigan and Mendel each went up a notch. The Rangers are still holding up the rest of the league as they lost three contests to move further down in the cellar.

Errors Costly

Tuesday night the Commandos, behind the six-hit pitching of Al Kasulin, downed the Fedigan Blues, eleven to five. The game was much more closely contested than the score indicates. Neither club scored in the first. The Blues, however, went into an early lead in the second as they scored four times on three hits and an error. The Marines got two of these back in their half of the second when Dzitko was safe on an error, was advanced to second on an infield out by Lopez and driven in on a double to center by Zamlynski. On the throw in, there was an error at the plate and Ziggy came all the way in. The Commandos really got rolling in the third frame as they scored four times to take the lead away from the Navy, six to four.

Al Kasulin opened the inning with a homer to left as he really laid into the first pitch that Connelly offered. Cardner kept things jumping as he singled over third. Burns then pushed him along the paths as he too hit safely. On the next play, Feeney was safe at first as McCowan tried in vain to nip Cardner at the plate. Koproski and Dzitko flied out but Lopez came through with a single, driving in Feeney and Burns with runs number five and six. The league busters

Squad Put Through Light Workout On Fundamentals; Naval Athletic Staff To Aid Olivar

Football practice finally got underway here last Friday afternoon at three o'clock. Coach Jordan "Ollie" Olivar sent the new recruits through an hour and a half of light drill. Kicking, passing, following punts down the field, and drill in the fundamentals of the game constituted the practice. According to Coach Olivar the players will engage in no contact work for a week or so. This first week will be spent in limbering up and getting into shape. Assisting Ollie in his coaching job will be the four former football stars: Chief Petty Officers Beck, Cherundolo, Horgan, and Pritchard. In addition to these, Ensign S. Maniaci, Naval Athletic Director, is also lending a helping hand.

Will Use Box System

The hour for practice is still not definitely set. Temporarily it will be 3 P. M., at which hour practice was held Monday. All players may not be able to make this hour but they will come to practice as soon as they are free.

In a statement, Coach Olivar said that the team would use the Box System since the limited time available for practice would not allow a complicated style. He also said that the team would use no shift of any kind. Gone from the Villanova teams now, probably for the duration, is the famous "swing" shift for which former Wildcat aggregations were so well known.

Newcomers Present

Some of the members of last year's team who showed up for practice on Friday were: Al Postus, Gene Konopka, Joe Pezelski, Johnny Dzitko, Zig Zamlynski, Lou Lopez, Joe Koproski, Zig Gory, Milt Anderson, Billy Sullivan, Tom McCarthy and Jim Harkins. Also present were some transfers from other colleges, prominent among whom were: Bill Nealon and Al Kasulin, newcomers from Miami University and Al Coleman from St. Mary's in California. With such an array of talent of other untried material, the outlook for the coming season is reasonably promising.

Chief Pritchard Selected As An All-American Back At V. M. I.

By BOB BOLGER

The Naval V-12 Unit here at Villanova was quite fortunate in having one, Chief Specialist "Bosh" Pritchard, assigned here. Chief Pritchard was born in Windsor, North Carolina on September 10, 1919. He lived there for only four years as his family moved to Hopewell, Virginia, where he still makes his home. He completed his elementary education at this town and then attended Hopewell High School. The Chief made himself known as soon as he started his high school training. In his first year at Hopewell he won four varsity letters, in football, basketball, baseball and track. The next three years found the Chief repeating his initial performance and he garnered a total of sixteen varsity letters. This was indeed quite a feat but it was not all. He was chosen in the second string backfield for the All-State team in his sophomore year and the next two years saw him as a first team selectee. The Chief was also All-State in basketball for two years as well as being chosen captain of the All-Central District team of Virginia.

Anchor Man

Being graduated from Hopewell High, Chief Pritchard matriculated at the famous southern military college, Virginia Military Institute. In his freshman year he attained four letters in the same sports as in high school. In his second year

Meet The Boys:

By TOM WELCH, A.S.

With The 150's Red Earned A "V," Bill Acts As Chairman For A. S. M. E.

First one up to the microphone for an interview this week is James "Reds" Cahill, who hails from across the Delaware. He was born in Hackensack, New Jersey, on January 27, 1921.

He started on the road to knowledge at Saint Joseph's grammar school, and then proceeded to Saint Cecilia High School in Englewood. Here Jim developed into a shifty, hard-running halfback. He played three years of varsity football for Saint Cecilia's—a school which is well known in New Jersey for its championship teams.

Joined Phi Kappa Pi

Entering Villanova in the Fall of 1940, Cahill registered under the Mechanical Engineering curriculum. Like all good freshman engineers, he was appropriately "wacked" into the Phi Kappa Pi engineering fraternity.

Carrying his football ability to Villanova, "Reds" played three years on the 150 pound team. During his first two years he filled the fullback slot, while in the last season, he returned to his familiar post as halfback.

150 lb. Football Star

An interesting point here, is that "Reds" scored the touchdown that defeated Rutgers 7 to 2, and gave the 150's their only victory out of four games last season.

Besides his football ability, Cahill has excelled in all Intramural Sports on the campus from softball to boxing. He gained further recognition as an athlete by his being selected to the Intramural All-Star hardball team last year.

Pinochle Promoter

Along with these many extra-curricular activities, Jim always finds time to meet with the "birds from Good Counsel Hall" to engage in a strenuous bridge or pinochle contest. In fact a scheduled game was interrupted to gather these jottings.

"Reds" is just as busy off the campus as on it. "I head for the shore each weekend . . . just for the likeable atmosphere — and I usually make it."

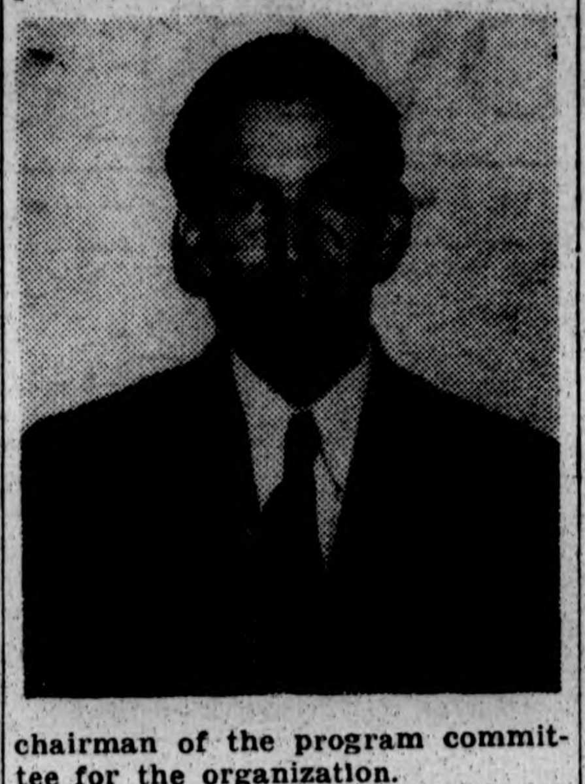
Next to be introduced is William J. Doyle, a mighty mite in extracurricular activities about the campus. He was born in Overbrook, near Philadelphia, on February 27, 1923, but his family later moved to Germantown where he now resides.

After completing eight years of grammar school at Benilde Academy, Bill entered La Salle High School. Here his spare time was consumed with Intramural sports and his work as a member of the staff of the Wisterian — the school monthly. He graduated from there in 1940.

Chooses Mechanical Engineering

The next semester found Bill registered in the Mechanical Engineering department at Villanova. As a freshman, he was welcomed to the smoker and initiation of the Phi Kappa Pi.

In his sophomore year he joined the college branch of ahe American Society of Mechanical Engineers. He was elected secretary and treasurer in his junior year, and at the present time, Doyle is serving as chairman of the program committee for the organization.



Bowled With P. K. P.

Along with this, Bill is a member of the Phi Kappa Pi bowling league. He has served on the P. K. P. smoker and initiation committee and also on the committee for the A. S. M. E. annual convention. Bill is also a member of the circulation staff of the Villanova Engineer.

In his free time (where does he get it?) Bill plays Intramural sports. At the present, he plays with the Cardinals in the Day Hop softball league. And of course, he is a member of the day hop "bridge club" which has its daily seminar on the lawn before the softball tilts.

Villanova team of that year was a player by the name of McGuckin. This boy had quite a knack as a drop-kicker and was among the best in the country at a time when kicking played more of a major part in winning games than it does today.

Finally, we arrive at the present only to find an unknown quantity. Just how this year's team will make out is anybody's guess, but we're willing to go on the records as saying they will be out on the field living up to their name of the Wildcats, and that is all that can be asked of any team.

followed to this day throughout the world, principally in the Order of St. Augustine, founders and teachers of Villanova College.

How is it that the boy Augustine who for so many years wandered in seemingly aimless mediocrity became in time the brilliant star in the heavens of civilization he is today? Certainly we must say that this is due to the far-seeing Providence of God Who chose to make of St. Augustine so remarkable an instrument for promoting His glory.

Loved the Truth

But, under God, the greatness of Augustine can be ascribed to his irrepressible passion for truth. To this he added a humble submission to the authority of God through the Catholic Church and an ardent charity for all men, whom he considered as the brothers of Christ.

The feast day of St. Augustine, Father of the Augustinian Order, is celebrated by the Catholic Church on August 28. We who are students today might do well to honor this great student of the fourth century. And though we may not have been chosen by the Providence of God to Augustine's prominece, at least we can most profitably imitate his passion for the truth, his humility and his charity towards God and man. Doing this, we will have done our share, at least in a modest way, to help improve the shape of the things to come.

although it is obvious that parental cooperation will be required.

Q.—Is not this a clear case of regimentation and is such regimentation justified?

A.—Personally, I do not think of this as regimentation, but for the sake of argument I would be willing to concede the term. It is my conviction that all Americans, whether in uniform or not, have an obligation to work together for the winning of this war. In a sense this requires more or less regimentation. By reason of the Selective Service Law every able-bodied man from 18 to 45 is liable to military service in the prosecution of this war. Deferment is granted for certain occupations necessary in a total war effort. Certain classes of students are considered to be in this category, but no young man has the right to be in college during the present war unless he has the ability to do college work successfully and unless he diligently applies himself to that work. If a young man lacks the ability, or having the ability, fails to apply himself, that young man has no business in college. He should apply at once for service with the armed forces or he should secure a job in war production.

was engaged as an embalmer for a New York funeral parlor. This association was maintained for fifteen years.

Assigned to the Naval Hospital

On March 3, 1943, Hall's determination that the Navy was the place for him was made definite. Upon his enlistment, he was assigned to the Philadelphia Naval Hospital for additional training. On June 1st he was ordered to report to Villanova for duty as an assistant to Commander William T. Minnick, USN (Ret.)

Villanova proved to be familiar territory for Pharmacist Mate Hall, for he had lived on the Main Line for nearly twenty years. During that time he established quite a reputation in local baseball circles by playing for both Rosemont and Bryn Mawr. "Lefty", as most of the old-timers will remember him, was a pitcher of no little skill, and when not pitching he doubled in brass for the outfield.

Pleased With Villanova

Questioned about the Navy V-12 Program, Hall had nothing but commendation for the organization of the Navy Training Center at Villanova. "Particularly gratifying," he said, "has been the cooperation extended by the faculty. The results of this may be seen in the new Navy Sick Bay, which represents a great improvement over the old, overcrowded infirmary."

continued on with a run in the fourth and fifth, and five in the sixth to salt the game away, as the best the Fedigan club could do was a single tally in the final frame.

Carone Impressive

The Commandos did not find things quite so easy when they met the Mendel Jackets the following night. The Navy drew first blood as Borshki opened the second with a line drive single off the slants of Johnny Dzitko, stole second, was advanced to third on Formaini's infield out and came home on Sulock's long fly to left. But this was as far as the up and coming Mendelites went and Dzitko's fire ball blazed by the batters for the remainder of the contest, as he allowed only one hit. Meanwhile, the Commandos managed to get John three runs which were enough to win. Two of these came in the second on three hits, while the last score came in the fifth. In their final game of the week the Commandos easily downed their fellow servicemen, eight to four, as big Al Kasulin bore down in the pinches to hang on to a four run lead his teammates gave him in the fourth. Carone, making his first appearance for the Commandos, was very impressive in left field and secured a double and a walk in three appearances at the plate.

Fetting Clouts Homer

The second place Residents, although they are finding it rather dircult to keep pace with the Commandos, won their first contest of the week as they overcame the Marine Rangers by a slim margin of four to one. Corkhill was in rare form, letting the Marines down with only four hits, one of which was a round-tripper by first baseman Fetting, who thus spoiled a shut-out. Joe Szal accounted for three of the four runs for the Zips as he collected a single and a triple. Thursday the Zips just nosed out the Medics of Alumni, eight to seven, as the Sailors left the tying and winning runs on the base path in their last turn at bat. Cork had things pretty much his own way until the fourth, when Alumni got to him for five runs to tie up the game. However, Bill Koerner helped matters out with a double to left to push two runs across and possibly another, but he was caught at third as he tried to stretch the hit into a triple. The Zips winning run came in the sixth after the Medics had scored twice more, as Grange and Welsh teamed up to give Corkhill another victory.

Connelly Pitches Shutout

The up-and-coming Fedigan club, who are making a definite bid to overtake the Students in the first half race, downed t[illegible] little difficulty last Fr[illegible] three.

There was little doubt of the outcome from the start as Fedigan began banging the ball all over the lot in the first inning. The Blues also defeated Alumni without much trouble as Connelly, with his nothing ball, pitched a shut-out over the Medics and his club netted nine runs. The Blues, however, were unable to stop the Commandos.

Other games of the week saw Mendel down Alumni ten to six as "Sparky" Winters and Jack McManus really knocked the apple around. Mendel also beat the Rangers, eight to six, to move them up to fourth place, only a game behind the third place Fedigan club.

Former Staff Columnist Reports To Greenwood

Aviation Cadet Edward F. Bennis, who enrolled in Villanova's Commerce and Finance school before his enlistment in the Army Air Corps, has recently reported to Greenwood Army Air Field, in Mississippi, as a student in basic flight training. While here, Bennis, who is a graduate of St. Joseph's High School, Philadelphia, was staff columnist for the VILLANOVAN.

While in training at the Greenwood field, Cadet Bennis will go through the transition from student flyer to combat pilot and will be initiated into the mysteries of night flying in addition to learning to overcome the problems encountered in handling the faster basic training planes.

he became a member of the first All-Virginian team and school team, All-Southern. His third year at the cadet institution saw him play outstanding football and he was quite instrumental in the thumping of Virginia Polytech, V. M. I.'s arch rival, which previously held verdicts over the cadets for ten straight years. The Chief was also a member of the basketball team which on being invited to the Southern Conference tournament reached the semi-final round. Starting his junior year, he ran the 100 and 220 yard dashes and competed in the broad jump, as well as being anchor man on the V. M. I. state championship relay team.

In his last year, Chief Pritchard again excelled in all sports. He was a member of that famous backfield that included Joe Muha and Catlett and was second to none as backfields go.

Enters Navy

Last year he filled a halfback position on the Philadelphia Eagles and played stellar football in the National Professional League. He was selected to play in the Pro Bowl game in Philadelphia last Derember when the Washington Redskins met the Pro All-Stars.

Chief Pritchard entered the Naval service on January 6, 1943 and was ordered to the Norfolk Naval Training Station. Here he completed a six weeks basic course and then was assigned as a supervisor in the athletic department. After a short stay at Norfolk, Chief Pritchard was ordered to Villanova and reported on July 6.

Student Council Sponsors Dance To Be Held In Oct.

Election of Council Members Reorganized on Hall Basis; Term Cut to One Semester

In a recent meeting, the Student Council opened discussion on two important phases of campus life. The first point considered was in reference to the college's social life; the other concerned the organization and function of the Student Council itself.

Since the beginning of the war, serious curtailment of social affairs sponsored by the college has become necessary. Nevertheless, as pointed out at the meeting, too stringent restriction along such lines would have a detrimental effect upon a student body already heavily taxed by war-time scholastic curricula.

The result was a decision to hold a dance on Saturday, October 2. Both gas rationing and the position of Villanova's service men determined that the affair should be informal.

The committee to take charge of the entire affair is to be selected later. It will determine the orchestra to be engaged, the location, and the price of admission. Specific details concerning the affair will appear in a later issue.

The second subject discussed concerned the Council itself. Due to the exigencies of the war and their effects on the college, the following amendments to the constitution were proposed and approved in order to permit the continued operation of the organization. These changes will continue in effect until conditions again warrant a change.

Amendments Passed

The following paragraphs and sections in the original articles of the Constitution of Villanova's Student Council are amended as follows:

Article III, Section 1-a . . . Hall representatives, to be elected by their respective halls according to the amended Section 2 of this article . . . Two men each from Fedigan, Mendel, Austin and Alumni Halls and one man each from O'Dwyer, Simpson and Our Lady of Good Council Halls.

Section 1-b . . . Honorary representatives who will serve by virtue of their capacities . . . the respective editors of the Villanovan, The Belle Air and the Villanova Engineer.

Section 2 . . . The Hall representatives shall be chosen by the individual halls through the process of nomination and election as set up by the incumbent Student Council. The date of these nominations and elections shall also be designated by the Student Council.

Section 3 . . . All the members of the Student Council shall hold office for the period of one semester commencing and terminating on the dates designated by the Administration of the College.

Article IV, Section 2 . . . Only those members enumerated under the amended Article III, Section 1-a, shall be eligible for any office. The Chairman and Vice Chairman shall be seniors during their term of office, and the Secretary-Treasurer shall be either a senior or junior.

Section 3 . . . The above officers shall be elected each semester by the retiring Student Council, to

Condolences

The VILLANOVAN wishes to express its sincerest sympathy to Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., assistant professor of English, on the death of his mother.

Mrs. Sullivan died on Sunday, August 22, and was buried the following Wednesday. Fr. Sullivan celebrated the Solemn Requiem Mass in Our Mother of Consolation Church at Chestnut Hill.

Storekeeper Ellis and Yoeman Freeman Vie for Navy Popularity

Among the efficient and versatile men in the ships company of the V-12 Unit at Villanova College are William M. Ellis, Storekeeper, third class, and the recently appointed Yeoman, Clayton E. Freeman.

William Ellis is well known about the campus as the genial gentleman who is always ready and willing to answer the trainees' questions: "Got any hats yet?" "How do you tie a neckerchief?" and a million others.

He was born in Bordentown, New Jersey, in 1906. He toiled through the typical eight years of grammar school and then entered Pemberton High School. Here Ellis began a brilliant athletic career, playing on the varsity football team as halfback, and as shortstop on the baseball nine.

Played Varsity Sports

After graduating from Pemberton High, Ellis went to the Church Farm School near Paoli. He played all varsity sports there for four years and was graduated in 1927.

WILLIAM ELLIS, SK 3/C

The work-a-day world then claimed our storekeeper. He was first employed by the Philadelphia Electric Company where he worked for eight years in the Paymaster department. Then he went back to New Jersey, bought a home at Fort Dix, and worked at the camp there, again in the pay department at the Post Exchange.

While working here he again displayed his athletic ability. For five years Ellis covered the shortstop position for a team in the Central Jersey semi-pro baseball league.

His versatility by no means ends here. Ellis is another Eddy Duchin. He had his own orchestra for ten years and played at most of the shore resorts, Point Pleasant, Asbury Park, and others. Later in 1935, he played piano in Bunny Berigan's dance band which had a national following.

Enlisted Last September

Ellis enlisted in the Navy on September 12, 1942, and two weeks later was ordered to Cape May Naval Base. After four weeks of boot training he was stationed in the disbursing office at this base.

Here Ellis also turned musical, playing with the "Bluejackets," the Cape May Naval Base band. He remained at this base until May 29 when he received his orders to report to Villanova.

Ellis is very proud of the fact that he has been happily married for 16 years. He was married a year after his graduation from Church Farm School. His wife takes care of their home in Fort Dix.

He has nothing but praise for the college and the V-12 program. "Best thing that ever hit the Navy. Gives a man a great opportunity to show his ability to wear the gold braid of an officer."

Storekeeper Ellis, by reason of both position and disposition, is undoubtedly one of the best known of the "non-coms" here at Villanova. However, he may soon be forced to look to his laurels, for Clayton E. Freeman, Yeoman, third class, a new addition to the ship's company at Villanova College, is fast becoming acquainted with the campus.

Attended West Philadelphia

Freeman was born on December 4, 1921 in Philadelphia. Taking grammar school in stride, he proceeded to West Philadelphia High School. Here he developed into a star halfback and helped his team make a good record of six wins out of eight games for his year on the starting lineup.

He completed his last year of high school at John Bartram where he again starred on the gridiron. This time it was a brother combination. Freeman played halfback and his brother called the signals at quarterback.

CLAYTON FREEMAN, Y 3/C

Employed by General Electric

After graduation he was employed by the General Electric Company. He held this position for a year. During this time he played halfback for the Blue Bells, a sandlot team in southwest Philadelphia, which had the outstanding record of being undefeated in 56 games.

Freeman enlisted in the Navy on July 11, 1942 and on August 10, 1942 was sent to Cape May Naval Base. After boot training, he was stationed as yeoman at the base. He remained here a little over a year, being ordered on August 17, 1943 to the ship's company at Villanova College.

Although Freeman has been here only a short time, he is greatly pleased with his appointment. "I am very happy to be here," he said. "I was quite surprised and delighted to find everybody on the campus so very friendly to a newcomer."

A. I. E. E. Sponsors Film Describing Measurements By Electrical Devices

Last Friday, in one of its biweekly meetings, the Villanova Branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers presented another in its series of educational motion pictures. The film, second in the current series, was entitled "When You Can Measure." The meeting was held in the physics laboratory where almost every seat was occupied. The attendance, which exceeded seventy-five, was greater than the last meeting's all time high.

Electrical Film Shown

Professor Harry S. Bueche, in a short talk at the beginning of the meeting, explained the meaning of the title of the film.

The picture itself presented in detail the different types of electrical measuring instruments and the methods of manufacturing them. Also shown was the extreme care and accuracy which is constantly being used at the West Lynn General Electric Manufacturing Plant for electrical measuring instruments. The film took the audience on a trip along the production lines, to the laboratories, and through the foundry where the powerful little alnico magnets are made. The part General Electric played, through research and engineering, in the development of the modern types of instruments of today was also demonstrated.

Other Movies Scheduled

Anthony J. Mannino, chairman of the organization, stated that two films will be shown on September 3 at 12 noon in Room 215. The one

Army, Princeton, Holy Cross Among Gridiron Clashes On 1943 Schedule

Highly Promising Villanova Season Features Five Other Major Contests

By DAVE WARD, A. S.
Sports Editor

The Schedule

Sept. 18, Muhlenberg at Allentown (2:30 P. M.)

Sept. 25, Army at Michie Stadium (2:30 P. M.)

Oct. 10, Sampson Naval Training Station at Shibe Park (2:30 P. M.)

Oct. 16, Bucknell at Shibe Park (8:30 P. M.)

Oct. 23, Lakehurst Naval Air Station at Shibe Park (8:30 P. M.)

Nov. 6, Princeton at Palmer Stadium (3:30 P. M.)

Nov. 14, Holy Cross at Fitton Stadium.

Nov. 20, Temple at Temple Stadium (pending).

Villanova's football stalwarts will play a full eight game schedule this year according to an announcement by Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., Moderator of Athletics. The roster includes Lakehurst Naval Air Base, Sampson Naval Training Station, Army, Princeton, Holy Cross, Muhlenberg, Bucknell, and Temple.

The Wildcats will open the season against Muhlenberg at Allentown on September 18. This will be a renewal of a series which ended in 1938. The Mules, who also have a contingent of Navy V-12 trainees, are an unknown quantity since the quality of men available is not known.

Travel to West Point

After the opener, Villanova will travel to West Point to play Army on September 25. The Main Liners first met the Cadets in 1908 and continued to play them intermittently until 1922. Army won all of the games except the 1915 fray in which Charlie McGuckin booted a difficult field goal in the last minute of play to defeat them 19-13. Army, incidentally, has been rated among the top teams of the East and it should be one of the best games of the season.

The Wildcats then open in Philadelphia on Sunday, October 10, at Shibe Park against the Sampson Naval Training Station. This game will probably be one of the toughest of the season as the 'Tars are said to have quite a number of both professional and college stars in their lineup.

Renew Bucknell Classic

Following this encounter, the Wildcats will renew a rivalry with Bucknell on October 16, in a night game at Shibe Park. This Bucknell game formerly was one of the state classics until the series was ended in 1937. This year, Bucknell also has Navy and Marine trainees and how they will fare with them is anybody's guess.

The fifth game on the schedule is the Lakehurst Naval Air Station. This is undoubtedly the biggest question mark on the schedule because of the fact that men at this station are being shifted around constantly and even the coach doesn't know who will be playing the next week.

The next week will bring a change in the team roster as it will be the end of the semester. Just how much this will affect the team is not known at this time because

Captain Neel Returns to Villanova Campus on Brief Visit

Captain William W. Neel, a former member of the VILLANOVAN staff, visited the campus last week shortly before reporting to an army air base in Florida for reassignment to theatres of action.

Before coming home on a short furlough, Neel had spent eleven months in active combat against the Japs, was twice decorated for bravery in battle, and had numerous interesting and hazardous experiences.

—Courtesy The Evening Bulletin

CAPTAIN WILLIAM W. NEEL

Captain Neel was a student in Villanova's School of Commerce and Finance during the years 1936 and 1937. It was then that he served on the business staff of the college paper. For the following three years he attended classes at the Villanova night school.

Selected Air Corps

Neel enlisted in the Army Air Corps in April of 1941. He received his flight training at Randolph Field in Texas; Tulsa, Oklahoma; and Kelly Field, Texas. He graduated as a second lieutenant on December 12, 1941. Promotion to the rank of first lieutenant came in July of 1942. Last June he was promoted to his present rank.

Since the beginning of his tour of duty in the Pacific, Neel has seen action almost constantly. He was assigned to duty last September, and the morning after his arrival in New Guinea was in the air on a dangerous mission.

Recognition first came to the young pilot last March when he was awarded the flying cross for service in the Battle of the Bismarck Sea. In this engagement, the sinking of a Jap ship was credited to the crew of the Douglas A-20 attack bomber which Lieutenant Neel piloted.

Returning from the scene of their victory, disaster almost struck. The

Villanova Graduate Weds Rosemont Girl

John T. Gallagher, '42, now a private in the U. S. Marine Corps, was married to Miss Mary K. Dreuding at Holy Child church in Logan on Saturday, August 21. Gallagher, a graduate of the C & F school, was business manager of the VILLANOVAN for four years and co-manager of the senior ball during his undergraduate days.

Miss Dreuding, who graduated from Rosemont College, was active in sports and was a member of the student council while at Rosemont. Captain William Neel acted as one of the ushers at the ceremony.

Solemn High Mass Honors Patron Saint

A Solemn High Mass in honor of St. Augustine was celebrated in the college chapel on the occasion of his feast day, Saturday, August 28. The mass was sung by the Very Rev. Henry A. Caffrey, O. S. A., prior of the monastery. The Rev. Vincent J. Meaney, O. S. A., acted as deacon, while Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, O. S. A., served as subdeacon. The sermon was preached by the Rev. John A. Klekotka, O. S. A.

Before It's Too Late

TWO full months have passed since uniformed students first made their appearance on the college campus. The period of orientation could hardly be called complete even now; to the majority it must seem that they have just arrived; and yet for many half the time alloted to them at Villanova has already flown.

At this time, with mid-semester examinations complete, and the second quarter about to start, it would be well for all the students to take account of the manner in which they have conducted themselves during these first months. The size of the restricted list each week makes it apparent that too many are not taking their studies seriously enough.

Now is a good time for such delinquents to take stock of themselves, to realize the opportunity which has been awarded to them and the seriousness of the obligation which comes from that opportunity, and to settle down to serious work. It is not too late now, but soon it will be.

—T. M. S.

"Hello" Again

WHAT has happened to the "hello habit" here at Villanova? In past years it was one of the outstanding customs prevalent on the campus.

Tradition had elevated the colloquial expression, "hello," from a mere greeting to a definite part of college life.

It signified much more than just a casual observance. It represented a spirit of brotherly friendship, a sign of good nature and ideal relationship among our students.

This semester has shown evidence of the fact that the renowned family atmosphere that once predominated on our campus is gradually vanishing. No longer does one encounter that cheerful "Hello," "Hi-Bud," or whatever greeting it be from a fellow student.

Why? Can it be that we have currently developed a feeling of animosity towards one another? Can it be that we have suddenly become so completely individualistic that we are unconcerned with the common good of the student body? We doubt it very much. It seems more likely that a lack of initiative may be the principal cause of this change.

This war has necessarily brought about many changes in Villanovan life but nevertheless the "hello habit" can by no means be placed in this category. In times like these it appears more logical that such an amiable spirit should be promoted rather than disrupted.

Let us get back into the "hello habit" immediately. While other aspects of college life are rapidly losing their place on our campus, this is one tradition that we Villanovans must uphold. It does not take a great deal of effort to utter a pleasant "hello," but nevertheless the amount of good will it creates is immeasurable. It is surely worth preserving!

FACULTY COMMENTS

WHY PHYSICS?

By Fr. CRAWFORD

Today on some 200 college campuses throughout the length and breadth of our land, there is great turmoil in the minds of thousands of American boys. Wherever the Navy Department has established the V-12 program for the training of potential naval officers, two questions are most frequently asked: Why do I have to study physics? What can I do to pass the physics course? This column is an attempt to give a satisfactory answer to these two questions.

Physics Proves Invaluable

The very fact that physics is included in the curriculum of the V-12 program for all who have not had it previously is a clear indication of the importance of this course in the judgment of those educators and naval officers who are responsible for the planning and organization of the program. These men appreciate the value of the mental training that is derived from the study of an exact science, such as physics. They know that a student of physics must acquire ideas that are definite and accurate, with implications that are sure and true.

No doubt there are many V-12 trainees who realize that the course in physics which they are pursuing will not make them scientists or engineers. But that is not the primary function of the course. What these students fail to understand is that physics will help them to think straight, quickly, and accurately. The ability to size up a situation, as presented in a physics problem, to coordinate the given factors and the required ones, with speed and accuracy, is an ability of prize importance to any Navy or Marine officer. The implication of the physics course is that it will improve and develop this ability in those who possess it, and will screen out those in whom the ability is lacking.

Diligent Study Necessary

Now for the second question: What can I do to pass the physics course? The first answer to that question must be: Work hard. Everyone who is familiar with the field of physics is willing to concede that it is not easy. Hence assiduous application is one of the ingredients of success in this course. A second answer to the question is this: Review grade school and high school mathematics. Since physics problems involve the setting up and solving of equations, the fundamental processes of arithmetic and algebra are essential tools. If these tools are not at hand, or if they cannot be used with facility, then it is imperative that facility be acquired by long hours of practice.

Because the present conflict is unlike any war in the history of mankind; because to a greater degree than ever before it is a war of science, the officers who are to lead men in the conflict must know something of scientific principles, of scientific, logical, clear thinking. The study of physics provides both of these qualifications. It is important, then, that future officers be given the opportunity to learn physics, and that they apply themselves in such a way as to reach the objectives of the course.

Meet the Boys

Fred Has Been a Consistent Honor Man, Lou Displays Ability As a Photo Fan

By HARRY WATERS, A. S.

MEET Frederick Joseph Gerngross, A. S., born on November 5, 1922 in Philadelphia.

Among the stream of Philadelphia's sons who came to Villanova on a September morning in 1942 to enter the School of Mechanical Engineering, was one who stood a head taller than all the rest and whose radiant personality led us to inquire as to his name. It was none other than Mr. Frederick Gerngross.

Fred started his education at St. Edmonds grammar school, and then proceeded to La Salle high school. Being very active Fred immediately joined the Catholic League Championship Debating Team.

As a climax to Fred's successful high school career he was chosen Salutatorian of his class of 1940.

Last semester he was managing editor of the Engineering Magazine. Though a member of the Phi Kappa Pi and the A. S. M. E., Fred still found time for intramural basketball, softball and bowling. On top of this he has been on the Dean's honor roll since enrolling here.

Before entering the Navy V-12 programme Fred commuted every day from his home, Lawndale. He is now a Mendel Hall resident.

Fred's quiet demeanor and pleasant personality should carry him far in the Navy and bring him the zenith of success in anything he may undertake later in life. It has made many friends for him here at Villanova.

PRESENTING Louis Joseph Eni, born on December 19, 1922, in Philadelphia.

Lou spent his grammar school days at the John Hay public school, which was followed by long trousers and South Philadelphia High School. Here Lou participated in the fencing club and was active in various other clubs.

Then in September 1940 Lou entered Villanova. In a very short time he became acquainted with the college and made many new friends.

Active Committee Man

In his freshman year the Phi Kappa Pi fraternity took him into its fold. This was the start of Lou's very active extra curricular program.

The freshmen found him an active member of the initiation committee. Perpetually popping up on committees, he was chairman of the refreshments committee for the Inter Fraternity Hall.

Lou is also a member of the A. S. M. E. and has been on the VILLANOVAN staff for three years. This year he holds the position of Photography Editor.

As a mechanical engineer much of Lou's time is well taken up with his studies. Nevertheless, in addition to all the committees and clubs in which he takes part, Lou still maintains the old "sano corpore" by participating in intramural touch football and softball, besides possessing an active membership in the Phi Kappa Pi bowling league.

HERE is an item that may help the undergrads feel a bit better after one of those terrific workouts that "Simon Severence" comes up with in those afternoon P. T. classes . . . the former roomie, Ned Milde, now an infantry man down in Alabama, writes in a light hearted vein about such things as . . . doing thirty-four pushups in forty-two seconds, running three hundred yards over difficult terrain in forty-five seconds, carrying a man on your back for seventy-five yards and so on into weary oblivion. The crowning of the entire series of tests is a five mile run with a full pack with a time limit of fifty minutes . . . after this the lad feels as if we have been misjudging Mister Severence . . . what a fine fellow!

HUT:

Speaking of service men . . . in the course of our travels on Saturday evening last we ran into Jack Mauch and Joe McEvoy now down at O. C. class at Quantico . . . according to them all the lads from here are doing well down there . . . Jim Walsh, Bob O'Connor, Bob Kelty and the rest of the lads are well on their way. A former good Commerce man, Bill Mundy, dropped out for a short while . . . he is spending all his time out in Texas in an anti-aircraft outfit. Last year's Soph Class Pres., Ed Fanelli, stopped in to see a few of his boys . . . says he is working like a beaver up at Brown. Looking very sharp in his Navy outfit was Ensign Joe Elward as he looked over all the boys at retreat. Another Navy man who sailed in for a short visit was Morris Bingham who is now stationed at Sampson.

TWO:

There were many thankful souls on the campus last week when the food situation flickered, and then burst into glory. It seems as if the tomato contract with the Campbell Company has been severed, and Daisy the Cow is a bit more docile. Now if someone would write to the Tender Leaf Tea Company informing them of the use that their product is being put to all would be well.

THREE:

Every week for lo! these many months 'Cat Capers has been buzzing about guys and gals . . . suddenly we decided what it was all about that caused these lines to appear . . . So in a very un-Gallup way a quiz was instituted on the terrific question "What do you think of Women?" First man to be hit was Buck Williams who came up with . . . "Life and the Pursuit of Happiness, but you've lost your liberty. "Browsing through a period in Insurance we quizzed Jack Sutton . . . "What do I think of women? Plenty." Our actions woke up Joe Kerrigan who quipped "Indescribable! They are all nice. God bless them!" A far different approach was that of Bob Bolger's who said "What could we do without them?"

A typical answer, but this was the first was that of Dick Pettinato who slyly muttered "There is a time and a place for everything." Seeking out a few and there are but a few seniors we met "Red" Cahill who after four years here offered "They certainly are." The Latin idea was given by Heck Martinez with the phrase "It all depends."

Thinking that perhaps the minds might be working better with food to aid them we roved into the dining hall . . . first table, first man—"Don't forget, boys, she may be somebody's mother." This gem was offered by Wally Brannigan. Corky Corkhill was very bitter . . . "What women?" As a masterpiece of under-statement came Gene O'Donnell's "I don't know anything about them—haven't had any contact with them." Another cynic, John Doherty, gave out with "They are the greatest thing in the world but not for me." A typical college man's answer was that of Leo White's who shot back with "Married or single?"

A few issues back we brought to the attention of the new students the fact that intramural athletics are stressed here at Villanova. The truth of this statement must be evident by now to all students whether they are sailors, marines, or civilians. However, in case there are some skeptics, we invite you "doubting Thomases" to look over this page, especially the second and third columns. What do you see? "Commandos cop first half title." What does that mean? Well, it means that those Marines have completed a fifteen game schedule without losing a game. The league of which they have defeated every member consists of six team each having in its lineup at least ten starters plus some reserves. Thus approximately eighty or ninety men have at some time or another participated in these games and by doing so, were furnished with an outlet for their excess energy. In addition to those actually on the teams, many students witnessed the playing of the tilts, and usually these spectators enjoyed the ball games, and also got a particular kick out of ribbing the participants.

If one looks below he will see that a swimming tournament will be held this week. This function will be run with the co-operation of the Naval Athletic Staff and in all probability, the two swimming instructors, Chiefs Beck and Sandig will act as judges. The exact number of natators who will compete is not yet known but probably at least sixty will do so. Thus the event will raise by almost one hundred per cent the roster of those who have competed in the intramural program.

The organization of this tournament as well as the aforementioned softball league has been in the capable hands of Rev. E. B. McKee, O. S. A., Moderator of Intramural Athletics. Such a task required a tremendous amount of energy for not only did Father assemble the schedule, but once that was done, he was present every

Swimming Meet To Be Held Friday

September 3 of next week is the big day for the more aquatic minded members of the campus. The swimming championship will be held on this date at 8:00 P. M. at the field house pool and the competition promises to be pretty tough. Some of the more noted civilians entering the meet are Stiert, Keran, and Carroll. They will form a team that will compete with the splashers of Navy and Marine Corps.

The scoring of the meet will be the standard five points for first, three for second, and one for third place. With the field as large as it is, several heats will be run in each event, and the competitor with the fastest time will be considered as the winner of that particular event. The scorers will be Mr. Beck, swimming instructor of the Navy, and Fr. McKee O. S. A., director of intramural athletics. Each of these notables combined their efforts to arrange the well planned contests.

As a supplement to the meet, an aquatic exhibition will be held which will consist of such demonstrations as swimming with rifles, inflating trousers while afloat, the three fundamental strokes, etc. The cast for this exhibition will consist of about twenty volunteers from the Navy and Marine Corps.

Watch Out For These Wildcats

Ex-'Cat Star Wins; Wildcats To Enter Collegiate Meet

George Guida, former Villanova cinder ace, took the stellar position in the Middle Atlantic AAU track meet held at Olney High's field Saturday.

Representing Shanahan C. C., Guida knocked off the 100 yard dash in 10 seconds flat. Then, this iron man of the cinderpath combined the 220 and 300 yard runs into one, clipping the 220 in 21.9 seconds and finishing the 300 in 30.9 seconds.

Ed Fitzgerald, a present student of Villanova, pulled out a close second in the 800 yard run, surpassed only by Don Kirk of Collegiate T. & F. He also placed third in the 440. Bob "Ace" Reagan of the Miin Liners took a close third in the 2 mile run. Johnny Foreman, formerly of Penn State and now at Villanova with the Marines, came out second in the high jump event.

This Thursday, September 2, an intercollegiate track and field meet will be held at Franklin Field, Philadelphia. The local schools that have been invited are Penn, Villanova, Temple, Drexel, Swarthmore and P. M. C. Out of town schools such as Rutgers, Franklin and Marshall, Bucknell, Princeton and Muhlenberg are also expected to compete.

Villanova will be represented by Reagan, Fitzgerald, and Foreman who have been entries in all the meets to date, as well as by any other men who wish to participate. Those wishing to do so should report to Ensign Maniaci as soon as possible.

Bray In Marines

Samuel J. Brazinsky, better known as Sammy Bray, former center on the Wildcats' football team, has enlisted in the Marine Corps. At present, he is taking his boot training at Parris Island, N. C. By enlisting with the Leathernecks, Bray follows the example of his former coach, Maurice J. "Clipper" Smith, who is a physical instructor at one of the Marine training camps.

Undefeated Marines Cop First Half League Title

Navy All-Star Team Selected; Special Round-Robin Tournament to Determine Softball and Baseball Champions of the Campus

By JOE DALY, A. S.

The Marine Commandos, with nineteen victories and no defeats, easily won the first half of the Intramural Softball League. Led by the superb pitching of Johnny Dzitko and Al Kasulin, the Commandos were unbeatable as they averaged seven runs per game. In second place, five games behind the leaders, were the Resident Students, while Fedigan finished third.

Yesterday a round robin, made up of the Commandos, a Navy All Star team and a Student All Star team got underway. Each team is to play three games and the winner of this tournament possibly will play the Marine team of the Philadelphia Navy Yard. This club meets SKF for the city championship in a series this week. However, a definite date has not been made for this contest. The Marine team is the same as that which was undefeated in the first half of the softball league. The Navy All Stars, however, are taken from the three Navy teams. Captained by Joe Mihalek, who also will do the honors behind the plate, the team boasts of great hitting power as well as a strong defense.

Femiano to Pitch

The league officials, along with the team Captains, picked Al Sondheimer to hold down the initial sack and lead off at the plate. The Fedigan flash, George Warner, will bat second and play shortstop for the Navy, while Captain Mihalek will bat third. In the clean up spot, will be shortfielder Mueller, followed by "Sparky" Winters who will play the hot corner, as he did for Mendel. Formaini, also of Mendel will play right field. Formaini was selected mainly for his hitting ability. Tad Pula, Alumni's great fielder, will follow, and his fellow team mate, Bill Hughes, will play second; the tenth man, Dom Femiano, will do the pitching. Also picked on the Navy team were Johnny Belietti of it is not known who will leave school at that time.

Meet Princeton Nov. 6

After the lapse of another week the Wildcats will travel to Princeton on November 6 to meet the Tigers in their own lair at Palmer Stadium. This game will probably be the first of a long series of similar encoutners between Villanova and Princeton. This will be the first time since 1911 that these two teams have met on the gridiron. Princeton is the third college team on the schedule which will field a squad containing Sailors and Marines. The Tigers have been working out for two weeks already under their new coach, Harry Manhken, who succeeds Tad Wieman.

Holy Cross will then be played at Worcester, Massachusetts. Holy Cross, coached by Ank Scanlon, former St. Joseph's Prep mentor, will be remembered as the team which walloped Boston College's great aggregation last year. This year many of those boys who played in that game will be back, so the Crusaders should be a tough team to beat.

Temple Game Pending

The Temple game, which will be the final game of the season is still tentative, and whether the 'Cats will meet the Owls this year is still undecided. This contest will probably depend on the number and quality of men who reported to Coach Ray Morrison yesterday afternoon.

150 lb. Football Uncertain

As yet Villanova has decided nothing definite about the 150 pound football team. The college hopes to have one, and the coach will probably be chosen from the Chief Specialists stationed here. The number of candidates will probably be plentiful but the main trouble will be in scheduling opponents.

Summarizing the season, one can see that this will be one of the most unpredictable in the history of the sport. With so many men being subject to a change in status, many games may still be cancelled before the opening date.

Chief Sandig Comes Here As Assistant Swim Instructor

By BOB BOLGER

Last week a new member for the Physical Training staff of the Naval V-12 Unit was assigned here. He is Chief Specialist Curtis Sandig.

Chief Sandig hails from the "Lone Star State," being born at Mart, Texas, on July 12, 1918. He attended grammar school there, and then entered the Mart High School, where he was quite an athletic figure. While there he won letters in football, basketball, track and baseball. In other words, he was an all-round athlete in his prep school days. In track, he was the state low-hurdles champion and set a mark which was only broken last year. The other three sports in which he engaged won him All-Scholastic honors.

Played Third Base

Being graduated from Mart High School, he enrolled at St. Mary's University, San Antonio, Texas. In this initial year, Chief Sandig held down the half-back position on a fine gridiron appregation turned out by St. Mary's.

St. Mary's University at San Antonio, Texas as the reader will recall has a football team which

Test Administered To V-12 Trainees

The groans heard on the campus last Thursday can be attributed to an intermediate strength test administered by the Naval Athletic Department. The purpose of this test, which was given to the lower group only, was to check on the improvement of that group and to note the effectiveness of the present Physical Fitness program now in use here at Villanova.

The scores showed an average improvement of the lower class group of 16 points, which is a little less than remarkable. It was also noticed that the fellows came out of this one in better shape than they were in when they staggered out of the last one. The gymnastic gyrations of Zig Gory, John Fedding, and John Jardine were enough to merit them top honors in this group.

P. T. for the next eight weeks will consist of combat training; that is, the exercises will be interspersed with Judo, wrestling, and boxing. After this, another test will be given. For those who meet the Navy standards the P. T. periods will occur three times a week with one of the periods consisting of swimming and another, of competitive sports such as football, basketball, etc. Those, who do not, will take another basic course after which they will be tested again.

travels more miles per year than any other college.

In his next three years he played football as well as being an outstanding third baseman on the St. Mary's nine.

Won Eight Games

While being halfback for four years at college, Chief Sandig played in fifty-one different gridiron games during this time. To get an insight into the geographical travel involved, St. Mary's played Long Island University in New York, St. Anselms at Manchester, N. H., and Xavier University in Cincinnatti, Ohio. This extensive travel did not seem to bother them as they won eight out of eleven games played in his last year.

Teammate Of Cherundolo

Chief Sandig gradutaed from St. Mary's in 1941 with a B. S. degree in Commerce. From this time until his enlistment into the Navy, he held down several positions in the business world. Most of his time, however, was consumed by his participation in pro football.

He played halfback for the Pittsburgh Steelers in the National Professional League and played a lot of football. His, as well as the great playing of Chief Cherundolo, was very instrumental in the Steelers' attainment of second place in the Eastern division standings.

Assigned To Texas

Chief Sandig entered the Naval Service on November 27, 1942. He was immediately sent to the Norfolk Naval Training station where he underwent a nine weeks indoctrionation course. After the completion of this, he was made a Chief Specialist and sent to the Ottamiod, Iowa Naval Air Station as a physical instructor. After spending some time there, Chief Sandig was assigned to the Naval V-12 Unit at the University of Texas, Austin, Tex.

From there, he was ordered to Villanova and reported here, August 22, 1943.

Asked how he likes it here, Chief Sandig replied "I certainly like the set-up here, and am quite pleased to be assigned here."

Will Help Olivar

Chief Sandig will help Chief Beck in the swimming pool as well as helping out as a backfield coach for this year's football team along with Ensign Samuel Maniaci, Chief Specialists Pritchard, Horgen, Cherundolo, and Beck, who are all helping Coach Jordan Olivar.

He is married and at present is unsettled, but hopes to live in Narberth.

The VILLANOVAN hopes that Chief Sandig will enjoy his stay while here as well as in the Naval Service.

All-Stars

Mendel and John Ramsey, of Alumni. Art Baron and outfielder Bart O'Rourke, both from Alumni will be with the team. Belletti and Barron play the infield while Ramsey will see service as a pitcher.

Tonight the Student All-Stars will go into action against the Marine team, with games to be played throughout the week. Moderator, Rev. E. B. McKee, O. S. A., announced that all games will begin promptly at six-forty-five. On paper, the Navy seems to have the strongest team. However, the might of the Marines must not be overlooked nor the ability of the Resident Students, who have an edge in the pitching department.

Mihalek Captain

Wednesday, September twenty-eighth, the Navy All Stars and the Marine All Stars will begin a three game series to determine the baseball championship of the campus. The Navy team will be captained by Joe Mihalek who caught varsity ball for Villanova during the past two campaigns. The Blue Jackets boast of the strongest pitching staff that ever played intramural ball here on the campus. Headed by Mueller, who did quite a bit of chucking for Baltimore, the roster also contains the names of Villanova's Lafferty and Weinert.

Heavy Hitters

The Marines stack up as a very heavy hitting club, with men like Feeney of Georgetown, a man who can really hit the pellet from either side of the platter; Joe Koproski, who patrolled the center gardens for Villanova last year, and who was one of the leading batters in the intercollegiate circles. Eddie Burns, who played the keystone position for Boston College is still another man that the Navy's pitching will have to watch. Lou Lopez will also cause plenty of trouble if given half a chance, for he has been known to break up more than one contest in the past. Captain Al Postus will be at short, a position which is far from new for him, while Bill Nealon and Al Kasulin will represent Miami University on the All Star club. Both these men have seen plenty of action down where the ball is as hot as the sun.

The Navy will depend on the bats of Billy Sullivan and Gene Adair along with the long drives of Joe Mihalek for their runs, as well as the strong inner cordon centered around shortstop George Warner for the series. All baseball games will begin at six o'clock and will cover a seven inning period.

Final results of the Intramural Softball league:

The Wail of the Dog House

By A. SHOULDER CHIP

Sing thou, my Muse, the wrath of boys
Who, when deprived of weekend joys,
Shout forth their woes in clam'rous noise
Which slight objective truth alloys.
They say: "What right has faculty
To put such guileless boys as we
Into the dog house at weekend,
When we had all prepared to spend
That time in youthful jollity
From books and regulations free?"

"What right?" ask you, I'll tell you what:
Our colleges are on the spot!
Our nation's members all can see
Young men in arms in Italy
In eastern climes, in England too,
With quite a harder job to do
Than you or I back here at home
Who feel we have the right to roam
On weekend leaves, enjoy our lives
While studies take proverbial dives!

But hold! It's not quite fair that way:
We're here in school for work, not play.
Our friends abroad spend day and night
Expecting all the world to fight.
They ask for no weekend of ease,
They're not so hard as we to please.
If they could come and take our place,
They'd think—to say the least—it's base
To let the war go take its course
While we at home without remorse
Just study lightly, not enough,
And then complain that profs are tough!

It's up to us to do our part
As students now, so let's all start
To keep our names from off the "tree"
By learning lessons properly.
Then we can feel at each weekend
We've really EARNED the right to spend
A little time away from here,
Which we can take without the fear
Of work undone, of stolen time—
And that's enough of this sad rhyme.

motion picture, entitled "Curves of Color," is a ten minute subject in full color which tells the story of color from the point of view of the lay audience. Highlights in the film include a re-enactment of the experiments performed by Sir Isaac Newton in discovering the visible spectrum.

The other picture, entitled "The World's Largest Electrical Workshop," will give an intimate glance of America's largest electrical workshop, where General Electric scientists, engineers, and craftsmen contribute to the art of better living and to the protection of democracy in the forward march of electricity. The internationally known physicists, Drs. Langmuir, Whitney, and Coolidge will be shown in their laboratories. As usual, all students are invited to attend.

Lt. Bradley Missing After Bombing Raid

A real member of the "Hard Luck Boys" is 1st Lt. John W. Bradley, USAAC, who has been listed as missing in action by the War Department. The notification came to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bradley of 3720 Woodland Ave., Drexel Hill, Pa.

Bradley, a graduate of West Catholic High School, was a former student at Villanova. While attending Villanova, he joined the service as an aviation cadet, enlisting on his 21st birthday, the day after Pearl Harbor.

The War Department announcement stated that Bradley failed to return to his base after a bombing attack over Le Bourget, France. He had been in England since April of 1943, and during that time served as navigator on the Flying Fortress, "Sky Wolf."

Immediately preceding the notification, Bradley's family had received a letter from him, describing a raid upon Hamburg in which he had seen his best friend killed by a burst from a 20 millimeter shell.

plane was already damaged as a result of anti-aircraft fire. A Jap Zero finding them in this condition nearly caused serious damage when he scored a hit near their engine and it burst into flame. Fortunately, the fire soon went out and a safe landing was made.

Later, while still a first lieutenant, Neel was presented with an Oak Leaf Cluster in place of an additional Distinguished Flying Cross during the Buna campaign. At that time it was reported that Neel continued a bombing run over the Buna airdrome, New Guinea, despite intense anti-aircraft fire which damaged his right engine and aileron so badly that they were useless.

Aided Ground Troops

Much of the work in which Captain Neel was engaged while in the Pacific was done in support of ground troops. In assignments of this type, "pin-point" targets are common; and the highest type of accuracy is necessary. Captain Neel described this as some of the most interesting work he has done.

On July 26, Captain Neel received his coming home orders, and in August he arrived back in the country. After spending his leave at his home, 2010 N. Carlisle St., the 25-year old Captain will report for duty again next Sunday.

When asked for his impressions on his first return to his Alma Mater since the arrival of the service units, Captain Neel replied simply that he "likes the new arrangement."

night at the games in case anything developed. Assisting Father was a student of whom few have heard, Frank Perna. Frank was appointed to his position early in the semester, and has been of invaluable aid to the priest who is undoubtedly one of the busiest men on the campus.

We feel that, as a result of all this work, Father McKee and Frank deserve the heartiest congratulations for the job which up to now has been just about perfect; furthermore, the student body can never repay these two for the good they have done in giving to the students a competitive form of recreation.

In addition to the above two, the softball league has been able to function because of the time which has been devoted to it by the fellows who seem to receive nothing but censure instead of the praise that they deserve. By these, we mean the umpires, of course, who are out on the field every night giving freely of their time to call them "as they see 'em."

hold office for the ensuing semester. The election shall take place at a meeting in a manner designated by an amendment of May 17, 1938.

Changes Effect Services

The changes in the constitution were necessitated in large part by the Navy V-12 program at Villanova. Under the new arrangement, the difficulties encountered by mixed classes will be eliminated through the hall system. Representation of service men whose numbers will be changing every semester was also a prime factor initiating the amendments.

Dr. Hartman Wed at Nuptial Mass in Philadelphia

History Professor Marries Miss Eileen M. Donnelly; College Chaplain Officiates

During a quiet and simply impressive wedding ceremony performed last Saturday morning at the Transfiguration Roman Catholic Church in Philadelphia, Dr. Harold F. Hartman, Associate Professor of History and Political Sciences at Villanova College, and Miss Eileen Mary Donnelly of Philadelphia were united in marriage.

The nuptial mass was celebrated at 9:45 A. M. by Fr. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., chaplain of Villanova, and close associate of the bridegroom in the College History Department. Also in the Sanctuary were Fr. William Lunney, O. S. A., German professor at Villanova, Fr. Robert McGrath, O. S. A., Villanova Alumni Secretary, Rev. John F. X. O'Neil, pastor of St. Eleanor's Church in Collegeville, Pa., and chaplain of the Newman Club of Ursinus College, and Rev. Dr. Commisky of the Transfiguration parish.

DR. HAROLD F. HARTMAN

Dr. Hartman had as his best man his bride's brother, who received a two day leave from the U. S. Coast Guard Station on Long Island in order to witness the ceremony. The former Miss Donnelly chose Mrs. John Dudley, an intimate Philadelphia friend, as her matron of honor.

Wedding Breakfast Served

A wedding breakfast and reception for members of the immediate families as well as several close friends of the bridal pair followed at 10:30 A. M. in the main dining room of the Hamilton Court Hotel in Philadelphia.

Dr. Hartman is a native of Lancaster, Pa. He received both his A.B. and M.A. degree from the University of Notre Dame. Later, in 1934, he was awarded his Ph.D. degree by Cornell University. For the past eight years he has been teaching history at Villanova and has also conducted classes in mathematics here.

Dr. Hartman has long been one of the most popular faculty members on the campus. Students of past years joyfully recall his arrangement of several student trips to Washington, D. C., Philadelphia, Valley Forge, and many other places of historical interest.

Conducted Washington Tours

He has been taking groups from his government and history classes on trips to the capitol for the past five years. During these educational excursions the Villanovans were offered a close-up view of the structure and functions of the United States government. Highlights of the tours usually included meeting prominent authorities and political personalities connected with such government agencies as the Interstate Commerce Commission, the

A. I. E. E. Presents Two G. E. Co. Films at Regular Meeting

The Villanova Branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, presented two motion pictures to its members last Thursday. One film, entitled "The World's Largest Electrical Workshop," showed equipment, ranging from giant turbines to small domestic devices, in the process of construction.

In thirty minutes this new sound movie, with a commentary by Alois Havrilla, well known radio announcer, carried the audience on a trip through several of the major factories of General Electric Company, including the Schenectady, Bridgeport, Ft. Wayne Erie, and Lynn Works. Here was visual evidence of how science, engineering, and industry work together to produce equipment for the war effort.

The other film, "Curves of Color", included an explanation of a scientific device called a "recording photoelectric spectrophotometer," which is capable of distinguishing accurately more than two million colors. The human eye, even when well trained, can distinguish only a fraction of this number.

Navy Appoints Masters at Arms

Fire Details Also Named; Trainees to Hold Responsible Positions in Halls

The administrative body of the Navy V-12 Unit here at Villanova College has recently put into effect a plan whereby individual trainees are appointed to positions of responsibility in the various halls. A Fire Bill for each barracks has been drawn up, and Masters at Arms have been appointed for each deck.

The Masters at Arms that have been selected for each floor of the Navy buildings have been given full authority for the maintenance of discipline, with all attendant responsibilities. They must maintain order in the halls, see that quiet is observed during study periods, and that all trainees are in their bunks with lights out except those with late study permission.

Permanent Positions

The trainees that have been appointed as Masters at Arms will have this duty permanently. In Mendel Hall, for the second, third and fourth deck respectively, Henry Winter, Robert Formaine and Francis Doorley have been selected. For Alumni the appointments for the first second and third deck are: William Donnelly, William Hughes and Benjamin Paradee; and in Fedigan Hall, James Harkins, Raymond Thomas and Joseph Carey have been selected.

Along with the Masters at Arms appointments, several trainees from each deck have been assigned to duties on the Fire Bill. There positions likewise entail responsibilities.

Firemen Named

For each deck, the following have been appointed: a Floor Captain to take general charge; a Mustering Petty Officer for mustering men from his floor; a Searcher to locate injured and unconscious persons; Hosemen, three for every hose line—a nozzelman, hoseman, to assist in leading out hose, and a valve man to control the water. In addition to these, a man has been appointed to take charge of each hand extinguisher on the floor.

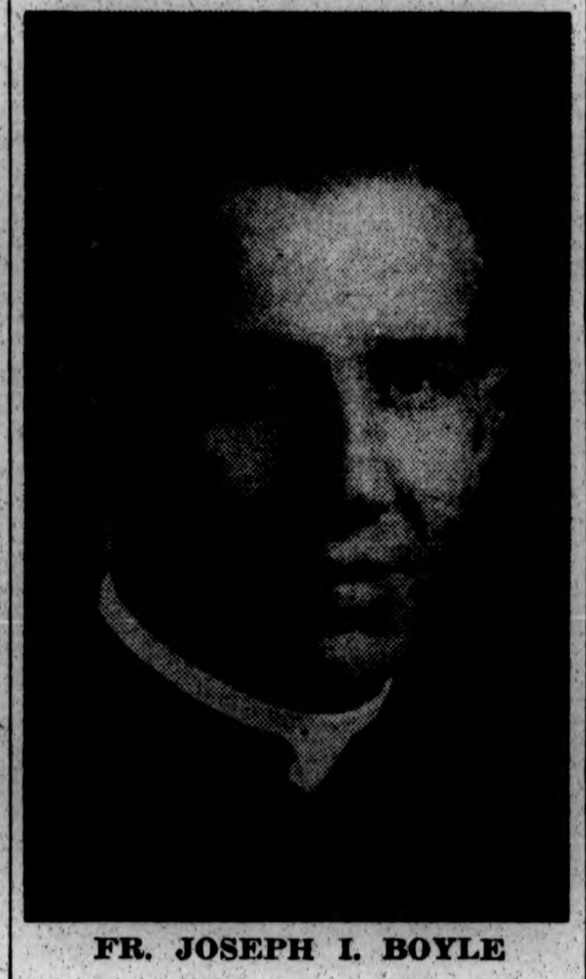
For Mendel, Alumni and Fedigan Halls, the Masters at Arms were appointed as Floor Captains. In Austin Hall, the appointments were: Gregory D'Angelo, Foster Blough, and Stephen Woodruff for the first, second and third decks respectively.

Condolences

The VILLANOVAN extends sincere sympathy to Thomas J. Junker, senior chemistry student, on the recent death of his father, and to Daniel H. Conway, freshman engineer, on the death of his mother.

Fr. J. I. Boyle Named to Post As Registrar

Assumes Position in Addition to Duties As Liaison Officer



FR. JOSEPH I. BOYLE

Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O. S. A., religious counsellor of Fedigan Hall and Assistant Professor in Education and Religion has recently takes over the duties of Registrar here at the college.

This new assignment follows closely upon Fr. Boyle's recent appointment as Selective Service Liaison Officer for Villanova.

The duties of his new post include those of keeping all the scholastic records for the school and of handling the details concerning the application and admission of new students. He has stated that applications for the fall semester are "coming along as well as could be expected under prevailing conditions."

Fr. Boyle has been a member of the faculty of the college since 1937, following the completion of his course of studies at Catholic University where he received the degree of Master of Arts.

He has held many positions of importance on the campus. Prior to the appointment of Fr. Grimes, Fr. Boyle was college Chaplain. He has at various times directed the Glee Club, the Sanctuary Choir, and the Villanova Band.

Any student in need of guidance regarding his Selective Service classification should see Fr. Boyle at his earliest convenience.

Fr. Burke Leads Newly Organized Sanctuary Choir

Word has been received from the chaplain's office that a Villanova Sanctuary Choir is now being formed. Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., College Chaplain, commented on the matter as follows: "The formation of a Sanctuary Choir fills a long felt need in the chapel services of the college. The choir will be used to familiarize the student body with melodies of appropriate hymns with the hope of introducing congregational singing in the very near future."

Rev. Thomas A. Burke, O. S. A., is acting as director of this group. All students on the campus are invited to join the choir. Fr. Burke has announced that rehearsals will be held every evening following night prayers in the chapel.

The choir, in an embryo stage, had its initial performance last Thursday evening at Benediction. On Friday, during the 7:15 A. M. mass, the group also rendered several hymns.

In addition, Fr. Grimes stated: "Music has always been intimately associated with the Liturgy of the Church. It is hoped that the Villanova students will make use of this means to increase the splendor and the efficacy of the devotional life of the campus."

Naval Officials Inspect Trainees During Impressive Ceremony Here; Comdr. Lamb Praises Appearance

By PVT. WM. J. CARTER, USMCR

Villanova College witnessed a colorful and impressive scene last Saturday, Sept. 4th, as the men of the V-12 Navy and Marine units stationed here were reviewed by a group of high-ranking Naval officers which included Commander Scott G. Lamb, Director of Training for the entire Fourth Naval District.

With Comdr. Lamb in the visiting inspection party were Capt. J. A. Biello, district medical officer; Lieut. M. A. Laverty and Lieut. A. V Bohn, assistants to the district Supply Officer, and Ensign T. C. Lockhard, assistant to the Educational Service. These men toured the campus under the guidance of the staff of the college's training unit which includes the following officers: Comdr. Edward J. Milner, Commanding Officer; Comdr. William T. Minnick, Medical Officer; Lieut. Harry W. August, Executive Officer; and Ensign Samuel Maniaci, Director of Physical Training. The Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., President of Villanova, was also in attendance.

Comdr. Lamb and his party started the inspection at 0900 Saturday by going through the barracks at Mendel, Fedigan, Alumni, and Austin Halls in minute detail. Apparently the Navy and Marine trainees had worked hard in "squaring things away," for the inspecting group unanimously agreed that all was shipshape.

Trainees Mustered

After the termination of the regular Saturday morning classes at 1100, all hands were mustered in front of their respective halls, where they were given last minute instructions. The units were then marched to the drill field and formed into one complete battalion. Pvt. William B. Dennis, formerly stationed at Parris Island, S. C., acted as Battalion Commander.

At a prearranged bugle signal the unit snapped to attention and opened its ranks for inspection. The inspecting party marched through the rows of statue-like men, and its progress was noted by the commands of the individual company leaders as they sounded off with the staccato "Compn'y, attenshun!" and "Pa-rade, rest!"

Upon completion of the regular inspection routine, the officers returned to the reviewing stand. Then the entire battalion, composed of almost 600 officer candidates in the Navy and Marine Corps, passed before the critical eyes of the reviewing officers as the air resounded to the stirring notes of a military march. After the ceremony, the trainees marched in order to their individual barracks, where they were dismissed.

Comdr. Lamb Pleased

Comdr. Lamb was enthused over the whole affair, and stated that "The appearance of the whole unit was excellent, and the review was well carried off in every respect."

Concerning the Navy's college training program in general, he said, "The V-12 Program gives to young men the finest opportunity ever offered by the Navy, not only to serve their country in time of war and to become officers in the reserve components, but also to continue their education. It means a great deal of hard work, but it's worth it. There is no place in this program for anyone who isn't willing to work and work hard. Many of us might prefer to be on more active duty, but in our present job we serve best, because we are where the Navy feels we should be."

Villanova Graduate Recommended to Get Purple Heart Award

Lt. Paul G. Taylor, USNR, a Villanova alumnus, has been recommended for the Purple Heart medal. Lt. Taylor, serving with the Technical Aviation Division of the Air Combat Intelligence in the South Pacific war theater, has been stationed in New Guinea for the past ten weeks.

LT. PAUL G. TAYLOR

Lt. Taylor graduated from Villanova College in 1927 with a degree in civil engineering While at school he was a member of the football squad.

Previous to his enlistment in the Navy in October, 1942 he was sales manager of the Penn Electrical Engineering Company of Scranton, Pa.

Lt. Taylor received his preliminary training at the Naval Indoctrination School at Quonset Point, R. I. After two months training he was selected for Air Intelligence Service. He received additional training at Quonset Point, Wright Field, Ohio, and Washington, D. C. before being sent overseas to Australia on May 5.

Seminar Features Wagnerian Music

Wagner's music will be featured at the music seminar in Simpson Hall this Wednesday between 12:30 and 1:30 P. M., according to Dr. Haenisch, sponsor of musical programs.

The program will include Prelude to Act I of Lohengrin, "The Prize Song" from Die Meistersinger, Magic Fin Music from Die Valkyrie, and "Love and Death from Tristan and Isolde.

The VILLANOVAN, on behalf of the student body, wishes to express sincere hopes for a quick recovery to Captain Robert L. Morgan, head of the Marine Corps detachment stationed here.

Captain Morgan, who has had a recurrence of the malaria which he contracted while in the South Pacific, is now undergoing treatment at the Naval Hospital in Philadelphia.

Chaplains to Hear Fr. Stanford Speak

At the invitation of Captain Bruce L. Canaga, U.S.N., chief of the Division of Training, the Very Rev. E. V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of Villanova College, will speak at the graduation exercises of the Naval Training School for Chaplains at the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va.

Student Council

VILLANOVA'S Student Council is now in the process of reorganization. If it is to function properly and fulfill its obligations to the student body it must have the backing of every student on the campus for all its undertakings.

In past years, the Council has been severely criticized by the students for its apparent impotence when involved in occasional student-faculty differences in opinion. Following the usual trend of unthinking and hypercritical masses, they talked of its bad points without ever thinking of the good it accomplished.

If the dance scheduled for October 2 is to be a success, and if we are to have any social functions during the fall and spring semesters, the Student Council must operate with the full coöperation of and a minimum of fault-finding by each individual student. Criticism can work wonders if it is constructive, but if it is of a type similar to that known in the past it can have nothing but a detrimental effect on the one organization on the campus which is in a position to benefit the student body in general.

The students have elected the members of the Council as their personal representatives. Since any laxity on the part of the organization may be attributed directly to its members, if for any reason the Student Cuncil ever appears inactive, a little prodding of your own representative, rather than a lot of groaning about the group as a whole, might do a lot of good.

—G. G. H.

The Pope and Peace

IF we are to have a lasting peace Christ must be present at the conference table. Unless the world practices Christ's teachings we can never hope for permanent peace. Regardless of the seemingly solid foundations of the organizations and federations that man will erect to keep the peace, unless they are based on the practice of Christian ideals, they will crumble.

While man has made some progress in this direction he has not gone far enough. The League of Nations organized after the last war is indicative of his desire to avoid war. But the members accepted its principals only as long as they did not interfere with their own national destinies.

Man is again preparing to make an effort, by some form of international cooperation, to secure a lasting peace. The only way to assure that it will be founded on Christian ideals is to include among the participants of the peace cnference Pope Pius XIII the Vicar on earth of the Prince of Peace.

The Pope, considered only in the light of his position as spiritual leader of some 300 million people of all races and nationalities, is entitled to a place at the peace table. He is ideally suited to such a position. He maintains contacts with all the belligerent nations and can without question be considered truly international in his point of view. His recent statement is merely another in a long series of endeavors, by him and his predecessors, to secure peace for this troubled world. It is truly unfortunate that more of mankind does not heed his efforts to establish a Christian peace, the only kind that will endure.

NOT A NICE WAR

By FR. GILLIGAN

A few miles above the soil of France two knights are met in mortal combat. Equal in power, brains and courage, equal in the strength and swiftness of their mounts, equal in the might of their lethal arms, they fight a duel to the death; a fair and just duel, though, with no quarter given and none asked. Like fencers they feint and parry, thrust and riposte. At last steel strikes home. The motor of the Spitfire sputters and bursts into flame. The pilot makes frantic and frutile attempts to put out the fire and bring his ship into control. His noblest efforts are of no avail. He is forced to abandon his craft. In the thin cold air a parachute blossoms and wafts gently toward the earth.

The young aviator feels a lump in his throat as he sees his proud sky-steed careen like a demented thing and plunge madly to destruction. It is sad to think that his warrior course is finished, that his sword must now be sheathed, that he will spend his next days and months and perhaps years languishing ignobly in a prison stockade. Yet in his heart there is a certain bittersweet joy, the joy of combat courageously met, the noble pride of a man who has faced death unflinchingly, the heroic peace of a heart which has offered the sublime sacrifice of self for the common good of his fellowmen.

Nazi Vultures Unashamed

This would be the time in medieval battle or tournament for the conqueror to raise his visor and salute his fallen but gallant opponent. But now, out of the sky streaks a black swastikaed meteor. Calmly, coldly, deliberately the pilot takes aim. The lifeless body slumps and hangs grotesquely by the straps. The gay little envelope of a parachute still bears its grim burden, till at last the parachute becomes a shroud and reverently enfolds the stricken hero. Overhead the vulture soars homeward, glutted with the blood of his prey, victorious and unashamed.

The papers tell us frequently of such fiendish deeds in France, Germany, Africa and the Pacific. That they are not the unpremediated acts of irresponsible madmen, but the deliberate tactics of calculated ruthlessness, is evidenced from the frequency of their occurrence. It is only what one might expect from nations which have prided themselves and taught their children to take pride in inhuman "schrecklichkeit".

Man Becomes Beast

We will leave to the psychologists of the herd and the abnormal to study the means and methods, the patterns and motivations of such a descent to the beastly. It suffices to say that savagery of this kind is caused by ignorance, supreme confidence or final desperation. In the case of the Japanese, the crimes of their soldiers result from the abysmal, primitive brutishness in which they are callously indoct-

Tom's a Home Run Hitter; Quite a Lad! Consulting Oscar Is a New Alumni Fad.

By RAY ADAMS, A. S.

INTRODUCING Thomas David McQuade, one of our better students and a man highly respected by all who know him. Tom was born in the picturesque village of Greenwich, N. Y., on September 29, 1919, and attended grammar school in his home town before entering Greenwich High School.

After graduating from high school Tom knocked about in the work-a-day world for 3 years and, while employed at General Electric, he decided to study electrical engineering. The year 1940 marked his entrance into Villanova College society where he immediately took an active part in widely separated fields of endeavor. Tom has been active in both intramural softball and basketball every season since he has been here. In his sophomore year he was elected class President and in this position he served as a member of the well-known and late lamented Orientation Committee. To round out his list of extra-curricular activities, Tom has also been an active member of the Sanctury Society for the past three years.

If there be anyone on the campus who, after this vivid description, who still cannot place Tom, let him recall last Tuesday's softball game, in which first-baseman McQuade hit the home run that was so instrumental in bringing about the Marines' first defeat.

PRESENTING Oscar Nicholas Hinski, Alumni Hall's informant extraordinary. Oscar first saw the light of day in Camden, N. J., on the 4th of April, 1917. He began his long quest of knowledge at St. Rose of Lima's grammar school and continued at Haddonfield Memorial High. Upon graduation from high school he entered St. Joseph's College where he followed the Pre-Dental course. After two years at St. Joe's, Oscar transferred to the University of Pennsylvania Dental School, again for a two year period.

Then, following in the footsteps of his well known brother, Paul, he came to Villanova in his junior year. Oscar was enrolled in the Science School in the Pre-Dental course in 1942 and soon after he enlisted in the Naval Reserve, V-1 (G) Pre-Med.

In June, Oscar received his orders to continue his Pre-Med course at Villanova and he now prefers the life of the Resident Student to that of the Day-Hop, which he formerly experienced. He is now serving as an Assistant Business Manager on the staff of the VILLANOVAN. Around Alumni Hall he is ever consulted on questions pertaining to all branches of science and he almost invariably has the answer.

THE TOP OF THE WEEK:

The action on the part of the college and the navy authorities in doing away with those restriction lists . . .

After reading the epic "poem" by this A Shoulder Chip that appeared in last week's issue we feel as if something should be done abut such actions . . . so in defense may we submit the following item that destroys all rules for poetical constructions . . . .

"As a poet—frankly—I smell.
But you—my friend well!
We shall be in the service soon enough.
Then we shall expect such stuff.
Right now we are paying,
For the privilege of working and playing.
But when we are made the victims of restrictions,
Pardon me—brother — before I forget my diction.

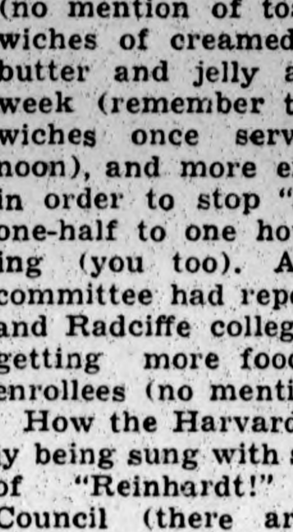
THE ITEM OF THE WEEK

Was the protest on the part of 470 Harvard students who filed a petition about the food . . . one of the lads up there was good enough to send along a news clipping . . . it is worth scanning.

The members of Adams and Dunster House protested that the civilian foor at the university had reached "and all time low" . . . the students demanded extra portions for non-rationed foods, meat for those who wantedith on fish days (that would go well here, (posting the day's menus in each house, cereal served dry with cream in pitchers (our's are served in pitchers—Carnation pitchers), hot rolls and muffins at breakfast (no mention of toast), open sandwiches of creamed cheese, peanut butter and jelly at least once a week (remember those nice sandwiches once served here every noon), and more efficient planning in order to stop "standing in line one-half to one hour" before serving (you too). An investigating committee had reported that Tufts and Radciffe college students were getting more food than Harvard enrollees (no mention of Villanova).



How the Harvard Blues are really being sung with special emphasis of "Reinhardt!" The student Council (there are such things) was investigating the situation . . . this may well be the beginning of a great movement all over the country . . . all you local members of the International come out of the underground . . . unite and perhaps we may even be invited to the Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin meeting.

Perhaps in an effort to increase Chapel attendance a choir was whipped into shape last week by Father Burke . . . what the fellows lacked in skill they made up in volume . . . would it be wise to suggest that this choir be developed into a full line Glee Club? In other years a lot of students received a lot of satisfaction and enjoyment through the Glee Club . . . there is no reason why there should not be such an outfit on the campus . . . . one night a week is not too much wasted time . . . the music albums are here and very complete . . . let's have some action in this matter!

STARS AND STRIPES:

Ed Reardon, one of the better scoopers for the paper last year, was out to see the boys last week . . . now stationed in Texas waiting either a boat trip for communications school. Now at Georgetown is Bob Canfield who also did a lot of powerful writing for the VILLANOVAN. The retreat on these Saturdays seem to draw many of the lads back . . . Ensign Art Smith stopped in, and Pvt. Jack Reese, Miami bound, giving the boys a view of Army life. All the boys seem to be of one accord as regards receiving the weekly rag. The big plea was for more items about men in the service . . . a

THIS week instead of devoting this space to any one subject, we decided, with the many events taking place on the campus to single out different men from various athletic activities and give them a handshake or a pat on the back. We felt that too many times an outstanding man was passed over in the general statement of the reports.

—V—

First on the list is Bill Koness. Swimming last Friday night in the tournament, Bill was entered by his captain in four events and even becoming sick didn't prevent him from going all out for a victory.

The swimming tournament also produced two other individuals who deserve mention. The first of these is Charlie Dailey, who left the whole field behind him as he breezed to wins in the fifty and one hundred yard freestyle races. The next in line is Bill Steiert who showed the spectators at the meet some real diving although handicapped by having to use a stationary platform instead of the regulation spring board.

—V—

Well, it finally happened. The Marine All-Stars who, with one or two exceptions, were the same team as the Commandoes, finally lost a game. The Students, by beating them, stopped their victory streak at twenty-one games. The big names in this contest were "Corky". Corkhill and Tom McQuade.

The former pitched one-hit ball to deserve the victory while the latter hit a round-tripper with the sacks filled to drive in the deciding runs.

The play of the week undoubtedly was Tad Pula's catch of Al Kasulin's long drive to center. It was the best catch that we have seen all year and the Alumni player certainly deserves these congratulations.

—V—

In the very first summer issue of the VILLANOVAN an announcement was made to the effect that a tennis tournament would be held. Within the following two or three weeks, entries were taken and a man in each hall was appointed to seed the matches. The list was finally completed and the fellows were supposed to play the matches at their own convenience. However, as far as we can find out, with the exception of the civilian and marine halls, not one tilt has been played. This doesn't speak too well for those men who, by not playing off their scheduled matches, are making a mess out of the tennis schedule.

The finals between the champions of each hall were to be held this week. But, as we said above, very few, if any, matches have been played. Now, Rev. E. B. McKee, O. S. A., announces that the finals must be completed within the next two weeks. Unless a miracle occurs, most of the entries will not be able to play their matches and probably, as is always the case, these will kick to high heavens. However, they should have thought of that two or three weeks ago when the seedings were first posted.

However, if those fellows who honestly wish to play, would contact their opponents, many forfeits might be gotten. These men could then have play offs among themselves to determine the championship of their respective dormitories. In this manner many more men might get a chance to play and in addition, the champion of the hall would have more of a right to go by that title than someone else who would be picked.

Reagan Wins Two Mile Event Easily

The Wildcats clawed out a third position notch in the track events at Franklin Field, Thursday. Penn, the host of the meet, rated the limelight with sixty-one points in the unofficial team scoring. Princeton garnered twenty-one of the markers while Villanova rated nineteen. Bob "Ace" Reagan, who placed third in last week's Middle Atlantic AAU two mile event, took the eight lap grind with room to spare. The time for the distance run was 10.42. Two teammates, Fitzgerald and Cox, placed second and third respectively in the 440 yard dash. Fitzgerald also copped third in the 880, while Cox boosted the score by placing second in the broad jump.

Johnny Foreman repeated last week's stunt by placing second in the high jump. Also helping to gain a few tallies was "Bernie" Bodschwke who place d ar arear Borschke who placed a close fourth in a 100 yard heat and was no minor factor in placing the team in runner-up position for the 880 yard relays. Foreman, Cox, and Beal, who also entered the century dash, completed the set. The Wildcats were admirably represented in the javelin throw by Washburn of the Marines.

A former Villanova student of track fame, George "Buck" Coleman, now at Penn as a V-5 cadet, tied for first in the pole vault event by clearing the bar at 11 feet, 6 inches.

Basketball

Coach Al Severance, Wildcat basketball mentor, has announced that the first practice session for the court five will be held on Oct. Fourth. This date is one week after the proposed summer dance and during that time interval, the backboards and baskets will be erected.

The schedule for the coming court season has not been released for publication, but it will probably consist of approximately twenty games.

Students Defeat Marines As McQuade Hits Home Run

By JOE DALY, A.S.

With a record of one victory and no defeats during the first week of play, the Resident Students now hold the lead in the intramural softball play-off. Their victory was a brilliantly played win over the Marine All Stars. After winning twenty-one straight victories in league play and defeating the Navy entry in the first game of the current series, the mighty men from Austin finally bowed, but not without a fight. The Marines drew first blood as they scored once in the first. Lopez led off with a double into left center, Burns advanced him to third on an infield out, while Bill Feeney drove him across the plater with a long fly to center which Schmitt easily tucked away. The Zips, determined to win, came right back in their half of the first to score four times and take the lead. Casella worked Dzitko for a walk, then Grange came through with a single to left, Lopez holding Casella on second. Szal tapped the next ball for what appeared to be a sure hit down the third base line; Feeney however made a beautiful catch and tagged Casella as he attempted to reach third. The throw to first, however, was too late to nip the runner.

McQuade Homers

Big Bill Koerner stepped to the plate and with the count of two and two, singled over Postus's head, to drive in Grange. Dzitko had trouble finding the plate pitching to McQuade and got behind three to one. On the next pitch Tom stepped forward and swung. The ball travelled well over Fetting's head and out of the park for a home run, the first of the series. Welsh followed with a single but was out stealing second. Reagan made the final out as he grounded to second.

Bears Down in Pinches

However, the damage was done. The Marines tied it up in the second with three runs on two hits. Kasulin was safe on an error as was Zamlynski. Fetting advanced both men a base and Nealon drove both men in with a double, and went to third on the throw-in. He scored a moment later on Dzitko's fly. Again the Students came back, as Schmitt was safe on an error after Cahill had been retired. Corkhill secured a hit, and a moment later Casella doubled to drive both men in. Grange also doubled to drive in another run and he, too, scored on Szal's single.

The Marines got one in each of the next two frames but Corkhill bore down in the pinches, shutting them out in the final stanza and giving his club an eight to six victory.

Borschke Drives in Run

In the first game of the round robin, the Marines defeated the Navy All Stars, ten to seven. Femiano pitched hitless ball until the third, although the Marines pushed across a counter in the second on a base on balls, an error and a fielder's choice. The Navy had scored twice in the first on Warner's single, and errors on Mueller's grounder and on Winters' hit to short. Pula opened the second with a single, was advanced to second on Hughes' bunt and scored on Borschke's safety, so that they led three to one as the Marines came to bat in the first half of the fourth. Feeney grounded out to open the big inning. Koproski drew a base on balls and Postus followed with a single. Fetting then received a free pass to load the bases. Zamlynski, with two strikes on him, dropped a Texas leaguer over first to drive in three counters. Nealon drove him in with a fourth tally, as he drove a hard one through the box.

Mueller Doubles

The Leathernecks put the game on ice in the fifth as they scored five more times, while the Navy

Fedigan Defeats Alumni & Austin in Swim Meet

Dailey and Koness Individual Stars of Meet; Steiert Wins Diving Events

The Navy swimming team, led by Fedigan Hall, swept the Intramural swim meet held last Friday night as the field-house swimming pool. Amassing an overwhelming total of fifty-two points, the Navy team led all the way, taking first place in every event except in the diving and breaststroke competition.

In individual hall scoring, Fedigan Hall took first place with 22½ points, closely followed by Alumni Hall which garnered 21½. Third place went to the marine barracks at Austin Hall. Chiefly responsible for Fedigan's winning spot was their ace freestyler, Charlie Dailey, who secured the only double win of the night by sweeping both freestyle dashes. Winning the 100 yd. event in the brilliant time 59.2 sec. he then came back to take the 50 yd, dash by a stroke from Bill Koness of Mendel Hall in 26.7 sec. Dailey the interscholastic state champion of Maryland when he attended school there, is a transfer from Loyola College of Baltimore.

Close Second

Also outstanding for his ability, although he took no first places and was on the losing team, was Bill Koness of Mendel Hall. Winning his heat in the 50 yd. dash, he then swam in the 50 yd. backstroke event, winning his heat; in the finals of the 50 yd. dash he took a very close second and then anchored his 100 yd. and medley relay teams.

Following up these stars were the victors in the various other events. In the 50 yd. beackstroke, by virtue of his fast time of 32 sec., Bill O'Hare, Alumniman, took first place, while Diamond of Fedigan and Fitzgerald of Alumni tied for second place. Schmidt of the Marine Corps took first place in the breaststroke, second going to Brandion of Alumni. Due to the lack of diving board this event was conducted on the 12 ft. training tower. Although this diving was done from a stationary platform, having no spring, some excellent diving was exhibited. Outstanding in this event was Bill Steiert, a civilian, who took first place with three beautiful executed dives, including a one and a half flip. Taking a good second in this feature was Don Galvin of Austin Hall.

Alumni Wins Relay

The highlight of the evening was found in the 100 yd. freestyle relay race which was won by Alumni Hall in the very good time of 50.3. The Alumni team led by a small margin all the way, being pushed by the Mendel natators who came in second. This race was a close, hard fought battle all the way among the five teams, none having a great advantage at any time. In the medley relay, the final contest, Fedigan Hall anchored by the great Dailey, took first place in 42.5 sec. and sewed up the meet. Alumni Hall took the follow-up place in this event.

Aquatic Exhibition

In the middle of the meet an intermission was called in order that the swimmers might have a breathing spell. In this interim, selected Naval and Marine trainees under the direction of Chief Petty Officer Beck, gave an exhibition of warfare aquatics. Before each feat was performed by the group, Ensign S. Maniaci, Naval Athletic Director, gave a short explanation on the usefulness of these various actions. Simulating the order to abandon ship, the trainees, some wearing life jackets, leaped in hasty yet orderly, fashion from the high tower into the pool and then swam away from the "ship" as quickly as possible. Then various sections of the group ascended the Jacob's Ladder, dangling ropes and a cargo

In The Sportlight

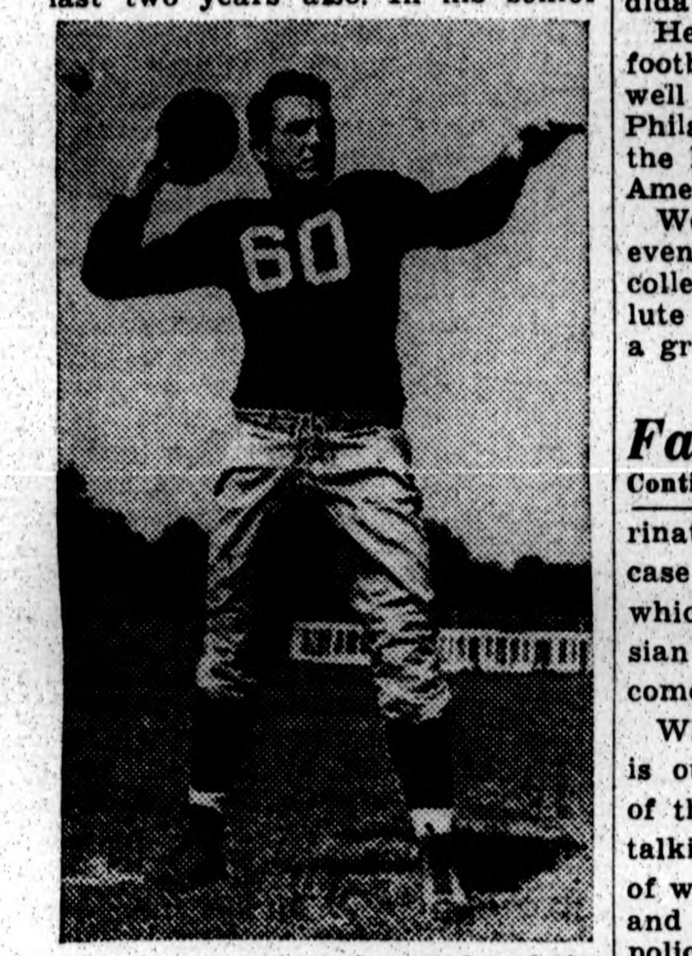
By BOB BOLGER

Villanova was certainly fortunate in more ways than one in having a Naval V-12 Unit established here. For in so doing, their stellar halfback, Al Postus, was ordered to active duty with the Marine detachment on the campus.

Al, who hails from Philadelphia, was born on September 21, 1920. He attended grammar school in West Philadelphia and then enrolled at the St. Thomas More High School. It was here where Al Postus made a name for himself. He was proficient in football, basketball, tennis, and track during his four year stay there.

Elected Captain

In his sophomore year at St. Thomas More, he was selected as a member of the Philadelphia All-Catholic Basketball team. He went on to play such outstanding court work that he was selected for his last two years also. In his senior year, he was elected captain of the team as well as being very instrumental in his team's presence in the playoffs for the championship.



All-Catholic Halfback

Al, however, made a much greater name in football while at high school. He was a member of the Philadelphia All-Catholic football team in his last two years at St. Thomas More. Three and four years ago when St. Joseph's Prep was still king of Philadelphia Catholic League Football, it was St. Thomas More, with Al Postus leading the way, that gave the Hawklets their closest contests. In his last year, he was elected co-captain of the football team which with the captaincy of the court five, is quite an honor.

Ran 440

Football and basketball were not his only sport endeavors as he was a member of the track as well as the tennis teams. Since no baseball team existed, Al didn't have the opportunity to show his prowess in this sport. In track, he ran the quarter mile and tossed the shotput. Tennis found him holding down one of the singles berths in this team.

Sustains Injury

Upon being graduated from St. Thomas More in 1940, Al matriculated here at Villanova. He immediately became a member of the Freshman football team but broke an ankle in practice and was thereby unavailable for the season.

With such a handicap at his disfavor, Al, nevertheless, made the varsity in his second year and held down the regular halfback position for the season.

Throws Touchdown Pass

He didn't really come into his own until his sophomore year when under the shrewd generalship of the "Clipper", the Wildcats were beginning to come to life.

In the Baylor game of that year, Al was largely responsible for the 'Cats' victory. He, as well as the team, especially desired to win that game, for both Baylor and Villanova at the time were sporting winning streaks.

In the '41 Temple game, Al's touchdown return of a punt nearly put the 'Cats in. He had previously thrown a touchdown pass to George Smith early in the game. The Templars, however, uncorked a savage aerial thrust to nose out Villanova 14-13.

Potent Scorer

Last year he was one of the big reasons for a quite successful season. His punt returns, passing and end sweeps helped the 'Cats immensely. His great passing in the Iowa State game helped to smother the Cyclones.

In the Temple game Villanova led by Al crushed the Owls 20-7. In this encounter he made another touchdown along with George Smith and Tom Gildea, to be one of the few who have scored touchdowns in more than one game of the long series.

Al played a little basketball last year but after several games he dropped out because of being overtaxed by scholastic duties and the opening of baseball practice.

Drives in Winning Runs

Though he didn't play baseball in high school, he played an exceptional first base for the 'Cats. In quite a remarkable ball club, considering the great loss of former stars in the service, Al Postus certainly looked like a fixture on the initial sack. It was in the annual game with Penn that he drove in the winning runs to give Villanova a 6-5 victory.

Al being a member of the Marine detachment has two more semesters here, and then will be sent to Parris Island, and the Officers Candidate class for a commission.

He has gained many honors in football, being a recipient of a Maxwell Award, All-State, and All-Philadelphia halfback positions for the last two years, as well as All-American mentions.

We know Al will this year rise to even greater heights in the intercollegiate sport world and we salute a grand guy, a swell sport, and a great athlete.

rinated by their war-lords. In the case of the Nazis, the cold cruelty which sprang at first from Prussian pride in might, has now become the frenzy of desperation.

What concerns us more, however, is our own reaction to behaviour of this kind. Obviously, we are not talking about the natural hardness of war, the inescapable blood, sweat and tears. But what should be our policy as a Christian nation, or as one which still lives by the code of Christian decency, in face of the heathen amoralism of our opponents.

Victory Without Dishonor

Time was when a truly Christian law of honor governed the men of war. Chivalry was the practical working out of Christianity. The ancient idea of justice — an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth —was succeeded by the Christ-inspired ideal of mercy for all, even the weak, even the vanquished. This chivalrous code of honor was observed in tournament as well as in war and has come down to us in our code of sportsmanship. To us it is a commonplace that in sport of battle the honorable treatment of our opponents can never be sacrificed for the sake of victory. With us a victory won dishonorably is an ignominous defeat.

But suppose, as in this war, your opponent does not obey the rules, fights dirty, with a low animal cunning and truly bestial cruelty. It goes without saying that in actual battle, where a man must kill or be killed, one must perforce stoop to the level of his opponent. But should we yield to the frenzy of war so that we applaud the slaughter of the innocent, the bayonetting of the wounded, the bombing of non-military objectives, the murder of a man in parachute? Thank God most of us are above that.

Protect Christian Ideals

Every individual struggle in this conflict, every personal combat is the war in miniature. If this war has any meaning at all, it must be a crusade. We must believe that we are fighting for the triumph of Christian ideals against the resurgence of barbarism. It we adopt the methods of our opponents we are no better than they and the war becomes like a prehistoric strife between savage monsters, a return to the struggle of behemoths in premeval slime.

When our gloriously victorious armies march into Berlin and Tokio, we do not want the streets lined with a fearful, cringing, abject mob of slaves. We hope that our conqquering heroes will be hailed by a joyous and deliriously happy people, a people with supreme trust in our justice and mercy. It is almost ridiculous to think of the typical American boy as a fearsome fighting machine, cold, cruel, and merciless. Rather we can visualize them swinging down Unter den Linden as the true sons of a splendidly free and happy nation, on their faces that characteristic American grin which is accepted everywhere as a passport to universal friendship and brotherhood.

made three errors. The Blue Jackets did not give up, for, as they came to bat in the last stanza, they had plenty of power. Hughes made the initial out, but Borschke started things rolling with a single. Femiano singled as did scrappy Al Sondheimer to send two runners scampering home. Warner advanced Al to second on an infield out. Mihalek walked and Mueller came through with a two base wallop, scoring Sondheimer but Mihalek was held at third. Winters was then walked to fill the bases but Pula's fly to center was easily caught and the rally fell short, giving the Marines a 10-7 victory, number twelve for Kasulin as against no defeats.

Marines Rally

The third contest saw the Marines again down the Navy with a brilliant seventh inning rally. The Navy went into the lead in the second as they scored three times. They added another in the third and two more in both the fifth and sixth frames. Femiano pitched scoreless ball until the fifth when Al Kasulin took things in his own hands, driving out a home run in deep center. The Leathernecks scored again in the sixth to make the score read eight to three, as they came up for their last bats. Koproski drew a free pass to first as he waited Femiano out. Postus was safe at first as Winters let his grounder roll through him. Zamlynski was also safe as Mueller was not able to hold the bag on Warners' throw, Koproski scoring on the play. Winters also erred on Broas' grounder allowing two more runs to score.

Feeney Knocks in Winning Runs

Fetting then kept things going with a single to center, Broas holding up at third. Nealon was thrown out at first, but Kasulin, determined to keep his record intact, came through again with a double tieing up the ball game at eight all. Lopez then worked the tiring Femiano for a walk and Burns was intentionally passed to fill the bases. Feeney, with the count of two and two, brought the game to an abrupt climax as he drove a hard liner over second, scoring Kasulin with the winning run.

Last night the Student all Stars were pitted against the Navy, while tonight they will meet the Marines in a game which will probably decide the championship.

plug to you fellows out there to write into the office.

ODDS AND ENDS:

The old Pie Shoppe assumed a horsey appearance for a short time last week . . . the fellows could hardly believe their eyes when two couples strolled in the cokes and smokes. Someone even started a rumor that an Army unit for cavalry trainees was to be instituted here with female instructors . . . .needless to say this spread quickly. From the time of some of the events at the recent meet there could be a powerful swimming team representing the college.

If you can't write good lines at least you can always borrow them —I always say . . .

He replied, "One's absurd!"
And Bigmany, sir, is a crime!"

net on the tower, thus showing their ability to climb aboard a rescue ship. They then entered and swam the length of the pool without splashing nor making noise of any sort, carrying rifles and other equipment, imitating a silent landing on a hostile shore. The final exhibition was a group, wearing service trousers, who leapt into the pool and while keeping themselves afloat, removed and inflated these pants and floated on them. The exhibition sponsored by Chief Beck and Chief Sandig, was run off very smoothly and congratulations are in order to both of them.

More Meets Proposed

This meet was the first of it's kind held this year and according to the acclaim the competitors received and the general pleasure about the meet, more are in order, Many of the spectators expressed their desire that other similar meets should be run as many more wished to participate in the contests. The creation, arrangement and fine running order of the meet was due chiefly to the efforts and excellent working of Rev. E. B. McKee, O. S. A. Moderator of Intramural Athletics. It was through his fine work, assisted by Chiefs Beck and Sandig that such a fine show was presented. To Father McKee has been extended congratulations and the request for more of the same. Perhaps with such illustrative meets, a representative team to meet other V-12 Units could be composed.

STOPPER AND HOWLETT

When the football team from Sampson Naval Training Station arrives here for its game with Villanova, two former Wildcat grid greats, Andy Stopper and "Buzz" Howlett, will accompany the squad. Currently serving as Chief Specialists in the Navy, they are assisting Commander Mal Stevens, N. Y. U.'s peacetime coach, with the team. Stopper and Howlett were teammates on the 1937 undefeated Wildcats coached by "Clipper" Smith. Both were backfield men, and Howlett in his senior year handled the kicking chores while Stopper was better known as a runner.

Part Time Courses To Be Resumed Soon

The college has recently announced that the regular Saturday and evening part-time courses will be conducted this year as usual. Two bulletins containing the details concerning these courses have just been issued.

Villanova has conducted these sessions on Saturdays and evenings since 1918 for students desiring to further their educations but who are unable to attend regular daily classes.

Registration for the courses will be held at Hallahan High School, 19th and Wood Sts., Phila., on Sept. 25 for the Saturday session and on Sept 29 for the evening classes.

Federal Trade Commission, the House's Ways and Means Committee, the Supreme Court, etc. Because of present wartime restrictions on traveling these trips had to be discontinued for the duration.

Dr. Hartman has been a frequent contributor to the Faculty column of the VILLANOVAN. He has also proven himself to be a writer of extraordinary ability by many of his constitutional articles appearing in "The Christian Front."

Host to French Sailors

Last semester Dr. Hartman was instrumental in bringing a group of French sailors from the cruiser "Montcalm" for a brief visit to the campus. He became acquainted with these sailors while acting as an official at the Catholic U.S.O. Center at St. Benedict's Hall in Philadelphia. It is here that Dr. Hartman has spent much of his time providing entertainment and recreation for visiting servicemen.

Dr. Hartman and his wife will reside at Woodmere Park, Pa.

President Attends Council Meeting

Fr. Stanford In Washington For Meeting Of Government Committee On Education

During the past week, the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., President of Villanova, attended the regular meeting of the Committee on the Relationships of Higher Education to the Federal Government held in Washington, D. C.

This group, selected on a national basis, has a membership of 18 university and college presidents from all parts of the country. It has been convening at frequent intervals for more than a year, working in collaboration with the federal government on the many complicated problems arising from the present emergency.

Fr. Stanford holds a position on the executive body of the Committee, which was appointed at government request and which now operates under the auspices of the American Council on Education. He was recently elected Secretary and member of the Executive Board of this latter organization for a three-year term.

Villanova Prof. Renders Aid To Survivors Of Tragic Train Accident

Responding immediately to the urgent call for help from the tragic wreck of the Congressional Limited on Labor Day evening, Professor William M. Gorman of Villanova College gave great assistance in helping the injured from the overturned cars, and later reported to various hospitals where the wounded were taken to offer his blood for transfusions.

Prof. Gorman, an instructor in mechanical engineering, joined with many other civilians who arrived immediately after the accident in assisting the injured. He has the highest praise for the valiant men and women who worked diligently to free the trapped passengers: "They all proved to be true citizens of the 'City of Brotherly Love'!"

A.I.E.E. Shows Film On The Discovery And Growth of X-ray

The Villanova Branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers presented a motion picture entitled "Exploring With X-Rays," to its members last Thursday afternoon. This film told in forty minutes of fast-moving entertainment the life story of x-rays —from their discovery, less than a century ago, to developments announced only recently.

It was a story packed with significance from beginning to end. It showed how x-rays were discovered in a quiet university laboratory late in the nineteenth century; how they were produced with crude apparatus; how scientists all over the world experimented with them; how they were welcomed by medicine; and how today's new and more powerful apparatus has made it possible for new uses to be found in medicine, dentistry, and industry.

Dr. Coolidge Appears

Dr. W. D. Coolidge, world-famous for his researches in x-rays and for his development of the x-ray tubes, explained in person what makes x-rays and how they are produced.

The story concerns a young medical student who went to a radiologist for an x-ray examination of his knee and stayed to learn of the many instances in which x-rays have proved of great value. Among the characters in the movie were some whose faces proved to be familiar to movie goers. The film was produced in Hollywood under the direction of John J. Boland.

VILLANOVAN Gets 'All-Catholic' Honors

In the sixth annual survey conducted recently by the Catholic School Press Association at the Marquette University School of Journalism, the VILLANOVAN was awarded the honor rating "All Catholic" for its 1942-43 issues.

The VILLANOVAN has received a similar award each year since the inauguration of the CSPA. In addition, it has been presented with various certificates of honor by the Catholic College Press Association and the National Scholastic Press Association.

A.S.C.E. Meeting To Be Held This Noon

Joseph Centrone, Secretary-Treasurer of the organization, has announced that all sophomores taking the Civil Engineering course are invited to attend.

Future Priests Take Vows At Solemn Ceremony

Profession Of Vows Of Poverty, Chastity, And Obedience Made By Scholastics

The following students of the Augustinian Scholasticate at Villanova made their solemn profession of the vows of Poverty, Chastity, and Obedience after a ten day retreat which ended on Friday, September 10: Francis L. Lynch, O.S.A., '43, of Philadelphia; Edwin R. Kuczynski, O.S.A., '44, of Rockford, Ill.; Henry B. Syvinski, O.S.A., '44, of Amesbury, Mass.; Joseph H. McDermott, O.S.A., '43, of Staten Island, N. Y.; Henry J. McIntyre, O.S.A., '44, of Philadelphia; John M. McGettigan, O.S.A., '44, of Philadelphia; James L. Nolan, O.S.A., '43, of Chestnut Hill, Pa.; Robert J. Welsh, O.S.A., '43, of Philadelphia; William J. Murray, O.S.A., '44, of Jersey City, N. J.; Augustus C. Sandmann, O.S.A., '44, of Atlantic City, N. J., and Peter J. Toscani, O.S.A., '44, of Philadelphia, Pa.

The retreat was conducted by Rev. A. Brennan, O.S.A., of the Augustinian Mission Band. The profession ceremony was preceded by a Solemn High Mass celebrated by Rev. John Anderson, O.S.A., at 9 o'clock in the college Chapel. The young Augustinians made their vows to the Prior of St. Mary's Hall, the Rev. John McCabe, O.S.A. A sermon by the Retreat-Master on the duties of the life they were embracing closed the ceremony.

The students will remain on the campus until graduation in May, 1944, after which they will be sent to the Augustinian College, Washington, D. C., where they will pursue their theological course.

Villanova "Alumnus" Will Appear Oct. 1

Rev. Robert McGrath, O.S.A., Secretary of the Villanova Alumni Association, has announced that the graduates' publication, "The Alumnus," will appeai on or about the first of next month.

It is now more difficult than ever for the Alumni Office to remain in contact with former Villanovans. For this reason all students who know of recent address changes of servicemen are requested to submit such data to the Alumni Office.

This information would greatly facilitate the mailing of both VILLANOVAN and "The Alumnus" and guarantee their proper reception.

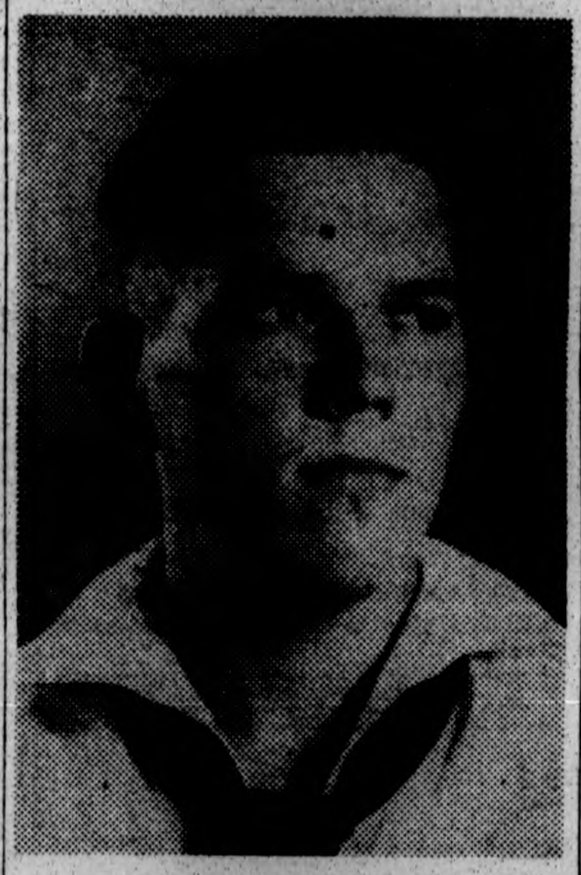
Student Council Names Committee Chairmen For Fall Dance On Oct. 2

Representatives Of Various Campus Dormitories Make Arrangements To Open Social Season

Chairman



RICHARD RYAN, A.S.

Vice Chairman

HERBERT BANSBACH

During the past week, the students of the various dormitories on the campus elected representatives to the Student Council under its recently inaugurated system of organization. The proceedings were conducted under the supervision of Richard Ryan, A. S., Chairman of the Council, and Herbert Bansbach, Vice-Chairman, who last year were elected to their respective offices for the present semester.

The entire organization was present at a meeting on Wednesday evening, Sept. 8th, conducted for the purpose of discussing the forthcoming dance. At this time an election to fill the position of Secretary-Treasurer, which had been vacated during the large student turnover last semester, was held, and Pvt. Sabino Carone, formerly of Georgetown, was given the post.

At the meeting the following men were placed in charge of the committees which are to handle the details of the dance scheduled for October 2: Bansbach and Carone, band; Quinn and Burns, decorations; Hoberg, tickets; Eni, refreshments, and Fitzgibbons, the arrangement of dates with girls from local colleges.

The following students have been elected as members of the Council: Joseph Coll, A.S., and James Connelly, A.S., of Fedigan Hall; Pvt. Sabino Carone and Pvt. John Killelea, of Austin Hall; James Daly, A.S., and John Atkinson, A.S., of Alumni Hall; Peter Conway, A.S., and Frank O'Connor, A.S., of Mendel Hall; Bradford Johnson, of O'Dwyer Hall; James Corrigan, of Simpson Hall, and John Welsh, of St. Rita's Hall. Lou Eni and Dominick Bontempo were chosen to represent the non-resident students.

Austin Gavin, A.S., of Lambda Kappa Delta, the campus science fraternity; Hugh Burns, A.S., of the commerce and finance fraternity, Delta Pi Epsilon; and Frank Quinn of Phi Kappa Pi, the engineering fraternity, have been elected to represent their respective organizations. John Fitzgibbons, of the Belle Aire staff, and George Hoberg, Editor of the VILLANOVAN, hold membership by virtue of their positions.

Men From Fleet Give Up Ratings To Enter V-12

Navy Sends Men From All Corners Of Globe To Villanova

We landlubbers here at Villanova have been wondering about the past history of those certain sailors who, by the salty angle of their hats and the crease in their jumpers, betray the fact that they have seen the inside of a boot camp and have felt the roll of a deck beneath their feet. They are the Navy "regulars"—the men of the fleet.

To qualify for an appointment to the V-12 program, these boys had to meet rigid requirements. It was necessary that they be unmarried, have a high school education, and have scored at least 85 percent in their qualification test upon enlisting. Then they passed a physical examination and were finally approved by a selection board composed of their superior officers.

They reached the United States by plane or ship, most of them coming from outposts all over the world.

Let's meet these future ensigns:

Robert Fluck was a Chief Yeoman stationed at Natal, Brazil. He has been in the service for five years and served two years on the U.S.S. Texas.

The Sea Bees contributed George Biddington from Iceland. A Shipfitter 2/C, he has served 14 months.

Douglas Kelly saw duty aboard a subchaser before shipping to Villanova, much to the relief of the U-Boat captains. Here he has distinguished himself as Dr. Hartman's number one history student. An "old salt" of 18 months' service, he was rated a Radioman 2/C.

After enlisting 14 months ago, Jerome McCarthy, Yeoman 1/C, was transferred from Naval Intelligence to Bainbridge, and thence to Villanova.

John Bailey flew from an island in the Caribbean, where he was stationed on a seaplane tender. A Torpedoman 3/C, he "joined the Navy to free the world" after hearing a Walter Winchell broadcast 18 months ago.

In the past two years, Raymond Thomas has sailed on most of the oceans on the globe. A Radarman 2/C, he saw action in the Solomon Islands.

Yeoman 2/C Frank Kelly served for twenty months in the North Atlantic.

Joseph Carey, who enlisted two years ago, held the rating of Radioman 2/C on a destroyer in the North Atlantic area.

Yeoman 3/C Allen Curtis has been in the Navy since last December. He served in the Office of the Naval Attache at the United

Chapel

MORE of the service men should take advantage of the numerous facilities for religious services which can be found here on the campus. We have an opportunity now that will never be equalled, and we should take advantage of it. A much larger number of service men could attend daily mass and evening chapel services at no great inconvenience to themselves. While undoubtedly it is a sacrifice to get to mass in the morning, there should be little difficulty getting to evening chapel services.

The chapel is open all day long and it would be well to visit it at least once a day for a few prayers. A good time would be on the way back from Physical Training classes. Most of us pass the chapel on our way back and it would only take an extra minute or two to stop in for a short visit.

We are all striving to prepare our bodies and our minds for the oncoming struggle for life, so we certainly should make an effort to prepare the spiritual side of our nature for its battles. We would do well to keep in mind Christ's admonition "What does it profit a man if he gains the whole world and suffers the loss of his immortal soul."

J. M. M.

Let's Be Fair

IN the present fast-moving scheme of the college life, time is practically invaluable. The success of every student on the campus depends on the way in which he spends those precious extra minutes which, especially for the service-men, are quite difficult to find.

An extra moment or two of cramming at dinner hour can be of inestimable value for that sixth period quiz, but with the lunch-line situation as it is, such moments just don't seem to exist. Although the college has done its best to stagger the influx into the chow-line, and the flow through the cafeteria is at an appreciable rate, the unlucky fellows at the back of the queue are frequently stuck there for most of their lunch period.

The only reason for these great delays is the fact that many have come to regard the lines as a joke, and the fellows willing to take their turns in them as a "bunch of suckers." Consequently, they have no tweaks of conscience as they push in near the head of the line and add an extra minute to the waiting-time of the forty or fifty men behind them.

Such unfair and unsportsmanlike conduct is becoming altogether too prevalent, and should be stopped. In matters likes this, regulations have little meaning; it is high time that the forty of fifty men in the back of the line assert their seniority rights and makes those fellows feel like the "heels" they are. One or two "cut-in's" really do not mean much, but is is quite discouraging for the man at the back of the line to watch a dozen-or-so men cut in before him while he worries about that extra bit of work he counted on accomplishing after lunch. What do you say, fellows—let's all wait our turn!!!

FACULTY COMMENTS

QUEBEC CONFERENCE

By FR. GILDEA

WE have been given reason to believe that this heading in history books of the future will rival in importance discussion of the Atlantic Charter. It is true that newsmen were somewhat disappointed at the driblets of information portioned out to them at the Quebec parleys. Reluctantly brought to realize that post-war plans as well as military decisions formulated there will be divulged only as they are put into effect, the gentlemen of the press and the general public along with them have had to be satisfied with speculating as to what went on.

Neither have we been told why Quebec was chosen as the site for the conference. It seems clear from declarations by Roosevelt and Churchill that they were at least intent on expressing thereby their esteem of the general Canadian war endeavor. But why Quebec instead of Ottawa, the capital of the Dominion? This again is matter for conjecture.

Political Implications Seen

Some see political implications in the choice. They maintain, for instance, that the stock of Prime Minister Mackenzie King, a former classmate of President Roosevelt, would thus be boosted in the Province of Quebec. Others prefer to see in the selection of the capital of this French-speaking province a special testimony to the French-Canadian contribution to the war effort. To add plausibility to this latter surmise, it is alleged that such a recognition would mitigate the still poignant memory of the ill-fated Dieppe raid experiment, in which French-Canadian casualties were particularly heavy.

It would be consoling indeed to look further than this and consider the choice of this predominantly Catholic locale as a token of the trend of Allied thought on Europe of the future.

Religion Impresses Tourists

Tourists who visit Quebec and are in a position to make the comparison readily concur that it is strikingly like a corner of Europe transplanted into the New World. The usual inclusion of the storied Shrine of St. Ann in the tourist's itinerary is tacit admission that retention of Old World characteristics in New France extends beyond external aspects to what is fundamental. It embraces a holding fast to the religious convictions of their forefathers. A stay of any duration among the French-Canadians brings home to an observer the important part religion plays in their daily lives.

It is perhaps idyllic to believe that the holding of Allied deliberations in such a setting is symbolic. Yet we know that it is the considered opinion of such an eminent historian as Hilaire Belloc that the only hope of a Europe restored to lasting tranquility lies in a return to the principles of faith that presided over the formation and growth of the various states.

Atheistic Representation Outlawed

The anomaly of seeking through any contrary process to re-establish harmony in Europe was scored by the Mayor of Quebec when he declared that the representation of an atheistic power at the Quebec Conference would belie the very things for which French Canada stands. Whatever may be thought of such a forthright assertion at this juncture, it undeniably represents a refusal to compromise with principle which merits only praise and emulation.

Nor are signs lacking that results will be forthcoming from firmness of stand regarding the basic attiture which must prevail at any conference table. Tolerating the rejection of the very basis on which our civilization is built cannot operate for the betterment of that civilization.

It is to be hoped, therefore, that the staunchness of the Citadel of Quebec, emblematic of the sturdy faith surrounding it, will prove to have had a counterpart in the character of the decisions evolved within its confines.

Artsman Chris Is a Fugitive Engineer, Physics By Far Is Bob's Greatest Fear

By BILL BOYLE

CONGENIAL Chris Kiefer was found on Tuesday evening past at his semi-weekly job of doing the wash. There he was bending over the basin amid all his G.I. equipment and looking quite domestic.

Christian Kiefer was born in Brooklyn, New York, in 1923. As a grammar school boy his life was somewhat drab. As he explained it himself:—"Nothing has ever happened to me." However, anyone who knows Chris will quite profoundly disagree with that statement.

His high school days were begun at a public school, but "due to unfavorable conditions" he transferred to Chaminade High School on Long Island. While at Chaminade he played a trumpet in the band

ROBERT BOLGER, the perfect gentleman, was born in Germantown on August 9, 1922, and I might add has resided there ever since.

Upon completion of his grammar school days at Norwood Academy he entered La Salle Prep. At La-Salle Bob was a member of the swimming team, specializing in the relay, and was also a member of the yearbook editorial staff.

When his high school days were over, Bob and several of his companions, deciding to stick together for the next few years, agreed on Villanova as their choice of a college.

THE TOP OF THE WEEK:

The number of fellows that turned out for the scrimmage the other evening without any prompting or ballyhoo was certainly indicative of something. . .for the first time this year there was some manifestation of a college spirit . . . the large number and the feeling that seemed to be present in the fellows gave some idea as to the interest in the team. . .

Certainly with the football season so close would not this be the proper time to develop this feeling As yet there has been no effort to create a band . . .yet such a unit could serve two very useful purposes . . . a marching band could play for the Saturday afternoon inspection parades and add a bit of color. Also it could be used as college band for the ball games. Such a group need not be the large band as in other years but a small one along the bugle and drum corps line. Going a bit further some organized cheering and yelling might be worked up if there were a few cheer leaders in the college.

THE TIP OF THE WEEK:

If you lads are in need of a change of food and atmosphere hop down to a certain place in Bryn Mawr on County Line and Conestoga Roads some noon for a very filling and really enjoyable spaghetti dinner.

THE TALK OF THE WEEK

At least in the mecca of upperclassmen, Good Counsel Hall, concerned itself with the forthcoming Army game. . .the main topics were dates and the transportation angle. The B.T.O.'s were working on the New York City invasion after the game.

THE SHOCK OF THE WEEK

Was thrust upon us suddenly one morning when we entered the Pie Shoppe and discovered that Joe Ham was back with us once again. Shades of better and older times! Welcome back, Joe.

THE QUESTION OF THE WEEK:

Why aren't doughnuts served at the breakfasts any more? Can it be that such an institution as this could be disappearing from the American scene? If this is true, then our culture is really distressing in the speed which it is fading. To our mind there is no better way to top off the morning meal.

THE THOUGHT OF THE WEEK:

Why doesn't some enterprising group of Marines or Navy men get together and do a little Research as to the possibilities of getting a spotlight band here through the Coca-Cola Company?

THE OFFER OF THE WEEK

Is to you fellows who are transfers from other colleges and do not receive copy of the college newspapers. Through our Exchange we receive papers from Georgetown, Lafayette, Lehigh, Northeastern and Washington and Jefferson. Although the number is not as large as in other years drop in to the VILLANOVAN office, and perhaps we can help you out.

That takes care of the week in some form or other. Other stray items have cropped up so we may as well discuss them right now . . .The Student Council, from inside reports, seems to be on the ball. Combined operations on the part of the three major groups on the campus—the residents, the marines and the navy students—are working rather well. The trend of small talk seems to be running toward a name band. It seems as if this is the way it should be as facts talk—why bring a gal in for a weekend and spend the roll for a small band when you can hop into the city and see the same outfit for less money. This is the first social event of the year, so why not make it truly a big event!!!

WITH the football season opening this week against Muhlenberg, it is only natural that this column be devoted to the grid sport in this issue. As is now common knowledge, Villanova will engage Army, Sampson, Bucknell, Lakehurst, Princeton, Holy Cross, and Temple in that order after Saturday's game. This is probably the toughest schedule that Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., Moderator of Athletics has ever arranged. There are no breathers on the schedule for this season. and it is more than likely that the smaller schools with the Navy and Marine trainees will have better teams than some of the bigger universities who weren't so fortunate as to be selected by the Navy Department. As an example of this we might cite the case of the College of the Pacific coached by the dean of mentors, Amos Alonzo Stagg. This team at the present moment is regarded by those in the know as the team to beat on the West Coast.

However, to get back to Villanova, the '43 edition of the Wildcats should be stronger than the '42 aggregation. Last year's starting backfield has returned intact with the exception of George "Block-Buster" Smith. These men are Al Postus, leading ground gainer, Joe Pezelski, who will be remembered for his 80 yard jaunt in the Temple game, and Johnny Dzitko, brilliant signal caller and blocking back.

In addition to these regulars, Lou Lopez, "Ziggie" Zamlynski, and Joe Koproski, all of whom saw plenty of action last year under "Clipper" Smith and have returned to the Main Line institution in the uniform of the Marines. Those backs mentioned above are supplemented by transfers from other colleges, namely Eddie Burns, and John Killelea from Boston College,

Racquet Tourney Finals This Week

After a few hot matches that almost baked the clay across the pike, the individual group champions were picked. Down by O'-Dwyer way, Tom Boyle wielded the air conditioned bludgeon to rate first place among the Resident contenders. To gain this place he beat Frank Hinnenkamp 6-0, 7-5. Frank Perna and "Corky" Corkhill helped to get the tournament rolling in that section, but the latter lost out in the semi-finals. The net man from Fedigan looks like Allen Curtis who will represent the Navy (F) in the big tournament. Alumni's Austin Gaven and Mendel's Bill Lamb will add a little pepper to the grand finale and are sure-fire hot opposition for all contenders. John Farrow will represent the Day Hops.

Sunday Deadline

The play-offs will be as follows: Gaven will play the Marines' champion who most probably will be Jerry Dwyer; Farrow of the Day Hops will catch them off the strings of Bill Lamb of the Navy (M), while Tom Boyle, Resident, will have it out with Allen Curtis of the Navy. One of the winners will then draw a "bye" and play in the finals, the other two meeting in a semi-final.

The above matches must be over by this Sunday. The time for the matches will be arbitrarily chosen by the players themselves but they must be so arranged as to be over by the deadline. For further information see Rev. E. B. McKee, O. S. A., Director of Intramural Athletics

Marine Combine Defeats Students To Gain Title

Commandos Avenge Previous Defeat By Seven-Two Score; Navy Wins Final Game And Knocks Civilians Out Of First Place

By JOE DALY, A. S.

A determined and fighting Marine team won the softball round robin here last Friday as the Navy downed the Resident Students in a game which had to be played over because of a stalemate between the two clubs on Thursday night. The Leathernecks came from behind in the series to cop the title from the other two contenders. After the first week of play, the Resident Students led by a full game as they were undefeated. The first game of last week saw the Students still on the top as they beat the Navy All-Stars, seven to four.

The Zips got away to an early start as they scored four runs in the first. After Casella had flied out to Lopez, Grange drew a walk and went to second on a passed ball. Jumping Joe Szal then came through with a single over second, scoring Grange. Koerner promptly rapped a double, and Szal came home on the play. Tom McQuade followed with a grounder to short which Warner bobbled, and the Residents' first sacker was safe on the error. Reagan then grounded out, second to first, Koerner scoring on the play, while McQuade went to third, to score a moment later on Welsh's infield hit. Cahill was retired via the strike out route, after the Zips had tallied four times.

Grange Doubles

The Residents added two more in the second on Casella's safety to right, Grange's double to left and a single by Szal, who led his club at bat with three for three. The Zips kept things going as they scored another in the third. Meanwhile, Corkhill kept the Bluejackets at bay with two hits. Not a Navy man reached second base until the fifth when they coupled two hits, two walks, and an error to push across four runs. However, this was as far as the Students would let them go, and they were submerged, seven to four.

Zamlynski Sacrifices

Tuesday saw the beginning of the end for the Civilian Students, as they bowed to the Marines, seven to two. The Leathernecks drew first blood in the last half of the second as Postus was safe on an error. Fetting then hit safely after Zamlynski had sacrificed Al to second. On the play at home in an effort to nip Postus, Jack raced all the way to third. He scored on the next play as Bross hit a long fly deep into right field.

Kasulin Clouts Homer

In the first half of the third, the Zips came to life and managed to score once when Grange doubled, and McQuade singled to drive him in. However, Kasulin managed to retire the side without any more damage. The Marines came to bat and returned to their old form as they forged way out in the lead with three more tallies. Kasulin opened with a tremendous drive over Lopez's head in right for a home run. Lou Lopez then followed with a single as did Burns and Feeney who had been pacing the club throughout the series. Dervin drew a walk, but Corkhill finally got control of himself, and retired the next men in order. The Zips attempted to come back but the best they could get off Kasulin was one run and they were forced into defeat, and a half a game behind the Marines.

Students Handicapped

The final contest between the Students and the Navy had to be played twice because of a tie in the first engagement. After five innings, the game was called on account of darkness with the score all tied up at 5-5. On Friday night, when the game was played over, the Students were at a great handicap. They were forced to play without the services of their outstanding pitcher, Corkhill, as well

Andy Stopper, former Villanova football luminary was at his best in the recent game between the New York Giants and Sampson Naval Training Station. The Professionals won the game by the score of 19-0 despite all the efforts that the sailors put forth. Stopper passed and ran in the style that made him famous and sparked the Navy's only sustained drive which ended five yards short of a touchdown.

Villanova Opens Football Season With Muhlenberg

Wildcats Renew Old Rivalry In Game At Allentown; Both Teams Sprinkled With Navy And Marine Trainees

Villanova resumes football relations with Muhlenberg College of Allentown, Pennsylvania, this Saturday afternoon, September 18, for the first time in several years. Although other Villanova teams have engaged the Mules recently, neither of these teams have met on the gridiron since 1938.

Muhlenberg coached by Al Julian, a mainstay at the Allentown institution for over seven years, has quite a formidable aggregation on hand. Bolstered by several hundred Navy and Marine trainees under the Naval V-12 setup along with a small civilian turnout, Muhlenberg is considered by the experts to have a team strong enough to take on any kind of opposition. The Mules, through the Navy program, have obtained many stars from such colleges as Lehigh, Lafayette, West Chester, Grove City, and Washington College. Five members of last year's team which won seven out of ten games are on hand with the V-12 unit.

If the splendid playing of the Mules at the Yale Bowl last Saturday is any criterion of their strength, Villanova will be in for a tough encounter when these two teams meet.

Haldeman Star

Muhlenberg entrained for New Haven last Saturday decidedly underdogs. But after the first several minutes of play the spectators quickly realized that the proteges of Coach Julian could fight on even terms with the Elis. Muhlenberg scored first in the game in the second quarter when Bob Haldeman ran a punt back 26 yards to the Yale 44 yard line and Dave Griffith connected with a thirty yard aerial to Thadeus Szela down to the Blues' ten yard line from whence Walt Duncavage, a last year star of the Mules, promptly carried it over. Yale came back and won the game but not until after they employed practically everything in the books to eke out a victory. In this game three men stood out for Muhlenberg who undoubtedly will give the 'Cats plenty of trouble. They are Shifty Bob Haldeman, Dave Griffith, and plunger Walt Duncavage.

'Cats Unknown Quantity

Though we will not know how the Main Liners will show up in this coming game, they should be able to take care of themselves. With many stars from other colleges attached to here along with several lettermen from last year's eleven, Villanova will invade Allentown with quite a strong team. Coach Jordan Olivar along with the Navy Specialists have been working hard to get the 'Cats in shape for this strong encounter.

Former Thanksgiving Opponents

Muhlenberg will have the advantage in having already played a game and one against strong opposition. Coach Julian of Muhlenberg is expecting the hardest kind of a game with the Wildcats, since there has always been intense rivalry in the past between these two Eastern Pennsylvania Institutions. For a number of years, Villanova was the Thanksgiving Day opponent of the Mules in Allentown, in the days before Harry Stuhldreher's regime at Villanova and the contests always attracted huge crowds as well as presenting the best type of football.

Mules First Home Game

This, being Muhlenberg's first home appearance of their eleven game schedule and Villanova's initial appearance on the gridiron scene, should draw quite a crowd if games of the past are any basis for such a statement.

Next Saturday then, the clash between the Navy and Marines of Muhlenberg College, and the Marines and Navy of Villanova, will provide a very important insight into the football future this year of the Wildcats, and more or less show the possibilities of overcoming many of the stronger opponents yet to come on this year's schedule

Softball Circuit Chooses All-Stars

Marines Top Other Groups With Seven Men; Mueller Only Sailor Selected

Since the second half of the softball league is out of the question because of the early darkness, the league solons got together, as is usually done after a season, and chose an All-All-Star team. This group was chosen from the three All-Star aggregations, and is comprised of seven Marines, three students, and one sailor.

The lone sailor who managed to force himself into the line-up is Gordon Mueller. Strange as it may seem, he was selected to patrol the outer gardens although in the recent play-offs, he was at first base. This bluejacket was an all-round man during the entire season, playing both outfield and infield as the occasion warranted. In addition to being a good utility man defensively, Mueller was one of the long ball hitters of the league.

Feeney at Third

The remainder of the outfield consists of leathernecks, namely, Lou Lopez, Joe Koproski, and John Fetting. Fetting was chosen as the short-fielder on the basis of his fielding throughout the year, while Koproski, who was the leading hitter of last year's varsity nine, and Lopez were selected for their hitting and fielding.

Manning the hot corner is Bill Feeney, transfer from Georgetown where he played both basketball and baseball. This boy undoubtedly was the outstanding third baseman of the league, and consistently broke up opponent's rallies by his heads-up ball playing.

McQuade Sparkplug

Selected as the keystone combination are two more devil dogs, Al Postus at short, and Eddie Burns at second. This pair worked well together all year, and had quite a bit to do in taking the softball title to Austin Hall. Neither of these boys were outstanding at the plate, but their defensive play around the middle bag couldn't be beaten, and for this reason they were named to the team.

The league heads chose as their initial sacker Big Tom McQuade who was a member of the Student ten. Opposing pitchers were very wary when this boy stepped to the plate, especially if there were men in scoring position. Tom was mainly responsible for the only defeat by the Marine Commandos during the year when he hit a home run with the bases loaded. However, this engineer was chosen not only for his playing ability, but also for

By HUGH O'REILLY, A.S.

We are now sure that Villanova will have a football team. That it will be a very good one is the optimistic voice of every Villanovan. They cry: we will have a brilliant and powerful line and setting it off will be a great backfield containing many outstanding players. Among the most brilliant stars in this constellation of backs will be a footballer, long remembered for his gridiron feats, Joe Pezelski.

Joe, a senior in football at Villanova, and now a member of the Marine Corps Reserve, has a life story which reads like a book. Born in the hard-coal mining town of Kulpmont, Pennsylvania, on June 7, 1920, he matriculated at Kulpmont High School. Joe's studies for the time consisted in only two years of high school during which time he had already shown his proficiency in this his chosen sport. Following these two years, he was forced to withdraw, due to unforeseen exigencies at home. In his search for a job, Joe found the only work available was in a bootleg hole. That is a mine which has been abandoned by the large mining companies because they deemed it too dangerous for further working. After a year of such work, Joe found it possible to return to his studies.

State High Scorer

Having already successfully played two years of varsity ball, he returned willing and able to carry on his football. In this his junior year, the team's power was abetted by the addition of another great player, Steve Filipowicz, who was later to become Fordham's all-time football ace and All-American. This third year of high school was one of note in Joe's books, for although the team missed the state championship by one game, he, individually, was honored by being awarded a medal for his role as high scorer in the league with 78 points.

In his senior year, he enjoyed even better results. The team this season, was undefeated to become the Eastern Pennsylvania champs and opposed the Western Division titlists for the state championship. In this title struggle, Joe performed as never before. His team won by the topsided score of 50-19 to which total he had contributed six touchdowns, bringing his season total of touchdowns to 22. This amazing total of points scored won for him the honor of being the highest individual scorer in the state. Quite a feat for such a small man.

Entered Prep School

That Joe was a natural athlete was attested to by the fact that not only did he shine in football but in track and in basketball. In both sports he was just as consistent a scorer and added praise to an already perfect record.

Because of his youth, he was advised by older heads to continue his studies at some preparatory school. For this purpose he chose New York Military Academy where for a year he furthered his fine record in these selected fields of sports by winning letters for football, basketball and track. It was after this year that Joe decided on college and his choice led him to Villanova.

80 Yard Run

Upon entering here, he enrolled in the Commerce and Finance School to work for a major in Accounting. His one year on the freshman team convinced "Clipper" Smith that here was the back for him. Living up to his reputation, Joe made the varsity in his sophomore year. As Joe himself said, "Any good football sense I had was brought out by the sagacious Clipper." In this second year at the Wildcat institution, the team played among others Baylor University of Texas whose squad had been picked as one of the best in the country. It was in this game he proved himself worthy of any honors for it was in this contest that he took a punt, and ran sixty yards down the sideline to score a touchdown. Later in the same game he returned another long punt, and by virtue of this run set up another score. His junior year was marked by equally fine playing. Most memorable in that season was his work in the Villanova - Temple game. Although he scored no points, his playing was good enough to have him selected on the Templar's All-Opponent team. It was also in this struggle that he ran 80 yards for a touchdown only to have it nullified by a clipping penalty.

Congratulations

If his senior year parallels his similar year in high school, Joe should prove to be one of the really great players coming from the Main Line school. For according to the promise which he has already shown he will be even greater than he has ever been. With congratulations for this past fine work we offer him all sorts of wishes for the great season which is coming.

Al Kasulin from Miami U. and Bill Flaherty from Mt. St. Mary's.

The forward wall is also well manned both by returning Villanovans and by men from other colleges. At present, the center position is three deep with Bill Nealon, Doug Boyd, and "Zig" Gory who was understudy to Art Alois last year. The last two named are former Wildcats while Nealon was a teammate of Kasulin at Florida. Flanking the center could be two more Villanovan men, namely, Vinnie Carlesimmo and Gene Konopka who played plenty of football under "Clipper" Smith last year. Add the names of Max Cheponuk, Al Coleman, Bill Priff, "Sparks" Winters, John Severson and Len Fazio and we end up with an impressive array of talent.

At the tackle positions Jim Harkins and Joe McCarthy are entering their third year of varsity competition as Wildcats, and giving these boys a run for their money are Joe Donnelly in from the fleet, John Siano who used to wear the colors of Georgetown, and John Lilikos and Al Kavall from Northeastern.

Dynamic Billy Sullivan returns to claim his old end position while at the present moment Milt Anderson, frosh sensation of last year is having quite a battle with Val Jansante, who played 58 minutes against us in 1942, for the starting position. Backing these two will be Ed Kolnoski and Bill Feeney.

All these names seem to indicate a good ball club for the season. However, because of longer study hours and more lab periods, Coach Olivar's main trouble has been getting the squad together at one time. Practice has also been limited to an hour a day and that isn't much time to whip a football team into shape. One fact that may balance this handicap is that most of the teams being met this year all have the V-12 units or are Naval Stations and hence probably have the same difficulty.

So we wish our new mentor loads of success in his first year as a college coach and to the football team we say [illegible]

As a freshman he competed in the swimming meet of the intramural program. He has also played intramural softball every season. In his sophomore year Bob was chosen as a member of the Ring Committee. Throughout his college career he has been very active in the Spanish Club, the History Seminar, Delta Pi Epsilon, and has been a featured sports writer for the "VILLANOVAN."

Bob felt that the Navy had more to offer him than any other branch of the service, so he joined the Naval Reserve. He was originally in the V-7 program, but recently transferred to the V-5 program, and is now a potential naval flyer.

No Serious Romance

As for his love life, Bob was almost convincing when he stated that he had not time to worry about or bother with women. He finally broke down, however, and confessed that he corresponds with an ex-Rosemont lass who at the present time is in California. "Nothing serious," but I have my doubts.

Only one thing really bothers Bob at present: physics. This nightmare does not worry him to too great an extent, however, for he has discovered that everyone who ever studied physics felt the same way about the subject.

Constant Class Heckler

Dr. Hartman will long remember Mr. Bolger as a persistent heckler in class. But as Bob has said: "Now that the good Doctor is married perhaps he will be a bit more lenient."

Although reaching the top as a naval aviator is indeed a difficult task those who know Bob all agree that he has the "stuff" to make good. Not only will he make good in the sky; he will be a sure success in anything he undertakes.

So to our "Germantown Gentleman" I'll say "Keep 'Em Flying!"

Behind the plate is Sal Casella, regular receiver for the Students. Sal was the unanimous choice of the committee, and he well deserves this honor. Participating in every game, this New Yorker was on his toes every minute, and besides being a capable catcher, was also a constant threat at the plate.

The pitching staff is well taken care of by Al Kasulin, a Marine, and "Corky" Corkhill, a Student. The former pitched every other game for the Commandos and finished the season with a percentage of 1.000. This six-foot leatherneck was also able to smack the old apple, as was evidenced by his tremendous drives in the post season games. The latter while not winning every time out, still tossed many a good game, and his selection will be heartily approved by the followers of the Student team.

Liked College Name

When the time arrived for Chris to pick a college he would like to call his Alma Mater, Villanova was his choice because: "I liked the sound of the name."

As a freshman here he was quite outstanding. Running with the freshman track team, playing a trumpet in the college band, and strumming a guitar as a member of the "Villanovans" did not quite satisfy Chris for he went on to lead the freshman engineering class scholastically.

At the conclusion of his freshman year Chris made one of the greatest decisions of his life. He decided that in the field of engineering there were "too many numbers" and thus made an about face and switched over to the Arts School.

Considers Engineers "Punchy"

In this writer's opinion the "too many numbers" was not the only reason Chris decided to change his course. For as the interview progressed he spoke quite freely of how the engineers seemed to him to be "a punchy lot." He explains it:—"They walk around in somewhat of a trance with a slide-rule protruding from the inside pocket. Comes Sunday, the slide-rule is missing but the bulge in the coat pocket remains." Many times the witty Chris has sat down to enjoy a nice juicy steak (pre-war days) when "along comes an engineer, parks himself beside me, and over a delicious meal speaks only of hyperbolic functions." This was certainly not the company for a fellow like Chris, so he severed all further connections with Villanova's mathematical madhouse! He then embarked upon an Arts career, where "if perchance I should be a failure I shall at least be a graceful one."

Things were quite rosey for Chris in the Arts School until the government decided to draft 'teen agers. He was just one step ahead of them, however, and so joined the Navy. Why? Let us again quote Christian: "For some reason or other the government officials were very fond of drafting artsmen. I thought I had better join something pretty darn quick, and because I like the Navy uniforms, I chose the Navy."

Beauty! Money! Brains?

As for his private life Chris claims he is not really interested in women although he does admit he has a girl in Oklahoma. However, in case some girls should read this article and decide to give up Chris to this Oklahoma belle, he wants it understood that he is still a sucker for any beautiful girl who is wealthy enough and has brains.

So to congenial Chris whose main ambition is to write the Great American Novel, let me conclude by saying, Good Luck! We're all counting on you!

Edward "Sparks" Winter, Radio Technician 2/C, enlisted in August, 1942. He has been stationed at the Navy Yard in Braemerton, Wash., and the Chicago Naval Armory, and was at a radar school before being sent here.

Seamen William Donnelly, Ellis White, and William Williams, were all members of the same battalion at the Bainbridge Naval Training Station in Maryland before their assignment to Villanova.

Coxswain James Carey left sunny Caribbean waters, where he served aboard an aircraft carrier. In the Navy a year, he came to the states from Trinidad.

Vincent Stirbens, Aviation Radioman 1/C, is a veteran of five years' naval service. He was attached to an aviation squadron in the South Pacific, and saw action in the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

John McMahon, a two year veteran, was stationed in the South Pacific. His rating was Pharmacist Mate 2/C.

These men sacrificed high ratings and high pay for the opportunity of becoming officers. This speaks for itself as their opinion of the merits of the V-12 program. Enlistees direct from civilian life have learned from them what it takes to make a sailor. With experience the teacher, they learned the hard way. As officer candidates, they should experience the same success they had as enlisted men.

Comdr. Minnick Transferred; New Officer Assigned

Lt. Kiene, Veteran Of Guadalcanal And Tulagi, Appointed Acting Assistant Medical Officer For V-12 Unit Here

Comdr. William T. Minnick, U.S.N. (Ret.), administrative medical officer for the V-12 Unit at Villanova College, has received orders transferring him from his present duties. Lt. Richard H. Kiene, (M.C.) U.S.N.R., has been appointed acting assisting medical officer pending the arrival of the new administrative medical officer.

Comdr. Minnick has compiled a wonderful record of service in the Navy. Beginning his career in 1908, he was assigned to the U.S.S. Galveston; and for 23 years, remained on active duty, seeing service on many ships.

He well earned his retirement in 1931, but, due to the great need for experienced officers at the outset of World War II, he was recalled to active duty in 1939. He was later appointed administrative medical officer of the V-12 Unit at Villanova.

LT. RICHARD H. KIENE

During the course of his long and colorful service in the Navy, Comdr. Minnick has seen action on every continent except Australia.

New Officer Appointed

Another veteran of many battles, although of more recent occurrence, is Lt. Richard H. Kiene, (M.C.) U.S.N.R., who has been appointed assistant to the new administrative medical officer. Born in Topeka, Kansas, on March 13, 1910, he starred in football while at high school there. When he entered the University of Kansas in 1918, the prospect of a medical profession with the accompanying rigorous study, necessitated his abandoning athletics.

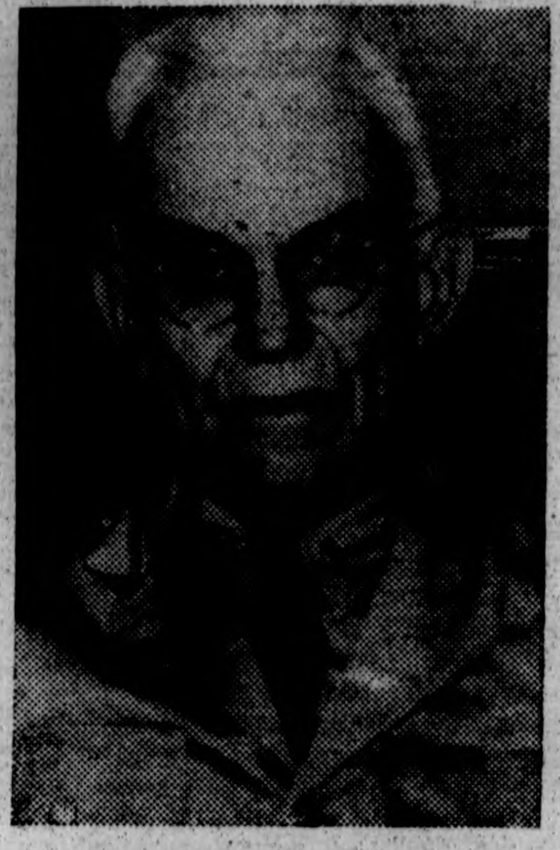
He joined the Phi Delta Theta fraternity while working for his Bachelor of Arts degree. He graduated in 1931 and immediately proceeded to the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine. Here Lieut. Kiene also became interested in campus activities and joined the ranks of the William Pepper Medical Society and the Nu Sigma Nu fraternity. He completed his course here in 1935.

Completely traversing the nation, he completed his internship in San Diego County Hospital in California. He returned to his home town, Concordia, Kansas, in 1936 to begin his practice in the great field of medicine.

Studied Orthopedics

In 1938, Lt. Kiene journeyed East to the University of Pennsylvania to attend the Graduate School of Medicine. Here he studied orthopedics from 1938 to 1939.

Returning West, he was appointed orthopedic resident physician at St. Luke's Hospital in Kansas City, Missouri, where he remained for two years; and later held the same post at Kansas City Hospital for another two years.



COMDR. WM. T. MINNICK

Lieut. Kiene received his call to active duty and his commission on July 14, 1941. He had been a member of the Naval Reserve since 1937. His first appointment was to the U. S. Naval Hospital in San Diego, California, where he stayed until February 1942, when he was transferred to a unit of the Fleet Marine Corps.

Landed at Tulagi

The assault force to which he was attached was one of the first to go over the side of their transport and into landing barges which took them to the island of Tulagi, now made famous by the rapid fall of the key Japanese base to the Yanks.

His medical unit, established at Tulagi, remained there while the rest of the unit was transferred, by destroyer, to Guadalcanal to continue the fight against the Japs.

Lieut. Kiene remained in the Pacific War Zone until March, 1943, employing his hard-earned knowledge in the treatment of many heroic Allies. He then returned to the Pacific Coast and later was appointed to the Medical Detachment of the V-12 Unit at Villanova College.

Although Lieut. Kiene has been here but a short time, he is pleased with his appointment: "I feel sure that I am going to enjoy my stay here."

Average Marine Has Pleasant (?) Memories of Stay at Home Base

By PVT. WM. J. CARTER, USMCR

Here it is fellows, just what you and a hundred and ninety other Marines have been waiting for. A little straight dope on Parris Island, S. C., the most cherished spot in the world for all Marines.

Let's look in on the life of the average "boot" assigned there:

Ah!—Parris Island! What sweet memories Joe Doaks carries with him as, with tears in his eyes, he slings his seabag over his shoulder and reluctantly leaves dear old P. I.—breaking the necks of everyone who happens to bar the path of his exit.

Our hero can still remember the day he disembarked from the luxurious cattle car that brought him to his destination. He was a bit disturbed by the harsh tones of the sergeant who met the new recruits but he soon forgot it as he was guided to the waiting taxi. "Well, this sure is service," he said as he climbed into the dump truck and began the last two miles of the trip to Parris Island.

Optimistic Greetings

As the truck rumbled over the new span bridge and onto the island proper, he gazed with rapture at the softly waving palm trees (two to be exact) and the endless desert waste before him. Joe Doaks showed keen interest in the boots who were drilling on the field and also in those who were standing at the side of the road and greeting him with, "You'll be sorry!"

The journey was abruptly ended as the truck came to a halt before a massive building. It was all of one story high, but it contained the mess hall and that's what counted. So Doaks had his first meal on the Marine Corps. As he gulped down that old standard, Navy beans, he thought, "They sure named this right when they called it a mess hall (and he wasn't referring to the cleanliness of the place). After a hearty meal our hero felt much better and he was ready for anything.

The guilding hand of the sergeant then led him into the registration building where he was assigned to a battalion and a company and a platoon. After being registered the "green-boots" were given instructions on how to form ranks and then the sergeant took them for a little walk. Two miles and thirty minutes later the men were shown to their new quarters which strangely resembled dome-shaped bomb-shelters with corrugated tin roofs. Inside each of the huts was sixteen bunks each complete with mattress, pillow and locker box. Our hero, Joe, after towing his "civvy" gear, left by what he thought was the door. Great was his surprise when he discovered he had walked out through a crack in the wall.

Bugle Notes Pleasant

After a good night's sleep following a combat with flies and mosquitos, and sand fleas, Joe Doaks was awakened by the beautiful notes of a bugle. Refreshed, the man-of-the-hour dragged himself out of his "sack," muttering to himself, "Someday I'll get even with that bugler." So far he was undaunted, but his spirits quickly fell as the platoon was mustered outside and given a "dressing down" by the nasty old sergeant who informed them that they were about to begin their training to become Marines. Joe had a suspicion

Villanova's Military Liaison Officer Attending Special Classes In Naval Organization

Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., Villanova College's military liaison officer, is at present attending classes in an indoctrination course designed to familiarize the men holding similar positions in colleges under the V-12 program with all phases of Naval organization and procedure.

The course is being conducted at Columbia University under the auspices of the Bureau of Naval Personnel. It consists of lectures by high-ranking officers, conferences, moving pictures, and trips to various types of Naval training schools and installations such as navy yards, airfields, etc., as well as a tour of the Marine base at Quantico, Va.

Sessions are held morning, afternoon, and evening every day including Sunday over a two-week period, most of them occurring at the Men's Faculty Club at Columbia. The group now engaged in the course is the third of a series of four sections numbering about thirty men each.

Ensign Sullivan At Pre-Flight School

Edward D. Sullivan, a graduate of Villanova College in the class of 1935, now an Ensign in the United States Navy, has been assigned to the U. S. Navy Pre-Flight School at Athens, Georgia, after completing his course at the V-5 Instructors School at Chapel Hill, N. C.

While here at Villanova Sullivan was active in athletics, gaining letters in varsity football and track for three straight years. After graduation he coached St. Bernard High School, Fitchburg, Mass. for three years. In 1939 he switched to Marlboro (Mass.) High School, where he remained until he entered the Naval service.

Bobby Sherwood And His Orchestra To Play For Blue and White Hop

Student Council Signs Name Band As Feature Attraction Of Fall Dance On October 2; Tickets Now On Sale At $4.40 Per Couple

Richard Ryan, A.S., Chairman of the Student Council, has announced that Bobby Sherwood and his sixteen piece band have been engaged for the dance to be held in the Field House on Saturday, Oct. 2.

Although organized less than a year, Sherwood's ensemble is nationally recognized for its ability to play both sweet and swing music, and has already appeared three times on the "Spotlight Band" program. He is to be featured on that program for a fourth time within the next two weeks. Hear him over the air, and you won't miss the dance!

Features Gwen Davies

The charming vocalist, whose renditions of the current favorite hits are certain to please, is Gwen Davies. Since joining the Sherwood band, Miss Davies has made great strides in approaching the top and will bring to the campus a great store of vocal talent and personality.

Bobby Sherwood began his climb to fame slightly less than one year ago, when he had a very successful run at the Glen Island Casino. He was engaged for two straight months in the highly fashionable Hotel Lincoln in New York City and was a phenomenal success. He and his organization performed at Steel Pier in Atlantic City on Labor Day past. After the evening here, the band is scheduled for a stay at the Coconut Grove.

Praised by Magazine

The "Metronome," a trade magazine which speaks frankly of the talent, or lack of talent, that a band possesses, had high praise for the up-and-coming Sherwood ensemble. This magazine made particular mention of Bobby's recording of "Elk's Parade," and stated that in the future the band should have much better bookings.

When Martin Block, conductor of the famous "Make Believe Ballroom" over station WNEW, New York, tallied his annual popularity poll this year, Bobby Sherwood was up in 9th place. Considering that Bobby made only two recordings this is indeed a great feat. Some of those bands who finished behind the Sherwood organization were Kay Kyser, Woody Herman, Artie Shaw, Duke Ellington, Sammy Kaye, Xavier Cugat, and a long string of others.

The turnout for this occasion will determine whether or not big name bands will appear at Villanova dances in the future, and with an attraction such as Bobby Sherwood, it is hoped that all students will cooperate in the affair.

The price of admission is $4.40. The tickets are on sale now, and may be obtained from any member of the Student Council. The dance will last from 9:00 P. M. until 1 A. M.

The Student Council has just completed arrangements for a "tea dance" with the girls from Rosemont College on Sunday, Sept. 27, at 3:00 P. M. so that the newer students from other localities may obtain dates for the Oct. 2 hop. Further information on this matter will appear on the bulletin boards during the week.

Going To The Game?

Game—Kickoff at 2:45 P. M. Tickets: $1.65 and $0.75.

Travel — Train fare to New York (round trip): $5.85. Trains leave 30th St. Station on the hour. Running time approximately 2 hours. Boat on Hudson River Day Line leaves W. 42nd St. Pier at 10:00 A. M., arrives at West Point 1:15 P. M. Leaves for return trip at 5:25, and arrives at New York at 8:45. Boat fare (round trip): $1.50.

Comdr. Clark And Unit Visit Campus To X-Ray Servicemen

On Wednesday, October 13, the Roentgenological Unit No. 1 operating out of Bethesda, Maryland, under the supervision of Commander Harold E. Clark, arrived at Villanova to complete the general indoctrination physical examination of the V-12 trainees. X-ray photographs of the chests of the Navy and Marine Personnel were taken to determine the possible presence of lung diseases.

An average of ninety men an hour were x-rayed all day Wednesday and Thursday morning. Before the unit left on Thursday afternoon, all photographs had been processed, examined, and a complete report turned over the Medical Officer, Commander William T. Minnick.

The trailer, a marvel of compactness, was equipped with the latest type of mobile x-ray equipment.

Priests Celebrate 20th Anniversary In Augustinian Order

Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., Assistant Professor in Biology, Rev. Joseph W. Paquette, O.S.A., Instructor in Chemistry and Chemical Engineering, and Rev. John H. Crawford, O.S.A., Associate Professor of Mathematics and Physics, celebrate the 20th anniversary of their ordination to the priesthood tomorrow.

All three were members of the same class, and were ordained here on the feast of St. Thomas of Villanova, Sept. 22, 1923, after which they were sent to Catholic University where they obtained master's degrees.

Fr. Dougherty remained there to obtain his doctorate, while Fr. Paquette joined the faculty of the Villanova Preparatory School in California and Fr. Crawford returned here to teach. Eventually, however, Fr. Dougherty and Fr. Paquette were transferred here, and all are now actively engaged in their respective departments of the college.

New Religion Award Donated To Seniors

A new commencement award has been donated by Mr. and Mrs. William Gilligan of 22 Browning Rd., Collingswood, N. J., in honor of their son, William "Billie" Gilligan. Gilligan, who was a member of the Class of 1940, had attended Villanova's engineering school for two years until his death during the 1939 summer vacation. Before enrolling here, he had been at Lehigh University for two years.

The award, a gold medal, will be presented at commencement to the senior who both knows and lives his religion. The recipient must not only have had good marks in all his religion classes but most of all must have put into practice the principles of Catholicism during his everyday life.

Mass On Wednesday

Fr. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., Chaplain of Villanova College, has announced that the mid-weekly Mass this week will be transferred from Thursday to Wednesday, Sept., 22, to commemorate the feast of St. Thomas of Villanova, the Patron Saint of the college.

The 7:15 Mass will be celebrated for the intention of the students. Confessions will be heard on Tuesday following Night Prayers.

Peace! What Then?

JUDGING from recent statements by the Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain, and the so-called Mackinac Charter, the trend of Anglo-American thinking points definitely to the immediate formation of a peace plan based on the concept of a worldwide brotherhood.

Past experience has shown that neither Wilson's Utopian ideal nor the dictators' totalitarian design will result in tranquility among all nations. If peace is to last there can be no "honor" system established whereby the economically or politically stronger nations can be left at large to exploit the smaller, weaker countries. Likewise, from lessons learned of the past decade, there can be no room in the proposed better world for war-crazed gangsters whose Nietzche-like ambition finds fulfillment in the shackling of the world. Both of these ideas lead ultimately to self-destruction, because freedom loving masses will always oppose tyranny in any of its forms.

To insure a durable peace, therefore, a happy medium between the two extremes must be met. Neither isolationism, imperialism, nor communism should dictate terms at the peace conference. Instead, an international confederacy of sovereign nations has been proposed to deal fairly with postwar distribution of the earth's wealth to all those who are willing to work. This body, in our opinion, should comprise representatives of all lands who will meet for the purpose of ironing out controversial political, and economical differences and providing the best plan for the general welfare of the world.

It must not be dominated by English speaking peoples, nor by a majority coalition of any powers. Such overbearing by the latter would be a flagrant violation of fundamental principles of American democracy, namely: the recognition of minorities. Neither can it be guided by the "unconditional surrender" order. This may be regarded only as a military measure expedient for victory. After hostilities it will have outlived its usefulness and should be discarded, else further application might "tempt" the United Nations to rhetorically loophole the vanquished, by that word "unconditional," into the throes of revenge and so set the stage for a future debacle.

All peoples must be afforded the opportunity to decide forms of government which will not obstruct God-given prerogatives. Mutual respect and tolerance of various customs, manners, religions, and cultures of nations would be substituted for censure and ridicule. Under such a system a world court to arbitrate disputes and a representative police force among all to suppress aggression inevitably would follow.

While preparations for a post-war world seem to be in the infant stage, it is prudent that world leaders are considering the embryo of a theory which may bind men in a Christian, cooperative spirit. It will demand resourcefulness, tact, and the finest statesmanship throughout the world. Possibly the pattern looks feasible only on paper. At least, it's worth consideration.

FACULTY COMMENTS

VILLANOVA'S PATRON

By FR. LUNNEY

TOMORROW, the twenty-second of September, marks the annual recurrence of the feast of St. Thomas of Villanova, in whose honor Villanova bears its name. In happier times this day brought the official opening of Villanova's scholastic year, solemnized in the rededication to the ideals and virtues of our illustrious patron.

Grimly, total war has altered many things, and holidays, even for such celebrations, are at a minimum. But there is a certain appropriateness in sticking to our task on such a day as this. Thomas of Villanova would prefer it that way.

Worked as Miller

About the time Columbus was obtaining a bridge-head on this side of the Atlantic, Thomas was becoming acquainted with the white dust of the miller's work in the village of Villanueva in Castile. Leaving his father's house, he soon knew the labor of study and harvested the rewards of his application at the University of Alcala where, upon completion of his studies, he was appointed professor of philosophy.

Throughout his university years, he was the ideal Catholic student in every way. Gifted by God and blessed with frugal, God-fearing parents, Thomas made excellent use of his every opportunity and endeavored throughout his lifelong interest in education to extend to others, especially the poor, the advantages which he himself had obtained. Three colleges in different parts of Spain were a monument of his christian zeal in this field of Catholic Action.

Perfect Christian Gentleman

It is especially noted that he was the Christian gentleman at all times, and that even in the heat of argument Thomas preserved that equanimity of mind and exterior which characterized all his associations with others. As student, professor, religious, and archbishop he was a man who could "walk with kings, nor lose the common touch."

Remarkable for his precise thinking and solid judgment, he was nevertheless plagued by a poor memory and that well-known quality of professorial absent-mindedness.

For years he felt called to devote himself to the service of God and his fellowman in religion, but it was not until his twenty-eighth year that he entered the Augustinian Order at Salamanca, at the very time when the forces of irreligion were about to open the floodgates of chaos and misery upon Europe. It was at this same time, too, that he was offered the highest ranking chair of philosophy in the land, at the University of Salamanca.

Many and varied were the offices entrusted to him by his Order, and well did Thomas merit the confidence of his brethren who twice selected him for the highest office of two provinces.

Patron of Education

The history of American education must record the name of Thomas of Villanova as its first patron, for higher education in this hemisphere received its first impetus from the band of Augustinians sent by Thomas to Mexico in the year 1533, when he was provincial of the Castilian Province. From the scholastic institute founded by this group of Augustinian missionaries developed the University of Mexico, the oldest institution for higher learning on this continent.

But honors ever meant little to Thomas. He declined to accept the archbishopric of Granada, and later accepted the See of Valencia only at the command of his superiors. In this capacity his bountiful charity expended itself in all phases of Catholic action and education.

A Delightful Humorist

His own requirements were limited by the strictest kind of monastic poverty, yet he retained his delightful humor. It seems he was accustomed to wear, even as archbishop a shabby woolen hat which the cathedral canons finally induced him to replace with one of silk. Pointing to his new head-piece, he would merrily remark: "Behold my episcopal dignity. My masters, the canons, judged it necessary that I should wear this silk hat that I might be numbered among the archbishops."

At a time when the whole of Europe was seething with war and revolution, the influence of Thomas of Villanova cannot be overestimated. Thomas did not change with changing times, but like a staunch mill-race forced the dangerous tide into constructive channels and thereby assisted greatly in preventing the havoc in Spain which prevailed in northern countries.

Yes, considered from every point of view, there's much for us still to learn from St. Thomas, the Patron of Villanova.

'CAT CAPERS

by BILL SWAN

THE college was rosy and cozy last week. . .everything was really swell. Nothing could be desired—it says here. Thus the column reflects such fine doings. "Such an abrupt change in policy," you say. When cries of "socialist," "red" and "crusader" are thrown this way, when members of the faculty look askew at you as you pass by and you begin to feel as if you are all alone — a change is necessary. So from now on in no toes but my own are to be stepped on. Cat Capers is a firm believer of the theory of the "status quo" doctrine —"status quo ante bellum."

THIS HOPE MAN:

At the risk of being labeled sophomorish we offer Bob Hope as the best good humor man in America at this time. Seldom do we see two flickers in two evenings, but we did such a thing this past week almost as an experiment. Less seldom is it the same man in the two shows. However, we can say that we were just as fresh after both of them were over as before we went in — with the possible exception of being rather the worse from laughs. The mag Time—conservative, Republican, and utterly correct — even backs up our thoughts by featuring him on the cover. This man has something.

The first I'd really like to slam,
The one who copies my exam.
The other is a dirty skunk,
Who cover his, and lets me flunk!

Just one more. . .

What would you do if I kissed you?"
"I'd yell."
Silence. A kiss. More silence.
"Well?"
"I'm still hoarse from last night."

YEA TEAM:

The football season opened with a loud bang at Muhlenberg . . . on the whole the team looked good. Of course there were weak spots . . . Pass defense for instance, but such things are to be expected in a first game. With Army an unknown quality — but usually a strong power, the hope is that the team clicks on Saturday night.

PUNCHY:

A familiar cry of other years, but one that has almost faded due to superior numbers of them wandering around these days. Yes, we mean engineers. It has been our sad state to live on the fringe of such characters these past few months. This has only served to strengthen our convictions.

Without an undue amount of prejudice we say that Commerce and Arts men by far make the superior type of fellow to associate with in halls, on the campus, in the classes and other places too numerous to mention. Boy, what a beating this lad is going to take!

Wildcats Aim For Surprise Win At West Point

by
Dave Ward, A. S.
Sports Editor

CONGRATULATIONS are in order to Coach Jordan Olivar on his first victory as coach in collegiate circles. This win over a highly favored Muhlenberg eleven was one that surprised the sports world no end. The Mules had previously held a good Yale team to a small score, and were the favorites for this reason. But they were never in the game except in the second quarter when there was a definite let down in the general play of the 'Cats. However, the Blue and White had enough power to stage a come-back, and put the game on ice but in the contest which is coming up this week-end, such an occurrence had better not take place or in all probability the final result may not be so cheerful. This Army team is loaded to the hilt with not only veterans from last year's eleven but with many stars from other schools. Added to this is the fact that they have a line on us and on our plays, since they scouted us in the game Saturday, while to us their set-up is a mystery.

—V—

For a fellow who didn't carry the ball once during the contest, Gene Konopka didn't do so badly in the scoring column. Kicking five out of five extra points for a perfect average, this former Roxborough High star may well have the educated toe that so often spells the difference between victory and defeat. However, all of the credit for this accomplishment does not go to Gene alone, for Johnny Dzitko held the ball four out the five times, and once made a beautiful recovery of a bad pass from center.

—V—

Lou Lopez certainly showed the truth of the statement about not being able to keep a good man down. Lou scored a touchdown on an end sweep only to have it nullified by a holding penalty. However, after two plays, this Wildcat scored on a run around the same side of the line. Late in the game, Lopez started around the left end. The Muhlenberg end refused to be blocked with the result that Lou was trapped. Then surprising everyone, he reversed his field, picked up his blockers who seemed to come out of nowhere, and was brought down only after a 50 yard gain.

—V—

Up to now in this column, we have said very little about the ability of transfers from other colleges, but the play of one man in particular in Saturday's game is worth some comment.. Al Kasulin, of course, is the man of whom we speak, and though this big Marine said very little in the contest, he did quite a bit towards the final outcome. Al brings to the sight of Villanovans a hard running back which is something we haven't seen for a few years. Although he made .one beautiful run that resulted in a score, the manner in which he hit the line as well as the difficulty that the Mules had in bringing him down was what made the spectators sit up and take notice.

Raimo Inducted

Art Raimo, fullback on the great Wildcat eleven of 1937-38 was inducted into the Navy last week. Raimo, who was head coach at Ridley Township High School, was a teammate of Jordan Olivar, varsity football coach. Called "Jeep" on account of his small stature, he, nevertheless, was an outstanding line smasher in his/three years on the squad.

Wildcats Triumph Over Mules 35-12 In Opener

Blue And White Displays Power In First Win; Konopka Sets Record By Kicking Five Successive Extra Points

By JOE DALY, A.S.

The nineteen forty-three Edition of the Villanova Wildcats football team got away to a good start last Saturday when it rolled over a spirited, but greatly outclassed Muhlenberg squad, thirty-five to twelve. The 'Cats, using a dazzling series of running plays mingled with an occasional pass, were not only a credit to Villanova but also a tribute to Jordan Olivar, and his very able coaching staff, who have whipped together a potentially great team, in a period of a few short weeks.

The Cats got away to an early start, when on their fourth play, Al Postus collaborated with a former opponent from Duquesne, Valerio Jansante, for a fifty-one yard touchdown pass, which the big right end took on the enemy's twenty-five yard stripe and raced the rest of the way, for Villanova's first six months of the season. Gene Konopoka the stepped back and made his first conversion of the afternoon. He attempted four other after touchdown points making every one count, as he tied Nick Baska's record for five conversions in succession, and became the first Villanovan to accomplish this feat in a single game.

Kick Blocked

The Mules elected to receive again, but were held to a mere three yard gain in three attempts by a strong Blue and White forward wall, led byJoe McCarthy and Carlesimo. Griffith, attempting to kick out of danger, found his boot blocked by Jim Harkins and Billy Sullivan. The ever alert Sulliven recovered for the Main Liners. Only a moment later, Al Postus took the pigskin into pay dirt as he started to flank the end, and then cut back over right tackle behind Captain Johnny Dritko, who played a very big role in the Villanova victory, calling plays, leading the interference, and playing a bang-up defensive game.

The Mules came back fighting hard and almost turned the tide, as they scored twice, throwing a scare into the Villanova rooters. The first came as the result of some fancy passing by the upstaters, with Griffith doing the pitching to Loll, Holdeman, and Mikionis. Holdeman finally took a spot pass on the Wildcats' thirty-seven and scampered over for the score. Griffith's attempted conversion was wide.

The Mules' second six points were not long in coming as Al Kasulin, standing on his own eight yard line to kick, found Bob Mirth, a hard charging Mule guard at his toe tips. The blocked pigskin rolled over the goal line where Bill Loll fell on it for a touchdown. Again the extra point was missed as Bob Nealon broke through to block the ball.

Throws Key Block

This was the end as far as Muhlenberg was concerned. Al Kasulin determined to show his ability, broke off tackle and behind beautiful blocking raced fifty-seven yards to the home team's three, as Max Chepenuk, threw a key block on the Mules' safety man. Two plays later Al netted his first six points for the Main Liners, as the half came to a close.

During the intermission, the V-12 Muhlenberg band paraded on the field and after, the 'Cats did some parading too as they came back strong in the third period, and scored three minutes after the kick off. After a fifty-two yard march

'Cats Point For Army; Cadets Heavy Favorites

West Pointers Rated By Experts "Best In East"; Grid Roster Filled With Veterans; Minor Triple-Threat Star

By BOB BOLGER

Villanova College resumes football relations with Army at West Point this coming Saturday afternoon, September 25. It will be the first meeting between the Wildcats and Cadets since 1922. The Main Liners first met the Cadets in 1908 and continued to play them intermittently until 1922. Army won all of the games except the 1915 fray in which Charlie McGuckin booted a difficult field goal in the last minute of play to beat them, 16-13.

This fray will be the initial gridiron contest for the Cadets and it will show whether they deserve the title of number one team of the East which sports writers have bestowed on them. This game will also give an insight into the strength of the Wildcats.

Played Under MacArthur

Army is coached by Lt. Col. Earl H. "Red" Blaik, a graduate of the Point in 1920. He is now beginning his fourth year as head coach of football at the United States Military Academy. West Point was not a new place to Blaik when he and his entire staff moved down from Dartmouth three years ago. He had been a cadet at West Point while General MacArthur was superintendent, and had played good enough football to be named an end on Walter Camp's all-American third team in 1919.

In 1927 Blaik returned to West Point as backfield coach, and during his stay turned out a great many exceptional backfield men. For seven years, "Red" served as Army backfield coach until called to Dartmouth to become head coach of the Big Green. His team lost only 14 out of 63 contests during the seven years he was there. In 1941, he was offered the position as head coach of the Army which he accepted, and has now held for three years.

Drop Single Wing

Army, under such a splendid coach, and since this is a warrior's year should be represented by a riproaring football team. The Cadets who always employed the single wing system, dropped it to introduce the tricky "T" formation. The "T" calls for a streamlined fullback, and the Army has a pair of this type.

Tom Lombardo and George Troxell are the pair of block-busters who hit with explosive suddenness on quick opening plays. Troxell learned his football at Swarthmore High, and at Dartmouth, while Lombardo was a freshman sensation at Washington University, St. Louis.

Minor Great Back

Doug Kenna is the answer to a coach's prayer for a triple-threat quarterback. This flashy Mississippi boy, invalided by a broken arm last year, can run like a deer and passes excellently.

At the halfback posts will be Max Minor, Carl Anderson, and Bob Woods, who are exceptionally fast backs.

Minor, great Texas University wingback of '42 is considered to be the "Back of the Year" on the "Team of the Year" by experts. Sprint champion of the Southwest, and packing 190-odd pounds on a compact 5' 10" frame, this swift traveler simply runs through those tacklers he can't outspeed. Fully experienced, adept in every backfield pivot and feint, superbly supported, he's in a spot according to experts to make the nation forget Frankie Sinkwich.

Former Navy Man

Woods, out of Corning, N. Y. is the only West Pointer ever to win a Navy football "N"! He transferred from Annapolis two years ago. "Stubby" Anderson, another Mississippi flyer, ran Harvard ragged a year ago. All in all the backfield strength is excellent.

Field Marshal Blaik need not worry about his ends with Les Salzes and John Hennessey, veterans of last year returning, and in Ed Murphy, Captain Cas Myslinski, Tom Scott, Army has a powerful middle section.

Villanova's football team knows what they have to face when they meet the Black and Gold who are liable to be the top team in the East, and probably the best in the country. Villanova will be more than ready to battle the Cadets, and this game should be one of the best on this year's schedule.

IntramuralTouch Football Planned

With football in the air, intramural activities will once more get under way tonight after a one week lay-off. The first two weeks will be devoted to try-outs by the various squads, so that the appointed captains may get an idea of the material at hand. Therefore inter-hall games will be organized. The rules and by-laws for the coming campaign will be drawn up by the team captains under the supervision of the board of Intramural Athletics, headed by its Moderator, Father McKee, and a complete schedule will be issued in the near future.

The Marines-Navy baseball series which had been scheduled for last week had to be cancelled because of the twilight football practices, called by head coach Jordan Olivar. Because of the weather conditions, and the continuation of these drills, this series will not be played. The basketball schedule has been pushed back until the first of November because of the change in personnel which will be forthcoming this October. This would tend to break up team play as well as the spirit that follows this sport on the campus.

O'MEARA PROMOTED

Mike O'Meara, former Villanova baseball and basketball star, has been promoted to the rank of captain. At present, he is stationed at Camp Santa Anita, California.

Temple Definite

Villanova's football schedule for the coming season was made complete last Thursday by the positive announcement that the Wildcats would play Temple University. The news was simultaneously released by the athletic departments of both schools and was to the effect that the two teams would meet for the sixteenth consecutive season on Saturday, Nov. 20 at Temple Stadium.

Schedule complications on the part of both schools made it necessary to withhold the actual date of the contest until this late hour. This game now gives both schools an eight game schedule. It also marks the continuance of a long series of contests on the gridiron between these two arch-rivals, in which the Wildcats hold a 9 to 5 lead over the teams of the North Broad Street Institution.

ASME Shows Movie At Regular Meeting

The members of the student branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers witnessed motion pictures, one a travelogue, "India," and the other entitled, "Diesel Power," which were shown in room 215 Mendel Hall last Wednesday.

Frank Quinn, A. S., Vice-President of the student branch, will address the members on Wednesday, September 29.

Excelled in Sports

He entered Heath Grammar School in due time but nothing eventful occurred in his young life until he entered Brookline High School. In the four years he spent there he earned six varsity letters in various sports. For three years he played football and baseball and received three letters in the former and two in the latter. Besides these sports, he played what is often referred to as the roughest of all sports—ice hockey, and earned another letter during two years play.

His hobby is horseback riding and he likes it so much he took a part time job during his high school years doing just that.

For a period of two years after graduation he worked for the Turner Construction Company, Brookline, and gained some valuable experience in line with the degree toward which he is working.

Attended Northeastern

After this he matriculated at Northeastern University, Boston, in the Civil Engineering School and spent four and one-half years there before he was transferred, on July 1, to Villanova. A little explanation is necessary at this point. At Northeastern the course is five years long, freshman, sophomore, middler, junior, and senior and so he was in the middle of his senior year.

Asked how our campus compares to that of Northeastern, he laughed, and said there is a park nearby but no campus. In his opinion, this is a beautiful campus and we'll second that opinion most heartily.

tered Worcester Commerce High. He had very little time for extra-curricular activities during high school because of his studies and a part time job in a gas station. During his vacations he worked for a construction company. Since he intends to become a Civil Engineer this job provided good experience.

In September, 1939, he matriculated in the Civil Engineering School of Northeastern University. Although he and Paul Cleary were taking exactly the same subjects at the same time they did not meet until about six months ago. This because of the co-operative system in effect at Northeastern. Part of the class attends school in the morning and part in the afternoon and it so happened that they just met at the beginning of their senior year. As in high school, most of his spare time was spent working so he did not indulge in any extra-curricular activities.

His answer to the question, "How do you like Villanova?" was favorable. As far as the campus goes there is no comparison since Northeastern has no campus. There is more college life here, he thinks, mostly because there were very few residents at his Alma Mater; it was strictly a day-hop school.

"The Marines will win the war," he said. No beating around the bush; he didn't even give the Navy a chance to help. According to him it's an open and shut case, the Marines all the way.

He likes the service now but as a permanent job, thumbs down. His ambition is to go back to college and receive his degree in Civil Engineering. He doesn't expect to get it now because he will be lacking two vital subjects which he could not get at this time. However he has a great deal of hope in the future, and surely some day he will carry home the coveted sheepskin.

He continued his play at ice hockey for two years and earned two letters in this also. He likes to play a little tennis and competed in the intramural matches but was eliminated.

In his Freshman year he was Treasurer of his class, and President during his second, third, and fourth years. In addition he was Chairman of the Junior Prom Committee.

He likes Villanova College very much but he's anxious to get his commission and get started. In his plans for the future he expressed a desire to remain the service, but doubts if he will be allowed to do so. His second choice is to work for the Carnegie, Illinois Steel Company with whom he has already had an interview.

Both ambitions seem to be good ones, but only time alone can tell!

that things weren't going to be so easy for his buddies and him.

For the next four days Joe Doaks had nothing to do but sweep and swab the decks each morning, make up his sack, draw clothing, combat equipment and a few other miscellaneous articles, go to chow, drill, drill, and drill some more. Other than that he just lolled around policing up the area, standing guard duty, cleaning his rifle, and numerous other chores that only that fiend with the sergeant's stripes could invent.

Heavy Gremlins

"Gee, this is a cinch," he thought as he fell into ranks for his first drill with his rifle. At first it only weighed nine pounds; so he field-stripped his rifle at the end of the drill period to see what had suddenly added that other eighty pounds to its weight.

Sunday morning finally came and Joe, as everyone on Parris Island is apparently named, figured that he would have a day of peace and rest at last. "Fall out!" barked the man with the stripes. The boots quickly and cheerfully fell into ranks — well, anyway, they did it quickly! "Today," said the monster, "is Sunday. So let's see you shine. In other words, the first guy I catch doping-off and not doing his washing will be carrying his locker box around with him for about an hour!"

Only a few minutes later in this same period, the powerful Villanova team scored again, even though Lou Lopez had to go across the goal stripe twice before the referee would allow the tally. The first time Lou was brought back because of a holding penalty, but this did not stop him and he became the first 'Cat back to score unofficially twice this year. Needless to say, Konopka's educated toe added another point.

With a twenty-three point lead, a host of Villanova substitutions swarmed on the field, with every man on the squad seeing action, and thereby gaining invaluable experience. The victory, although quite impressive showed numerous rough spots which will have to be ironed out before next week's contest with the strong Army team. The Mules passed almost at will, and they completed nine overhead aerials out of eighteen attempts, for a five hundred average, while only four 'Cat passes were good.

Team Impressive

Although the Main Liners made only nine first downs to Muhlenberg's seven, they gained a very impressive two hundred and eighteen yards while their one forward wall was holding the Allentown team to a meer thirty-three for the contest. The 'Cats scored in every quarter but the last, and here they were handicapped by three penalties as they drove deep down into enemy territory.

Pen shortage grows!

To keep your pen writing...use Quink with solv-x!

DON'T expect to replace your pen if it fails now! Production of all pens—especially of first-choice brands—has been sharply reduced by Government order. Repair parts, too, are scarce!

Why not let Parker Quink provide the "ounce of prevention"? This ink alone has the magic ingredient, solv-x. Solv-x roots out the causes of most pen failures. It fights off the metal corrosion and rubber rot always caused by highly acid ink. It ends clogging and gumming . . . cleans your pen as it writes!

For steel pens, too, Quink is ideal. The Parker Pen Company, Janesville, Wisconsin and Toronto, Canada.

Augustinians Reported Safe In Philippines

Priests Were Stationed At St. Augustine's College In Iloilo Before War; Two Are Native Philadelphians

News has finally been received concerning the American Augustinian Fathers stationed at Saint Augustine's College, Iloilo, on the island of Panay in the Philippine Islands.

Report that the priests were all well and safe was relayed from the Spanish Province of the Augustinians, and received by the Very Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, O.S.A., Assistant General of the English Speaking Augustinian Province residing at Villanova College.

The names of the priests, all of whom are graduates of Villanova College and St. Augustine's College in Washington, D. C., are as follows:

Rev. Henry C. Carr, O.S.A.; son of the late Charles and Frances Dougherty Carr, of St. Petersburg, Florida, and Philadelphia.

Rev. Alfred J. Monte, O.S.A.; son of Mr and Mrs. Dominic Monte, of 2534 Tasker St, Philadelphia.

Rev. Leo J. McCarthy, O.S.A.; son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dennis McCarthy of Belmont, Mass.

Rev. John Vincent Casey, O.S.A.; son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Casey of Lawrence, Mass

These missioners left America approximately a year before the outbreak of hostilities with the Japanese. Although St. Augustine's College is under the control of the Spanish Province, these faculty members were stationed here as instructors in English and Science, a special part of the curricula which make this institution outstanding in the Philippines. Connected with the College is a high school which also enjoys a high standing among the Filipinos.

Evening School Starts; Registration Tomorrow At Hallahan High School

Registration for the Evening Session of Villanova College will begin tomorrow, September 29 and continue until October 1 at Hallahan High School, 19th and Wood Sts., Philadelphia. Registration will take place between the hours of 6:30 and 9:30 P. M. on all three days. Classes begin Tuesday, October 5.

Courses are available in accounting, economics, banking, statistics, English, American literature, philosophy and sociology. They are of college grade and carry credit for degrees and certificates, and are intended for those who feel the need of higher education but who are unable to attend the regular day session.

The classes will be conducted at Hallahan High School by members of the regular Villanova faculty. All courses are co-educational.

The Evening Session is just one of a system of extension schools which were begun in 1918, and have been conducted on Saturdays, evenings, and during the summers ever since then. School teachers, nurses, secretaries, bookkeepers, and others preparing for advanced positions find them of great advantage.

These extension schools are actually a part of Villanova College, and their students are considered to be Villanova students. They raise the total number of students enrolled at Villanova College to approximately 3,000, whereas only about one-third of that number attend the regular day session.

Zimmerman Promoted

Charles Zimmerman, attached to the Medical staff of Villanova College's V-12 unit, has recently been promoted to the rating of First-Class Pharmacist Mate.

Zimmerman has been in the Navy since Nov. 10, 1942, when he enlisted as Pharmacist Mate 2/C.

Briefs Of CAMPUS NEWS

The Villanova College branch of the American Society of Civil Engineers conducted a meeting on September 23, for the purpose of contacting men who wished to join the Society.

The same group will hold another session on October 28, in Room 102 at 1:30. This will be an important meeting and all the members who are able should attend. Students who wish to join the Society should attend.

Mrs. H. P. Clark, a recruiting office representation of the Radio Corporation of America, is here today to interview senior mechanical and electrical engineers who are interested in a position with the RCA Victor Division of RCA. Interviews, starting at 9:30, are being held in Room 210.

Dean Morehouse of the Engineering School has received word from the General Electric Company that they are interested in interviewing senior and second semester junior mechanical and electrical engineering students. A notice will be posted when interview blanks are ready for the students.

The Navy is giving a comprehensive qualifying examination for certain members of the V-12 program. This examination is similar to the one given on April 20 and is scheduled to last all day.

The men who are required to take this test are those who have transferred from the V-1 program to the V-12 program and who are in or beyond their fourth term of work, and men who entered V-12 directly with advanced standing.

Leatherneck Recalls Experiences As Parris Island "Sharp Shooter"

By PVT. WM. J. CARTER, U.S.M.C.R.

Three weeks of Joe Doak's "boot" camp training had passed and now Joe was ready to go to the rifle range. He knew that his talent as a marksman was something to be admired because he had at various times gone hunting with a .22 cal. rifle. So proficient had he become with it that he could knock the fuzz off a gnat's ear at two hundred yards without even jarring the gnat.

He was very confident. "But what," he thought, "is a Garand but an overgrown .22 cal.?" So Joe went to the Parris Island rifle range to learn how to shoot his new "M-1" as it is known in military parlance.

Start "Police" Career

During his first week there Joe and his buddies were told that due to a sudden emergency they were to become policemen. The "scuttlebutt" flew thick and fast. The Japs had landed, the Germans had invaded, and three hundred and sixty-four division of Italian troops had raided dear, old P. I.

So they were issued their weapons which consisted of brooms, pails and shovels, and they became policemen. They policed their barracks, they policed their battalion area, and they policed nearly the whole rifle range. Commenting later on his "battle" experiences, Joe only said, "I'm bitter!"

Big Day Arrives

Finally the big day arrived when everyone was told to fall out with rifles, bayonet belts and ponchos. (Poncho: a strip of rubberized cloth impregnated with lead). On the school range, which is the first phase in rifle training, our erstwhile hero met his first rifle coach. Joe took one look at him, turned to his buddy, and said, "Big son-of-a-gun, isn't he?"

After preliminary introductions were over, the coach took the men to the school range shed and lectured to them. He explained that they would remain on the school range for a period of four days. Continuing his talk, the coach explained the different parts of the rifle, how to line up the rifle sights correctly, how to use the windage and elevation gauges, and how to allow for any wind that might be blowing. Following this, he also explained the four fundamental positions for accurate firing: Offhand (standing), kneeling, sitting and prone.

The Hard Way

Joe then started to learn "dry" shooting which consisted of assuming a correct position, lining up his rifle sights on a stick of wood with black dots on it to simulate a target, holding his breath, and squeezing his trigger. He found that the kneeling position was very painful but he decided he wouldn't move after he saw what the coach had done to one boy. Joe knew that if he moved the coach would have to get a new megaphone because one would be wrapped around little Joeys' neck. "Besides," he thought, "after a while I'll get so numb I won't even feel it."

Next on the list came the small-bore ranges where Joe did his first actual shooting. He spent about a week here learning how to shoot a .22 cal. rifle and pistol. The purpose of this was to show his coach how well he could group his shots on the target. He also learned how to pick up used cartridge shells and pack them away to be shipped back to the factory whence they came.

Well Earned Advancement

Leaving the .22 cal. range, Joe and his buddies were advanced to the king of all ranges, the .30 cal. line. Here his platoon was split up into groups of four men to a target. The first day on the line Joe was given four shells by his coach and from the prone position he started blasting away at the target. At the finish of his shooting on the 200 yard line the coach looked at his target and scribbled down some figures in his rifle record book which, incidentally, no one but the coach could understand. This was repeated on the 300 and 500 yard lines.

Up until this time Joe had been constantly aided by his coach but now he was told that he was on his own. With bated breath and apprehension in his eyes, he step-

Italian Opera To Be Featured At Seminar

The weekly music seminar was held last Wednesday in the parlors of Simpson Hall under the direction of Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, Associate Professor of Chemistry. The program consisted of selections from Italian Opera. At the meeting it was announced that the "Music Quiz" originally scheduled for this Wednesday will be postponed until next semester.

Following policy, the program selection was left to the students, and Brahm's famous Fourth Symphony was chosen for next week.

Bobby Sherwood And Orchestra To Be Attraction At Blue And White Hop; Tickets May Be Procured From Student Council Members

During the past week, the Student Council completed all arrangements for the Blue and White Hop to be held Saturday evening in the College Field House. Tickets may be procured from any member of the Council at $4.40 per couple. Dancing will begin at 9 P. M. and last until 1 A. M.

Bobby Sherwood and his band will supply the music for the occasion. This ensemble made its fourth appearance on the 'Spotlight Band' program last Thursday, and a majority of the students who heard him were very favorably impressed by his music. With the booking of such an up-and-coming "name" band, the dance has become one of the major topics of conversation on the campus.

As well as being a capable leader, Sherwood is an outstanding vocalist and trumpeter. His success, however, is a result of his guitar-playing. He was staff recording guitarist at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios for five years, during which time he played musical accompaniments for many motion picture stars.

Accompanied Crosby

When Bing Crosby made "Pennies From Heaven" for Columbia Pictures, he was cast as a travelling lute player, and the picture required a guitar background throughout. The studio assured the crooner that it had a competent guitarist under contract, but Bing insisted that the guitarist who had been playing his accompaniment on his weekly radio program, Bobby Sherwood by name, be borrowed from MGM for the job.

Sherwood's amazing musical versatility was demonstrated in this picture in a remarkable manner. Louie Armstrong, the great colored trumpet player, appeared in the picture in a featured role, and, after the picture was completed, left Hollywood to fill other engagements.

Only then was it discovered that some of the sound track had gone bad. Bing Crosby offered a solution to the problem of repeating the sound track by suggesting that Sherwood be sent for. So Bobby very efficiently doubled in the trumpet passage for the one-and-only "Satchmo" Armstrong—considered the greatest jazz trumpeter of all time, Harry James included.

Vocalist Featured

Gwen Davies, the charming vocalist featured by the band, looks like a carefree college freshman, but her radio career parallels that of Sherwood. Miss Davies has been an actress on radio since she was five years old, playing comedy, soap opera, and straight drama, until two years ago her singing talent was brought to light. During this short time, however, she has sky-rocketed to stardom.

Sherwood has had engagements at the Glen Island Casino, New York's Hotel Lincoln, and Steel Pier in Atlantic City. He is scheduled for a stay at the Coconut Grove immediately after his evening here.

His aggregation has been helped in its rapid climb to fame by the favorable comment received from the "Metronome", a trade magazine, and by the fact that in a recent popularity poll he was rated 9th in the nation over such bands as Kay Kyser, Woody Herman, Artie Shaw, and a host of other standing favorites

Local Churches Plan Religious Services For V-12 Trainees

In addition to the facilities for religious worship provided on the Campus, neighboring Protestant Churches have extended invitations to the V-12 trainees to attend services of their several denominations. Early in the program, the Rev. Rex Stowers Clements, Ph.D., pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Bryn Mawr met with the College Chaplain, Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., and agreed to act as liaison officer with the neighboring churches in providing religious facilities for Protestant students.

As soon as the religious census was completed, Dr. Clements was furnished the names, religious preferences, and campus addresses of the trainees. When interviewed Father Grimes confirmed this arrangement and expressed the hope that the students already contacted by the local churches would avail themselves freely of the opportunities offered. Father Grimes also stated that similar arrangements had been made for students of the Jewish faith.

Fitzgibbons Elected

New officers of the Commerce and Finance fraternity, Delta Pi Epsilon, were elected at a recent meeting of the group.

John Fitzgibbons succeeds John Dudley as president. Assisting Fitzgibbons for the coming season will be William J. Devine, Vice President; John Riddy, Treasurer; John McGowan, Sergeant at Arms; Hugh Burns and Joseph Foley, Student Council Representatives.

'Cat Ends Capers

Due to increased intensity of his scholastic schedule and the fact that he graduates next month, William S. Swan, staff columnist for the past several semesters, has found it impossible to continue in that capacity. As a result, it has become necessary to appoint his successor a few weeks ahead of the usual date.

It is with deep regret that the VILLANOVAN bids goodbye to Bill and his "'CAT CAPERS"; we wish him the best of luck during his career in the Navy as a member of the V-7 program.

"JEEPERS, DAD! I'M WRITING UNCLE SAM'S HANDSOMEST FLYER AND MY PEN CONKS OUT. THINK IT CAN BE FIXED?"

"SEARCH ME, PAT. PENS AND REPAIR PARTS ARE SCARCE. WHY DIDN'T YOU PROTECT IT WITH PARKER QUINK? IT HAS SOLV-X IN IT!"

Pen shortage grows!

To keep your pen writing...use Quink with solv-x!

DON'T expect to replace your pen if it fails now! Production of all pens—especially of first-choice brands—has been sharply reduced by Government order. Repair parts, too, are scarce!

Why not let Parker Quink provide the "ounce of prevention"? This ink alone has the magic ingredient, solv-x. Solv-x roots out the causes of most pen failures. It fights off the metal corrosion and rubber rot always caused by highly acid ink. It ends clogging and gumming ... cleans your pen as it writes!

For steel pens, too, Quink is ideal. The Parker Pen Company, Janesville, Wisconsin and Toronto, Canada.

FOR V...—MAIL "Micro-film Black." Parker Quink in "Micro-film Black" photographs perfectly! It is jet-black—ideal for every use. Quink comes in 7 permanent colors: Micro-film Black, Blue-Black, Royal Blue, Green, Violet, Brown, Red. 2 washable colors: Black, Blue. Family size, 25¢. Other sizes, 15¢ and up.

MAKE YOUR DOLLARS FIGHT—BUY WAR BONDS NOW!

PARKER Quink
THE ONLY INK CONTAINING SOLV-X

SOLV-X in every bottle of Quink... protects pens in 5 ways!
1. Protects rubber... lengthens the life of sac or diaphragm.
2. Dissolves sediment and gum left by other inks. Cleans your pen as it writes.
3. Prevents clogging of feed.
4. Safeguards base metal parts...
5. Assures quick starting and even flow at all times.

Augustinians Reported Safe In Philippines

Priests Were Stationed At St. Augustine's College In Iloilo Before War; Two Are Native Philadelphians

News has finally been received concerning the American Augustinian Fathers stationed at Saint Augustine's College, Iloilo, on the island of Panay in the Philippine Islands.

Report that the priests were all well and safe was relayed from the Spanish Province of the Augustinians, and received by the Very Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, O.S.A., Assistant General of the English Speaking Augustinian Province residing at Villanova College.

The names of the priests, all of whom are graduates of Villanova College and St. Augustine's College in Washington, D. C., are as follows:

Rev. Henry C. Carr, O.S.A.; son of the late Charles and Frances Dougherty Carr, of St. Petersburg, Florida, and Philadelphia.

Rev. Alfred J. Monte, O.S.A.; son of Mr and Mrs. Dominic Monte, of 2534 Tasker St, Philadelphia.

Rev. Leo J. McCarthy, O.S.A.; son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dennis McCarthy of Belmont, Mass.

Rev. John Vincent Casey, O.S.A.; son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Casey of Lawrence, Mass

These missioners left America approximately a year before the outbreak of hostilities with the Japanese. Although St. Augustine's College is under the control of the Spanish Province, these faculty members were stationed here as instructors in English and Science, a special part of the curricula which make this institution outstanding in the Philippines. Connected with the College is a high school which also enjoys a high standing among the Filipinos.

Evening School Starts; Registration Tomorrow At Hallahan High School

Registration for the Evening Session of Villanova College will begin tomorrow, September 29 and continue until October 1 at Hallahan High School, 19th and Wood Sts., Philadelphia. Registration will take place between the hours of 6:30 and 9:30 P. M. on all three days. Classes begin Tuesday, October 5.

Courses are available in accounting, economics, banking, statistics, English, American literature, philosophy and sociology. They are of college grade and carry credit for degrees and certificates, and are intended for those who feel the need of higher education but who are unable to attend the regular day session.

The classes will be conducted at Hallahan High School by members of the regular Villanova faculty. All courses are co-educational.

The Evening Session is just one of a system of extension schools which were begun in 1918, and have been conducted on Saturdays, evenings, and during the summers ever since then. School teachers, nurses, secretaries, bookkeepers, and others preparing for advanced positions find them of great advantage.

These extension schools are actually a part of Villanova College, and their students are considered to be Villanova students. They raise the total number of students enrolled at Villanova College to approximately 3,000, whereas only about one-third of that number attend the regular day session.

Zimmerman Promoted

Charles Zimmerman, attached to the Medical staff of Villanova College's V-12 unit, has recently been promoted to the rating of First-Class Pharmacist Mate.

Zimmerman has been in the Navy since Nov. 10, 1942, when he enlisted as Pharmacist Mate 2/C.

Briefs Of CAMPUS NEWS

The Villanova College branch of the American Society of Civil Engineers conducted a meeting on September 23, for the purpose of contacting men who wished to join the Society.

The same group will hold another session on October 28, in Room 102 at 1:30. This will be an important meeting and all the members who are able should attend. Students who wish to join the Society should attend.

The Navy is giving a comprehensive qualifying examination for certain members of the V-12 program. This examination is similar to the one given on April 20 and is scheduled to last all day.

The men who are required to take this test are those who have transferred from the V-1 program to the V-12 program and who are in or beyond their fourth term of work, and men who entered V-12 directly with advanced standing.

Italian Opera To Be Featured At Seminar

The weekly music seminar was held last Wednesday in the parlors of Simpson Hall under the direction of Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, Associate Professor of Chemistry. The program consisted of selections from Italian Opera. At the meeting it was announced that the "Music Quiz" originally scheduled for this Wednesday will be postponed until next semester.

Following policy, the program selection was left to the students, and Brahm's famous Fourth Symphony was chosen for next week.

Leatherneck Recalls Experiences As Parris Island "Sharp Shooter"

By PVT. WM. J. CARTER, U.S.M.C.R.

Three weeks of Joe Doak's "boot" camp training had passed and now Joe was ready to go to the rifle range. He knew that his talent as a marksman was something to be admired because he had at various times gone hunting with a .22 cal. rifle. So proficient had he become with it that he could knock the fuzz off a gnat's ear at two hundred yards without even jarring the gnat.

He was very confident. "But what," he thought, "is a Garand but an overgrown .22 cal.?" So Joe went to the Parris Island rifle range to learn how to shoot his new "M-1" as it is known in military parlance.

Start "Police" Career

During his first week there Joe and his buddies were told that due to a sudden emergency they were to become policemen. The "scuttlebutt" flew thick and fast. The Japs had landed, the Germans had invaded, and three hundred and sixty-four division of Italian troops had raided dear, old P. I.

So they were issued their weapons which consisted of brooms, pails and shovels, and they became policemen. They policed their barracks, they policed their battalion area, and they policed nearly the whole rifle range. Commenting later on his "battle" experiences, Joe only said, "I'm bitter!"

Big Day Arrives

Finally the big day arrived when everyone was told to fall out with rifles, bayonet belts and ponchos. (Poncho: a strip of rubberized cloth impregnated with lead). On the school range, which is the first phase in rifle training, our erstwhile hero met his first rifle coach. Joe took one look at him, turned to his buddy, and said, "Big son-of-a-gun, isn't he?"

After preliminary introductions were over, the coach took the men to the school range shed and lectured to them. He explained that they would remain on the school range for a period of four days. Continuing his talk, the coach explained the different parts of the rifle, how to line up the rifle sights correctly, how to use the windage and elevation gauges, and how to allow for any wind that might be blowing. Following this, he also explained the four fundamental positions for accurate firing: Offhand (standing), kneeling, sitting and prone.

The Hard Way

Joe then started to learn "dry" shooting which consisted of assuming a correct position, lining up his rifle sights on a stick of wood with black dots on it to simulate a target, holding his breath, and squeezing his trigger. He found that the kneeling position was very painful but he decided he wouldn't move after he saw what the coach had done to one boy. Joe knew that if he moved the coach would have to get a new megaphone because one would be wrapped around little Joeys' neck. "Besides," he thought, "after a while I'll get so numb I won't even feel it."

Next on the list came the small bore ranges where Joe did his first actual shooting. He spent about a week here learning how to shoot a .22 cal. rifle and pistol. The purpose of this was to show his coach how well he could group his shots on the target. He also learned how to pick up used cartridge shells and pack them away to be shipped back to the factory whence they came.

Well Earned Advancement

Leaving the .22 cal. range, Joe and his buddies were advanced to the king of all ranges, the .30 cal. line. Here his platoon was split up into groups of four men to a target. The first day on the line Joe was given four shells by his coach and from the prone position he started blasting away at the target. At the finish of his shooting on the 200 yard line the coach looked at his target and scribbled down some figures in his rifle record book which, incidentally, no one but the coach could understand. This was repeated on the 300 and 500 yard lines.

Up until this time Joe had been constantly aided by his coach but now he was told that he was on his own. With bated breath and apprehension in his eyes, he step-

Bobby Sherwood And Orchestra To Be Attraction At Blue And White Hop; Tickets May Be Procured From Student Council Members

During the past week, the Student Council completed all arrangements for the Blue and White Hop to be held Saturday evening in the College Field House. Tickets may be procured from any member of the Council at $4.40 per couple. Dancing will begin at 9 P. M. and last until 1 A. M.

Her Voice . . .

GWEN DAVIES

Bobby Sherwood and his band will supply the music for the occasion. This ensemble made its fourth appearance on the 'Spotlight Band' program last Thursday, and a majority of the students who heard him were very favorably impressed by his music. With the booking of such an up-and-coming "name" band, the dance has become one of the major topics of conversation on the campus.

As well as being a capable leader, Sherwood is an outstanding vocalist and trumpeter. His success, however, is a result of his guitar-playing. He was staff recording guitarist at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios for five years, during which time he played musical accompaniments for many motion picture stars.

Accompanied Crosby

When Bing Crosby made "Pennies From Heaven" for Columbia Pictures, he was cast as a travelling lute player, and the picture required a guitar background throughout. The studio assured the crooner that it had a competent guitarist under contract, but Bing insisted that the guitarist who had been playing his accompaniment on his weekly radio program, Bobby Sherwood by name, be borrowed from MGM for the job.

Sherwood's amazing musical versatility was demonstrated in this picture in a remarkable manner. Louie Armstrong, the great colored trumpet player, appeared in the picture in a featured role, and, after the picture was completed, left Hollywood to fill other engagements.

Only then was it discovered that some of the sound track had gone bad. Bing Crosby offered a solution to the problem of repeating the sound track by suggesting that Sherwood be sent for. So Bobby very efficiently doubled in the trumpet passage for the one-and-only "Satchmo" Armstrong—considered the greatest jazz trumpeter of all time, Harry James included.

Vocalist Featured

Gwen Davies, the charming vocalist featured by the band, looks like a carefree college freshman, but her radio career parallels that of Sherwood. Miss Davies has been an actress on radio since she was five years old, playing comedy, soap opera, and straight drama, until two years ago her singing talent was brought to light. During this short time, however, she has sky-rocketed to stardom.

Sherwood has had engagements at the Glen Island Casino, New York's Hotel Lincoln, and Steel Pier in Atlantic City. He is scheduled for a stay at the Coconut Grove immediately after his evening here.

His aggregation has been helped in its rapid climb to fame by the favorable comment received from the "Metronome", a trade magazine, and by the fact that in a recent popularity poll he was rated 9th in the nation over such bands as Kay Kyser, Woody Herman, Artie Shaw, and a host of other outstanding favorites.

Local Churches Plan Religious Services For V-12 Trainees

In addition to the facilities for religious worship provided on the Campus, neighboring Protestant Churches have extended invitations to the V-12 trainees to attend services of their several denominations. Early in the program, the Rev. Rex Stowers Clements, Ph.D., pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Bryn Mawr met with the College Chaplain, Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., and agreed to act as liaison officer with the neighboring churches in providing religious facilities for Protestant students.

As soon as the religious census was completed, Dr. Clements was furnished the names, religious preferences, and campus addresses of the trainees. When interviewed Father Grimes confirmed this arrangement and expressed the hope that the students already contacted by the local churches would avail themselves freely of the opportunities offered. Father Grimes also stated that similar arrangements had been made for students of the Jewish faith.

Fitzgibbons Elected

New officers of the Commerce and Finance fraternity, Delta Pi Epsilon, were elected at a recent meeting of the group.

John Fitzgibbons succeeds John Dudley as president. Assisting Fitzgibbons for the coming season will be William J. Devine, Vice President; John Riddy, Treasurer; John McGowan, Sergeant at Arms; Hugh Burns and Joseph Foley, Student Council Representatives.

'Cat Ends Capers

Due to increased intensity of his scholastic schedule and the fact that he graduates next month, William S. Swan, staff columnist for the past several semesters, has found it impossible to continue in that capacity. As a result, it has become necessary to appoint his successor a few weeks ahead of the usual date.

It is with deep regret that the VILLANOVAN bids goodbye to Bill and his "'CAT CAPERS"; we wish him the best of luck during his career in the Navy as a member of the V-7 program.

Back Them Up!

IF Villanova is to have a successful football season, every student on the Campus must get behind their team. The fighting Wildcats of 1943 have already proven themselves to be one of the best in Villanova's history, but no team will be successful unless it receives the confidence of its backers.

Throughout every page of this Nation's history we read of the success and progress of the country under the varied teams of leaders. This continued as long as the people backed up the teams; but allow dissension to enter the ranks of the public, such as during the Civil War, and the progress of the team is halted. No team however powerful can be as successful individually as when it has the encouragement and support of the people for whom it is working.

So it is with out football aggregation. It needs the encouragement and support of every Villanova student. Although at the present, the Wildcats are playing away games, there are four contests on the schedule which will be played in Philadelphia. The first home game will be on Sunday, Oct. 10, followed by two others, all at Shibe Park. For these, the stands must be crowded with cheering, shouting, Villanovans if we want our team to do their best. The players will have something worth working for if they see that we are behind them. So learn those cheers and songs. Get that old Villanova spirit. The Wildcats will always fight. if you back them up.

It's Our Dance!

ON SATURDAY Villanova's 600 Navy and Marine trainees are to witness their first collegiate social event since donning their uniforms last July. They, and the civilians on the campus, have been subjected to a terrific grind under an accelerated scholastic and physical training program. Most of the students are badly in need of the type of diversion offered by an occasional dance.

All three of the groups comprising the student body have been clamoring for just this kind of recreation to relieve some of the mental strain placed upon them. Yet, to date, ticket sales are at such a rate that the success of the dance is questionable. It is difficult to understand why men continually ask for some concession, and then are reluctant to take advantage of it when it is within their grasp.

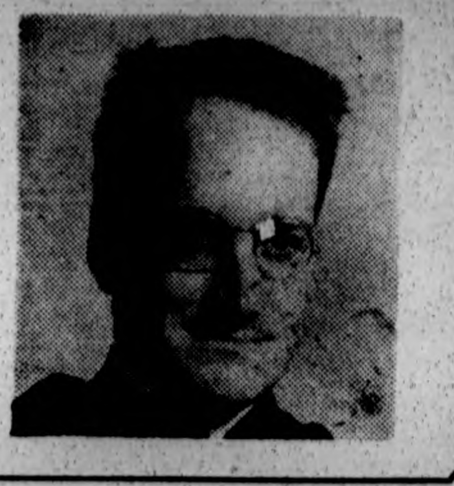
If the current affair is not a success, conditions will be such that it will be almost impossible for the college to obtain any "name" bands for dances in the future. Although the price of a ticket is rather high, "Joe College" hasn't always been on a $50-a-month payroll! Furthermore, lack of dates can hardly be offered as an excuse for not attending. Sunday's tea dance offered plenty of opportunity for obtaining them.

If for no other reason than to assure ourselves of similar and even bigger affairs in the future, let's all get behind the Student Council and cooperate in making this one a big success!

FACULTY COMMENTS

THE OTHER FELLOW

By Fr. GAVIGAN



WHEN the Japs launched their treacherous attack on Pearl Harbor, they succeeded in destroying many precious American lives and much valuable equipment. In addition, they landed a resounding blow upon the over-confidence and self-complacency of many Occidentals. The outlook was black indeed to those who realized the seriousness of the situation.

But there was a bright side also. In the horror of that attack American nerves and courage were put to a severe test. Deeds of heroism were performed on that day to provide a hopeful background against the wreckage left in the path of the sneak attack. Wounded and dying men tried to stand at their posts as long as their strength lasted.

Unselfish Heroes

Acts of unselfishness stood out brightly. Take among many others the example of Chaplain Schmitt and his companions. When several sailors stood back to allow him to go first through a porthole to safety, he refused and pressed them to save themselves while there was yet time. Why didn't he grasp at HIS chance and let the others worry about themselves Because he, like many other good Americans who did their part on that day, had trained himself to think about the "other fellow."

It works both ways. If Lieutenant Schmitt had been accustomed to worry about himself alone, he would have played no hero's part that day. Instead, he would have snatched eagerly at the chance to save himself while his companions were left to drown. But because he did well in peace, he did well in war also.

Practice Charity Now

Naturally enough, our men here at Villanova like to think that they will do their part nobly when the time for action comes. They like to think that they will give a thought to their comrade — "the other fellow"—in the heat of action. Well, the time to prepare for such charity and hreoism is right now.

Psychologists tells us that habits are the results of oft-repeated acts. Constant practice of selfishness now disposes us to act selfishly in times of danger; not to think about the other fellow. Constant acts of charity and mutual consideration now prepare us to do well in time of danger; to help save the other fellow.

Considering Others?

Recently there has been occasion to regret the unthinking and selfishness of some individuals in such practices as "cutting in" the lines outside the dining room; strewing around things for others to clean up; letting others suffer for offenses of which they are not guilty. All these acts may seem small in themselves, but they represent an attitude that definitely leaves the other fellow entirely out of consideration.

The list of such offenses could be prolonged, but it isn't necessary. Just remember that every time a man acts selfishly and with no regard for the other fellow he's preparing to give an unpleasant and uncreditable account of himself when the severe test comes. If you want to avoid such an event, prepare yourself now by giving an occasional thought to the other fellow!

Meet the Boys

Law Will Someday Welcome Vin Back
Ed's Leading Hobby Has Been Track

By JACK DEMPSEY, A.S.

THE curtain rises today to present a mixed duo—a sailor and a marine. Since (at least alphabetically) "marine" precedes "sailor," we shall discuss our friend in khaki first.

Vincent J. Maloney made his debut on the last day in January, 1923, in that apex of the Garden State, Jersey City. (Shortly after we hear of our hero from the town of Ridgefield in the same state). It was here that Vin's academic career began.

Consistency seemed to play a major role in young Vincent's life because he chose both the Ridgefield Grammar and the Ridgefield High School. In the latter, he played on the football team, and then, later in the year, "doubled in brass" on the basketball squad.

Studied Law

After graduating from high school, Vin attended the "college of hard knocks" for a while by working for the Standard Oil Company. As soon as possible, however, he bade goodbye to the work-a-day world and headed for the wide open spaces around Omaha, Neb-

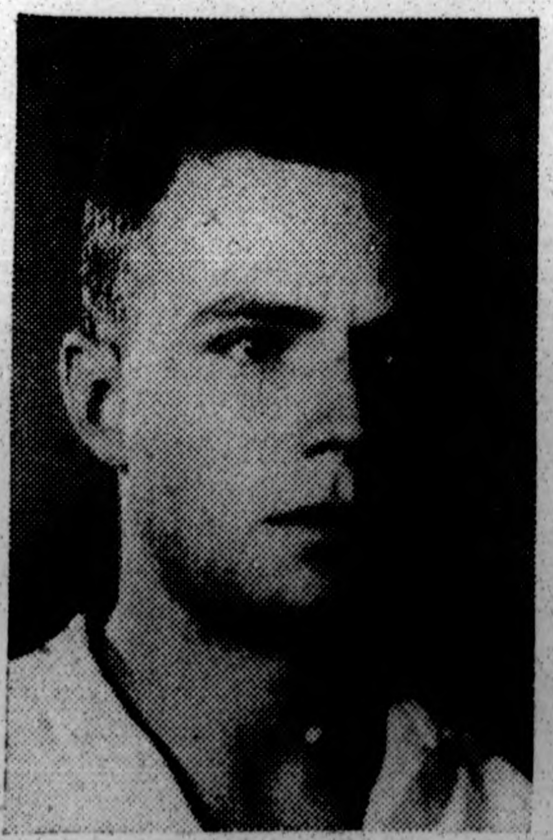
NEXT in line comes Edward W. McElduff of Fedigan Hall, whose face we have really never seen despite this interview. We spent thirty minutes in McElduff's room and never got to see him through the smoke-screen he laid down from a four-foot long stogie which emitted a sweet, satisfying aroma vaguely resembling that of a chem lab during sulfur experiments.

To add to the difficulties of the interview, Ed turned out to be the shyest, most retiring person that we have ever met. (Anything for a living! ! !). Believe it or not we actually had to worm from him any facts we needed. This even required the assistance of his roommate and half of Fedigan Hall.



Native New Yorker

Ed started life as a member of that group of rapidly disappearing Americans, native New Yorkers. He was born at Gotham-on-the-Hudson on the sixteenth of January, 1923. His stay here was somewhat brief. In fact, since his father, a Commander in the Navy, is constantly on the move, Ed's stays

Oh, Well..!

By TOM HITCHELL

YEP, it's all over now. . .even the sobbing. The West Point tilt was nevertheless a darn good game. It took the Wildcats to keep a highly powerful cadet team from going to town until after the half. A little bit more of that first quarter playing and perhaps the tables would have been turned. After all, that 27-0 score wasn't quite as bad as it sounds! ! !

EXPECTATION

The occasion warranted several brief flights from the Main Line over the weekend. Taking to the road were Red Cahill, Tom McQuade, and Jim Henry; just a few of Good Counsel's casanovas that turned out for the event (via the thumb) . . . Simpson sent Jim Corrigan, Bob Gruss, Alex Infangow and a score of others to the tilt . . . Then there were those certain few lucky gobs who can thank the VILLANOVAN for getting them there. . .all in the line of duty, of course! While we're on the subject Dave Ward was still not over the jitters up there in the press box when his competent spotting was acknowledged over a nation wide hook-up at the half.

PARTICIPATION

Villanova was well represented in the big array of gold bars and braid. . .Commander Milner and Captain Morgan were both on hand . . .also Sgt. Doerfler, a one man cheering section for the afternoon . . .even the faculty was unusually well represented. No one can deny that there was plenty of Blue and White spirit in the stands. Assisting Fr. Vrana with his photography, but making things difficult to see through the clouds of smoke from his ever-present "two-fors" was the one and only Fr. Burke. Fr. McKee landed up in the press box subbing for Joe Daly who missed the 10 A. M. boat from New York and didn't arrive on the scene until the middle of the second quarter.

JUBILATION

Congratulations to Mike Tramutolo for his dynamic display of school spirit! Mike was really handing out the vitamin pills Saturday afternoon, and putting all he had into those Blue and White cheers. . .Another hand goes to Joe Orlando who acted as Mike's assistant in pepping up the throng . . .one twosome that stood out in front when it came to vocal exercise was Ed Mszanowski and Bernie whose vim and vigor lasted till the last few seconds of the game . . .Al Corcillo was too interested in Mickey to do much cheering. . . Bill Schwerman's date made up for the latter couples' silence; really hep! . . . also Bob Schwartz and Gaby who were still going strong at 4 A. M.! . . . Heck Martinez and Hank Payeras both turned out for the game with that certain something! ! ! . . . Bob Donovan was spotted with a cute blond (also an appealing cousin!) . . . Bob Gruss brought the family down for the game. . .Still unconvinced about the sister line! . . . Phil Wendel and his Lancaster Miss really enjoyed the Hudson River sights . . . By the half Pat Malone was all set to ride Army's mule! . . .One of our local belles will be in debt for a year paying off those Villanova odds? ? ? . . . How about it K. T.?

SCINTILLATION

The cadets were in great shape, both on the field and off . . . Their cheering section was a show in itself. . . .Cadet Jim Carbine, former . Villanovan, looked mighty sharp in his blue and grays. Our ex-sportswriter is turning out to be an ardent Army rooter this season . . . The G. A. was booming Saturday night, jammed to the sidewalk. . .Met Bill Swan and his gal there . . . also Charley Miranda and Joe McFarland with their dates. Their version of "We Are Under 21" was really big time! Have to sign those boys up for the choir; plenty of volume! . . . Don Kline waited an hour to get in the place and found it harder getting out. . .All in all it was a great day despite our defeat. Sure Villanova lost, but she lost smiling!

Cadets Hand Wildcats First Defeat Of Season

VILLANOVAN SPORTS

Their Strategy Succeeded

Shown here are Army's coach, Lt. Col. Earl "Red" Blaik, and captain, Cas Myslinski, before Saturday's game as they decided on tactics that were used to good advantage against the Blue and White.

"Army's Defense Exceptional So Early In Season"

By JORDAN OLIVAR
Football Coach

Army was certainly all it was proclaimed to be by the experts but we thought we would make a better showing than we did, both offensively and defensively. After our scrimmage against the Eagles last week we felt that the "T" formation would not present any insurmountable problem, especially since this was the Army's debut with the "T." However the boys from on the Hudson displayed an aptitude and finesse that showed hours of practice. Aside from an occasional fumble, Army's offense was exceptional for early season play.

Defensively our line did a fine job, despite the number of first downs made by Army. I believe two of the most outstanding players on the field were Bill Sullivan and Milt Anderson, our two ends. "Sully" was game co-captain along with Joe Pezelski and played a full sixty minutes of hard, heads-up football. Even at the end of the game "Sully" was racing down on punts, nailing the safety man before he could get started.

A couple of mental lapses by our defense presented Army with second and third touchdowns. We hope we profit by those errors and use them to advantage in future games.

Offensively our attack never was really able to get under way, as it seemed we were always in a hole and could not open up. The only time we got close to Army's goal line, they intercepted a pass and ended the threat.

We had quite a number of men injured including Dzitko, Kasulin,

Six Man Football Teams Organize

Joe Ringlestein has been rounding the boys up at Fedigan and has a fairly potent group picked out to represent the hall. An outstanding first stringer is Jack Bailey, the Pittsburgh flash, whose after-supper capers have worn the drill field almost bald. "Squeaky" Warner, Doug Kelly, Chester Zarnicki, Joe Henessy, and Bill Campbell are the other starters picked for their showing in the pre-league games.

The speed boys from Alumni expect to have their team together in a week and a half. Teams from each floor will play every night and the stellar players will be chosen for the big six by Jack Ramsey.

Jack McManus of Mendel hopes to have his team together before October 16 by means of inter-deck competition. A few of the bright boys among the Engineers are Bill Koness, Joe Dwyer, and Tom Baxter.

Two leagues will be run, one for the servicemen and one for the students. The winners of each circuit will then play for the campus championship.

150 lb. Football

Villanova will definitely have a 150 lb. football team this year according to Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, Director of Athletics. No formal schedule has been drawn up as yet, but one will be completed soon.

The Eastern Intercollegiate 150 lb. League, of which Maurice J. "Clipper" Smith, former Wildcat coach was chairman, has suspended its operations for the duration. The league consisted of Rutgers, Villanova, Lafayette, Cornell, Yale, and Pennsylvania. This year's team will probably meet opposition from Valley Forge Military Academy, and representative teams from Franklin & Marshall, Swarthmore, and Ursinus V-12 Units.

How did the team look against Army? Was Villanova as bad as the score indicated? Just how good were the Cadets? These and other questions were all asked of us who had returned from the game. So, for the benefit of the unlucky ones who were not able to see the game, it was the consensus of opinion of those who were there that Villanova was beaten by a better team. The Army squad of this year is packed with stars not only in the starting line-up but also in its reserves.

We think the Cadets will definitely be ranked up among the leaders during the 1943 season.

In selecting his starting team, coach Earl "Red" Blaik must have had quite a time, for his so-called second team was just as good as the first eleven. The Army which was composed of the cream of the country's youth was in much better physical shape and in addition a constant stream of replacements kept coming off the Army bench, thus making it possible to have a fresh team in there against the Wildcats every minute. As a result, the Blue and White gridders were a weary group when they trudged off the field after the last whistle.

Staff Meeting

There will be an important meeting of the sports staff in the VILLANOVAN office this afternoon at 4:00 P. M. All present writers report as well as all students who wish to become writers.

Villanova Conquered By Strong Army Squad 27-0

Cadets' Debut With T Formation Very Impressive; Pass Play Lombardo To Anderson Carries 60 Yards For Touchdown

By JOE DALY, A.S.

A gallant but outmanned Villanova football team was forced to bow to a powerful United States Military Academy team, last Saturday as the Cadets marked up a decisive 27-0 victory in their first showing of the year. The score does not begin to tell the story however, for during the entire first half, the Wildcats held the big Black Gold and Gray team at bay. Forced to take the defensive from the start, Villanova's forward wall was stiffened time and time again as Army penetrated deep down into their territory, once to the goal line where the Wildcats checked the bid and took possession on a recovered fumble. Al Kasulin's beautiful sixty-one yard kick put the opposition back in their own forty yard line again.

Scores on Lateral

Army's first score came at the close of the first half as a result of Joe Pezelski's fumble on Villanova's thirty-nine yard line, which Joe Stanowicz recovered. From there, the Army marched to pay dirt, employing a tricky "T" formation with a man in motion. Glenn Davis, who was the Cadets' outstanding man, although only a plebe, took the ball over from the four yard stripe after the Main Liners had held for three plays. Army had tried power thrusts through the line and a pass to no avail, and so on the fourth down, Lombardo lateraled out to Davis who went wide around his own right end to the goal line where Jim Harkins knocked him out of bounds.

Eddie Murphy's attempted conversion went wide as the whole Villanova line broke through and forced him to kick hurriedly.

Wildcats Threaten

With only three minutes left in the first half, Villanova, aroused by the score, began to march.

After receiving the kickoff, the Wildcats took to the air with the injured Postus pitching strikes to Billy Sullivan and Milt Anderson. Al, who was barely able to run, completed three forwards in a row and then four more as Coach Earl Blaik awaited the half time whistle anxiously. Starting on their own thirty they went all the way to the Cadets' twenty-six yard line before the whistle blew designating the end of the first half.

62 Yard Run

Weakened from the struggle of the first half and with almost every man on the squad injured, Villanova could not stop the quick opening plays that Army used in the third period. Seven plays after the half opened found Troxell taking the ball on a spinner from the one yard line and leaping over the Villanova forward wall for the touchdown. The score was set up for the home team by a beautiful sixty-two yard gallop to the Villanova four by George Maxon who had cut through tackle and then reversed his field, going down the sideline until Al Postus finally brought him down.

Siano Punts

Army now became very confident as they, charging down the field on the kickoff, stopped Postus on his own twenty-two. The Wildcats just couldn't get going and John Siano was forced to kick out. Davis took the ball on his twenty-nine and raced all the way to the Wildcats' thirty-nine where Carlesimo made the tackle. Taking to the air the Cadets rang up their third touchdown. Quarterback Tom Lombardo on a perfectly executed play, flipped a long pass to Anderson, the Army right half, who caught it on the run and kept on going to end zone as he easily outran Lou Lopez who had been injured on the previous play. Again Murphy kicked the extra point and Army was way out in front, 19-0.

Wildcats Game

The Wildcats, who were clad in green, did not by any means give up. On the contrary they fought all the harder, although it appeared at times that many of their gallent line would not be able to walk back to the huddle. Dzitko again elected to take to the air, and again the Mules could not stop Postus as he completed pass after pass. Finally Davis, who seemed to be all over the field intercepted one of Ziggie Zamlynski's long passes intended for Postus and ran, pushed and bulled his way all the way to the Main Liners' fifteen.

Daniel Scores

As the twenty five hundred Cadets in the stands began to yell for another touchdown, the Villanova forward wall braced itself after an offsides cost Army five yards. But on his last down, Lombardo heaved as pass down the center of the field to Bill Preston, who was brought down on the four. Two plays later, Daniel plowed over for the score and Stonge added the final point. Both teams were off sides on the touchdown but Umpire Joe Coogan ruled that Villanova made the first contact. The game to a close a few minutes later, with the game 'Cats still in there fighting with everything they had.

The Wildcats, although bettered four touchdowns, cannot receive too much praise for the type of game they played. Co-Captains Bill Sullivan and Joe Pezelski were constantly harassing the opposition, Bill being in on eighty-five percent of the tackles, charged down time and time again to hold Davis to a minimum on punt returns. Playing for almost the entire game, Sullivan was constantly on the move; aided by Milt Anderson and Val Jansante on the other end he lived in the Army back field as he refused to be taken out of play. The whole Villanova Line, which had been considered by experts to be weak, played heads-up ball.

raska, where he attended Creighton College. This long trek from home was in accord with a standing family tradition.

At college, Vin became an ardent pre-law student, and his name appeared consistently on the honor roll. His academic pursuits, however, didn't stop him from participating in extra-curricular activities. Here we also see him playing basketball again and holding a seat on the school's Chamber of Commerce.

Joined Marine Reserve

Came the war, and Vin, like many of his classmates, joined a reserve program. Again tradition showed itself when Vincent chose the Marines, for he has a brother, a master sergeant, serving in the South Pacific area in the same branch of the service.

Unfortunately, war and law do not mix, so Vin is now studying electrical engineering. His heart still lies in the court, though, and he intends to return to his law courses as soon as possible.

When we first encountered our hero, he was practicing judo outside Austin Hall, and we wondered why he should be so earnestly resolved to learn the art of maligning his fellow-men. Now we think we know. It seems that Vin sleeps with a picture of the Brooklyn Dodgers underneath his pillow, and at the least whisper of the word "bums" his blood boils and he sees red.

Vin is now a big city boy since he recently moved to New York. Such a move was necessary because Pvt. Maloney is certainly going to be a man who will need a big city to work in.

everywhere have been similarly ephemeral.

As evidence of his wanderlust, we'll skip the list of grammar schools attended and merely mention that there were nine of them blessed by his presence. After that came high schools—three of them—and they read like a Cook's tour. One was in Brooklyn, N. Y., the next was in Long Beach, California, and finally he spent some time in a school at Bremerton, Washington.

Starred in Track

In Ed's case his sports record has been the light of his school life. He has enough track medals to make Herr Goering turn green with envy, and in addition he holds several titles in scholastic track.

After high school, he returned to California and attended Long Beach Junior College. Here his sports record was less sensational, however, since he had to remain eligible for entrance to Annapolis. Apparently the Naval Academy was never to have the benefit of his winged feet, for he was declared ineligible because of a minor eye defect. Nevertheless, Ed is determined to follow in his father's footsteps and wear the gold braid of the Navy, as evidenced bv his enrollment in V-12.

Joe was in perfect form that day and he shot the bullseye right out of the target to come up with the score of 309 which is expert. In a letter which he wrote home, Joe said, "Hello Ma. It was a tough grind but I got the extra five bucks!" And so Joe Doaks was a very satisfied little boy.

Next week Joe finishes his "boot" training. And what a finish!

Postus and Jansante which does not augur too well for the future. Fortunately, we get a break in the schedule and have an open date before we engage the Sampson Sailors at Shibe Park which will give some of the boys a much needed chance to nurse their bruises and recover.

Incidentally, we are still trying to figure out which was Army's first team. At least there is no manpower shortage at West Point.

On the whole, Army outplayed us all the way and at the season's end you'll find Army is still one of the topnotchers in the East.

AND SO ARE UNNECESSARY LONG DISTANCE CALLS

War calls, vital for victory, must go through PROMPTLY. But they can't if telephone lines are needlessly congested. Do your part in speeding essential calls by following these suggestions:

1. Make only URGENT Long Distance calls to war centers like Washington, Chicago and Detroit.
2. When you DO use Long Distance, give the operator the number of the distant telephone, if you can.
3. Keep all your Long Distance calls AS BRIEF AS POSSIBLE.
4. Try to avoid calling between the hours of 7 to 10 P.M. That's when most Service Men are calling home.

Qualifying Test For V-12—A.S.T.P. To Be Held Here

Nov. 9 Set As Date for Second Aptitude Test for Army and Navy College Training Programs

The second Qualifying Test for the Army Specialized Training Program and the Navy College Program, V-12, which will be given throughout the country on Tuesday, November 9, will be administered at Villanova College, Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., assistant to the President, announced today. A pamphlet of general information which contains an admission-identification form may be obtained at the Registrar's Office. This form properly filled out will admit to the test students between the ages of 17 and 21 inclusive who are recent high school graduates or who will be graduated by March 1, 1944. Intent to take the test should be made known immediately to the Registrar's Office in order that the necessary test supplies may be ordered.

Leads to Commission

The same examination will be taken by both Army and Navy candidates. The examination is designed to test the aptitude and general knowledge required for the program of college training and all qualified students are urged to take the test. At the time of the test each candidate will be given a choice of service preference, but taking the test does not obligate the candidate to enlist in the service.

The Army Specialized Training Program and the Navy College Program enable students to continue academic training at government expense following induction into the armed services. Successful completion of the prescribed courses may, following further officer training, lead to a commission in the Army or the Navy.

Under Military Rule

Those selected for the Army will, after further screening and basic military training, be sent to college. Students chosen for the Navy Program, after selection by the Office of Naval Officer Procurement, will be detailed directly to college. Students who attend college under either of the programs will be under military discipline on active duty in uniform with pay. All expenses, including tuition, food, housing, books and uniforms will be paid by the Army or the Navy.

Villanova College is at present host to 600 trainees who entered the service through V-12 and similar reserve programs.

New Recreation Center for V-12 Trainees Opened

Enterprising Neighbors Utilize Vacant Building Adjoining Drug Store Near Campus

A definitely militaristic touch has has been added to the campus with the opening of a servicemen's center on Lancaster Pike. Though most of the men in the Villanova V-12 Unit have already availed themselves of the "hut's" facilities, its origin and management still remain something of a mystery. The object of this article is to erase any remaining question marks.

Of prime importance is the fact that the club is not a branch of any organized service. It is not even remotely affiliated with the two big syndicates, the U.S.O. and the Red Cross. All laurels for its foundation rest on two heads. Particularly instrumental were Mrs. La Dow, proprietress of the pharmacy next door, and Mrs. Cummings, who is in charge of club operations. They were the real "spark-plugs" behind the project.

Begun for Restrictees

Apparently we can thank the "restrictees" for the center since it was their sad plight that caused its conception. The two ladies sympathized with the boys who found themselves "all dressed up with no place to go" during the week-ends. The problem of the relations and friends of the restricted men was also of concern to the affable founders. Three big questions confronted the originators: when, where, and how. The answer to the first was obvious: the sooner the better. Nor did the second question prove exceptionally difficult to answer. An available empty building adjoining the drug store just off the southwest corner of the campus was being used as a stock room and the ladies felt that it could easily be made suitable.

Before attacking the third and last question however, it was deemed wise to make sure of official approval. To this end the Navy office was consulted and the answer was immediate and positive.

Plans Completed

Now that only one barrier stood in the way, "Mom" La Dow really "went to town." She talked to all of her old, steady customers on the tender subject of money and equipment. The neighbors came through and within a short time both these necessities were supplied. In the meantime, several of the boys had helped tidy up the place, and everything was soon shipshape. The center was opened immediately therefore and its success was instantaneous.

The actual running of the club has been placed in the capable hands of Mrs. Cummings, who insists only upon the rules of common sense.

V-12 Trainees Enjoy First College Social, Uniform New "Tux"

Villanova's first dance since the inauguration of the V-12 program proved itself a great success. In appearance, the dance was quite unusual, for the majority of the men were in uniform; but the old spirit still prevailed.

Bobby Sherwood's rhythms were all that could be asked for and his new vocalist, Gale Landis, seemed to have made quite a hit. Her rendition of the popular favorite "Sunday, Monday, or Always" was really tops on the sweet side and the entire evening was nicely punctuated with fast numbers and novelties.

The clear, cool evening which followed several days of bad weather brought out a host of dancers; although most of them were students and their friends, the faculty and Navy staff were well represented. The Navys' blue and the green of the Marines added in making the whole affair a colorful one despite the fact that it was not formal.

The STUDENT COUNCIL wishes to take this opportunity to thank the students for their full cooperation, a prime factor in the success of Saturday night's dance. We would particularly like to thank those who aided in the actual work of preparation for the affair.

Considering the short time and the hurried manner in which arrangements for the event were made, the sale of tickets before and at the dance was decidedly gratifying. Although the exact receipts and expenditures have not as yet been tabulated, preliminary reports indicate that it was a financial success.

Sanctuary Society Elects New Officers

The Sanctuary Society met in the amphitheatre of Mendel Hall Wednesday night to conduct the election of officers and to discuss matters pertaining to the future activities of the Society. Rev. John A. Kletkotka, O.S.A., presided and called the meeting to order.

After a few preliminaries the appointment of John May as Sacristan was announced. May replaces James Bradley, class of 1945, who is now a private in the Army Medical Corps at Camp Grant, Illinois.

The election of officers was then held. Those elected are as follows: President, Thomas McQuade; Vice-President, James Dean, and Secretary, James Kerin.

Fr. Klekotka announced that meetings of the Society will be held monthly and that topics of current interest in the Catholic world will be discussed at hese meetings.

Training Over, "Average Marine" Bids Good-bye To Dear Old P. I.

By PVT. WM. CARTER, USMCR

Joe Doaks is elated now, for only three weeks of his stay at Parris Island remain. Just three more weeks and then he will be a full-fledged Marine (he hopes)!

Joe is feeling especially good today because he is moving again. As he packs his seabag he whistles a merry little tune that only he has ever heard. Our hero calmly ducks when he sees a shoe, size 13, come floating toward his head. Finally the whole platoon finishes packing its seabags and they fall out expecting to hear that they are going to march back to the main station where they will finish their training. But no such luck!

The sergeant marches them to another barracks area and has them stow their gear in a hut which sits right next to the mess hall in which they have been eating. It is our hero who ventures to guess that the gang is in for a tour of mess duty—and he's right!

After being introduced to the mess-sergeant, who looks like a fugitive from a Jap concentration camp, they are assigned to their respective duties. With his usual run of luck, Joe is given a dishwasher's position. "This isn't a bad job," he says as he cleans out the garbage pail, washes greasy pots and pans and emerges from the whole mess with the first pair of clean hands he has had since he hit P.I. On the whole though, he didn't mind it as much as he thought he would because he could eat any time he wanted to (providing he wasn't caught). Seven days and about 20,000 dishes later Joe again packed his seabag and marched to the main station.

Now he was in the final phases of his training. He had only to qualify with the bayonet and then he was finished. At the beginning of the instruction the sergeant explained how the bayonet was to be attached to the rifle. Then he went on to explan the proper stance, and the correct way to rush, thrust and parry.

After the lecture was finished he demonstrated these fundamentals of bayonet fighting on the set of dummies that had been erected for that purpose. "Gee, that looks easy," Joe said as the sergeant calmly and methodically proceeded to jab his bayonet into the straw dummies.

Anxious to show the instructor that he was good for something else beside just firing his rifle, Joe Doaks mounted his bayonet and "hit the deck" about twenty feet in front of the "enemy." When he was given the word to charge he jumped to his feet, rushed the dummy, parried the dummy's "bayonet," thrust his own, and the next thing he knew he was flat on his back.

"Very good work, Doaks," said the sergeant with satire in his voice as Joe sheepishly picked himself up and looked around to see if any part of him was missing. With Numbered among the trainees attached to the V-12 program at Villanova are five Marines who were formerly stationed at the Marine Barracks at Parris Island, S. C.

Pvt. William B. Dennis, a former corporal, was the Dockmaster at the Port Royal Sound Bay docks at P. I. Also an ex-corporal, Foster W. Blough was the non-commissioned officer in charge of the Ordnance Dept. as Depot Quartermaster.

Pvts. Alphonse Canuel and William J. Carter, Jr. were both instructors in the use of the M-1 rifle and other small arms. While stationed at P. I. these men held the rank of private first-class. Pvt. Ralph D. Cail was attending school at the Paymaster's Depot when he was called for the V-12 program.

"Engineer" Staff Announces Plans For Coming Year

Gerngross Appointed Editor of Engineering Publication; Invites Members of Student Body to Submit Articles

During the past week plans were laid for a new and improved "Villanova Engineer." Frederick J. Gerngross, A.S., has been appointed editor of the monthly publication, and has stated that he intends to put into practice many new ideas as to the type and content of the articles to be printed. It is the object of the staff to publish material which can be read and understood by every student of the engineering department, but which contain all the technical facts necessary to make it worth while.

The first issue will be ready for distribution about the end of October, and it is expected that future issues will be printed exactly on their respective monthly deadlines. Last year conditions were such that it was impossible to produce editions on the specified dates, but the editorial staff predicts that this season's issues will all be on time.

Prof's Article Featured

The initial copy will feature an article by Mr. Jacob Yavitch, new assistant professor in the Mechanical Engineering Department, the title of which will be "The Theory of Lubrication."

The following men have been appointed to the staff: Paul Simpson, Managing Editor; Edward Brennan, A.S., Business Manager; Frank Solis, A.S., Circulation Manager; and John Millet, A.S., Photography Editor. Rev. John J. Vrana, O.S.A., continues as faculty moderator of the publication.

The success or failure of the magazine will be decided by the cooperation received from each student in the engineering school In order to insure top-flight editions, the staff should have a number of appropriate articles to choose from. As in former years, contributions from any students are welcomed. Gerngross has announced that anyone interested may contact one of the staff members, or, if he has already written an article, he should submit it at the publication office, Room 222 Mendel.

Future issues will contain technical material pertaining to engineering in war-time and so should be of interest to all those in the service. They will be delivered to the rooms of the students instead of being distributed at the office as had been done in the past.

Engineering First To Sponsor Dance

John S. McManus, A.S., President of the campus engineering fraternity, Phi Kappa Pi, has just announced that the organization is to sponsor a "Harvest Dance" on Thanksgiving Eve, Wednesday, November 24. Arrangements for the event are still tentative, and as yet no band has been signed.

The chairman of the dance is Arthur Roth, senior mechanical engineering student. The tickets will cost $2.20, and dancing will last from 9 P. M. until 1 A. M.

Mission

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., Chaplain of the College, has just announced that a mission will be held for all students on the campus during the week of Oct. 10th. The spiritual exercises of which it will consist include an evening sermon and daily Mass.

Services will begin on Monday evening, Oct. 11, at 7 P. M., and will end on the evening of Oct. 15. Masses will be at 6:40 and 7:15 A. M. Confessions will be heard after the evening exercises and during the morning Masses.

Rev. Edward Quinn, O. S. A., of the Augustinian Mission Band, will conduct the mission.

Duty and Right

A COLLEGE is a personal, living, growing thing. Just as in the human body the direction of the life-giving forces is primarily the function of the brain, in a college it is the work of the administration. But just as the human body has an intermediary organ which more proximately controls its growth, so a college should have, and ordinarily does have, an intermediary moderating body in the form of a Student Council.

The Student Council of a college has a two-fold function. As the representative voice of the student body, it is supposed to present the opinion of the student body in matters which the students consider as just and reasonable aims for the betterment of the college and themselves. On the other hand, as the voice of the administration in reference to the corporate function of the student body, it is supposed to serve as a medium through which the administration may make known its directions or demands regarding the student body.

All in all, in order to fulfill its duty, the Student Council must have the confidence of both the administration and the student body. The Council itself, in union with the student body, must try to see and appreciate the problems and the point of view of the administration. And again, the administration must try to see and appreciate the position and the reasonableness of the claims of the students. All concerned must preserve the correct perspective in order to be able to see the forest while looking at the trees.

In the past, the Student Council of Villanova has never completely fulfilled its two-fold function. The students have long considered it nothing but a figurehead, a mere name attributed to an inactive group elected by them because of past traditions. It is remarked quite correctly that the Student Council, acting spontaneously, has never been known to gain for the students any notable benefit. It is also pointed out that what makes the Student Council's existence meaningless is the fact that, before both students and administration, it lacks authority. Would the college administration be willing to concede the Student Council a measure of authority? Would the students, in turn, readily accept the obligations entailed by the granting of authority to the student body through its elected representatives?

Before the former could be answered in the affirmative, we believe that the students should and must prove the latter. Present conditions on the campus unfortunately, but necessarily, limit the means available to supply proof. However, voluntary cooperation with the college, such as the unprompted utilization of the religious facilities offered to the students would definitely pave the way towards this end.

Youth is impulsive and inexperienced. But the fact remains that our college is supposed to be training us for social cooperation in later life, cooperation that is called for all the more in democracy. Surely it isn't going too far to ask that our college existence be made to serve as a laboratory experiment in democratic living. As Americans, we should be convinced that a democracy will work when duty is stressed as much as right, and right as much as duty.

Chairman, The STUDENT COUNCIL.

Tom and Phil Are Chemical Engineers; Both Have Strikingly Parallel Careers

By JOHN ATKINSON

FRONT and center this week comes Tom Dougherty, future chemical engineer and present day personification of modesty. After meeting Tom, threatening and pleading, we finally obtained a few of the high points in the Dougherty career and its progress to date.

Philadelphia supplied Tom with his first contact with the world on the eighth of August, 1922. At the tender age of two months however, Tom began the trek which eventually led to Villanova, by tottering off to a new residence at Aldan, Pennsylvania. Tom took such a liking to Aldan (and viceversa), that he still resides there.

Tom's first scholastic love was St. Joseph's Grammar School in Collingdale. For his secondary education he continued along the same verbal lines and returned to Philadelphia to attend St. Joseph's Preparatory School. Following graduation in 1940, he entered Villanova.

Villanova found Tom an active member in extra-curricular activities, particularly those connected with his chosen field of chemical engineering. Phi Kappa Pi, the A.S.C., the A.I.Ch.E., and the Math Club took him into their respective folds. In the Math Club and the A.I.Ch.E. he served in executive capacities,

IF among our readers is anyone pursuing chemistry who might, at one time or another, find a stubborn molecule or two in an experiment, we refer him to Philip J. Wendel, Lancaster's gift to Villanova. Up in the Tobacco Land of the North Phil uttered his first chemical formula on August 8, 1922.

As most college students have done, Phil began at the bottom by entering grammar school at Sacred Heart in Lancaster, which was followed on the ladder of scholastic success by attendance at Lancaster Catholic High School. Here, along with diligent pursuit of knowledge, Phil found time for all school activities from dramatics to football. In 1940 Lancaster Catholic's loss became Villanova's gain, and chemistry along the Main Line was soon to be booming (literally of course).

College life provided Phil with a sufficiency of occupations, for he was not content with general scholastic work, but represented himself in no mediocre manner in various school activities. With knowing eye Phi Kappa Pi watched his progress and enrolled him in its ranks. Not to be outdone Mu Alpha Theta did likewise, and the A.C.S. and the

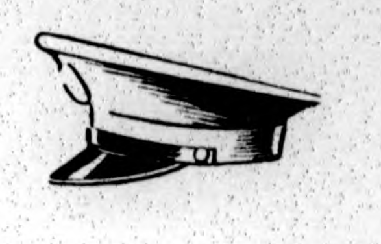
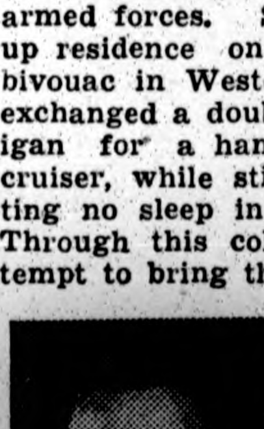
Camp To Campus



By PVT. JOHN BITTIG

SINCE our country's entry into the present conflict, many of Villanovas' alumni and undergraduate students have responded to Uncle Sam's call by entering the armed forces. Some fellows gave up residence on the campus to bivouac in Western camps, others exchanged a double decker in Fedigan for a hammock on a U. S. cruiser, while still others are getting no sleep in the battle areas. Through this column, we will attempt to bring these men in closer contact with each other as well as with those still on the campus.



It's hard to imagine that grocery store 'good morning" changed to 'knock that off, you guys" but that's what has happened in a few short months to Sgt. Lou Block. One of Lou's old cronies, Chuck Fessler, having finished his basic training at Boca Raton Club, Fla., is now an aviation cadet at Yale University.

Among the midshipmen in Jefferson Medical School are John Johnson, Joe Bulleo, and John Bongiovanni. One of Villanova's outstanding football and track men, Bill Lillienthal, just arrived at Camp Croft, S. C.

A bit of Navy humor:
From a military courtesy lecture—
Instructor: "What is an Ensign?"
Student: "Sir, an Ensign is a swimming 2nd Lieutenant."

Among the graduates who left for their "boot" training at Parris Island, S. C., last June, Bob O'Connor was really the most unhappy man of the lot. It seemed that Bob couldn't catch up on that sleep that he was so accustomed to at Villanova. Lieutenants Jacques Mauch and Joe McAvoy are by far the luckiest of that group. Both boys received their commissions in the Marine Corps two weeks ago, quite some time ahead of schedule.

Probably in some of the fiercest fighting going on at present is John Casciotti, who was last heard from a month ago in North Africa. Jack Dowd is also seeing lots of action as a Marine flying sergeant in the South Pacific.

Here's one on the Army:
2d Lieutenant: "Colonel, I've been trying to see you for a week but you've been busy, sir. When can I see you?"
Colonel: "Why don't you make a date with my secretary?"
2nd Lieutenant: "I did, sir. We had a lovely time, but I still want to see you."

To continue this column, a large amount of information from the men in the service and from their friends on the campus will be required. Any news that you may forward will be greatly appreciated. With your help, the VILLANOVAN will be able to bring to you weekly news from CAMP TO CAMPUS.

'CAT TALES

By BILL BOYLE

NOW that Bill Swan has bid farewell to his days as a columnist on the VILLANOVAN staff another reporter had to be chosen to fill the empty slot. Well, here I am fellows! Wish me luck! My big hope at the moment is that this column will be as successful as it was in the days of my predecessor.

Before we go any further boys, if you pick up the VILLANOVAN some bright Tuesday morning and find your name in heavy black print in this column don't be too surprised. The other guys on the campus like to know what goes on and this is their only means.

So here we go!

GLANCE

Have you heard how some of the students have taken over the dances at St. Joseph's Hospital? Yes, they really moved in. Al Dumpsa was seen tripping the light fantastic with one "Hope." Ask him about it — it must have been great! He had the whole gang down to see his pride and joy!

The gang didn't do too badly either. Bill Schurr and George Aulbach both had a great time. That goes for Bob Murphy too, until he pulled his disappearing act.

The previous week these second half sophomores had a few upperclassmen with them, foremost of whom were Jim Dean and Pat Reagan.

Tom Nary almost made a hit at Rosemont's Tea Dance. But he didnt' stay quite long enough. No fellows, it wasn't cold feet. Tom prefers physics. Oh yeah!!

DANCE:

Now the scene turns to Villanova's Campus, Saturday evening. Ah, what a night! With a beautiful slice of the moon stuck up in the heavens and a really solid band in the beautifully decorated fieldhouse, how could it be otherwise? Yes, the dance was truly successful.

Exceptional dancing ability was shown by Tom Ward, younger brother of Dave.

The servicemen really went "all out" to make the dance successful. A number of the boys, not satisfied with the girls in the surrounding communities, imported home talent. Included in this category was Tim Brennan, with Louise, his version of Miss Atlantic City. The boys from Rochester also brought their best girls.

The huge crowd proved that dances are desired on the campus. Let's hope that the next one will not be too far in the future, and that it will be as successful as The Blue and White Hop!

CHANCE:

Just a few words concerning the gamblers on the campus. These brave fellows invested $4.40 in a ticket and then took a chance on a blind date. The majority were very well satisfied.

"Meteor" Mamzic was one fellow who seemed really to enjoy himself, he and Margie did all-reet! Then we have Bob Leahy with Anne and Tom Boyle with his "Honey."

Jim Dean certainly didn't take a chance when he invited Barbara. This "Killer-Diller" knew what he was getting and doesn't regret it.

ROMANCE:

Did you notice the gleam in Bill Schurr's eyes as he strolled into the field house?? He escorted Rosemont's lovely Sara. Ah yes, Bill was in his glory.

The torch Jim Higgins carries for Franny hasn't begun to dwindle in the least. Jim still has that far away look in his eye! We're rooting for you Jim.

So ends a perfect week-end! Let's all hope for many similar ones in the days to come. . .

'Squad In Fine Physical Shape for Coming Game'

AFTER the week's layoff, the boys are eager to get back into the winning form once again, and to make amends for their showing against Army. More men were injured in the Cadet fracas than we had first thought as Siano and Konopka also turned up as casualties the following Monday.

At the present writing, it appears as though the squad will all be in fine physical shape with the exception of Johnny Dzitko. This is posing quite a problem for the coaching staff for besides John's terrific blocking, we are going to miss his fine field generalship.

Tadley Returns

One of the biggest reasons for the rapid recovery of the squad is the return of Jim Tadley as our trainer. Tadley is trainer for the Philadelphia Athletics during the baseball season, and is now free to handle the injured Wildcats.

The Sampson Sailors are going to be another tough assignment for our boys but from a different angle than the Army was. Whereas Army was a powerhouse on the ground, the Sailors possess a varied passing attack. Against Cornell, they threw 31 passes which constituted more than half the plays they ran.

Long Kick

One of the leading passers on the team is Andy Stopper, Villanova graduate and star halfback in '35, '36, and '37. Andy will be right at home on Shibe Park turf as it was there he played some of his best games. Besides passing, Handy Andy can also kick a football quite a bit. I remember one afternoon in 1936 against Boston University, when Andy had to kick from his own 40 yard line. The first spot the ball hit, after Andy's toe, was in the left field bleachers, approximately 80 yards away. Stopper did not play against Cornell as Sampson had agreed not to use college graduates in that game—but look out for Andy Sunday afternoon.

New Starter

Since our running plays stalled at West Point, it may be that we will have to counter Sampson's aerial attack in the same manner. With Postus back in the starting line-up, the prospect is a lot better for our passing game. Al has a knack of putting the ball right where the receiver wants it with the laces up or down, as you please.

In the line Maxie Chepenuk will probably get a starting assignment. Max has a lot of drive, and plays spirited ball from whistle to whistle. As for the rest of the team, it looks as though we will stand pat on our previous starters in trying to sink the Sampson Navy at Shibe Park.

Basketball

Basketball coach Al Severance has announced that the first practice for the coming court team will be held later in the week. The prospects at the present moment are not very bright for out of the starting five of last year's squad, only one has returned to school and he, Chuck Drizen, might leave at the end of this semester.

The schedule of the teams to be met has not been released but it is known that the Athletic Authorities are working on one, and that it will be ready for publication in the near future.

Stopper Tosses One

Here's Andy Stopper, who stars on the Sampson eleven which opposes Villanova on Sunday at Shibe Park. Stopper formerly played for the Wildcats, but in this game he will use his well known talents against his Alma Mater. Handy Andy, as he was called during his college career, was a triple-threat man, and most proficient at passing.

Six-Man Football Circuit Started Play On Monday

Mendel, Fedigan, Alumni, And Austin Compete For Servicemen's Championship Of The Campus; Civilians Form Own League

Intramural six-man football got under way last evening when the Mendel Navy met the Marines and Fedigan played Alumni. Tonight, the Leathernecks will tussle with the Blues while Mendel will strive to defeat the Medics from Alumni.

Throughout the next two weeks, games will be run off every evening between six o'clock and seven, and it will be up to the teams themselves to get started The official length of the field will be 80 yards long and the width, approximately half of that. The rules provide that there be no tackling, a two hand touch being all that is required to stop play.

Fedigan Favorite

The team organizers had some ill luck last week since because of the incessant rain they were not able to have the deck tournaments as originally planned. However, some of the fellows were out after supper for a few nights, and at present, the interest in the league is high.

Fedigan is the favorite in the tournament because of the showing it made last week in one of the pick-up games. The race for the rest of the positions is wide open as the other teams seem to be evenly matched.

Two Halls Together

The civilian halls are not in this league but plans are being formulated so that they will have one of their own. The full plans are not yet available, but at present it is known that the winners of this circuit will meet the first team of the servicemen's group for the championship of the campus. Good Counsel, St. Rita's, Simpson, and O'Dwyer Halls will compete for the civilian crown of the campus, and the small group in Mendel will combine with the boys from Good Counsel to form their team.

DOUBLE WINNER

Jim Burns, who left school last February to become an Army Aviation Cadet is stationed at Clarksdale Air Field, Mississippi. In the recent Tri-State Championships of the Carolinas and Georgia, Burns won the quarter mile in 51.2 seconds, and the broad jump with a leap of 23 feet, 2 inches. While at Villanova, he was a member of the baseball team, and pitched a no-hitter against Loyola in his Freshman year.

Wildcats To Meet Sampson In Season's Home Opener

Stopper, Former Blue And White Star, At Halfback Post For Sailors; Other College And Pro Greats On Team

By JOE DALY, A.S.

Greatly aroused over their failure to upset a strong Army eleven, Villanova's fighting football forces will attempt to get back in the win column on Sunday afternoon when they tackle Sampson Naval Training Station at Shibe Park. This is the 'Cats first home game and should provide Villanova rooters with everything a football game should have.

Led by Lt. Comdr. Marvin A. Stevens, the Sailors promise to give the Main Liners a tough fight before the final whistle blows. Commander Stevens, who is the Chief Orthopedic Surgeon for the Naval Hospital, has many years of experience behind him, coaching both at Yale and New York University. His past record is a credit to his organizing skill and ability to put a winning combination on the field. There is no doubt that spectators will see a well-rounded Sampson machine when his team begins to move.

Use Different Systems

The colorful sailors will employ three entirely different offensive formations. They have mastered the Notre Dame box, and have added something new. Their second running attack which gave the New York Giants plenty of trouble is a tricky double wing, in which the quarterback sneaks into the line, and the end on the weak side drops back opening many possibilities which the Wildcats must watch, a job which will not be at all easy. Just to make things more complicated, the Bluejackets can slip into a heavy side line with only one man on the weak side, something which may lead to almost anything, possibly to a touchdown.

Triple Threat

The Sailors who have many big names on their roster to work out these plays, men who have proven themselves capable against every type of competition. Probably the best known of the college and pro stars, who incidently were not allowed to play in the Sampson-Cornell game, is Andy Stopper, who gave the fans in Shibe Park many a thrill as he led Villanova teams of '35, '36 and 37 to victory after victory. One who knows just how well Andy can run, pass, and kick is Head Coach Jordan Olivar. Ollie played on the same team with the scrappy Stopper and worked hard to open holes trying to spring Stopper loose; he will have to work just as hard Sunday or maybe a little harder to stop the triple threat back, from the bench.

Played Under Stevens

Besides the great Stopper, Stevens has a host of other stars. Dom Principe and Joe Woitkowski who played plenty of football for the Fordham Rams will be out there to stop anything the 'Cats will throw at them. Jerry Courtney of Syracuse, and Joe Davis of Southern California will be remembered by many a football enthusiast for their versatile ability. Frank Hrabetin, who will also be at home in Shibe Park, played many a good game for the Philadelphia Eagles. George Rinzi who starred under Stevens at N.Y.U. will be in the starting line-up to call the signals. Sam Mangone and Charley Mehelich will also start against the 'Cats, something they have done before when they wore the colors of Duquesne. Another former Villanova opponent who will see action against the 'Cats again is Jack Manning of Texas A. & M.

Dzitko Out

Villanova will have to be in their best form to win, but a fighting Wildcat team will be more than a match for the Navy men from New York. With a week's layoff the Main Liners will be at full strength at every position except quarterback. Johnny Dzitko will not be in the line up because of a shoulder injury sustained in the Army game. However, Feeney and Bill Flaherty have now mastered Olivar's type of play, and will be able to carry on.

Passing Team

The 'Cats promise to show everything they have on offense Sunday, something they did not have an opportunity to do against the Army team, and the Sailors had better be on guard for many an aerial if they want to hold the Main Liners on the ground. The same holds true for Villanova, for Sampson showed that it could pass for long yardage against both the New York Giants and Cornell. In both of these games, the Sailors were on the lower end of the score, something they do not like, and intend to change. If they do, they will know they were in a football game when it is over.

Tennis Finalists Meet This Week

The tennis tournament has finally reached a point where the finals are in sight. After a month and a half of preliminary elimination rounds, in which some fine playing was shown, there are three men left to struggle for the crown. The fact that there is an odd number of contestants necessitates a draw in which one of them will receive a bye.

The first of these three men, Austin Gavin, the sailor from California who is now representing Alumni came through according to pre-tourney predictions, brushing aside all competition. Opposing him for the championship are two other sterling players. Representing the Day Hops is John O'Hara, who reached the semifinal round by means of a forfeit by Bill Lamb, Mendel's seaman. Al Curtis, in from the fleet, is the other semi-finalist and Al will be backed by the boys of Fedigan. Al defeated Tom Boyle, O'Dwyer Hall, 6-2, 6-2.

The play-offs between these men will take place this week and the winner will be "King Tennis of Villanova."

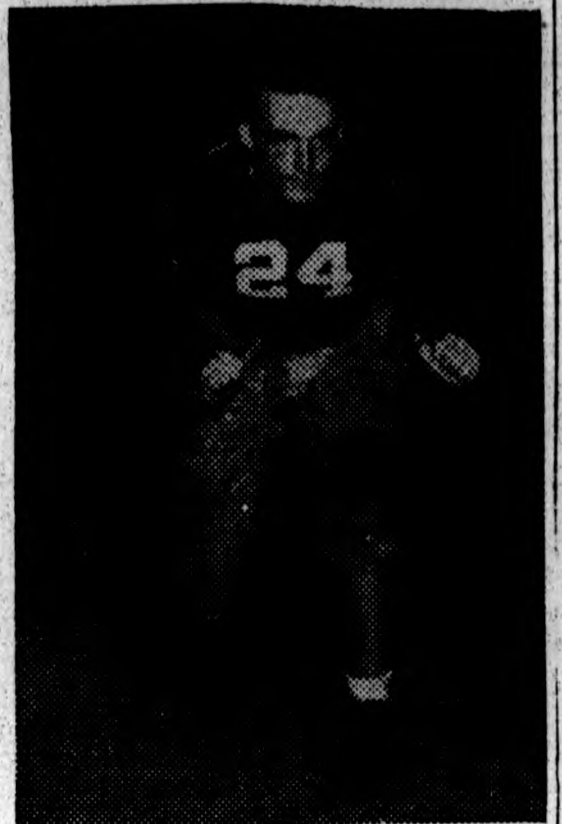
In The Sportlight

By FRANK SOLIS, A. S.

"Who is that end?" "Say he looks good." "Look at him go." These are familiar quotations heard at football practice everyday. Who is he Why he's Bruisin' Bill Sullivan and he's as Irish as his name. Football, basketball, baseball, he takes them all in his stride.

Being born February 9, 1920 at Elkins Park, he was first oriented into the way of applied study at St. James Parochial School under the tutelage of the Grey Nuns. Graduating from grammar school, he proceeded to attend Abington High. There, under the tutelage of Coach Len Snodgrass, he developed into a stellar end in his first season.



Sterling Infielder

This same year the baseball nine was honored by his membership, and with the aid of his brilliant infielding, won the suburban league title for two years straight. For his efforts on the diamond he received three more letters.

This was followed by two more successful seasons on the gridiron and the reception of two more letters. In his senior year, the Abington Bulldozers just missed winning the suburban title by dropping a tough one to Radnor High. Not restricting his athletic abilities to football, he played guard on the basketball team for two years, meriting two more athletic awards.

Played Under Stoviak

After completing his high school career, he matriculated at New York Military Academy. There his pigskin technique was greatly advanced under the guidance of Coach Ray Stoviak, who, if you recall, was on the '37 undefeated Wildcat team. Fnishing one year's "prep" work, he packed his baggage, which included three more letters, and enrolled at Villanova.

Here, continuing his sports career, he played end on the last three Villanova elevens. Wild Bill Sullivan will long be remembered in days to come for his outstanding play in the Iowa State game last year. Three minutes after the opening whistle, "Bronco" Bill snatched a fumble on the opponents' forty-two yard line to lead the way to victory. Then to make it stick, he snatched a touchdown pass to help trounce the Staters, 32-7. During the Auburn game in '41, he had a habit of upsetting the safety man before he could take a step, by smashing his way through startled enemy blockers. He repeated this feat not once but four times in the course of the game.

President of Class

To get to the other side of his life, Bill is a first half Senior in the Commerce and Finance School. Now under the jurisdiction of the Navy V-12, he is seriously considering a Naval career although he is majoring in accounting, and doing rather well. Unlike many athletes, Bill is a frequent honor student, via the midnight oil route. In his Junior year he was elected President of his class. His is one of the names that will long be remembered at Villanova.

a baleful gleam in his eye the sergeant then said, "Look, Doaks, after you stab the dummy you are supposed to be able to rush the next one. Now, (censored), try it again and this time don't let it throw you!" So Joe went back for his second attempt. This time he was a bit more cautious and succeeded in completing the course without any further mishaps. He had qualified in everything that P.I. had to offer, and now he was ready to leave.

Farwell to P. I.

The next day his platoon was marched to the Quartermaster's shed where he turned in all the battle equipment that he had been issued. Then he was issued a knapsack which was to be used to carry the articles he would need to have with him while traveling to his new post. One day before he was scheduled to leave the sergeant issued orders that all seabags would be packed and ready for shipment that day. The sergeant then called a muster and told each man the name of the station to which he was to be transferred. Our hero, Joe Doaks, was assigned to New River, N. C., where he later became attached to the Amphibious Corps.

The following morning at 0200 the platoon marched to the mess hall where they had their last meal at P.I. Two hours later as they piled in the truck that was to take them to the train station, Joe led the gang in three cheers for their "beloved" sergeant—Bronx style.

And that completes the story of the average marine's stay at "boot camp."

Intramuralist

Mental exercise, however, was not Tom's only field of endeavor, for the intramural leagues also had a claim on him as one of their most active players. Commenting on the various games Tom said, "Ours was the club liked by all the other teams, but that didn't matter too much since we played more to have fun than to win."

Questioned about the future, Tom replied that the Navy looked appealing. However, if there happens to be a flood of nautical chemical engineers, he hopes to obtain a position in a war industry.

Five Buildings Added To Campus In Recent Years

New Properties Named In Honor Of Noteworthy Augustinians And College Presidents. Campus Enlarged By 8¼ Acres

The feverish activity under way on the west boundary of the campus to make ready a new dormitory to be known as Delurey Hall for the opening of the winter term focuses attention on the fact that this building, recently acquired, completes a program which has added 5 buildings and more than 8 acres of ground to the campus.

The new buildings, with one exception, have been named for past presidents of the college.

Delurey Hall, the most recent acquisition, is named for Rev. Lawrence A. Delurey, O.S.A., 12th President of Villanova. After complete renovation it will serve as a dormitory for civilian students. It faces on Spring Mill Road immediately south of Fedigan Hall.

Fr. Delurey was born at Easton, N. Y., on May 15, 1864. He was prefect of discipline at Villanova for several years until he was made President of the College in 1895, a post that he held for fifteen years. He died at Troy, N. Y., on Dec. 21, 1922.

Middleton Hall, which is at present serving as the Navy sickbay, is on Lancaster Avenue in the southwest corner of the campus. It has been named for Rev. Thomas C. Middleton, O.S.A., 6th President of the College, who was a well-known figure on the campus for the better part of a life-time.

Fr. Middleton was born at Chestnut Hill, Pa., on March 30, 1842, of Quaker parentage. In his early youth his entire family, father, mother, and seven children, were received into the Catholic Church. After studying at Villanova, he completed his scholastic work in Italy, where he entered the Augustinian novitiate at Tolentine on Oct. 10, 1858. He was ordained in

New Award

The Alumni Association has recently announced the establishment of a new award to be given on the basis of faithful and continued service to the Alma Mater for a period of fifty years.

This honor, presented in certificate form, will be given to the "oldster" most deserving, at the commencement exercises. As yet, however, the time for this award has not been decided upon due to the fact that no recipient has been chosen.

Attention, Seniors!

You are reminded by Rev. Robert McGrath, O. S. A., Alumni Secretary, to keep the Alumni Office informed of your future whereabouts. This is especially true if you are already in the Service or anticipate being drafted soon. Those Villanovans who will not return for the next semester, whether civilian students expecting to be drafted or members of the V-12 Program, are also kindly asked to inform the Alumni Office of their service address just as soon as they have been permanently assigned.

Through the efforts of the Alumni Office and members of the VILLANOVAN staff, over 900 copies of the weekly College paper are being sent to the alumni known to be in service and stationed in this country. Postal restrictions prevent the paper from being sent overseas as second class mail. You can make this effort much easier and help to keep our Service file complete and up to date by just dropping a penny postcard to the Alumni Office, giving your rank and service address.

Library Given Collection Of Col. Lyle's Works

Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., College Librarian, recently announced that the Villanova Library has received, as a donation from the widow of the late Colonel David A. Lyle, a number of the texts, works, and official papers of this distinguished officer of the Old Army. This is the second group of books to be received from Mrs. Lyle, who gave to the school a large portion of the literary possessions of Colonel Lyle in November, 1939.

The collection is highlighted by a group of papers which contain the history of his assignments to various posts in Alaska and a group of reports which he had prepared on various subjects at official request. A number of the textbooks which he used while studying at West Point are included, as well as several of his own works. Notable among the official documents are an account of the Universal Exposition at Paris in 1881 and a report on military and life-saving material which includes an account of the world-famed Lyle gun which he designed and is still in use today.

Unusually Versatile

Colonel Lyle has been described as the typical light-hearted, brilliant, "officer gentleman." He was a graduate of both the Military Academy and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His extreme versatility is demonstrated by the fact that he was author or co-

Prof. Yavitch, Native Of Russia And Designer Of The Famed "Bazooka" Gun, Explains His Invention At A. S. M. E. Meeting

By THOMAS M. SCHUBERT, A.S.

In the course of her hundred-year history, Villanova has often played host to visiting celebrities; but few and years between have been the occasions when she has had figures of national renown as part of her regular personnel.

So it was that little notice was given to the man who arrived last July to fill the vacant post of Assistant Professor of Mechanical Engineering. Jacob Yavitch's name was little known, and his background was not investigated.

JACOB YAVITCH, M.M.E.

ASME Makes Discovery

Curiosity was aroused throughout the school last week, when notice appeared on the bulletin boards announcing that the farfamed "bazooka" gun, terrible and mysterious weapon which played so large a role in defeat of the "Desert Fox" Rommel in Africa, was a product of the inventive genius of that same Prof. Yavitch.

Those who attended the meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers in the Mendel Hall Amphitheatre last Wednesday afternoon had their curiosity more than satisfied. From the time that Prof. Yavitch began his lecture until he opened the floor for discussion, the silence was broken only in acknowledgement of his occasional flashes of humor.

In order first to fix the interest of his audience firmly on his subject, Prof. Yavitch quoted a statement made in "Firepower for Victory" by Major General Levin H. Campbell, Jr., Chief of Ordnance, U. S. Army, describing the gun as one which, carried in the hands of a soldier, can destroy any enemy tank on the battle field today. It is so simple and yet so powerful that any foot soldier using it can stand his ground with the certain knowledge that he is master of any tank which may attack him.

"During recent operations in Africa, a small but strong fort gave considerable trouble to Americans. One lone American soldier detached himself from the landing party, waded ashore, and with one shot from his weapon effected surrender of the fort. That will be known as the saga of one American soldier and his 'bazooka'."

Relates Gun's History

With this report on the effectiveness of his weapon completed, Prof. Yavitch related the history of its conception which occurred while he was employed as Associate Mechanical Engineer in the Cannon and Munition Department of the Munitions Development Division of the Chemical Warfare Service.

He described the gun as a civilian solution to a military problem. Major General Porter, Chief of Chemical Warfare Service, addressed a letter to the munitions division in February of 1942 stating that a self-propelling projectile was being experimented with at the California Institute of Technology in collaboration with the National Research Council. The problem was to design a gun to fire this projectile.

Draws Open Tube

Approaching the task, as he explained to the students, from a civilian's point of view, Prof. Yavitch reasoned that a self-propelling projectile would not depend

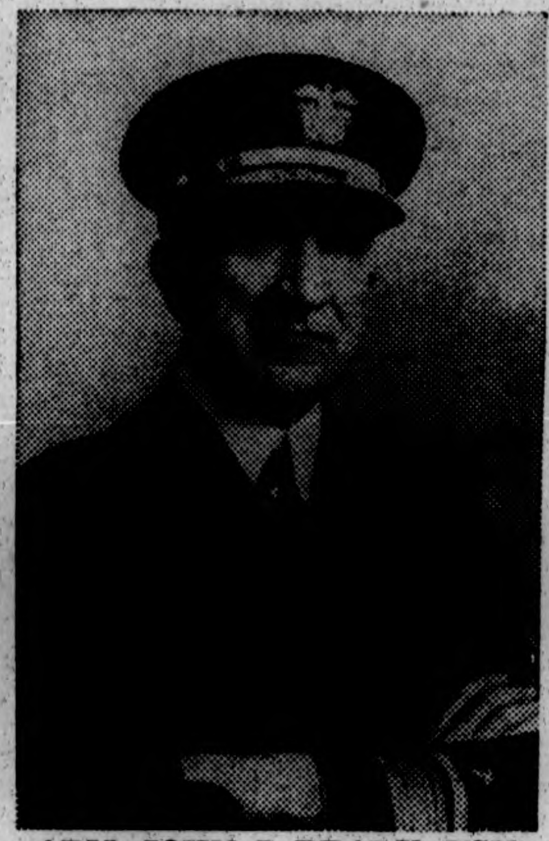
Admiral Brady To Speak At Graduation October 24

Ceremonies Will Open With Solemn High Mass In College Chapel. Several V-12 Graduates To Report Immediately To Midshipmen's Schools

Approximately 45 men, the third section of the class of 1943, will receive their diplomas on Sunday, October 24. This, the third "wartime graduation" at Villanova, will be unique in that military men will be numbered among the recipients of degrees. Approximately eight V-12 trainees will be graduated at this ceremony.



ADM. JOHN J. BRADY, USN.

A Solemn High Mass will be celebrated in the college chapel by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., with the Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., acting as Deacon, and Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., as Sub-Deacon. During the mass all graduates will receive the Blessed Sacrament, probably the last communion at Villanova for a great many of them.

Honors To Be Conferred

Rear Admiral John J. Brady, U. S. N., will be the guest speaker. Following this address, which will give the many graduates who are entering the Navy a preview of their future life, Father Stanford will award the medals and honors to the high ranking graduates.

After the graduation exercises, breakfast will be served to the graduates in the main dining hall.

Many of the V-12 trainees will report immediately to their respective Midshipmen's Schools and a number of the civilian graduates who have applied for commissions will report soon afterwards.

In addition to the graduates, some Navy men who have completed seven or eight semesters will report to Midshipmen's School. Some pre-medical students with six and pre-dental students with five complete semesters will report to their assigned medical or dental schools for advanced studies.

Replacements Planned

The Navy will send replacements for their graduated trainees November 1. Approximately one-half of the new trainees will be transfers from other colleges and universities while the other half will be men direct from high schools. As before a few fleet men will be numbered among the incoming trainees.

All the new Marine trainees will be men from the Fleet Marines, since no new men from civilian life are scheduled to enter this division of the college training program.

An effort will be made by the Navy Department to send in men from the immediate vicinity including New York, Southern New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania.

Because it is still two weeks befor graduation, any list of the men scheduled to receive degrees would be only tentative and subject to revision by the college authorities. For this reason, the names of the graduates are not published herewith.

Commissions Offered

The Office of Naval Officer Procurement has recently released an announcement stating that seniors who are within two weeks of graduating from accredited universities and colleges and are not now enlisted in any of the services may apply for appointment as commissioned officers in the Naval Reserve. Each applicant must submit a letter from the registrar or dean of the school attended, certifying that he is scheduled to graduate at a specified date.

Acceptable candidates will then be given formal application papers to be completed and returned to the Office of Naval Officer Procurement upon graduation and award of degree.

Condolences

The VILLANOVAN wishes to express sincere sympathy to James H. Merrick, A.S., on the death of his father.

Hubert Merrick, 52, of Bloomington, Ill., succumbed Thursday evening to injuries received when he was beaten by a thug in Philadelphia on October 3. He was in this vicinity with the intention of visiting his son.

At the request of the residents of Alumni Hall, Mass was said yesterday for the happy repose of his soul.

TUESDAY - - - - - - - - - OCTOBER 12, 1943

Which Road?

WITHIN two weeks, another semester will have been lost to history. For most of us, it has been just another four-month "grind." For some, however, it has been the last contact with the once carefree, now burdensome, but always enjoyable college life.

Many of the men who are to leave Villanova at the end of October will take with them the much sought-after "sheepskin"; some of these will go into officer-candidate training, while others will help the war effort by their professional work on the home front. Others, who were not advanced sufficiently far to permit their graduation under the military reserve program, will be given training which will eventually lead them to positions as commissioned officers, provided, of course, that they qualify. These men may consider their college work successful, since it was the means whereby opportunities for useful and liveable futures were opened to them.

With them another group will be leaving the campus. But it will not be bound for the same destination. It will include men who have had the opportunity to make something of themselves, and who failed at the task. They could have become officers; theirs was to have been the privilege of leading their fellow-men into the battle for the protection of our way of life. However, for one reason or another, they just didn't "make the grade."

We who are to continue here at Villanova would do well to consider the probable destinies of each of those two groups, and decide which life we would like our immediate futures to parallel.

It is our obligation to our nation to serve it in a capacity which utilizes our highest skills. We all have the inherent ability to learn, or we would not be in college. Many of us have the qualities necessary for officership, or we would not have been admitted to the reserve training programs.

If our college lives are not to be looked back on and regarded as wasted time and effort, we must apply ourselves to the limit of our capacity. It is up to each one of us to use his God-given talents to make himself fit for his respective vocation, as well as the vocation that is now common to all: that of winning the war.

Apply Now!

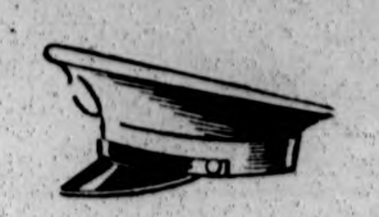
THIS is the last issue of the VILLANOVAN for the current semester. We would like to take this opportunity to thank all the members of the various staffs for the time and effort which they spent, often at great personal sacrifice, in attempting to make each edition a success.

Considering the unusual circumstances under which we labor, the cooperation has been excellent. In many cases, however, the men just haven't been able to devote to them the amount of time which their respective jobs demand.

We appeal to all who are interested in newspaper work and who expect to be here next semester to apply for positions now, so we can replace those leaving and still enlarge the staff to a point where the work can be distributed in a way which overburdens no individual.

George G. Hoberg,
Editor-in-Chief.

Camp To Campus



By PVT. JOHN BITTIG

BIGGEST news of the week comes from Quantico where nine of last semester's B. M. O. C.s are now sporting gold bars. Jim Cashin and Jim Walsh, two of Simpson's dudes; John McFadden and Bob O'Connor, O'Dwyer boys; Leo Jago, Ben Dannig, Bob Kelty, Hank Christman, ex Fedigan gigolos and Bill Craven, the lone dayhop, successfully completed their officers' training course and received their commissions in the Marine Corps last Wednesday.

Bill Kelly, an Irishman from 'way back, was teaching the King's English to illiterates at Camp Wheeler until he was transferred to Virginia Polytechnic Institute where he is now rapidly becoming an Army engineer. Bill stopped by last weekend to give some of his pals the lowdown!

Linguist

Large numbers of former 'Cats have been sent back to colleges throughout the country for specialized training in various fields. P. F. C. Edward "Archie" Gonsorosky is now studying Russian at N. Y. U. preparing for another mission to Moscow! Roy Ericson, seen on the campus Wednesday, is at present a member of the A. S. T. P. at Michigan State. Another visitor was Tom Murphy, S/2c.

Jim Brecker, U. S. M. C. R., after completing his "boot training" at "dear old P. I." was recuperating at the Blue and White Hop last Saturday night. Now stationed at New River, Jim expects to be sent to radio school at the University of Chicago in the near future. While at the Hop he had many amusing tales to tell us. One of his most interesting was his meeting an old classmate, Joe "Snuffy" DiRenza, a pharmacist mate second class, who was barking orders and administering shots to the new group of Marines. Another gyrene is Walt Wentling at present in the middle of his basic training at Parris Island.

Medics

Among the "medics" is Dave Mayland, a future surgeon's assistant now stationed at the Letterman General Hospital, and Tom Gildea, now at Frankford Arsenal awaiting to matriculate at Hahnemann.

Cpl. "Reds" Klotz, former Villanova set shot artist, was recently transferred from Camp Luna, New Mexico to Camp Crowder, Mo. Other members of the Sphas have already been stationed there and "Reds" expects to play ball with his old teammates under the tutelage of his former coach, now Lieutenant, Cy Castleman.

Tough Stuff

From a letter just received from Vince Gammache, that Armored Division at Camp Polk, La. must really be tough. After twenty-four hours on field ration "K", Vince's only comment was that "it almost bites back." Also at Camp Polk is Bob's brother, Staff Sergeant Roy Lind.

That alumni magazine of Father McGrath's is really hitting all portions of the globe. Ensign Bill Duffy, 'way up in Dutch Harbor, Alaska, has written saying that he had just received the May issue.

Captain Walt Alessandroni, USMCR, ex-VILLANOVAN staff member and former secretary to Philadelphia's Mayor Samuel, was seen at the Army-Villanova game. Captain Alessandroni is working with the Navy Department in the placing of the Marines in the various V-12 units.

Joke (?)

From Alabama Polytechnic comes: One soldier to another: "How is a Japanese soldier like a girdle?"

Other soldier: "I don't know, how?"

First soldier: "They both slip up on you and it takes a yank to get them down."

Captain of Villanova's '40 basketball team, Duke Duzminski, may soon be opposing his alma mater on the court. Not as a player but as coach of Sampson Naval Training Station's tentative five. Ray Kodish, of last year's basketball team is stationed at Camp Rucker, Alabama, doing lots of K. P.

One of the Army Reservists, who left school last February, Pfc. Dave Blake is studying aerial gunnery at Sheppard Field, Texas. Dave's cousin, Joe Coffee, shortstop on Villanova's '41 baseball team is stationed at Paterson, New Jersey in an anti-aircraft battalion. Awaiting transfer as an aviation cadet after spending two months in the tank division is Bob White at Camp Chaffee, Arkansas.

Watch Your Step

Villanova has her representatives among the MP's too. Private Pete Desmond has already completed his training while Corporal Bill Fenton is in an MP battalion at Camp Knight.

Soon to become Villanova alumni and Marine officer candidates are Bob Gretz, Jim Cahill, and John Sutton. The trio received their orders to report to Parris Island tomorrow to begin their "boot" training. Good luck, fellows!

'CAT TALES

By BILL
BOYLE

ONE week ago the main topic of conversation about the campus was the success of the Blue and White Hop. As a result the enjoyable afternoon spent by a number of the boys at Immaculata's Tea Dance was completely overlooked. Those fellows who journeyed to the Immaculata campus on the outskirts of Paoli really had a delightful time. Although out-numbered three-to-one by the gang from St. Joe's, Villanova held the upper hand throughout the entire afternoon.

Special notice must at this time be given to Kev McChesney, a first semester freshman. This dapper lad made very noticeable progress with one Audrey who the majority of the boys considered the "belle of the ball." Kev's side-kick, Lou Slater, did alright for himself too. Did you notice Kev at the Sampson game? Well that cutie on his arm was Audrey!

GRAVY:

This tea dance was a true success. All received a hearty welcome and were made to feel right at home. Came four o'clock and a trek to the Sweet Shop where refreshments were served in true Villanova style . . . meaning of course a cafeteria and a slight wait in line. Following this little snack, which really hit the spot, the dance was continued.

Bernie Borschke and the Maguire brothers arrived at the affair a trifle late. This didn't stop them, however, for they carried on in the usual gob fashion.

Herb Lamb and Bea seemed to be having a merry time. They wound up the day by taking in the Blue and White Hop together that night.

The girls, the majority of whom were freshmen, were prettier than had been hoped for; which is saying quite a bit! Really fellows, this might be termed a "happy hunting ground!"

NAVY:

My boy friend joined the Navy
And he loves it, how he raves!
Not because he's patriotic,
But because he loves the WAVES.

It has been noticed that a few of the fellows from the "fleet" have been frequenting the Benedict Club of late. Doug Kelly and Al Curtis are just two of the boys to whom we are referring. From all reports these two are suckers if they don't continue!

Thursday evening is the one night Doc Brennan dreads. While he sits in Fedigan Hall eating his heart out, his lady friend enjoys herself at the dances sponsored by the Student Nurses at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Can you stand another? — —
The dog stood on the burning deck,
The dog was nearly frantic.
He hadn't seen a tree in weeks
Upon the blue Atlantic.

NO DICE:

Lou Silva dropped over to New Jersey last week with a big date in mind. After building his hopes sky-high, la femme turned out to be an ardent admirer of Frank Sinatra; one who devoted the entire evening to a critical bull session on her mellow voiced idol. Too bad Lou, better luck next time!

Imagine Billy Barker's surprise when he went over to Rosemont to pick up his dinner date only to discover that the gal had invited five of her friends to come along. Wow! My heart bleeds for you, bud!

How did Chestnut Hill's tea dance turn out? Ask the freshmen; most of them had the "time of their life."

ADVICE:

Membership Drive Extended By D.P.E.

The drive for new members for the Delta Pi Epsilon Fraternity will be extended another week. John Fitzgibbons, President of the business man's fraternity, has announced that application blanks will be distributed during the coming week.

The drive is being conducted by the newly elected Treasurer, Edward Gallagher, and Vice President, John Reddy.

Trainees Attempt Revision of Texts On Naval Phrases

Just a few weeks ago, while attending the Naval Organization class, each sailor and marine was given a copy of "Naval Phraseology" with instructions to learn and use the matter therein. Apparently all concerned went at this task with a zest and zeal for, on the test given to them last Monday, they did excellently. In fact, they didn't limit their definitions to what they had learned, but even added a few flourishes of their own. Lieutenant August liked some of their answers so well that he decided to keep 44 of them here this weekend.

Here are some of the definitions which appeared on the tests: The boys claim the Beam of a ship is a pole to hold up the sails and the center part of a ship and is usually the mainmast. According to Naval regulations, however, it is the broadest, usually the central, portion of a vessel.

A Fogy, says Naval regulations, is an increase in pay due to the length of service without increase in rank. The trainees claim that it is an intoxicating drink, an old sailor, a term used to designate a stormy day, a thing used to keep article watertight, a light rope, money, a night filled with fog, or a person in charge of a detail.

Ground Tackle, the Navy says, is a term used to cover all of the anchor gear. But after all, who believes the Navy? ? Around here it is the canvas used to cover the gear of a ship, the one that hits the bottom while fishing, and a reckoning of the depth of the water.

The .Leeward .Side, to quote "Naval Phraseology" "is the direction or side away from the wind." The students believe that it is that side which is in the shade, the port side, the side of a ship toward which the ship isn't blowing, the side toward which the ship isn't progressing, the windward side. Thus, as you can see, they will probably someday misinterpret the command to go to the leeward as the one to "disperse."

A Binnacle is supposed to be the stand which holds the magnetic compass. Some students had this confused with barnacle for they called the binnacle a form of crust that forms on an object that has been in the water a long time; some others called it a compass, the place where the log book is kept, the foremost part of a ship and a covering for hatches.

Naval regulations state that Keel - Hauling is a verbal reprimand. But the students say it means scraping barnacles from the bottom of a ship, a verbal retraction of a statement, the navigation of a ship through shallow water to that its keel is just above the bottom, the act of righting a wrong, cleaning the keel, being fussed at by an officer, a term applied to a quick turn of the ship, pulling the boat in so that it rests on its anchor. (Yes, we think that last one was meant in all sincerity.)

According to ye olde Naval regulations, a Gunwhale in the rail or edge of a boat. However, some of the students claim it is the armor around a gun, an object on a ship used for whaling, a cut-out on the side of the deck in which a gun is placed, and various and sundry other items which belong on shipboard—but do not pertain to gunwhales.

A Fathom has been defined as six feet. According to many of Villanova's "old salts," how ever, some of its values are 14½, 16, 40, and even 80 feet.

It looks as though the boys still need quite a bit of time to get rid of those "landlubber" ideas! ! !

"Great steaming, shouting mass of stone—
Huge giant of brick," I said,
"Do you believe that you're a god
When with cold iron you're fed?"

When you consume that raw black ore
And roar out your commands,
Do you then hold yourself on high
Since man so little stands?

And when steel rolls as does a stream
And cascades down below,
Do you think then that you are king
Of all the things that grow?

Or does it seem, from up above,
Your fires alone create
All of those things that "little men"
Ridiculously call "state?"

If so, you're wrong, for not from steel
Are nations built and made;
Not from your roaring, belching mills
Are great foundations laid—

But from the faith in hearts of men,
And things from up above.
On these we build and laugh and sing;
On these we live and love.

FACULTY COMMENTS

Were You There Last Night?

By Fr. GRIMES

The Mission is now in its second day. You who read these lines-were you present at the opening exercises, last evening? Will you be in attendance tonight? Is your excuse the same as that given by one student: "I'm terribly busy, Father. We have 'exams' next week and I have so much back work to catch up in that I can't possibly spare the time." Consider, Men, what this implies. Such an excuse proclaims that you are too busy to pray. It means that you are passing up an opportunity of prime importance: you are neglecting your personal sanctification.

Extremes

Student life today has necessarily been altered by the exigencies of the times. But like all radical changes there is that period of extremes. College life today is witnessing just such a period. Acceleration has invaded campus life. The tempo has brought on a feverishness and the student without the proper moral foundations is suffering from it. The accumulation and concentration of assignments in the minds of many students has tended to emphasize the importance of material things. It is natural that something gives. In many cases the spiritual life of the student suffers: I am too busy to pray.

Closer To God

It is with a view to bringing a more proper balance into your student life that Villanova has inaugurated the semester Mission. It is Villanova's hope that these spiritual exercises will keep you from being drawn into the vortex that has been created by this new tempo. By faithfully attending the Mission you will be coming closer to God; and union with your Creator will bring into your life the peace and tranquility so necessary if a proper perspective of life to to be maintained.

Chapel—It's Importance

Just as important as your presence in the classroom for studies, or in the gymnasium for physical training is your attendance at Chapel. The Chapel fulfills a very definite need in your life. It is here that you will get to know the value of prayer. The interior grace and the courage needed to maintain a perfect balance in the midst of so much uncertainty can come only from prayer. Take advantage of the opportunity offered you during the next few days for greater prayer and greater faith. Of just such opportunities does Father Henry Senft the Catholic Chaplain in Fort Wadsworth, New York refer to in the following verse which appeared in the August issue of the Catholic Digest.

Praise The Lord And Heed This Admonition

Pray now. Don't wait until you are on the operating table or in a foxhole.

Attend Mass. Its better to be sleepy in Chapel than fast asleep in the barracks.

Remain Pure. You can't expect to get to heaven by raising hell.

Learn the Act of Contrition. It's more useful than learning the words of the latest song hit.

Confess often. Bullets and bombs and shrapnel don't give a tinker's damn if you're not ready to meet God.

Examine your conscience every night. That's one policing detail you should never try to goldbrick.

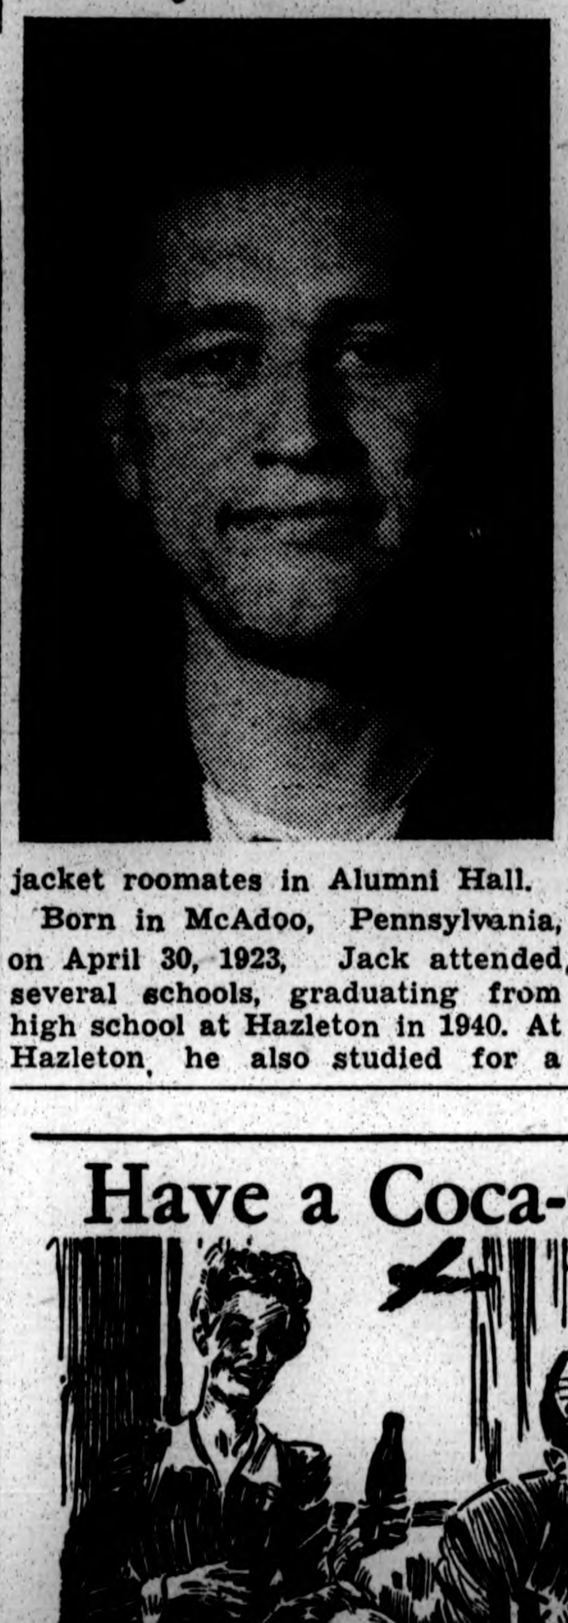
Read your Bible. It's both G I and Catholic. Don't postpone it till you are on a raft with Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker.

Tell it to the Chaplain. He's just your parish priest in uniform.

Meet The Boys: Presenting Two "Johns" Who Came to College, BothBoys in Search of Medical Knowledge;

By PVT. LARRY BRADLEY

MUNCHING on an apple and resting his feet on his book laden desk, Apprentice Seaman John M. Koval unfolded the history of his past to your reporter, despite the heckling of his blue-jacket roomates in Alumni Hall.



Born in McAdoo, Pennsylvania, on April 30, 1923, Jack attended several schools, graduating from high school at Hazleton in 1940. At Hazleton, he also studied for a year in the Penn State undergraduate school.

Matriculating at Villanova in 1941, Jack played guard on the 150-pound football squad, played intramural baseball and softball, and was active in such clubs as the Sanctuary Society, the German Club, and the Science Research Seminar. During his freshman year he was also a sports writer for the VILLANOVAN

Although his studies as a V-12 trainee are intensive and occupy much of his time, he still finds time to pursue an interest named Maureen in Hazleton.

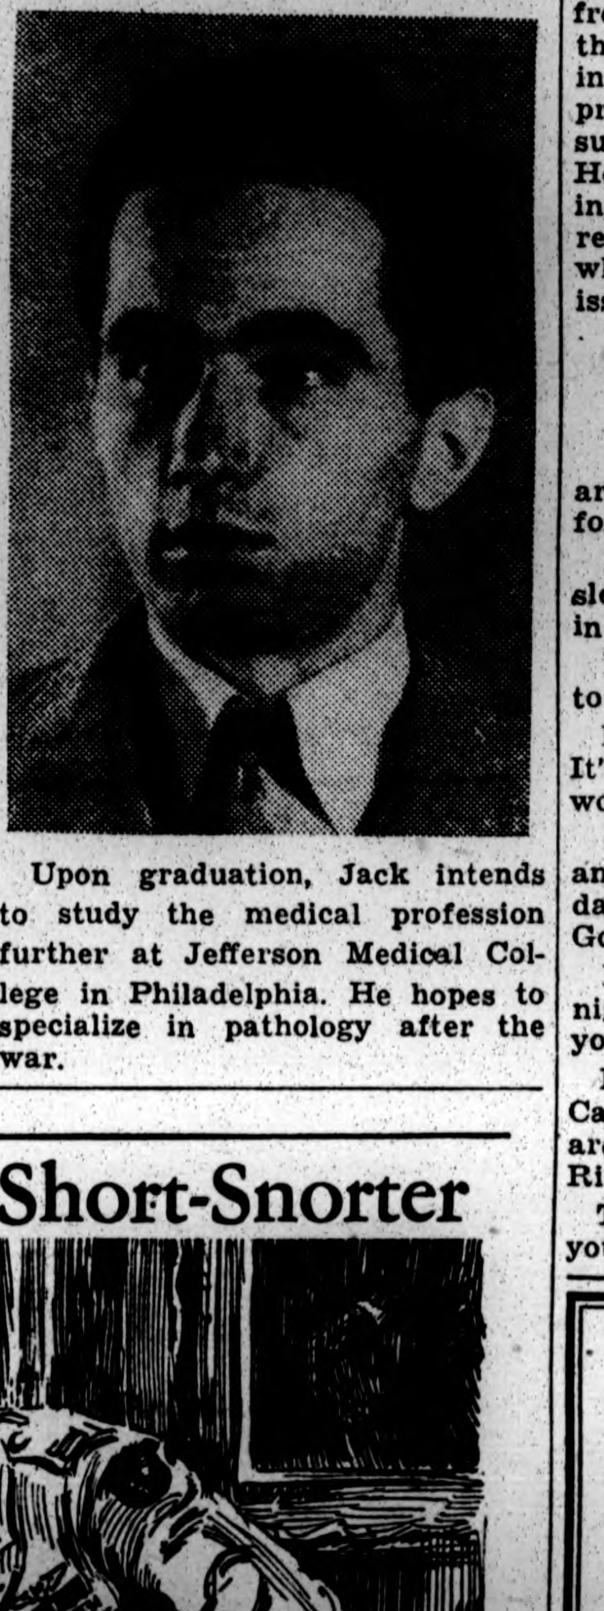
L. K. D. Man

At Villanova he participated in the tennis tournament, was a member of the German Club and the science fraternity, Lambda Kappa Delta.

BEING born on Friday the thirteenth of August, 1923, has not brought the proverbial bad luck to John Surmont, who graduates from Villanova this month.

Born in Newark, New Jersey, on the aforesaid date, Jack moved to Nutley, New Jersey, at the age of six. One day his parents decided he should start going to school, so Jack ran down to the barber shop and got a shave, then proceeded to kindergarten.

He attended grammar and high school in Nutley, where he played basketball. Graduating from high school in 1940, he decided to attend one of the eastern universities. All the big colleges drew straws, and Villanova lost, so here he came.



Upon graduation, Jack intends to study the medical profession further at Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia. He hopes to specialize in pathology after the war.

Have a Coca-Cola = Welcome, Short-Snorter

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called "Coke".

When short-snorters (trans-ocean flyers) meet and compare their autographed dollar bills, the invitation Have a "Coke" is fairly sure to follow. At home and abroad Coca-Cola has become a symbol of those who see things in a friendly light.

September, 1864, and returned to the United States the following year. He was stationed at Villanova for most of his priestly years and was President of the College from 1876 to 1878.

Fr. Middleton prepared the sketch of Villanova which was published in 1893 on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the College. He was one of the organizers and the first President of the American Catholic Historical Society from 1884 to 1890. Fr. Middleton died at Villanova on Nov. 19, 1923.

O'Dwyer Hall, immediately east of Middleton Hall, already is serving as a dormitory for civilian students. It is named for Rev. John P. O'Dwyer, O.S.A., the 1st President of Villanova.

Next to O'Dwyer Hall is Simpson Hall, named for the donor, Mr. William Simpson, who is at present a trustee of the College. This building likewise serves as a dormitory for civilian students.

Galberry Hall, named after the 5th President of the College, Rev. Thomas Galberry, O.S.A., is located on the east boundary of the campus adjacent to the stadium. At the present time this building is under lease and therefore is not available for college use.

Fr. Galberry served as President of the College from 1872 to 1876. Early in the year 1875 he was appointed Bishop of Hartford, Conn., the 4th Bishop of that See, and was consecrated in 1876. Less than three years later, Fr. Galberry died suddenly in New York City while on his way to visit Villanova.

author of approximately eighty-three works, which include a wide variety of professional, ornithological and geological subjects. He has edited and contributed to both dictionaries and encyclopaedias. He served as Assistant Professor of Natural and Experimental Philosophy at the Military Academy. His biographer describes him as "soldier and scholar, metallurgist, inventor, etmyologist, and explorer." Indeed, there is practically no field of higher learning with which he was not associated.

Besides his many accomplishments in the realm of civilian endeavor, Colonel Lyle was well known and respected for his military prowess until his retirement in 1909 at the age of sixty-four. He died at St. Davids, Pa., in 1937 after a 92-year life of almost unbelievable variety, activity, and usefulness.

Colonel Lyle was an ardent Catholic, having been converted to the faith early in his life.

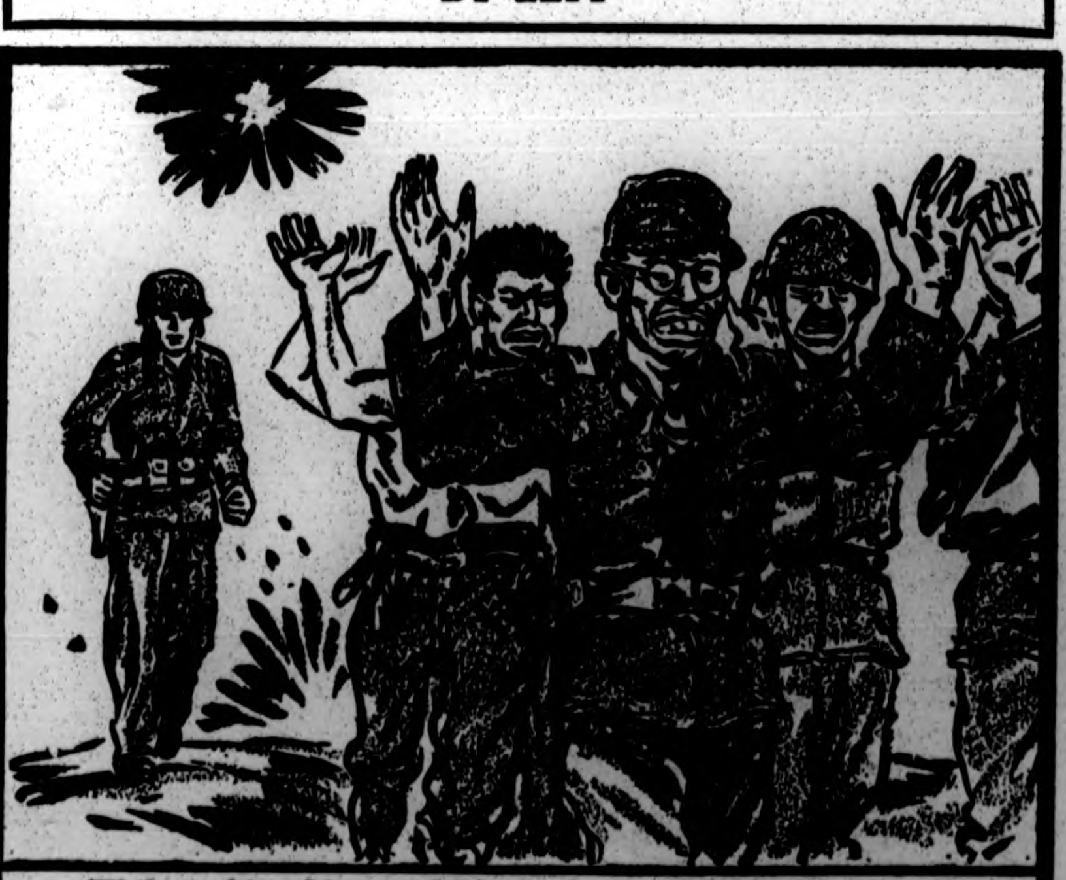
AMERICAN HEROES

BY LEFF



While making his way back to the hospital—he was a walking hospital case—Master Gunnery Sergeant James G. Blalock spotted a group of Japs in the underbrush. Drawing his pistol, he entered the thicket and came out with nine Jap prisoners.

Marine Sergeant Blalock now wears the Silver Star, awarded him for conspicuous gallantry in that Solomon Islands action. He can be proud of such a record. Can you be equally proud of your Bond buying record during the Third War Loan?

on a powerful initial explosion for its effective velocity, and therefore would need no breech lock to confine the expanding gases. He drew an open tube.

The projectile had a tail designed to stabilize its flight, and therefore the barrel of the gun would not be subject of the tremendous wear which comes from the rifling action necessary to give most shells direction. The barrel wall of the new gun need only be very thin, about three-sixteenths of an inch.

Yavitch put a battery on the side of the tube to set off the charge in the self-propelling shell, designed the tube like a telescope so that it could be pointed in any direction, and his job was finished. Or had it just begun?

Hard To Convince

Army officials were incredulous. A simple tube like this to fire so powerful a projectile? The recoil would knock any soldier flat on his back.

"The nice thing about the recoil in this gun," explained the designer, "is the same thing that is nice about carrots in chicken salad. There is none."

Unable to believe in a gun without a recoil, superiors contemptuously dubbed it "Yavitch's Telescope" and gave it no more thought. In April, the long-heralded shell arrived, and no gun but the lowly "telescope" was ready to greet it.

Test Proves Successful

Before a skeptical audience of high ranking officials the gun was set up at the testing grounds at Edgewood Arsenal, 10 miles from Aberdeen Proving Grounds in Maryland. The charge was ignited, the shell screamed forth with the peculiar hissing noise that has since terrified so many Germans and "Yavitch's Telescope" stood firm. There was no recoil.

From there on, Prof. Yavitch knows little more of the history of his telescope than the average civilian. He left soon afterwards, and heard nothing of the gun until he recognized in the "bazooka" gun which attained such fame the weapon which he had designed at Edgewood.

Diminutive in stature, dynamic of nature, the professor has a history almost as interesting as that of his powerful invention. Born in Russian town of Vitebsk, he attended classical high school at Saratov von Volga, near the now-storied city of Stalingrad. Later he travelled to Ctcherineburg, capital of the Ural Mountains, to attend the Institute of Mining Engineering; but after about a year and a half, he crossed the ocean and resumed his studies at Cornell University.

Experienced In Industry

Following graduation with a degree in Mechanical Engineering in 1928, he worked for some of the largest corporations in the country, including: Westinghouse, General Electric, American Locomotive, Baldwin Locomotive, General Motors, and Grumman Aircraft Co. In 1933 he took time out from this activity to return to Cornell and earn a masters degree in Mechanical Engineering, majoring in the Mathematical Theory of Lubrication.

An unusual type of professor indeed is this man who has seen so much of the industrial world.

A ONE-MINUTE QUIZ

ON YOUR LONG DISTANCE CALLING

1. Do you keep all Long Distance calls as BRIEF as possible?

2. Do you make only NECESSARY Long Distance calls?

3. When you use Long Distance, do you give the operator the NUMBER of the distant telephone, if you can?

4. Do you avoid calling between the hours 7 to 10 P.M. so that Service Men can call home?

If you can answer "yes" to these four questions, you rate an A+ for helping to keep lines clear for vital war calls.

Lakehurst Eleven Inexperienced But Should Be Tough

Blimps Coached By Lieut. Comd. "Mal" Elward Former Purdue Coach; No "Name" Players

By BOB BOLGER

Villanova will wind up its home stay at Shibe Park on Saturday night, October 23 when it engages the Lakehurst Naval Air Station eleven.

The "Blimps" are coached by Lt. Comdr. A. H. "Mal" Elward. Before entering the Naval Service, Elward was head coach in Big Ten Conference at Purdue University from 1937-1942, and served there as assistant coach from 1927-1937. Previously, he was head coach at Grinnell College in Iowa and John Carroll College in Cleveland.

Rockne's Teammate

From 1912-16, he played college football as an end at Notre Dame University. He and the immortal Knute Rockne were teammates on the 1913 squad. He began coaching in 1916 at Danvers, Mass. High School, but in 1917 entered the Navy as a seaman second class. He played on, and coached teams at Hampton Roads, Va., for four years while a naval aviator in World War I, and his eleven won all of a 14-game schedule. In 1921 as a full lieutenant he left the service and went to Grinnell College as football and basketball coach.

Only Pro

Elward's only 1943 assistant is Ensign Robert J. Tichenal, former center at San Jose College who has been playing pro-ball for the Washington Redskins for the last three years. A slight back ailment has temporarily ended his playing career.

Gone to other lighter-than-air or to sea assignments are most of the officers, cadets, and enlisted men of the 1942 squad that lost its first three games, then won or tied five in succession before losing the finale to Duquesne University, 13-0.

Elward's best prospects are as follows: Hugh Lapham, a Marine paratrooper who is at Lakehurst training as a parachute rigger before returning to duty as a "trooper." He is a fullback who played high school football at Los Angeles, Calif., and two years of minor league baseball. Lapham is a cool and splendid passer, and a hard running back.

Bert Luther who played on the 1939 N. Y. U. freshman squad will hold down one of the end positions along with "Buck" Beasley who was on the U. of Nebraska freshman team and the Naval Air Station squad at Jacksonville, Fla. The rest of the line is bolstered by strong Navy and Marine personnel.

The Blimps opened their curtailed schedule by dropping a 13-0 decision to Muhlenberg.

The next game saw them really hit their stride when they journeyed to West Point and trounced the Army Plebes.

Though their opener was not favorable the Blimps will be a tough game for the Wildcats when they meet.

Sampsom NTS Hands Wildcats Second Straight Defeat, 17-7

By JOE DALY, A.S.

Sampson's star-laden team was just too much for the Wildcats Sunday afternoon, Oct. 10, as the Sailors rolled up a 17-7 score against Jordan Olivar's boys. It was Andy Stopper, former wearer of the blue and white for Villanova who returned to Shibe Park to take the spotlight again. Although Andy didn't reach pay dirt, it was his passing and running that set up every Sampson score; the Main Liners just couldn't stop this scrappy sailor in any period.

Sampson got away to an early lead as the first quarter was drawing to a close. After making a valiant goal line stand, Villanova found itself in trouble again. The Sailors taking John Siano's kick on the mid-field stripe, marched all the way to the four yard line on aerials from Stopper to Mehelick and Tarrante, coupled with Principe's ground gains. Villanova once again stiffened and held for three attempted line bucks.

Schleick Kicks Point

With fourth down coming up Woitkoski elected to give Principe, a hard charging fullback, formerly with the Fordam Rams and the New York Giants, another chance at the line. The big fullback just got across the goal line for a touchdown before the whole Villanova forward wall turned him back. Schleick added the placement, his eighth consecutive conversion of the season.

Scoring Opportunity

The greater part of the play in the second period was spent between the thirty yard lines. Villanova had one scoring opportunity but was unable to take advantage of it. Kasulin got away a beautiful kick on third down from his own forty-two yard line. The ball cleared the safety man's head, and went some sixty-nine yards to Sampson's four yard line where it was protected by Billy Sullivan and Milt Anderson. Stopper punted on third down after two running plays were unsuccessful.

Joe Koproski, who filled in capably for the injured Johnny Dzitko at quarter, gathered in the punt, and raced all the way to the Sampson thirty-five yard line behind some beautiful downfield blocking. Kasulin went off tackle for five yards as he took the ball from Postus on a spinner. On the next play Postus fading back to pass was smothered by right end Tarrante for an eighteen yard loss. Strengthened by this set back the Sailors held on to their lead as the first half came to an end with the Wildcats behind, 7-0.

Blue and White Renews Old Rivalry In Bucknell Game

Thundering Herd Fortified By V-12 Trainees From Manhattan, Temple, And Pitt; Hubka, Owl Passing Ace Of Last Year On Squad

By HUGH O'REILLY, A.S.

Saturday, Oct. 16, the "Thundering Herd" of Bucknell once again invades Villanova territory to continue its intermittent gridiron series with the Wildcat institution. Although, as yet, the Bison have scored but one victory against two setbacks, they will come up against Villanova at full strength and with the desire to continue their domination in this football series between the two Pennsylvania teams. This intercollegiate feud, formerly one of the best in the East, has not been active for the last few years. Starting way back in the time when football was still in its infancy, the Bison have waged gridiron battles with the Main Line school in seventeen various seasons during which time they amassed an impressive total of ten wins to Villanova's five, two ending in ties.

Outplay Mules

By reason of the three games which they have already played, the Bisons are in no way a fresh untried team. This, for one reason, should make them tough. Hitting a highly touted Cornell team, they bowed in defeat only after waging a hard fought battle to the very end. Again they had poor luck against a strong Penn State outfit losing in the closing minutes of the game. Comparatively, the Bucknell squad may be regarded by noting that their victory was over a team which the Wildcats have already conquered, Muhlenberg. Playing a heads up game, the Herd outplayed the Mules in every phase of the game, scoring a convincing victory.

Holdovers Galore

Boasting a large variety of talented players from many colleges in this and nearby states, plus ten fine holdovers from the Bison squad of '42, the "Thundering Herd" has the nucleus of an outstanding football aggregation. At Bucknell, as here at Villanova, has been established a Navy V-12 Unit. To this school has come men of football fame from such institutions as Temple, Manhattan, Hampden-Sydney, Kansas State, Pitt, Scranton U. and others, that they might be trained in the various factors necessary in waging a successful war. In this wealth of material are the names of many fine players known to the followers of the gridiron sport.

Fullbacks Three Deep

In the matter of backs, there may be found many football-wise men. Prominent in this new Bison aggregation will be the name of Elting (Red) Johnson, prolific scorer of last year's eleven. In the '42 season, Red emerged as the team's

Touchdown Play, Postus To Sullivan, Perfect Choice

Well, the Sampson game turned out much as the coaches expected with bruising line smashes and timely accurate passes carrying the Sailors to victory. Yet, despite the defeat, there were many bright spots to ponder over as well as many weaknesses to correct before the Bucknell tussle Saturday evening.

One of the most heartening sights to see throughout the game was the playing of Joe Koproski, replacing the injured Johnny Dzitko at quarterback. The position was new to Joe, but nevertheless, he performed his duties like a veteran. It was he who dropped the otherwise unstoppable Stopper on the two yard line with a vicious tackle around Andy's midsection to highlight that first goal line stand. It was Koproski also who was stopping those pass receivers for no gain on the quick flat passes to our left flank.

End Play Exceptional

The whole line is to be commended for its fine work on the goal line despite the Sampson touchdown. They showed that they do have the ability to crash in and hold opponents to a minimum gain when the chips are down. Max Chepenuk, in his first starting assignment, was particularly outstanding with Gene Konopka, John Siano, Joe McCarthy, Bill Donnelly and Bob Nealon also turning in fine performances.

Throughout the season our end play has been all that could be desired, and Sunday was no exception. Bill Sullivan, Milt Anderson, and Val Jansante all lived up to the high standard they set in previous games.

Choice Of Plays

The touchdown play from Al Postus to Bill Sullivan was a gem of perfection not so much in its execution but in its choice. Many Monday morning quarterbacks would have howled in derision had the pass been knocked down or incomplete. However, Al, playing sixty minutes, and calling the plays for the first time, knew that on the three previous plays, Woitkoski the only defender on his side of Sampson's backfield, was edging in too close in trying to stop our bucks. As a result it was easy for Sully to beat Woitkoski to an open space across the goal line and receive Al's pass. Postus chose his plays remarkably well during the entire game although our score did not reflect it.

Sitarsky In Crowd

Our biggest weakness of course, was Andy Stopper. Andy bucked and passed better than he ever did

Alumni Sets Torrid Pace In Touch Football League

Mendel Ties Medics 6-6 To Blot Pre-Meds Undefeated Record; Fedigan Third In Servicemen's Circuit

By FRANK SOLIS, A.S.

Many a fast and furious battle marked the opening of the Intramural Touch Football League. The Medics from Alumni came out of the melee in first place with Mendel, two games behind, perched in second with the Marines and Fedigan battling it out for the lower berths. Alumni has been going great guns this past week, and unless stopped, will certainly be league champs. They have a smooth operating team. John Ramsey is the master of deception, and his tricky plays plus George Shammo's running ability has turned the tide in many of the contests. The team is also well supported in blocking with tackles such as Ben Paradee and Jack Koval. Mendel, the runner-up, actually has three teams, one from each deck, and none of them can be taken too lightly. With men like Jack McManus from the second deck, Borschke from the third, Koness and Dwyer from the fourth, it can be seen how they can afford to use three teams.

Shammo Intercepts

The tournament started off with a bang on Monday night. The Mendelites dropped a close one to the Marines 6-0. The teams ping-ponged up and down the field with the Engineers threatening several times through passing attacks. The game was so close that once John McManus was tagged with an inch to go for a touchdown. O'Sullivan scored for the Marines when a beautiful block by Donahue opened his way through center. On the same night the pill-rollers from Alumni beat out Fedigan 12-0. Moser snatched one pitched by Jack Ramsey over the goal to tally. George Shammo intercepted a long pass by Lewin of Fedigan to rack up the other goal.

Pulls a Merriwell

The next night the Medics fought out a fierce one with the Mendel to pull down a 6-6 draw. It was a fiercely fought game all the way with both teams getting desperate towards the end, as was evidenced by Alumni's first down kick in the later quarters of the game. The teams surged back and forth until with three minutes to play, Joe Dwyer of Mendel faded back and let fly a long one. It spiraled beautifully and landed smack in the center of a compact group of would-be receivers and interceptors. Coming to rest in the bosom of Joe Costello, a Mendelite, he toted it five yards for a touchdown. Then the improbable happened. "Hank" Jablonski of Alumni, hooked on to the kick-off with the effective interference of Ramsey and another teammate roared straight up the field to score the tying touchdown. The Mendelites tried courageously to regain their short lived lead but the clock ticked off the last seconds and the score was still 6-6.

Sailors Win

On the adjoining gridiron, the Fedigan Jackets enjoyed a field day, rolling over the Marines 20-0. The Sailors were bottled up on the running plays but finally opened up with an all-out passing attack to run up the three tallies. Dutch McCarthy did most of the work on the passing end. The touchback was scored when Dick Ryan smashed his way through the line to nail the unsuspecting Austinite behind the goal line. Tom O'Connell and Bill Bross, both of the Marines, intercepted passes but were caught before any headway could be made.

Odd Play

Wednesday night, the Mendelites topped Fedigan 12-0. After passing up the field, Borschke threw a short pass in the end zone to Gillespie for the score in the early quarters. Later on in the game, Formaini tossed a long one to Belletti which was called out of bounds over the goal line. On the next down, this play was unexpectedly repeated and brought the final score to 12-0. The same night the Alumnites beat out the Marines 12-0. George Shammo scored the first touchdown by intercepting a pass tossed by Carrone of the Marnes. The Leathernecks then tied the score when Jack Fetting retaliated by snatching the pigskin thrown by Moser. Not discouraged the Medics worked their way downfield to the one yard line, high scorer. He will be counted upon this season to duplicate his fine record, and perhaps even to surpass his previous mark. Alternating at this fullback position will be two other veteran Herdsmen, power-geared Ray Tyler and Carol Murray, men of equal ability.

Temple Star

From another old rival of the Wildcats, comes a great passer and runner, the freshman star of Temple's team, Gene Hubka. Hubka will be remembered by Villanova rooters for his beautiful passing and running in last season's struggle with the Templars. Because of the tricks of fate imposed by the V-12 program, Hubka will once again play against the Wildcats but this time his roaming will be with the Bison of Bucknell. This astute field general may be shifted to the left halfback position to exploit more fully his capabilities as a runner and passer. Alternate on the team will be wingback Lou Buckwalter, another Temple transfer who generates a lot of power in his 180 pounds.

Manhattan Captain

In Jim Worst, stellar end and and captain-elect of Manhattan's squad, may be found a new and capable quarterback. He together with Joe Brody, end on the Pitt eleven of last season, are to be converted to backs for this football year. In the game with the Mules, a brilliant back was discovered in Richard Hoffman, a Marine trainee formerly of Indiana (Pa.) State Teachers College. It was he who scored all the points amassed by the Herd in that game. Rounding out this impressive array of backs will be George Lefkandinos, a big, able player from Panzer College who will vie with the others for a halfback slot.

Co-Captains Tough

Upon their forward wall, the Bisons will be more than strong for there they have both co-captains, each player noted for his brilliant heads up play. Sure to fill one of the tackle berths will be the one ca-captain Walt Szot, a rugged shrewd played who may be compared favorably with the best in the East. Sharing honors as captain, and equally as brilliant at his own position will be Gene Matthews, who for his fine playing has been called on opportunistic end. Filling the other wing position is another Temple player, Bill Johnson.

In Andy Murphy, 200 lbs. of power from Manhattan, and long drawn out John Hewson, 6 ft. 6 in., formerly of Muhlenberg, may be found two other ends equally able to take care of these flank positions. Abetting Szot at his tackle post will be one of a choice of volunteers, Henry Furio performed with pride on the Jasper's squad last season. At the other tackle slot will be Jerome Schwarz, dynamic Alfred College representative and Sal Ciocotelli, powerman from the University of Scranton.

Calcagno Pivot

With Felix Christoforo, a veteran Bison player, nominated for one of the guard posts, the struggle for the other spot resolves around thre players; Ken Schuster, Hampden-Sydney ace lineman has the nod for the present; John Wrago, Scranton player and the Herd's own veteran Bill Bontempi stand as the alternates. The pivot spot seems to be all sewed up by Pete Calcagno, a valued contribution from Panzer College. The only summation that could be made on this wealth of material would be to say that Bucknell is definitely a team to be reckoned with.

Superb Athlete

In an observation of the football setup at the Bison school, there is noted a peculiar parallelism between it and the situation here at Villanova. There, as here, a Navy V-12 Unit which has provided unlooked-for ability in the way of players, has been established. There they are beginning the season with a new football coach, Johnny Sitarsky; the Wildcats are giving Jordan Olivar his initiation in college coaching circles. In Johnny Sitarsky the Bisons have an alumnus who made athletic history at Bucknell, being one of the few four letter men in its sports annals and the last individual captain of gridiron teams. In Olivar, the Wildcats welcome back one of the greatest tackles in Villanova football, termed by Clipper Smith as his most brilliant pupil. Remembrance of these facts, and those about the team and their standing in the series of struggles between the Bison and the Wildcat shows a clear picture of a game which should prove to be one of the best of this season.

Joe McCarthy Noted For Downfield Blocking Ability; Jim Harkins Sparked Team To '42 Win Over Manhattan

THIS week the Sportlight shines on two great tackles who have somehow never gotten much publicity.

The first of these tackles is Joe McCarthy and while there may be a better tackle in the East than he Wildcat fans would certainly hoot the assertion. This handsome 6 ft. 2 in. lad packs a lot of speed and power in his 190 lb. frame. Mac is gifted with what is known as football's sixth sense. He does a good job of analyzing and breaking up the opposition's offensive tactics. It is very seldom that this boy is ever mouse-trapped because he's smart, and always ready for any enemy tricks. His heads up, steady, and tireless line play, game after game, makes him one of the outstanding tackles in college football today.

All-State

Mac started his football career at his native Stanford, Conn. High School. He started out by playing end but it wasn't long before his high school coach realized that Mac had the makings of a fine tackle. As a tackle, he was a first-stringer for three years. In his junior and senior years, he helped to bring Stanford the State Championship. New England sports writers took notice to his talent and awarded him a spot on the Connecticut All-State team. After he graduated from high school, Mac had scholarship offers from schools all over the country. He finally chose to come to Villanova, where he was destined to become one of the finest tackles in the Main Line school's history. Two other members of that same Stanford team who came to star for Villanova are Joe Koproski and Milt Anderson.

JOE McCARTHY

Coincidence

Mac took college football right in stride. He was the left tackle on Villanova's undefeated 1940 freshman eleven which ran roughshod over its opponents, winding up the season with a 20-7 victory over Temple's yearlings. Incidentally, it was two years later that practically this same team again beat Temple by the identical score, 20-7. In his sophomore year, Mac saw quite a bit of service in some of Villanova's games. The kid was then green, but this sophomore year polished him for the job that was ahead in '42.

Line Bulwark

The next year came, and Mac was ready and rarin' to go. It was in this, his junior year, that people began to notice him. The team had plenty of good tackles, and it wasn't until the Manhattan game that Mac really became a standout. Those who saw the Manhattan tilt will never forget that Villanova line, that stone wall, which in the early part of that game just wouldn't let the Jaspers score when they were several times within the Wildcats' ten yard line. Neither will they forget that No. 17 who was the mainstay in this gallant defensive exhibition. He was good in every game.

Played 55 Minutes

However, it was not until the finale, against Temple, that Mac had his greatest day of the season. He was really hot that day. Defensively, he just couldn't be blocked out, and offensively, his jarring blocks cut down many potential tacklers. The announcer on the loud speaker system was probably getting tired of repeating "tackled by McCarthy." That name was music to a Villanova rooter that afternoon. He was in that game for 55 minutes, which was longer than any other player on the field had played.

Excellent Blocker

Critics always praise Mac's great defensive ability but few know about his ability as a blocker. When Coach Jordan Olivar was asked about his prize tackle, he replied, "Joe McCarthy is a very fine blocker, and he's just the man we need in that left tackle spot."

Now that his knee is again in condition, the "Stanford Steamroller" is ready to rumble over the gridiron. Keep an eye on him, he's bound to go good.

Mac is a senior and a Marine V-12 reservist. He will be leaving us at the end of this current semester. His name stands out with those of other Villanova immortals.

THE other tackle, a big, handsome youth enrolled at Villanova in the fall of 1940, who was later to become one of the outstanding tackles the Wildcats have had in the last few years. Jim Harkins by name, was born in Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, on July 25, 1922.

Nine years ago, his family moved to Yeadon, Pennsylvania, and he has lived there ever since. After completing his grammar school education, he entered the West Philadelphia Catholic High School. In his second year there, Jim went out for the football team and had little difficulty in garnering a tackle position on the Burr eleven. Since West Catholic was in the thick of the fight for the Philadelphia Catholic League Championship that year, Jim saw plenty of action in his slot on the line. His last two years, West Catholic didn't fare as well but were good enough to finish in second place. Philadelphia sports writers selected him as All-Catholic tackle his last year at West Catholic. Jim had certainly deserved it.

Detroit Starter

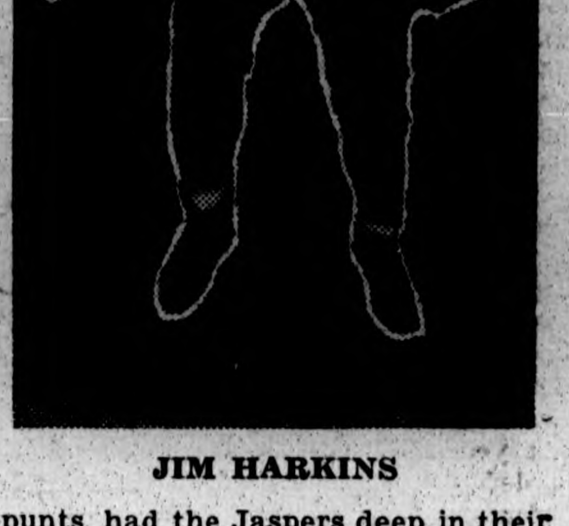
Graduating in 1940, he matriculated at Villanova. In the spring of his freshman year, Jim went out for football and easily made the squad and thereby was granted an athletic scholarship. No wonder, this handsome lad stands 6 ft. 1 in. tall and tips the scale at 215 pounds.

During his sophomore year, Jim played in all of the games and had the starting berth in several. In the annual game with Detroit University, Jim played the entire game and was very instrumental in the Wildcats eking out a 7-6 decision over the Dorais-coached Titans.

Scores Touchdown

His junior year saw him become one of the stalwarts in the good line the 'Cats had last year. He was in every game and very few plays went for any gain through his spot in the line.

It was in the Manhattan game of last year at Shibe Park in which Jim participated in an act which happens very little to linesmen. Villanova, after an exchange of punts, had the Jaspers deep in their own territory. Manhattan's punter went back to kick, but was thwarted when Jim came crashing through, blocking the punt, and after quite a scramble, recovering the ball in the end zone for a touchdown. It was the spark that ignited the Wildcats enough to incite them on to a crushing 32-0 victory. This play still remains quite warm in Jim's mind and no wonder.



JIM HARKINS

Earns Praise

He played in the opening game with Muhlenberg at Allentown and helped bolster the line in the crushing defeat inflicted upon the Mules.

At West Point, though the 'Cats lost to a great Army team, Jim played bang-up football in the line which warranted praise from many sports writers in the New York area. Jim has several more games yet before he will report for Midshipmen's school, Nov. 1, and Wildcat rooters can see him end a great football career.

Picks Merritt and Gafford

Asked whom he considered the best back and linesman he faced while in college, he said: "That's easy, 'Monk' Gafford of Auburn, and Frank Merritt of Army." Gafford, the reader will recall, was the back instrumental in handing Frankie Sinkwich & Co. a 27-13 shellacking last year.

Jim is a marketing major in the School of Commerce. He only has a semester to go after this one to get his degree, and is coming back after the war to get it. He has always been interested in the other sex, and I'm sure the interest is mutual. Immaculata seems to be his favorite hunting place.

With regards to his classes at present, he is having a little trouble with Dr. Hartman in the English Constitutional History course as they both don't meet eye to eye in matters concerning weekly tests.

I am sure no one will need worry concerning Jim's future in the Navy or any other endeavor because with his looks, physique, and personality, he is destined to go a long way. Anchor's aweigh, Jim.

Andy Chisick Ex-Wildcat Pivot Man In South Pacific

Somewhere in the South Pacific, one of Villanova's all time greats, now Lieutenant Andrew Chisick, USMC is still going strong both on the gridiron, and on the battlefield. War or no war, football is still his favorite sport, and that of the Leathernecks. Realizing that a tough football player makes a rugged Marine, Andy is now coaching and playing left tackle on an all-marine team, called the Red Raiders.

Andy worked his way up through the ranks the hard way, enlisting as a private on February 2, 1942. He received his basic training at New River, North Carolina. A few months later the husky marine was sent to Guadalcanal where he was placed in charge of a rifle platoon. After participation in four major battles, he was awarded his commission on the field of battle for exceptional bravery, and leadership which was developed on the gridiron.

Chisick got his start at Good Council High School where he held down a tackle berth for three years. After considering many offers, Andy finally came to Villanova. It was here that Andy began his long trail to fame. Clipper Smith, realizing his ability as a defensive player shifted the mighty man from his usual spot to the center position where he started for the Cats in every game of his three years on the varsity.

In his last season, Andy was elected captain and played fifty minutes of each contest. During his stay at Villanova the Wildcats won twenty-two contests in a row before they were stopped by the great Texas A. & M. team which held the number one spot in the country that year. Chisick was a bulwark on defense as he knifed his way in for almost every tackle, rocking his opponent with the force that carried him through the ranks while battling the Japs. In his senior year, the great center was picked on many All-American teams.

the field for the second half, but again an opportunity to get rolling was denied them. Sampson using five passes, and a reverse moved up to the Villanova thirty-eight yard line. From this point, the highly versatile Stopper heaved a long pass to Tarrante for Sampson's second sore, and Schleick again added the extra point.

Taking the kickoff, Villanova finally began to move. Postus cut inside his own right end for a nine yard gain. A pass to Koproski netted seven more and a first down. Then after Lopez had skirted the left side of the line on a reverse, Postus stepped back and threw a twenty yard forward to Pezelski who took it on the New Yorkers' twenty-one. He was knocked out of bounds immediately on the nineteen, but unnecessary roughness was called against Sampson as Pezelski was injured on the play.

Sully Scores

This gave the Main Liners the ball on Sampson's four yard line. Postus tried the right side of the line and made a gain of three yards. He tried for the score twice again, but was halted on the one yard stripe. Running to his left on the next play, Al found Bill Sullivan in the clear, and tossed him a bullet pass for the score. Konopka added the extra point as Villanova seemed to have finally hit its stride.

As the fourth quarter opened, Sampson was once more on the offensive, with Stopper and Principe doing the running. After going all the way to Villanova's ten yard line, their attack bogged down. Then, when they were penalized five yards for too many time outs, Schleick attempted a field goal from the twenty-five which was good, putting the Sailors well out in front, 17-7.

Although there was no further scoring by either team, the remaining minutes were played with Sampson on the defense, and the whole Villanova squad seemed to take on life for the first time during the contest. Anderson and Chepenuk both recovered fumbles, and presented fine scoring opportunities to the 'Cats but there wasn't sufficient time to take advantage of them, and the whistle blew with Sampson in possession of the ball on their own two yard line.

where "Hank" Jablonski carried it over to end the game at 12-6.

The Medics continued their streak the following night at the expense of Fedigan. The score started mounting at the thirty minute period when Ramsey received a pass from Ben Paradee to tally. The Jackets followed suit shortly when a pass thrown by McCarthy was batted into Joe Ringlestein's eager hands. Repeating their feat of the previous night, the Alumnites again worked their way to the one yard line. Here, the valiant C and F'ers held them for three plays. Finally Shammo went around left end to sew up the victory.

McManus Brilliant

The same night, the Mendelites trounced the Marines 12-0. John McManus caught one off "Sparks" Winters, and dashed ten yards for the first score. McManus set up the second tally with a brilliant forty yard run to the ten yard line. Here, he passed over the goal line to Geo. Stathapolus to definitely trounce the Marines. The Marines made three interceptions perpetrated by O'Connell, Bross, and Dick Breen but all were caught before they hit pay dirt.

Alumni Retaliates

On Friday night the Marines tied up a tough one with Fedigan. Sabino Carrone of Georgetown scored the Marines' touchdown with the aid of Ed Murphy's superb blocking. Biggins of Fedigan knocked off the other goal to tie the game at 6 all.

Across the way, Alumni had it out with Mendel to the tune of 6-0. After threatening four times, Shammo finally took a lateral and romped around left end to score the only touchdown of the game. The game was hard fought and the consistent charging of Big Frank O'Connor and Stan "Powerhouse" Wagner prevented the Alumnites from further tallying.

Starting next week all games must be over by 6:40 P. M. This means that games must start when possible, at 5:45 P. M.

Cagers Start Drills For '43-'44 Season

Fifty candidates reported yesterday in answer to Coach Al Severance's initial call to the hardwood. Out of this very impressive number, very few familiar faces could be recognized. Returning from last year's squad, which suffered only two defeats in twenty-six games, was only one starter, Chuck Drizen. Most probably the flashy guard won't be on hand even for the opening contests as he is now in his senior year.

Two Frosh Return

Returning for his second year is Frank Frascella, a freshman last year who saw plenty of action.

A fellow classmate, Don Osterman, whose aggressive play under the basket will be remembered by all those who saw the 'Cats play last season, has also come back along with Charley Labelle, who was active for only a part of the past campaign.

Coming to Villanova via the V-12 program is Bill Feeney, a 6-foot 2-inch boy, who saw plenty of action with Georgetown last year. Bill will no doubt help the team this year with his experience and exceptional defensive play. Also Joe Pettie, a former Duquesne cager, turned out to offer his services to Coach Severance. Joe, although only a freshman last year, rated a starting position on the varsity at the Pittsburgh institution.

Chief Beck Assistant

These men who might form a nucleus of the squad, do not give Al too much to work with, so that he will have to start from scratch and attempt to work out something from there. Coach Severance's past record shows that he is perfectly capable to do this with a bunch of boys as willing as those who appeared for the first drill. The basketball mentor will have a very able assistant this year in the person of Chief Specialist Beck, who played a great deal of basketball for the Tennessee Vols. Beck is also familiar with the art of coaching the game as he has produced many a winning combination.

Experience seems to be the only thing lacking, and it is hoped that this condition will be remedied by many long drills before the season opens.

As Al himself puts it, "We might not be the best in the country but we will have a fighting ball club out there." This is a typical statement of the very colorful court mentor who has developed the knack of getting the best out of his ball clubs.

Tough Job

All in all, Al has rather a difficult road ahead of him, working with men who have played under entirely different systems. To build up a team, his first job will be to get the boys working together, a not too easy task. As far as a starting five is concerned, Al has no one in mind. Every man has an equal opportunity to prove himself, and Villanova will have a winning team out there when the season opens if it is at all possible.

in his college heydey, and made the difference between the two clubs. He found our alley wide open for passes, and since Johnny Sitarsky, Bucknell coach, witnessed the game, we can expect more of the same this week-end. Sitarsky was in our dressing room after the game offering his condolences. He did not seem worried about having us as his next opponent so maybe John something up his sleeve.

Pezelski Injured Slightly

For a change, our injuries were not numerous, the only serious casually being Joe Pezelski who suffered a temporary blackout, but who will be in shape for the coming game.

This constitutes our second consecutive loss, but the squad faces the future with a little more optimism as we will again play teams in our own class.

Editor,
The VILLANOVAN
Box #1
Villanova, Pa.

Dear Sir:

We have always used College Men in many spots in our selling and non-selling departments. In this day of nation-wide manpower shortages on the Home Front, a genuine opportunity to be of service and at the same time to earn enough money to discharge part of the expenses of going to College is available to a larger number of students than is normally possible.

As Editor of the VILLANOVAN, you are in a strategic position to call to the attention of the Student body the opportunities for and advantages of part-time employment at Gimbels.

We are able to offer unusually attractive job opportunities to College men, for part-time hours daily, Wednesday evenings, Saturdays, and full-time hours from the beginning of your Christmas recess until December 24.

Jobs include openings for salespersons, cashiers, wrappers, stockmen and other behind-the-scenes assignments. The rate of pay is 50c an hour, plus 75c for supper money on Wednesdays and other evening hours.

Yours for Victory,
GIMBEL BROTHERS

F. A. FREDENBURGH,
Personnel Director

Here is a wonderful opportunity to pick up that necessary bit of "extra change," and at the same time help relieve the nation's manpower shortage.

If interested in Gimbel's offer, apply any day between 9:45 A. M. and 5:00 P. M. at the Employment Office on the Market Street side of the 7th floor, Gimbel Brothers.

The store, situated at 9th and Market Streets in Philadelphia, may be reached from the campus by taking the P & W to 69th Street and then the El to 8th Street. Commuter's tickets for the P & W may be obtained at reduced rates.

College Confers Degrees On 46; Grad Rewarded

Centennial Year Awards Made To Outstanding Students. 50 Year Alumni Award Presented For First Time

Villanova College conferred bachelor degrees on forty-six graduates on Sunday, Oct. 24, in the College Chapel, in a simple ceremony which combined the usual Baccalaureate Mass with the degree and honor awards. The Solemn High mass was sung by Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of the college, assisted by Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., Vice President, Deacon, and Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., Sub-Deacon. Rear Admiral John J. Brady, Ch. C., U.S.N. (Ret.), delivered the address to the graduates, practically all of whom were subject to immediate call into the seriousness of military service.

Degrees in course were conferred "in absentia" on three students who only a week before the ceremony were called to the colors as members of the Marine Corps. The degrees of the absent graduates were received by members of their families. Mr. Edward Cahill, of Teaneck, N. J., received the degree for his son, James; Mr. Robert Gretz of Philadelphia for his son, Robert, Jr.; and Apprentice Seaman James Sutton of Philadelphia for his brother, John.

Awards Presented

J. Stanley Smith, Esq., of Philadelphia, received a newly inaugurated Fifty Year Award upon the completion of fifty years of honorable service since his graduation from Villanova.

Ensign Thomas J. Devine, USNR, of Philadelphia, was awarded "in absentia" the Gold Medal for Philosophy and the Catholic Action Medal. Other awards "in absentia" went to Pvt. Angelo Macchia of Trenton, N. J., who won the Kolmer Medal for Excellence in Science; Pvt. William Walpole of Chicago, Ill., who received the Gold Medal for excellence in Commerce and Finance; and Pfc. Daniel N. Ehart of Wayne, Pa., who was awarded the Gold Medal for Classics.

William T. Walsh, AS, of Metuchen, N. J., took the Gold Medal for Extra-Curricular Activities and the Political Science Award.

The Carl T. Humphrey Award for Excellence in Freshman Engineering went to Edward A. Grostas, A.S., and Joseph H. Hoffman, A.S.

Receive Degrees

A list of the degree recipients follows.

Bachelor of Engineering: Lawrence H. Belz, Phila., Pa.; Victor Borejko, Jr., Phila., Pa.; Denis A. Boyle, Bryn Mawr, Pa.; James P. Cahill, Teaneck, N. J.; Fred J. Davi, Williamstown, N. J.; Joseph J. The Villanova Branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers will hold a meeting tomorrow at 10:20 A. M. in the Dynamo Laboratory. Plans will be made for the coming trip to Franklin Institute. All members are urged to attend.

The Navy Department at Washington has announced that, contrary to the restrictions concerning holiday travel previously imposed on service men, V-12 trainees will be permitted a 6-day leave beginning the evening of Thursday, Dec. 23.

The weekly music seminar will convene for the first time during the current semester between 12:30 and 1:15 P. M. tomorrow, in the parlors of Simpson Hall. Beethoven's 5th Symphony and the "Nutcracker Suite", by Tchaikowsky, will be featured.

All students are welcome to attend this informal musical program. The selections to be rendered at future meetings will be planned according to student request.

Mass Kit Donated To Navy Chaplain By Student Body

A Mass kit, paid for by funds accumulated from the free will offerings taken up at the students' masses on Sundays during the past semester, has been given by the Chaplains Aid Association, in the name of the student body of Villanova College, to Navy Chaplain David W. McCarthy.

Father McCarthy is now attending the Navy's Chaplain School at William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va. In a letter to Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., College Chaplain, Father McCarthy expressed his gratitude and said among other things, "It may be that I will serve your student body in the not-too-distant future. It is my intention to offer mass frequently for their intentions."

Second Student Donation

This is the second Mass kit that has been donated by the students of Villanova. The first kit was presented to an Army Chaplain at the end of the spring semester. The Mass kit, which compactly contains everything needed for the celebration of the Mass, costs $150. As soon as a sufficient fund is accumulated a third kit will be presented to some chaplain in the Service.

The Chaplains Aid Association also sent an apreciative letter to Father Grimes. We quote the secretary of the Association, Helen R. Berley. "Such financial support, indeed was never more appreciated than at the present time, for the war. . .has drained our never large resources to their utmost limits. Our gratitude is in proportion to our need, which is great."

Staff Members—

If it is to continue in publication, the Villanovan requires a larger staff of reporters to cover general college news, as well as increased cooperation from those whose names already appear on the masthead. A meeting of the entire staff will be held in Room 119 Mendel Hall at 1:00 P. M. today. We ask all members now enrolled on the staff to attend, and solicit applications for positions from all men interested in writing both news and feature stories.

A little work from all who take the credit for the newspaper would greatly lighten the burden on the few who actually publish it. Take heed, staff members—and be sure to attend that meeting today!

C. I. I. C. Opens 1943-44 Season At Villanova

Intercollegiate Interracial Council Elects Thomas Hitchell, Villanova Junior, Treasurer

The Catholic Intercollegiate Interracial Council held its first meeting of the 1943-44 season here at Villanova College Sunday afternoon, November 14, at 2:30 P. M. in Simpson Hall. About thirty people were present at the meeting, including campus representatives from Rosemont College, LaSalle College, and Villanova College graduate students of Immaculata College and St. Joseph's College, as well as several visiting clergymen.

Election of officers was the major business of the meeting. Miss Kay McCarthy, a junior student at Rosemont College, was elected president of the Council, succeeding Miss Josephine McFarland, an Immaculata alumnus. Clement Holgate, LaSalle sophomore, was elected vice-president; Thomas F. Hitchell, Villanova junior, treasurer; and Carlos Salzano, LaSalle freshman, secretary.

Brother Felix, F. S. C., vice-president of LaSalle College, will continue as moderator of the group. Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A., Villanova German professor, was named Spiritual Advisor, and Miss Elinor Jane McCarthy, a graduate of Rosemont, will serve as Publicity Chairman for the coming year.

Questionnaires which were sent to each member college of the Council to help them discover the avenues within their own campus through which they can promote interracial justice provided the main topic of discussion for the afternoon. Daniel J. Kane, Program Chairman, directed this survey.

Catechetical works, editorials in school publications, studies of Negro history and achievements, and the teachings of the Church on Racism are all included in the C. I. I. C. activity planned for this year.

The Council will meet again on January 9, but as yet the scene of the meeting has not been settled. It is hoped that at this meeting a definite plan of action will be drawn up by the Council for the promotion of racial interest on all Catholic campuses in the Philadelphia area. The formation of such a program will be based upon reports from the colleges concerning the attitude of college students toward mixing with negroes in campus life, the policy of college publications in assisting the cause, and in general all the suggestions offered by the members to abolish race prejudice in this country.

All students who are interested in the work of the Council are invited to participate in this activity, regardless of their status. For further information, Villanovans are urged to see Fr. Lunney.

Every Penny Counts

The Treasury Department has appealed to all college students to cooperate in getting more pennies into circulation. With theChristmas shopping season approaching, more pennies than ever will be needed. Despite record breaking production by the mint during the past three years a shortage impends unless large quantities of hoarded pennies are returned to circulation.

The director of the mint, Nellie Tayloe Ross, recommends that War Savings Stamps be substituted for coins that are held as savings.

CONDOLENCES

On behalf of the faculty and student body, the Villanovan wishes to extend condolences to the parents and friends of Aviation Cadet Vitalis P. Miciuinas, 16 Henry St., New Britain, Conn., of the class of 1945 who was killed in an airplane crash at Augusta, Georgia on October 28. Miciuinas withdrew from Villanova last January.

Engineering Frat Plans Activities Harvest Dance To Be Held Nov. 27

Heads Committee

ARTHUR ROTH

Initiation Scheduled For Nov. 18; Bowling League To Renew Activities; Presentation Of Freshman Award Planned

Phi Kappa Pi, the campus engineering fraternity, is now working on plans for an active season which will open with an initiation ceremony and be climaxed by an informal fall dance. Committees are now making preparations for the organization's "Harvest" Dance to be held at the Field House on Saturday, Nov. 27.

Arthur Roth, Chairman of the Dance Committee, announced that Freddy Herman and his ten piece orchestra have been engaged to supply the music. Freddy Herman, it was revealed, was chosen on the basis of his willing cooperation in past engagements. Last year, the senior class chose him for their dinner dance, which was held at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel. His band also played for the Blue and White Club's Easter Dance, which was held at the Hi-Top Country Club.

Harvest To Be Theme

As is evident from the title, the theme of the dance will be the fall harvest. In keeping with this theme, William Doyle and John Breen, Co-Chairmen of the Decoration Committee, are planning to decorate the dance floor with corn husks and pumpkins.

Tickets are now on sale and may be purchased from the Ticket Committee, which includes Carton Conway, Chairman, Fred Gerngross and Frank Quinn. The price of admission is $1.65. The dance will last from 9 P. M. until 1 A. M.

Anthony Mannino, Chairman of the Advertisement Committee, ananounced that servicemen who wish to have dates for the dance should see him or any member of the ticket committee. Several of nearby girl's colleges are willing to provide partners.

Initiation Scheduled

The annual initiation for the new fraternity members will be held on Thursday, Nov. 18, in Mendel Hall. A banquet will be held immediately following. Some of the faculty will address the group. All members of the faculty are cordially invited to attend the banquet.

The fraternity is also preparing to inaugurate its annual bowling season in the first week of December. The Phi Kappa Pi Bowling League has been in existence for the past five years, and has proven to be very popular among the engineering students. Officials of the organization predict that this season will be just as successful as the previous year.

The Carl T. Humphrey Award which is sponsored by the fraternity will be given at the end of the semester. Preparation for choosing the engineering student who was outstanding in his Freshman year will begin in the near future. The students to be considered for the award are all those who completed their freshman year in September or who will complete it in February.

Drum And Bugle Corps Organized

Group Under Direction Of Capt. Morgan Makes First Appearance Saturday

A Navy and Marine Drum and Bugle Corps, led by B. John Scola, A.S., USNR, has been organized for the Navy V-12 Unit at Villanova. The Corps' first rehearsal was held at the Commerce and Finance Building on Nov. 7. Practice is to be held every Monday night at 18:30 in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium. Membership in the organization is still open and anyone desiring to join will be welcomed by those in charge, who are anxious to obtain as many members as possible.

Its first public appearance was made at the dress review last Saturday. Captain Robert L. Morgan, USMCR, is the moderator of the Corps and is very enthusiastic about the voluntary effort on the men's part to make the much needed musical unit a success.

Plans Completed

The main purpose of this organization is to add color and spirit to the weekly drill period. The original idea was considered at the beginning of last semester and has been developing since that time. At the beginning of the current semester, arrangements were completed and Apprentice Seaman Scola received the approval of Commander Edward J. Milner, USN.

Apprentice Seaman Scola has complete charge of the music and drilling of the corps with the assistance of W. Holmes Yealey, A.S., Sergeant Bugler, and J. Ringlestein, A.S., Sergeant Drummer. Scola has had past experience leading bands and bugle corps, having led the Villanova College band during the past two years, as well as having directed a bugle corps in his home town in New Jersey.

Instruments Loaned

The instruments for the corps have been loaned by Villanova College and the Bryn Mawr, Pa., Post of the American Legion. The bugles were obtained through the efforts of Mrs. Cummings, the "Angel of the V-12 Unit," who is connected with the "Hut," a recreation center for the trainees, located at Spring Mill Rd. and Lancaster Pike. These will be used by the Corps until the Navy delivers the instruments that have been ordered by Comdr. Milner.

The Corps is composed of the following V-12 trainees:

Drummers — Apprentice Seamen J. Allen, R. Beal, R. McKibbin, C LaBelle, E. Sullivan, W. Sherry and J. Ringelstein.

Buglers — Apprentice Seamen W. Yealy, S. Farmer, R. O'Connor, J. Hairsine, E. MaGuire, L. Blazic, C. Farinella, R. Stippich, Miller, A. Schaffer, Reilly and Fitzgerald, Privates Schmitt, E. Lynn, and D. Rugen.

Bass Drum — J. Hatfield, A.S

Cymbals—M. Nascati, A.S.

Semper Fidelis!

EACH year, on the anniversary of the founding of the United States Marine Corps, a letter is read to the enlisted personnel of a post by the Commanding Officer of that post. The letter, written by Lieutenant-General Thomas Holcomb, Commandant of the Marine Corps, is forwarded from the Marine Corps Headquarters in Washington, D. C., to all Commanding Officers.

The letter, which should and does serve as an inspiration to all marines, reads as follows:

"The follownig will be read to the command on the 10th of November:

"(1) On November 10, 1775, a Corps of Marines was created by a resolution of the Continental Congress. Since that date many thousand men have borne the name Marine. In memory of them it is fitting that we who are marines should commemorate the birthday of our Corps by calling to mind the glories of its long and illustrious history.

"(2) The record of our Corps is one which will bear comparison with that of the most famous military organizations in the world's history. During the greater part of its existence the Marine Corps has been in action against the Nation's foes. Since the Battle of Trenton, marines have won foremost honors in war, and in the long eras of tranquillity at home, generation after generation of marines have grown gray in war in both hemispheres, and in every corner of the seven seas, that our country and its citizens might enjoy peace and security.

"(3) In every battle and skirmish since the birth of our Corps marines have acquitted themselves with the greatest distinction, winning new honors on each occasion until the term 'Marine' has come to signify all that is highest in military efficiency and soldierly virtue."

The men of the United States Marine Corps have made and upheld their tradition "Semper Fidelis" in every job that they have been asked to do. Through the sweat and blood and pain of the men of the Corps who have passed through the baptism of fire in all foreign lands and on all foreign shores this great motto has remained unblemished. We, who now serve our country have a challenge to meet; a challenge given to us by those great men.

Ours is not an easy job. We are fighting an enemy more diabolical and cunning and ruthless than we have ever fought before. We first met this enemy on the fateful day of December 7th, 1941, at Pearl Harbor. A sneak attack. A declaration of war preceded by the unannounced bombing of our great Naval fleet. Again we met him at Bataan and Corregidor which was captured by strong Jap forces only after food, ammunition and medical supplies had been exhausted. He is a strong enemy.

Throughout these conflicts the men of the Corps wavered not once. They knew that theirs was a hopeless task yet they were determined to fight through to victory or die in the attempt. Faithful to the end they gave the "last full measure of devotion." It is now our job to carry on where they left off. We, who are still only training for actual battle, must fully prepare ourselves for the job that lies ahead. Let us not fail them. Let us always remain "Semper Fidelis"!

The United States MARINES

By Pvt. L. J. Schmitt, USMCR.

OLDER, by eight months, than the country itself, the UNITED STATES MARINE CORPS last week observed its 168th year of service. It was on Nov. 10, 1775 that the Continental Congress resolved "That two battalions of Marines be raised . . . and that particular care be taken that no person be appointed to officer or enlisted man in said battalions but such as are good seamen or so acquainted with maritime affairs as to be able to serve to advantage by sea when required. . .and that they be distinguished by the name of American Marines."

Marines served under John Paul Jones in the battle between the RANGER and the DRAKE during the American Revolution. Five years later the Marines, for the first time in history, raised the flag of the Republic on a fortress in the old world. The occasion was the triumphant march of General Eaton and his men from Alexandria to Derne, nearly 600 miles across the desert of Northern Africa, resulting in the capture of Tripolitan fortifications.

Historically Courageous

"Don't give up the ship!" This immortal battle-cry was first uttered by Captain Lawrence, commander of the CHESAPEAKE, a ship which engaged the SHANNON during the war of 1812. The Marines figured in this battle as well as in the glorious victory of the CONSTITUTION over the GUERRIERE.

In the period, 1815-1837, the Marines were busied with many and diverse assignments. Among other things, they were called upon to quell a serious revolt in the Massachusetts state prison, to act against Spanish pirates in the West Indies and Sumatra, to guard public and private property at the time of a great fire in New York (1835), for which they received a vote of thanks from the city. This excellent record was added to during the war with Mexico, where the Corps figured in every quarter.

Captured John Brown

The Civil War found the Marines taking the offensive in their storming raids on enemy positions. John Brown, at Harper's Ferry, was one of the many rebels captured by the Marines during this conflict. Other campaigns, too numerous to mention, between that time and the time of the first World War saw the Marines in action as has always been their tradition.

It was shortly before the last war that the air arm of the Marine Corps was formed. Although this section, as well as the whole Corps itself, is limited by law to 20% of the strength of the Navy's corresponding forces, it has kept abreast with the amazingly rapid development of air power, and is today one of the most modern and one of the hardest-hitting units that exists.

Belleau Wood, St. Mihiel, Aisne-Marne, Meuse-Argonne and Chateau Thierry are known to all as important battles of World War I, but few people know of the "staged landing parties" in each of these conflicts in which Marines participated.

Para-Marines Organized

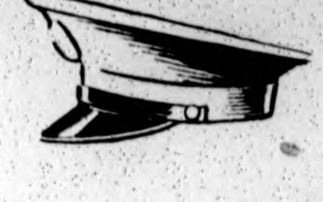
A short time before the present war, the Para-Marines were formed. This outfit is the most recent addition to the Corps and consists of picked men who are trained in the latest techniques of airborne infantrymen.

Coming down to the present, we are all familiar with the glorious stands made by the Marines at Wake, Guam, Midway, the Philippines and countless other locations.

It is because of the mobility and availability, that Marines have been universally employed. From the very nature of their calling, they are always ready to embark for the center of the disturbance. Whether first to land to stop a fight or "first to fight," they must uphold their traditions for availability and mobility.

As long as this country has battles to fight, world policing to do, or honor to be upheld, the UNITED STATES MARINE CORPS will live up to their motto, "Semper Fidelis, and "fight their country's battles, in the air, on land, and sea."

Camp To Campus



By PVT. JOHN BITTIG

Since the last issue of the Villanovan, a great deal of information has come in from the fellows in the camps throughout the country. It has all been greatly appreciated. However, further cooperation is again requested in order the we may continue this column. Now, on with the news:

Al White Married

Al White was always tops in pulling the wool over the eyes of his friends but he was certainly in his prime when he took the "fatal" step and was married before going overseas. "Whizzer" may now be found as a Military Policeman in Iceland far, far from his bride. Another M.P. is Joe Brandolini, stationed at Camp Mead. Joe is acting as an instructor there where Auxiliary Military Police are trained for duty around defense plants.

One of the Villanova engineers recently turned Army engineer is James Wilkes of last year's freshman class. Jim is now a corporal and is stationed at Camp Claiborne, Louisiana.

All predictions of Father Handran's "tour of duty" in the Navy came true when it was learned that he is serving as chaplain to two thousand WAVES. Lieutenant (j.g.) Handran is at Camp Stillwater, Oklahoma — and who wouldn't trade places with him?

Former V-12'ers at Penn

Formerly of Villanova's V-12 Unit, Gene McGoldrick, Gerald Brandon, Charles Grimley, Bill Kennedy, John Fullen, Ed Fay, James Curren, and John Krut are now attached to the Naval V-5 Unit (Naval Air Corps) at the University of Pennsylvania.

How true this one is:—

Soldier: "Hello, girls, you woudn't care to go with us, would you?"

Sailor: "Hello, girls, you'll go with us, won't you?"

Marine: "Hello, girls, where are we going?"

Has anyone here seen Kennedy? Innumerable letters coming to the campus have contained this question and have only served to rouse our curiosity more. Frank was last heard from when he completed his Marine "boot" training at Parris Island and left for an unknown destination. So, if anyone has seen or heard of the whereabouts of Frank Kennedy, class of '45, please let us know through this column.

Studying radio at Scott Field, Illinois is Bill Forebaugh. Scott Field is located near St. Louis and Bill was lucky enough to get into town to see a couple of the World Series game.

Soldiers Visit Campus

On campus last Thursday were James Meehan and Victor Rainsford. Jim is a belly gunner in a heavy bomber and after being stationed in most of the Southern states is now to report to an air base in Utah. Vic is one of the luckier Army Reservists and received a commission as a second lieutenant in the Coast Artillery.

In parting:

Gene Hannon (trying on new uniform): These pants and shirts are perfect and the shoes feel fine.

Sarge: Gad, man! You [illegible] be deformed.

By TOM HITCHELL

A new semester, but the same old routine, . . . classes six days a week, cokes in the Pie Shop, midnight "bull sessions" (ssh!), cafeteria lines, evening chapel, and best of all those Saturday nights, guess where?.

Of course there have been a few slight changes, such as the new cut system that is rapidly "Sweeping" the campus. Remember the days when Jack would meet Mac in the corridor and such chatter would follow:

Jack: Are you doing anything?

Mac: No, are you?

Jack: No, not a thing.

Mac: Well, let's go to class.

From now on it's two strikes and you're out . . . just another reason for not being a Hitler fan.

FALL IN:

It didn't take long for things to get back into full swing this term. Our neghborring belles from Chestnut Hill and Immaculata have really started the ball rolling. The C.H.C. lassies held their second Tea Dance Sunday afternoon. No one doubts that the Marines had the situation well in hand. From the minute they landed it was like the charge of the Light Brigade. We're a little disappointed in Dick Evans whose only reaction to a room laden with beautiful girls was "Where's the chow." Duke Severson ran into a little "cut in" trouble with Sid Farmer. Wonder who ended up out in the cold, or should we say left holding the bag? Most of the boys were quite amazed at the youthfulness of the Mount's Seniors. Apprentice Seaman (oh? yeah!) Paska's surprise can be summed up as follows "Golly, they're well preserved!" He must have had an eyeful of Nancy??

Immaculata entertained the Blue and White Mainliners Saturday afternoon. Dave Ward, Hugh O'Reilly, Ted Doyle and George Pulbach were just a few of the Villanovans to take advantage of the invitation. The same night Harcum Junior College stepped into the spotlight with a formal Prom. Again the V-12'ers were well represented. What a week-end! No wonder Hugh Burns stayed around just to sample them all.

While we're on the subject of intercollegiate relations, Chestnut Hill College and Immaculata College will again buck each other by holding simultaneous Senior Proms this Saturday night. Maybe there's a method in the girls' madnes???

HAND SALUTE:

Speaking of dances, Mrs. Cummings and Mrs. LaDowe deserve a hig hand for arranging those Saturday night dances for restrictees at the Hut. Both women have been doing a great deal for our servicemen, and they can be sure that their efforts are sincerely appreciated by all the fellows.

Ben Paradee is taking great care of his fellow Bluejackets from Alumni Hall, even to the point of securing blind dates for Bill Hughes, Joe Fairbanks and Dick DuPree recently. All but Ben were in for an evening of surprises, eh Bill?

Andy Eichoff is having some trouble impressing his nautical charm upon Helen. Some one ought to remind the gal that big things come in small packages . . . which reminds me of the one about the sailor who married the glass-blower's daughter. Yep, they had goblets . . . So Solly!

AT EASE:

Hey, Jim Lamb . . . don't let those Good Counsel dudes discourage you, "Chops." Louis Massiochi claims the world's greatest lovers have been cousins . . . Tito Infanzon's frequent New York sojourns aren't because he's overwhelmed by the Empire State building, and to think we considered him an Ardmore operator! One never knows, do one???

Before I close I have to dedicate the following to Hoberg and his crew:

The students get the paper,
The school gets the fame;
The printer gets the money,
The staff gets the blame.

VILLANOVAN SPORTS

Here Are Freshman Stars Of Cherry And White

Here are three men that the Wildcats will have to take care of if they expect to emerge winners of Saturday's classic with the Temple Owls. From left to right, Tony Hubka, whose brother, Gene, will be remembered by all Villanova rooters who saw last year's game as the star passer of the Broad Streeters.. Next to him is Charlie Goetz, powerful fullback, and Jack Burns, whose running in the Holy Cross debacle earned him the rave notices of the Philadelphia sportswriters.

Basketball League Starts Thursday With Three Games

An answer to the many requests for an intramural basketball league, and a boxing tournament has been given by Rev. E. B. McKee, O.S.A., Moderator of Intramural Athletics in his announcement of a court tourney to begin this Thursday and of a boxing night being planned. Six teams will represent the different halls, the Navy men playing for Alumni, Mendel, and Fedigan while the Marines will come from Alumni Hall, runner-up to Alumni, last year's champs. The civilians plan to have two squads, one composed of day-hops, and the other of residents, thus making a total of six competitors.

Jordan Olivar:

"Villanova will probably go into the Temple game as the favorite. However, we all know that season's records mean nothing, when the Owls and the Wildcats meet. One thing that should favor the Owls is that while they are an inexperienced team, they have played together all year whil half of our first team left school about three weeks ago.

Again, this the big game of the year for both clubs, and you can be sure that. Ray. Morrison. will have his team up psychologically for it.

Our Wildcats came out of the Holy Cross encounter in fine physical shape, and unless something unforseen happens will be in that same condition for the game which is usually decided by the mental and physical state of the teams."

Main Liners Lose Close Game, 12-7, To Crusaders

Titus, Holy Cross Captain, Scores Twice To Lead Victors; Postus Has 84-Yard Run Nullified By Clipping Penalty

Sunday afternoon at Worcester, Mass., Villanova's football stalwarts suffered a 12-7 defeat at the hands of the Crusaders from Holy Cross. This win gave the New England team the Catholic College championship of the East as a result of the non-playing status of other eastern Catholic colleges. Filling his role as captain of the Holy Cross eleven, George Titus took advantage of some fine blocking, and in a quick sweeping 69 yard run, delivered the crowning blow to the Wildcats. This one run of Titus was the only offensive flash of the Purple all day, but it sufficed to produce a Crusader victory.

Titus Ruins Hopes

The home town boys grabbed the initial advantage in the second period when a reverse, Koslowski to the same Titus, was good for ten yards and a score. The attempted conversion by Bob Sullivan was blocked. This touchdown climaxed a 42-yard advance and came as the first half drew to a close.

The Wildcats drew first blood in the third canto following a pass interception by Lou Lopez on their own 30. Led by Al Postus, who was the outstanding back on the field, the Blue and White drove 70 yards downfield. Finally, with the ball on the 3 yard line, Postus slammed inside his own tackle for the score.

Goes Ahead

Then Siano dropped back to try for what appeared to be a critical point. The ball was snapped back, and Siano split the uprights to send the Villanovans ahead.

On the first play after the kick-off, Titus pulled his spectacular run and from then on the Crusaders were never headed.

The Blue and White had one touchdown called back as Al Postus picked up a rolling punt on his own 16 early in the game and behind deadly blocking scampered through the entire Holy Cross eleven to tally. However, the play was nullified because the referee had detected clipping, and resulted in the supreme bit of irony as the Wildcats were forced to take the ball on their own one.

Blue and White Favored In Annual Clash With Owls

Teams To Meet At Temple Stadium, Saturday At 2:00 P. M.; Villanova Points For Second Straight Win Over Templars

By HUGH O'REILLY, A.S.

The Wildcat football team draws the curtain on a gridiron season this Saturday with the traditional Temple game. Because of their better showing for the season and their greater experience, the Main Liners enter the game ruling as the afvorite. In the Villanovan's favor will be a lack of over-confidence, for, long years of the toughest struggles with the Owls has inbred in Wildcat players a great respect for the Templars' ability to play inspired ball. Fifteen consecutive years has built this game into Philadelphia's finest gridiron rivalry. During this time the Main Line institution has amassed a total of nine victories as compared to five triumphs registered by the Owls. One game, the first of the series ended in a deadlock.

Veterans Back

Still fresh in Templar memories is the stinging defeat inflicted by last year's team, in which game, the boys from North Broad Street were crushed 20-7. Many players instrumental in that victory are back to plague the Owls again this year. Prominent among these, is Al Postus, tall back, and star of last year's game. Al has thus far proven himself even better than he

Wildcats Win Over Blimps And Tigers

Lakehurst Falls 27-17 In Last Game For Six 'Cat Starters; Princeton Takes 45-22 Drubbing As Postus Shines

Villanova's football team lifted itself above the .500 mark for the season by defeating the Lakehurst Blimps, 27-14, and the Princeton Tigers, 45-22.

On Saturday, Oct. 23, the Blue and White conquered the valiant sailors from the NavalAir Station at Lakehurst, N. J., in a game which was marked by the superiority of the Main Liners. "Ziggie" Zamlynski, senior fullback, playing his last game for the Villanovans, was the big gun in the attack as he crossed the double stripe twice on spinner plays.

Last Game

Also wearing the Blue and White for the last time were Joe Pezelski, and Joe Koproski, backs; Billy Sullivan, and Val Jansante, ends; tackle Jim Harkins and center Bill Nealon, who were ordered elsewhere by the Navy Department.

The Blimps staged a token attack into Villanova territory late in the last period, and led by a Marine paratrooper, Earle Hassell, scored twice to bring the score at the end of the game to 27-14.

Princeton Break

The Princetonians were taken into camp by a revamped Villanova lineup on Nov. 6, at Palmer Stadium, Princeton, N. J. The outcome of the game was never in doubt with the exception of the first quarter when the Tigers, recovering a Wildcat fumble on the 40-yard line, drove for a touchdown in six plays.

Postus in Shape

Holding on to this advantage for the first quarter, they were surprised at the beginning of the second period as Al Postus pitched a 20 yard aerial to Milt Anderson who outdistanced the safety man to the goal line. Gene Konopka, who came into the game with a string of 8 consecutive conversions, had his try sail wide of the posts to end his streak. From here on, the game turned into a rout with Al Postus, back in the shape which earned him his reputation, passed and ran the Orange and Black crazy to help his team triumph, 45-22.

Ray Morrison:

"It would be absolutely truthful on my part if I were to write that Temple's chances against Villanova on Saturday in the sixteenth annual game between the teams, were not very good.

"Yet, I lok back through the years and think of the hundreds of upsets that have taken place on the gridiron, then I tell myself that Villanova can be beaten even though on paper the teams are not comparable.

"When I came to Temple in 1940 I soon learned that when the Owls and Wildcats met upon the gridiron that season's records meant little or nothing. I hope such is the case this week, for certainly Jordan Olivar, who has done a fine job of coaching in his first year of intercollegiate football, has a squad that, on paper, is vastly superior to that which Temple will field.

"I am not predicting a defeat for Temple. Anything can happen in football. But our chances for victory are not as bright as Villanova's."

was in any of his former seasons, showing his passing ability especially well, in the 45-22 defeat of Princeton. Other seniors who will see action for the last time against their arch-rivals are: Lou Lopez, Al Kasulin, Miami transfer for whom it will be his first and last encounter with the Owls; Joe McCarthy, Gene Konopka, Johnny Dzitko, and others.

Brother Act

An interesting feature in this game will be found in the presence of one of Temple's better backs, the freshman passing star, Tony Hubka. This Hubka is the brother of the more famous Gene, who was the outstanding Owl player of last season, and who this year has already played against the Cats. Brother Gene cavorted this season in a Bucknell uniform at which school he is stationed as a member of the Marine Corps Reserve. In our game with the Bisons, it was Gene who was greatly responsible for what was almost a Wildcat defeat.

Record Unimpressive

Although the Templars have not had an impressive season, their light team, composed almost entirely of freshmen makes up in versatility and speed what it lacks in weight and experience. Besides the young wingback, Hubka, who already has made a name for himself by his consistently fine running and better passing, the Owls have three other backs of equal ability. In Charlie Goetz and Bill Lipski, fullback and blocking back respectively, they have two big and powerful men who have shown up consistently well all season. At tailback they have a better than average runner, Jack Burns, who in the Holy Cross fray showed the best "scat" ability displayed by a Templar thus far this season. On the forward wall will be a freshman aggregation which has proved its worth. Bernie Weinberger and Jim Cooney hold down the flanks, and at tackle positions are Mark Dolin and Johnny Koscis. Guards are Francis Sirocky and Jim Nagy, while the captain of the Penn State game, George Heil, will be anchored at the pivot position servicemen. The Navy office finally consented to allow two nights a week, Tuesday, and Thursday, from 6:00 to 8:00 P. M., for the navy and marines to play. Alumni Hall has been chosen as the site for all games because of its convenient location. As with the field house floor, basketball or tennis shoes will be compulsory for all participants.

In the opening games of the season, the Day-Hops will meet the Residents at 6:00 P. M. The next game of the night will see Marines and the Fedigan Navy clash with Alumni and Mendel getting together as soon as these two tilts are over.

Plenty of Equipment

The coming boxing tournament will take place on a date to be announced later. In preparation for this event, additional equipment has been purchased, and a ring has been set up in the main locker room in the field house. The light punching bags will be in the same room, and a heavy bag will be hung from the braces under the edge of the stands.

Another swimming meet is being arranged. Father McKee and Chief Specialist Beck will draw up the details and set a date for this meet. Judging from the enthusiasm and fine co-operation exhibited in the first meet last August this one will no doubt be an even greater success.

Post-War School Program Planned At NCEA Meeting

Fr. McQuade, Villanova Representative, Announces Proposed System; Complete Education Would Be Shortened by Two Years

Returning from a recent meeting of the Committee for the Reorganization of the National Catholic Educational Association held at the William Penn Hotel in Pittsbugh, Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., assistant to the president, revealed that plans are being considered for permanently accelerated education after the war.

"The main object of the planning," stated Fr. McQuade, "is to make it possible for students with the proper ability to complete an education in 14 years to which they must under the present plan devote 16 years."

Various methods of accomplishing this are being considered, and the committee is carefully striving to come to that conclusion which will work to the best interests of all, Father indicated. Some favor accelerating elementary school by two years and leaving high school and college at four years each. Others suggest shortening grade school and secondary school by one year each and continuing with four years of college. Still another plan fixes one of the two years of acceleration in College.

Eliminate Two Years

The common factor in all methods proposed is that each seeks to make it possible for a student to shorten his education by two years, and all agree that this acceleration for better-than-average students must proceed harmoniously with the present 16 year plan in order that the accelerated student will not miss any of the matter ordinarily covered.

A concrete example is the plan which would permit completion of elementary school in six years. Bright students would attend neither the fourth nor the seventh grades, but the curricula would be arranged in such a way that material considered in these grades would be primarily review of preceding years and a preparation for work to come.

Thus, slower students would receive the drilling in fundamentals so helpful at an early age, and their more gifted friends would be spared needless repetition. A plan closely allied to this has been tried for about 20 years in Covington and Louisville, Kentucky, and, according to Fr. McQuade, seems to be working very successfully.

College Honor Course

Explaining further, Fr. McQuade said that if two years is saved during the course of primary and secondary school, no attempt will be made to shorten college. Instead an honor course will be taught. Under this system, all will take a basic curricula, but students with more ability will take extra subjects of their own choice besides.

Fr. pointed out that one of the principal adavntages of the system will be to enable men to embark on their life's career at an earlier age. This should be especially helpful to professional men such as doctors and lawyers who must go to further study after college. Under the proposed plan, such men could be finished college at the age of 20.

Before making definite suggestions, however, the committee is making a careful survey of existing high schools and colleges, determining such items as what courses are offered, what electives are given, what the requisites are, how much acceleration has been used, and just what form it has taken.

In a few weeks the committee will issue a report suggesting the six year plan for grade schools, but Fr. McQuade emphasized that at present the committee has no final opinion. At present, war conditions demand that the major consideration be given to colleges. Only after the war will plans be ready to school students according to their ability.

Drums And Bugles Serenade Rosemont

The newly organized Navy-Marine Drum and Bugle Corps made their first public appearance Friday night at the bond Rally on the Rosemont campus. The torch light parade around the campus with the added stimualtion of the Corps music and the twirling exhibition given by John Scola made an impressive exhibition.

The thirty members of the corps paraded in dress uniform and assisted in sound effects for a military skit during the program. The performance was similar to that given last year at Rosemont by the Villanova College band.

The Drum and Bugle Corps in the short time that it has been organized has made a wonderful showing for itself at drill on Saturday as well as at the Bond rally.

The band rehearses on Friday at 18:30. New applicants will be considered after tryouts.

Frat Holds Annual Initiation Ceremony

Approximately sixty new members were formally "welcomed" into Phi Kappa Pi, the campus engineering fraternity, at the organization's annual initiation and Banquet which was held last Friday evening in Mendel Hall. The group, one of the largest to enter the frat in recent years, contained an unusually large proportion of upperclassmen since many of the V-12 trainees have been transferrrd to Villanova's engineering school in various stages of advancement.

The Banquet which climaxed the evening's merrymaking was attended by many members of faculty including Lt. Harry W. August, Executive Officer of the Naval unit; Capt. Robert L. Morgan, Officer in Charge of the Marine detachment; Rev. Francis X. McGuire, O.S.A., Vice-President of the College; and Rev. John S. O'Leary, O.S.A., faculty moderator of the fraternity. John McManus, AS, President of the organization, acted as Master of Ceremonies for the after-dinner speakers.

Villanovan Is Awarded ACP First Class Rating

For the sixth consecutive year the Villanovan has been awarded First Class rating by the Associated Collegiate Press. Highest honors of the weekly were shared in the makeup, editorial and sports departments which were rated "excellent." In all divisions, the Villanovan amassed a total of 875 points out of a possible 1090.

The A.C.P. is an association of professional newspaper experts and is sponsored by the University of Minnesota. College newspapers throughout the country are subjected to a critical analysis once a year in an effort to improve collegiate journalism and to help the staffs solve publication problems.

The most recent score was given to the issues published under the editorship of Robert F. Young, Naval Officer Candidate now stationed in Philadelphia, Pa.

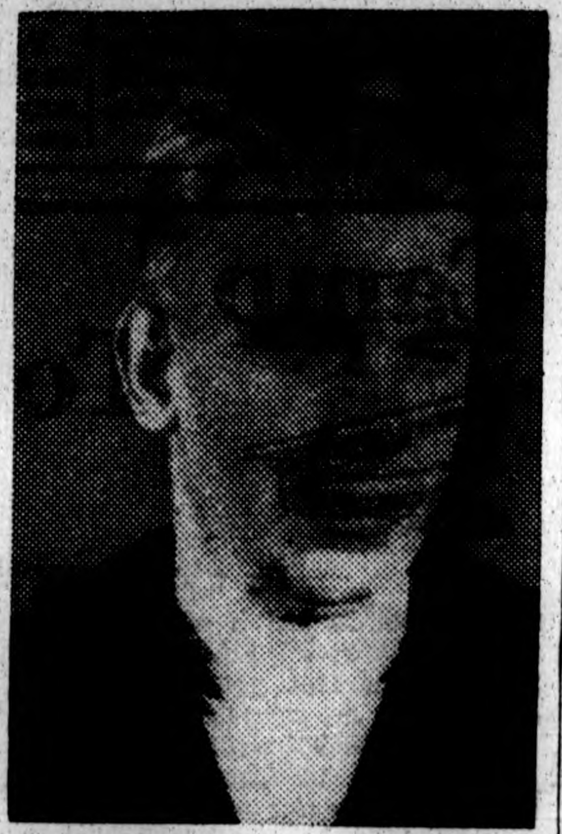
The Foremen's Discussion Group of the Philadelphia Section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers will be held at the Engineers Club, 1317 Spruce St., Philadelphia, to discuss "Instruments for the Electrical Shop-Use, Care, and Safety." An open discussion is planned on the general subject of how to obtain the most results from available instruments. All members of the Villanova Branch are invited.

Pharmacist's Mate Joins Navy Staff On Villanova Campus

During the past fortnight another member was added to the Medical Staff of the Villanova's Ship's Company. William O. Orton, Pharmacist's Mate First Class, is the newcomer. Though he has been on the campus a comparatively short time, Orton has already become well-acquainted with many of our V-12 trainees.

West Harwich, Massachusetts, is the birthplace and home town of our new medic. Born August 15, 1915, Orton attended a local grammar school, then entered the Harwich High School. Here in addition to his fine scholastic record, he cornered varsity positions on both the basketball and baseball teams. He also found time to become an accomplished tennis player.



William R. Orton, Ph.M. 1/C

Registered Nurse

After graduating from high school, Orton chose nursing as his life's work. In 1938, he entered the nursing school of the Pennsylvania Hospital where after three and one-half years of study he qualified as a Registered Nurse.

Remaining as a member of the hospital staff for over a year, Orton was in Philadelphia when war was declared. He enlisted in the Navy in April, 1942, and after his indoctrination period was assigned to the Philadelphia Naval Hospital. Later he was transferred to Brandywine Shoals, on the Delaware Bay, where he remained until being reassigned to Philadelphia. While at the Naval Hospital there, he received his orders to report to the V-12 unit at Villanova.

Orton, who resides in Philadelphia, commutes daily to Villanova except on those evenings and weekends when he is detailed to remain on watch in the infirmary.

Distribution of 1943 Belle Air Planned for Dec.

Centennial Edition Has Many Outstanding Features; Entire College History Presented

The 1943 Belle Air, the College annual, will be ready for distribution during the first week of December. It will be available to all students who will have settled their yearbook accounts by that time. Students who have not as yet done this are urged to do so as soon as possible, so that the volume may be distributed with a minimum of confusion.

This year's book is expected to surpass all others in the school's history. Since this is the Centennial yearbook, every effort has been made by the moderators and staff to turn out an annual that will be outstanding in every detail. It will be predominantly a pictorial publication including among its 350 pages, 8 four-color pictures. Six of these photographs will be concerned with campus subjects and the other two will be copies or original Murillo portraits of St. Thomas of Villanova, the patron saint of the college.

The volume will be divided into four general sections: Historical, Students and Faculty, Sports, and Extra-Curricular Activities.

The historical section will present the history of the first 100 years of Villanova College's existence. It will include pictures of the Randolph Mansion, the original home of the College. From there it will carry on through the various phases of the life of the College up to and including pictures of the impressive Centennial Convocation ceremonies last May.

The second section will be devoted to pictures and write-ups of the members of the faculty and senior class. An effort has been made to present these in a fresh, interesting fashion.

The third section, which will probably be the most popular with the majority of the students, is the sports section. It will include pictures of last year's football team as well as outstanding action "snots" from their games. Basketball, track, and baseball receive equally representative treatment. Intramural sports are also featured in this section.

The fourth section, on extra-curricular affairs, is devoted to the activities of the various clubs, fraternities, and seminars on the campus. As an added feature a special 8-page section has been prepared featuring the Navy V-12 Unit at the College.

AIEE Plans Trip To Franklin Institute

At its first meeting of the semester last Thursday the Villanova Branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers made tentative plans to conduct a trip to the Franklin Institute, on Tuesday, Nov. 30. Final preparations will be made at the meeting which will be held on Monday, Nov. 29, at 3:30 P. M. in the Dynamo Laboratory.

Thanksgiving Mass

"A Mass of Thanksgiving will be said in the College Chapel on Thursday morning, November 25, at 7:15 A. M. It will be offered as a prayer of thanks for all the blessings, spiritual and temporal, that God has bestowed upon the College, the Faculty, and the entire Student-body during the centennial year.

"Much of the traditional festivity of Thanksgiving Day will necessarily be curtailed. Despite the rationing of the material things of life there is much to be thankful for. In the traditional American manner let us thank God that we live in a land whose heritage is freedom."

PKP Will Stage Harvest Dance On Saturday Evening

Freddy Herman and His Orchestra To Be Featured at Informal Hop; Arthur Roth Heads Committees

Known in previous years as the "Owl-Hop," because it was held the week of the Temple game, and last year taking the form of an "inter-frat" dance, Villanova's annual Fall frolic will be held next Saturday, Nov. 27, as a Harvest Dance. Phi Kappa Pi, the campus engineering fraternity, is sponsoring the affair which is to be held at the Field house under the General Chairmanship of Arthur Roth. Dancing will be from 9 P. M. to 1 A. M.

The Decoration Committee, headed by John Breen and William Doyle, has concluded its plans for a harvest theme. They center about the lavish use of corn stalks, straw, and pumpkins for furnishing a rustic atmosphere. A welcome feature at previous dances, the arrangement of a comfortable lounge on the stage, will again be provided.

Freddy Herman's Orchestra

John McManus, A.S., and Herbert Bansbach, A.S., Co-Chairmen of the Music Committee, have engaged a local orchestra, Freddy Herman. Herman's outfit has been favorably received at several former Villanova affairs for which they have played. The band has been playing in and around Philadelphia for the past ten years. At present, Herman features Ruth Haynes as vocalist and plays a strictly "danceable" style of music.

Advance ticket sales have been a little below par, but ticket-sellers Fred Gerngross, A.S., Carton Conway, A.S., and Frank Quinn, A.S., expect a definite pick-up in advance sales this week. The price of admission is $1.65. Anyone desiring to purchase tickets may contact any of these men.

Square Dance Feature

An added attraction will be presented in the form of an occasional square dance. The Committee intends to supply a "caller" to direct this rural form of terpsichorean entertainment, and promises all those who enter into the spirit of it an enjoyable time.

Refreshments are being arranged for by Louis Eni and James Correale. They plan to include apple cider as an additional fostering of the theme.

Students desiring a date for the Hop should contact John McManus, A.S., 251 Mendel Hall, Carton Conway, A.S., 249 Mendel Hall, or Harold O'Connor, day hop. These men have made arrangements with the nearby girls' colleges to secure dates for the occasion.

Engineer Plans New Circulation System

With the next edition of the Villanova Engineer, a new circulation system will be inaugurated. The staff plans to personally deliver the magazine to the rooms of civilian resident and Navy V-12 and Marine engineering students. The Day-hops will receive their copies during one of their classes. Through the system, every engineer will be sure to get a copy of the monthly.

Frank Solis, AS, Circulation Manager, has requested that all Day-hops co-operate by turning in their class schedule to him or one of the other staff members. With this infirmation he will arrange to have the Engineer distributed during one of their classes.

The November Issue will feature interesting and timely articles by Arthur Roth, on the testing of ship models prior to actual construction; and Anthony Mannino, on the reproduction of sound on motion picture film.

Fred Gerngross, as Editor in Chief, again urges all men who have literary interests in technical subjects to contact one of the staff. Articles on current topics in the engineering world are particularly welcomed.

TUESDAY - - - - - - - - NOVEMBER 23, 1943

Thanksgiving Day, 1943

IN just two days Thanksgiving Day, 1943 version, will be upon us. More so than during the past few years, we, as individuals and as co-fighter-planners of a better world in the great network of the United Nations, have numerous reasons for being grateful during this, the day set aside by each succeeding generation of Americans for thanking the Giver of all things.

Without being unduly optimistic, we are presently able to see definite signs for ultimate victory upon a horizon heretofore shrouded with doubt and discouragement. With every passing hour the hope for success strengthens as a gigantic wave of military might surges over a bewildered and out-thought adversary. In Europe the all-out effort is on from both the east and south, while "defensive" strategy in the Pacific has evolved into major routings of the enemy. What a contrast to Thanksgiving Day 24 or even 12 months ago!

With all due respect to the forces throughout the world we humbly give thanks that such deeds have been possible.

What better way have we to inwardly and ostensibly show that appreciation than to to offer up man's greatest act of thanksgiving by attending Mass in the College Chapel on this Thanksgiving Day?

—G. A. L.

THE Villanovan has lately been the object of much criticism because its business staff has been asked to solicit a subscription fee from each of the six hundred servicemen on the campus. Only about one-sixth of them has cooperated; the others who, by the way, are the first to grab issues on a Tuesday afternoon, grumble about having to pay for them—but they never do!

In peacetime the paper was self-supporting, but with the current high cost of materials and the great reduction in income from the two chief sources, the organization has had to begin balancing its books in red ink. Only comparatively few civilian students, whose subscription fees are collected with their tuition, remain on the campus; nationally advertising corporations, once a Godsend to college newspapers, have taken to the ether and devote only a fraction of their former revenue to printed ads.

To make matters worse, circulation is at an all-time high. Approximately 2000 copies are being sent to the boys in the service camps, and we could hardly be expected to ask them to pay. A weekly paper containing the names of old classmates and friends is like a letter from home for many of the boys. However, under present conditions it is doubtful whether we will be able to continue sending them.

It is obvious that, no matter how difficult the situation, the paper must be made to attain some sort of financial balance. Somebody must pay, and to whom, other than the ones who actually read it and for whom it is designed, should this obligation go?

We leave this question for you weekly readers of the unaccounted-for five-hundred copies to answer.

Meet the Boys

Frank and Jim Are B. S.'s in Chemistry; Tony And Phil Each Hold a Presidency

ONE of Good Counsel Hall's pinochle playing addicts, Frank Vengrofski was born August 17, 1922, in Hazleton, Pa. He enrolled in Villanova's chemistry school after completing his course at West Hazelton High School. Although one of the more quiet fellows in school, Frank is well-liked and respected by all who come in contact with him. Due to the present unsettled state of affairs he, unlike many of the more optimistic, has formulated no definite plans for the future.

BORN July 13, 1922, Jim Henry comes from Lewistown, Pa., where he had attended the Lewistown High School. Always a worker, Jim is heading for his B. S. in Chemistry in February. While here at Villanova he joined Phi Kappa Pi, Engineering fraternity, and the American Chemical Society. When asked what he intends to do after graduation, "Henry James" looked up from his books, smiled, and in his quiet way remarked, "That is up to Uncle Sam."

Anthony J. Mannino was born in the old borough of Brooklyn, New York, on July 11, 1922. He moved to Philadelphia at an early age, and attended South Philadelphia High School. He went to Drexel Institute of Technology for two years before entering Villanova in October, 1942, as a junior in the Electrical Engineering School.

Tony is quite active in campus life. Besides being Chairman of the college branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, he is a member of Phi Kappa Pi and the honorary Math Society.

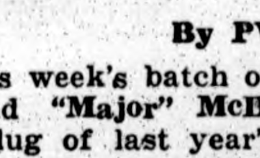
After graduation, Tony plans to enter the Navy or secure a job in industry where his engineering ability can be used to best advantage.

BORN in Philadelphia on November 16, 1921, Philip J. Cellucci attended Overbrook High School before matriculating here as a freshman in September, 1940. He is enrolled in the Civil Engineering School.

Phil is President of the campus chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers and Sergeant-at-Arms for the engineering fraternity. He much prefers the duties which these positions entail to the weekly drudgery of helping get the Villanovan into circulation, but fulfills all of his many obligations with equal vigor.

Phil wants to get into the Army immediately upon graduation, but may accept a position in defense work for a while.

Camp To Campus



By PVT. JOHN BITTIG

From this week's batch of mail we find "Major" McDonald, sparkplug of last year's basketball team, out on maneuvers in Texas. With him is Ed Grote. Both expect to be sent to Camp Polk when the maneuvers are completed.

Pvt. Bill Kelly, at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, finally received a weekend pass so he headed for Roanoke, the nearest civilization. When he arrived there he found the city temporarily occupied with a temperance society "convention." Better luck next time!

Seaman, second class seems to be a popular rating with the Villanova men in the Navy. Among them we have Ralph De Flavius who has a complaint to make about the Sea Bees. To quote Ralph, "They go out to sea but make no honey." Morris Bingham, Seaman Second Class, has been attached to the chaplain's office at Sampson Naval Training Station, New York. He assisted in the religious registration of nine thousand new men and is to be especially congratulated for holding instruction for seventy-three being converted to Catholicism, being Baptized and making their First Communion and Confirmation.

Living In Style

Next we have Nicholas Marziani, seaman second class, who is living pretty lavishly for a Navy man. He is living at the Victoria Hotel in Boston and attending Burdett College. There he is studying the Naval accounting system and finds it even more confusing than Mr. Schaeffer's classes

G. I. Definitions:

Barracks: Crap game with roof over it.

Sailor: Wolf in ship's clothing.

Sir: What Sergeant says to an officer instead of "Hey You!"

Word has been received from Fletcher Field, Clarksdale, Mississipi that Aviation Cadet James Burns, former Wildcat pitcher, has sustained serious injuries in a crash at that air base. Jim had previously been selected squadron adjutant and was in charge of four hundred cadets. Best wishes for a quick recovery, Jim.

Camp Tourist?

Pfc. Paul McFarland has really been on the move, although all his transfers have been within the same camp. He has been in six different barracks and as many different units at David Field, Augusta, Georgia.

Roger Reardon at Camp Roberts, California believes that he may be placed on the permanent cadre at that camp.

At Fort Riley, Kansas, Ernie Morrin is a member of the Mechanized Cavalry specializing in signal communications and radio operation. Upon the completion of his course he will receive a diploma and a raise in rank.

Well, another day, another dollar sixty-six and two thirds cents!!!

just tomfoolery—

By TOM HITCHELL

WHEN it rains, it pours. . . maybe I'm being trite, but what better colloquial expression could be applied to this past weekend? Three great days: Friday, Saturday and Sunday (but not always) which brought back memories of those sugarcoated pre-Pearl Harbor College days when campus life was something to write home about, and a Physics report was an item you'd save for a rainy day. But all good things come to an end. . .there's always Monday.

ALL ABOARD:

The Drum and Bugle Corps made their public debut at Rosemont's Bond Rally Friday night as an added attraction. John Scola's baton twirler may have been slightly hindered by the low rafters in the gym,, but that didn't stop the gals from squealing (Sinatra style) when Johnny strutted his stuff. This is one time the psychologists can't blame the feminine upheaval upon "that underfed, undernourished, sex appeal" . . . Jack Foreman considered Betty the main attraction at the rally, and became too interested in coal mines and Wilkes-Barre to worry about Bonds and Stamps. Ken Lynn was so fascinated with one of our neighboring collegians, that he did a Mandrake act and disappeared with the lass for the evening.

GETTING UP STEAM:

Saturday afternoon; another Temple game, another Villanova victory! Thanks to Jordan Olivar and the entire team for another successful gridiron season. While Al Postus, Ed Burns, Al Kasulin, and John Siano were running up that 34-7 score, the Blue and White fans were keeping things moving up in the stands. Newt Ward rendered a trumpet solo about half time, but the Temple drum majorettes stole the show when it came to providing the most appealing entertainment.

Caught off guard were Obie O'Brien wooing a pretty blonde, and Frank Quinn hotdogging with an appetizing lovely between halves. Brad Johnson turned up with "leftovers" from the Holy Cross game, and Bob Schwartz was so happy that he didn't care if his horse didn't win!! Pat Malone was again the man of the hour sporting a boutonniere of defense stamps that matched his healthy, rosy, complexion.

ANCHORS AWEIGH:

After the Temple massacre, the Owls held an Open House Wake. Paying their respects from Simpson were Andy Virgillio, Frank Quinn, and Lou and Bill Pease. Lou Slater was going to join the boys, but instead went to see "Guadalcanal Diary" because he wanted "more action." Maybe there was no shooting at the Temple shindig, but from the reports of Bob Gruss, Mandy Alvarez, and Charlie Miranda, there was plenty of action!!! Even the Marines were there; Foster Blough, Gene Konopka, and John Killellea, so you see Lou, both affairs had plenty in common.

At the same time Immaculata was doing the honors in another part of town. Don Rugen and Mary turned up at the dinner dance just in time for dessert??? Larry Schmitt spent the evening playing Romeo with that Boston accent and New England line. Bill Carter was really "Mr. Lucky"; lovely date plus car provided.

FULL SPEED AHEAD:

Tom Schubert, Herb Lamb, Bob Lawlor, and Tom Welch were some of the Villanova gobs on shore leave at the Fall Promenade of Chestnut Hill. Our sophomore engineers really monopolized things. Andy Murphy was seen "tripping the light fantastic," while Don Reinhardt was showing a preference for long intermissions. Congratulations to Estelle Topoleski, chairman of Dance Committee, for presenting of the Mount's best proms . . . Sunday afternoon, Rosemont played host at a Tea Dance, and again we were well represented by such B.T.O.'s as "Hazelton" Corrigan and "Centralia" May . . . don't forget the Harvest Dance; see you there Saturday night!

WELL, with the traditional Temple game now in the proverbial bag and the grid season finished, it is about time that somebody handed Coach Jordan Olivar, his staff, and the players that good old-fashioned pat on the back for a job well done.

A month before the season opened, there was no semblance of a team, no coaching staff, and no schedule. However, on Sept. 26, the Villanovans traveled to Muhlenberg and returned to the Main Line campus as the victors by a score of 35-12. Journeying to West Point the following Saturday, they suffered the first setback of the season, 27-0, as the Cadets started on a rampage that was to end with them ensconced in third place of the Nation.

Opening their home season at Shibe Park, the Blue and White lost to the Sailors from Sampson Naval Training Station, 17-7 in a game which was marked by the stellar play of a former 'Cat luminary, Andy Stopper. The Wildcats ended their two game losing streak the next week against the Bisons from Bucknell, and in the second night game of the season against Lakehurst Naval Air Station pulled their percentage mark above the .500 level. Then came the mid-semester, and six of the Main Liners were ordered elsewhere by the Navy and Marines.

However, in the next game, The Villanovans displayed their best brand of ball, and ran the Tigers from Princeton University completely into the ground as they registered a 45-22 triumph. In the first game of what is hoped will be a long series, the Crusaders from Holy Cross managed to emerge as the winners of a hard fought 12-7 game.

Following this was the 34-7 trouncing which was administered to the all-civilian squad from Temple, and the subsequent end of the season.

Boxing, Swimming Meets Scheduled

The swimming meet schedule has now been drawn up by the Rev. E. B. McKee O.S.A,. Moderator of intramural Athletics and Chief Specialist Robert Beck. As yet, however, a date has not been set when the meet will be held.

There will be total of eight events. The four racing events will include 50 yard and 100 yard freestyle, 50 yard breaststroke, and 50 yard backstroke races. The relay events will be a four man 100 yard and medley relays.

In the meet held during the last semester, all diving had to be performed from the platforms built by the Navy for ship abandoning drills of the trainees. However, since then the diving board which had been ordered has arrived, and thus the diving will be done from this. The program will close with a special exhibition of acquatic warfare arranged by Chief Beck. The demonstration will be performed by a group of picked trainees.

The date for the boxing tournament will be announced shortly. Due to certain unforseen delays, the training program has not been given the green light. The training ring is up in the main deck locker room, and the punching bags will be hung very soon.

An added feature to the boxing show will be a series of wrestling matches. The rules for training in preparation for this event hold as strictly as they do for boxing. Sailors and marines are advised to use their P. T. periods for working out. Civilians who have free periods when the trainees have P. T. class should make use of the opportunity by training at that time. All men, trainees and civilians alike, are urged to put in as much extra time in practice as their studies will allow.

Main Liners Triumph 34-7 In Annual Game With Owls

Postus Sets Record, First To Score In Three Games; Burns Crosses Double Stripe Twice, Kasulin Once In Traditional Clah

By HUGH O'REILLY, AS.

Smothering a young Owl eleven under a powerful offensive net, the Wildcat service team clawed out number ten victory in this the sixteenth consecutive running of the rivalry with a convincing 34-7 triumph. Before a crowd of some 10,000, Villanova's game captain, Al Postus, gave a marvelous exhibition of his versatility by running, passing and kicking his team and himself each to an individual record.

The Main Line team broke the scoring for the series, racking up 34 points as compared to the former high of 33. In this process of point gathering, Albert Postus, Villanova's ace back, twice rambled around end from the Owl twenty-six and in these two plays established for himself an individual record. In sixteen great games, 960 minutes of spirited rivalry, Al is the first player, Owl or 'Cat, to score in three games of this bitter series. Twice in victory and once in defeat has this stellar player crossed the Templar pay-off stripe.

In 1941 the Owls edged out the Main Liners in a 14-13 count, using the great Andy Tomasic; but even in defeat, Al, a newcomer to the college griiron, waxed brilliant as he ran 80 yards for a touchdown, forming the initial rung on his record ladder.

79 Yard Boot

Highlighting the first half were in succession: Postus' success on the new record, and Al Kasulin's great 79 yard punt. In the first period the Wildcat team racked up a quick fourteen points. The first was a 5 yard off tacgle slant by Kasulin which score was quickly followed by a second as Postus rambled around end for a marker and his record. Conversions were made by John Siano. In the early moments of the second quarter Postus again bulleted through the line to make the score twenty to nothing as Konopka failed to convert.

Now came the Templars' one offensive gem of the day. After a succession of quick short passes by Hubka put the Templars on the 'Cat 41, Tony drifted back about ten yards and, winding up, heaved a long one to Marco Papi who took it on the 15 and galloped across unmolested, thus making the score at half-time, 20-7.

After the kickoff of the second half, Temple put on a drive which was halted by the injury to their mainstay, Hubka. During this quarter of the game, the Owls took it upon themselves to cause some trouble to their heavier opponents although each threat of a score was quickly snuffed out. Neither team was able to score in this period although the Wildcats did so as Burns managed to cross across with but two minutes gone in the last quarter. Siano then dropped back and put a perfect boot between the posts but a holding penalty nullified it and the Wildcats were put back on the 17 yard line to try again. Again Siano, the big tackle from Georgetown put the ball through the uprights for the most spectacular extra point of the season.

Court League Opens As Alumni, Marines, And Day-Hops Win Games

Alumni Impressive in 29-10 Triumph Over Mendel as Walters Stars; Marines Under Direction of Fr. Falvey Victors in Low Scoring Affair

Thursday evening, Nov. 17, the Intramural Basketball League opened its 1943-44 season in Alumni Hall as the Day-Hops trounced the Residents, 33-12, Fedigan lost to the Marines from Austin, 19-12, and Mendel lost to Alumni 29-10.

The Day-Hops got off to a good start in their quest for the championship of the campus by easily subduing the Resident Students by the above score. Playing fiifteen minute halves, the grey-clad team under the direction of Rev. Dante Girolami, O. S. A., held a 23-6 half-time lead. Consistently driving upfloor, and catching the boys from the civilian halls off guard, the Commuters led by Newt Ward, and Paul Simpson, with 10 and 8 points respectively went on to never doubtful triumph.

The Marines opposed the Navy from Fedigan Hall in the second game and came out on top 19-12 in a close game. Uncorking a fighting, in addition to a skillful five, the Leathernecks led all the way but had no easy time of it. Fedigan trying hard for a victory in its opening game threw all the reserves it could into the tilt but the Austinites came out on the long end of the first half 11-6 score. In the second canto, the Navy held the Marines to a one point advantage, 7-6, but the first half edge was too much for them to overcome and they went down to a 19-12 defeat.

In the finale of the evening, Alumni, winner of last year's league gave warning that it will bear watching this year with a 29-10 win over Mendel. Led by Captain Joe Walters with 10 points, and Charlie Critedes with 9, the Alumni Navy completely outclassed their fellow gobs as they dropped longs and shorts from all over the floor to sew up the game in the first half, 18-2, and then went on to the final score in the second session. The game was featured throughout by the passing of the eventual winners in addition to their uncanny shooting ability. Against this the Mendelites displayed a weak ineffectual zone

Navy and Marine Transfers From Other Colleges Loom as Possible Starters

With the starting of organized basketball practice yesterday comes the inevitable sneak pre-view, and pre-season predictions of the coming court season, and consequently a rough sketch based on campus chatterings, and early season workouts has been drawn up in the literary sense for comment by the local campus clairvoyants.

One of the sharp eyed boys who often sends the sphere slashing through the net is John Ramsey, a sailor from Alumni Hall. A natural ball player, John is an excellent floor man and set shot. Last year he was a member of St. Joseph's five and played varsity while still a freshman. Another dead eye, Bill Feeney promises to be the man to keep the ball in Wildcat hands with his tricky floor style and excellent backboard work. Bill comes to Villanova from Georgetown where as a star of the court team he played in the Madison Square Garden National Invitation Tournament.

Big aggressive Don Osterman, former All State player from Michigan, and veteran from last year also has shown to advantage in getting the ball off the backboard. Another veteran Frank Frascella, a good defensive player with an exceptional eye, should give any Wildcat opponent plenty of trouble because of his uncanny anticipation of plays.

CPO Zukas, Former Temple Grid Star, Ordered Here From S. M. U.

When the Navy and Marine trainees returned from their one week's leave, they found that the Navy Department in Washington had ordered a new Chief specialist, John Zukas, here to take the place of Chiefs Cherundolo Pritchard, and Sandig who were assigned elsewere.

Thirty years ago Chief Specialist John Zukas was born in Coaldale, Pa. As a boy he was brought up in the rugged coal region section and attended Coaldale High. During his senior year, he was undoubtedly the best lineman in the coal regions, a section which has produced more good football material than any other in the country.

Played In Bowl

After graduation from Coaldale High, he matriculated at Temple University, where he was destined to become one of the finest tackles in the school's history. He was the first string tackle on the 1933 and 1934 teams coached by the inimitable Glenn S. "Pop" Warner. The latter team was the best aggregation that has ever represented the Cherry and White on the gridiron, and, was the team that handed Villanova its worst set back of the Owl-'Cat series. In fact, this team was so good that it was given sure to be on the starting five, Phil Jakeway. A man who can really drive hard for the basket as well as make the shot once he gets in there, he should fit in quite well with mentor Al Severance's pick-off system of play.

The handy man of the team, Charlie LaBelle promises to come in mighty handy in bolstering the Villanova squad. A new man on the varsity, Charlie is an honor graduate of last year's All Intramural team.

Bob Forrest, a big fellow just in from the fleet shows promise and may prove to be an important cog in the Wildcat team. The other candidates are mostly smaller fellows who make up what they lack in skill by their aggressiveness. This group includes Bill Russell, Harry Winter, Joe O'Keefe, and Newt Ward.

a bid to that great New Year's day classic, the Sugar Bowl, in New Orleans, La., before some 50,000 fever-pitched fans.

Enjoyed Celebration

The two standouts on the team were Dave Smukler, the unstoppable pile-driver and John Zukas, the left tackle and best defensive player on the team. Smukler as Wildcat fans will remember made every All-American eleven that year while Chief Zukas received quite a number of honorable mentions.

Chief Zukas says he will never forget that trip to New Orleans. The Templars stayed in the sunny south for two weeks and besides playing in the Sugar Bowl attended the gala celebration. He especially enjoyed the gay festivities of that colossal New Year's pageant.

State Champ

Being graduated from North Broad Street institution in the June of 1935, he received a degree in Transportation. After leaving school, he decided to become a teacher, and subsequently he was employed at Blythe High School, Cumbola, Pa. While there he assisted Jack Shields, present coach at St. Joseph's Prep, in Philadelphia, with the football team. With the powerful Warner system installed at Blythe, under his direction, the school became the scourge of the Anthracite Eastern Conference, and the State Champion by defeating Clearfield High School, Western Champion.

In April of 1942, Chief Zukas decided to join the Navy, and was sent to Norfolk for training. Since he had experience in handling boys, through teaching and coaching, his officers decided that his talents could best be used as a Chief Specialist in Physical Education. After indoctrination he volunteered for the Seabees, and spent a year with them until he was transfrred to Bainbridge N.T.S. From there he moved to Southern Methodist University to train the new V-12 trainees.

Line Coach

He was ordered to Villanova as a physical instructor, to train the future officers of the Navy and Marines and arrived here Oct. 30.

On his arrival he immediately assumed the duties of line coach, and drilled his charges harder than they had been drilled heretofore. The result of this was certainly noticeable in the last three games of the season. Last Saturday Villanova played his Alma Mater and handed them their worst defeat of the sixteen year series. You can be sure that while he might not have relished the large score, still he was just as glad of the Main Liners' victory as the most ardent Wildcat fan.

Third Campus Bond Drive Organized; Committee Of 10 To Manage Sales

Fr. Stanford Appoints Student Committee Headed By Fitzgibbons; Goal Is $5000

REV. E. V. STANFORD, O. S. A.

By ANTHONY J. MANNINO

The Villanova College Student Committee, which was just recentlyly formed under the chairmanship of John J. Fitzgibbons, today will launch Villanova's Third War Bond Campaign, which is intended to continue until Jan. 31. The Committee has set its goal at $5,000.

The start of the campaign was preceded, last Friday, by a war bond raffle in which a twenty-five dollar war bond was given to the holder of the lucky ticket. Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., in the presence of a handful of students, drew the lucky stub from a light globe which proved to be very convenient for the occasion. Mr. Joseph J. Foley of 3041 North 7th St., Phila., was the holder of the winning ticket. Joseph Foley Jr., a member of War Bond Committee, after being informed of his father's good fortune, said, "This campaign is a great thing. We should all do what we can to help make it a success."

> "The obligation of each and every citizen to provide maximum financial support for carrying on the war is very evident. The College administration has been investing its scholarship and other restricted funds in War Bonds. Members of the faculty are regularly setting aside part of their income for the purchase of War Bonds. In order to complete the picture at Villanova, each and every student must do his part, no matter how small, to make regular purchases of War Bonds and Stamps.
> "I, therefore, urge the students to support most energetically, the work of the Student Committee for the purchase of War Bonds."
> —Fr. Stanford

Headquarters in Mendel

The proceeds from the raffle will go towards buying a twenty-five dollar war bond which will be awarded to the person or organization whose war bond and war stamp sales is the highest, provided that the total sales of that person or organization is above $500.

For the duration of the campaign, a war bond booth will be set up on the first floor in Mendel Hall. At least one man will be stationed there from 12 P. M. to 2 P. M. daily from Monday to Friday inclusive. War stamps will be sold, and also orders for war bonds will be taken.

Hope for Pennant

It was revealed that colleges in which 90% of the students have bought at least one war stamp in a given month may fly the Student Minute Man Flag during the following month. The Flag is a white banner displaying a minute Man surrounded by thirteen stars. The committee is confident that this flag will soon be flying at Villanova College. The faculty may also qualify for a flag of their own.

The committee does not expect this sum of money to come wholly from the pockets of the students, but their full cooperation in every way possible is anticipated in order to make this campaign successful.

Other Schools Cited

Fitzgibbons confessed that $5,000 is rather a high goal, but defended it by citing the fact that recently Rosemont College raised the same amount in the course of one week. He said, "If the girls did it in one

"The Hut"

Campus Neighbors Provide Recreational Facilities For Villanova's Servicemen

When the Navy or Marine men on the campus seek diversion or relaxation they wander down to the Hut, which is situated on the campus at Lancaster Pike. It is the only serviceman's recreation room at Villanova. The boys go to the Hut to enjoy themselves, reading, playing ping pong, chess or any of the other numerous games available. It is a place where they can spend that extra free hour or so having a good time, doing whatever they want.

The quarters were made available by Mrs. La Dow who operates the drug store on Lancaster and Spring Mill Roads. To equip and operate the hut financial help was needed. This help was enthusiastically given by a small group of residents living close by the campus on Hilldale Road. These people generously gave the facilities to keep the Hut in tip-top condition. They supplied ping pong tables, games, books, music and all necessary furnishings. They have given $700 to Mrs. La Dow and Mrs. Cummings to pay operating expenses.

Good Neighbors

The people who so willingly gave this assistance are: Mrs. M. La Dow, Mrs. J. H. Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Claflin, Mrs. W. Gallagher, Mrs. Tunnel, Mr. C. Shindan, Mrs. Huver, Mr. Diffenbacker, and Mrs. Harrison of Newtown Square.

The Hut, in addition to the facilities offered on the premises, has contact with families in the neighborhood who entertain the boys, who like a home cooked meal, at dinner during the weekend. For the boys who so desire, it is only necessary that they leave their names at the Hut.

The Hut has no affiliations with any other service group or organization. It is operated solely for Villanova servicemen.

The managing of the recreation room is taken care of by Mrs. Cummings who arranges the frequent Saturday night dances held in the Hut. These affairs have been greatly appreciated by restricted trainees.

All that is asked of the men in return is that they be considerate and cooperative so that all may enjoy their spare time here at Villanova.

Many pleasant hours have been spent at the Hut during the week and at the Saturday night dances. We are fortunate in having neighbors who have taken such an interest in us.

NAVY NEWS

No, it's not Scuttlebutt

According to a regulation which went into effect yesterday, the prescribed uniform for enlisted Navy personnel is as follows:

Uniform of the Day—Undress Blue "A": Blue undress jumper, blue trousers, black socks, black shoes, watch cap.

Uniform for leave or liberty — Dress Blue "A": Blue dress jumper, ribbons, blue trousers, blue cap, neckerchief, black socks, and black shoes.

The Navy Office has just announced that all personnel restricted to the campus during weekends for disciplinary or scholastic reasons, and personnel whose status in the V-12 program is probationary, will be required to attend a study period in Room 215 Mendel between 1400 and 1600 on Saturdays and Sundays. A duty officer will be present at all times.

Weekend liberty now terminates at 2200 Sunday, instead of at 2400 as in the past. Restricted personnel will be given liberty on Saturday only from 1600 to 2200.

The Villanova Postoffice and Railroad Station have been declared "out of bounds" for V-12 trainees at all times except when they have permission from the Navy Office to go there to purchase train tickets or receive registered mail or to use the trains to go on liberty.

* * *

The Secretary of the Navy has requested that publicity be given the absolute necessity for mailing Christmas packages, cards, etc. early in the season. Failure of service men to cooperate last year caused a serious burden on the Post Office Dept.

Company Officers Changed For Term

Appointment of new Navy Company Officers was announced by the Navy Office on Wednesday, November 24. These men are due to hold these positions until the 1st of March. Most of the new student-officers are seniors and thus are being given an opportunity to develop their officer-like qualities here at Villanova before going on to Midshipmen's School.

Apprentice Seaman Henry E. Winter, former Mendel Company Commander, has been appointed Battalion Commander of the entire V-12 Unit. The other new appointees are as follows:

Fedigan Hall (Company A) — Company Commander, John E. McMahon, A.S.; 1st Platoon Leader, Pohn P. Brennan, A.S.; 2nd Platoon Leader, Joseph P. Mihalek, A.S.; 3rd Platoon Leader, Joseph McFarland, A.S.

Mendel Hall (Company B)—Company Commander, John S. McManus, A.S.; 1st Platoon Leader, William Powers, A.S.; 2nd Platoon Leader, Francis Quinn, A.S.; 3rd Platoon Leader, Carton Conway, A.S.

Comprehensive Exam For V-12'ers

A comprehensive Navy V-12 test is being given today to a majority of the service students here at Villanova. The test, comprised of two sections, includes English and physics in the morning session and mathematics and history during the afternoon. Science students will substitute chemistry in place of history. A total of 4½ hours is being alloted for the test.

The results of the examination will be used by the Navy, along with reports from the faculty and commanding officers, for guidance of the students. It has an added significance for the freshmen since it will be in the nature of a screening test, one that will place them in their proper position in the V-12 Program.

Student Council Meets, Bansbach Made Chairman

Newly Elected Representatives Of Halls And Campus Organizations Plan Active Year; Dance In January Anticipated

Final results of the tabulation of the ballots in the Student Council election were released by Herbert Bansbach, A.S., late last week. Bansbach, last semester's vice-chairman, succeeds Richard Ryan, AS, as chairman of the organization.

Each Service Hall was allowed to elect two representatives, while the smaller civilian halls each chose one. One delegate from each of the campus organizations comprise the remainder of the body.

Those students who held positions on the Council last semester did not automatically retain them, but it was possible for them to be reelected. Pvt. Dominic Carrone and Peter Conway, A.S., were the only two men to repeat outside those who still remain as delegates of organizations. Pvt. Joseph Dervin was the other Marine chosen, and Frank O'Connor, A.S., is the other engineer from Mendel Hall to be elected, while Alumni picked George Haupt, A.S., and Harold Peiffer, A.S.

William Boyle, Dominic Parrone and Patrick Regan from O'Dwyer, Simpson, and Delurey Halls respectively were the civilians chosen to be in the group. The Science and Arts day students selected Albert Dagit, the commuting Engineers chose William Cassidy, and the Commerce and Finance Day Hops picked Joseph Foley.

Phi Kappa Pi, the campus engineering fraternity, sends Francis X. Quinn, A.S., while Delta Pi Epsilon, the Commerce and Finance fraternity, commissions Hugh Burns, A.S., to represent it.

The college publications are represented again by their directors: Frederick Gerngross, A.S., of the "Engineer," John Fitzgibbons of the "Belle Air," and George Hoberg, A.S., of the Villanovan.

Pleased with the caliber of the men who have been chosen for the council, Chairman Bansbach believes that, with their help, he shall be able to revive the near-dormant organization.

"For those who might not know it," the new chairman added, "anyone in the student body can be on the council. It meets weekly and concerns itself primarily with inter-school relations and social affairs for the student body. The organization of student morale is an added issue with which we shall concern ourselves during the current semester."

With the election results, skeleton plans for future activity were revealed by the active novice chairman. They include cooperation with Phi Kappa Pi in the production of the intended amateur night, fostering of organized cheering at the coming sports events, and an attempt to bring one of the Coca-Cola "spotlight bands" to the campus for a performance.

"In the social vein, a dance is anticipated and we are hoping to repeat the success which we had at the Bobby Sherwood affair last semester," Bansbach concluded.

Necessarily hampered in their activities by present conditions, chairman Bansbach and the newly elected members of the Student Council intend to do their utmost to carry out their job and to see that the spirit of campus life is "as close as possible to the pattern followed in former years."

Honor Roll Status Awarded To 162

Twenty Percent Achieve 3.00 Averages or Better For Past Semester

Facts announced by the Registrar's office last week indicate that a substantial number of students are bearing up well under the highly accelerated program dictated by the Navy V-12 program.

In the first semester which included service men, 162 students achieved honor ratings in their various courses of study. This number represents nearly 20 percent of total enrollment. Of these, 11 men had perfect four point averages.

Ranking of schools according to the number of men honored follows exactly according to their relative sizes. The engineers came first with 92, while the science school had exactly half as many. There were 24 from the C. & F. school; and the School of Arts and Education, virtually deserted through wartime emphasis on technology, each produced but one honor student.

Eleven Make 4.00

Those with perfect averages were: Thomas Hitchell, junior education; Joseph Gerngross, freshman engineering; Frank Hinnenkamp, Harvey Bresler, and Hugh Hart, sophomore engineering; Philip Jakeway, Francis Motzenbecker, Patrick Murphy, and Louis Silva, junior engineering; John Dempsey and Louis Jakovic, sophomore science.

Leaders of classes besides those already mentioned were: William Walsh, senior C. & F.; Charles Koerwer, junior C. & F.; Ralph Cail, sophomore C. & F.; and James W. Sutton, freshman C. & F.; Melvin Samuels, senior science; William Drummy, junior science; and Richard Pettinato, freshman science; and Frederick Gerngross, senior engineering.

Following Honor Students

Trainees Invited

In a recent letter to Villanova's Chaplain, Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., Bishop Kenrick Council No. 2256 of the Knights of Columbus invited all servicemen to attend the parties in their club room, 117 Ardmore Ave., Ardmore, every Saturday evennig from 8:30 until 12.

There is dancing, pool, ping pong, shuffle board, and refreshments. Members of the Ladies Auxiliary have offered to do any necessary sewing or mending for the men in uniform.

The club rooms are also open on Sundays from 12 until 6 P. M.

Finance Your Future

INSPIRED by the recent sensational victories in the Gilbert Islands, the terrific pounding being administered to Berlin, and the steady advance in Italy, and recognizing that the continued advance of the Allied cause depends, among other things, upon the financial support given to our government, Villanova has inaugurated her second major War Bond Campaign.

It would indeed be folly to enumerate the myriad benefits gained by the individual and the nation as a whole with every purchase of invasion bonds and stamps. Everyone realizes that inflation must be curtailed; that arms and equipment are absolutely essential for the prosecution of the war. We, who still enjoy the security of the classroom, can supply the necessary means to these ends by subscribing to and purchasing as many bonds as stamps a possible.

Bonds are obtainable in Mendel Hall from any member of the Student Committee or from the Business Office five days a week. Give your complete support to the Villanova War Bond Campaign so that post-war plans can become realities at the successful termination of this conflict. Don't crib your way through this campaign by relying upon others to do your share.

Originally they were "Defense" Bonds; then they were "War" Bonds. Now they are being called "Invasion" Bonds. Let's do our best to make them "Victory" Bonds!

A Penny Saved—

MOST people do not realize that conservation is analogous to production. Our success in this war is directly dependent on our ability to produce the equipment necessary for fighting, but this ability is naturally limited by the scarcity of the basic materials which we need to manufacture them. We must, therefore, attempt aid production, and the most logical way to do this is to conserve the things necessary to it, and if possible to lessen the requirements for produced goods.

Consider the interdependent elements which operate in the entire conservation program as a result of personal and individual savings. Preventing waste in electrical power by turning off unused lights, for instance, results in a saving of the coal used to generate the electricity, the transportation system used to carry the coal, and the manpower required in all phases until ultimately the accumulated saving has exactly the same net effect as increased production. Herein lies the solution to shortages and rations.

Villanova could be a potential production power if her students applied the principles of conservation to their daily college life. Needlessly burning lights, turned on but unused radios and faucets, wasted foodstuffs, etc., can readily be transformed, through cooperative efficiency, into replenished supplies. Saving does not mean deprivation, but only refraining from the lavish squandering of useful commodities.

Cooperate; prevent unnecessary waste!

Meet the Boys

Moe, Cart, And Jack Are M. E.'s Three, While Chick Will Soon A Doctor Be

By JACK DEMPSEY, A.S.

FIRST in today's long series of Mechanical Engineering students to graduate in February comes John Louis Allen of nearby Highland Park.

Jack Allen first saw the sun rise (he was born at 5:30 A. M.) on May 19, 1922. For the next few years there is a peaceful obscurity followed by his appearance at St. Lawrence's School in his home town. Again we draw the curtain and the next scene shows our engineer to be entering St. Joe's Prep in Philadelphia.

From here on, however, there can be no drawing of curtains, because Jack has been in the limelight almost continually. Active in sports, he swam, played varsity football, and rowed on the crew that became the local high school champ.

Once he hit Villanova in '40, however, Jack seemed to consider his sporting days at an end. Therefore, he confined himself to the less strenuous but no less difficult task of helping the various campus organizations put over their activities.

Rather hesitant at first about choosing a particular course, Jack really went to town once he made up his mind. As stated above he is now an M.E.—but definitely—and has been a member of his brotherhood's society for three years in addition to holding down the job of Vice-President for the engineering frat.

This column certainly hopes and sincerely believes that the old adage about "local boy makes good" will be in keeping with Jack's future, both in the Navy and afterward.

ON the eighth of June, Anno Domini 1922, was born in Philadelphia a lad who was soon to bear the rather imposing name of Peter Carton Conway — "Cart" to you.

Moreover, that day started Pete on his way to everlasting fame as the laziest Villanovan in the globe —an accomplishment of which he is rather proud. (He proved his right to the crown by dozing off in the middle of our interview).

Strictly a local boy, Cart's school places read like a Suburban Philadelphia timetable: Sacred Heart Grammar School in Manoa, Upper Darby High School, and, last but

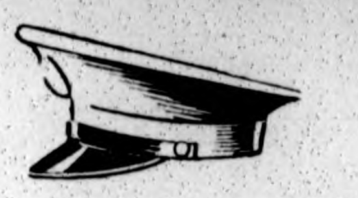
Camp To Campus



By PVT. JOHN BITTIG

FROM Fort Benning comes word that Captain James Sweeney, former public relations officer of the First Student Training Regiment, the Infantry School, practices what he preachers. Winner of a $25 War Bond in the recent "Bayonet" cartoon contest, he immediately addressed the bond to his nephew in Philadelphia with the warning, "do not open 'till Christmas." Sweeney's prize-winning cartoon, which appeared in the Nov. 11th "Bayonet" stressed giving a War Bond as the ideal Christmas Gift.

An outstanding contribution of articles and cortoons to the "Bayonet," he also starred in the Army film "Lt. Smith, U. S. Army," playing the part of the Tactical Officer.

A graduate of Villanova College, Captain Sweeney is a Philadelphian, born and bred. Entering the business world after graduation from college, he was associated with the Anglo News Co. and later became a departmental manager of the Barron Collier Advertising Organization.

In February, 1941 he answered his country's call and joined the Army. With determination to advance himself, he rapidly rose from buck private to master sergeant during the first year. He was selected by his superior officers to pursue the officer candidate course and was graduated in June, 1942 and has since been assigned to the First Signal Training Regiment.

Of the three Dwyer brothers, formerly at Villanova, two are in the Navy while the other is in the Army. Jack Dwyer is completing his last few weeks at Marianna Army Air Field, Marianna, Florida and will receive his commission as a pilot about the 5th of December. Jack was flight leader of his class. Walter Dwyer, a Lieutenant (j.g.), is just beginning an advanced course at the Armed Guard Center Gulf Port, Mississippi. Bill Dwyer, the youngest of the three and also in the Navy, is a seaman first class, and is stationed at a receiving station at Navy Yard "R", S. C.

Don Bradburn is a midshipman at the Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn. Don has been playing first string tackle on the 'Guardsman team this season. Last summer he crashed radio when he was interviewed as the "most typical coast guardsman."

Corporal William Jay Mowen, U.S.M.C.R., after graduating from Quartermaster School is now attending Ordnance Nomenclature School at Quantico, Virginia. Bill says that it's a "blitz" course concerning guns, ammunition, Quartermaster administration, and fire control.

Our sincere sympathy to John Kelleher whose mother died recently. John is now seeing action somewhere in the Aleutian Islands.

William Barthmaier received a second lieutenancy as a bombardier in the Army Air Corps on Nov. 15. Bill was commissioned at Victorville Field, Victorville, California, and has since been assigned to a field in South Carolina.

Congratulations to Major Joseph Bigley who was married the 20th of November. Major Bigley is stationed at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri.

Four more Villanovans in the service and now back in college are Frank Bassler, Jack Miller, Bill McDonald, and Raymond Kordwitz. The latter three are engineering students at Drexel, State College of Washington, and the University of Missouri, respectively, while Frank Bassler is taking languages at Lafayette.

just tomfoolery—

By TOM HITCHELL

The time: Saturday night from nine till one; the scene: Villanova's Field House; the occasion: Phi Kappa Pi's Harvest Dance which turned out to be a highly successful affair. Practically everybody was there. . .Eleanor was going to come, but changed her mind because it was too near! ! Special praise goes to the Decoration Committee for their splendid results in providing an impressively fitting "corny" setting.

HEP:

As to be expected, the engineers monopolized things for the evening. Bills Koness was on hand with Kay, whom he met at Chestnut Hill's Fall Prom last weekend. Mike Flynn dated his "A No. 1" Cassie. Harold O'Connor again courted his Rosemont steady, and Tony Mannino had to desert P.K.P. for Carmella's prom at Girls' High in town. Sharpshooters Frank Doorley, Mike Cruise, Vince Silverio, Pat Reagan and Al Hurford couldn't miss this one. Joe King and Gene McGoldrick, both now at Penn in the V-5 program, returned to the Main Line for the event. Now that Gene is no longer "on the books," he and Rita finally got to a Villanova dance together ("hard fight folks, but we finally made it! ! !")

Bob Donovan encountered some femme trouble just before dance time. He ended up substituting a Swarthmore co-ed for one of Beaver's "For Beaver I Will" gals, and "Swished" 'against his better judgement. Ray Kaspar and Patsy, Bill Boyle and Shirley, and Jerry Lee and Lou were just a few of the noted couples enjoying Freddie Herman's music. There was also that Math student there who calls his girl friend Geometry because she's so plain and solid! Joe McFarland, Willy Doyle, and Moe Quinn joined the throng at the "Wissahickon" where things were still "brewing" after that fatal hour.

TWO:

Some of our Senior engineers will invade the Big Town tonight for the A.S.M.E. Convention tomorrow. Bound for Manhattan will be Arthur Roth, Bob Lukins, Lou Eni, and Jack Breen.

Bob Conway recently put an end to one "Betty episode" and is embarking upon another. There really must be something attractive about that name! Phil Cellucci ran into some wardrobe trouble last week while lending a hand trimming the Field House for Saturday night; more than the Field House was trimmed! !

THREE:

What's this tale about Bob Fitton receiving a telephone call from one of Philly's top sportswriters begging him for some 'inside stuff" concerning the Temple incident? Naturally Bob was willing to oblige until the supposed Scoop specialist stepped out of an adjacent phone booth in Austin. . .dirty trick, eh Bob? The latest rumor is that Bob has become an honorary member of the Bryn Mawr Fire Company ever since his La Guardia exploits last week!

FOUR:

The "Santa Clara" published by the University of Santa Clara tells the story about a young man who was sitting on a bench in the park with his fiancee in the romantic springtime. He looked into the girl's eyes and said: "Dear, I have always believed that to insure a happy future it is best that a man and his wife know each other's short comings as well as their good points before getting married. So to be frank I'll confess there are some people who say I am a little color blind." And the girl looked up at him in sympathy and said, "Yassuh, honey chile, ah knows dat." . . . That's all; even I can take a hint! ! !

Last Hurried Look At Football Season

By JORDAN OLIVAR

Let us take a last hurried look at our football season, and briefly review our games, and the highlights of the season.

The Muhlenberg fracas was a pleasant surprise as we came out on top 35-12 despite being pre-game underdogs. Val Jansante scintillated at end, and Al Postus had his pitching arm in mid-season form.

A sharp reversal, 27-0, followed at West Point where Army had too many Maxons and Minors. The Cadets did a bruising job, and we were lucky to have an open date before our next game. Billy Sullivan reached top form, and played sixty minutes of rib-rocking football.

Our first loss had came by land but our second came by sea as the Sailors from Sampson gave us a 17-7 shellacking. Here we sorely missed Johnny Dzitko who had been injured in the Army game. The only consolation we could derive from this one was that it took an ex-Villanovan, Andy Stopper, to beat us with his hit-the-spot passes.

Against Bucknell we finally got back in the win column again, 12-8. Al Kasulin put on a fine exhibition in Shibe Park, "mud capping" it with a 65 yard touchdown run. A pass, Postus to Sullivan, provided the winning marker.

Win Over Tigers

The Lakehurst game was the final one for many of our boys and they did a good job in their farewell, running up an early score giving all the squad a chance to play in the 27-14 victory. Joe Pezelski made one final brilliant dash on a reverse for an easy score and climatic finish.

The Princeton game was marked by the many new names in the starting lineup and the return of Johnny Dzitko. Despite their lack of experience the ex-subs played extremely well, and for the first time in history, Princeton was defeated by Villanova 45-22. Al Postus found a new battery mate in Milt Anderson and the combination was a success.

Finest Game

The three game win streak was broken by the Crusaders of Holy Cross in a heart breaking 12-7 defeat. Although Villanova was not conceded much of a chance, the team battled the Purple and White to a standstill in the pinches. To pick out an individual for praise in this game would be unfair to everybody concerned as the whole team played what was probably the finest game of the season.

Finally, came our much "pending" Temple game, stripped of its peacetime bonfires, rallies, and decorations. Al Postus lived up to all expectations, passing, running and kicking new marks for the record books. Ed Kolnaski reached his high of the year, both offensively and defensively, in this ball game.

Highlights

The highlights of the year? Well, Postus' pitch to Jansante for the first touchdown of the season; the goal line stand against Sampson when it took the Sailors four downs to move ahead a foot and a half; Kasulin breaking away from three tacklers and mudding it for his touchdown against Bucknell; Sullivan catching a pass-anytime; Postus running 85 yards futilely; little Lou Lopez blocking out mighty Connors for our touchdown against Holy Cross; and last, Siano's extra point against Temple after a fifteen yard penalty.

That's the season—not too good, not too bad. It might have been the former if—Minor, Davis, Myslinski, etc. had had a nice weekend leave when we visited West Point; if—Stopper still wore the Villanova Blue; if — whistles and horns didnt' blow for Postus; if—if—. . .

Coach In Huddle With Team

Swim Tournament Set For Dec. 20

The date for the proposed swimming tournament has definitely been set for Monday, December 20. Such was an announcement by Rev. E. B. McKee, O.S.A., Moderator of Intramural Athletics. Also included in Fr. McKee's statement was the fact that if the swimmers show enough promise, home and home meets will be arranged with Penn and Swarthmore.

Men have been appointed to take charge of the hall teams by Chief Specialist Beck, who along with Fr. McKee, is running the meet.

All who wish to participate may contact Chief Beck, and may substitute a swimming period from 4:15 to 5:00 P. M. any day in the week. However, a muster will be taken every day during this period so that it is imperative that all who sign up attend.

Boxing Postponed

The boxing night has been postponed until after the Christmas holidays because of the lack of training on the part of most of the fellows. Lou Lopez, football star of the past season, has agreed to train the glovemen. Lou helped out in the same capacity last year along with Johnny Dzitko. Some of last year's participants include Ben Paradee, who won a T.K.O. over Scotty Boyle, Rog Lattanza scored the same type of win over Sam Ciriaco. The man who was described as the best boxer in the show last year has also returned, as well as his victim. He is of course, Wally Breen and he handed the drubbing to Frank Solis who has returned to the campus this year as a Sailor.

Mellus Cited

An all-time tackle great here at Villanova, Johnny Mellus, class of '38, is at present being mentioned as a possible member of the All-Service team of America. Mellus, two years ago the All Pro choice while playing for the New York Giants, has been the player-coach and team captain of the Camp Davis Blue Brigade since then.

Day-Hops Lose To Marines 22-21 On One Hand Stab From Mid-Court

Mendel Beat Fedigan For First Win In Other Thriller 30-29; Alumni Impressive In Triumph Over Residents

By FRANK SOLIS, A.S.

Tuesday night in Alumni Hall the Intramural Basketball League wended its merry way onward as the Marines from Austin Hall handed the Day-Hops their first defeat by a close 22-21 score, Mendel hung up its initial victory at the expense of Fedigan, and Alumni kept its win streak intact with a 23-17 lacing of the Residents.

The evening started off very well with the Leathernecks hanging a loss on the unwilling chins of the Mendelites, 22-21. Playing with one-half of the court dark because of a blown fuse, the two teams were on even terms throughout most of the game. Keeping the Day-Hops in the game in the first half was Carmen Graziano, who emerged the high scorer of the night with 8 counters. Stealing the ball from the Austinites more than once, "Gratz" managed to put three through the hoop in this half to score on his favorite hook shot from the side court. However, the all-around team play of the Marines was a little too much for the grey clad quintet and the Leathernecks emerged the leaders of a hard fought first period.

The second canto was a repetition of the first except for the last few minutes. With the Marines leading by one point with but a minute to go, Newt Ward was fouled under the hoop and proceeded to make good on both of his tries to put the Mendelites ahead. However, the lead was short-lived as the Austinites came right back on a one-handed stab from mid-court by Don Pryor to sew up the game, 22-21. An added thrill came with but 35 seconds to go when Graziano was also fouled under the boards, but both shots rolled off the edge of the basket and the Marine rooters breathed a sigh of relief.

In the second game of the night, Mendel barely nosed out Fedigan 30-29 in another thriller. The stars of this thriller were Fred Gerngross, who garnered 15 points for the Mendelites, and James Reap, who lived up to his name by reaping in 12 tallies for Fedigan. The Engineers led all the way, the score at the half being 17-14. Jim Reap with his one-handed shots and McMahan with his deadly eye, had the C and F'ers hopeful all during the game. The climax of the game came in the last five minutes with the Fediganites leading 29-28. Realizing the situation and deciding to leave well enough alone, the

Wood Signed By A's

Billy Wood, high scorer of the basketball team for the past two years, and star pitcher of the baseball nine has been signed by the Philadelphia Athletics.

Billy recently was given an honorable discharge from the Army in which he served for eight months at Camp Wheeler, Ga. Before his induction into the armed forces, Billy had been sought by both the Phillies and the New York Yankees.

Navy, Army Tilts Feature '43 'Cat Court Opponents

Service Teams and V-12 Quintets Head List of Rivals; 'Cats Open Season Against Loyola Dec. 9th

Following the wartime trend, Villanova's basketball team has listed on its '43 schedule many tilts with service squads. Numbered among these teams which come as new opponents to the 'Cat quintet are: Army, whose football team met the Wildcats earlier in the season, Navy, the Navy Yard Marine Corps Detachment, Sampson Naval Training Station, Aberdeen Proving Grounds, and the opener of last year's basketball season, Fort Dix. These teams will make up a large part of the twenty-one game schedule which has been drawn up for the coming season. Besides these service squads which meet the Main Liners this year, there will be other colleges on the schedule both with and without service units on the campus. Among these will be: Swarthmore, Franklin and Marshall, Bucknell, Rider, Muhlenberg, Loyola, Princeton, and certain other schools with whom the games are as yet only tentative.

Play Marine Team

Opening the season on December 9, the Wildcats will attempt to make it four straight over Loyola University of Baltimore. Twice last season, the Greyhounds went down to defeat before Villanova's great squad which lost only two games out of twenty-one played. Following this game will be a newcomer to the 'Cats gym, another V-12 school, Swarthmore College. On the 14th the team will play the Marine Unit from the Philadelphia Navy Yard. This team is just recently organized and will meets the 'Cats for the first time. The Marine five is coached by the great boxing champ of more than a decade ago, the light-heavyweight champion of the world, Tommy Loughran. During the following weeks they will meet, among others, Princeton University, Ivy League contender, which team the Wildcats played and defeated last year in one of the best games of the season. Princeton has a large V-12 Unit on the campus and has been noted in the past for the fine court squads which it has produced.

Old Series Renewed

Continuing their basketball rivalries this season, will be two more old opponents of the Villanovan's, both of which are also Navy schools. From Allentown, Pennsylvania will come Muhlenberg with a crop of new found stars to avenge a 50-40 setback suffered by last season's squad. The Wildcats engage the Mules twice this year, meeting them on January 8, and again in certainly not least, Villanova College.

In High School Cart did anything but specialize and we hear from an unusually reliable source (himself) that he was "on the ball" in several sports. (Any resemblance to a pun, living or dead, is purely coincidental.)

Cart wasted no time once he hit the Main Line and was soon airing his views as a member of the Freshman Debating Team. Shortly thereafter he took to expressing his thoughts on paper and became affiliated with the "Villanova Engineer" and the "Belle Air."

To further show his great love for his chosen profession, Cart became a member of both P.K.P. and the student branch of the A.S.M.E. Don't mistake his interest as purely academic, for Pete has been one of the greatest supporters of the frat and Student Council dances that we've seen in some time. Since we have just finished reading about his being appointed platoon commander, a swell bit of alliteration came into our mind. So here's to Cart Conway — sober statesman, studious scholar, salty sailor, and solid sleeper.

NEXT in this week's line up is Harold Peifer of the Philadelphia and U. S. Navy Peifers. That birthplace is not to be taken seriously since, like most Navy sons, "Chick" has seen a good bit of countryside.

He came home to roost rather early, however, since we next encounter our hero at the local Overbrook High School where he spent many profitable days. We slip in that adjective because it was about this time that our playboy met Bettie, the girl who still rates top billing in his phone book.

The next big step in "Chick's" life came when the entered this institution as a M.E. student in the class of '44. In a short time the object of our attention had become one of the best dance promoters hereabouts.

For the next two years he daily wended his way here to labor in the engineering labs. A year or so ago, however, "Chick" experienced a change of heart, and he is now preparing for what we all hope will be a successful career in medicine.

FINALLY we have Francis Quinn, the last of the Mendelites for the week. Last only in number, however, but certainly far from it in activity.

Like his fellow interviewees, "Moe" is from the big, bad city of Philadelphia, the birthplace of so many other great men.

Frank started his now-nearly-completed academic career as a student in the School of the Immaculate Conception in Germantown. Next came long pants and St. Joe's Prep where intramural sports and dance committees interest him no end.

In fact, the ability to formulate dance plans remained in his young and agile brain, and in a few short months after entering Villanova he was active on the dance committees of several organizations.

In addition, Moe was on the Orientation Committee, and our first recollection of his face is of seeing it leering from behind a huge button which stoutly proclaimed him to be the sworn enemy of all lowly freshmen: a high and lofty upper-classman.

To wish success to Moe would be similar to gilding the lily, for when better motors are built we feel sure it will be mechanical engineers like Francis Quinn who will build them.

the final game of the season, February 26. From Bucknell will come a Marine and Navy team to take up, after a lapse of a few years in basketball, where it's football squad left off two months ago. In keeping with this spirit of replay, the soldiers of Fort Dix, opener of last season's court year, will once more journey to the Main Line Field House in an attempt to disprove the high scoring 75-55 defeat of last year's star studded aggregation. Close behind these games comes Rider College, long-standing rival of the Wildcats, who will be back trying for victory again this year after the rude 48-32 mauling handed last year's team.

Prominent in the remainder of the schedule is the appearance of both military academies, Annapolis and West Point. Neither team has met the Wildcats on the court before. Both are away games and will be played on February 9, and 19, respectively. In consideration of the records of both these teams on the court in the past ,much ability and keen competition will be forthcoming in these two games. Also during this time the Navy of Villanova will meet the Navy from Sampson, New York, for among the service teams listed on the 'Cats' schedule, most promising will be Sampson N. T. S. whose football squad edged out the Wildcats a month ago by a 17-7 count. Aberdeen Proving Grounds will send up a representative five on February 12, with a reputation perhaps as good as that of last year's crack quintet. Finishing out this impressive array of teams will be the final Navy V-12 representative, Lancaster's Franklin and Marshall College. The Diplomats will also be among those making their initial appearance against a Wildcat team.

Unique feature of the teams this year will be the great uncertainty encountered by every one of them. Fate in the form of military orders has shifted entire teams from one school to another, leaving in place of a champion squad only a few, little experienced, players. Although this problem was found in the past season in football it will be even more pronounced in basketball. Court teams are only made up of five players and each player is an individual star drilled for his respective position so that a removal of a few key men can completely change the ability of a team. For this reason very few if any teams can predict a good five for the entire season. An accelerated program of studies has made for shorter school terms and more frequent graduations These graduations and subsequent changes will perhaps place players who had been stars in one college in another rival institution and bring about the ruination of a good season for many a team. College All-Americans and professional players alike will make the ranks of service squads glitter with their ability and make them the finest quintets in the country.

week, we most certainly can do it in two months."

In order to show what a student body can do when it gets started, the following statistics were released.

The students of Hallahan High School recently "purchased" their second bomber, and they are still going strong.

Illinois Wesleyan University in Bloomington, Ill., decided to "buy" a jeep for Uncle Sam through fraternity and sorority competition. When sales were totaled, the students were delighted to find that they had sold more than enough Bonds to finance 100 jeeps! The winning sorority and fraternity received certificates at a dance called the "jeep hop."

Smith College announced that students bought $2,550 in Bonds, $550 over the quota, on the first Smith War Bond Day of the new semester.

The Victory Council at the University of Maryland, College Park, Md., culminated a three-month War Bon Drive by presenting three new Fairchild Trainers to the Army Air Force. The trainers, christened University of Maryland, I, II, III, were financed by the students who bought $50,000 worth of War Bonds.

Members of the War Bond Committee are: Lou Eni, Joseph Foley, Edward Gallagher, Thomas Hitchell, Anthony Mannino, Harold O'-Conor, Frank Perna, John Reddy, and George Rideout. For further information, see any of these men. All those interested in this work are requested to turn in their names to the chairman.

Fediganites decided to freeze the ball. At this crucial moment Jim Hobbs of Mendel literally stole the ball out of unwary hands, and shot a pass to Fred Gerngross, who, with his usual under-the-basket technique, slipped it through the hoops to pull the Mendelites ahead 30-29. Fedigan here muffed the only chance to tie as Jack Malone missed a foul shot just before the final whistle. The starting lineup for Fedigan included Kelley, McMahan, Campbell, Reap, Kiely; the beginners for Mendel were Gerngross, Femiano, McManus, Hobbs, and Sondheimer, who played a rip snortin' game throughout, and ended up third best scorer of the contest with 6 tallies.

The Alumni basketeers rolled over the Residents to the tune of 23-17. Ed Harvey nosed out Resident Bill Boyle for high scoring position by one point, earning 9 points in all. The game was one sided all the way with a 9-6 score at the half. Joe Walters, second high scorer for the pill rollers played a professional game at guard for the Alumnites.

POSTUS RECEIVES AWARDS

Al Postus, brilliant halfback of the Wildcat football team for the past three seasons has been awarded a post on the All Eastern second team as picked by the United Press. This is the second consecutive year that the Main Liner has been selected for this honor, having been chosen last year to the same position.

This past week saw Al receive the Maxwell Award given by the Maxwell Club of Philadelphia to the outstanding player of the week for his work in the Temple game.

Student War Bond Committee In 2nd Week Of Activity; Comdr. Milner Commended For 91.8% V-12 Cooperation

College Is Investing Share of Funds in War Bonds; Faculty Is Purchasing Large Amounts

With the anniversary of Pearl Harbor as added incentive, the third War Bond Campaign entered its second week under the auspices of the Villanova College Student Committee.

At the same time facts were released clarifying the statement made last week by Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., President, that college administration, faculty, and students have all been doing their part since that historical day of Jap treachery.

College authorities have gone so far as to invest such restricted funds as scholarship money and other trust funds in the country's future, and the total of these purchases has now reached the sum of $166,150. For an institution the size of Villanova this is a remarkable sum, and the end is not yet in sight.

"Civvies"

John Fitzgibbons (left), chairman of Student Committee, presents bond won in raffle to Joseph Foley.

Lay faculty members in turn have not been idle. On their own initiative, they have formed a committee for buying bonds with J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of the School of Engineering, as its Chairman. Assisting Dean Morehouse are Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, Associate Professor of Chemistry and Chemical Engineering; Dr. William H. McHugh, Professor of Education; and Patrick J. Dougherty, Assistant Professor of Business Administration.

$635 Monthly

This committee, which was formed soon after Pearl Harbor, has developed a well-regulated program. Approximately $635 in war bonds and stamps are purchased each month by the rather small group of men who comprise the college faculty. On November 18 of this year, the sum of their investments had reached the sum of $26,200.

In the matter of student purchases, the figures have not always been quite so large. At times they have appeared rather low in comparison with those published by other schools. But this is explained by a fact which has always been a distinguishing factor in Villanova bond campaigns; namely, that whatever purchases have been made have come from the students' own pockets. Seldom have outside buyers been solicited.

November Contingent as Active as Original in Purchase of Bonds by Pay Allotment

While civilian students sponsor their own bond drive on the campus, members of the Navy V-12 Unit here continue to uphold the record for cooperation which they established last semester.

At that time a pennant for excellence was awarded and a citation was addressed to the commanding officer, Commander Edward J. Milner, USN, and to the trainees for the manner in which they had responded to the appeal to make bond allotments from their monthly pay. The banner received at that time is now displayed in the Navy office.

This citation followed a visit by two war bond officers from the fourth naval district. At that time 91.2 percent of the personnel stationed here signed for allotments amounting to 24.2 percent of the total payroll. Last month, following the arrival of many new men for the current semester, the privilege of subscribing for bonds was once more offered, and the response of the new arrivals was as whole-hearted as last semester's had been. Commander Milner recently received another letter of commendation stating that 91.8 percent of the men here were now participating in the bond program.

Service

Captain Robert L. Morgan, USMCR, stands before Commandant's Pennant awarded to V-12 unit for cooperation in bond sales.

The letter branded this as an "excellent showing, indicative of a fine spirit of loyalty and cooperation on the part of the men and all who worked on the War Bond drive are commended for their contribution to the success of this important phase of the total war effort."

This praise from the fourth naval district is in line with a statement regarding the whole navy made by Admiral King in an appeal for civilian cooperation, who said "They have responded manificently . . .They know the importance of providing funds for the equipment they need, and they are doing more than their share in providing these funds. . ."

Belle Air Displays V-12 Pictures Again

In accordance with many requests by students and members of the V-12 personnel, there will be another display of all pictures which will appear in the 1943 Belle Air. These pictures will be on display between 12:00 and 2:00 P. M. in Room 235, Mendel (Belle Air office) every day this week, at which time orders will be taken. This will positively be the last time that these pictures will be displayed.

Student Council to Cooperate in Producing Annual Student Entertainment

"Amateur Night," an annual affair at Villanova, is scheduled for Friday night, December 17. Phi Kappa Pi, the campus engineering fraternity, with the co-operation of the Student Council, is producing the show.

As in former years, student talent will be the source of entertainment. Singers, instrumentalists, and other specialties will be presented. As yet, John McManus, A.S., president of Phi Kappi Pi, has not announced the names of the guest speakers who will be present.

"Advance plans now call for the staging of a skit by each service hall, and one by the combined civilian halls as the main feature," McManus stated, "We preferably would like our representatives in each hall to get a group together, write an original skit, and find suitable men to enact it. The spirit of competition thus created would tend to make the evening more enjoyable for all."

Those interested in the entertainment, either as a solo act or as part of a group should cantact the Student Council representatives from their hall, or John McManus, A.S., 251 Mendell Hall. Men interested in participating should see one of the following: Pvt. Dominic Carrone, Austin; George Haupt, A.S., Alumni; John McManus, A.S., Mendel, and Patrick Reagan, civilians.

As an added attraction the Drum and Bugle Corps, headed by John Scola, A.S., will perform at the function. The entertainment will begin at 8:00 P. M. in the Field House.

Father Grimes Says—

In preparation for the feast of the Immaculate Conception — the patronal feast of the United States of America—a triduum of prayers is being held in the Villanova College Chapel. It is in response to the call of Pope Pius XII to the entire world to unite in public prayer and penance for the reestablishment of true peace upon the earth that Villanova has designated these three days of supplication to God.

In this hour of need Pope Pius urges us to make intercession with the Mother of God. "We desire," says His Holiness, "that all turn to the Virgin Mary on the day that is sacred to the Immaculate Virgin and that public prayers be held all over the world."

The spiritual exercises of the Triduum consist in the Litany of Our Lady, a sermon and Benediction at 6:35 P. M. The devotions opened last evening with a sermon by Fr. James A. Donnellon, O.S.A. Tonight's sermon will be given by Fr. Joseph J. Gildea, O.S.A. The Triduum will be brought to a close with an exhortation by Fr. Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A.

Masses are celebrated at 6:40 and 7:15 A. M. Confessions are heard in the evening after devotions during the Masses. Wednesday evening's exercises will close with Solemn Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament and Consecration of the Student Body to the Immaculate Heart of the Blessed Virgin.

CONDOLENCES

The Villanovan wishes to express sincere sympathy to James Bigley, senior C. & F. student, and his three alumni brothers on the death of their father.

M. E. Seniors Attend National Convention

A number of Villanova seniors, all members of the student branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, attended the national convention of the Society which was held in New York City last week. J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of the Engineering School, accompanied the group, which included Arthur Roth, President of the Villanova Chapter of the organization; John Allen, A.S., Frederick Gerngross, A.S., John Correale, Louis Eni, John Cella, John Breen, Robert Lukens, and William Doyle. Professor Jacob Yavitch, of the M. E. Department, also attended.

While on the trip the men toured the new Mid-City Tunnel, attended an Army Ordnance Exposition, and had luncheon at the Hotel McAlpin.

Briefs Of CAMPUS NEWS

The members of the Villanova Student Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers will attend a joint meeting of the Philadelphia section to be held at the Engineers Club on Tuesday, December 14. Dinner will be served at the meeting, and several prominent members will deliver short addresses after the meal.

A meeting will be held tomorrow at 1:00 P. M. in Room 102, Mendel, to discuss plans for the coming meeting. All members are strongly urged to attend.

Forty-five members of Villanova's German classes attended a meeting sponsored by the German Club of Chestnut Hill at Chestnut Hill College last night. Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A., and Rev. John Gavigan, O. S. A., accompanied the group Most of the entertainment was rendered in German.

Student Council Elects Officers; Dance Poll Taken

Arrangements for January Dance to Follow Campus Opinions Expressed in Student Poll; Committee Chairmen Named

Undertaking their proposed plans immediately, Villanova's newly elected Student Council held its first meeting last Wednesday night and began work on promoting campus activities. Election of new officers to assist the recently appointed chairman, Herbert Bansbach, was also held.

The primary issue confronting the representatives was the subject of a proposed dance in January. Bansbach announced that ballots for a student poll have been distributed. In this manner it is hoped to obtain campus opinion in reference to "local" or "name" talent and for preference in the type of dance: formal, semi-formal, or informal. Returns to date indicate a preference for a semi-formal dance with a "name" orchestra.

Committees for the dance were set up in skeleton form. The following chairmen and co-chairmen were appointed: Band committee—Pvt. Sabino Carone and Peter C. Conway, A.S.; Decoration committee -William Boyle and Arthur Roth; Program committee—Frank O'Connor, A.S., and Patrick Reagan; Ticket committee — Frank Quinn, A.S., and Harold Peifer, A.S.; Publicity committee—John Fitzgibbons.

In reference to the committees, the Council has extended an invitation to the student body to take an active part in the planning of the dance. It is requested that anyone interested should contact the heads of the various committees.

Two other matters were brought up before the Council members. Officers for the present term were elected in the person of Frank O'Connor, A.S., as vice-president and Peter C. Conway, A.S., as secretary-treasurer. Both are engineers and Mendel Hall representatives.

The final subject discussed was the student support of the basketball team in the coming games. Cheers are to be mimeographed for the students and a plea has been issued for two or three men interested in acting as cheer leaders to volunteer their services.

November Group of V-12 Trainees Contains Many Seasoned Veterans

Many seasoned veterans of foreign service came to Villanova with the group of new V-12 trainees which arrived here November 1. The Villanovan wishes to present the stories of these men who have "been around" in order to give those among us who are still raw recruits an inkling of what some men had to experience before being classed as fit officer material, and at the same time show the public that all V-12'ers are not just "college boys in uniform."

Ridley K. Stookey was born in Wilkes Barre, Pa., on March 19, 1922. Soon after graduating from the Literature and Science School at Wyoming Seminary, he heeded the call-to-arms and enlisted in the Marine Corps.

In May, 1941, Stookey was assigned to Quantico, Va., where he joined the first barrage ballon squadron to be formed there. He was soon assigned to the Parris Island base, however, and remained there seven months, during which time he was promoted to private first class.

In Balloon Squadron

Soon after the fateful day two years ago, Pfc. Stookey once more packed his sea-bags and left for Norfolk, Va. He remained there for a period of three days after which he boarded ship and left the States. At the Panama Canal he disembarked at Fort Randolph, an Army camp, where he stayed for two days. His squadron was then sent to an outlying station. There he lived in a tent and worked with the Army on defense projects. In January, 1942, Stookey was again promoted, this time to Corporal. He was also responsible for the monthly liberty which each man received.

Formed Clerical School

Following his return to the States, Sgt Stookey was given the job of training officers and enlisted men for barrage balloon work. He also taught men the delicate art of handling .30 cal and .50 cal. machine guns. In January, 1943, he attended First Sergeant's school in Philadelphia. Upon completion of his training he was advanced to Platoon Sergeant and returned to New River, N. C. There, after being recommended by his commanding officer, he formed a general clerical school and sent three classes of colored marines through the school. For his excellent work there he was given a special warrant and promoted to First Sergeant.

He was notified that he was accepted into the V-12 program and in September he was assigned to Courthouse Bay, New River, for a physical conditioning course. Stookey arrived at the Villanova campus on November 1 and is now enrolled in the basic engineering course. He is now acting as battalion commander of the Marine detachment here.

Let's Not Forget

TOGETHER with Bunker Hill, the Alamo, and the Maine, Pearl Harbor will stand forever in the minds of Americans and lovers of freedom everywhere as a living monument to the dead of all the nations which have given their all towards the fulfillment of man's greatest goal — the establishment of universal, lasting tranquility among all mankind.

Through all ages and every page in history the course of human relations has run red with the blood of untold millions who have vainly gone forth in quest of the ever-present human craving for filial love and peace. But too often have men been duped into thinking they have attained this end by feelings of self-satisfaction and indifference, and too often have they been shocked into the realization that there are many who would take advantage of this passiveness.

As a great nation in the family of nations, we humbly thank God that we have been given an important part in formulating a better world. This time we cannot be asleep to our duties. The happiness of future generations depends on our unwavering convictions and our farsightedness. We must not fail them. Our objective is clear.

It's Up To YOU

MANY and varied have been the critical comments of students on past Villanova social functions. Oftentimes these criticisms, if taken into consideration, might have made for a better affair but seldom before has the opportunity of choice arisen. In making an announcement of a dance to be held in January, the Student Council offers the student that long awaited chance. You, the people who will make the venture a success or failure, will this time be given the requested task of creation, promotion, and dependent completion.

Requests for a band have at times included such thoughts as choice in the style of music, the standing of the orchestra, and subsequent appeal of the band itself. Will it be a name band? Do you want a mixed selection of music? The decision this time will lie with you.

To make a dance a success is to make all the adornments of the affair successful in themselves. The very attachment which is the precursor of the function then necessarily must be catching; you must have a fitting name for the dance. Will it be a Snow Frolic? No? What would you call it? Again it is entirely of your own making.

The laments for a formal affair such as were seen in the lush and happy days of yesteryear have been equalled in volume by the conservative desire for informal dances. Semi-formal, one might say, is then the happy medium. Still, who is the one to say? It is for all to say and from these all a majority speaks.

Do not be reticent now that your opportunity has come. Should you fail to speak when the time is had then be silent at the results. You have asked; you are being appeased. If you have at any time harbored opinions on such questions vaunt them now. Realize, finally, that the outcome is what you, the majority of outspoken students, have made it.

Meet the Boys

Lou, Ed And Jim Are Not Pioneers, But Just Good All 'Round Engineers

LOUIS IADEMARCO, who was born on May 19, 1922, is very fortunate that one of his legs is not longer than the other; he has spent most of his life in that Himalaya-like section of Philadelphia that is Manayunk. At an early age, however, he ventured forth into the plains upon which the center of the city lies and entered Catholic High, where he was soon to become co-editor of a quarterly magazine and a burner up'er of the cinders.

Villanova welcomed Lou into the fold of her civil engineering elite in the fall of '40. Since then he has been beaten into Phi Kappa Pi, and the local chapter of the A.S.C.E. has recently deemed him fit to hold its Vice-Presidency. He is quite an intramural enthusiast, as can be seen from his active participation in the football and softball leagues.

Lou is Master-at-Arms for the second deck of Mendel Hall. True to Naval tradition, his hobby is "women." He expects to get into the Seabees as soon as possible after graduation in February, although he'll probably spend a little time in Midshipman's School first.

When asked a for a statement for the press, he gave out with a loud "There's no place like Manayunk." (And as we write this we can just hear that chorus of "You ain't kiddin" 's which is certain to follow).

WAYNESBORO, PA., was blessed with the birth of James Hobbs on August 27, 1922. After the usual five or six years of orientation to the ways of the world, he dawdled off to a local grammar school, little realizing that he was to spend almost all of his next eight years there. Staunch character that he was, he survived, but he was only out of the place a few months when they told him he'd have to put up with four more years of the same kind of stuff.

This education business became quite a habit with Jim, so late in 1940 he embarked on another four-year cruise into its profundities when he enrolled in Villanova's electrical engineering school. He now decided that he needed a little soothing activity of another sort to take his mind off the long grind, so he became addicted to wrestling, baseball, softball, basketball, and just about anything similar you can think of. In addition, the engineering frat and the AIEE welcomed him into their ranks.

As soon as the Navy is finished with him, Jim intends to see just how much good all this education did him and try his luck in industry.

BORN in good old Philadelphia on Jan. 14, 1922, Edward C. Brennan began his education at Longstreth Grammar School. Mastering his first eight years of learning, he then proceeded to West Philadelphia High School Here he was a member of student government and was honored by being elected a class officer for three consecutive years.

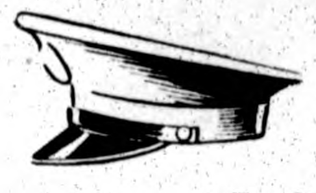
After graduating from high school, Ed enrolled at Villanova in the school of Mechanical Engineering. Bringing with him the progressive spirit and leadership which he displayed at West Philly, he joined all the campus organizations relative to his course.

Ed was appropriately "wacked" into the Phi Kappa Pi in his Freshman year. The next semester he joined the ranks of the student branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. In the line of Committees, Ed was one of the decoration managers for the Inter Frat dance and was on the committee for the recent student convention of the A.S.M.E.

Interested in all things along the lines of engineering, Ed has been a charter member of the staff of the Villanova Engineer, and this year has assumed the post of Business Manager of the monthly.

Ed. looks forward to his work as an M.E., but anticipates his approaching chance for a commission. Being connected with Villanova in so many categories, he will naturally regret leaving his Alma Mater when graduation day rolls around.

Camp To Campus



By PVT. JOHN BITTIG

TODAY we observe America's second year in World War II. In these two years almost one thousand two hundred and fifty Villanova alumni and undergraduate students have entered the armed services of their country.

A member of the Merchant Marine since December, 1942 is Cass Halloway. He is a midshipman and has traveled to Scotland, Iceland, England, Ireland. Cass also tells of his ship playing tag with submarines for three days around the Azores.

Air Corps Popular

Popular with Villanovans, as with almost everyone else, is the Air Corps—both Army and Navy. Father Dunne, former Alumni Hall prefect and coach of the "Big Green Teams," is an Army Air Corps chaplain at Richmond, Virginia. Among the aviation students we have James Murphy at San Antonio, Texas, and Ed McGettigan at Gettysburg College, Pa. Aviation cadets include Jack Hefti, also at San Antonio, Texas, Tony Paruta at Santa Ana Air Base, Santa Ana, California, Harry Apoin at Greenville, Mississippi, Ray Baldwin at Santa Maria, California, and Art Ketschke and Howie Kohl at Ryan Field, Tucson, Arizona. Gerald McDermott, also in the Army Air Corps, is a tail gunner and now is at Kingman, Arizona. In the ground crew is Jack Doren, last year's Alumni Hall basketball star, now at Santa Ana, California, and Larry Sullivan in the Air Corps Radio School at Truax, Wisconsin. Larry is to be married shortly after Christmas.

On the Navy side of the aviation field there are Joe Barnes, Paul Gallagher, and George "Ace" Veiling. Joe is at Moravian College, Bethlehem, Pa., while Paul and "Ace" are V-5-ing at Bloomsburg State Teachers College. Paul is to be congratulated; he is now a proud father.

By TOM HITCHELL

DECEMBER 7TH . . . Pearl Harbor, remember? What better day is there than today to start spending your extra change at the War Bonds and Defense Stamps booth in Mendel Hall? Perhaps you can only buy one or two stamps a week, but if every student would do that our $5,000 goal would be a trifle. Let's all do our share; give up a few cokes, invest in a few stamps, buy a few bullets!

Just to get started:

The professor walked into class and pounded on his desk: "Gentlemen! . . . Order!

The class response was unanimous: "Beer!"

IDLE CHATTER:

The Social calendar was due for a let-up and thus this week shows a marked lag in Wildcat socializing. The "Shoveling" was a little tedious but nevertheless I managed to "dig up" some "dirt" here and there.

Vince Silverio connects Ann with everything he does anymore; get a look at his notebooks sometime . . . Bill Regil has finally given up hopes of getting to first base with Margie and is being compensated by a Temple co-ed... Artie Zeglen is getting a reputation for dating four at a time. Perhaps it is possible? ? ?

Bill Feeney, Leo Reilly and Dan Murray started the weekend off with the City Champion game Saturday afternoon. Joe Centrone recently had a double celebration; his third anniversary "with the same woman," as well as her twenty-first birthday.

One difference between a cutie and an old maid is that the cuties go out with the Johnnies while the old maid sits home with the Willies. (Ask Al Petralia!)

SO THEY SAY:

Frank 'Lover' Moreley cant make up his mind between Rosemont and Chestnut Hill. At least he has it limited to two institutions by now! . . . Al Sehlstedt is still peeved about that twenty mile limit and the main reason is Jennifer, home in Baltimore. Bill "Daddy" Drummy has taken a paternal interest in Wynnewood lately. Frank Motzenbecker would be terribly disappointed if the Villanovan were ever discontinued . . .

George "Hollywood" Banning recently contributed twelve bucks to Bell Telephone Co. for one of the "essential" phone calls to Arkansas. Fedigan's mystery of the week: Who hit big Bud Bloom in the back of the neck with an orange?

If by now disgusted, remember:
The one who thinks our jokes the poor
Would quickly change his views,
Could he compare the jokes we print
With those we cannot use!

Bob Murphy is reported to be taking dance lessons in waltz time lately. Arthur Murray or Madame LaZonga, Bob? Joe Barrett still didn't get a bill for that forty-five minute long distance call recently. Maybe she paid for it after all? Al Carreras has a new Philadelphia interest that has been claiming most of his weekends for the past month.

ROUTINE STUFF:

Are they strict at Villanova?
Strict? You remember Jonesey? Well he died in class, and they propped him up until the lecture ended!

Ed Bernhein and Tito 'Casanova' Infanzon had heavy dates up in Reading this past Saturday night. Can't keep up with Tito anymore! Jim McDaid and Howie Connolly created a new dance routine down in Louie's last week, which has possibilities of becoming a post war craze. If vaudeville comes back they're looking forward to a profitable stage career; if not they'll settle for a good apple stand! ! What all this about John "Dry Run" Millet chasing a merry widow? ? Rumor has it that Carlos Cuardos is saving his pennies to present some fortunate damsel with a Christmas sparkler! . . for friendship sake? ? Bill Boyle and John Burke went in for a dash of heavier entertainment Saturday night at the opera.

Alumni Navy Trips Marines 29-25 To Remain Unbeaten

Loss Drops Austin to Second Place Behind Medics Who Also Defeated Day-Hops, 31-17; Residents Trounce Fedigan to Leave Last Place Tie

By FRANK SOLIS, A.S.

The latest communique from Alumni Gym reports that unbeaten, untied Alumni is still in the lead with the Marines close behind. Mendel Hall and the Day-Hops are battling it out for third place, leaving the Residents one jump ahead of Fedigan, who holds the bottom berth.

The Tuesday night fans witnessed the defeat of Fedigan at the hands of the scrappy Day-Hops, who matched 27 points against Fedigan's 21. The big guns were on Transients' side that night, Newt Ward knocking off 10 points and Paul simpson racking up 13 to tie Alumni's Joe Walters for high scoring honors of the night.

After this scrappy contest Alumni and Austin took the floor, and had the fans howling as the gallant Marines tried to catch up to the vaunted Alumni quintet. They dropped the game, however, as the talented pill rollers kept their lead to close at 29-25. Ray Casper with 10 points, bolstered the Marine offensive getting ample help from Ingualdd Konesgard who threw 7 tallies into the final score.

Rugged Game

Taking over the spotlight, third floor Mendel beat out the Residents 19-13. The Mendelites built up an early lead, finishing the half 10-4. Gene Orcutt of the third deckers zipped three field goals through the hoop to become top scorer of the game. What the contestants lacked in scoring they certainly made up in action, which was quite violent at times.

On Thursday night Alumni trounced the Day-Hops 31-17; the Marines nosed out Mendel 21-18; and the Residents rolled over Fedigan 25-13. High scorer of the night was Joe Walters from Alumni with a total of 6 field goals and 2 fouls, 14 points in all.

Commuters Cheat Gun

The Alumni-Day Hop game was fairly close in the first half, the score at the end of the half being 18-10, favoring Alumni. Things didn't start poppin' until mid-half when Paul Simpson sunk a foul for the Day Hops to win out in a double technical. Alumni, or more specifically, Bill Hughes, took over in the few remaining minutes when a pass from Hughes to "Nort" Powers furthered Alumni's lead 14-6. At this point the gallant Day-Hops sunk a long one to raise the score 14-8. In retaliation, Rodge McRae bounded one to Hughes who slipped in under the basket to set the score at 18-8. With seconds to go Newt Ward set fly a one hander from mid-court to beat the whistle and finish the half at 18-10. The second half was characterized by much rough-house with Alumni's Joe Walters scoring the first goal. This was quickly followed up with a long shot by Foley of the Day-Hops. The Commuters were playing good ball, and in the last minute of the game, Jake Edeiken recovered his own shot to score, and Paul Simpson cheated the gun with a last second hook shot to finish the game at 31-17.

Rooter Saves Day

The following game, matching fourth floor Mendel with the Marines, almost resulted in a forfeit when, due to unforseen circumstances, the Marines appeared at starting time with only four men. However, Bill Smith, a would-be Marine rooter, saved the day until the full complement of Marine basketeers arrived. Ray Kasper of the Austinites set off the game by sinking two in a row. Fred Goetz followed suit by adding on another tally for the Marines. After a lit-

Phi Kap Bowling League Begins

Matches Held at 69th St. Bowling Center on Saturdays; Bonafiglia Rolls High Game of 237

The Bowling League of the Phi Kappa Pi opened its season last Saturday at the 69th St. Bowling Alleys with ten teams, five Navy, two mixed and three civilian, competing as in former years. Ship's Company, composed of the men of the Navy and Marine offices lost its first game on a forfeit allowing the Swabs to take over undisputed possession of first place. The Holy Rollers and the Senior Chems both lost by the same score, 3-1, to third deck Mendel and to the Junior Civils respectively, while the remaining teams split their matches.

$100 for Prizes

The league will run for ten weeks and the committee in charge of the league is still undecided about the finals. At present there are the choice of Sweepstakes or what are termed "knockdown" matches. The Sweepstakes will consist of individual games in which there will be prizes. The "knockdown" matches will take place between the first and second, the third and fourth, etc., thus allowing each team to move up a notch if it is at all possible. The league officials have at present at their disposal a total of $100 for the prizes for both teams and individuals.

This year there is a sharp contrast in the atmosphere because of the entrance of V-12 teams. As was done last year the league will be run on a 140 scratch basis and an 80% handicap based on the difference between the competitors.

Bonafiglia Rolls High

Individual honors went on Saturday to Tony Bonfiglia of the Junior Civils, who rolled a 237 for the highest single of the day, and then finished his day with a 183 and 177 for a 597 total and an average of 199. Rosa, a teammate of Bonafiglia rolled a 224 game while Bob Leahy of the Swabs rolled a high 206.

Team honors for the high scores went to the Junior Civils with an 845; they were closely followed by the fourth floor M. E.'s with a 760. The Civils also ran off with the high three game total of 2394 followed by the Holy Rollers with 2147.

Elected To New Post

REV. F. X. N. McGUIRE, O.S.A.
At a meeting of the Eastern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, Vice President and Moderator of Athletics at Villanova was elected President of the 150 lb. football league of the association. The election took place during the annual two-day meeting of the E. I. A. A. held at the Biltmore Hotel last Wednesday. Fr. McGuire succeeds Maurice J. "Clipper" Smith, former coach of the Wildcat gridiron team who left last spring to enlist in the United States Marine Corps.

Al Postus, Bill Sullivan On All-State

Al Postus, standby of the Wildcat backfield for the past three years, who last week was awarded a post on the United Press All-Eastern squad has just been named to the second string of the Associated Press's All-Eastern eleven. Postus, whose forte throughout the whole season was passing, literally ran himself onto the list of the elite during the last three games. Particularly outstanding was his 85-yard touchdown gallop against Holy Cross; even the fact that the play was called back didn't detract from his performance.

Honored Twice

Billy Sullivan, quiet but dynamic 165-lb. end and a Wildcat along with Postus for the past three years, was given honorable mention on the same squad. Two other Wildcats, new to the Main Line campus this season, Al Kasulin and Bob Nealon, who transferred from Miami U. under the V-12 program, were also cited for their playing by the newspapermen, as was Max Chepenuk, a guard, playing his first year of varsity ball.

These five men were all honored twice by the A. P. Sullivan and Postus were named to the first string All-State team while Chepenuk was chosen for a spot on the alternate eleven. As before both Kasulin and Nealon were given honorable mention.

KLOTZ IN ARMY

Herman "Reds" Klotz, former Villanova basketball luminary, now in the Army, stationed at Camp Luna, Texas, is starring on the Camp's court team.

"Reds," an outstanding scholastic player at South Philadelphia High, entered Villanova in 1940, and he became a regular on that year's superb freshman team. He easily gained a starting post on the varsity in 1941 and retained it until he left school in 1942. After leaving school Klotz joined the Philadelphia "Sphas" and played ball with them for the remainder of the 1942 and all the 1943 season. He was called by the Army on March 1, during the pro-league playoffs.

Courtmen Open '43 Season Thursday Against Loyola

'Cats Second Game Set For Dec. 11 at Field House With Swarthmore; All-Service Quintet to Represent Villanova For First Time

By HUGH O'REILLY, A.S.

The Wildcat basketball team will open its '43 court season with an away game against Loyola College of Baltimore on Thursday, Dec. 9. and Swarthmore College on the following Saturday at home. Beginning his ninth year as coach of Main Line basketball teams, Al Severance will field an all-service quintet. In the opener against Loyola, the 'Cats will continue an old series with the Greyhounds. Twice last season the courtmen of Loyola went down to defeat before Villanova's great squad. This season may spell a different story for study regulations, and the demands of the Navy have greatly diminished the former long practice sessions.

Loyola will come up against the 'Cats with one game already under its belt, a 46-32 defeat by the Curtis Bay Coast Guard five. This Coast Guard aggregation is rated highly with a galaxy of college stars on the team, and a win over the court team of Bainbridge N.T.S. Having no military unit on the campus, Loyola has to be content with a team made up of boys just fresh from high school play. Two veterans of last season's campaign are the only holdovers left Coach Reese, former Villanova athlete. Of these only one, Bob O'Connor, son of the Governor of Maryland, was a regular on last season's varsity. Elected captain of the team, O'Connor will be a steadying influence the greater part of the season, because of his experience.

Joe McGarry, a substitute last season has been moved up to the varsity to fill the other guard position. The remaining three positions will be all filled by freshmen. All three are graduate sof Loyola High which team was conference champion of Maryland last season. Holding down one forward position will be Bill Lacey, scholastic high scorer in conference play while at Loyola High. His deadly eye on set shots and fine floor play has marked him as a standout player on the team. At guard and center respectively, will be the other freshmen, Scharnberger and Gisriel.

The Wildcats open their home season on Saturday night against Swarthmore. This is the first time in history that these two teams will get together, and since the Garnet has a V-12 unit, the game should prove to be quite interesting. The Little Quakers opened their season last Saturday when they met the Philadelphia Navy Yard Receiving Ship and won the game, 57-54. Bill Emmett, guard, who came to Swarthmore from Lafayette through the Navy led the attack with 13 points.

Another of the starting team is John Early, who learned his basketball right here in Philadelphia. Early is a forward and played at West Catholic High before going to Lehigh University from whence he came closer to home for the same reason that brought Emmett to Swarthmore.

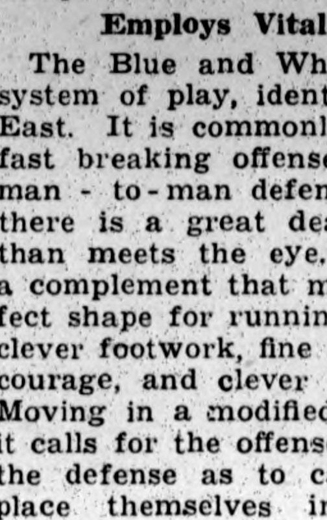
Early is the dead-eye dick of the team, being able to sink them from either close in or far out. He tips the scales at 160 and that he is a stockily built fellow can be seen from the fact that he goes 5 ft. 10 in.

Ray Wimch, big 6 ft. 2 in. 190 pounder from Oaklyn, handles the pivot slot and the Wildcats had better watch out for him for from all reports he can really "zip 'em." The other positions are taken care of by Jerry Adams and Hank Bordman. Adams comes to the Garnet from Penn, where his scholastic schedule kept him from participating in sports. Bordman is the only returning veteran from last year's squad and will probably be the steadying influence in there against the Main Liners.

'Speed Merchants Form Nucleus Of Striking Power'

By AL SEVERANCE
Basketball Coach

Needless to say, this year's vintage of material presents a challenge. Only one veteran player will grace the wooden way, and, he, Frankie Frascella, is now a casualty because of foot injuries. New faces for the most part will be in evidence and their background in basketball has been wide and varied. Coming from environs where all types of system of play have been employed and where in many instances the system has been left solely to the individual talents and accomplishments of the boy.



Employs Vital Points

The Blue and White employs a system of play, identified with the East. It is commonly known as a fast breaking offense and a close man - to - man defense. However, there is a great deal more to it than meets the eye. It calls for a complement that must be in perfect shape for running. It demands clever footwork, fine reflexes, drive, courage, and clever ball handling. Moving in a modified figure eight, it calls for the offense to so jockey the defense as to cause them to place themselves in a position where the offensive move of the team will cause the individual to loose a step or pick himself off.

New-Comer Promising

Johnny Ramsey, a newcomer, has been very gratifying in his style of play, and his ability to grasp the fundamentals of the style of play employed. Here, I feel we have a potential threat both in, and out of the fifteen-foot area. Coupled with Johnny is Al Postus, one of the finest all-around athletes to grace Villanova's athletic history.

Al, immediately after the football season, appeared for the basketball practice. He has shown a spirit and style of play that I believe will go a long way in aiding the present team to secure a reputable record. Joe Walters, Andy Fontana and Charlie Labelle, all speed merchants on the wooden way, will more than likely form a nucleus that will give us a striking power dangerous to overlook. Plenty of work and play should improve all three immensely.

Boys Willing

It is in the height department that the real work lies. Bill Feeney, Don Osterman, Phil Jakeway and Bob Forrest are the tall cedars of the quintet. However, although blessed with the necessary physical assets, nevertheless their failure to put into operation our style of play has left a great deal of work to be done. The last two mentioned, however, I feel, will give the local followers something to be proud about when they have had a little more work. Both boys are fearless in their style of play and both are willing. With a spirit

Army's Myslinski, Davis Chosen Unanimously For All-Opponent Team

Cadets Dominate Team, Gain Four Places, Merritt and Murphy Also Named; Sampson, Muhlenburg, Holy Cross and Lakehurst Represented on Squad

Army's captain, Cas Myslinski, and Glenn Davis received the unanimous vote of Villanova's football team to lead two other teammates, Frank Merritt and Ed Murphy, to positions on the Wildcat's All-Opponent eleven. Army led in the balloting with these four men but Sampson N.T.S., Muhlenburg, and Holy Cross each managed to place two men on the team while Lakehurst N.A.S. was awarded the final spot.

Myslinski, Merritt and Murphy were center, guard, and tackle on the Army line that yielded to very few opponents this year. Myslinski was named to the UP All-American team, while Merritt rated a tackle position on the All-Eastern squad. Davis performed brilliantly against the 'Cats and once got away for a 50-yard gain before being pushed out of bounds within the 10-yard line.

Ex-Villanovan Named

Andy Stopper, who tipped the balance against the Main Liners for Sampson, pulled down a prominent backfield spot. The former star of the great Villanova teams of '35, '36, '37, spelled the difference between wins and losses for the Sailors this year. Against Cornell, when they weren't able to use him, the Sampson team lost, and against Army, he passed and ran the Gobs to an early lead. However, as soon as he was removed from the line-up because of an injury, Army went on to win by a small margin. Charlie Mehelich, former Duquesne end, was the teammate of Stopper who was chosen as end on the All-Opponent squad.

Crusader Standouts

George Connor and Stan Koslowsky took tackle and halfback backfield positions respectively. The former was named as running mate to Frank Merritt on the All-Eastern team and incidentally, it is the second consecutive year that he has been awarded this honor. Koslowsky, while still a freshman, ran and passed the Crusaders to their 12-7 victory over the Wildcats.

Muhlenburg, the first opponent of the season and the victim of a 35-12 Main Line victory, was not to be outdone and consequently placed Charlie Mikionis and Bill Killian at guard and tackle positions. These two were the standouts of the Mule line and played such brilliant ball throughout the game that they were chosen over men such as Army's Bob MacKinnon and Princeton's Bernie Gallagher.

Paratrooper

The final selection proved to be Earle Hassell, Marine paratrooper and halfback on the Lakehurst Naval Air Station eleven. Hassell was a constant thorn in the sides of the Wildcats that evening and his running, and kicking were superb during the game. However, this same running was the only consolation of the Lakehurst rooters and his two touchdowns were representatives of the fighting spirit of the outclassed Blimps.

Severance

such as theirs, they cannot help but crash the lineup, and deliver the goods.

It is my contention, and it has been based on some fifteen years of intercollegiate basketball experience, that with a green team, the first baptism of fire can do wonders in bringing to light failings and weaknesses, and also go a long way in impressing personalities with the necessity of following a definite style of play. Loyola will provide this opportunity and I look forward to this encounter with interest and anticiptaion.

tle foul play, Harold Pryor and Bill Flaherty hit the foul line for 2 and 1 points respectively. Mendel, however, wasn't totally outdone as a foul shot by Joe Gerngross and an arching last minute stab by Madigan from side court territory fixed the half-time score at 9-3, favor the Marines.

Joe Costello, a consistently good floor man, seemed to find his eye in the second half. High scorer for Mendel, he threw in three field goals and a foul shot to threaten in this session. "Red" Nealon of the Marines sunk his usual long shot after a quick starboard sider dropped in by Costello. Keeping the ball rolling, Jim Shoemaker of Mendel dropped in a long shot followed shortly afterwards by a short side court jab. Taking their turn at the basket, "Ingie" Konsgard and Fred Goetz next dropped a field goal apiece to score for the Marines. Jim Shoemaker then dropped a foul to settle the score at 17-12, favor Austin.

Joe Gerngross slammed the apple home on a spinner which preceded another "dead eye" long by Nealon which made him high scorer with 4 field goals to his credit. From then on Mendel took over with Costello coming down the floor to sink a fast "lay up" shot. With seconds to play, Joe Gerngross stole the ball and passed to Costello who threw one up to finish the game at 21-18.

Steals Ball

Fedigan was beaten by the Residents in the final game of the night. Helwig, who tied for high scoring honors with teammate Jack Welsh at 6 points each, started off the game with an under the basket shot for the Residents. Bill Boyle, also a Boarder, then stole the ball at mid-court and dropped in a fast lay-up. Welsh, keeping up the Resident streak, followed shortly after with a long. Deciding that it was time for Fedigan to score, Jack McMahan grabbed a hot pass, and flicked in a short only to be dismayed by a Helwig, Welsh, and Dom Parrone procession that racked up 6 more points for the Residents. Jack Malone, of Fedigan, then did some fancy dribbling to end the half at 14-4.

Joe Mihalek of Fedigan gave the second half a quick start by dropping a fast, one armed shot. This was succeeded by a long, tossed by Welsh shortly afterward. Jack Malone then took over and tallied up two for the Fedigs. Not to be outdone, Helwig, McQuade, Boyle, and Corqhill of the Resident hit theb Corkhill of the Residents hit the basket for 8 points, bringing the score up to 24-8 With a final drive the Fedigs garnered 3 more points. A mid-court one-handed shot by Leo Knoll followed by a straight long and a foul finished the game at 25-13.

Lt. Comdr. Prince Assigned Here As Medical Officer

University of Pennsylvania Graduate Succeeds Comdr. Minnick as Senior Administrative Medical Officer

By HARRY A. WATERS, A.S.

Lieutenant Commander Robert A. Prince, U. S. N. R., has been assigned to Villanova as Senior Administrative Medical Officer for the trainees stationed here. Through this appointment he succeeds Commander William T. Minnick, U. S. N., Ret.

Though born in New York in 1897, Lt. Comdr. Prince has spent the greatest part of his life in Paterson, N. J., attending public grammar and high school there.

Graduating from the Rutgers University School of Pharmacy in 1919, he worked as a druggist for six years. He received his B. S. degree at the University of Pennsylvania in 1927 and completed the University's Medical School in 1931.

LT. COM. ROBERT A. PRINCE, USNR

Interned in Paterson

After this long period of training, Dr. Prince interned at the St. Joseph Hospital in Paterson, but not before marrying Miss Julia Garofalo of Hackensack, N. J Dr. Prince then entered general practice, being associate surgeon at St. Joseph's Hospital until 1942, when he was commissioned Lt. Commander in the United States Naval Reserve.

He was then assigned to Bainbridge, Md., as senior medical officer at the receiving station. There he directed the physical examinations of recruits commencing their boot training.

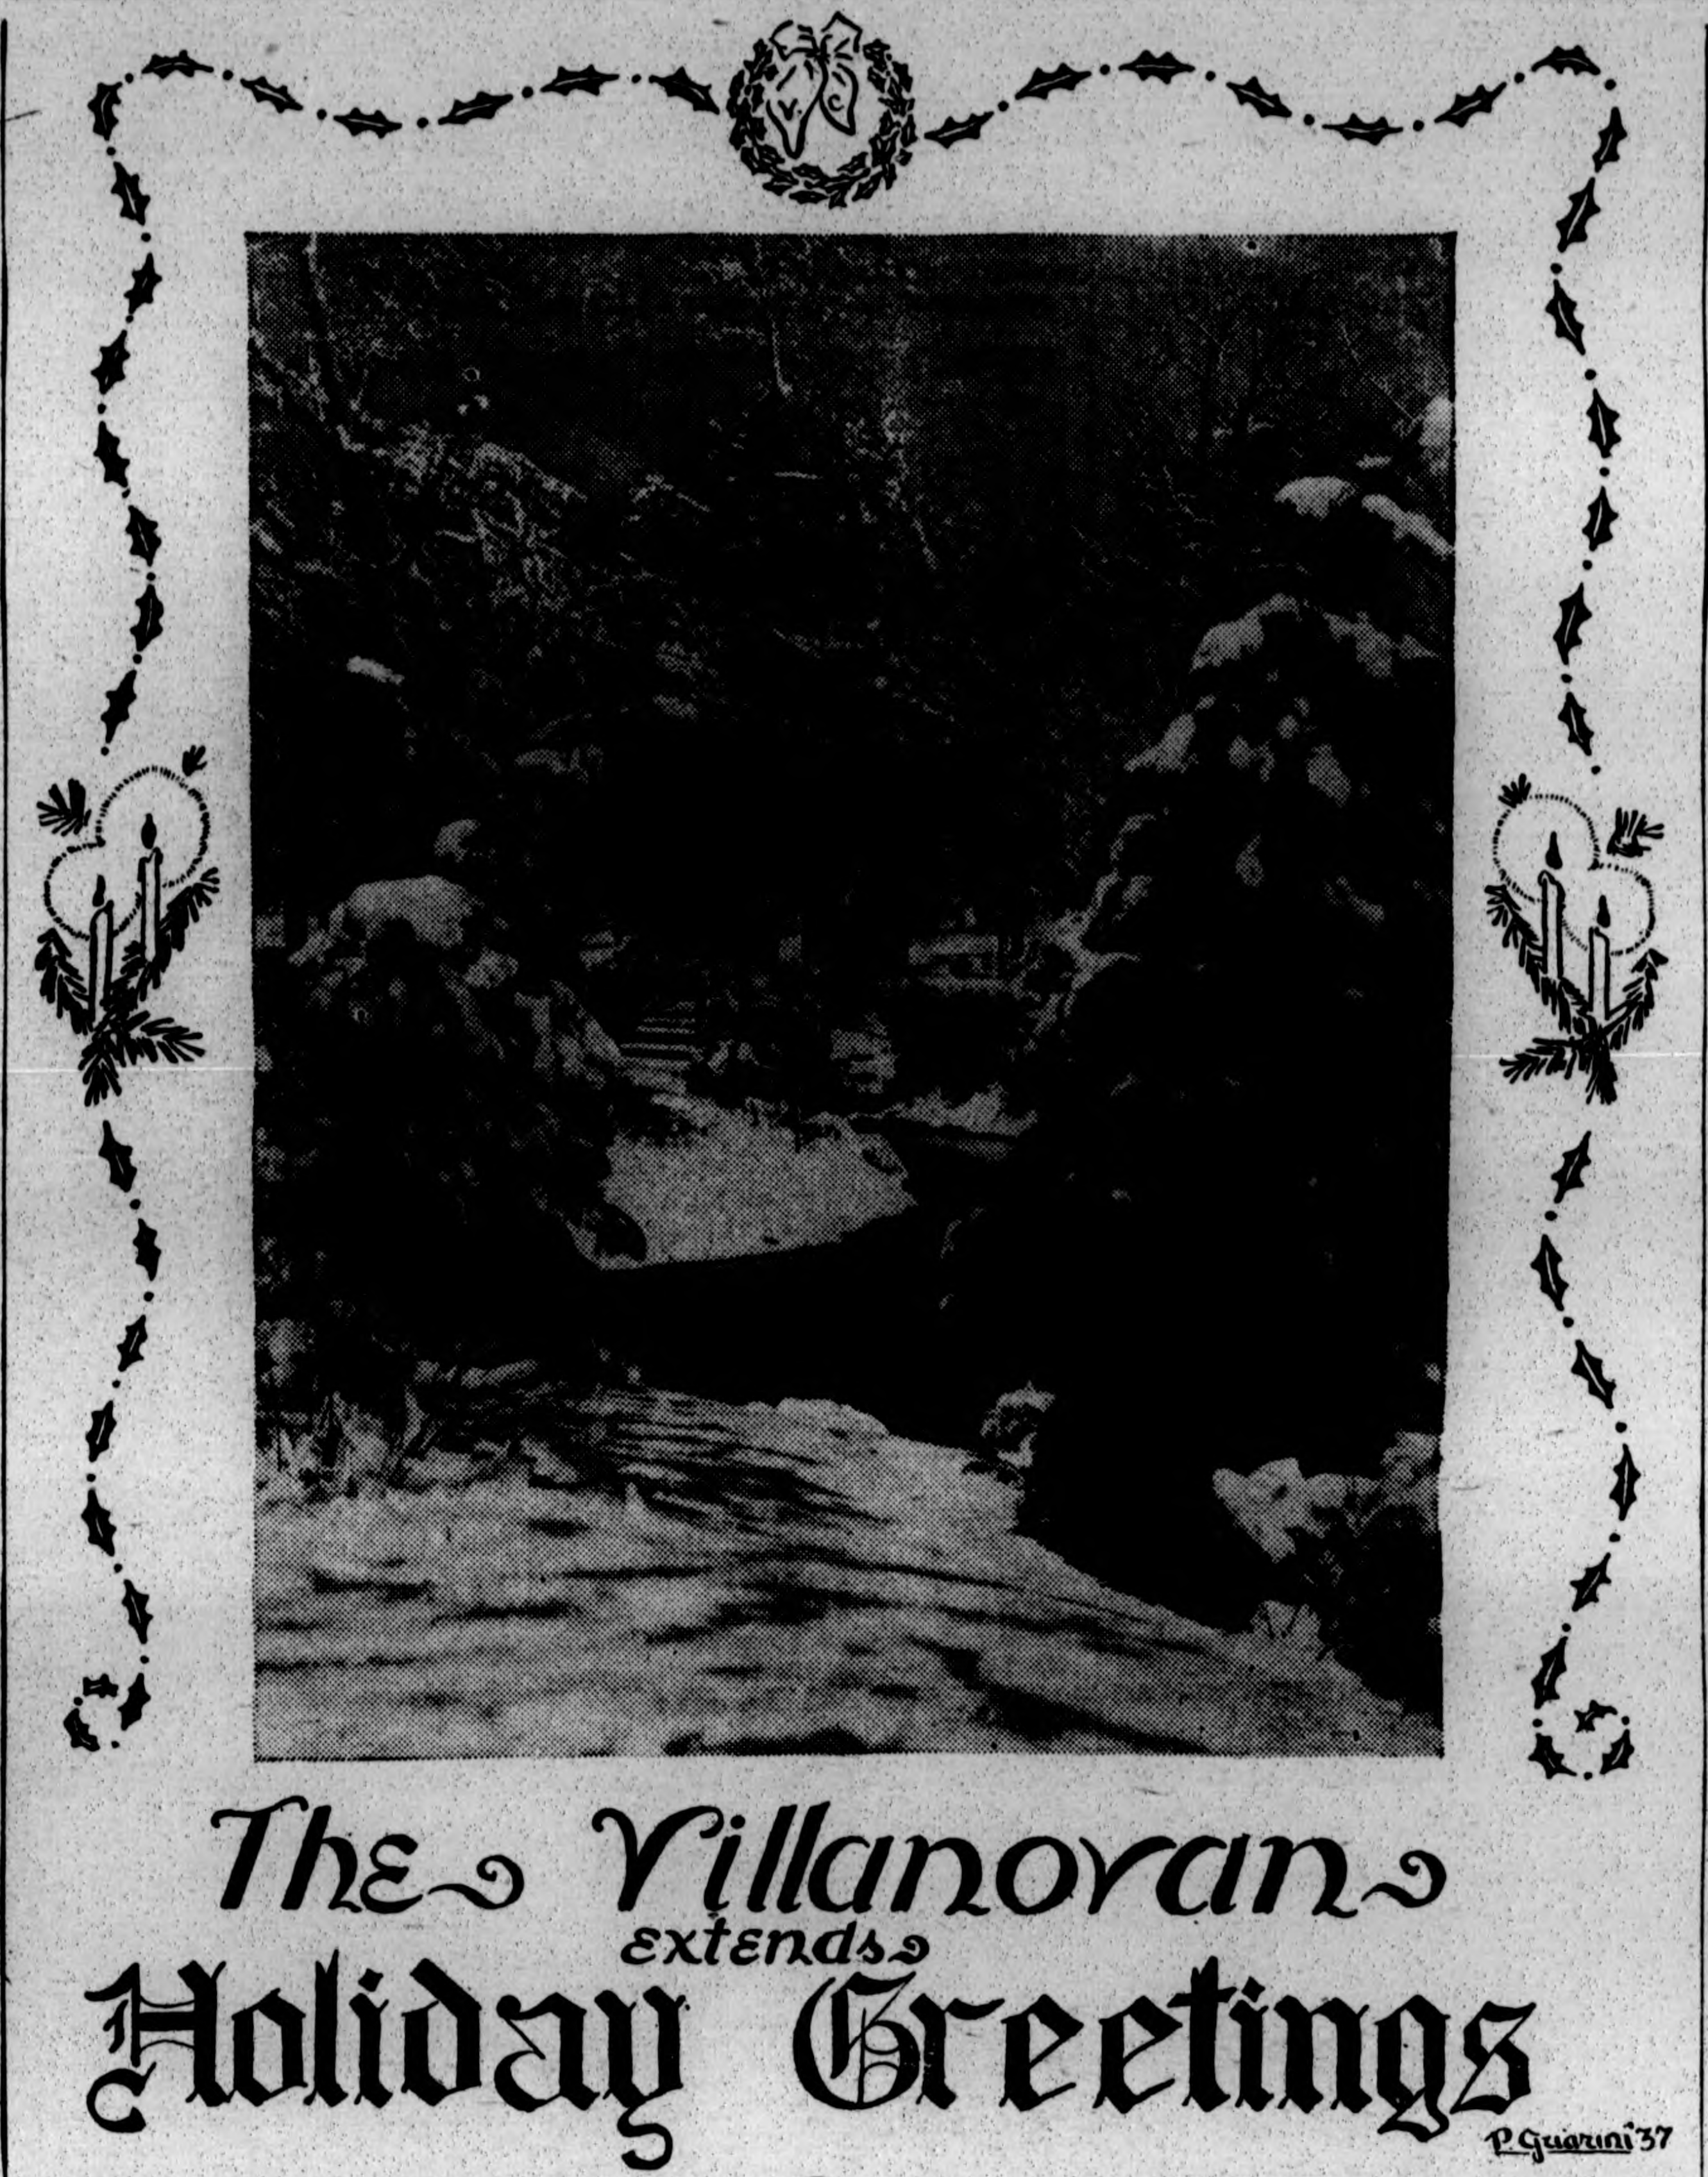
The father of three children, Dr. Prince is very interested in all sports. While at the University of Pennsylvania he participated in the inter-fraternity basketball league, and when at Bainbridge played catcher for the medical officers' softball team, the team which finished second in a league of stiff competition.

Assigned to Arsenal

Prior to his coming to Villanova, Lt. Comdr. Prince was assigned to Edgewood Arsenal, where Chemical Warfare Tactics was taught. This training consisted in the care of materials used in the handling of deadly gases and the care of persons exposed to such gases.

Here at Villanova, Dr. Prince intends to remain in top physical condition, though not as strenuously as he did at Bainbridge, by playing softball, bowling and being a member of the golf club. He expects to make frequent visits to the Field House and take daily workouts in the Gym.

Now that Lt. Comdr. Prince is stationed at Villanova, his wife, daughter, and two sons are changing their residence from Paterson, N. J., and are coming to Philadelphia to live.



Seminar To Present Christmas Carols

The next and last music seminar before the Christmas holidays will convene tomorrow at Simpson Hall, 12:30 P. M. Keeping in tempo with the yule festivities, the seminar will be conducted in a Christmas mode, featuring many of the popular Christmas Carols and music from the Opera "Hansel and Gretel."

Also featured will be Wagner's Seigfried Idylle." This piece was written by the great Teutonic master as a gift to his wife, who bore him a son one month before Christmas. The gift was presented Christmas Eve, when a complement of orchestral pieces gave forth a spectacular rendition at the Wagner household. Since the virtuoso of the Opera was working on the great "Seigfried" at the time, the "Idylle" carries part of the operatic theme. However, because of its history and joyous spirit, it is well known as a Christmas piece.

The seminars will be resumed on Wednesday, January 5, at which time Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto will be offered.

Year Book Delayed

The Belle Air Staff announces, with regret, that the "Centennial Edition" of the book will not be ready for distribution until some time next year. When the book does appear copies will be sent to all who have settled their accounts or who have requested that it be sent C. O. D.

The Belle Air Staff is grateful to the students and Alumni for the patience they have displayed in the production of this yearbook.

Anno Domini

By JOHN DEMPSEY, A.S.

"Ha; Rest you want? Get out of here—"
The man stood framed in light.
"We have no bed. 'Tis truly said
You'll find no room tonight."

A dust-caked youth, a weary maid;
"A little way to go;
No need to far, a stable's near;
The last one told me so."

A swaddling cloth, a wisp of straw,
And mirrored in soft brown eyes
Of beasts stalled there, a cradle where
A new-born infant lies.

Now the sun has roused himself,
While stars lie down to rest.
The angels sing, their voices ring:
"Et homo factus est."

Former Professor And Musical Organizer Dies

Rev. John F. Medina, O. S. A., assistant rector of the Church of Our Mother of Good Counsel in suburban Bryn Mawr and former professor of music at Villanova, died on Sunday, December 5, in Whitemarsh. He was 73 years old.

Born in Indianapolis, Fr. Medina was graduated from here in 1887 and was ordained ten years later. Besides teaching music, he was Chapel organist as well as the organizer of the campus Glee Club.

Interment took place at the cemetery adjacent to the Chapel with the usual ceremony.

'Engineer' Continues To Feature Photos

The "Villanova Engineer," campus technical publication, will feature articles by Anthony Mannino and Arthur Roth in the coming November issue. Mannino, president of the Villanova Student Branch of the A. I. E. E., has written an interesting and informative thesis on sound reproduction pertaining to the Motion Picture Industry. It is concise, well written and should have a special appeal to the Electrical Engineers. The co-featured article, compiled by Arthur Roth, chairman of the Student Branch of the A. S. M. E., deals with the testing of model dreadnaughts and is accompanied by official Navy photographs.

The picture section, started in last month's issue, will be a regularly-featured topic hereafter and will, in a most interesting way, acquaint the students with the various activities and functions at Villanova. The credit for the excellent photography work goes to John Millet, photography editor. Also included is a scintillating poetry and quip column compiled and edited by Edward Brennan.

Tickets Available

The home season for Villanova's basketball team includes nine more games. Although the admission to individual games is $.55, V-12 trainees can procure a season ticket, good for all nine games, for only $2.00 plus $.30 tax. These tickets may be procured at the business office, and are valid only when presented by the trainees to whom they were issued.

As in former years, non-military students will be admitted upon presentation of their matriculation cards.

A.I.Ch.E. Students Attend Exhibit; To Hold Meeting

New Improvements, Post-War Trends in Equipment and Design Displayed at Convention

By PVT. LARRY SCHMITT

Villanova was represented at the nineteenth meeting of the American Chemical Industry Exhibition last week by twenty-one men connected with its Chemical Engineering Department. Most of the students who made the trip are members of the Villanova Chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

Leaving early Friday, the men first visited the laboratories of Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, then spent the remainder of the day at Madison Square Garden where the exposition was held.

Necessarily condensed because of present conditions, the exhibition was, however, a good indication of post-war trends in equipment and design. Outstanding in these trends seemed to be a wider use of corrosion-resisting metals and plastics, light metals assuming a more prominent place, and greater adoption of automatic control instruments.

Trend Toward Streamlining

Still greater streamlining of equipment will take place, electric and electronic heating will come into greater prominence, and many substitutions now in use will have continuing post-war production, according to the indications of the show.

Among the more interesting displays at the huge indoor arena was a showing of working models of vacuation apparatus for difficult size separation by Dorr & Co. General Ceramics & Co. displayed chemical stoneware equipment, a duplex condensing coil, and a new development, white, iron-free chemical porcelainware.

Another interesting object was one made by the Cambridge Instrument Co. It was an automatic gas analyzer, requiring no chemicals or moving parts.

Tour Augments Theory

Harry Blumenfeld, assistant professor of chemistry and chemical engineering, said, in reference to the trip, "This sort of thing is a fine opportunity for those who are interested to see just what is being done in the field. It gives a man the chance to witness the practical side of his classroom theory."

At the same time Prof. Blumenfeld mentioned the coming meeting of the A. I. Ch. E. It is to be next Friday, December 17. A distinguished guest speaker, in the person of Dr. J. H. Rushton, will be present. Dr. Rushton is head of the Department of Chemical Engineering at the University of Virginia and is also the chairman of the committee on the student branch of the A. I. Ch. E. Villanova's Student Chapter Award will also be presented at this meeting. The society will convene at 12:30 P. M. at Simpson Hall.

Reardon Wounded

Word has just been received that Ensign David N. Reardon, USNR, graduate of Villanova's Commerce and Finance School and four-year member of the Villanovan staff, has been wounded in action in the South Pacific.

While here Reardon was President of Delta Pi Epsilon, the business school fraternity, member of the Belle Aire staff, and author of the newspaper's column which was then known as "Wildcat Whirl."

Notice!

This is the last issue of the Villanovan until January 11. The coming mid-semester examinations and the Christmas vacation make it impossible for us to publish until then.

Day of Prayer

LAST week, President Roosevelt proclaimed January 1, 1944, as a National Day of Prayer for "strength and guidance for the problems of widening warfare and for the responsibilities of increasing victory."

The text of the proclamation follows:

"At the end of the year 1943, which has not only made manifest the devotion and courage of our nation's sons but has also crowned their efforts with brilliant success on every battle front, it is fitting that we set aside a day of prayer to give thanks to Almighty God for his constant providence over us in every hour of national peace and national peril.

"At the beginning of the new year, 1944, which now lies before us, it is fitting that we pray to be preserved from false pride of accomplishment and from willful neglect of the last measure of public and private sacrifice necessary to attain final victory and peace.

"May we humbly seek strength and guidance for the problems of widening warfare and for the responsibilities of increasing victory. May we find in the infinite mercy of the God of our fathers some measure of comfort for the personal anxieties of separation and anguish of bereavement.

"Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do hereby appoint Saturday, the first day of January, 1944, as a day of prayer for all of us in our churches, in our homes, and in our hearts, for those of us who walk in the familiar paths of home, those who fight on the wide battlefields of the world, those who go down to the sea in ships, and those who rise in the air on wings."

Thus did the Commander-in-Chief of our armed forces, who knows their strength and ability far better than we, admit that, no matter how great their apparent power, they can do nothing without the help of God.

We, who are yet only preparing for our part in this war, are in no position to do any "fighting" in the accepted sense of the word. But the religious facilities available here at Villanova give us the opportunity to accomplish even greater things than our comrades-in-arms at the battle-fronts.

We are inclined to believe that victory is practically a certainty — and we are probably right. From the present world set-up we could hardly form any other conclusion. But what, in the end, will decide the outcome of the war? Will it be the strength of our armies or the weakness of our foes? Or are these things only incidental to the real determining factor: the Providence of God?

There are none among us who would even hesitate at answering that last question. As Christians, we believe and know that everything depends on God's will, and that mundane things are merely the instruments with which His commands are carried out.

In keeping with the President's proclamation, special prayers will be said in the Chapel on New Year's Day. Let's start the year off right by carrying on the fight spiritually; we have no bullets, but the supply of prayers is plentiful.

Meet the Boys

Three Engineers Make Up Our Show; All Busy Day-Hops: Frank, Jim And Joe

By ANTHONY J. MANNINO

THE first of the three fellows to come into the "limelight" this week is Joseph J. McFarland. It is evident from the number of McFarland brothers which we have come across here on the campus that Joe came from a family which cannot be called small. Joe was born in Philadelphia just five days after Christmas in the year 1921 (a late Christmas present to his parents).

He attended St. Martin of Tours Parochial School and from there went to St. Joseph's Prep. Among his other activities in high school, Joe was President of the Dramatic Society. He said that his interests at that time were zoot-suits and women and that he has long since outgrown the former.

Joe entered Villanova in September, 1940, and matriculated in the Civil Engineering Course. Soon after coming here, he was initiated into the Phi Kappa Pi Fraternity and was later made a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers. Besides having been active on P. K. P.'s recent Initiation and Banquet Committee, he has constantly been on one of the frat's bowling teams.

FRANK HELIES, our next victim, gave his first "oration" or cry on January 6, 1921, in Elizabeth, New Jersey. There he attended the Blessed Sacrament Parochial School where he had his elementary education drilled into him. Atfer graduating he attended St. Benedict's Prep, in Newark, where, besides preparing for college, he played basketball on the Varsity team.

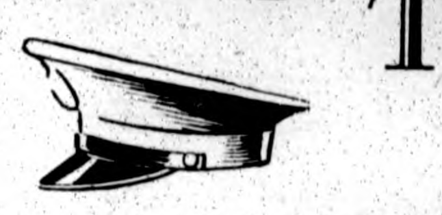
The month of September, 1940, marked the beginning of Frank's college days at Villanova. He enrolled in the Electrical Engineering School, and applied himself earnestly towards his degree. Frank, who seems to believe in the proverb which says that silence is golden, has been and still is very active in intramural sports. He is now playing on one of the basketball teams.

ON January 8, 1923, a blond-haired, blue-eyed baby was born to the Gerrity family then living in Scranton, Pennsylvania. His parents christened him James and they later added his middle name, Joseph. His early childhood was spent in Renovo, Pa., and there he attended St. Joseph's Elementary School.

For his high school eduaction, Jim came all the way down to Philadelphia to attend the West Philadelphia Catholic High School for Boys. There he pursued the Arts Course and was active in many organizations and societies. He was also active in intramurals.

Jim entered Villanova in September, 1940, and enrolled in the Commerce and Finance School. However, not many days were allowed the pass before he changed his mind and transferred to the Electrical Engineering Course. As in high school, Jim continued his extra-curricular activity. He joined the Phi Kappa Pi Fraternity and served on several committees. He also was elected as Vice-Chairman of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and made a member of the Math Society.

Camp To Campus



By PVT. JOHN BITTIG

"Having a rough time. Wish you were here — instead of us," wrote Doug Boyd, Joe Pezelski, and Bob O'Sullivan from Parris Island. It seems that they had just returned from a ten mile hike in the rain and before that had done 1,200 — yes, 1200 rifle pushups. All three like it at P. I. even though it is tough but they can hardly wait to get to Quantico for that chance for a commission.

On campus a week ago last Thursday was Pvt. Tony Lanciano who has just finished his basic training and is assigned to Camp Meade. Already at Camp Meade is Pvt. Sal Carfagno. Sal is attached to the hospital at that camp and will remain there until January when he begins medical school at Jefferson Med.

Another campus visitor was Pfc. Bill Quinn who was concluding a 15 day furlough. Bill is stationed at March Field, California in a fighter control group.

John Zauner was among the 150 aviation cadets just graduated from the Naval Flight Preparatory School at Colgate University. John will remain at Colgate for War Training Services courses which will include his first flight instruction.

From Little Creek, Tom Devine writes that he is stationed there with Frank Desmond, Harry Kiefrider, Andy Didio, and Neil O'Mahoney—all ensigns. Tom seems to be doing a lot of traveling and while at Norfolk, Virginia, he met Jim Connely, Dick Ryan, and Chris Kiefer, who were soon to leave for midshipman's school at Northwestern in a few days.

First Sergeant Norman "Monk" Restaine on campus last week. He has been in the Army for two years and is a staff member of the air base at Kingman, Arizona. Norman echoes the sentiments of all the Villanova undergraduates in the services in saying that he can't wait to complete his college work. With him at Kingman are Ed Sitcher and Gerald McDermott.

Lieutenant (jg) Eugene Vertle is a member of the staff at the Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn. He expects to soon leave for sea duty.

Our sincere condolences to Dan Shields whose mother recently died. Dan is now in the middle of the action in Italy.

Gene McFarland, stationed at Fort McClelland, Alabama, has just been advanced to the rank of corporal He has been assigned as a "cadre."

Since this will be the last issue of the Villanovan this year I'd like to take this opportunity to wish you all a Merry Christmas and lots of luck in the New Year. Have one on me!

Intramural Swim Tourney Changed to Friday, Dec. 17

Individuals Named to Take Charge of Hall Teams; Fedigan Defending Titlist Led by Dailey, Former Interscholastic Champ in Maryland

News on the sports board headlines an announcement of a swimming meet to be held Friday night, Dec. 17, at the Field House pool. Information as to the events and requests for entrants have already been issued. Paralleling the swim test held here last September, Chief Beck and Rev. E. B. McKee, O. S. A., have completed arrangements but lists of entrants are still not closed to those desiring to enter. To take applications for entry, representatives have been chosen in the various barracks. The appointed men are as follows: Fedigan, Dailey and McFarland; Mendel Hall, Koness and Hairsine; Alumni, O'Hare and Fitzgerald and the marines will see either Galvin or Schmitt.

Star Performers

In a resume of the last swim meet there is noted a few individual stars and a powerhouse of general ability. Outstanding in that tiff was Charlie Dailey, Loyola College transfer and former Maryland interscholastic champion, who individualized himself by taking the only double win of the evening in sweeping both freestyle dashes. It was his fine work that helped Fedigan win the team crown and gives him the nod over Bill Koness, Mendelite star of that meet. Alumnimen can boast of Bill O'Hare, backstroker deluxe, who ran away from the field in his pet event. In a certain Pvt. Schmitt, the leathernecks possess a winning breaststroker.

According to the enthusiasm generated by this last intramural tank fracas, much new talent is expected and resultingly an even better swim meet.

Paradee Favorite

Rounding out this proposed intramural program is a boxing night which is to be held sometime in January. Already training for the contests is underway and the contestants are rounding into shape. Coaching the entrants will be two Marines, Lou Lopez and Bill Russell. Bags have been set up in the locker room together with a ring, and it is on the Field House floor that the matches are to take place. Ruling favorite this year due to his fine showing last year will be Ben Paradee, who is now a Navy trainee.

McNALLY-JACOBS FEUD

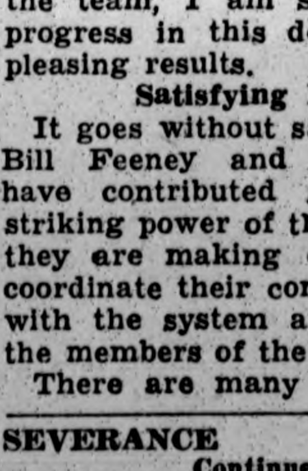
Vince McNally, assistant football coach to "Clipper" Smith last year is scouting for the Washington Professional football team. Three weeks ago the Redskins knocked off the Chicago Bears, for the Bruins first loss of the season, However, "Doc" Jacobs, former baseball coach of the Blue and White scouted that game for the Philadelphia Eagle-Steelers and the next Sunday, the Steagles won their first game from Washington since 1938. All of which puts Doc one up on Vince.

'Team Will Show Progress As The Season Advances'

By AL SEVERANCE
Basketball Coach

With two games safety tucked away in the win column and most of the personnel of this year's team having tasted battle, there are very definite signs and indicators, as to the future success of the present quintet.

It can be stated definitely that the present edition of the Blue and White has yet to employ the modified weave and screen type of play employed by the teams of the past. Rather, they have been depending upon a fast break, and a give and go, capitalizing, strictly on the physical and mental deficiencies of the opposition. In addition to the above mentioned style of play, we have been employing, to a limited degree of success, the pivot. Both of the latter styles of play are not to be condemned or to be underestimated, but let it it be understood, they are not sufficient, nor do they pack enough offensive power, to overcome first class opposition.



Despite the above set of conditions there have been times when the weave was in evidence and some crude screens employed; on the few occasions that they were in evidence, resultant scores were achieved. It is apparent that the short period of indoctrination in largely responsible for this condition, and as the season continues, the team, I am sure ,will show progress in this department with pleasing results.

Satisfying Factors

It goes without saying that both Bill Feeney and Jack Ramsey, have contributed greatly to the striking power of the club, nd that they are making every effort to coordinate their contributions both with the system and the rest of the members of the team.

There are many satisfying fac-

CHIEF SPECIALIST BECK
Chief Beck has been informed by Washington that his application for a commission as an ensign in the USNR has been approved, and that he will receive it within the next few weeks. Chief Beck is in charge of the swimming classes of the V-12 unit stationed here at Villanova. Before his enlistment in the Navy he was graduated from the University of Tennessee with a B. S. in Civil Engineering. While at the southern institution, Chief Beck played football under Major Bob Neyland in addition to being a member of the swimming team.

Medics Win Two; Remain Unbeaten

Alumni maintained its winning ways this past week by defeating Mendel 38-17, and a much improved Fedigan club 41-33. The Day-Hops lost one to the Residents 38-27 although winning from the Engineers in a close two extra period game by a 28-22 score. However, this loss cost them the opportunity of moving into a second place tie with the Marines who were defeated by Fedigan 30-22. Incidentally, this was the Fedigs' first win of the season.

The Mendel - Day-Hop encounter was one for the books. With the score 22-20 and five seconds to go, Dom Femiano of the Engineers dropped a long to send the game into overtime. Strange as it may seem, neither side was able to score in the first extra period but in the second, Pete Curreri, Jake Edeikan, and Newt Ward found the range and each put one through to sew the game up for the Commuters.

The other surprise of the week came when the Marines were upset by an underdog Fedigan quintet, 30-22. The game was featured throughout by the sterling play of Milt Anderson, football end, who used his height to advantage over the smaller Leathernecks.

Wildcats Oppose Marines, Princeton In Coming Games

Main Liners to Meet Phila. Navy Yard Marines For First Time; Princeton and Muhlenberg Continue Court Rivalry With Villanova

By HUGH O'REILLY, A.S.

Meeting the first service team on its 1943 basketball schedule, the Wildcat quintet engages the U. S. Marine Corps five from the Philadelphia Navy Yard tonight in the Field House. On the succeeding Saturday they will tussle with Princeton University to wind up their pre-Christmas court tangles.

This evening's set-to brings a once defeated team to the Main Line. Recently organized, the fighting Bulldogs have racked up several impressive court wins including a 63-20 drubbing of West Chester State Teachers College. Only mar on its record is a close 40-33 setback by Albright, which school usually produces fine teams. In Lt. Wes Dorney, former West Chester State Teachers athlete, and Paul Donet, center, the Marines possess two big scoring guns. Rounding out the opening five will be Carroll, Abromovich and Thompson. Carroll will flank Dorney at the other forward slot while Abramovich and Thompson will be the playmakers and guards.

Meet Tigers Again

Saturday night the Wildcats will travel to Princeton, N. J., to meet the Tigers for the second straight year. Following up last year's 54-46 victory, the Villanova team will match claws with one of the top fives of the '43 season. Although having lost twice, the Tigers boast a powerful squad, beaten only by the strong Ellis Island Coast Guard team and Dartmouth, perennial champs of the Eastern Intercollegiate League.

Forming the nucleus of the new five are two marine reservists in the V-12 program installed at Princeton, Mike Shinkanich and Dan Ullman. Shinkanich, a 6' 1" leatherneck transfer from C. C. N. Y., who starred at that school last season, has been named starter at the pivot. Pairing off with Mike at forward will be their high-scoring Dan Ullman, star of the 39-37 win over Muhlenberg last week, Alternating at the other forward spot will be two civilians, Ted Green and Lee Hill, both of whom are newcomers to the Tigar squad. Guards will be Britt and Smith. This Princeton fracas marks the last game for the Main Liners before the Christmas holidays and perhaps the best game of the season.

Elected to open the first '44 court session on January 8 will be the highly-touted Mules from Allen-

Loyola, Garnet Succumb To 'Cats In Opening Tests

Greyhounds Trounced 51-35 in Opener; Swarthmore Beaten 58-31 as Ramsey and Feeney Hit 19 and 18 Points Respectively

Wartime seems to have no effect on the quality of Villanova basketball, for the Villanova College team opened up both at home and abroad with resounding wins.

Last Saturday evening saw our boisterous 'Cats take a favored Swarthmore team into camp and act the part of a very ungratious host. Swarthmore took a beating to the tune of 52-33. Bill Feeney, Marine reservist from Georgetown, and John Ramsey, Navy trainee from St. Joseph's, together scored 37 points for the 'Cats. Both Feeney and Ramsey racked up nine field goals. However, Feeney was short of Ramsey by one foul toss.

Taking a firm 20-14 lead in the first half, Villanova coasted in to win the game by a wide margin. Swarthmore's lone boasts for the game were Ray Winch, who scored thirteen points, and Hank Bordman, with nine.

On the preceding Thursday Al Severance's charges entered the back yard of Loyola College in Baltimore and whipped them soundly by the score of 51-35. Big Frank Frascella was the heavy artillery in this, the first Wildcat win of the season, with thirteen points. So hot were the Wildcats that night that seven out of the eight players who participated in the game hit the scoring column.

By hanging up a total of 109 points in the two opening games against fairly good opposition, the Villanova basketeers have proved themselves a potentially top-flight outfit.

Mellus All-Service

Johnny Mellus, ex-Wildcat of the 1937-38 football teams has been selected by the Associated Press for a post on the All-Service team of America. Mellus was a former teammate of Jordan Olivar, present coach of the Blue and White. Before joining the Army, Mellus played pro ball with the New York Giants and was chosen for a spot on the All-League team two years ago.

Day of Prayer

LAST week, President Roosevelt proclaimed January 1, 1944, as a National Day of Prayer for "strength and guidance for the problems of widening warfare and for the responsibilities of increasing victory."

The text of the proclamation follows:

"At the end of the year 1943, which has not only made manifest the devotion and courage of our nation's sons but has also crowned their efforts with brilliant success on every battle front, it is fitting that we set aside a day of prayer to give thanks to Almighty God for his constant providence over us in every hour of national peace and national peril.

"At the beginning of the new year, 1944, which now lies before us, it is fitting that we pray to be preserved from false pride of accomplishment and from willful neglect of the last measure of public and private sacrifice necessary to attain final victory and peace.

"May we humbly seek strength and guidance for the problems of widening warfare and for the responsibilities of increasing victory. May we find in the infinite mercy of the God of our fathers some measure of comfort for the personal anxieties of separation and anguish of bereavement.

"Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do hereby appoint Saturday, the first day of January, 1944, as a day of prayer for all of us in our churches, in our homes, and in our hearts, for those of us who walk in the familiar paths of home, those who fight on the wide battlefields of the world, those who go down to the sea in ships, and those who rise in the air on wings."

Thus did the Commander-in-Chief of our armed forces, who knows their strength and ability far better than we, admit that, no matter how great their apparent power, they can do nothing without the help of God.

We, who are yet only preparing for our part in this war, are in no position to do any "fighting" in the accepted sense of the word. But the religious facilities available here at Villanova give us the opportunity to accomplish even greater things than our comrades-in-arms at the battle-fronts.

We are inclined to believe that victory is practically a certainty — and we are probably right. From the present world set-up we could hardly form any other conclusion. But what, in the end, will decide the outcome of the war? Will it be the strength of our armies or the weakness of our foes? Or are these things only incidental to the real determining factor: the Providence of God?

There are none among us who would even hesitate at answering that last question. As Christians, we believe and know that everything depends on God's will, and that mundane things are merely the instruments with which His commands are carried out.

In keeping with the President's proclamation, special prayers will be said in the Chapel on New Year's Day. Let's start the year off right by carrying on the fight spiritually; we have no bullets, but the supply of prayers is plentiful.

Three Engineers Make Up Our Show; All Busy Day-Hops: Frank, Jim And Joe

By ANTHONY J. MANNINO

THE first of the three fellows to come into the "limelight" this week is Joseph J. McFarland. It is evident from the number of McFarland brothers which we have come across here on the campus that Joe came from a family which cannot be called small. Joe was born in Philadelphia just five days after Christmas in the year 1921 (a late Christmas present to his parents).

He attended St. Martin of Tours Parochial School and from there went to St. Joseph's Prep. Among his other activities in high school, Joe was President of the Dramatic Society. He said that his interests at that time were zoot-suits and women and that he has long since outgrown the former.

Joe entered Villanova in September, 1940, and matriculated in the Civil Engineering Course. Soon after coming here, he was initiated into the Phi Kappa Pi Fraternity and was later made a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers. Besides having been active on P. K. P.'s recent Initiation and Banquet Committee, he has constantly been on one of the frat's bowling teams.

FRANK HELIES, our next victim, gave his first "oration" or cry on January 6, 1921, in Elizabeth, New Jersey. There he attended the Blessed Sacrament Parochial School where he had his elementary education drilled into him. After graduating he attended St. Benedict's Prep, in Newark, where, besides preparing for college, he played basketball on the Varsity team.

The month of September, 1940, marked the beginning of Frank's college days at Villanova. He enrolled in the Electrical Engineering School, and applied himself earnestly towards his degree. Frank, who seems to believe in the proverb which says that silence is golden, has been and still is very active in intramural sports. He is now playing on one of the basketball teams.

ON January 8, 1923, a blond-haired, blue-eyed baby was born to the Gerrity family then living in Scranton, Pennsylvania. His parents christened him James and they later added his middle name, Joseph. His early childhood was spent in Renovo, Pa., and there he attended St. Joseph's Elementary School.

For his high school eduaction, Jim came all the way down to Philadelphia to attend the West Philadelphia Catholic High School for Boys. There he pursued the Arts Course and was active in many organizations and societies. He was also active in intramurals.

Jim entered Villanova in September, 1940, and enrolled in the Commerce and Finance School. However, not many days were allowed the pass before he changed his mind and transferred to the Electrical Engineering Course. As in high school, Jim continued his extra-curricular activity. He joined the Phi Kappa Pi Fraternity and served on several committees. He also was elected as Vice-Chairman of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and made a member of the Math Society.

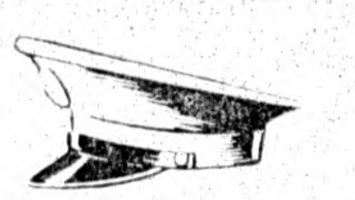
Camp To Campus



By PVT. JOHN BITTIG

"Having a rough time. Wish you were here — instead of us," wrote Doug Boyd, Joe Pezelski, and Bob O'Sullivan from Parris Island. It seems that they had just returned from a ten mile hike in the rain and before that had done 1,200 — yes, 1200 rifle pushups. All three like it at P. I. even though it is tough but they can hardly wait to get to Quantico for that chance for a commission.

On campus a week ago last Thursday was Pvt. Tony Lanciano who has just finished his basic training and is assigned to Camp Meade. Already at Camp Meade is Pvt. Sal Carfagno. Sal is attached to the hospital at that camp and will remain there until January when he begins medical school at Jefferson Med.

Another campus visitor was Pfc. Bill Quinn who was concluding a 15 day furlough. Bill is stationed at March Field, California in a fighter control group.

John Zauner was among the 150 aviation cadets just graduated from the Naval Flight Preparatory School at Colgate University. John will remain at Colgate for War Training Services courses which will include his first flight instruction.

From Little Creek, Tom Devine writes that he is stationed there with Frank Desmond, Harry Kiefrider, Andy Didio, and Neil O'Mahoney—all ensigns. Tom seems to be doing a lot of traveling and while at Norfolk, Virginia, he met Jim Connely, Dick Ryan, and Chris Kiefer, who were soon to leave for midshipman's school at Northwestern in a few days.

First Sergeant Norman "Monk" Restaine on campus last week. He has been in the Army for two years and is a staff member of the air base at Kingman, Arizona. Norman echoes the sentiments of all the Villanova undergraduates in the services in saying that he can't wait to complete his college work. With him at Kingman are Ed Sitcher and Gerald McDermott.

Lieutenant (jg) Eugene Vertle is a member of the staff at the Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn. He expects to soon leave for sea duty.

Our sincere condolences to Dan Shields whose mother recently died. Dan is now in the middle of the action in Italy.

Gene McFarland, stationed at Fort McClelland, Alabama, has just been advanced to the rank of corporal. He has been assigned as a "cadre."

Since this will be the last issue of the Villanovan this year I'd like to take this opportunity to wish you all a Merry Christmas and lots of luck in the New Year. Have one on me!

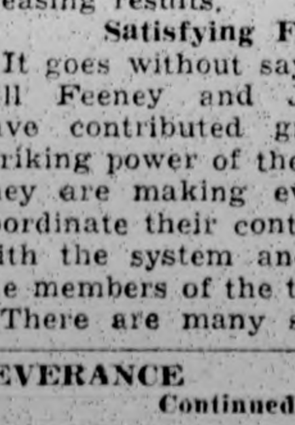
'Team Will Show Progress As The Season Advances'

By AL SEVERANCE
Basketball Coach

With two games safety tucked away in the win column and most of the personnel of this year's team having tasted battle, there are very definite signs and indicators, as to the future success of the present quintet.

It can be stated definitely that the present edition of the Blue and White has yet to employ the modified weave and screen type of play employed by the teams of the past. Rather, they have been depending upon a fast break, and a give and go, capitalizing, strictly on the physical and mental deficiencies of the opposition. In addition to the above mentioned style of play, we have been employing, to a limited degree of success, the pivot. Both of the latter styles of play are not to be condemned or to be underestimated, but let it it be understood, they are not sufficient, nor do they pack enough offensive power, to overcome first class opposition.



Despite the above set of conditions there have been times when the weave was in evidence and some crude screens employed; on the few occasions that they were in evidence, resultant scores were achieved. It is apparent that the short period of indoctrination in largely responsible for this condition, and as the season continues, the team, I am sure ,will show progress in this department with pleasing results.

Satisfying Factors

It goes without saying that both Bill Feeney and Jack Ramsey, have contributed greatly to the striking power of the club, nd that they are making every effort to coordinate their contributions both with the system and the rest of the members of the team.

There are many satisfying fac-

Chief Beck has been informed by Washington that his application for a commission as an ensign in the USNR has been approved, and that he will receive it within the next few weeks. Chief Beck is in charge of the swimming classes of the V-12 unit stationed here at Villanova. Before his enlistment in the Navy he was graduated from the University of Tennessee with a B. S. in Civil Engineering. While at the southern institution, Chief Beck played football under Major Bob Neyland in addition to being a member of the swimming team.

Medics Win Two; Remain Unbeaten

Alumni maintained its winning ways this past week by defeating Mendel 38-17, and a much improved Fedigan club 41-33. The Day-Hops lost one to the Residents 38-27 although winning from the Engineers in a close two extra period game by a 28-22 score. However, this loss cost them the opportunity of moving into a second place tie with the Marines who were defeated by Fedigan 30-22. Incidentally, this was the Fedigs' first win of the season.

The Mendel - Day-Hop encounter was one for the books. With the score 22-20 and five seconds to go, Dom Femiano of the Engineers dropped a long to send the game into overtime. Strange as it may seem, neither side was able to score in the first extra period but in the second, Pete Curreri, Jake Edeikan, and Newt Ward found the range and each put one through to sew the game up for the Commuters.

The other surprise of the week came when the Marines were upset by an underdog Fedigan quintet, 30-22. The game was featured throughout by the sterling play of Milt Anderson, football end, who used his height to advantage over the smaller Leathernecks.

Wildcats Oppose Marines, Princeton In Coming Games

Main Liners to Meet Phila. Navy Yard Marines For First Time; Princeton and Muhlenberg Continue Court Rivalry With Villanova

By HUGH O'REILLY, A.S.

Meeting the first service team on its 1943 basketball schedule, the Wildcat quintet engages the U. S. Marine Corps five from the Philadelphia Navy Yard tonight in the Field House. On the succeeding Saturday they will tussle with Princeton University to wind up their pre-Christmas court tangles.

This evening's set-to brings a once defeated team to the Main Line. Recently organized, the fighting Bulldogs have racked up several impressive court wins including a 63-20 drubbing of West Chester State Teachers College. Only mar on its record is a close 40-33 setback by Albright, which school usually produces fine teams. In Lt. Wes Dorney, former West Chester State Teachers athlete, and Paul Donet, center, the Marines possess two big scoring guns. Rounding out the opening five will be Carroll, Abromovich and Thompson. Carroll will flank Dorney at the other forward slot while Abramovich and Thompson will be the playmakers and guards.

Meet Tigers Again

Saturday night the Wildcats will travel to Princeton, N. J., to meet the Tigers for the second straight year. Following up last year's 54-46 victory, the Villanova team will match claws with one of the top fives of the '43 season. Although having lost twice, the Tigers boast a powerful squad, beaten only by the strong Ellis Island Coast Guard team and Dartmouth, perennial champs of the Eastern Intercollegiate League.

Forming the nucleus of the new five are two marine reservists in the V-12 program installed at Princeton, Mike Shinkanich and Dan Ullman. Shinkanich, a 6' 1" leatherneck transfer from C. C. N. Y., who starred at that school last season, has been named starter at the pivot. Pairing off with Mike at forward will be their high-scoring Dan Ullman, star of the 39-37 win over Muhlenberg last week. Alternating at the other forward spot will be two civilians, Ted Green and Lee Hill, both of whom are newcomers to the Tigar squad. Guards will be Britt and Smith. This Princeton fracas marks the last game for the Main Liners before the Christmas holidays and perhaps the best game of the season.

Loyola, Garnet Succumb To 'Cats In Opening Tests

Greyhounds Trounced 51-35 in Opener; Swarthmore Beaten 58-31 as Ramsey and Feeney Hit 19 and 18 Points Respectively

Wartime seems to have no effect on the quality of Villanova basketball, for the Villanova College team opened up both at home and abroad with resounding wins.

Last Saturday evening saw our boisterous 'Cats take a favored Swarthmore team into camp and act the part of a very ungratious host. Swarthmore took a beating to the tune of 52-33. Bill Feeney, Marine reservist from Georgetown, and John Ramsey, Navy trainee from St. Joseph's, together scored 37 points for the 'Cats. Both Feeney and Ramsey racked up nine field goals. However, Feeney was short of Ramsey by one foul toss.

Taking a firm 20-14 lead in the first half, Villanova coasted in to win the game by a wide margin. Swarthmore's lone boasts for the game were Ray Winch, who scored thirteen points, and Hank Bordman, with nine.

On the preceding Thursday Al Severance's charges entered the back yard of Loyola College in Baltimore and whipped them soundly by the score of 51-35. Big Frank Frascella was the heavy artillery in this, the first Wildcat win of the season, with thirteen points. So hot were the Wildcats that night that seven out of the eight players who participated in the game hit the scoring column.

By hanging up a total of 109 points in the two opening games against fairly good opposition, the Villanova basketeers have proved themselves a potentially top-flight outfit.

Mellus All-Service

Johnny Mellus, ex-Wildcat of the 1937-38 football teams has been selected by the Associated Press for a post on the All-Service team of America. Mellus was a former teammate of Jordan Olivar, present coach of the Blue and White. Before joining the Army, Mellus played pro ball with the New York Giants and was chosen for a spot on the All-League team two years ago.

town, Pa. Coach Al Julian's charges, well fortified with V-12 transfers, will present an imposing array of expert basketeers to oppose the Blue and White court-men. Discounting a tight 39-37 decision by Princeton, the Mules possess an enviable record of wins. Opening up Nat Holman's sharp C. C. N. Y. aggregation, the Muhlenberg quintet placed them and a high-powered Penn State five in their win column by respective 48-46 and 40-34 victories. In browsing through a galaxy of stars, the names of Hank Baietti, former Long Island University ace, stands as most representative of the Mules' hot court squad. Towering 6' 4" at his guard position, Hank leads the offense as consistent high scorer and talented back-board artist.

In Mel Munson, V-12 gift from West Liberty Teachers College, they own 6' 3" of basketball skill who operates from the pivot position. Jim Capehart, star at Marshall College, another six-footer, will work with Baietti at guard. Forwards are Davis and Meyerdicks, the latter being the only holdover from the Mule team of a year ago. Combining height with Navy-collected talent and the polished ability of a Julian-coached team, the Cardinal and Gray is an outfit worthy of any foe and it has the determination to avenge the defeat dished out to the Mules by last year's great 'Cat quintet.

tors, and not the least of these is the work of some of the new men. Bob Forrest, talk, rangy, and agressive is definitely improving with every practice session and game. Bob, both on defense and offense is showing a type of play that will go a long way in aiding us over the rough spots that lie ahead. Another lad, that I believe will be heard from, is Andy Fontana. Andy, is far from being a tall Cedar, but what he lacks in the height department he makes up for in the thinking department, Andy possesses a quality which is a prime requisite for success, namely, spirit. He has this quality to the 'nth degree and his ability to carry out orders definitely stamps him as a valuable addition to the team, and a player that must be reckoned with when weighing the club as a whole.

Frankie Frascella's pedal department is definitely on the mend and the results so far have been gratifying. His backboard work and his constant follow-ups lead me to believe that he has a very successful year ahead.

The keynote for this team is work and practice, practice and work; No longer is the roster studded with gunners who in days gone by were always a deadly menace to a team that would drift or play loose ball. This year's edition of the Wildcats secure their markers the hard way, "Under The Hoop." As I have said before they have been playing more with their physical attributes, than with a system of play.

Liberty or License

WE have been allowed the pleasure, in recent weeks, of reading in the papers various accounts, both scholarly and flippant, of the toils Esquire Magazine is undergoing at the hands of the Post Office Department. The pseudo-humorous accounts are mere collections of witty sayings involving the Varga girl, etc., etc.; generally the by-line sends us to the telephone directory rather than to Who's Who. The more decorous articles on the subject, however, are attributed either directly or by reason of quotations to men who are respected and considered an integral part of the community.

In both cases, although the approach is different, the effect is similar: nothing is proven, though a great deal is said.

The question appears to be whether Esquire should lose certain mailing privileges; the reason for the question is the contention of the affirmative that the magazine is obscene.

The gentlemen, who come to the aid of the publication, base their protest against the contemplated official action on a variation of modern logick known as the sly-logism. They vociferously announce the supposedly recent discovery that the right to freedom of the press is a fundamental liberty. They mention in passing that Esquire is about to have its abilitily to disseminate slightly truncated. They then repeat the first statement mentioning all the available synonyms for liberty, and the entire argument leaves one an impression that the Bill of Rights is being attacked in a most foul and dastardly manner.

There is a flaw in this reasoning which is more fundamental than its form of proof. The backers of Esquire in this moment of trial, who so often and so glibly pronounce "liberty" are in a dundering state of confusion; they do not know what the word means. They assume (whether in good faith or no is hard to determine) that liberty is license.

License implies that a man can and may pursue the whims and designs of his fancy, be they good or bad, with perfect impunity and without restriction by any kind of authority. Liberty, on the other hand, allows of only those rights which entail things good or indifferent in themselves and their effects. We have our rights, and the other fellow has his. We can use our rights for good, but when our actions harm the other fellow, physically, psychologically, or morally, we are offending his rights, and we have a duty to desist in such actions.

Thus we are prohibited by moral and civil law from poisoning our neighbor, either poisoning his body or poisoning his mind. To effect a spiritual or psychological murder is as much an infringement upon his rights as a bloody murder would offend his right to life. And if, under the moral law, Esquire is obscene, exciting visciousness in its readers, it has no right to any sort of mailing privileges; it has not even the right to exist. This is not shackling the freedom of the press; this is forbidding license to money-gathering, conscienceless publishers.

Every man has a right to liberty; no man has a right to license.

Senior Engineers To Attend Lectures

This evening at 6:30, at the Edison Building of the Philadelphia Electric Company, the first of two lectures to be attended by Villanova's senior mechanical engineers will take place. The subject of tonight's address is to be "Pumps and Condensers," and it is to be held in conjunction with the Electrical Society of the War Manpower Training program.

A joint meting of the Drexel and Villanova junior chapters of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers will mark the occcasion of the second lecture. This talk is to be given by an Army officer at Drexel Institute in Philadelphia and the topic will be "Booby Traps and Incendiary Bombs."

Although these sessions are primarily to be conducted for senior engineering students, all students interested are invited to attend.

These men took a physical examination to determine their fitness as flyers at the Office of Naval Officer Procurement, Widener Building, Philadelphia, but the results have not yet been received. Their status in the immediate future is somewhat doubtful.

Feb. 12 Set for Dance Shep Fields May Play

Chairman Bansbach Announces Change in Date; Student Deposits Needed by Tonight to Reserve Name Band

Delayed by the holidays and by lack of cooperation on the part of the student body, tentative plans for the coming dance are finally forming. Sponsored by the Student Council, the affair is definitely set for Feb. 12.

It seemed to be the desire of the student body to have a dance with a "name" band, but since the student representative organization has no available funds with which to make the required deposit, it attempted to secure a partial payment on the tickets of those men whao intended to go. The initial response was not encouraging to the members of the Council.

"The decision now rests entirely with the students," said Herbert Bansback, A. S., president of the organization. Then he added, "if a majority of them pay a deposit by tonight, Tues. Jan. 11, it is still probable that we can reserve Shep Fields' band for the engagement by paying the deposit."

Fields' new band was the unanimous choice at the last meeting of the Student Council. Jerry Wald, Richard Himber, and Leo Reisman are the next choices of available music makers.

If the required deposit is not obtained by tonight, the dance will be held, but naturally on a smaller scale.

The men to see to make the deposit are the following: Austin Hall—Pvts. John Killelea, Sabino Carrone, and Joseph Dervin; Mendel Hall — Apprentice Seamen Frank O'Connor, Frank Quinn, and Carton Conway; Fedigan Hall—Apprentice Seamen Herbert Bansbach, Bernard Borshke, and Hugh Burns; Alumni—Apprentice Seamen Harold Peifer and George Haupt; Civilians—John Fitzgibbons, Joseph Foley and Bernard Cassidy.

Bansbach holds the position of general chairman of the affair, with Frank O'Connor, A. S. as his aide. Decorations are to be handled by Arthur Roth and William Boyle. Lou Eni will arrange for refreshments, while the tickets are in the able hands of Frank Quinn. Co-chairmen of the Band committee are Sabine Carrone and Carton Conway.

All Ex - Villanova Marines in Officer Candidate Contingent at P. I. Make Good

The men of Villanova's Marine Detachment here have good reason to feel proud of their organization, for it has recently been shown that the Corps, as a while, thinks highly of them. Of the seventeen men who were sent to Parris Island for basic training after the last semester, not one failed to qualify for the Marine Corps Officer Candidate training. Considering the high standards which a man must meet before being chosen as a potential officer, and the high percentage of men originally intended for such training who are never actually appointed to O.C.S., such 100% success is an extraordinary accomplishment.

Dear Captain Morgan:

I most certainly should have written to you before but I waited until now for the simple reason I didn't want to have to report any casualties from Villanova. Fortunately all of us have quite successfully survived Parris Island (for some sort of record, I imagine).

Today we learned just what is what and who is going where, and when I say I'm pretty happy about the whole thing I guess I could be "run up" for the crime of understatement.

Paul Cleary and Ed Cardner (who were shunted into another platoon and section our first day here) have already arrived at New River for training pending their transfer to Quantico.

Today we Villanova boys in platoon 818, which is the best to ever set foot here, I assure you, learned that Dick Bruno, Dick Barry, Herman Drizin, Bob Reynolds, Bob O'Sullivan, Ziggie Zamlynski, and Joe Pezelski are going to New River for pre-O.C.S. training while Fred Merkel, Louie Vuona, Bob Nealon, Doug Boyd, Steve Woodruff and I are being sent directly to Quantico. Larry Gilbert was named as alternate and his status is uncertain.

Sir, the boys have been "on" me since we arrived to write to you and thank you but I waited until I could forward good news along with our gratitude.

I personally want to thank you very much for recommending me for the training here. I never felt like a marine until today when I heard of my transfer to O.C.S. Then when I felt my chest beginning to expand and wondered who was basically responsible for this honor I realized that it was the Corps.

We fellows from Villanova feel pretty proud of ourselves. The fact that six (possibly seven) men out of seventeen are going directly to Quatico should be a good indication of the caliber of the Villanova contingent. The fact impresses one all the more when one recalls that only three hundred and seventy men of the entire sixteen hundred are going to O.C.S. immediately.

The training here is over now, except for the shouting. We return-

Students Urged To Enter Discussion Contest On Inter-American Affairs

Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Social Science, has received a letter from W. Hayes Yeager, director of the National Discussion Contest sponsored by the Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, to the effect that this contest is open to all college students who wish to participate.

Contestants must submit speech manuscripts of not more than 1000 words on the subject, "The Basis for Permanent Cooperation among the American Republics." The deadline for the local contest is Feb. 15. Each of the winners of these local contests will receive a certificate in recognition of his achievement, bearing the signatures of George F. Zook, President of the American Council on Education, and Nelson A. Rockefeller, Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs.

Word has also been received that the Navy Department has approved the participation of V-12 students in this contest, provided such participation is conducted within the general regulations covering participation of V-12 trainees in extra-curricular activities.

Changes Made

The advent of the Navy College Training Program has brought about many minor changes in the layout of Mendel Hall. On the first floor, the Registrar's Office has been expanded to include what was formerly the Alumni Office, which in turn has been moved one door down the corridor to replace the old mimeograph room.

They assume (whether in good faith or no is hard to determine) that liberty is license.

License implies that a man can and may pursue the whims and designs of his fancy, be they good or bad, with perfect impunity and without restriction by any kind of authority. Liberty, on the other hand, allows of only those rights which entail things good or indifferent in themselves and their effects. We have our rights, and the other fellow has his. We can use our rights for good, but when our actions harm the other fellow, physically, psychologically, or morally, we are offending his rights, and we have a duty to desist in such actions.

Thus we are prohibited by moral and civil law from poisoning our neighbor, either poisoning his body or poisoning his mind. To effect a spiritual or psychological murder is as much an infringement upon his rights as a bloody murder would offend his right to life. And if, under the moral law, Esquire is obscene, exciting visciousness in its readers, it has no right to any sort of mailing privileges; it has not even the right to exist. This is not shackling the freedom of the press; this is forbidding license to money-gathering, conscienceless publishers.

Every man has a right to liberty; no man has a right to license.

President Appointed To National Panel

Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., President of the college, has been appointed recently as a member of a National Panel of Arbitrators for the American Arbitration Association.

The purpose of this association, which is composed of leaders of industry, commerce, and labor who meet regularly, is not only the quiet settlement of their own labor difficulties, but also the establishment of machinery for arbitrating all kinds of labor disputes.

The Association, with central offices in Rockefeller Center, New York City, maintains a nation-wide Panel for convenient use in thirty leading cities of the country.

Senior Engineers To Attend Lectures

This evening at 6:30, at the Edison Building of the Philadelphia Electric Company, the first of two lectures to be attended by Villanova's senior mechanical engineers will take place. The subject of tonight's address is to be "Pumps and Condensers," and it is to be held in conjunction with the Electrical Society of the War Manpower Training program.

A joint meting of the Drexel and Villanova junior chapters of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers will mark the occcasion of the second lecture. This talk is to be given by an Army officer at Drexel Institute in Philadelphia and the topic will be "Booby Traps and Incendiary Bombs."

Although these sessions are primarily to be conducted for senior engineering students, all students interested are invited to attend.

Briefs Of CAMPUS NEWS

The Villanova Chapter of the American Society of Electrical Engineers conducted nominations for officers at a meeting held in Rm. 215 Mendel at 2:30 yesterday.

Phi Kappa Pi, campus engineering fraternity, has announced that its annual Amateur Night Show will not be presented this year. This decision was reached because there is not sufficient time to accomplish the amount of work and organization which such a venture would entail.

A motion picture entitled "Health and the Cycle of Water," which showed the various processes of purification which drinking water must go through, was held at a meeting of the organization last Friday evening.

The Catholic Intercollegiate Interracial Council will hold its first meeting of the year next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 P. M. at Rosemont College. Miss K y McCarthy, president of the organization will preside at the meeting. Plans for a definite program to promote interracial justice on college campuses will be the main topic of dission for the afternoon. All students who are interested are invited to attend the session.

Villanova Club To Honor Dr. Fogarty

Michael P. Fogarty, D.D.S., dentist to the college faculty and civilian students, will be honored at a dinner to be given by the Villanova Club of Philadelphia at the Warwick Hotel, 17th and Locust Sts., on January 19.

At that time, the Annual Philadelphia Award, which is a loyalty award presented each year to an alumnus of Villanova considered to have done particularly outstanding work on behalf of the college since his graduation, will be bestowed on him.

Dr. Fogarty, a graduate of the School of Arts in the class of 1918, will be the twenty-second alumnus to receive the Award.

Twenty V-12 Trainees Examined For Class V-5

Twenty members of Villanova's V-12 Unit took the mental examination for Class V-5 (Aviation Cadet Training) of the United States Naval Reserve at the Commerce and Finance Building last Auesday. The following men passed it successfully. J. B. Farrell, J. A. Hennessy, E. R. Campbell, E. J. Sullivan, E J. Murray, J. P. O'Kane, J. J. Cronin, E. P. Fitzgerald, W N. Donnelly, J. Walten, F. H. Miller, and S. R. Decker.

These men took a physical examination to determine their fitness as flyers at the Office of Naval Officer Procurement, Widener Building, Philadelphia, but the results have not yet been received. Their status in the immediate future is somewhat doubtful.

Feb. 12 Set for Dance Shep Fields May Play

Chairman Bansbach Announces Change in Date; Student Deposits Needed by Tonight to Reserve Name Band

Delayed by the holidays and by lack of cooperation on the part of the student body, tentative plans for the coming dance are finally forming. Sponsored by the Student Council, the affair is definitely set for Feb. 12.

It seemed to be the desire of the student body to have a dance with a "name" band, but since the student representative organization has no available funds with which to make the required deposit, it attempted to secure a partial payment on the tickets of those men whao intended to go. The initial response was not encouraging to the members of the Council.

"The decision now rests entirely with the students," said Herbert Bansback, A. S., president of the organization. Then he added, "if a majority of them pay a deposit by tonight, Tues. Jan. 11, it is still probable that we can reserve Shep Fields' band for the engagement by paying the deposit."

Fields' new band was the unanimous choice at the last meeting of the Student Council. Jerry Wald, Richard Himber, and Leo Reisman are the next choices of available music makers.

If the required deposit is not obtained by tonight, the dance will be held, but naturally on a smaller scale.

The men to see to make the deposit are the following: Austin Hall—Pvts. John Killelea, Sabino Carrone, and Joseph Dervin; Mendel Hall — Apprentice Seamen Frank O'Connor, Frank Quinn, and Carton Conway; Fedigan Hall—Apprentice Seamen Herbert Bansbach, Bernard Borshke, and Hugh Burns; Alumni—Apprentice Seamen Harold Peifer and George Haupt; Civilians—John Fitzgibbons, Joseph Foley and Bernard Cassidy.

Bansbach holds the position of general chairman of the affair, with Frank O'Connor, A. S. as his aide. Decorations are to be handled by Arthur Roth and William Boyle. Lou Eni will arrange for refreshments, while the tickets are in the able hands of Frank Quinn. Co-chairmen of the Band committee are Sabine Carrone and Carton Conway.

All Ex - Villanova Marines in Officer Candidate Contingent at P. I. Make Good

The men of Villanova's Marine Detachment here have good reason to feel proud of their organization, for it has recently been shown that the Corps, as a while, thinks highly of them. Of the seventeen men who were sent to Parris Island for basic training after the last semester, not one failed to qualify for the Marine Corps Officer Candidate training. Considering the high standards which a man must meet before being chosen as a potential officer, and the high percentage of men originally intended for such training who are never actually appointed to O.C.S., such 100% success is an extraordinary accomplishment.

Dear Captain Morgan:

I most certainly should have written to you before but I waited until now for the simple reason I didn't want to have to report any casualties from Villanova. Fortunately all of us have quite successfully survived Parris Island (for some sort of record, I imagine).

Today we learned just what is what and who is going where, and when I say I'm pretty happy about the whole thing I guess I could be "run up" for the crime of understatement.

Paul Cleary and Ed Cardner (who were shunted into another platoon and section our first day here) have already arrived at New River for training pending their transfer to Quantico.

Today we Villanova boys in platoon 818, which is the best to ever set foot here, I assure you, learned that Dick Bruno, Dick Barry, Herman Drizin, Bob Reynolds, Bob O'Sullivan, Ziggie Zamlynski, and Joe Pezelski are going to New River for pre-O.C.S. training while Fred Merkel, Louie Vuona, Bob Nealon, Doug Boyd, Steve Woodruff and I are being sent directly to Quantico. Larry Gilbert was named as alternate and his status is uncertain.

Sir, the boys have been "on" me since we arrived to write to you and thank you but I waited until I could forward good news along with our gratitude.

I personally want to thank you very much for recommending me for the training here. I never felt like a marine until today when I heard of my transfer to O.C.S. Then when I felt my chest beginning to expand and wondered who was basically responsible for this honor I realized that it was the Corps.

We fellows from Villanova feel pretty proud of ourselves. The fact that six (possibly seven) men out of seventeen are going directly to Quatico should be a good indication of the caliber of the Villanova contingent. The fact impresses one all the more when one recalls that only three hundred and seventy men of the entire sixteen hundred are going to O.C.S. immediately.

The training here is over now, except for the shouting. We return-

Students Urged To Enter Discussion Contest On Inter-American Affairs

Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Social Science, has received a letter from W. Hayes Yeager, director of the National Discussion Contest sponsored by the Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, to the effect that this contest is open to all college students who wish to participate.

Contestants must submit speech manuscripts of not more than 1000 words on the subject, "The Basis for Permanent Cooperation among the American Republics." The deadline for the local contest is Feb. 15. Each of the winners of these local contests will receive a certificate in recognition of his achievement, bearing the signatures of George F. Zook, President of the American Council on Education, and Nelson A. Rockefeller, Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs.

Word has also been received that the Navy Department has approved the participation of V-12 students in this contest, provided such participation is conducted within the general regulations covering participation of V-12 trainees in extra-curricular activities.

Changes Made

The advent of the Navy College Training Program has brought about many minor changes in the layout of Mendel Hall. On the first floor, the Registrar's Office has been expanded to include what was formerly the Alumni Office, which in turn has been moved one door down the corridor to replace the old mimeograph room.

Let's Face Facts!

ARTIST George Biddle, of Life Magazine, who is at present making a series of character sketches of the men fighting the battle of Italy, has this to say about their attitude toward the manner in which we are being informed of their accomplishments:

"Nothing angers the boys at the front more than propaganda about how comfortable and well-fed they are. They want the people at home to know what war in Italy is really like. They want the people to know about the cold, and the wet, and the dirt, and the deaths. They want the people to know that sometimes they have no water, no food, no heavy overcoats, and no blankets. The most characteristic thing about an attack is the sight of weary men going forward with sagging knees and sloping shoulders.

"Unfortunately troop morale is none too good. This is because the American soldiers, even though they are at the front, still do not emotionally feel that this is their war. Intellectually, they understand the need for victory, but as yet the majority of them have not learned to feel passionately about the war, as for instance the Russians do.

"Everybody at the front thinks that troop morale would be improved if people at home could see the setting in which their boys are fighting. Instead of imagining that the boys at the front are all heroes, they might better visualize them as miners trapped underground. They are always frightened and they are always homesick. Their one dream and ambition is not to march on Berlin, as propaganda stories say, but to go home."

Now this statement is somewhat revolutionary in the light of other current depictions of our fighting men and their morale. However, it is reasonable to assume that it is probably more correct than many of the others, for who is more competent to judge men than one who has spent most of his life psychoanalyzing them on a sketch pad. Besides, we need only picture ourselves amid the mud, shellfire, and confusion of the battlefield to bring ourselves to the conclusion that Biddle's conception of the average soldier is the right one.

What does this prove? Merely that the American press is entirely too idealistic, except perhaps when trying to sell war bonds by the atrocity-picture method. But even when it does go realistic—has anybody ever read an account of an event or a battle which frankly stated that American soldiers were afraid of what they were facing, that they were not always well-equipped, and that a feeling of nostalgia was much more prevalent among them than any rabid desires for revenge and conquest?

Such a lack of realism is resented by the men concerned. It makes them feel that we at home are of the opinion that winning battles is all too easy for such alleged supermen as they. They want us to know what they are actually suffering, in the hope that such knowledge might incite us to redouble our efforts toward victory.

We are free to rationalize, if we so desire, to the extent of believing that all American soldiers are well-equipped, fearless heroes. But the newspapers shouldn't be doing this for us.

The Day-Hop Bridge Club's Three Musketeers, Vin's A Chemist, Jack And Jim Engineers

By JOHN ATKINSON, A. S.

Standing, Breen; Sitting, Corraka and Skahan

CHARTER member of the Day Hop Bridge and Social Club is James Corralea.

In Philadelphia Jim became acquainted with his first deck of bridge cards shortly after October 18, 1922. Boyhood days found Jim on the scholastic road to Villanova, sojourning on the way at the Stephen Girard Grammar School, Vare Junior High School and South Philadelphia High School. After his graduation from South Philly in 1940, he entered Villanova.

At Villanova, Mechanical Engineering took him into its fold, and extra-curricular activities received another supporter. Phi Kappa Pi gave him a "bid" followed by initiation. Intramural athletics claimed his interest and for that job on a dance committee there way always Jim Corralea.

WITH deep respect we announce the arrival of his Excellency, the Ambassador to Villanova from the Germantown Chamber of Commerce, John "Jackson" Breen.

John's diplomatic career as Germantown's chief booster began on July 7, 1923. In preparation for that and mechanical engineering, Jackson attended La Salle High School, gratuating in 1940.

When the Chamber handed him his new credentials, John boarded the Paoli Local and arrived at soon proved his versatility in the Mathematics Club, the A.S.M.E. of which he is now secretary, and intramural sports. Chairmanship of the last dance's committee for decorations is but an example of Jackson's work in behalf of the Terpsichorean art.

COMPLETING the triangle of charter members in the Day Hop Bridge and Social Club we have Vincent Skahan.

Nn keeping with the column's tradition for the week, Vince is also a Philadelphian, born there on October 7, 1922. Following Greely's "Go West, young man, go west", he did, attending West Philadelphia Catholic High School for boys. At West, Vincent broke the monotony of scholastic life with intramural basketball and track. In balancing the athletics, the cultural sile of his high school days was not neglected, for Vince was a mainstay of the staff of the French newspaper there.

Subsequent to graduation from West Catholic, September of 1940 found a quiet but enthusiastic freshman at Villanova who was majoring in Chemistry, one Vincent Skahan. Molecules and atoms kept Vince rather busy, but not so busy as to neglect supporting Villanova's various activities, particularly Phi Kappa Pi affairs, and the German Club.

AMONG the 1634 Marine V-12 students to report to Parris Island last November, Villanova's detail certainly distinguished itself. Of the total seventeen who reported there, six are to go directly to Officers Candidate School at Quantico while the remaining eleven are to report to the OCS pool at New River. Especially outstanding were Doug Boyd and Bob Nealon who placed fourteenth and fifteenth in the class.

Eight more weeks at Chapel Hill, N. C., and Harold "Irish" Donohue's Navy Pre-Flight training will be completed. Another one of those hard-to-believe stories took place when "Irish" and Paul Gallagher found themselves roommates at Chapel Hill.

That inseparable pair, Lieutenants Jim Cashin and Jim Walsh have been transferred from Quantico to the Marine Base at San Diego. Jim Cashin is a member of a tank division while Jim Walsh has a rifle platoon.

Members of the class of '45 who were Alumni Hall residents should well remember the trumpet tooting of Harry Ladoski. Harry is now playing the trumpet in the Army Air Force band at Goodfellow Field, San Gela, Texas.

Morris "Bing" Bingham, S 2/C, has been assigned to the Naval Signal School at the University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill. Bing has been made company commander and seems to enjoy his work there a lot.

Ensign Don Haley, ex-Villanovan staff member, is aboard a minesweeper somewhere in the Aleutian area. Don received his commission a year ago last Christmas Eve. Nice Christmas present.

Joe Mahoney is now a member of the A.S.T.P. majoring in French. His brother, Bill, is also in the A.S.T.P. but is majoring in Engineering at the University of South Dakota.

Waiting to go to a P.O.E. is Jim Bradley at Camp Greenville, Pa. Jim is in a medical detachment and had his training at Rockford, Ill.

Besides First Sergeant Norman Restaine, Lieutenant Ed Scycher, A/C Don Duffy and Staff Sergeant Chris Daley are stationed at Kingman Air Field, Kingman, Arizona. Norm has been elected vice-president of the Holy Name Society there and was acting president during the last few weeks.

Bill Carey is now home on leave from the Merchant Marine. Bill has made several trips to Africa and England in recent months.

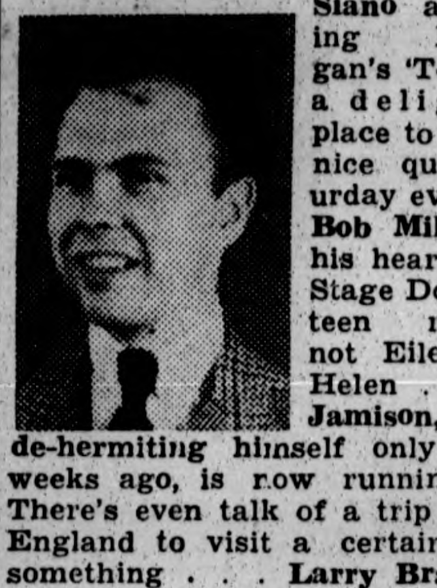
ANOTHER year has rolled around. . .the familiar New Year's resolutions have been made again, and it's ten to one that they'll be broken in the same old way before very long. . .at least we all have good intentions; that's what counts!

START OUT RIGHT:

Newton's 33rd law: The dimmer the porch light, the greater the scandal power.

Don't be surprised to hear Tom O'Connell with a newly acquired Southern accent; he's really under the spell of one of North Carolina's fair sex. . .Villanova's threat to Sinatra: "Swoon-crooner Severson slaying them at every night spot in town. . .Dom Carrone, Tom Kongsgard, Lou Lopez, and John Siano are finding McGettigan's 'Tea Shop' a delightful place to spend a nice quiet Saturday evening. . Bob Miller lost his heart at the Stage Door Canteen recently; not Eileen but Helen . . . Al Jamison, after de-hermiting himself only a few weeks ago, is now running wild. There's even talk of a trip to New England to visit a certain sweet something . . . Larry Bradley is another New England operator, especially now that his Harcum latest is from that same territory.



LET'S AIM HIGH:

"What a splendid fit," said the tailor as they carried the epileptic out of his shop.

"Booze" Beisel and his sidekick, "Willie" Heinkel certainly look forward to those weekends; or is it to Kitty and her friend??? . . .Joe O'Keefe and Merle Call were making time with "Paoli Polly," one of P.R.R.'s cute conductorettes, during the long trip home last week . . .Joe Dunnigan is being referred to lately as "that curly headed cutie" . . . "Moose" McTighe, Jim Humes, and John Atkinson really had quite a time with that weight guessing racket over in Alumni last week; too bad it didn't pay off, or did it? . . . Wonder how John Wade's gall bladder is now? . . . Fr. Hammond is deeply concerned . . .Will Adams will turn around from now on before rendering any more sentimental good night greetings; "Yassuh, honey!" (It couldn't have been that dark?)

PLENTY OF FIGHT:

Indian girl had heap plenty fun with beau and error!

Jim Fitzgerald has gone head over heels for a Chestnut Hill jeune fille. . .Mike Delpomo is making a big hit in Alumni Hall with his impersonations; at times they're too real! . . . Saddest Man of the Week: Bill Kuzman. Bill had arranged for two dates for his roommates for last Saturday night. Everything was fine until the long awaited "honor roll" made its appearance. Both fellows were restricted and thus Bill ended up dating the three girls himself. (Complaining?) . . . Frank Fazio has been stricken with a severe case of Eleanoritis. . Dick Bernstein's "Physics-cal" condition also took a turn for the worse.

DO OR DIE:

Brenda: Why dearie, the boys simply run after my kisses."

Cobina: "That's nothing. After mine they limp!"

Chestnut Hill's flowering damsel's are one up on their sisters from Rosemont and Immaculata, with the success of their Tea Dance last Sunday afternoon. . .Immaculata will get back into the battle with the staging of the Junior Prom at the Warwick Hotel this Saturday night. . .should be a merry time in store for all. . .O. K. Rosemont, now it's your move! . . . Dig in deep comrades, and try to make a deposit on your ticket for the Wildcat brawl on the twelfth of next month. . .Let's make it our biggest and best; a Field Day with Fields!

Konopka to Meet Severson in Comic Wrestling Match; Entertainment Planned Between Bouts

The Intramural Boxing Tournament will be held in the field house Friday, Jan. 21, at 8:00 P. M. It is rumored that the field house will literally rock and shake with the haymakers and shouts of the first All-Star Boxing Show held since the V-12 trainees arrived on the campus. Admission will be free and entertainment will be provided between bouts by Gene Konopka and his Korn Kobblers.

Killer Vs. Angel Face

Approximately 17 fast, star-studded bouts will be put on, including three wrestling matches. "Killer" Konopka will take time out from his music-makin' to grapple with "Angel Face" Duke Severson in a comic thriller that promises to overshadow the Konopka-Lilliantal bout of two semesters ago. Of course Konopka will have an edge in experience due to last year's bout, but "Angel" Severson sems to have plenty of natural ability that will enable him to hold his own in this mayhem mauling match.

Boxers Better Trained

"Bruisin'" Ben Paradee of the murderous Boyle-Paradee settos—will make his third consecutive appearance in this annual classic. He has won his last two starts, and should be a favorite in his next one. Also listed among the veterans are Roger Lattanza and 'Herb' Lamb who should fare well in the coming tournament. Due to the V-12 Program, more and better trained tyros will make their debut this year. All who aspire to the slugging profession are urged to participate in this gala event. The field house is at the convenience of those interested up to 8:00 P. M. every night except Saturday and Sunday.

Trainers

Supervising the training periods are Lou Lopez and Johnny Dzitko, two competent ring masters who really know their stuff. As usual the actual matches will not be known until the night of the fights. This is done so that the battles will be fought in the ring and not in the sparring ring.

A FEW days before the Christmas holidays, a plea was read to the Navy and Marine trainees by their respective company commanders. The plea came from basketball coach Al Severance and consisted of a call for anybody with court experience to come out for the team.

At the time, it was feared that there woudn't be enough men to play the game that night. Imagine, it was feared that Villanova College with an enrollment of almost 1000 students couldn't put a five man team on the floor with reserves. There can be no doubt as to whose fault this is. The blame rests directly on the shoulders of the student body itself.

What's the matter fellows? Why didn't all those, who can at least play ball, try out for the team? Since the very first call for candidates not over 2%

The Phillies and Ship's Company both picked a game on Saturday on the league leading Mendel Third Deckers by rolling 4-0 scores over their opponents as the Engineers won a 3-1 match from the Soph Day-Hops in the Phi Kap Bowling League.

The Phillies scored their triumph over the Holy Rollers while the boys from the Navy office, led by Chief Horgen, with a high three of 485, rolled their's at the expense of the Senior Chems. In the other two games of the day, the Senior M. E.'s took a 40 forfeit game from the Swabs and the Junior C. E.'s split a 2-2 affair with the Fourth Deck Mendel team.

High man for the day's matches was Angelo Rosa, who bowled a 211 single and then finished with the three-game total of 531. "Buzz" Powers and Jack Conway both rolled 178 scores, but Conway finished with a 483 while Thompson fell three points behind with a 480.

Ex-Swimming Coach Pays Campus Visit

Lt. (j.g.) Thomas Moore, who was graduated from the Liberal Arts Course in 1941, made a recent visit to the college during a brief furlough pending his admission to the Naval Hospital in Philadelphia where he is to undergo an operation. He has seen a great deal of action in the last several months, having participated in the landings at Salerno and the Sicilian Campaign.

Before his entry into the service, Moore was Villanova's swimming coach.

Mules Defeat 'Cats 52-38; Loss Snaps Winning Streak

Miller, Former Bethany Star, Leads Victors With 15 Points; Feeney and Frascella Score 10 Each to Tie for Blue and White Honors

By HUGH O'REILLY, A. S.

After four successive victories, Villanova's 1944 edition of a basketball team suffered its first defeat, a convincing 53-38 decision at the rough hands of Muhlenberg College.

With only a two-point loss at Princeton, which team incidentally the 'Cats had beaten previously, marring its record, the V-12 Mules made it eight victories for nine starts. This is undoubtedly one of the best court records in the East. Only undefeated quintet in the Philadelphia area until Saturday night's beating, the Wildcats fought valiantly but were outclassed by the fast-stepping Mules.

Scoring Honors

A former Bethany College star, Dick Miller, led the offense by popping in five buckets and five fouls to total 15 points worth of victory power and garner the individual scoring honors for the night.

Close behind with nine and eight points, respectively, were their great center, Hank Boretti, former Long Island University ace, and Mel Muison, flashy forward who held the prolific Jack Ramsey scoreless for the evening. For the Wildcats, Bill Feeney and Frank Frascella led the scoring parade, tossing in 10 points apiece.

First Half Close

Taking a 4-0 lead in the opening minutes, the 'Cats were soon overtaken and lost the lead for the remainder of the game. The first half saw a closely-waged battle with the Mules leaving the floor at the intermission with a 25-17 advantage. In the third canto the Blue and White rallied to narrow the lead to one point and at the end of this third session were trailing 32-38.

Here it was that Miller proved the necessary cog to subdue the Wildcats. With two quick baskets and a charity toss, he pushed the Mules out to a 37-28 gain, and from then on in, the Main Liners could not muster a serious threat.

Ruins Hopes

During the last session, the 'Cats scoring gun, Bill Feeney, was injured and was compelled to leave the game. In the closing minutes, he was joined by Jack Ramsey and Don Osterman who were ruled out on fouls.

This defeat by the Mules ruined hopes for an undefeated season, but the game was only the first of a home and home series with the V-12 basketeers from Allentown. Forming the victory for the Mules was their all around offensive ability coupled with the holding down of Jack Ramsey and Bill Feeney to a small part of their former scoring ability. This loss gives the 'Cats a record of four for five in this season and 24 for 27 in the last two basketball years.

Wildcats Engage Sampson NTS And F. & M. In Week

Tangle With Untried Bluejackets and Once Defeated Diplomats on Successive Tuesday, Saturday Nights

On Tuesday night, the Wildcat quintet will try the comeback trail after their defeat by Muhlenberg last Saturday night, in a fracas with a team from Sampson Naval Training Station. Almost like a corporation, Sampson has TEAMS numbering almost one hundred, and it is from these that the Sampson Blue Jerseys will come to tangle with the Main Liners. For this team it will be their first big test, and will furnish a real battle for the 'Cats.

Veteran Team

Possessing all sorts of material gathered via naval enlistment, the Sampson Sailors who will meet Villanova are to be chosen from ten men of proven ability. At the pivot position the choice lies between Hank Rosenstein, 6' 4" lad, who starred in a Jewish Welfare League in New York before entering the Navy, and Lou Shopes who was on the first team of a championship Clark University five. The guards will be two of four excellent basketeers.

Player Coach

In Ensign Don Ahern is found a rare combination in basketball—a playing coach. Having played three years of varsity ball at Dakota-Wesleyan and having been chosen all-state for two successive years, he makes the most of his 6'2" height, and is rated as an expert ball handler. Two years of pro-experience and that of playing in a National Intercollegiate Tourney while at school, make this coach a very valuable ball player.

From Wisconsin University comes 6' Vern Kent who boasts three years of varsity playing at the Badger institution. Partner of Shopes at Clark U. is another aspirant guard, Ray Manarel. Behind him stands broken scoring records in high school in New York and Brockport State Teachers College before he went to Clark. Noted for his under the basket work, he is looked to as a future Sailor star.

Small Pro

Lastly in guards we have Bill Nuetzel, all-state player in high school in Indiana. He played varsity ball for three years at Purdue. Equally brilliant in background are the choices for the forward spots. Unique for his age of 37, there is Milt Mirsky, only 5'6" tall, but with all kinds of experience. Star at Florida U., he played three years of pro ball with a Miami club, three seasons with Ithaca (N. Y.) College, and coached Wrentham State Teachers quintet for eleven years before the U.S.N.

All-Met Selection

With him comes George Milhaven, 5'10" with three years of first string playing at St. John's U. in Brooklyn, All Metropolitan selection and pro experience with the Paragon Oilers. Howard Wills, Lt. (j.g.) calls upon his experience at York Collegiate Institute, which team was undefeated for 56 straight games, and three years of varsity ball at Syracuse U. Winding up the forwards is Irv. Morgan who also played varsity ball at the University of Florida. From these and others will come the team which in-

'CATS IN BOWLS

Ed Kasky and Sal Rosato represented Villanova's Wildcats in the various bowl games on New Year's Day. Kasky was the player coach of the Navy team which defeated the Army for the third straight year in the Lily Bowl contest in Bermuda.

Sal, a Williamsport product, was the leading ground gainer on the West team in the annual East-West tilt in San Francisco. This past season Rosato was a member of the Del Monte Pre-Flight eleven.

Alumni Wins First Half; Marines One Game Behind

By GENE WEINERT, A. S.

Alumni Hall's Navy basketeers have captured the first half title of the Intramural basketball league. By winning nine games against one lone loss, the pre-med sailors barely managed to keep ahead of the fighting Marines from Austin Hall. Extended in the last two games when a loss would have brought a deadlock, Alumni edged out an aggressive Day-Hop team 31-25 on Tuesday night, and on Thursday they beat Fedigan, 49-38.

23 Point Average

The high spot of the first half proved to be the remarkably strong finish that the Marines showed by winning their last four games in a fashion that singed the heels of Alumni Hall. Paced by Bill "Red" Nealon who averaged 23 points in these games, and Ray Kasper scoring 40 points in the same time, the Marines thumped the Day-Hops, Alumni, Mendel, and the Resident civilian team in that order.

On Tuesday night, Nealon took the measure of the Engineers from Mendel to the tune of 33 points. With this score, Nealon fell only one basket short of tying the record set by Carmen Graziano in 1941. Scoring 15 points in the first half of the game, a score which most players would be happy to have at the end of a game, he came back to add 18 points more before the final gun.

Fedigan Stronger

Fedigan Hall made up for their poor start of five straight losses by winning four out of the last five games of their schedule. The loss to the ever strong alumni was their only reverse on their comeback trail. On Tuesday Eve with Ed Kolnaski showing the way with 13 points, Fedigan beat Mendel 55-28. Thursday night, Anderson's 17 points helped Fedigan give a good scare to Alumni with the pre-meds emerging on the top of a 49-38 score. In the future, Kiely, Kolnaski, Mihalek, and Anderson will spell bad news to opponents. In the five final games, these boys collected points in amounts of ten or more enough times to challenge Alumni.

Scare Alumni

The Residents and Day Hops were alternately hot and cold, and they finished with the latter having one win more than the former. Placing third in the league race, the Day-Hops face the second half much stronger due to the addition of sparky Jack Welsh who until lately played with the Residents. The upswing was definitely noticeable in the two final games. Tuesday a large first half lead was the saving grace for Alumni who finally beat the Day-Hops. Thursday's game with Mendel was won easily by the score 44-18.

Schedule Revised

Mendel, the league's strongest team by reason of holding up the five other teams in the final standings, dropped games to the Marines and the Day-Hops to finish up the first half. Next half Mendel promises a better showing. Father Daniel J. Deehan, O.S.A., has been chosen moderator for Mendel Hall's team for the second half in order that one representative team may replace three alternate teams formerly chosen one from each deck.

Rev. Edward McKee, O.S.A., announced changes for the previously published Intramural basketball schedule Because of varsity basketball games occurring on Tuesday nights upon which Intramural are usually played, these conflicting games will be played on the Mondays preceding these dates.

A revision of the dates originally posted for the second half games was likewise announced by Fr. McKee. Due to typographical error, the dates for the last six games to be played on and after January 24 have been changed. The revised schedule will appear soon on the bulletin boards.

Nealon High

Marine Star Leads Intramural League Scoring; Walters, Alumni Captain, Second

Intramural basketball league scoring honors for the first half schedule went to Bill 'Red' Nealon. With a total of 129 points, Nealon averaged 14.3 points a game. Sparking the late drive the Marines used to chase Alumni Hall down the stretch. Nealon made up for a dearth of points in early games by scoring an average of 23.2 points in the four final games.

Alumni Hall rode to the first half title on the shoulders of Joe Walters who placed second in the scoring rating with a game average of 10.8 points, capably assisted by Critides and Powers, both of whom placed among the top eight scorers.

tends to keep the Wildcats in the losing column of the ledger.

Meet Diplomats

On next Saturday night, the Main Liners travel to Lancaster, Pa. to engage the Diplomats of Franklin and Marshall College in the first of a home and home series. Boasting a string of three victories, plus an early season setback by Temple, the lone mar on the record, the Diplomats will engage the Blue and White with a team composed mainly of Navy trainees stationed at the school. Big gun of the quintet is a talented product of Upper Darby High School, Hal Maikin, who scored 19 points in their last win over the Ursinus Bears. Filling in at forwards on the starting five will be Bob Begley and Jack Redfield while their understudy will be Bill Murphy. The guard spots are well taken care of by Jim McKiernan and Lou Ferraro, both of whom are noted for their fine floor work and consistent play. With a winning streak of three games behind them, the Sailors from F &M will prove a stiff test for the Wildcats.

of the students have been out for the squad. True, all who choose to go out won't be selected for the first five or even for the squad, but the fact remains that when more try out, the coach has a better chance to select a team which will be representative of Villanova.

Another thing; the record that the courtmen compile will reflect on the student body as a whole and consequently, it means that everybody on the campus should take more than a passive attitude towards the quintet.

Personally, we can't understand why there hasn't been more of a turnout. It certainly can't be that there is a scarcity of material here what with the six-hundred trainees in addition to at least two-hundred civilians being stationed right on the campus.

One constantly hears the argument that, "I don't have enough time." However, where are the fellows on the team getting the time? Now the answer would probably be, "Well, he's (speaking of one of the players) not taking as tough a course as I am. At this point we'd like to take it upon ourselves to point out a few examples. There are two premeds and two engineers on the starting team; they seem to find time in spite of taking the toughest courses that the college has to offer. All last semester approximately thirty reported ..every evening for football practice. Again, they found time.

From these observations, only one conclusion can be drawn. The fellows themselves don't want to play. This is indeed a sorry state of affairs when young, normal, healthy American boys don't want to engage in sports when they have a chance. Anybody overseas would give their right arm to be in the position which most of us find ourselves. Still we fail to take advantage of every opportunity we get to exercise.

We venture to say that if basketball were discontinued at Villanova, there would be quite a hullabaloo raised and in all probability most of the griping would come from those who "don't have the time."

Chief Specialist John Lisco Former Three Letter Man

By DON COLLINS

"HUP - two - three-four, Detail halt! Class dismissed." November 8 and Villanova's V12 was busy working off holiday waistlines. Walking slowly from the drill field, smiling, curlyhaired Chief Specialist John Lisco finished his first day on the newest chapter in his Navy career. Two days ago he had stepped off a train inbound from Lafayette, Indiana, the home of Purdue University- and already he had started his second assignment as a physical instructor for the Naval and Marine Reserve. Probably accustomed to undergraduate annoyances, Chief Lisco passively consented to an interview for the Villanovan and gave us the lowdown on his life and times.
